THE ROOSEVELT POLICY

Statesmen Are Anticipating Future Events

LIKELY TO STIR THE ARMY

Gold Laced Officers at the Capital Not Up to the President's Idea of the Soldier's Strenuous Life—Figure Heads May Be Placed on the Retired Shelf

Washington, Oct. 1.—That President Roosevelt will stir some of the military dry bones at the capital is confidently believed. His record is not such as to place him in sympathy with the uniformed figure heads who are constantly on dress parade at social functions, and who nominally are at the head of the army.

Conferences of the leaders of the two houses of the incoming congress with one another and with President Roosevelt, to be held in November, will largely shape the action to be taken in the session beginning the first Monday in December.

President McKinley outlined in his Buffalo address the principal recommendations he would have made in his message to congress in December. President Roosevelt has signified that he will make similar recommendations in execution of his predecessor's purpose.

It is also known that he will submit to the senate the new isthmian canal treaty negotiated by Secretary Hay, under the direction of President McKinley to take the place of the one which the Senate amended last session, and which then failed of acceptance by Great Britain. Now the British government has yielded, it is understood, the principle of the senate amendments giving the United States full control over the proposed canal, and, therefore, the ratification of the treaty is anticipated.

Beyond these matters there is much speculation among the senators and representatives who are calling daily at the White House as to what may be recommended by the President and what may be done by congress. A revision of the tariff by reciprocity treaties, provision for ship subsidies, legislation affecting anarchists, domestic and foreign, and with regard to the so-called trusts, are generally regarded as likely to be pressed in both houses in one form or another. Party pledges and McKinley promises alike point to such effort.

Hidden Treasure Recovered

Bennington, Vt., Oct. 1.—Ten thousand English souvereigns after lying for nearly a century and a quarter in an old hulk at the bottom of East Bay, Lake Champlain, have been recovered and are now deposited in the Allen National bank in Fair Haven. For many years there has been a tradition in this section of the state at the bottom of East Bay, near Carver's Falls, was a sunken boat containing a large amount of English gold, with which it was intended to pay off the troops of General Burgoyne in 1777. A few days ago George B. West, a civil engineer, taking with him about thirty men changed the course of the stream, and then with pick and shovel soon had one side of the sloop free. A charge of dynamite broke up the hulk. In the cabin was found considerable glass and other ware, fifteen muskets, much the worse for their long immersion, and other minor articles. An old iron chest was found in the captain's room. When opened it was found to contain ten thousand sovereigns.

Postal Free Deliveries

Washington, Oct. 1.—The official estimates for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1902, which Postmaster-General Charles Emory Smith will submit to congress at the opening of the session call for an aggregate of $6,250,000 for rural free delivery service throughout the country. This is an increase of $2,750,000 over the expense of that rapidly growing service for the current year. The total for the free delivery service proper, which is that operated in cities, is $18,745,000, an increase of nine percent. The grand aggregate for the entire postal free delivery services, inclusive of both the free delivery and rural free delivery, is $24,995,000.

No One to Blame

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 1.—The verdict of the coroner's jury which investigated the explosion of the port boiler of the steamboat Trentor in the Delaware river Aug. 28th, which resulted in the death of 24 persons, was rendered today. The jury was unable to charge criminal neglect on the part of any of those who constructed the boiler or those who operated the boat.

AN ANARCHIST SOLDIER

Dishonorably Discharged and Put at Hard Labor For a Year

Washington, Oct. 1.—A most unusual case has been reported to the war department. It is that of Private Peter J. Devine, troop H., 11th cavalry, who was tried by a general court-martial at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, on the charge of "using disrespectful words against the president of the United States, in violation of the 19th article of war."

It appears from the evidence that when the news of the shooting of the president was received at Fort Ethan Allen, Devine expressed great satisfaction over the crime and applied an uncomplimentary epithet to the late president. His comrades roughly handled him before he could be secured in the guard house. He was found guilty of the charge by the court and sentenced to be dishonorably discharged from the service of the United States, forfeiting all pay and allowances due him and to be confined at hard labor for one year.

The record of the case having been referred to Major-General Brooke at New York, commanding the department of the east, he indorsed it as follows:

"It is the opinion of the reviewing authority that the punishment adjudged by the court is not a sufficient penalty for the flagitious act the prisoner was found to have committed. It is not within the power of the reviewing authority to increase the punishment; but in order that the prisoner may not wholly escape punishment the sentence is approved and will be duly executed at Fort Columbus, N. Y., to which place the prisoner will be sent under proper guard."

General Brooke's action in the case is final and the record simply has been sent to the war department for filing

The Vergennes Bank Case

Rutland Vt., Oct. 1.—Unusual interest is manifest all over Vermont, in the October term of the United States court, which will be opened in this city today. The affairs of the Farmers' National bank of Vergennes, which collapsed last April, are expected to occupy much of the time of the session. The defendants in this case are David H. Lewis, former cashier of the institution, Lieutenant-Governor Martin F. Allen of North Ferrisburg, vice-president and director, and J. W. Ketchum of Vergennes, a well-known newspaper publisher, and formerly clerk for the cashier. Lewis is charged with embezzling the bank's funds he having been placed under arrest on April 15 last, for that offense. The shortage at that time was placed at $90,000. The ex-cashier is under bonds of $25,000. Former Congressman Henry Powers of Morrisville is acting as counsel for Lewis. Lieutenant-Governor Allen and Mr. Ketchum will be tried upon indictments charging them with aiding and abetting Cashier Lewis in looting the Farmers' National bank. Both men have been at liberty on bail, in the amount of $10,000 in each case. The lieutenan-governor has engaged Attorneys Seneca Haselton of Burlington and F. S. Platt of Poultney to defend him, while Mr. Ketchum has announced that his counsel will be F. W. Tuttle of Vergennes.

Cape Cod's Light to Flash

Lobster fishermen on the eastern Maine coast complain that the fish have been so scarce this year that no one has been able to make a living at catching them for the market at eight cents apiece.

A detective famous throughout New England for the deeds he did, Captain Moses Sargent, is dead at his home in Brookline, Mass. He was 86 years old.

A Pittsburg special says in spite of the strike which cut down the output of steel, tin plate, sheets and hoops to a considerable extent, the production of all kinds of iron and steel in the present year will be enormous and very much larger than any year before recalled in the history of trade.

A verdict of guilty was found by Judge Fox in the superior court at Salem Monday, in the case of Fred C. Burrill, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Thomas Healey on June 23, 1901, and a sentence of two years imposed.

The Malden police will be unable to bring Bert O. Taylor, aged 26 years, from Syracuse, N. Y., as he will have to serve a sentence there for burglary. Taylor claimed to be an electric light inspector in Malden, and gained entrance to the house of Frank S. Arnold on Main street, where he secured two or three watches, rings and other valuables valued at some $200.

THE CUP CONTEST

Early Prospects Indicated a Luffing Match

A SCUPPER BREEZE WANTED

Lipton Was as Confident as Ever Before the Start That Shamrock Would Win the Race—Sporting Circles However, bet Otherwise

New York, Oct. 1.—The weather bureau's forecast for today is "light winds from the northwest, decreasing and becoming variable."

Sir Thomas Lipton had a more confident air this morning than he had on the morning after the futile attempt at a race on Thursday. Then he was evidently very much disappointed, and a though he spoke hopefully, he could not entirely conceal his real feelings. This morning, on the contrary he was as confident in appearance as in utterance.

Sir Thomas Lipton when asked what weather he would like said:

"Give us a good 'scupper' breeze from the northwest and I'm sure the Shamrock II will win. She is very fast on the reach and in smooth water or a sea she will do well."

Speaking to the damage done to the Erin by the revenue cutter Gresham he said:

"It was trifling and I don't want Captan Walker blamed for it. It was entirely an accident and unavoidable, something that might happen to anybody. I told him a long as I was able to get the yacht back to Sandy Hook I didn't care."

Mr. Herbert, Lloyds surveyor, who went down to Sandy Hook from this city, declared that actual damage to tthe Erin was slight.

Betting today showed the effect of Saturday's wonderful contest. The talk of long odds was silenced and two to one seems to have been the best recorded, this on the general result, while on today's race those odds were shaded down, in one instance to 6 to 5. As a matter of fact, however, the actual bets recorded are atsuch varying figures as to odds that no regular quotations can be given as a standard.

Political Office Holders Removed

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct., 1.—Andrew Fulton, director of the department of public safety of this city, has announced the removal of 23 officers and employees of that department. The persons removed were nearly all prominent in political affairs and some have been in the employ of the city for 30 years and upward. Among the officers removed were A, H. Leslie, superintendent of police; Morris Mead, superintendent of the bureau of electricity, and Crosby Gray, superintendent of the bureau of health. The removals, while not entirely unexpected, caused great excitement in political circles.

Boers Attack a Garrison

Durban, Natal, Oct. 1.—A force of fifteen hundred Boers, commanded by General Botha, made an attack which lasted all day long, Sept. 28, on Portitala, on the border of Zululand. The burgers were finally repulsed, but at a heavy cost to the garrison, whose losses were an officer and 11 men killed, and five officers and 38 men wounded. In addition, 63 men are missing, of which number many are believed to have been killed or wounded. The Boer commandant Oppman and 19 burghers are known to have been killed.

Tremont Temple Mortgages

Boston, Oct. 1.—The resignation of Dr. Lorimer as pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist church brings to light the fact that the indebtedness upon the Temple is$300,000. The interestof this amount is understood to be in the neighborhood of $8000 a year; the taxes on the property are perhaps $7000 a year; and insurance charges are $4000 every five years. But these charges would more than be met by the rentals from the offices and stores in the building, which are said to approximate $28,000 a year.

A Central Vermont Wreck

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 1.—The New York and Boston express train on the Central Vermont railroad, is lying in the ditch opposite the government reservation at Fort Ethan Allen, having left the track at State line crossing. All the passengers and train crew escaped injury. The accident was caused by a washout Monday.

Lemly's Sister Burned

ALL FOR BROWN.

Ward Three Delegates Are Not for John P. Bigelow.

The delegates elected at the Republican caucus in Ward Three to the Representative convention to be held tomorrow, are surprised that it should have been reported that they were false to their pledge. Alexander Falconer, the chairman of the delegation, desires the Ledger to state that there is no foundation for the report that the Ward Three delegates are for John P. Bigelow. Since the Ledger of yesterday he says, the delegation has met, and renewed their allegiance unanimously for George H. Brown, first, last and all the time.

Without Ward Three for a backing, Mr. Bigelow will hardly be considered a candidate, and it is probable that the rameining candidates will have from 15 to 25 votes at the start.

Ward One, Two and Four if united will nominate Mr. McKnight. Should he fail to receive all the West Quincy votes he seems to have a good chance to get all that are necessary in wards Five or Six.

Wards One, Two and Six have not enough votes to nominate Badger and McKnight, but would need one more vote.

Wards One, Two and Three if solid, could have things all their own way and nominate McKnight and Brown.

Wards Three and Five together would fall 6 short of nominating Brown and DeNormandie. Perhaps they will get those 6 from West Quincy or Atlantic.

Wards One, Two and Five, if solid, could nominate DeNormandie and McKnight.

The apportionment of delegates is republished, and two are to be nominated.

☞So far as any deductions can be drawn from the case of New Zealand (in regard to woman suffrage), it is chiefly remarkable for the fact that the reform has entered quietly and harmlessly into the national life, doing neither the lurid evil that was prophesied by its opponents nor the seraphic good that was prophesied by its prophets. The notion that women, if they had a vote, would leave behind ruined mansions and starving babies in order to haunt the polling stations day and night in the hope of continuously in lieu of all other occupation, displayed very little knowledge of the feminine temperament. It is questionable whether any number of seats in parliament would soon cure women of their contempt for politics. But, on the other hand, almost equal harm has been done to the cause by those idealists of women's suffrage who have represented that the moment women were emancipated, evil itself would wither off the earth, and laws would be passed against tobacco and club-houses.—London Daily News.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Valuable Quarry Plant Destroyed.

The Watchman Was Celebrating.

Had a Man and Woman for Company.

The alarm from Box 441 at 1.12 this morning called the department to a disastrous fire in the quarry district at the plant of Fagan & Ballou.

When the department arrived they found the engine house and polishing shop one mass of flames. The fire had gained so much headway that the department was unable to save either building or contents and they were destroyed entailing a loss of fully $8,000.

There are several peculiar things about the fire, and an investigation will be held by the Fire Marshal's department.

The engineer at the plant was George H. Smith who was also supposed to be the watchman. When Chief Williams arrived at the fire this morning he found Smith in the office drunk, and with him was a man named Joseph Govan, and a young woman who gave her name as Flossie Baker. It is alleged that Govan and the Baker woman were also drunk. Chief Williams ordered all three arrested, and Officers Bradley and Daveron who were on the scene, locked them up.

The charge against Smith and the Baker woman is drunkenness. The man Govan is charged with arson.

Engineer Smith was not able to give much of an account of himself, but said that he had a little fire in the boiler.

Golf Tomorrow.

The Montclair links of the Wollaston club will be the scene of another open tournament Wednesday and Thursday. The club has departed from the usual tournament program and arranged two separate competitions. That of the first day will be a handicap stroke competition (handicap limited to 18 strokes), and that of the second a foursome handicap vs. bogey (handicap limited to 14), thus giving an agreeable variety and offering some capital sport. This, together with the reputation of the club for good management, should bring together a big field. Next week Tuesday, the club will hold an open mixed foresomes handicap stroke competition that is sure to be interesting. These events are open for members of all clubs belonging to the United States Golf Association. The Wollaston course is in even better condition than it was during the recent state championship, and that is saying a good deal, as all who attended that event can testify.

Midnight Capsize.

Sunday morning about 1.30 o'clock a carryall owned by George W. Young of East Weymouth, and containing six men, all more or less under the influence of liquor, passed through Quincy. When the team reached the corner of Hancock and School streets, instead of keeping straight ahead, the driver turned sharply into School street. The wheel became caught and collapsed and the occupants were thrown out, one of the men, William Cunniff, was apparently seriously injured, and he was taken to the City Hospital where it was learned that he was more drunk than injured. The six men were William Cunniff, D. J. Callahan, Thomas Clearly, Blanchard, Coyle and Cornell.

The Lynn Method.

The Lynn Item says: "The money collected in the Hospital boxes in the past has been of great assistance in carrying on the work on the Lynn Hospital. It was the little tin box, made to represent a drum, that first attracted the attention of the people to the plan of raising money for the founding of the Hospital, it was successful then, and the white box, with the red cross, that has taken its place, should be equally powerful in raising money to continue the good work so well begun and carried forward. Let us all keep the donation in mind so that next Saturday the white boxes will be full, and next Sunday the plates in the churches overflowing with the contributions of those who believe in keeping up the Lynn Hospital."

The excitement incident to traveling and change of food and water often brings on diarrhœa, and for this reason no one should leave home without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. For sale by all druggists.

Bachelors in the grand duchy of Hesse are compelled to pay 25 per cent. more taxes than married men.

LATEST.

DRIFTING MATCH.

Probably "No Race" Today.

But Four Miles Covered in 90 Minutes.

Shamrock Handicapped and Columbia Leading.

New York, 11 30 A. M.—The third race for the American cup is being sailed today in a very light breeze, and is little more than a drifting match. The Columbia was the first to cross the line.

Shamrock Handicap.

New York, 11.35 A. M.—The Columbia crossed the line at 11 10 and the Shamrock at 11.22. Capt. Barr got the best start but at this hour the yachts are sailing very slowly.

The Triangle.

New York, 11.45 A. M.—The course today is the triangular one, the first leg being ten miles to the windward.

Doubts of Finish.

New York, 12 M.—Should the yachts be unable to finish today within the time limit, the race of Thursday will be over the triangular course.

Still Drifting.

New York, 12 M.—There is practically no wind and the two big yachts are doing little more than drifting. The Columbia has the windward position and is leading.

Three Miles an Hour.

New York, 12 40 P. M.—Although the yachts have been out one and one-half hours they have covered but four miles of the triangle.

Probably No Race.

New York, 1.30 P. M.—The Columbia still leads, but the indications are that there will be no race.

Granite City Whist.

The social season of the Granite City club was inaugurated Monday evening by a whist party, to which the ladies were invited. It was in charge of the entertainment committee and was a social success in every way. It was but a few minutes past 8 o'clock when the signal was given and for two hours, the eleven tables present were busily engaged at whist. While this was in progress, the Lord family furnished entrancing music. At the conclusion of play, light refreshments were served. The best scores were made by Mrs. George W. Jones and Mrs. George W. Ewell, and they were presented with silver spoons as souvenirs.

Miss E. B. Collins is having her fall opening of millinery at her store in Hancock block and has a fine display of imported hats and copies of Parisian and New York hats. She has also a varied assortment of beautiful breasts, feathers and trimming all of the latest style.

☞Soon the mellow days of Indian summer will be with us—the days when the atmosphere is full of sifted sunshine and every tree-lined road is carpeted with cloth of gold. Our second summer is even more delightful at times than its predecessor. Walks, drives and sports in its clear, bracing air prove far more invigorating than those at an earlier date, and one can ill afford to miss these last warm days before chilly November. — Hingham Journal.

"The Man from Mexico" will be at Quincy Music Hall Friday evening.

Many have gone to the Brockton fair today, but tomorrow and Thursday will be the big days.

Do not forget the rally at Bethany church on Wednesday evening. Let us give Dr. Clark a royal welcome in Quincy.

Merton L. Emerson, M. I. T. '04, of Braintree, the old Thayer Academy centre, is slowly recovering from the severe injury to his knee which he received while coaching that team a week ago Tuesday.

It was intended to make a special collection at the Water street Presbyterian church on Sunday, to cancel the debt on the church. Owing to the inclement weather, however, it was postponed until next Sunday.

BUMPUS KILLED.

Latest Report from Young Lieutenant Not Encouraging.

The early dispatches from Manila Monday indicated that Lieut. Bumpus of this city, who was with the company annihilated by the insurgents had escaped. Early in the afternoon, however, the first dispatch was changed, and it was given out that Lieut. Bumpus was probably killed in the action. This fact was promptly bulletined in front of the Ledger office.

From all reports obtainable it would appear that all of the officers were killed. A dispatch from Manila this morning says: Gen. Hughes from the island of Samar reports the arrival of Sergt. Markley and one private from the fight at Balangiga. The men say that the officers who were first reported to have escaped, were killed, with a majority of the company.

The troops were attacked while unprepared by 400 bolomen of whom the Americans killed 140. Many of the Americans were killed in their quarters before they had time to grasp their rifles. Gen. Hughes is going to the scene of the disaster and reports from him will be anxiously awaited.

Lieut. Bumpus received his military training in the First Heavy Artillery of the Massachusetts militia. He was a son of Judge Everett C. Bumpus, and a brother of Rev. Arthur L. Bumpus of the church of the Ascension, Washington and Newcomb streets, Boston.

Lieut. Bumpus was born at Weymouth, June 24, 1875. He received his edcation in the Quincy public schools and at Thayer Academy, at which latter institution he prepared for Harvard. While a student at the Lawrence Scientific school he enlisted in Battery A, First Heavy Artillery, M. V. M., shortly before the regiment was mustered into the service of the United States and he served with his battery on duty at Nahant.

In July, 1898, he was selected by President McKinley for a commission, in company with a number of other young men who had served in the Spanish War. In August he was assigned to the Twenty-first Infantry and went to the Philippines with that regiment. In August, 1899, he was promoted to a First Lieutenancy; was assigned to the Ninth Infantry and has been with that regiment since August, 1899. He is an athletic man, of large and sturdy build, and while at Harvard was regarded as a very promising student.

Lieut. Bumpus came of a military family. His father was a First Lieutenant in the Forty-fourth Massachusetts Regiment during the Civil War, and his grandfather and uncle also served during the Rebellion. His uncle was mortally wounded during Sherman's march to the sea.

A prominent event of the week will be the marriage of Miss Edith Endicott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mason Endicott, to the Rev. Roderick Stebbins of Milton, which takes place in the Appleton Chapel, Cambridge, Wednesday evening, Oct. 2, at 8 o'clock. The Rev. and Mrs. Stebbins will make their home in Milton at 1 Canton avenue.—Herald.

ATLANTIC SUICIDE.

Surprise That Popular Young Man Should Shoot Himself.

P. Henry Colbert, aged about 22 years, unmarried and employed as a clerk at Thomas Gurney's store at Atlantic, was found dead in his room at his home on Hancock street, this morning, with a bullet hole through his heart. The indications are that the death wound was self-inflicted.

Colbert has been employed at Gurney's store for several years. He was of a jovial disposition and was universally liked. He has been somewhat morbid of late, but has done nothing that would lead his family or friends to think that he intended to commit suicide.

He worked in the store Monday as usual, and retired as usual that night. This morning shortly after 6 o'clock his brother went to his room to call him, and found him partly dressed. After telling him the time, his brother went down stairs. Shortly after the family heard a sharp crack, but supposing that it was caused by the shutting of a cover in the bath room, paid no attention to it.

As Henry did not come down to breakfast his brother became somewhat alarmed and again went upstairs. As he opened the door of the room he was horrified to see Henry laying across the bed in a pool of blood, which was flowing from a gaping wound in the left breast. Physicians were summoned but the unfortunate young man was beyond human aid.

Medical Examiner Jones was notified and after making an examination gave the body in charge of an undertakers.

THE NEW JUDGE INSTALLED.

Albert E. Avery, Esq., Welcomed by the Bar Association.

Albert E. Avery, Esq., of Braintree who was appointed by Gov. Crane, Judge of the District court of East Norfolk, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. James Humphrey of Weymouth, assumed his office this morning.

There was considerable business to demand the courts attention, yet time was given to permit of greetings between the court and bar. Inside the bar were many of the attorneys of Quincy and the East Norfolk district among whom were: J. E. and F. A. Tirrell, J. W. McAnarney, R. A. Sears, P. R. Blackmur, W. W. Jenness, George Adams, E. J. Parker, George W. Abele, Z. S. Arnold, John McKnight, George H. Brown, Asa P. French, Atherton Hunt, Philip Sullivan, W. R. Thomas, Maurice Spillane, Louis Cushing, C. C. Mellen, and J. V. Beale; also Mayor Hall, representative of the Daily Ledger and other newspapers and prominent citizens.

It was but a few minutes past 9 o'clock when Judge Avery entered the court room accompanied by special justices E. Granville Pratt of Quincy and Louis A. Cook of Weymouth. All three took seats upon the bench.

Clerk John P. S. Churchill in a clear and stentorian voice read the Commission issued by Gov. Crane to Judge Avery.

John W. McAnarney, Esq., then arose and facing the court said:

May it please the Court. The court of this commonwealth have always enjoyed in a very high degree the respect and confidence of the people.

It is fitting and proper that this should be so for the normal American citizen is so constituted that of all the departments created by our system of government the judiciary is the one to which in the hour of oppression or need he turns with the most absolute confidence—the faith of a child to its father. Here he expects to find justice, administered fearlessly, impartially, firmly and with singleness of purpose. Here he knows his every right will be safeguarded. Here as before a higher tribunal the lowly and humble are the peers of the high and wealthy. Here indeed all men are equal. Of the many courts of this Commonwealth, the municipal and district courts being nearer to the people, and having almost daily intercourse with them, have always seemed to me to exercise a greater influence in a community over which each has jurisdiction, than those events known as the higher courts, but more removed from the masses.

It is therefore of prime importance that our district courts should be presided over by men who are qualified by ability, temperament, education and and experience to properly discharge the duties of their high office. Providence having created a vacancy in this court and His Excellency Gov. Crane having wisely selected Your Honor for the responsible position for Judge of the District Court of East Norfolk, it now becomes, my pleasant duty in behalf of the members of the Quincy Bar, to extend to you their greeting. We most heartily welcome you to preside over the affairs of this court, and individually and collectively pledge to you our most loyal and cordial support and assistance."

Knowing Your Honor as we do we wish to assure you that you have in advance our full faith in your ability to properly perform the duties of your office. We wish to assure Your Honor that it is our earnest desire to establish and maintain absolute good faith and confidence between the bench and bar of this court, that each may by the acts of the other, feel and realize that courtesy and consideration begets like courtesy and consideration.

We further desire the court to place implicit confidence in the good faith of each member of the bar having dealings with it, that they in return may have equal confidence in the good faith and intention of the court.

And so in working harmoniously along the lines of our chosen and honorable profession, we may bring to the full realization of the people of this community the fact that this event was established, and is maintained, for the administration of justice, and that the highest evidence of good citizenship is the faithful observance and prompt obedience to the law."

Judge Avery spoke briefly in reply, assuring the bar that it would be his endeavor to follow out the laws as he was able to interpret them. It would be his endeavor to be patient and courteous, and he trusted that the utmost harmony would exist between the bar and court.

The business of the court was then transacted the first case being a civil case in which W. W. Jenness appeared. After the Civil list had been called the first criminal case was that of the woman arrested at the fire this morning who was arraigned for drunkenness.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism sprains and bruises Sold by all druggists.

COLONIAL NIGHT.

Lecture on Dorothy Q. and John Hancock.

One of the most delightful evenings, was that of Saturday at the Dorothy Q house, where a lecture was given under the auspices of Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to raise money to contribute toward the restoration of the old frigate Constitution.

The lecture was given in the quaint parlor of the mansion, which still has on its walls, the Chinese paper put on for the wedding of the daughter of the house, Dorothy Quincy, and John Hancock, the patriot, and son of Rev. John Hancock, second pastor of the First parish, Quincy.

The room was entirely lighted by candles, most of them in antique brass candlesticks, from one to two hundred years old.

The ladies on the committee were in old style costumes, with powdered hair and added to the general picturesque of the gathering.

Before the lecture, while the guests were gathering, Miss Thomas at the piano played old-time pieces until everyone felt in the spirit of long ago.

The lecture was in keeping with the house and times, being on John and Dorothy Hancock. Miss Elizabeth Porter Gould of Boston, the lecturer, was introduced by Mrs. Nelson V. Titus, who said an introduction was hardly needed where Miss Gould was so well known, she being one of the speakers at the laying of the corner stone of the Abigail Adams cairn; reading a poem at the hanging of the crane at the restoration of the John Adams birthplace, also from lectures given at First Church chapel, and now coming to the Dorothy Q house to add her contribution to the restoration of the ship Constitution.

No matter what Miss Gould's subject may be, she holds the attention of her listeners from beginning to end. She has a charming personality and weaves in little stories, little homely bits in the lives of her characters that others might overlook, but as told by her are most attractive. Thus it was Saturday evening, and although she talked over an hour none were ready for her to stop. Many also learned much about the house and its inmates never known before.

Miss Gould wore a beautiful bracelet necklace and earrings once belonging to Dolly Madison, which were much admired at the informal reception given her at the close of the evening.

Mrs. Chapman, State regent of the Daughters of the Revolution, spoke of the work being done by patriotic women, and of the work now being done to restore the old battleship Constitution.

Mrs. Titus spoke of the fair to be held at Tremont Temple, Boston, in November, to swell the Constitution fund, and hoped the ladies would be as energetic, as were the women who built Bunker Hill monument.

During the reception to Miss Gould, Mr. Adams of Boston presided at the piano, and Miss Pierce and Miss Nightingale served punch in the dining room. A punch-bowl was exhibited which was used in Revolutionary times.

All pronounced it one of the pleasantest evenings ever passed, and the Daughters and their guests feel much indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cote and the Misses Cote, for the use of their home for a Colonial evening.

City Election Dates.

Some of the caucuses in connection with the City election must be held during the week of the State election. Two months from today, November 16, is the latest date for holding of convention, and those on that day must be held before 5 P. M. Caucuses must be held at least four days in advance. Parkhurst's Idea of Gotham

New York, Oct. 1.—Dr. C. H. Parkhurst in addressng the people relative to the coming election has this to say of the Tammany municipal administration: "Our city if full of anarchy The very administration we are under here is anarchy from the top down, solid, unmitigated, devilish. It does not kill men, at least as a rule, but it goes around with sharp blades wherewith to knife every holy principle that the great God could have ever dreamed of. And it would send a thrill down the whole pulsing body of the times if in the same hour that Czolgosz goes to the electric chair the general body of our local government could be put into the chair along with him, and anarchy individual and anarchy organized, be consigned to the abysses of reprobation by one and the same current of electric damnation."

Cortelyou as Administrator

Canton, Oct. 1.—Mrs. McKinley had two drives yesterday. On account of dismal weather and the rain the outing was confined to the streets in the city. It was said at the McKinley home that there has been no material change in her condition and that she continues to beat up remarkably well.

Mr. Cortelyou will leave Canton for Washington today, but will be here again in a short time and will be in the city at intervals for some time to come. Beside administering the estate of the president, Mr. Cortelyou and Judge Day are to take charge of the business affairs of Mrs. McKinley. She has considerable property herself, aside from the estate left by her husband.

Fatal Wreck on N. Y. N. H. & H.

Bridgeport, Conn. Oct. 1.—In the worst wreck, with one exception, in the history of the Berkshire division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, three train employees were killed and three others badly injured yesterday. Two freights collided on a curve a quarter of a mile south of Long Hill station, while moving at full speed. The engineer of the extra admits that he was to blame for the collision, saying that he forgot that he should have waited for the regular on a siding at Stepney, two miles north of Long Hill.

Favorable to the Canteen

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 1.—General MacMahon, of the board of managers of the National Soldiers' Home, speaking for the board said today:

"The board has decided to maintain canteens at all the homes for the good and sufficient reason that experience has taught us that it is better for the veteran and for the people in the communities in which the homes are located."

Kruger's Son Dies

Pretoria, Oct. 1.—Tjaardt Kruger, a son of the former president who recently surrendered to the British, has just died after a short illness.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Sampson's Successor

Boston, Oct. 1.—Rear Admiral Mortimer L. Johnson, United States navy, is expected to arrive at the Charlestown navy yard Wednesday or Thursday, and to assume command of the station immediately. He comes as the relief of Rear Admiral William T. Sampson, who will be kept on waiting orders until the expiration of his term of active service on February 9 next. Admiral Johnson comes here from Port Royal Navy yard and is a native of Nahant, Mass.

Boers Peace Proposition Declined

London, Oct. 1.—A depatch to the Times from Brussels says that the council of the Hague permanent court of arbitration has unanimously decided that the question of assuming the initiative in arbitration or intervention in any form in regard to the South African war must be definitely abandoned.

☞The Editor of this paper strongly endorses the action of General Charles H. Grosvenor in requiring a certain share of the proceeds from the sale of his book to be set aside for a McKinley Monument Fund. Our readers will see an advertisement of this book in another column of this paper.

SCHLEY IS CRITISED

Bob Evans Before the Board of Inquiry

SCHLEY CALLED HIM BOBBY

No Effort Was Made to Destroy the Spanish Shore Batteries by Schley—The Brooklyn's Loop Bunched Four of the American Battleships

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, who commanded the Iowa and who is better known as Admiral Schley's most bitter opponent in the navy, was on the stand at the court of inquiry yesterday afternoon and gave damaging testimony against Admiral Schley.

Judge advocate—Please state, what if any thing was done while the squadron was off Cienfuegos, toward developing the fact as to whether the Spanish squadron under Admiral Cevera, was or was not in the harbor of Cienfuegos?"

"There was nothing done, so far as I know."

"What, if anything, without your knowledge was done toward destroying or preventing the further completion of the enemy's batteries in the vicinity of Cienfuegos?"

"On Sunday afternoon, I am quite sure it was, Commodore Schley formed his squadron in columns and stood in to a range of about a mile and a half from shore, made a turn and stood out again. That is the only thing that I know."

"Was any attack made upon the enemy or by the enemy at that time?"

"No. They all got up and stood on the breastworks and looked at us. We steamed out again. There was no firing on either side."

"When you were within range of the batteries in the vicinity of Cienfuegos with the heavier guns of your ship?"

"I did not see any batteries. There was a work they were completing there.'

"Were you within range of this?"

"Quite easy range, yes."

"The battery of the Iowa consisted of what?"

"Four 12-inch, eight eight-inch and 12 four-inch guns."

Were these embryo batteries within range of your eight-inch guns when you steamed in?'

"They were within easy range of the four-inch guns."

"Did the Iowa coal ship while in Cienfuegos, and if so, how much did she take?"

"We took in 200 tons of coal on the 23d. We began about seven in the morning and stopped at 6 in the afternoon. We took coal from a collier alongside, the Merrimac I think."

"I saw the Brooklyn when the fight began. When I reached the bridge of the Iowa the Brooklyn was still off to the westward headed I should say northwest. That was just as the fight began. I saw her again possibly five minutes afterward when she was steaming westward very fast firing her port battery, heading [illegible] and northwest toward the head of the Spanish column. I did not see the Brooklyn again until my attention was directed to her by the navigator calling to me: 'Look out, captain, for the Texas.' I went on the port bridge where the navigator was standing, and I said: 'Where the devil is the Texas?' The navigator said: 'Here she is sir, in the smoke.' I said to myself, 'Captain Philip will look after the Texas,' and went below. In a few minutes the navigator called out again: 'Look out captain, you will run into the Texas.' I walked over to the port side of the bridge and saw the Brooklyn's smokestack and military masts. She was going directly across the bows of the Texas. The Texas was apparently backing and dangerously close to the Iowa. The Brooklyn seemed to be 100 yards directly infront of the Texas. I eased the helm of the Iowa a little, ported her a little and just at that moment the Oregon came through my lee and passed between me and the Texas and the three other boats were bunched together.

"At that time the Brooklyn was shut out in the smoke and I saw no more of her until the Colon had passed well to the westward of me, when some one on the bridge said: 'The Brooklyn is knocked out.' I went to the bridge to see what had happened and she was then about a mile and a half forward of the port beam of the Iowa with the Colon seven or eight miles ahead and on her starboard bow. From that time on the firing was light and I could see the Brooklyn occasionally. The Colon was on her starboard bow. On the port quarter of the Colon, well astern of her, was the Oregon, and astern of her and well off to the southward was the Brooklyn, with the Vixen off shore of the Brooklyn. The Iowa at the time was directly in the wake of the Colon with the Vixen a little on her starboard bow."

"How was the Iowa headed by the compass?"

"To the westward, heading for the enemy's ships. I do not know whether we wereheaded west by south or west by north."

On his cross-examination by Mr. Rayner, Admiral Evans said that he had left Key West with the Iowa for Cienfuegos on May 20, and that he knew before leaving port that a secret code had been arranged for communicating with the insurgents on shore at Cienfuegos, because Captain Chadwick had given him this information.

"He came on board the Iowa," said the witness, "to deliver despatches to me before we got under way. To my best knowledge and belief he gave me a written memorandum containing the secret code, but notwithstanding, I have made diligent search among my papers for this document, I have failed to find it."

"Can you refresh your memory about this memorandum? There is no doubt about one thing and that is that the Iowa carried despatches,"

"None whatever."

"Where were those despatches delivered to Commodore Schley?"

"They were delivered between half-past twelve and one o'clock on the afternoon of the 22d"

"Did you read the memorandum about signals given to you by Captain Chadwick?"

"Certainly I did, but not the despatches to Commodore Schley."

Mr. Rayner here exhibited to the witness two memorandums from the official reports but Admiral Evans said that neither of these was the document to which he had reference. That, he said, was the code of signals with the insurgents.

"What became of that memorandum?"

"As I told you, I lost it. I searched everywhere and tried to find it. In fact I am not sure it was a memorandum."

"When did you search for this memorandum?"

"I searched within the last month for it, ever since the question has been raised in the newspapers about my not having given Commodore Schley this information."

that he did not know shrdlu cmfwypvb

"When, did you inform Commodore Schley that this system of signals had been arranged?"

"I did not. It never entered my mind that he did not know it."

"The Marble head being the vessel that established this code and Commodore Schley's squadron having arrived at Key West before the Marblehead got there, how did it get into your mind that Commodore Schley must have known of the signal code?"

"You make the mistake of supposing that I knew this was done by the Marble head. I had no knowledge that the Marblehead had arranged those signals. They were simply given to me by chief of staff as a system of signals."

"Upon what ground did you suppose that Commodore Schley knew it?"

"He was the commanding officer of the squadron."

"From what sources did you suppose he got the information?"

"I did not suppose anything about it. It never entered my head. If it had I should have said, of course, that the commanding officer of a naval force would not expect one of his junior captains to give him information about his signals. It was given to me as a piece of information which I thought every captain in the fleet had. I never thought of Commodore Schley in connection with it. If I had supposed for a moment that Commodore Schley did not have it I would have given it to him the first thing on my arrival there. I did not intend to say that Commodore Schley had this signal code."

"When did you first know about the turn of the Brooklyn, as you say, a short distance from the Texas?"

"When I saw her cross the bow of the Texas."

"Do you recollect the conversation you had with Commodore Schley, the 5th of July, the second day after the battle, regarding the loop of the Brooklyn?"

"No sir, I do not. I don't remember the subject at all."

"You do not recollect that Commodore Schley first told you on July 5th that it was the Brooklyn and not the Texas that made the turn?"

"I never imagined anything of the sort."

"Give briefly the purport of your conversation with Commodore Schley?"

"Briefly, as I recollect the conversation he was talking to a person named Graham. He was sitting at his desk writing. I walked into the cabin to make a report. He put his hand on my shoulder and said, 'Bobby, I am just writing my report of the battle of the 3rd of July.' He said, 'I have said of you that you handled your ship with consummate skill.' Then he introduced me to Mr. Graham. Then Captain Cook came in and asked me if I would tell him whether the position of certain ships was correct, which came out first, etc; that he had been a little confused in his mind. We talked a few minutes and I went then into Captain Cook's cabin."

"You do not recollect the conversation, going over the particulars of the turn that the Brooklyn made and the remark that Commodore Schley made at that time about Captain Philip when you said you thought it was Captain Philip of the Texas who made the turn?"

"I never said that. Absolutely I never said such a thing, because the Texas was right under my eye all the time. She never turned at all."

Concerning the position of the Brooklyn and the Texas on the day of the battle, the witness said: "The Brooklyn was dangerously near the Texas. I should say within 100 yards of her."

"What was your position, just at that time when she crossed the course of the Texas, relative to the Brooklyn and the Texas?"

"The Iowa was heading straight in for the Spanish fleet to intercept the Vizcaya at that time. She was heading more to the northward than the Texas. The Texas was headed off more to he west. When I saw the Brooklyn the third time she was across the bow of the Texas heading south."

"When did you see her next, if at all?"

"After the Oquendo went ashore my attention was called to the Brooklyn by some one on the bridge remarked the Brooklyn is knocked out.' She was then hotly engaged with her starboard battery. She was headed parallel with the course of the Colon I should say."

Mr. Rayner then surrendered the witness temporarily, saying that he would have further questions to ask, but that he desired some time to prepare them. It was arranged that these questions could be deferred until Tuesday.

SENATOR HANNA'S BELIEF

Has Faith In the Party, the People and In Roosevelt

Boston, Oct. 1.—Senator Hanna who is here for a few days when asked by a reporter this morning regarding the new administration and his relations to it, said: "What I have already said regarding this matter seems to sum up all I have to say. My personal relations with President Roosevelt have always been most cordial and friendly. I believe in his sincerity and patriotism and his desire to do what is for the best interests of the country. The anouncement to the public of what will be his policy was characteristic of the man, and I believe he will receive the support of all of President McKinley's friends and certainly he will receive mine. I should prefer at this time not to place myself before the public as speaking regarding what his administrationshould be which might embarrass him. There has been a good deal said in the papers about my relations to the new administration. That has been done in some instances in a brutal way. The statement of the New York Herald that 'Mark Hanna's machine went to pieces at 2:15 this morning' (the day the president died) was most cruel. My relations to the Republican party are the same as they always have been. I am thoroughly in sympathy with it, and I thing President Roosevelt and myself are in the same machine."

In reply to a question as to what the attitude of congress should be in making laws for the better protection of the president, Senator Hanna said: "'I am not a lawyer, and I don't know what can be done. The people will expect more from their legislature than from congress. It will be easy to enact laws making it a capital offense to make an attempt on the life of the president. I think the people are with me in approving of going to the extreme of constitutional limits. The assassination of President McKinley is in some respects even more horrible than that of Lincoln or Garfield, because it was at a time of profound peace."

Asked if he did not think the president should be kept more away from the people. Senator Hanna said: "If there was anything President McKiney liked it was to get near the people, and that is too delicate a question to be discussed now. The act of the assassin, I believe, was the result of a conspiracy, and there seems to be no way to protect the president from such consequences."

Cuban Politics Begin

Havana, Oct. 1.—A meeting of the partisans of Masso, candidate for the presidency of the Cuban republic, was held last night. The following programme was adopted:

Absolute independence; the organization of the Cuban army on the basis of the forces in the late revolution and encouragement of immigration of whites from the Spanish provinces.

The speakers of the evening were the Cuban generals Collozo, Figeras and Lima, and the former secretary of General Weyler, Valdez Pita. No formal nominations were made, but the speakers regarded Masso's election on an anti-American platform, opposing a protectorate and the provisions of the Platt law, as a foregone conclusion.

False Teeth Taken From Stomach

Baltimore, Oct. 1.—Maurice A. Brooks, while asleep swallowed his false teeth Every effort at the Johns Hopkins hospital to remove it through the mouth failed. An incision was then made in the throat about the top of the breastbone. The plate could then be plainly seen, but was too deeply embeeded to be removed. The incision was then sewed and stomach opened. A rubber tube was passed into the stomach and up the food tract past the pate and out of the mouth. A cord and sponge followed it and the sponge, catching against the plate pulled it down the aesophagus and thus to the stomach, from which it was removed. The operation was a rare one, but young Brooks is expected to recover.

AFTER MANY YEARS

Of suffering from kidney disease, Miss Minnie Ryan, of St. Louis, Mo., found a complete cure result from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It is such cures as this which establish the soundness of Dr. Pierce's theory: "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach." Every other organ depends on the stomach for its vitality and vigor. For by the stomach and its associated organs of digestion and nutrition the food which is eaten is converted into nutriment, which, in the form of blood, is the sustaining power of the body and each organ of it. When the stomach is diseased the food supply of the body is cut down, the organs are starved, and the weakness of starvation shows itself in lungs, heart, liver, kidneys or some other organ.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and so cures disease of other organs which have originated through deficient nutrition or impure blood.

"I had been suffering with kidney trouble twenty years," writes Miss Minnie Ryan, of 1537 Louisiana Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., "and I had doctored with a number of the best physicians. Two years ago I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription' and took also several vials of Doctor Pierce's Pellets. I took eight bottles (four of each), and I feel now perfectly cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

WINDS WERE FLUKY

Shamrock Better Suited Than the Columbia

DETAILS OF THE MATCH

There Is Hope For a Better Breeze Thursday—Sir Thomas Gets but Modest Comfort From the Experiences of Tuesday

New York, Oct. 2.—Yesterday's attempt to sail the second of the present series of international yacht races for the blue ribbon of the sea, proved a dismal failure. Between 25,000 and 30,000 who crowded the pleasure fleet off Sandy Hook light ship inthe hope of seeing a repetition of the thrilling sport of last Saturday, witnessed, instead, more of a drifting match than a race. The wind was exceedingly light and variable, at times falling so low that the gossamer pennants which are as light as thistle down, hung limp against the masts of the big single stickers. The wind with the yachts crews lined up on the lee rails, was not sufficient at any time to make the racing machines heel to their lines. At the end of four and a half hours the two yachts had covered less than one-half of the prescribed 30-mile course and as there was no possibility of their finishing within its limit the regatta committee declared the race off. When the gun was fired announcing the decision the challenger was about half a mile ahead of the defender and to that extent today's trial was a victory for Shamrock II. But the fluke demonstrated little as to the question of supremacy between the two boats except perhaps that Sir Thomas new champion is more dangerous in light airs than was supposed after her two former meetings with the white flyer, to which the patriots are pinning their wealth. In fluky winds of variable strenght shifting as they did through six points of the compass, luck cut almost as much figure as model seamanship and yesterday's fortune was unmistakably with the foreigner.

The course was an equilateral triangle, 10 miles to the leg, the first leg being a beat due east into the wind. The Yankee skipper at the start out-generaled his adversary in a splendid piece of jockeying, crossing the line in the windward berth 12 seconds ahead of the Englishman. This advantage Columbia held for two hours while both yachts steered far off their course to the southward looking for a streak of wind that would profit them. Finally Barr declined longer to continue the vainless quest. He put his helm down and headed in-shore on the starboard tack. The Shamrock at this time, after both had been sailing in the same airs, was a beaten boat and her skipper could afford to take the gambler's chance with fortune. He held doggedly on. And fortune smiled upon him. Within five minutes he got a breeze out of the south which ruffled the crestless seas and wafted him, like a ghost, through the Columbia's weather.

But this was not his best piece of good fortune. After this reverse the Columbia, slipping through the seas at an astonishing pace considering the lightness of the breeze, had worked out ahead of the Shamrock, but to leeward. When the two yachts were in this position, about two miles from the first turn, a cant of the wind threatened to blanket the Columbia, and to avoid such a possibility Barr went under the Shamrock's stern. Just as he did so the wind hauled around more to the south, knocking the Columbia's head back for the lightship at the starting line. The golden boat, favored by the same breeze, was headed in exactly the opposite direction. When the shifting wind backed again and Barr got the Columbia straightened out, he was a third of a mile astern. In this position the two boats rounded the first mark, the Shamrock 3 minutes and 8 seconds before the Columbia, or a gain for the Shamrock in the beat to windward, adding the 12 seconds which Columbia beat her over the line, of 3 minutes and 20 seconds.

During the next hour in a close reach for the second mark, the yachts were able to cover about four or four and a half miles of the remaining 20, and as only 50 minutes then remained before the expiration of the time limit, the race was declared off. After turning the mark the experts thought the Shamrock increased her lead slightly. This gain may, however, be accounted for by the fact that she carried a large reaching jib topsail, while Columbia was working close to the wind with a small baby jib topsail, a meer handkerchief compared with the Shamrock's larger sail. When the excursion fleet headed back for home the only real race of the day occurred. It was the race for New York.

Always optimistic, Sir Thomas Lipton after the race was in the best of spirits. He said: "I really don't see anything yet on which to base a definite opinion regarding the two yachts. While the Shamrock was leading when the race was called off there's nothing to brag about. While the winds were very light here was little fluking, therein differing from last Thursday's breezes, which in spots failed utterly, each boat in turn striking dead calms. After the showing made thus far by both boats I should not hesitate, if I were a betting man, to lay even money on the Shamrock. Both boats were handled today to the best ability of the best men each country could produce.

SEVEN YEARS FOR CASHIER

The Vergennes Bank Official Pleads Guilty and Is Sentenced

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 2.—After a plea of guilty to the charge of falsifying the accounts of the Farmers' National bank of Vergennes, David H. Lewis of Vergennes was sentenced by Judge H. H. Wheeler in the United States circuit court to seven years' imprisonment in the house of correction at Rutland.

Lewis, who is 50 years old, was cashier for nearly 20 years of the Farmers' National bank, which went into the receiver's hands last April, with a shortage of about $50,000. The cashier, together with Lieutenant Governor M. F. Allen of North Ferrisburg, and J. W. Ketchum of Vergennes, was indicted and arrested last May for complicity in wrecking the bank, of which Mr. Allen was vice president. All three secured bail.

Ex-Congressman H. H. Powers of Morrisville acted as counsel for Lewis. He made a strong plea for the prisoner, and stated that Lewis had more than made up the shortage in his account, and asked that leniency be shown. District Attorney Martin replied for the prosecution. Shortly after Lewis was sentenced, he was removed to his cell at the house of correction. He remained calm throughout the trial.

The cases against Ketcham and Allen will be tried in this city in November.

To Rename Philippines

New York, Oct. 2.—The Washington correspondent of the Tribune says a suggestion which is meeting with favor is to change the name of the Philippine islands to the McKinley islands. It is intended to bring the proposition before the next congress.

A part of the scheme embraces the idea of bestowing upon the different islands and provinces the names of the men most prominently identified with the acquistion and management of the islands. For instance, the members of the American commission which negotiated the Paris treaty would thus be honored, as well as the names of Admiral Dewey, General Lawton, Governor Taft, General Otis, Secretary Root and others.

Last Salute to Sampson

Charlestown, Oct. 2.—At eight o'clock yesterday the two-starred pennant of Rear Admiral William T. Sampson was run up on the receiving ship Wabash, which is also the flagship of the local naval station. Just before the flag was hauled down a salute of 13 guns, the regulation salute for a rear admiral's flag, was fired. This was a pretty compliment to the end of active service for Admiral Sampson.

Captain Charles J. Barclay, acting commander of the station, has issued orders directing the officers of the yard to assemble in full dress at the commandant's office at 10 o'clock Thursday morning to welcome the new commandant, Rear Admiral Mortimer L. Johnson, who is expected to take charge at that time.

General Otis Believes the Story

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Major General Otis, commanding the department of the lakes, states that undoubtedly there has been an assault on one of the guards at President McKinley's tomb in Canton.

"I am satisfied that this assault was made, and that it was made by prisoners who had escaped from the jail at Canton," said the general. I base my assertions on a full report which has been submitted to me by Captain Biddle, who is in charge of the guard at Canton."

A STRIKE PROBABLE

Fall River Owners and Operatives Cannot Agree

AN INCREASE REFUSED

Manufacturers Claim That Business Conditions Will Not Warrant a Raise In Wages—Mr. Borden Claims the Contrary

Fall River, Oct. 2.—C. M. Hathaway, secretary of the Textile Manufacturers' association, has addressed a letter to the Textile council in which he says:

"I am instructed to inform you that your request for an advance of five per cent cannot be entertained. The market conditions do not warrant the advance asked for. The present margin figured on the basis agreed to by your committee and the manufacturers is now 66 94-1000 cents. Had the manufacturers accepted the sliding scale of wages proposed by your organization which you were anxious to have adopted, but which was considered so unfair that they were compelled to reject it, wages would now be based on 18 cents for weaving or nine per cent less than they are now paying. The question of margins cannot be eliminated from the wage schedule, nor can the exceptional conditions under which one or two corporations are situated be accepted as sufficient grounds on which to grant the advance."

Mr. Whitehead of the council said a meeting would be called for tonight and the operatives advised to strike for the advance. Meetings of the unions will be called immediately after the Textile council meeting Wednesday night and the operatives will be asked to vote on the council's recommendation. The leaders fully expect a strike in all the mills next Monday morning.

There is no conciliation in the tone of the manufacturers' letter, and it is fully expected that a strike will be inaugurated. The manufacturers are prepared for it, as the following interview with the most influential one among them clearly indicates: "I have talked with nearly every manufacturer in the city in the past two days, and I think I know the situation as well as anybody. I have not found any manufacturer who intended to advance wages. It must be determined now whether Mr. Borden shall rule us or whether we shall go on about our business in our own way and not subject to to his or the labor unions' domination. We do not want a strike, and we hope our people are sensible enough not to provoke one, but if they insist we must met them at a great loss to ourselves and a great loss to them. There is no intention on the part of any manufacturer we know of in the association to concede the advance, and we deny the truth of every report to the contrary, published or otherwise."

New York, Oct. 2.—Mr. M. C. D. Borden has explained his position in the print cloth market and his recent moves that have stirred up Fall River manufacturers as follows:

"My business is as simple as the first rule of mathematics," said Mr. Borden. "Six weeks ago there was talk of a cut of 15 percent in wages of cotton mill operatives. There were rumors of strikes and possibly a shut-down of the mills. There seemed to have been an overproduction and prices were way down. Now, under those circumstances would any man with human intelligence reduce wages? When wages go down it indicates low prices because of the production exceeding demand. Reduce wages and prices fall. Put them up and it indicates a good market. It seemed to me there was a good demand for cotton prints. I had some big orders to fill. I bought in the open market to fill my order and orders increased. Everybody knows that when orders increase for goods the mills are not going to close. Far from it. Our mills have been run on a cooperative plan. When our business is good we increase wages, and you can figure it out for yourself whether our business is good right now."

"Are the other mill owners in Fall River going to increase wages also?" was asked.

"I don't know anything about that. I won't say that I think they will do. However, it stands to reason that if we can afford it they won't shut down in the face of a five percent increase in the wages of our employees."

A Queer Plea

Boston, Oct. 2.—Hereditary somnambulism is the defense that the attorneys for G. C. Hayes make to the charge that their client committed, on Aug. 16 last, an assault with intent to murder his wife, Elizabeth I. Hayes. Mrs. Hayes' story was to the effect that she went home on the night she was shot and that her husband was lying on the bed with all his clothes but his hat on. He was under the influence of liquor. They had words, and he shot her in the neck.

Opening Up Indian Lands

Washington, Oct. 2.—The interior department is rapidly completing plans for the opening of the Fort Hall, Idaho, Indian reservation. The date for the opening has not yet been fixed, as the preliminary work has not been completed, but it is expected that the reservation, which contains 400,000 acres will be thrown open to settlement within a few weeks.

Good Afternoon.

The prospects seem good for the nomination of William E. Badger of Quincy for County Commissioner at the Norfolk county convention, but with so many candidates in the field it is not improbable that no one will have a majority on the first ballot. If any Quincy people have influence in other parts of the county it would be a good time to show their loyalty to Quincy; especially as we have a candidate over whom we can enthuse. The fact that he has the Quincy delegation of 17 solid is a good endorsement in itself. The convention will have 115 delegates and 63 votes will probably be necessary for a choice.

The towns of the County have been represented on the Board of County Commissioners as follows:

The Towns Represented.	1900. Population.	Number of Years.
Stoughton,	5,442	16 yrs.
Franklin,	5,017	15 yrs.
Milton,	6,578	12 yrs.
Hyde Park,	13,244	9 yrs.
Braintree,	5,981	9 yrs.
Medway,	2,761	9 yrs.
Weymouth,	11,324	8 yrs.
Needham,	4,016	8 yrs.
Quincy,	23,899	7 yrs.
Canton,	4,584	6 yrs.
Cohasset,	2,759	5 yrs.
Wrentham,	2,720	4 yrs.
Brookline,	19,935	3 yrs.
Medfield,	2,926	3 yrs.

Population of County, 151,539.

In the rush of work and the shortness of time a few ridiculous errors were made in our report of the speech of Lawyer McAnarney at the District court yesterday. In justice to our friend who made a very able speech, we make this statement.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It is related that Richard Croker, upon reading part of the book upon himself written by Alfred Henry Lewis, while aboard the steamship bound for home, became so angry that he threw it far over the rail. In this work the Tammany boss is compared with Julius Caesar, Napoleon, George Washington, and other great figures of history. If that was what made Croker huffy, how must Caesar, Napoleon and Washington have felt?—Lynn Item.

☞ Brockton has found her fair a mighty good thing for the city in a lot of ways. It advertises the city; it has made Brockton as well known to the lovers of outdoor pleasures as it is to the lovers of well made shoes; it attracts thousands to the city who go away and tell the truth about the town and speak well of it and of its people; in short, the fair, even if it cost every adult here some money yearly to maintain it, would be a worthy thing to have.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ A prominent Wall street broker recently declared that the only shrewd speculators are those that buy stocks while they are asleep and sell them before they awaken. He says that by this method the joy of winning may be had, while the despair engendered by heavy losses will continue only until the victim wakes up. "The "prominent Wall steet broker" has evidently speculated in his waking moments and is now wishing that he had tried the other plan.—Milford Journal.

☞ The Cosmopolitan recently printed an article on "What Women Like in men," and now announces a complement in "What Men Like in Women." Both are said to be written by authorities and the publishers evidently anticipate a demand from disappointed members of either sex who have failed to develop the desired powers of attraction. Perhaps they will do better under this tutelage, but as a rule men and women prefer the trait of honesty above all else in each other, and that includes being one's own self. The courtesies and frills are finishing touches that are desirable, but real affection looks beneath these and binds itself to character.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The fact that a young man has met death in a foot ball game so early in the season will doubtless lead to the usual protest against the brutalities of the game. And yet we suppose the bad air, the machinery, and the accidents of all kinds in the mills and the factories, and even in some of the stores, of the country, beat the mortality record of foot ball out of sight and mind; but it isn't fashionable to abuse the mills and factories, while the foot ball game is in just sufficient disfavor with some of the public to make it a fairly popular thing to assault it at all times and places.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Indications arise that the publishing world feels that the business of book booming is being overdone, and that the ultra-sensational advertising that has been the rage for a season or two is likely to give place to more sanity in book announcements. The trade was getting in danger of nervous prostration by reason of the excitement into which it has been throwing itself with all the machinery of the circus press agent applied to that which for the sake of being polite we call literature. Now it is said that the tendency will be to return to the old way of laying most stress on the work of well-established authors, while the new ones will have to win their way, as was once the case. That will be in the end a good thing for authors and readers both.—New Bedford Standard.

Launching in November.

A dispatch from Des Moines, Iowa., to the Post says: "Miss Frances West has been selected by Governor Leslie M. Shaw to christen the superb new cruiser Des Moines, to be launched next November at the shipyards in Quincy, Mass. Miss West is one of the belles of Des Moines, and very talented. A notable delegation will accompany Miss West and her family to the East for the launching. In addition to the Governor and his staff, Major J. J. Hartenbower of Des Moines, together with the City Council and heads of various departments will be present.

The Philippine Slaughter.

There is still some doubt as to those killed in Samar in the Philippines. The fact that the camp was rushed is accepted in military circles as an indication that the usual care was not being observed.

The greyhound seems to have been developed in level, treeless and shrubless countries, where a moving object is visible at a long distance, and great speed is, therefore, necessary to enable a predaceous animal to overtake its prey.

A few nights ago an employe of a paper company in Bellows Falls, Vt., demonstrated unusual eccentricities as a somnambulist. He got up at 2 in the morning, harnessed his team, put a load of pulp wood into his wagon and drove down to the mill, entirely unconscious of what he was doing.

One-third of an acre grows 20,000 jasmine plants, yielding 2000 pounds of flowers. Half an acre set with 3500 rose plants bears 2500 pounds of petals, which give from 200 to 250 pounds of pomade. An acre and a quarter will yield 2000 pounds of violet flowers.

BACK TO QUINCY.

A Former Swedish Pastor Returns to His Old Church.

Rev. H. Hanson, pastor of the Swedish St. Paul's church, arrived last Saturday from his four months' vacation, having traveled over 15,000 miles in Ireland, Scotland, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Russia, Denmark, Germany, France and England. He was under the "midnight sun" for two weeks.

On his trip he took several hundred photographs and made a careful study of the different lands and their people generally.

Mr. Hanson looks strong and healthy and is well pleased with his trip, but prefers America as the best nation and country. During the winter he will give lectures in Swedish and English. He is a well known lecturer.

He is also well remembered in Quincy as 10 years ago he was here and built the church where he is now pastor for the second time. His home is at 179 Whitwell street.

Insane Man Bankrupt.

A voluntary petition in bankrupty was filed yesterday at the office of the United States District Court by Timothy J. Lyons of Quincy, who is at present confined at the Taunton Insane Asylum. Lyons's counsel obtained permission from the Probate Court to file the petition. Lyons has liabilities amounting to $2615.97 all unsecured, and he has $2000 assets in real estate. he is the first insane man to file a voluntary petition in this district. An involuntary petition was filed some time ago against an insane man.—Journal.

The Quincy Home Science Association held a very successful meeting in the Unitarian chapel on Tuesday. The prize paper by Mrs. J. H. Slade was read and received general endersement. Reports on the work of the association were made.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Shaw of Butler road, who are entertaining guests from out of town, gave a sailing party in their honor Monday. It was an ideal day upon the water and those who were fortunate enough to be included in the party on the yacht Hattie passed a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon.

The Assessors wanted a room by themselves at City Hall and they have got it. Part of the old lyceum room has been partitioned off from the corridor at the side entrance and ground glass windows have been put in. The room was never too light and as it is now it would seem almost necessary to have artificial light in order to work.

The heads of the departments connected with the first parish have issued invitations to the officers and workers in the church to attend a gathering in the chapel Friday evening at quarter of eight to consider general plan of work for the coming year. The call was issued by Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Emery, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Miss Randall, Miss Elizabeth Johnson.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

DALTON-CASHMAN.

Brilliant Church Wedding and Reception.

The Bride Miss Cashman of West Quincy.

The Groom is a Newspaper Man From Sandwich.

One of the prettiest church weddings of the season was solemnized at St. Mary's church, West Quincy, Tuesday evening, when Miss Catherine Adeline Cashman, daughter of Mr. John Cashman, and one of the most popular young ladies of that section of the city, became the bride of Mr. John Wilfred Dalton of Sandwich, Mass., a well known newspaper man.

The guests were received and ushered by Mr. John Cashman, Mr. William Cashman, Mr. Daniel Reardon and Mr. Jeremiah Ford, and at 7.30, the hour of the ceremony, the church was filled.

The strains of Lohengrin's wedding march announced the arrival of the bridal party who entered the church, preceded by the ushers and moved slowy toward the altar. Following the ushers were the groom and maid of honor, Miss Mary E. Cashman, a sister of the bride. Then came the bride escorted by Representative William J. Sullivan of Boston.

The bride was gowned in white muslin and her long tulle veil was fastened with bride roses, a huge bunch of which she carried in her hand. The maid of honor was dressed in white muslin and carried white chrysanthemums.

As the bridal couple advanced within the sanctuary gates, the high altar became ablaze with electric lights of many colors. Rev. Ambrose T. Roche performed the ceremony.

After the ceremony the couple were driven to the home of the bride's parents on Cross street, where a reception was held from 8 till 10. The interior of the house was decorated with wild flowers, the parlor being a veritable floral bower. Many handsome presents were received, and required an entire room for their display.

The loft of the immense barn on the estate was transformed into a dining hall, where an elaborate spread was served. The interior was brilliantly illuminated by electric lights, and was lavishly decorated with flags and bunting. Opposite the entrance was the word "Welcome," in golden letters.

Before the immense party sat down, prayer was offered by Fr. Roche. Rev. J. H. O'Neil of Rockland was also present. During the supper there was music by an orchestra, which also played for the dancing which followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Dalton left on a wedding tour, followed by the best wishes of all present. They will make their home in Sandwich.

Jordan—Hackett.

A pretty suburban wedding, says the Herald, was that of Miss Cora May Hackett and Mr. Charles Gilbert Jordan of Braintree, which took place Tuesday night at the bride's home, Lakeside, Wakefield, at 8 o'clock. The Rev. Charles H. Learoyd of Emmanuel Episcopal church performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a travelling frock of biscuit cloth, with touches of pale blue panne velvet and renaissance lace, a shaggy brown tricorn hat, and carried the customary prayer book.

Miss Harriet Louise Allen, the maid of honor, was in crisp white muslin, and carried a huge bunch of roses. Frank H. Hackett, the bride's brother, was best man.

The reception room, overlooking the lake, was effectively decorated with hydrangeas and autumn foliage. It was a quiet affair, only the immediate relative having been bidden. A small reception was held after the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Jordan left for a short wedding journey. They will be at home after Nov. 1, on Allen street, East Braintree.

Children's Health Fund.

It was stated in a recent issue of the Ledger that the Children's Health Fund had been forced out of existence. The Association, however, still exists, according to G. W. Averell, the treasurer of the fund, who informed Officer Barry on Tuesday that the Woodford woman, who was collecting money in Quincy for the fund, had not been seen by him since last fall, when she collected some food for a dinner given the children, and that he did not know that she was out collecting.

—Miss Long, the daughter of Secretary Long who arrived in Hingham only a few days ago, is seriously ill with pulmonary trouble.

Charles A. Howland has been elected on the executive committee of the Massachusetts Mutual Fire Insurance union.

Dr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Hayford returned on Tuesday night from an eight days' trip to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto.

Three extra men were put at work at the Daily Ledger office today, that the rush of nespaper work and job printing may be handled promptly.

The entertainment season will open at the Washington Street Congregational church on Thursday evening, Oct. 3, with a harvest supper and entertainment. The supper will be at 6.30 and the entertainment at 8.

The torpedo boat destroyer "McDonough" was taken out Tuesday for her first spin. No attempt was made to get any great speed; the outing was simply for the benefit of the engines. All on board expressed themselves as highly pleased with the boat.

Runaway Boys.

Officer Barry apprehended six boys of tender age in City Square Tuesday afternoon. In reply to his questions they told him that they had run away from Charlestown and were no their way to the Brockton fair. They were held at the police station and their parents notified, who came out from Boston at 10 o'clock and took them home.

The Conventions.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

Only Month to Visit Exposition.

Don't delay any longer or the golden opportunity will have passed. There are only a few more weeks left in which to visit the marvelous Pan-American Exposition. October, the pleasant month of the early fall, a time suitable for travelling on account of the beautiful adornment with which nature has decorated the trees and shrubbery, and the cool and invigorating atmosphere which has displaced the dry and sultry heat of summer.

The final program as arranged for the coming month is elaborate; musical entertainment by the leading bands and musicians of the country; numerous assemblies and conventions different each day. Athletic sports, including field and track events and foot ball, games between some of America's representative College Teams, beside the well-known beauties and entertainments of the exposition itself, that indiscribable Midway with its mile and a quarter of sights and side shows showing the many different races of people and their mode and manner of living the amusing and interesting freaks, including the "House up Side Down," "The Trip to the Moon," etc. Go and see this unparalleled exposition: visit the great Niagara Falls, this is the last month, and don't forget that the Boston & Maine Railroad has the shortest route and lowest rates out of New England with fast express trains carrying through parlor cars and coaches.

For descriptive book giving full particulars in regard to route and rate to the Pan-American Exposition, write to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, for the illustrated book entitled, "Picturesque Routes to the Pan-American Exposition."

NATURE'S MISTAKES.

SOME THAT MEN CONSIDER TO BE OF REMARKABLE VALUE.

Paradoxical as It May Appear, the Perfection of a Precious Stone Is Largely Due to Some Imperfection In Its Making by Nature.

Paradoxical as it may appear, the perfection of a gem is largely due to some imperfection in its make. Some little mistake made in the laboratory of nature produces a defective stone which is perfection itself from the lapidary's point of view. Ninety-nine out of every hundred emeralds dug from the mine are almost white and of little value, but the hundredth one is of a rich velvety green and, if without other flaws than its color, sells for $300 a carat or 240 times as much as its colorless brother. The reason of the rich color which gives the emerald its value is that nature, in making the stone, put in too much oxide of chromium, just as the cook sometimes gets too much saleratus in the biscuits. The standard of perfection in the laboratory of nature is the colorless emerald, and her deep green ones are some of her failures; failures which, nevertheless, delight mankind, however much they may disgust nature. You could buy a ton of oxide of chromium for the price which half a grain of it gives to a cheap and common crystal.

When nature makes mistakes in manufacturing diamonds, the results are equally remarkable. Her standard for a diamond is a pure white stone, but sometimes a foreign substance gets into the crucible, and the result is a red or blue diamond. A fine white brilliant of one carat can be bought for $125, but a blue stone of that size would be cheap at $3,500. A red diamond is of even greater value, a red stone of fifteen grains having been sold for $5,000. Yet the little particle of foreign material which nature carelessly let fall into the mixture when she was making that stone down in the heart of some primeval volcano is of less value than a grain of common salt and only got there by mistake.

Nature manufactures in her laboratory a material called spinel. You can buy a block of spinel as large as you can carry for a few dollars. Sometimes in making spinel small quantities of chromic acid get into the material and color it a deep red. The pieces so colored nature rejects as spoiled in the making and throws them in the dust bin, from which men dig them out and call them rubies. A ruby of thirty-two carats recently sold for $52,000. Yet the material of the cheap spinel and the valuable ruby are practically the same, save for that small fraction of chromic acid which got into the ruby by mistake.

When nature starts out to manufacture opals, she endeavors to make them without any cracks in them. In this she seldom succeeds, coming nearest to perfection in the Mexican opals, which have few cracks in them and therefore little luster. The fiery glow of the oriental opal and the play of light in the depths of that exquisite stone are due entirely to the numberless cracks which seam the surface of the gem. It must give nature a poor opinion of mankind when she sees him selling the Mexican opals, which are nearly perfect, for 12 cents a carat and paying $25 a carat for her failures, the cracked fire opal of the east.

Not only in gems, but in many other things, does nature make mistakes and failures, the results of which are highly valued by man. The chank shell, a shell much like the conch shell of these shores, is one of the commonest shells on the beaches of India, and millions of them are gathered and burned for the lime that is in them. Yet in a temple near Kandy, Ceylon, are two chank shells which hold the place of honor in a shrine covered with gold, and no amount of money could buy them from their guardian priests. Their value consists in the fact that nature was not quite herself the morning she fabricated these shells and gave a right handed twist to them instead of a left handed one, such as has been given to all other chank shells, so far as man knows, since the beginning.

Baron Rothschild once paid $300 a dozen for some Schloss Johannisberg wine, and it is admitted that, taking everything into consideration, it was not an exorbitant price. Yet the wine of the same year from the vineyard directly adjoining the Johannisberg vineyard, on the same bank of the Rhine, a vineyard whose soil is, to all appearances, the same, only brought $5 a dozen. And there is no special secret about the manufacture of Johannisberg wine or about the variety of grape used. Its great value comes from a little joke of nature. In the soil of the Johannisberg vineyard there is an infinitesimal amount of a certain salt which is found in the soil of no other vineyard. The admixture is so slight that no chemist has ever been able to imitate it, yet it is worth many thousands a year to the owner of the vineyard.

When Gold Looks Green.

Gold can be beaten out so thin that it allows light to pass through it, in which case, though it still appears brilliant yellow by reflected light, it is green as viewed by transmission—that is, by the light that passes through it. This curious effect can easily be observed by laying a piece of gold leaf upon a plate of glass and holding it between the eye and the light, when the gold will appear semitransparent and of a leek green color.

Independence For Ireland, or Nothing

New York, Oct. 2.—The United Irish societies have rejected by an overwhelming majority a motion to appoint a committee to receive Messrs. Redmond, McHugh, Davitt and the other delegates of the Irish Parliamentary party who are to speak in New York the last of next month, on the ground that Irish-Americans would be satisfied with nothing short of complete independence of Ireland, and such a solution of the Irish question could never be obtained from an English parliament by the constitutional means which the delegates have to advocate.

Negros Will Fight For Suffrage

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2.—It is said here on excellent authority that ex-Senator John M. Thurston and Judge L. L. Lewis, former president of the Virginia supreme court, have been employed by the negro educational and industrial association to oppose what suffrage plan the constitutional convention may adopt. It is understood that there lawyers both agree that the two plans are in violation of the 15th amendment, and no time will be lost in carrying the case to the supreme court.

Taylor Likely to Remain In Indiana

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.—Governor Durbin has informed the Kentucky officials who are here with a requisition from Governor Beckman of Kentucky for the return to that state for trial of W. S. Taylor and Charles Finley, charged with complicity in the Goebel murder, that he would render a formal decision for a week or more. The requisition will probably not be granted.

Fined For Losing a Prisoner

Fitchburg, Oct. 2.—It took just three minutes to settle the case of Chief of Police D. W. Tinsley for neglect of duty on charges preferred by himself. He was ordered to lose a week's pay. The chief lost a prisoner while escorting him from this city to the navy yard in Charlestown. The loss of a week's pay means a loss of $26.88.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—The gunboat Concord got in from Alaska yesterday, after an absence of over four years. This vessel was in the battle of Manila bay.

It is said that the leaf of the Mexico pineapple is very valuable, inasmuch as it furnishes a fibre of such strength and fineness that it can be made into ropes, twine, thread, mats, bagging, hammocks and paper. A fabric as fine and beautiful as silk is made from it, too.

There are multitudes of old copper cents somewhere, but no one can locate them. Once in a while a solitary specimen turns up in change.

SIGSBEE TESTIFIES

Captain of the Maine Tells What He Knows

A QUESTION OF VERACITY

Witness Thus Far In the Schley Inquiry Seem to Reflect on the Acts of the Commodore of the Flying Squadron

Washington, Oct. 2.—In the Schley court of inquiry yesterday Admiral Evans' testimony was along the same general lines as was his statement of the day before but some points were presented in greater detail in response to questions by Mr. Rayner. The new witnesses were Captain Sigsbee, who commanded the scout boat St. Paul during the Santiago campaign, Mr. Thomas M. Diraide, a newspaper correspondent who was on the Texas during the Battle of July 3, and Chief Yeoman Gustav E. Becker, who was a clerk to Admiral Sampson during the war.

The calling of Captain Sigsbee, who commanded the Maine when she was blown up, and later the scout boat St. Paul, caused a flutter of interest, as there is a dispute between Captain Sigsbee and Admiral Schley as to the purport of a report made by Sigsbee to Schley on May 26, off Santiago. Schley said in his letter to the senate committee that Sigsbee stated that he had no knowledge of the location of the Spanish fleet, and that he had said it was his belief it was not in Santiago.

Captain Sigsbee admitted he gave no information to Admiral Schley as to the whereabouts of the fleet.

Captain Sigsbee was asked if it were true he had informed Admiral Schley that they had seen nothing of the Spanish fleet. Sigsbee admitted having said this, but he said he had stated reasons for believing they were in Santiago harbor. Sigsbee made a plea to be allowed to state what he did say without technical objections. Admiral Schley's counsel stated that they had no objections.

"I did not say I did not believe the Spanish fleet was not in Santiago," he said. "I made no statement to that effect."

He gave to Admiral Schley, he said, a letter detailing the capture of the Restormel, an English collier from Cardiff, bound for Santiago, which was admitted in evidence. The letter stated: "No news here, and I have seen absolutely nothing of the Spanish fleet."

Counsel for Admiral Schley secured the admission by Sigsbee that on the evening of May 26 he sent a letter to Admiral Schley, which was placed in evidence, in which he said:

"Do as you have been doing, and you will do right."

Mr. Hanna—"I wish to ask your attention to the clause: 'Do as you are doing, and you will do right.' What was the flying squadron doing at the time you wrote that letter?"

"That was based on the tenor of the cipher telegrams I found at the mole from the commander-in-chief, and from the navy department, urging that the Spanish squadron be held and that every effort be made to coal ship."

"Did he ask you if you believed the Spanish fleet was in the harbor at Santiago?"

"I don't remember his putting a question in such terms."

Captain Sigsbee also said that when he had boarded the Brooklyn on May 26, Commodore Schley had told him that he was bound for Key West for coal.

The witness recalled a signal from the flagship at that time, asking him to inform Sampson that one-half of this squadron is out of coal."

Mr. Rayner then questioned the witnes, bringing out the statement that the purpose of his ship's being sent to the vicinity of Santiago, was, if, possible, to locate the Spanish fleet. Witness said he had first seen the Spanish vessels in the harbor of Santiago, but that when he reported the fact he found the squadron had already made the discovery.

"All I want to ask is this, if, when you saw the smoke after chasing a number of vessels to the westward, and when you made for the Santiago entrance on the morning of the 29th you thought that this was a Spanish squadron approaching the port?"

"No, I thought it might be the Spanish squadron. I did not say they were approaching the port."

"Yes," you say, "approaching that port."

"You must remember that I had no definite information whatever."

"Did you ever megaphone the press boat Summers N. Smith that the Spanish fleet was not in the harbor at Santiago?"

"Never. One of the press boats hailed me, saying that Schley had the Spaniards bottled up at Sienfuegos. I replied that we had had them bottled up at Santiago for a week."

In reply to a question as to the condition of the water at the time he was at Santiago, Sigsbee said: "During the 24th, 25th and 26th of May the weather was unsettled, trade conditions had been hindered. There were more or less rains and moderately heavy seas on those three days."

The court asked a number of questions of Captain Sigsbee. These, with the replies were as follows:

"What was th state of the sea on the afternoon and evening of May 26 when you communicated with the flying squadron to the southward of the port of Santiago?"

"The sea was heavy for boats, but it was moderate, that is to say, more moderate than it had been in two days before. I should say, however, it would have been a very difficult job to have coaled from ships alongside that night."

By the court: "Did you make any effort to ascertain if the Spanish squadron was at Santiago prior to May 28?"

"Only by extreme watchfulness, that is all."

By the court: "What information had you communicated to Commodore Schley on May 26 regarding the whereabouts of the Spanish squadron?"

"The department's order to me directed me to state that the Spanish squadron was there or had been there, and again the circumstantial evidence afforded by the capture of the Restormel, after her very peculiar cruise."

By the court: "Did you receive a dispatch from Secretary Long, dated May 20, stating 'The Spanish fleet arrived at Santiago on May 19?'"

"I am not certain, but my recollection is that it stated it arrived on he 19th or 21st. I received the communication just as I have stated. It came from the secretary of the navy. It was signed 'Long,' but whether I got a copy of it from Captain Wise or got the original I cannot now recall. I think I got the original."

By the court: "Did you show this dispatch to Commodore Schley on May 26?"

"I already said I cannot recollect the act of showing it to him. I presume I did, but that I informed him I remember."

By the court: "Did you see the dispatch signed 'Long' May 20, addressed to the St. Louis, care American consul, Mole, St. Nicholas, prior to meeting with Commodore Schley on May 26?"

"I have no recollection of anything to the St. Louis, no."

By the court: "Did you see the dispatch referred to, addressed to either the Minneapolis, St. Paul or Harvard?"

"No, not to my recollection. There were two meetings of commanding officers off Santiago while I was blockading there. At one time the commanding officers of the Harvard, St. Paul and Minneapolis met. I think the next time the commanding officers of the Yale, Minneapolis and St. Paul. The only occasion therefor on which I might have seen these orders was on one of these visits, and I have no recollection of having been shown any telegrams or dispatches."

Captain Sigsbee was excused, and Chief Yeoman G. E. Becker, of the cruiser New York, was called.

Becker served as a clerk to Admiral Sampson on board the flagship New York during the Spanish war. He identified the memorandum from Captain McCalla, saying there was a good landing place near Cienfuegos which Admiral Sampson sent to Commodore Schley, under date of May 19, and said that this memorandum had been carried in duplicate by the Iowa and the Dupont. Mr. Rayner questioned the witness very closely, bringing out the fact that Becker had no records to show that either of these vessels had carried the memorandum and that he was dependent upon his memory in making the statement.

Mr. Hanna said in this connection that the department expected to show that four copies of this memorandum had been forwarded to Commodore Schley. Mr. Rayner responded that he would admit only one copy, and that was the copy delivered by the Hawk on May 23, 1898.

The court adjourned for the day with Becker still on the stand.

Portland Rumselling Unprofitable

Portland, Me., Oct. 2.—There has been paid into the court by liquor dealers about $11,000, and other large fines remain to be paid during the week. Some of the liquor dealers have been practically ruined by the present strict enforcement of the prohibitory laws. One man told Sheriff Pearson that his house was unencumbered Jan. 1, but it is gone now and he does not know how to raise the money with which to pay his fine Another man offered through his attorney to pay a fine of $1000 all he has left. If the state does not accept his offer he will be forced to go to jail on a long sentence.

Chicago Linemen Strike

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Three hundred and fifty linemen and repair men employed by the Chicago Telephone company went on strike today for higher wages. Officials of the company claim the strike will not effect the operation of their lines.

COLDS

The quickest relief, for a cold, is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We all have colds, you can try it and see. You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick and complete, if you wait till the cold is in full possession of head and lung, why, of course, the relief is quick if it comes in a week.

A little emulsion won't clear and restore your whole breathing-machine in a minute; don't be looking for miracles.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

GREATER THAN NIAGARA

The Power of the St. Lawrence Utilized at Massena, N. Y.

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Today witnesses the inauguration of the greatest power-producing plant in this country. The water has been turned on the wheels of the plant of the St. Lawrence Power company at Massena, in the northern part of St. Lawrence county, this state, and started that mighty enterprise. Even the Niagara Falls power plant is surpassed by this one, both in the amount of power produced and as an engineering achievement. While at Niagara the fall is greater, the volume is not so great. The two plants are constructed on entirely different lines. At Niagara the water is dropped down a well 150 feet deep upon the wheels below, and the shaft extends straight up and is connected with the generators stationed over them. At Massena the wheels work horizontally, there being a right and left, so that the thrust is neutralized and the main shaft is but half the length of the Niagara shaft. At Niagara power is furnished at the rate of $23 per year per horse power and was all taken in a year from the completion. At Massena this cost will be nearly cut in half, for here the rate will be about $13 per year per horse power. The cost of this enterprise has been great. The company was capitalized at $6,000,000, and already $5,000,000 has been expended in its construction. But the success of the undertaking is already assured, as nearly all of the power to be produced has already been contracted for.

Her Identity Hidden by Man's Attire

New York, Oct. 2.—Miss Rosalia Baldelli, who passed as the "wife" of Miss Caroline Winslow Hall, who died on the steamship Citta Di Torino, from Italy, has told the story of her acquaintance with Miss Hall. Being unable to speak English she conversed in Italian through an interpreter. In substance her story is as follows:

She met Miss Hall in Milan, Italy, 10 years ago, while she (Miss Baldelli) was a government school teacher. Miss Hall explained that she was an art student, whose home was in Boston, in the United States. The two women became great friends. Miss Hall adopted men's garb because it was easier for her to work in such clothes in carrying on her studies at the art school in Milan. The two travelled over Italy, but it was not until 1897 that Miss Hall decided to assume the guise of a man. She took the name of Charles Winslow Hall, and asked her Italian friend to assume the guise of her wife, under the name of Guiseppani Hall. All this was done, because of Miss Hall's belief that she would be subjected to much less annoyance than if they travelled simply as two young women.

In 1899 her health began to fail, and learning from the physicians that she was suffering from tuberculosis, she expressed a desire to go home to die at her home in Boston. It was upon this that the two took passage for this country. Miss Baldelli said she would accompany Miss Hall's body to Boston when it shall be taken there by Albert G. Hall, a relative of the dead woman, who has come on from Boston.

The Episcopal Conference

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the general conference of the Episcopal church today. The proceedings will take place mainly in Trinity church. The convention will continue in session for 19 days, with various meetings. Prominent among the delegates who arrived yesterday were J. P. Morgan, Bishop Potter and a party of eastern bishops and laymen, the guests of Mr. Morgan. Ninety bishops, 400 clergymen and 2500 laymen in all are expected here.

Many important questions are scheduled for consideration. Foremost among them are the final acceptance of the constitution drafted by the convention at Washington in 1898, and since carefully scrutinized by every diocese in the country; the canons or laws of the church; the special report of the canon on marriage and divorce as understood by the Episcopal church, and the church's course toward Porto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii and Cuba.

According to the rule of the church, the convention is presided over by the bishop of longest service present. According to this rule Bishop Tuttle of Missouri will be presiding bishop.

Goldman to Repeat Her Speech

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 2.—The speech which Leon Czolgosz says inspired him to assasinate President McKinley will be repeated by Emma Goldman here on Thursday night. Czolgosz heard the lecture in Cleveland, and Miss Goldman said today she wished to give the public a chance to see if there was anything incendiary in it.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Suits aggregating over $2,000,000 have been filed against the Boston Elevated Railway company up to date, for alleged damage to property along the route of the new elevated system.

The marriage between Miss Helen Morton, daughter of Levi P. Morton, former vice president of the United States, and Count Boson De Perigord, a son of the Duke of Talleyrand-Perigord, will take place next Saturday at St. Mary's church, London.

It is believed by the family of G. A. Monroe, who has been missing from Attleboro, Mass., since Saturday, that he committed suicide.

Sol Smith Russell, the actor, is ill at his home in Edgartown.

The extension of the Milford, Hellistion and Framingham Street railway from Milford to Hopkinton is open to the public. The new line is seven miles long, and fully a third of it is built on private land.

The Boston expressmen's strike has been settled, the 2000 drivers, keepers and lumpers are at work, and the sympathetic strike of 20,000 men composing the allied trades unions, which was threatened, is thereby averted.

A FAIR RACE TODAY

Weather Conditions Off Sandy Hook Satisfactory

DAILY RACES SCHEDULED

This Morning the Velocity of the Wind Was 36 Miles an Hour, What Sir Thomas Would Call a "Scupper" Breeze, With Chance For Increase

New York, Oct. 3.—Yachting enthusiasts and the general public were this morning expecting a most exciting race between the cup defender Columbia and the challenger Shamrock II. They base their high hopes on the strong wind which is blowing and which weather prophets assert, is most likely to keep up for 24 hours or more.

The contest between the two yachts today is over a thirty-mile course, the same as that attempted on Tuesday. Under the conditions of this, the second race, the yachts will be sailed ten miles on each of the three legs of the course. At Sandy Hook early this morning the wind's velocity was 36 miles an hour.

While yesterday was a quiet day with the yachts lying at their moorings inside Sandy Hook bay, the officials of the New York Yacht and Royal Ulster clubs had a busy tome of it in complying with the request of Sir Thomas Lipton, backed by the assent of Mr. E. D. Morgan, of the Columbia that in the future the races be held on consecutive days, not counting Sunday. In addition there came the request from Mr. George L. Watson, th designer of Shamrock II for a remeasurement, because of his intention to take out ballast before today's race. On the first proposition an agreement was finally reached between the challenge committee of the two clubs for a race every day, but on the second Mr. Watson, after further considering the matter decided to let it drop and the yacht will sail with exactly the same amount of ballast which she carried in previous races. This will not prevent Mr. Watson taking out ballast at any time he may wish, which of sourse the club is willing to have done at any time. If, however, after today's race Mr. Watson decides to take out ballast, it is probable that there will be no race on Friday, for under the new arrangement either yacht is at liberty to decline to race on the next day.

The agreement as signed is as follows:

"The races shall be sailed on the following dates until completed, October 3, 1901, and each following day except Sunday provided, however, that immediately on the conclusion of the race of Oct. 3rd and each of the subsequent races, the regatta committee shall inquire of each contestant whether he is willing to start the next day and should either contestant reply in the negative, one day shall intervene before starting the next rac. Sunday shall not count as such intervening day."

Curry Estate Will Not Pay

Pittsburg, Oct. 3.—Because he kept Henry M. Curry alive long enough to add $1,000,000 to his fortune, Dr. J. O. Fowler rendered a bill for $5243 25, included for a short period fees at the rate of $100 a day. Mr. Curry, who was one of Carnegie's early partners, died a year ago. The executors of the estate refused to pay the bill, and the case came before the Orphans' court. While Dr. Fowler was prolonging his life the value of his estate grew at least $1,000,000, being now $6,000,000.

Another Lawson Challenge Declined

Buffalo, Oct. 3.—Harry Hamlin has telegraphed Secretary Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association declining to accept the challenge for a race between Lord Derby and Boralma for a purse of $5000. Mr. Hamlin says Lord Derby will be reserved for trials at the record, and will contest with no horse until he has been given every chance to lower the world's record.

Goldman Will Not Give Her Lecture

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Mayor Harrison has ordered the police to prevent Emma Goldman's lecture here tonight. The anarchist organ Free Society was issued today for the first time since the president was shot. In it neither the memory of the dead president or the grief of the public is respected or even considered. The leading article, a review of Czolgosz's crime is by Emma Goldman.

All Will Talk United States

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—Miss M. C. Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr college, in her address to the students at the opening of the college year yesterday, said that the English spoken by the people of this country would be the standard for English speaking people in the world.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Social Secretary

Washington, Oct. 3.—Mrs. Roosevelt has appointed Miss Belle Hagner, daughter of Justice Hagner, of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia, her social secretary. Miss Hagner acted in the same capacity for Mrs. McKinley.

Kidnapper Arrested.

Boston, Oct. 3.—Mrs. Sadie Earnshaw, residing at 104 Albion street, was arrested yesterday upon the charge of kidnapping May Addison, the 3 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Addison, of 52 Compton street, who had been missing from her home since last Saturday night.

The child was found at the Earnshaw house and was returned to its mother who had become nearly insane with grief over its unexplained absence. When taken into custody the Earnshaw woman explained her action by saying that she had been brooding over the loss of her own shild which was taken away by her sister and her own husband from whom she separated some fout months ago and that she had longed for another child to take its place. A distressing feature of the case is the statement made by the police that in order to keep the child quiet it had been given whisky at frequent intervals during the time it had been in her custody.

Murderer Brainard's Defense

Portland, Oct. 3.—The defense in the case of G. H. Brainard, the electrician, who killd two of his fellow workmen last June, introduced convincing testimony yesterday as to the murderer's insanity.

Charles L. Saunders, the proprietor of a hotel in Haverhill, Mass., proved to be the sensational witness of the trial. He testified that Brainard came to his hotel on Sundey night in 1898. In the morning Brainard approached him and asked, "What kind ofa hotel do you keep here?" He said that people tried to break into his room during thenight Witness replied that he slept beneath Brainard's room and heard no noise Brainard took a seat, in the dining room and Mr. Saunders saw him take out a jack-knife and cut a hole in a napkin. Brainard ordered his breakfast but left before it was served. He returnd to dinner. Witness saw him cut the centre out of a napkin and pull the napkin over his head. Witness asked him why he acted so and Brainard informed him that he had better settle his bill and leave the hotel, which he did after dinner.

Witness was sent for soon after to go to Brainard's room and found that Brainard had torn up a breadth of the carpet and rolled a cigarette in it. Witness testified that Sunday Brainard occupied three different rooms.

American Jockeys Not Given a Show

London, Oct. 3.—Lester Reiff, the American jockey, whose license was withdrawn by the jockey culb yesterday and who was warned off Newmarket heath, in an interview today on the subject said:

"It's all a maze and muddle. There are no explanations. The stewards decide that I pulled, or at any rate rode a crooked race on De Lacy and let my brother win on Minnie Dee. I have been nearly at the top of the list this year and was the leading jockey in 1900. I have half as many mounts as some of the crack jockeys, yet I ride more winners. To do more than this I would have to ride the winner in every race. Yett Lord Marcus Beresford declares I rode crooked. The whole business is the outcome of the hatred and jealosy of the English trainers and jockeys of us Americans. I never rode a race in this country that I did not carry my life in my hand. All the English jockeys would take a hack at me. With the turf closed against me here, my fututre is unsettled."

Yale-Amherst Football

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 3.—Amherst's football eleven treated the Yale team to a surprise yesterday in holding the Eli's down to a single touchdown in a game of twelve and ten-minute halves. The Massachusetts men presented a line which, while not as heavy as Yale's showed up strongly on the defense and put up a remarkably aggressive offensive game for their first of the season. Captain Morse at tackle was a tower of strength and easily handled big Goss, his opponent. For Yale Glass at guard and Hogan, for freshman tackle, continued the good work begun in the game with Trinity, but the rest of the team was a distinct dissapointment to the coaches.

Pan-American Attendance Growing

Washington, Oct. 3.—Director General Buchanan of the Pan-American exposition, who is now in Washington on his way to Mexico, is quoted as saying that the stockholders who subscribed for the original shares to the amount of a million dollars, will, in all probability, realize nothing on their contributions. The city will be benefited, however, enough more to make good these losses of public-spirited individuals. The attendance at the exposition, which was lessened much by the president's death, is now getting back to the real figures. On one day recently it reached 116,000.

A Maine Crank Petitions Gov. Odell

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—When Governor Odell returned here this afternoon from Newburg he found on his desk in the executive chamber, requesting him to commute to life imprisonment, the sentence of Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley. One letter was sent by a man in Illinois and the other by a man in Maine. In the opinion of the Governor they were written by cranks and no attention will be paid to them.

"You may be assured that nothing will be done by me," said Governor Odell, to "prevent the execution of Czolgosz on the day fixed by law."

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists

OUR BOYS MASSACRED

Company C the Victims of Samaran Treachery

FORTY-FIVE BODIES BURNED

The Friendly President of the Town Led the Assault—The Body of Captain McConnell Tied by the Heels and Saturated With Kerosene

Manila, Oct. 3.—The latest advices from the island of Samar give the harrowing details of the slaughter of the members of company C, 9th United States infantry last Saturday at Balangia. It seems that the president of the town, claiming to be friendly, led the assault in person.

On hearing of the slaughter Colonel I. D. De Russy, of the 11th infantry, started for the scene immediately with a battalion. The body of Captain Connell had been tied at the heels, saturated with kerosene and partly burned.

Forty-five bodies had been burned in a trench, leaving seven unaccounted for. The charred demains of many were recovered. In numerous cases the bodies had been badly mutilated. Three hundred Maccabebes will also be despatched to the scene of the massacre.

The United States hospital ship Relief will leave here tomorrew with one battalion of the regiment, and at Megaspi will embark a battalion of the 26th regiment to reinforce the troops in the island of Samar.

The American today publishes a telegram giving the account of the fight during which a majority of the men of company C of the 9th regiment were killed near Balangia, Sept. 28. The fight was long premeditated and the Filipinos were called to commit the slaughter by the ringing of church bells at daylight.

They got between the soldiers who were breakfasting and their quarters. The insurgents were mostly armed with bolos, but they had a few rifles

Increasing Speed Schedules

Boston, Oct. 3.—In the long number of years that the Boston & Albany railroad has been in operation it is believed the record does not show, until the lease of the road to the New York Central, that it ever earned a place among the steam rail lines of the country noted for fast speed or exceptional longdistance runs.

The marked conservativeness of the old management did not permit the engineers to get out of the locomotives all that was in them, as, under no circumstances, were the drivers allowed to make up more than a few minutes of lost time on any part of the system. The road was splendidly equipped with motive power and the roadbed one of the best in the world, but there was a hard and fast rule to keep speed down to a comparatively low limit.

After the Boston & Albany came under the control of the Central the fast-time injunction was considerably modified, and now schedules are adopted, both for local and through trains, that are equal in speed to those of any other road in the country.

A Tammany Orator For Low

New York, Oct. 3.—It is announced that W. Bourke Cockran will make a number of speeches for the anti-Tammany ticket under the auspicies of the Greater New York Democracy during the campaign. Though at one time the "official orator" of Tammany, Mr. Cockran had a bitter quarrel with Mr. Croker, and has since been an independent Democrat.

British Copy Holland's Boat

London, Oct. 3.—The first of five submarine boats of the Holland type, building at Barrow-in-Furness for the British government, was launched this afternoon, without ceremony. She will be put through her trials during the course of a few weeks. The other four boats will be ready for launching this year.

Thrown From a Car

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 3.—Nathaniel G. Wadleigh, who fell from an electric car in Kittery yesterday, died shortly after 3 o'clock from his injuries. Mr. Wadleigh, who was 65 years of age, was standing in the rear vestibule of a car, and when it rounded a curve at Woodlawn avenue, he pitched out head foremost striking on his head and fracturing his skull.

An Anarchist In Providence

Providence, R. I., Oct. 3.—Workmen in the forge shop of the Rhode Island locomotive works in this city incensed by utterances of a Russian Pole laboring among them who avowed himself an anarchist, strung him up by the neck and deluged him with water, later driving him from the shops.

$1,000,000 In Klondyke Gold

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 3.—Steamer Humboldt has arrived from Skagway with 216 passengers and over $1,000,000 in gold, half of it in care of the Alaskan Express company. It is the second largest shipment of the season from the Klondike.

Moving West

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 3.—Negotiations are pending for the removal of the works of the Acme Machine Screw company, now located here, to Cleveland. This move is to be made because the east is no longer an advantageous point for distribution.

Good Afternoon

The Republicans were wise in their choice of Representative candidates. To have turned down Representative Badger as some attempted would have been almost without precedent, especially in recent years. Mr. Badger has labored honestly and conscientiously for the best interests of the state, his city and his party, and there is nothing in his vote at the State House to warrant a change. He should be handsomely reelected.

Mr. McKnight was the popular choice of the convention, receiving on the first ballot 30 votes out of a possible 45. Such a big majority is an indication of a flattering vote at the polls on Nov. 5. His speech of acceptance, too, has the right ring.

Another defect in the Republican system of nominating candidates for the Legislature in a district like the Quincy double district, is shown by the fact that a dark horse upon whom the voters have not passed judgment at the caucuses, can enter the convention and become a leading candidate upon the first ballot. We have nothing to say against Mr. Johnson, but in the past we have commented on the fact that a representative choice of the Republican party as a whole cannot be secured by the present method. Mr. Johnson has a perfect right to aspire to the office, and we do not criticise him, but certainly the system of selecting the nominees is faulty. The nomination of a dark horse under such circumstance might lead to defeat at the polls.

Drift of Opinion.

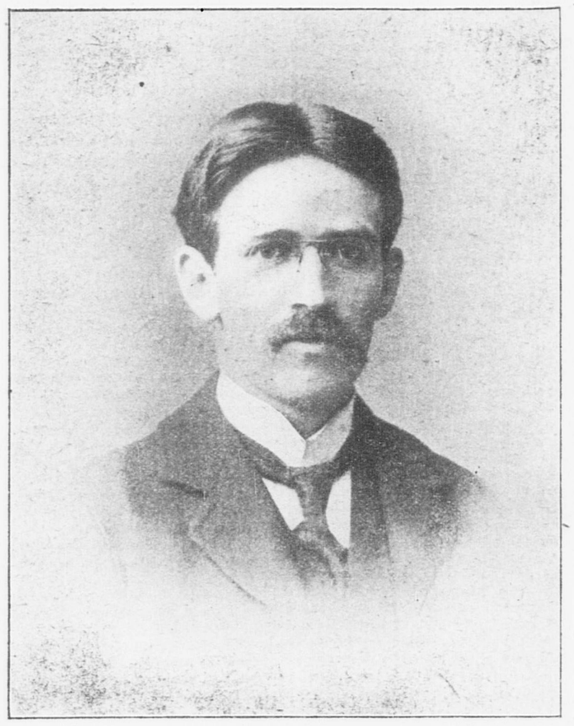

☞ President Roosevelt is a believer in large families, and it is not at all strange to learn that he is in favor of adding another member to his official family, a secretary of commerce. The creation of this new cabinet berth under which would be associated the present bureaus in the state and treasury departments which have to do with matters of commerce, has much to recommend it and has been strongly urged by the business interests.—Milford Journal.

☞ Drifting matches are not to the yachtsman's mind, nor are they worth much to people generally. Every international cup race has had its share of them, and the present one a little more. We seldom hear of a drifting race off Marblehead, and the experience of the big racers on Tuesday is another argument in favor of having these trials in this neighborhood rather than off Sandy Hook. Wind is so essential to a satisfactory race that one may reasonably wonder why a windy shore is not selected for these trials. When New York gets through with the cup, if that should ever happen, there would be an end to the Sandy Hook drifts.—Lynn Item.

☞ Good statesmanship is a means to an end, but is futile if accomplishing anything without the necessary adjunct—political sagacity. Statesmanship invites all that which makes for the best interests of state and nation, taken as a whole. Politics is the power that is brought into play to accomplish the aims of statesmanship. Politics has to do with uniting and controlling the politicians of the country. Ex-President Harrison, though an able and aged man, failed in his career as a president because he ignored the politicians who controlled the political force of the nation. James G. Blaine failed in reaching the aim of his ambitions, though brilliant and popular, because he depended too much on the politicians and ignored the great measures of statesmanship.

McKNIGHT AND BADGER

Unanimously Nominated by Republicans for Representatives.

The Former on First Ballot But Several Necessary for Second Man.

George H. Brown Second on First Ballot---Benjamin Johnson, Jr., a Promising Dark Horse.

The Republican Representative convention held Wednesday evening was one of the liveliest held for a number of years. Before the convention it was understood that combinations had been made whereby John McKnight of Ward One and and Eugene F. DeNormandie of Ward Five should receive the nomination. But at the very last minute new complications arose and a dark horse was sprung upon the convention in the person of Benjamin Johnson, Jr., of Ward Two, and he came within an ace of winning out.

It was after 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, so the story goes, that C. M. Bryant and Mr. Johnson got their heads together and undertook to throw down DeNormandie, and nominate Johnson. The reason given for this new deal was that Mr. DeNormandie was thought to prefer Mr. Jameson for Mayor rather than Mr. Bryant.

The scheme worked well and came near landing Johnson, but Ward Three who had stuck by Brown on several ballots threw their strength to Badger, to whom a portion of Ward Five had already gone, and Badger received the nomination.

At no time after the first ballot was Mr. Brown a dangerous rival; his vote was 19 on the first, only 4 short of a nomination. It fell from that to 12 which he received on two ballots, then to 9, then 2. On the sixth ballot his name did not appear. Mr. Bigelow's name did not appear after the first ballot on which he received a solitary vote.

DeNormandie's largest vote was 11 which he received on the first ballot. He then dropped down to 10 and on the next two ballots received but 9 votes. On the last two ballots he did not receive a vote.

The first that many knew of Johnson being in the field was on the first ballot, when he had fifteen votes. He gained one on the second ballot, two more on the third ballot. On the fourth ballot he jumped from 18 to 22 but 1 short of a nomination. Two more ballots were taken but he could not secure the one more vote necessary to land him.

Mr. Badger received 11 votes on the first ballot, 6 on two ballots, and then 5. On the fifth ballot there was a decided change and it was very evident that the bulk of the Ward Three and Ward Five vote had gone over to him. Brown received but 2 votes, while Badger had 21. The result of the fifth ballot was: Johnson, 22; Brown, 2; and Badger 21.

There was much speculation as to whom the two votes would jump on the next ballot, but when the vote was announced it was seen that they had both gone to Badger giving him 23, enough to nominate, while Johnson had but 22.

Chairman Jameson called the convention to order promptly at 8 o'clock, and a temporary organization was perfected by the choice of Charles H. Johnson of Ward One as chairman and R. R. Freeman of Ward Five as secretary, both on motions of C. M. Bryant.

The committee on credentials appointed were Charles A. Howland, T. H. Newcomb, Alex. Falconer, W. H. Teasdale, C. M. Bryant and H. S. Barker. They reported the convention entitled to the following number of delegates all of whom were present.

	Delegates.
Ward One,	11
Ward Two,	6
Ward Three,	8
Ward Four,	6
Ward Five,	9
Ward Six,	5
	45

The temporary organization was then made permanent. Upon vote the chairman appointed Horace F. Spear, Edgar F. Hayden and Herbert S. Barker as ballot committee.

Henry French moved the convention proceed to nominate two candidates for the General Court.

Edward E. Jameson moved to amend, that one slip be used for both names, which was accepted by Mr. French.

Charles M. Bryant opposed. He thought it would delay business.

Mr. Bryant then moved, and it was voted that two slips be used; that is when a delegate votes he shall deposit two slips, one for each candidate.

The first ballot was then taken. While the teller were out a change of sentiment took place, and Mr. Jameson after moving that the first ballot be declared off, said that under the present method of voting there was nothing to prevent a delegate depositing two ballots for one man.

Messrs. Poland, Pinkham and Howland spoke on the matter and Mr. Pinkham requested the chairman to put the motion.

The motion was then put and it was voted that the motion to proceed to ballot be reconsidered.

The original motion to use but one slip of paper for the two names prevailed.

The result of the first ballot was unknown. Voting upon one ballot was then commenced, the result of the

So great is the call upon the Relief Fund of the Grand Army, in the advancing years of the veterans, that annual fairs are now necessary to replenish the fund. The pledges of Quincy and the country in the early sixties that those who took up arms for the defence of the Union should never know want, should be sacredly kept, and fairs for the benefit of the local post should be held by the citizens of Quincy and not by the veterans themselves. The fair this year, under the auspices of Paul Revere Post, will be held in Quincy Music hall, the whole week of November 18.

A MAYORALTY CANDIDATE.

Ex-Councilman Edward E. Jameson Yields to Pressure of His Friends.

While Edward E. Jameson of Wollaston, the ex-Councilman and the present president of the Republican City Committee has been talked as a candidate for Mayor of the city, it was not until today that the gentleman decided to enter the field this year. When interviewed by a Representative of the Daily Ledger, he expressed himself briefly as follows:

"I have consented finally to allow my name to be used at the Republican convention in the Mayoralty contest; and therefore suppose I may be considered a candidate."

Whether he had reached his conclusions because of certain things at the Republican Representative convention, Mr. Jameson did not wish to be quoted. He said, however, that it was at the request of many prominent and influential citizens, especially of Ward Five.

Personally, he did not seek the office, but since he had been pushed into the contest, he should from this out conduct an active campaign, and cheerfully abide by the decision of the caucuses and convention.

Edward E. Jameson has been a resident of the city for over ten years, and obtained prominence and respect while a member of the City Council in 1898 and 1899, being elected from Ward Five. He is methodical, and of an investigating turn. He never voted in favor of a measure unless he fully realized its benefit, and obtained distinction for the numerous questions he asked. Such carefulness would count in his favor among taxpayers, as a mayoralty candidate, and it is thought that he will secure the delegates in his home ward. He has been prominent in Republican politics, both on the Ward Five Committee, and now on the City Committee.

Mr. Jameson holds the responsible position of New England manager of the Whitlock Machine Co., with office in Boston, and has a wide acquaintance. He was born in Lexington, Feb. 25, 1866, and educated in the public schools of Waltham. For a few years he was with his father in the manufacture of mineral waters, but his ambitions were higher, and he entered the employ of the Campbell Printing Press Co., of New York. As their representative he travelled five years in Canada, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, afterwards having charge of offices in St. Louis and Boston. Since 1893 he has been with the Whitlock Company, of which he is a stockholder and director, as well as manager. He is married and owns a pretty estate at Wollaston. He is also a member of several societies.

Robbed in Boston.

A morning paper reports that John E. Coupland of Norfolk Downs, aged 63 years, was assaulted on Charlesbank Park, Wednesday night and robbed of $5 and a bottle of whiskey. He claimed that a man came up and pushed him down and robbed him. An officer appeared on the scene before the man got away and locked him up.

ROUSING RALLY.

Eventful Night for Christian Endeavorers.

Dr. Clark the Honored Guest.

Speakers Also from Australia and California.

The Christian Endeavor rally at Bethany Congregational church on Wednesday evening was a grand success. The large church was filled to overflowing, the interior was elaborately decorated, the speakers were prominent in the movement, and two from great distances, and the spirit "for Christ and the church" was there in large measure.

Red and white, the C. E. colors, were conspicuous in the decorations, also C. E. shields. At the entrance was the word "Welcome;" over the desk the word "Consecration." In front of the desk was a large and beautiful emblematic pillow, which was later shipped to Dr. Clark. There were also other flowers, plants, flags, etc.

Both the Clark and the East Norfolk Unions were largely represented by young people from Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Abington, Rockland, Braintree, Holbrook, Milton, and all parts of Quincy. The Junior society of Bethany church displayed for the first time a beautiful new banner.

The program opened with a praise service from C. E. Sacred Hymnal.

An address of welcome by Mr. Boyd, President of the East Norfolk C. E. Union followed, in which he stated that the object of the convention was to gain new spiritual inspiration and awaken a more lively zeal for Endeavor work.

C. L. Keyes, President of Clark C. E. Union, read a portion of scripture, after which Rev. William L. Hardy, of Los Angeles, Cal., a cousin of Rev. E. N. Hardy, the pastor of the church, offered prayer.

An offering was taken to defray the expenses of the meeting.

President Boyd then introduced as the first speaker of the evening, Rev. W. G. Marsh of Adelaide, Australia, who spoke on "Theory and Practice in Christian Endeavor." He spoke with great fervor and the whole audience listened with rapt attention to every word of the address. He noted the fact that the world was full of theories and that it was impossible to put them into practice on account of their uselessness when put into operation. In the mind of the originator they were beautiful, and to read them was as charming as a novel, but in practice they were a failure.

He spoke of the time before the organization of the Christian Endeavor movement, of the various theories advanced and practiced by pastors to hold the young people in the church. Some pastors formed social clubs where dancing was taught and carried on by the young people. Others got up amiteur theatricals and interested them in that way; but in the end the dance halls and theatres were the only places that interested those whom the pastor sought to hold.

It remained for Dr. Clark to advance and put into practice the theory that instead of trying to amuse the young people, the way to hold them was to give them some work to occupy their time, and in organizing the C. E. society, Dr. Clark filled in an enormous gap between the young people and the church.

The Rev. Mr. Marsh said that the first duty of the Christian Endeavor was to aid the pastor. That it was their duty to spread abroad the good teachings received from the pastor, and if any evil gossip should arise concerning him it was their duty to stamp it out—at least until they had positive reason that it was true.

The address was enlivened by bright remarks, by the call of the Bush-man of Australia which he sounded sharp and penetrating, and especially interesting on account of the energetic and convincing manner with which the whole discourse was delivered.

The audience then rang "Forward" the hymn composed by Mr. C. A. Boyd president of the East Norfolk union.

Mr. Boyd introduced Rev. F. E. Clark, D. D., president of United Society of Christian Endeavor, who spoke for half an hour on the subject "What is worth while in Christian Endeavor?" Mr. Clark was greeted by Chautaqua salute. He spoke of the warm affection he held for Bethany church; he having occupied the same church the Rev. E. N. Hardy did in East Boston.

As usual he gave some very helpful thoughts on what was worth while, and emphasized the fact that we should always be ready to listen to the voice within.

The meeting closed by singing "Blest be the tie that binds," followed by the Mizpah benediction.

After the meeting, a reception was given Mr. Clark and the other speakers in the ladies' parlor, and from there a large number went with him to the station to bid him good night.

While waiting for the train the time was passed in singing C. E. songs and he departed amid the waving of the Chautaqua salute and the strains of "God be with you till we meet again."

*Nominated.

As soon as the vote was declared Mr. Johnson moved to make the vote unanimous. Mr. Bryant moved to amend by making the nomination of both candidates unanimous. The amendment was accepted and it was so voted.

Upon motion of Mr. Jameson it was voted that any vacancy caused by death or other reason be filled by the Republican Ward and City Committee.

Messrs. French, Barker and Newcomb were appointed to escort the nominees to the hall.

As the candidates entered the hall they were rece ved with cheers. Upon being introduced Mr. McKnight said:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the convention:

The honor which you have conferred upon me, in selecting me as one of your candidates for Representative to the General Court, I esteem most highly. I cannot at this moment fully express my deep sense of gratitude and feeling to you for the high honor which you have conferred upon me, but will if elected, endeavor to the best of my ability to reflect credit upon you and my constituents.

The law-making power of the government is one which calls for careful and close consideration of the various questions submitted, and while it is the duty of the legislator to watch zealously the interests of the commonwealth it may not be selfish to say that the interests of his constituency—the local interest — demands his first thought, and so it is that the interests of Quincy should receive the fullest attention. Our city stands today among the foremost of the cities of this prosperous commonwealth. Within a year or so we have seen a large ship building plant located in our midst, —whose business is national, rather than local, — giving employment to many of our own citizens and creating an influx in population. Nor will the old and time honored industries be forgotten, but all demand our careful and close consideration.

The Republican party has always stood for principles, and for the advancement of the people's interests and the prosperity of the country has been assured in its hands. Although the assassin's hand has recently struck down our great and beloved McKinley, the immortal words of Garfield, "God reigns and the government at Washington still lives" holds true, and our prinicples are again upheld by able hands.

I shall attempt to bring to the consideration of all questions the most careful judgment which I can summon, and you may rest assured that I shall on all questions touching the interests of Quincy take therein a personal interest, and if elected, to represent you. I will at all times be at your command and be glad to have words of counsel and advice as to the best course to be pursued and the desired end to be reached.

And gentlemen, while the nomination is a step, the election is the desired goal. It behooves us to be up and doing, and keeping the wheel in motion. We must stand together and work for the interests of the party and the support of its principles. Gentlemen, I feel that I have your fullest support and confidence and know that with the same zeal and preservance which you have shown in the past, victory will again perch on the Republican banners.

Candidate Badger said: We thank you for the nomination. There is one thing that may be brought out by this convention. The citizens of Quincy are much the same as a family. We must understand that each ward of the family must be taken into consideration. Much of the dissension of the past were because we do not keep this fact in mind. If you allow personal friendship to enter you will allow disensions to creep in. Personal desires and personal friendships should not determine. We must consider each as one of the family. We ask you to do all you can to elect the candidates you have nominated. As for me, personally I think my record at the State House better than anything I might say at this time.

The convention then adjourned.

Combine After Beet Sugar Makers

San Francisco, Oct. 3.—Beet sugar makers are worried over the attack made on their business by the sugar combine in cutting prices 80 cents a hundred pounds, or $16 a ton, at the very beginning of the campaign and right in the heart of the most active part of th season. That the attack is aimed at the beet sugar men is proved by the fact that the cut covered that portion of the country where beet sugar competes most actively with cane.

Captors Demand Ransom

Constantinople, Oct. 3.—The brigands who carried off Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary and her companion, Mme. Tsilka, a Bulgarian lady, have fixed Oct. 8 as the limit of time for the payment of the $110,000 ransom, demanded for Miss Stone's release. The hiding place of the brigands has not yet been discovered, and the delay accorded by the abductors is taken to indicate that they consider their retreat quite secure.

Granulated Suger at 4.85

New York, Oct. 3.—A deep cut in sugar prices has been made by the American Sugar Refining company and the National Sugar company. The reduction announced amounts to 15 points, and brings the net price for standard granulated down to 4.85 cents a pound. The cut effects all classes of sugar, from the granulated to the colored and soft product.

Afraid Germans Will Americanize

Berlin, Oct. 3.—A letter to the Kreuz Zeitung revives the report that President Roosevelt is anti-German in his opinions. The letter says: "President Roosevelt knows that America has more to fear from Germany than from any other nation. He will Americanize the Germans in America in order to break their influence."

This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Shepard Is Tammany's Candidate

New York, Oct. 3.—The city committee of Tammany Hall at a meeting held last night decided on Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn as the Democratic candidate for mayor of Greater New York. William W. Ladd, Jr., was selected as the Democratic candidate for comptroller and George M. Van Hoesen was selected as the candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. Shepard has in some previous campaigns opposed Tammany, but is an office-seeker at all times.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

EVANS WAS SHUT OFF

Wanted to Say He Did Not Destroy Spanish Fleet

OBJECTED TO BY COUNSEL

The Government's Case to Date—Points So Far Made Derogatory to the Conduct of Schley at, and Previous to the Battle of Santiago

Washington, Oct. 3.—An interesting turn was given to the Schley court of inquiry yesterday by the introduction of the first witness on Admiral Schley's behalf. This was Lieutenant James J. Doyle, who was a watch officer on board the flag ship Brooklyn during the war with Spain. The fact that Lieutenant Doyle was put on the stand does not mean that the navy department has concluded the presentation of its side of the case. Mr. Doyle was called by the department, but since it also had been the purpose of Admiral Schley to summon him, advantage was taken of his presence on the stand to question him as an original witness for "the applicant." He was under examination by Mr. Rayner in the interest of the admiral when the court adjourned.

Before undergoing examination at Mr. Rayner's hands, Lieutenant Doyle at Captain Lemly's request explained his part in the battle of July 3 and his original entry, in the ship's log concerning the famous loop and his alteration of that entry because he subsequently discovered that his first entry had been erroneous.

Lieutenant-Commander Sharp, who commanded the Vixen during the Spanish war, also gave his testimony during the day, giving especial attention to notes of the battle of July 3, made by Lieutenant Harlow of his ship.

Just before the adjournment for the day the court announced its decision not to allow any questions concerning the blockade of Santiago after July 1, when Commander-in-Chief Admiral Sampson arrived.

The testimony up to today has been ex-parte and of course prejudicial to Admiral Schley.

The evidence of Admiral Evans, Captain McCalla, Captain Sigsbee and Lieutenant Hood bears heavily against the contention that Admiral Schley acted like a man of natural decision whose energies were confined by adverse circumstances over which he could have no control. There is no longer room to doubt according to their testimony that there were four days, perhaps more, in which the Spanish fleet could have gone to sea from Santiago harbor without encountering any resistance capable of seriously retarding its progress.

It is known now that the Spanish fleet arrived in Santiago harbor on the 19th of May, the very day on which the Eagle, 30 miles west of Key West, informed the flying squadron, then on its way to Cienfuegos, that on the 16th Cervera's squadron certainly was not at Cienfuegos. On the 23d of May Schley was at Cienfuegos, and was so confident that Cervera's squadron was in that port that, in reply to Admiral Sampson's despatches, telling him of the report of the arrival of Cervera at Santiago he wrote: "I think I have them (the Spanish fleet), here (Cienfuegos) almost to a certainty." It was not until the next day, when Capt. McCalla's reconnoissance demonstrated beyond all question that Cervera's fleet was not in Cienfuegos harbor, that Schley got under way for Santiago, which he reached on the 26th.

Cervera's fleet had then been seven days at Santiago. From the testimony of the government witnesses it does not appear that Commodore Schley made any effort to find out whether his theory of the Spanish fleet was correct until Captain McCalla took the matter into his own hands. This neglect to find out the actual situation in Cienfuegos harbor was the more remarkable as Lieutenant Sutherland in communicating with the flying squadron (Schley's) on the 19 of May had stated that there was a Cuban camp 13 miles from Cienfuegos, from which the insurgents readily obtained information as to what was going on in the city and harbor. It was from this camp that Captain McCalla obtained proof that Cervera was not and had not been at Cienfuegos. Schley's judgment had proved at fault and according to evidence so far given he had shown no energy in endeavoring to ascertain the facts of the situation at Cienfuegos.

Admiral Schley's defense of his conduct in starting for Key West after receiving the navy department's despatches, which he regretted he could obey was that Captain Sigsbee told him that the Spanish fleet was not in Santiago. Captain Sigsbee testified that he told Schley that he had not seen the Spanish fleet, which possibly may be different from either saying that it was not in Santiago, or that he believed it was not in Santiago, although it doubtless will be claimed if Schley was privileged to take the opinion of his under officers, as of necessity he must do, that he was warranted under the conditions in accepting Sigsbee's declaration that he had not "seen" the ships as a positive declaration of Sigsbee's own knowledge that they were not in the harbor.

The testimony has not reached the point of uncovering Schley's motive in putting back to Santiago when once he had started for Key West. This is one of the most interesting points to be uncovered. The country has wondered what, if anything, happened on board the flagship to change Schley's determination to steam away from a port in which his government had informed him that it had reason to believe the enemy's fleet was at anchor.

During the proceedings Admiral Evans formally addressed the court and said:

"May it please the court, in connection with one of the questions asked me yesterday, unless Admiral Schley or his counsel object, I should like to make a statement and produce a letter. If at any moment counsel object, or Admiral Schley objects, I will withdraw it and stop."

Mr. Rayner. "Could we look at the letter?"

"Certainly," handing it to Mr. Rayner. "It is a matter entirely personal to me, sir. The way the question was put to me yesterday placed me in the position of having bragged while on the Brooklyn of destroying the whole Spanish fleet. The question was put to me as if I had stated I had 'shot the bow off the Pluton, raked this ship, and knocked out another one,' etc. There is Captain Cook's letter denying that such a conversation took place."

Mr. Rayner. "The point is whether the conversation was between you and Commodore Schley."

Mr. Rayner said he would object to the presentation of the letter at this time, but not at the proper time when Captain Cook was on the stand.

Financial Tension Relieved

Washington, Oct. 3.-Acting on instructions from Secretary Gage, Assistant Secretary Ailes this morning gave notice that the bond buying on the present basis would cease till further notice, after the purchase had reached a total of twenty millions, including the special purchases made on the hours of threatened panic directly after President McKinley's assassination. At the moment the notice went forth the total was still $2,349,000 short of the $20,000,000 fixed as the limit. Within ten minutes offers came in of $2,350,000, and were accepted at once. This th rf re ends the treasury buying for the present.

The secretary's purpose in suspending purchases is that he sees no immediate signs of trouble in the financial sky, he would rather keep in reserve the means relieving artificial tensions in the money market than to use up all his resources at once, he had been looking forward to th 10th of October as the date when the cropmoving crisis would be passed, but matters have gone along so smoothly comparatively, that he has no longer any apprehension from that source.

Secretary Long Called Home

Hingham, Mass., Oct. 3.—Hon. John H. Long was called from Washington suddenly owing to a serious turn in the condition of his daughter, Helen. Miss Long has been ill with a pulmonary trouble for some years. For the past two or three years she has lived in California, and at first seemed to be benefitted by the air. An attack of the grip however, caused a sort of a relapse, and since that time her condition has been critical. Lately she came home to Hingham and until this week showed no great ill effects of the hard trip. Secretary Long came home with his daughter, and the whole family, including Mrs. Long, Helen, and Margaret, the daughters, and Pierce, the son, have been at Hingham until Monday when the secretary went to Washington.

Duane Attacked the Dead President

Boston, Oct. 3.—The members of the 20th century club were treated to a sensation last night when Rev. Charles W. Duane rector of Christ's church, one of the speakers, in making a defense of Senator Quay of Pennsylvania, took occasion to spak in a manner which seemed to be a reflection upon the late President McKinley, associating him with Mr. Quay and intimating that the President acquired his estate by the same methods by which the Pennsylvania man has enriched himself.

Speaker J. J. Myers or the Massachusetts house of representatives made an impassioned reply to Mr. Duane, which in some places, might have meant that an apology of some sort ought to follow.

However, Mr. Duane retracted, with much circumlocution, and hoped that the matter might be kept from the public. Speaker Myers acquiesced, and the matter was dropped.

Calisthenics

Are a benefit to healthy women. But to women who are suffering from diseases peculiar to their sex they are an injury. When there is weak back or bearing-down pains, sideache or other indications of womanly weakness, exercise can only aggravate the condition. The womanly health must be first restored before strength can be developed by exercise.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It does this by healing the womanly diseases which undermine the general health. It stops the drains that weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"When I first commenced using Doctor Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y., "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, and I began taking your medicine. After taking first bottle I began to feel better. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me.

"I have a sister who is taking your medicine and it is helping her."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets promote regularity of the bowels, and assist the action of "Favorite Prescription." No other laxative should be used with Dr. Pierce's Medicines.

PARTY LEADERS BANQUET

Bay State Democrats Have an Ante-Convention Reunion

Boston, Oct. 3.—All the speakers at the anti-convention banquet of the Democratic club of Massachusetts at the United States hotel last night advocated union, harmony, and organization as the motto to guide the Massachusetts Democracy in its forth coming campaign. Never before since the days of William E. Russell has there been such a gathering of Democrats as met in the corridors. "The old Russel days" were frequently referred to and the organization as a whole showed every evidence of a reunion of kindred spirits into a party stronger than ever before.

A little diversion however, was given during the evening by the rally in an adjoining room conducted by the adherents of Gamalial Bradford, the independent Democratic candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. The cheers and applause from this little coterie of enthusiasts penetrated the dining hall while Hon. Josiah Quincy, the regular candidate was speaking, but it had no effect on the larger meeting.

There were 300 Democrats from most of the cities and towns of the state who listened to chairman James E. McConnell of Fitchburg as he opened the post prandial exercises with a brief speech, and read some letters or regret from prominent partisans, including Hon. Richard Olney, Congressman John R. Thayer, Hon. Wm. A. Gaston and Gamalial Bradford.

Chairman's McConnell's words to the effect that the "party slogan seems to have the old ring about it" were taken as the keynote of the meeting by the subsequent speakers and Hon. Josiah Quincy, who was the first to respond was received with cheers and applause.

Other speakers were Robert Paine, Jr., Hon. Charles A. Hamlin, former assistant secretary of the treasury, Hon. Patrick Collins, Thomas Gargan and Dr. J. W. Coughlin.

Armenian Conditions Must Cease

London, Oct. 3.—The Times publishes the following despatch from its Constantinople correspondent: "The reports received at all the embasses and legations here from consuls in the provinces depict a situation everywhere so deplorable that an ambassadorial conference and collection action are contemplated."

France has been bringing all possible pressure upon the other European powers to join in a concerted movement against Turkey and it is stated that she has not found them unwilling. It seems the moving suggestion came from the czar during his recent conference with President Loubet. The Russian emperor is said to have spoken with great earnestness regarding the situation in Armenia, declaring such conditions as had existed in that unhappy country for the last three years could not be tolerated. According to one account, Nicholas told M. Loubet that the Armenians must either accept Turkish sovereignty or a Russian protectorate, as the continuance of the disorders in that part of the world was demoralizing and dangerous.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Harvard football team defeated Bowdoin yesterday in 12-minute halves by the score of 12 to 0, the same as last year. Harvard's back field was composed of substitutes and only the excellence of the linemen saved the day. Bowdoin's back was better than Harvard's. The first touchdown was made by line plunging for 35 yards after Grayton had run back with a kickoff for 50 yards. After the second kickoff Bowdoin secured the ball on a forward pass and gained steadily for 25 yeards, through Harvard's line, before being forced to kick.

Chinese Pretense and Practice

Berlin, Oct. 3.—Prince Chun, before leaving German territory, sent long despatches to Emperor William thanking him for the "gracious reception" extended to the expiatory mission, for the hospitality bestowed and the decoration conferred upon him.

He had scarcely gotten away when the news arrived that the German mission stationed near Piang-Tang had been devasted by rebels. The latest information as to the fate of the missionaries is that all but one escaped and reached Hong Kong.

To Ignore Dowager's Return

New York, Oct. 3.—A despatch to the Sun says: Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang are anxious as to the attitude of the foreign ministers in receiving the court on its return. They have endeavored to get an expression of opinion from the ministers on this point, but the latter are indifferent. The foreign representatives are opposed to magnifying the importance of the return of the court and prefer that the ceremonies attending it should be inconsequential.

Independent Telephones Combine

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 3.—A consolidation of all the independent telephone companies of eastern Pennsylvania to make a formidible rival of the Bell system, has been effected in this city, and is to be followed by the merging of all the independent systems of the entire state with those of New Jersey. Eventually these lines are to connect with a projected system between New York and Boston.

Wholesale Lynching In Texas

Dallas, Oct. 3.—Details are just beginning to reach Dallas of a race conflict in Harrison county, starting near Hallville and spreading in various directions, in which five negroes have been lynched since last Saturday. The trouble is said to have started because negroes who had rented cotton lands from the rich planters refused to harvest their crop, so as to permit the planters to get their share of the crop.

More Navymen Wanted

Washington, Oct. 3.—Two thousand enlisted men are wanted by the navy to bring the strength up to the full limit authorized by law.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

All sizes; all prices; one kind—the best.

"FAIR AND SQUARE"

So Lipton Characterizes Shamrock's Defeat Thursday

A GOOD BREEZE TODAY

Promise This Morning of Favorable Conditions For the Third Race of the Series— Details of Columbia's Victory

Washington, Oct. 4.—The weather bureau last night issued the following special forecast of the weather for today's race off Sandy Hook:

Present conditions indicate prevalence of 10 to 12 mile breeze off Sandy Hook and fair weather Friday. Winds will hold from north to northeast.

New York, Oct. 4.—In a glorious whole sail breeze which heeled the big cup contestants down until their lee rails were awash in the foaming seas Herreshoff's white wonder, the Columbia, yesterday beat Watson's British creation over a triangular course of 30 miles by two minutes and 52 seconds actual time. With the 48 seconds which the Irish sloop must allow the American boat on account of her larger sail plan the Columbia won the second race of the series by three minutes and 35 seconds. The fastest race ever sailed in a cup contest, it was not only a royal struggle from a spectacular point of view but it was absolutely decisive as to the merits of the two racing machines. There is not a yachting sharp who witnessed the race who is not firmly convinced that the defender is the abler boat high or low, beating, reaching running, and Sir Thomas and his merry British tars are doomed to return home empty handed. Again the antique piece of silverware brought across the western ocean 50 years ago, is safe. Again American supremacy in marine architecture has been vindicated. Sir Thomas has been wishing for a breeze that would bury Shamrock's bow rail; and he had it, just as he had a similar breeze in the concluding race two years ago when Columbia in a driving finish beat the first Shamrock over six minutes.

The wind yesterday was strong and true, blowing around 18 knots an hour out of the northeast and at every point of sailing, except perhaps runing before the wind in which the defender has already taken the measure of the challenger, th Yankee sloop proved herself abler than the Watson model. From the time she crossed the line, 1 minute and 34 seconds behind the cup hunter until she picked up and passed the Irish boat, three miles after rounding the second mark, Columbia's pace was faster and she behaved better than her rival.

Reaching for the first mark ten miles down the Long Island shore with the wind abaft the beam, she gained 92 seconds. In a closer reach for the second stake she gained 30 seconds and in the thresh to windward on the leg home she gained exactly two minutes. Not perhaps as thrilling as the remarkable contest of last Saturday, yesterday's race was nevertheless, stirring from start to finish and as a marine spectacle it could hardly have been surpassed. It was an ideal October day at sea.

There was just enough frostiness to There was just enough frostiness to clear the atmosphere and make the whole course visible from shore.

The Yankee victory began with the start when the crafty Barr by a system of manoeuvering convinced his adversary that he was trying to cross the line first. Captain Sycamore promptly took the bait and rushing his boat into position, sent her away almost in the smoke of the gun. Thereupon Captain Barr having accomplished his purpose tacked about back of the line and held off for more than a minute. Then with a flying start he went over just before the handicap gun was fired. Some of the patriots were dissapointed until the experts explained that there was no windward berth in a reach where the boats could lay their course straight for the mark and that the position astern where Barr could keep his eye on every move of his rival was the commanding one. He could watch Captain Sycamore like a hawk knowing that when the gap between them was closed the race was his. For the first fifteen miles no human eye could tell which ship if either, were gaining, so closely were they matched. But gradually it became more and more apparent that the Columbia was overhauling the flying challenger. Slowly, inch by inch and foot by foot, the white boat gained. Both were going at a terrific pace. Everything in the excursion fleet had to crowd on steam to keep the racers in sight and the gait at which they were going left tugboats and some of the steam yachts astern. The guide boat which started 15 minutes before the racers, tore ahead at full speed but she was hardly able to log off the distance and get the float overboard before the racers were upon her.

Leaving the first mark on the starboard hand, the racers gybed over their big booms and went careening for the second mark the Columbia gaining slowly but surely. When they ran around the second stake they took in their baby jibtopsails and hauled their wind for the beat home. Both yachts heeled until their lee rails dipped a foot into the swirling billows. Within five minutes after rounding the last mark it was apparent that the Columbia was footing faster and pointing higher. She went through the Shamrock's lee rail like a quarter horse. The rush of the leviathians on the final tack was magnificent. The excurson boats, black with people from gunwale to pilot house, gathered about the finish in a great horseshoe. As the white flyer came on with the big bone in her teeth, well in the lead, the patriotic skippers with their hands on the whistle cords could hardly restrain themselves. As she swept across the line the din was tympanum-destroying. Whistles split the air and steam sirens wailed drowning the crash of the bands and the cheers of the people. The concert of sound was terrible. Until after the gallant Shamrock, beaten but not disgraced, crossed a minute and 18 seconds later, whistles and sirens were kept going. When they had died away the bands could be heard playing "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," Yankee Doodle," and other patriotic airs.

Sir Thomas in the Erin did not approach within half a mile of the finish line. He had seen his high hopes blasted and presumably he did not care to be in at the jubiliation over the defeat of his champion. But like a good game sportsman, after the Columbia went over the line, he ran the American flag up to the forepeak and fired a salute in its honor. The rival crews cheered each other as they were towed home behind their tenders and escorted by the whole excursion fleet.

Within half an hour after the conclusion of the race the committee boat in accordance with the agreement to race daily, from now on set the signal for a race Friday. Sir Thomas Lipton although plainly depressed at the result of the race, stood bravely at the gangway of the Erin and bid a cordial adieu to his guests. He also entertained a large party of yachtmen and ladies who visited the Erin after the day's guests had departed.

When asked what he thought of the race he said: "I admit frankly that I got licked by the best boat, in a fair and square race, and I maintain and believe that there is not a better skipper afloat than Captain Sycamore nor a better man to manage a crew. I have as much esteem for my captain and crew as when I came to this side, but they can't do impossibilities. They took as much out of the boat as could be taken.

Bay State Republican Convention

Boston, Oct. 4.—The Republican state convention is being held in this city today, and according to the usual custom on the night before the convention, the delegates accepted an invitation of the state central committee to attend a reception tendered to the state's executive and his official family, at the American house last evening. Hundreds of delegates from all sections of the state together with several hundred Republicans from Boston and vicinity, crowded the hotel to grasp the hand of Governor Crane.

Governor Crane will be renominated for his third term, as will be Lieutenant Governor Bates. William M. Olin, who has served the commonwealth as secretary of state since 1891, will be renominated ,and State Treasurer Bradford will receive his second year nomination.

Robert C. Harris of East Bridgewater and Herbert Parker of Lancaster, are the only two candidates for the nomination of attorney general, which will be the only contest in the state ticket, and which has been caused by the declination of the present incumbent, Hon. Hosea M. Knowlton of New Bedford, to receive a renomination, after occupying the office since 1894.

Chandler Believes In Roosevelt

Washington, Oct. 4.—Ex-Senator Chandler of New Hampshire has reached Washington to take up the work of the Spanish claims commission, of which he is charirman.

"I arrive here," says Mr. Chandler in an interview, "under the shadow of a great national calamity, which comes home to me with peculiar force on account of my pleasant relations with Mr. McKinley. I have had such relations with 10 presidents, and talked with them at the White House, beginning in 1853 with President Pierce, who invited me and another Concord boy to dine."

Speaking of President Roosevelt, Mr. Chandler said: "I am sad at seeing him president through the death of President McKinley, but I am glad to see him president. He will prove himself to be a conservative president, without surrendering his convictions or his courage. He believes in doing things when it is right to do them, not otherwise, and doing with his might what he thinks is right to do.

Prefered Death to Prison

Bridgeport, Conn, Oct. 4.—In the superior court here George Colombo of Greenwich was sentenced to life imprisonment for murder in the second degree for killing Jacob Lawson of Greenwich, foreman of a gang which Colombo worked last May. As sentence was pronounced, Colombo shouted, "I prefer death to life in prison."

QUINCY IS NOMINATED

Democrats Place Boston's Ex-Mayor at Head of Ticket

WOULD ABOLISH COUNCIL

A Kindly Reference to McKinley In the Resolutions, and Well Wishes For Roosevelt—Summary of the Platform

Boston, Oct. 4.—The Democratic state convention held here yesterday placed the following ticket in nomination: Governor, Josiah Quincy, Boston; lieutenant governor, John W. Coughlin, Fall River; secretary of state, Wellmore B. Stone, Springfield; treasurer, Joseph L. Chalifoux, Lowell; auditor, James F. Dean, Salem; attorney general, A. A. Putnam, Uxbridge.

For the first time in six years the Democracy of the state was united, and with one exception nominated the entire ticket by acclamation. The exception was for the head of the ticket, the contestants being Hon. Josiah Quincy, former mayor of Boston and Gamaliel Bradford of Wellesley. The contest was one-sided, however, and while it provoked considerable warmth of temper from the Bradford adherents, the vast majority ofthe delegates did not treat the matter seriously, and when the ballots were counted, ex-Mayor Quincy received 1256, and Mr. Bradford 174.

Among the resolutions of the platform were the following:

"We deeply lament the tragedy which has recently deprived the nation of its chosen ruler, soon after the beginning of his second term of office. We join with all our countrymen in recognizing the distinguished public and private virtues of the late President McKinley and the eminent place which he has won among statesmen."

"There is no place for anarchy in this country. Under our democratic institutions the hand which is raised against the president is directed against popular sovereignty itself. Freedom of speech does not include the right to advocate assassination."

"President Roosevelt is entitled to the good wishes of all patriotic citizens without predjudice to their right to criticise his acts or oppose his policies as future occasion may require."

"We believe in the soundness of the American system of party government, and in the division of the voters mainly into two divisions, upon which it rests. The great preponderance of the Republican party in this state and in the nation is inconsistent with the public interest. We call upon all believers in Democratic principles, and upon all who desire to resist the present Republican tendencies, to join in maintaining the Democratic party a strong and harmonious organization."

"We believe that in the present campaign attention should be concentrated chiefly upon our State government and state legislation; its paramount issues are those which relate to our domestic affairs. In place of colonial imperialism abroad we offer the people progressive democracy at home."

The planks in the platform are in brief these:

Individual rights must be safe-guarded by law against monopolistic power; communism of capital must be met by state control; personal liberty must be preserved; a responsible governor should be at the head of all adminstration; the executive council should be abolished; very branch of state government should be a department; the head of every department should represent it upon the floor of the legislature; the growing evil of special legislation must be abated; legislative sessions should be curtailed; legislative measures should be subject to referendum to the people whenever duly petitioned for; a single primary election for all parties should be established. in place of separate caucuses; all candidates voted for in districts should be nominated by direct vote; optional direct nomination of candidates for state offices should be provided for; the United States senate is becoming a dangerous oligarthy; senators should be nominated and elected directly by vote of the people; progressive labor legislation should be revived; the right of home rule should be given to cities. Public ownership of public utilities is demanded; city governments should be given larger legislative powers; metropolitan commissions should be reorganized to represent the people and taxpayers of the metropolitan district; Boston harbor must be at once improved by state action if necessary; a constitutional convention should be held; the imperialistic spirit must be opposed, at home and abroad; the people of the Philippine islands should be prepared for speedy self-government, and for ultimate independence under American protection; freer trade with other nations is necessary, genuine reciprocity a step towards it; trusts should be regulated and controlled by Federal authority, publicity of their accounts should be enforced; tariff dues protecting oppressive trusts should be abolished; railroad rates should be uniform; exorbitant shipping subsidies should not be given to favor a few interests.

Good Afternoon.

The Herald's editorial review of the Norfolk county investigation of 1896 is as we remember it, and the Herald does the Republicans of Norfolk county a service at this time in presenting these facts. The editorial probably is not in the interest of any particular candidate but to prevent the nomination of a candidate whose service was at best not entirely satisfactory. Because of the investigation, Messrs. Morrill of Hyde Park and Bowker of Brookline were forced out of the board when their terms expired. Now both these towns have candidates for commissioner, and Brookline's candidate is the same Mr. Bowker. We are surprised that Brookline should again present his name, but learn that he met considerable opposition in his home town. Because of the investigation both Brookline and Hyde Park should wait until other towns in the county have had representation.

The make-up of the boards of Norfolk County Commissioners in recent years has been as follows:

* Investigation year.

There is some talk of changing the name of the Quincy Home Science association, and among the names suggested are: Quincy Educational association, Quincy Home association and Home Educational association. The present name seems as appropriate as any, or the Home Educational society, but it would be a pity to drop the word home from the name as that really seems the foundation upon which the society started, and the lines upon which it has worked.

The city spends $100,000 for education, and there are also large sums expended yearly on the endowed schools and new school buildings, and the small amount expended by the Quincy Home Science association would hardly warrant the society in changing its name to the Quincy Educational association.

But whatever the name, many hope that the home will be the first consideration, and there are yet many unsolved problems, such as domestic service, so ably demonstrated by Mrs. James H. Slade, in her fine paper on Tuesday afternoon at the fall meeting of the society. Another is the education of the poor in the matter of diet and cleanliness, all coming under the subject of home. The summer kindergartens have done much toward reaching the little ones and their mothers.

Josiah Quincy, who has been nominated by the Democrats for Governor, is a member of the old and distinguished Quincy family of Quincy, and up to nine or ten years ago, was a resident of this city. His wife, also, was for many years a resident of Quincy. He was born in Quincy in 1859, prepared for College at Adams academy, and after being graduated from Harvard college, was an instructor in Adams academy, but in 1884 was admitted to the bar. He was a Republican up to this time, but came out for Cleveland against Blaine. In 1886 and 1887, and again in 1890 and 1891, he was a representative from the Quincy-Weymouth district in the Legislature, having been elected as the Democratic candidate. He became prominent in State and National affairs, particularly during the administrations of President Cleveland. The progress of Boston during his three years as Mayor are fresh in mind.

Although Josiah Quincy is a Democrat, the Republican city of Quincy still has high regard for her distinguished son, and would feel honored to have him elected to the highest office in the gift of the Commonwealth. We are not at all sanguine that he will be elected, as with the voters at large it must be a question of principles rather than friendship, but it would not be surprising if he received a majority in this city.

The importance of the Course of Home Studies in Literature to be commenced in the Saturday eight-page Ledger can hardly be overestimated. The subject not only appeals to the mature of decided literary tastes, but to a much larger class. People not given to general reading do not wish to appear ignorant of our own literature. In the entertaining series of articles on the subject by Professor Sears they find in compact shape just the information they desire.

And another point—these studies are of great importance to the young whose tastes have not yet been formed. Reading these articles will tend to inspire them with the ambition to know our best authors, those about whom well informed people talk and write thus creating an appetite for good literature.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ When the Sunday school and the church discover the ways and means of extending the practical rather than mere doctrinal side of their gospel to men they will have solved the problem of reaching the masses. There may be plenty of work for the other auxiliary organizations of the church to do, but there is no better opportunity for this particular work than offers in the Sunday school if the proper effort is made to improve it.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The Boston clergyman, who was nettled at some unpleasant remarks about Quay, and who retorted by casting a slur on McKinley, learned his mistake without delay. The speaker of the House has never been accounted a very stalwart Republican, but Wednesday evening he rallied to the defence of the murdered President in a way that astonished and delighted his friends. The minister, being a native of Philadelphia, though now the rector of a Boston church, thought it necessary to defend his birthplace by slurring the memory of a just man and smooching Boston, where he now resides. He exhibited poor taste, and was very properly and thoroughly reproved. The incident shows to what an extent the evil influence of Quay is felt, when he can find a defender in the person of a Boston preacher of righteousness.—Lynn Item.

Harvest Supper.

At the Washington Street Congregational church, Quincy Point, Thursday evening the annual Harvest supper was attended by about 150. The supper commenced at 6.30, and comprised a good variety of eatables such as meats, vegetables, pies coffee, fruits, etc. At eight o'clock an entertainment, consisting of tableaux, singing, readings, and instrumental music, was given by the younger members of the church. The tableaux were given under the direction of Miss Grace Lapham and Miss Gertrude Foster, and were well received by the audience. The excellent manner in which they were given showed that much care had been taken in preparing them for presentation.

The readings given by Miss Mary Margaret Mills, from the Conservatory of Music, were worthy of special mention; that her fine talent was duly appreciated was demonstrated by the enthusiastic manner the audience greeted her appearances.

The committee in charge must have felt well repaid for their labors, as the entire program of the performance was marked by constant demonstrations of enthusiasm and delight. The committee were: Mr. Herbert Adams, Mrs. George Bailey, Mrs. C. W. Newcomb, Mrs. Herbert Hayden, Mrs. M. Holmes, Miss Etta Lapham, Miss Flora Lapham, Miss Kate Starbuck.

Masonic Visitation.

The occasion of the official visit of Rt. Wor. Charles F. Mann, D. D. G. M. of the 24th Masonic district, and suite, to Rural lodge on Thursday evening was the occasion of a large gathering of Masons, who represented many lodges. The M. M. degree was exemplified in grand style by Wor. Brett and his officers, and Rural lodge entertained hospitably.

HAVE WE FORGOT?

The Norfolk County Investigation of 1896?

Forced Retirement of Commissioner Bowker.

Now He is a Candidate for Renomination.

The Ledger has refrained from commenting adversely on the candidacy of Watts H. Bowker, the ex-Commissioner, for Norfolk County Commissioner, because we desired the Quincy candidate to win upon his merits. But there are a great many new voters in Norfolk county since 1896, and others have not a well defined knowledge of the investigation of the County Commissoners that year by the Legislature in connection with the remodeling of the court house at Dedham. An editoral in the Herald this morning tells why Mr. Bowker should not be renominated or reelected. With the substitution of the name of Melville P. Morrill of Hyde Park for that of Mr. Wiggin (Mr. Wiggin having retired from the board at the close of the year) 1893 in the first paragraph of the article the editoral of the Herald is printed below in full, and we might add, in justice to Candidate Badger, that the editorial is reproduced without his knowledge:

"The legislative investigation of 1896 of the affairs in Norfolk county has come up as a matter of present interest in consequence of the efforts made by one of the county commissioners whose proceedings were at that time inquired into to obtain vindication of his official actions by a new election to his old position. The board of commissioners at the time the investigation was carried on consisted of Messrs. Morrill (chairman,) Bowker and Blanchard. The last named had been on the board but a short time when the legislative inquiry took place, and was in no way responsible for the scandal growing out of the reconstruction of the Norfolk county court house. In fact, so far as Mr. Blanchard was concerned, he did what he could to have the affair clearly presented in all of its details, which was much more than could be said of his two colleagues.

"The facts found by the committee of investigation were that the board of county commissioners had in asking for appropriations, concealed from the Legislature the actual cost of the work in respect to the construction, additions and repairs of the court house. It had submitted statements showing amounts that would be required for various other purposes which were largely in excess of what was actually required, and this for the purpose of transferring these excesses to the funds in hand for court house construction. It charged to pay roll, fuel and miscellaneous items considerable amounts of money which properly belonged to the court house account, thus endeavoring to conceal the real cost of that work.

"Contracts were made in violation of law, and the records were not kept of opening bids and awarding contracts. The advertising of the principal contracts was of a farcial character and was evidently not intended to invite competition. Thousands of dollars were paid out in cases where there were no advertising proposals or contracts.

"The architects were directed to omit from their orders upon the treasurer a statement of the amount of the contract and what had been previously paid. After the investigation was ordered bills were prepared and dated back one and two years and deposited as vouchers with county treasurer, the official stamp of the commissioners having been so changed as to make the dates correspond.

"The ledgers, journals, cash books, checks, receipts, bills and all papers relating to the court house which were in the possession of the principal contractor to whom had been paid the sum of $228,000 were destroyed after it was apparent that an investigation by the Legislature might be ordered.

"Another contractor had apparently burned his books and papers and still another contractor who on a contract of $12,000 for furniture had extras amounting to $32,000 had unaccountably lost one of his most important books, and his chief bookkeeper suddenly disappeared at the time the investigation was ordered.

"The architects had no books to produce, and the chairman of the board seemed to be almost equally wanting in this respect, and was apparently unable to explain erasures which had been made in the accounts relating to the expenses of the court house in a number of cases the books that were produced.

"There was not the least question that there had been an entirely unwarrantable extravagance in the conduct of this work that evasive methods had been attempted to conceal the amount of expenditures, while contracts were given out which would admit of the dishonest appropriation of money even if the destruction of the account books, vouchers, etc., made it impossible to positively assert that such had been the case.

One conclusion was clear, that the commissioners who were responsible for this extraordinary action were men who were entirely unfitted for the duties of the office. That this was the opinon of the people was made evident by the forced retirement from the board of commissioners of the two members who were responsible for the faults set forth above.

"Five years is not a long time, and one would suppose that public memory would be strong enough to continue for such a term without serious impairment, and yet, in spite of this record, one of these two commissioners is now seeking popular support for an election to the office which he so discreditably filled. We should hope that the good sense of the Republican party in the county of Norfolk could be depended upon to prevent the making of a nomination of this kind."

Burglary at Park.

The residence of Mr. Frank Burgess of Wollaston Park was broken into Wednesday night between the hours of 9 and 11 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Burgess were attending an entertainment in Boston at the time and did not return until 12 o'clock, after the mischief was done. Late in the evening one of the neighbors called at the house, accompanied by Mr. Burgess' dog which kept up such a continuous barking, that the thieves were prevented from making a thorough ransacking.

The thieves tried to pry open the front windows, but found it a difficult task. However their attempt at forcing an entrance in the cellar proved a success. They succeeded in getting but little booty, as they were undoubtedly frightened by the bell and barking of dog. Among the stolen articles are gold studs, gold rings, and some old valuable coins.

New Pastor.

Rev. William A. Brady of Narragansett Pier, has accepted a call to Calvary Baptist church, Franklin street and will enter upon his labor there Oct. 6. For eight years Mr. Brady has served in the above place with a very successful pastorate, and the church which has given him a unanimous call believe him to be a true under shepherd in every sense of the word.

Political Potpourri.

The Social Democratic party of Quincy will open the State campaign in City Square, Saturday evening with Representative James F. Carey of Haverhill as speaker. Subject,—"Social equality or how to emancipate the white slave of political action." Mr. Carey will be the guest of Gustave B. Bates, candidate for county commissioner.

Celebrated Too Much.

Thursday a barge load of men and women on their way to the Brockton Fair, stopped in City Square. The women got out of the team refusing to remain, as two of the gang were too drunk. All of the men had more or less liquor down, and one of them, who claimed to be a member of the Boston city government, took the two men and carried them into the residence of Henry H. Faxon. They went to the side door and wanted to leave the two drunks there to sober off. After some words with the housekeeper, the men were again placed in the barge and carried to Adams street where they were left on the side of the road to sober off. A little later they fell into the hands of the officers and were locked up for drunkenness. They gave their names as Georome B. Gearin and Michael Donovan, and in court this morning they contributed $5 each.

DECISIVE RACE.

Expected for America's Cup Today.

Shamrock Led However on First Leg.

Weather Conditions Perfect for Good Race.

New York, 8 A. M.—The indications are that today's race will end this year's series.

Few Bets.

New York, 9 A. M.—But few sportsmen could be found last night who wanted to bet on the Shamrock.

Windward Course.

New York, 10.30.—There is strong wind for the races. Today's course is fifteen miled to windward and return.

Good Race Assured.

New York 11 A. M.—There is fully as much wind today as yesterday, and another good race is assured.

Shamrock First.

New York, 11.10 A. M.—The Shamrock was the first to cross the line and has quite a lead.

Official Time.

New York, 11.12 A. M.—The official time of the start was 11.02. for both boats.

A Repetition.

New York, 11.15 A. M. If the present wind holds today's race will be a repetition of yesterday.

Passed Columbia.

New York, 11.25 A. M.—Soon after crossing the line, the Shamrock took the Columbia wind and passed her.

One Minute Ahead.

New York, 12.20 P. M.—The Shamrock is leading about 1 minute.

Shamrock Leading.

New York, 12.30 P. M.—At the end of the first hour of the race the Shamrock was leading the Columbia 400 yards.

Closing the Gap.

New York, 2 P. M.—The Columbia appears to be overhauling the Shamrock.

Bicycle Club.

The Clan McGregor Bicycle club held their semi-annual meeting on Wednesday evening in Doble's Hall. The business was election of officers and the following members were elected to serve for the ensuing term: President, George Robertson; Vice President, George Craig; Recording Secretary, William Kingstree; Financial Secretary, Alex. Bussell; Treasurer, Francis Morrison. After the election a collation was served which was enjoyed by all present. Then the evening was passed with song and story. The newly elected president gave a recitation entitled, "A chairman in a fix," which was heartily applauded. Before the meeting adjourned Robert Capt. Craig announced a run for Monday, Oct. 7, when the club will visit Clan McLeod of Hyde Park.

No Evidence.

George H. Smith, the engineer and watchman at the engine house and polishing shop of Fagan & Ballou, and Joseph Govan, both of whom were arrested at the fire Tuesday morning and later arraigned in court for arson, were given a hearing in the district court this morning. Both men were represented by counsel. A number of witnesses were heard, but as there was no evidence to connect the two men with setting the fire they were discharged for want of probable cause.

Civil Trial List.

The following cases are marked for trial at the civil session of the district court next Tuesday:

307—Backus vs. Packard.
152—McNeil vs. Barker.
177—Clark Bros. Co. vs. Flanagan and City of Quincy.
260—Kelliher vs. Nimeskein.

MILTON.

At the meeting of the Thursday Evening club last week, Christopher Graham gave his experiences on horse racing in the old country. There were also readings by Rev. Theodore I. Reese, Arthur Gardner and E. A. Rich. Cake, coffee and cigars were served.

Prof. Kaplan opened his dancing classes at Ellsworth hall on Monday. There was a good attendance at both the children's and adult classes.

A tunnel is being dug under the railroad track at East Milton for the sewer.

The stores closed Thursday and the proprietors went to the Brockton fair.

Richard Folsom has moved to Franklin park.

A. B. Cooper has moved to the house on the corner of Adams and Mechanics streets.

Morning services will be resumed on Sunday at the Mission of Our Saviour church. There will be a communion service at 8 o'clock, morning service at 11.30. Sunday school at 11.45 and the evening service at 7 o'clock instead of 7.30.

The ladies of St. Catherines guild commenced their weekly meetings on Wednesday.

Maguire & O'Heron are building a one-hundred foot addition to their granite cutting sheds.

The attendance at Milton academy this year shows an increase of twenty-five over last year.

Eugene Gallagher has moved his store into the building on the corner of Adams street and Granite place.

Arthur Clapp has moved from Mechanics street to Quincy.

Joseph H. Pearce is in New Hampshire on a visit.

Miss Rose McMorrow has returned from a visit to Concord.

C. E. Convention Plans.

Definite plans for the 16th annual convention of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor union, to be held at North Adams, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 15 and 16, have been announced by the committee in charge. Excellent hotel accommodations will be provided, as well as entertainment in private houses. A special train will be run from Boston on the morning of Tuesday, Oct. 15, leaving the Union station, Causeway street at 8.35 A. M., stopping at Ayer and Fitchburg, and due in North Adams at 1.10 p. m. in ample season for the afternoon session. Returning this special train will leave North Adams at 4.30 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 16, and will arrive at Boston about 9.45 p. m. Tickets for the round trip, good only on this train, will be sold from Boston for $2.

The provisional programme provides for an address of welcome by Mayor Wilkinson of North Adams on Tuesday afternoon, to which Rev. E. W. Phillips of Worcester, vice-president of the State union, will respond. Reports will follow.

Tuesday evening it is hoped that Booker T. Washington, Esq., of Tuskegee Normal institute, Alabama, will be one of the speakers. The programme also provides for an address, "God in the City," by Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D., of Boston.

Wednesday morning a ride to Williamstown on special electric cars has been arranged, and a missionary meeting will be held in Mission park, Williamstown, at the "Haystack monument." Wednesday afternoon and evening there will be interesting sessions.

Western Massachusetts has only entertained the Endeavor convention once before, when it met in Pittsfield in 1895, and a large number will undoubtedly avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the Hoosac tunnel and the Berkshire hills.

Mrs. Raymond.

The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Sarah Woodberry Raymond were held Thursday morning, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Lord, of Hancock street, Wollaston. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Fiske of Lynn, of the Christian Science denomination. The body was interred at Beverly, where the committal was given by Frederick Seward. Mrs Raymond had been visiting her daughter during the summer, and passed away Monday, September 30. Her home was in Beverly, where she was highly esteemed. She was descended from one of the oldest and best families of Beverley. Two brothers, Mr. Isaac Ray of Beverley and Mr. Eben Ray of Malden; two sisters, Mrs. Edwin Woodman of Salem, and Mrs. Albert Perry of California; and five children, Mrs. James J. Lord of Wollaston, Geo. E. Raymond of Boston, Benj. F. Raymond of Essex, Mary E. Raymond of Brookline, and Harry E. Raymond of Boston, survive her.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

THE NIGHT BEFORE.

Republican Clans Gather at American House.

Quincy was largely represented at the reception of the Republican State Committee to Governor Crane and others at the American-House, Boston, Thursday evening. In the receiving party were: Gov. Crane, Lieut.-Gov. Bates, State Treasurer Bradford, Secretary of State Olin, State Auditor Turner, Congressmen Moody, Powers, Tirrell, Gillett, Lawrence, Lovering, Greene and others.

Mayor Hall of Quincy, as the representative of the Tenth Congressional district, met with the Committee on Resolutions, who framed a platform with entire unanimity.

President Jameson of the Republican City Committee of Quincy will serve on the Committee on Ballot at the State convention.

Senator Sprague was one of the most popular gentlemen present, but his friends had to look at him twice to make sure it was he, for he has lost his moustache. His friends at the State House were pleased to learn that he is to be re-elected.

Representative Sheppard was there with his successor to be John McKnight, and it was a pleasure to note the cordial greetings which so many extended to the popular retiring representative. It was, "How are you Shep!" "Glad to see you Shep," and like remarks, and all seemed sorry that his service of three years was to terminate.

Robert O. Harris, who was generally favored by Quincy delegates for Attorney-General, received in the hall on the street floor. He was assisted by Dr. Willard of the Quincy Mansion school and others. The Quincy men, however, did not slight the other candidate who received in the upper hall.

Among other Quincy gentlemen present were F. F. Prescott of the State Committee, ex-mayor Fairbanks, A. F. Delano, Warren W. Adams, Amos L. Litchfield, Isaac M. Holt, Clerk of Court Churchill, and several others.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

Largest Attendance at Brockton

Brockton, Oct. 4.—Official figures from the treasurer's books show that there were 60,000 people on the grounds during the day yesterday, which establishes a record, the nearest approach to this number being last year when 50,000 were present on a single day. The gate receipts today were $24,623 exceeding the largest previous day by $4040. There were 13,359 railroad coupons taken at the gate, which is 2145 more than ever were presented in a single day before.

The President at Yale

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 4.—When President Roosevelt comes to Yale during the bicentennial festivities., Oct 22, it is planned to have a public reception that New Haveners can meet the president. Today it was stated by one of the leading Yale men that in all probability the custom of shaking hands with the president would not be obsedved in this city. It will be Mr. Roosevelt's first appearance since he became president.

Ship Named For Senator Frye

Bath, Me., Oct. 4.—The second attempt to launch the steel ship William P. Frye, at the Sewall yard yesterday was successful in every respect. Although four o'clock was the hour set for the launching, everything was in readines, at 3:30, and on account of the unusual high tide it was thought feasible to send her off the ways at that time. As th bow receded, Miss Carolina Frye Briggs granddaughter of Senator William P. Frye, christened the ship.

Work will immediatedly begin at the Sewall yard in the building of a five masted steel schooner, the first ever built.

Big Strike Threatened

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 4.—A strike is threatened of the men employed in all the mines of the New York & Scranton Coal company, controlled by the New York, Ontario & Western railroad. It will effect 6000 employees.

The trouble arises over Superintendent Breeden's shutting down the Pine Brook shaft on Tuesday, locking out 700 men because they struck that morning, against workingmen who could not show union cards.

Church Dedicated at Concord

Concord, Mass., Oct. 4.—With appropriate exercises the restored First Parish Unitarian church was dedicated yesterday. The new church takes the place of the historic meeting house destroyed by fire a year ago last April. There were addresses by Benjamin R. Bulkley of Beverly, Rev. George A. Tewksbury, pastor of the Trinitarian Congregational church of Concord; Rev. Samuel A. Eliot of Boston and Hon. George Frisbie Hoar of Worcester.

King Edward Has Rheumatism

London, Oct. 4.—Sir Francis Laking, Kingf Edward's physician, went to Balmoral yesterday. His Majesty is reported to be suffering from an attack of rheumatism, but he went for a drive during the afternoon.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Schooner Named For the President

Gloucester, Oct. 4.—Fred Davis has named his new schooner the Theodore Roosevelt. It is claimed that this is the first vessel named for the president. She will be one of the crack vessels of the fleet.

IN EVERY ENGAGEMENT

Schley Was Cool and Possessed Under Fire

THE BATTLE OF SANTIAGO

A Favorable Turn Given to the Situation by the Testimony of Lieutenant Doyle, Formerly of the Flagship Brooklyn

Washington, Oct. 4.—Lieutenant James J. Doyle, who was watch officer on board Commodore Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, during the Spanish war, was an interesting witness yesterday, for he is the first of the Brooklyn's officers to be called to the stand since the inquiry began. He was called by the department. After Lieutenant Doyle had completed his testimony Captain Willian C. Dawson of the marine corps was called and was followed by Lieutenant Charles W. Dyson of the Bureau of Steam engineering of the navy department. Captain Dawson was signal officer on board the battleship Indiana during the naval engagement off Santiogo and he gave an account from recollection of the behavior of the various ships of the American fleet during that battle. He said the Brooklyn had gone about 2,000 yards to the southward before joining in the pursuit of Cervera's ships.

Mr. Rayner then asked Lieutenant Doyle how often he had seen Commodore Schley, under fire during the Santiago campaign.

"Every time we were under fire," he replied, "during bombardments of the shore batteries and in the battle of July 3."

"What was his conduct? I refer you to the first specification of the precept. His conduct in connection with events of the Santiago campaign, and what was his conduct and bearing at any time during the battle of July 3, when his ship was under fire?" I did not have an opportunity, as the commodore was always near, about the conning tower, to observe his conduct during the battle, but immediately previous to after, I did not have an opportunity to do so. He always struck me as being just about as well possessed as it was possible for anybody to be under the circumstances."

After describing the part he took in firing the Brooklyn's guns, Lieutenant Doyle told of the chase and runing to shore of the first three Spanish ships. He then continued as follows: "From then on it was a chase after the Colon. At the time the Viscaya went ashore, the Colon, by working up inside the other Spanish ships, had secured a very long lead. I should say she was at least five or six miles, possibly more, on our starboard bow, well in shore. The order was given to cease firing and to come out of the turrets and take a "spell" during the chase of the Colon. The Oregon during that chase, and while we were on the top of the turret, was directing to try her 13-inch guns on the chase, which she did, and the shots fell short. In a little while they were tried again and came a little closer."

Admiral Dewey. "Directed by whom?"

"By Commodore Schley, ir, by wigwag signal, as I remember it."

Admiral Dewey. "You saw that signal?"

"Yes sir, I saw the signal being made."

Captain Lemly then asked a number of questions. The first of these called for an explanation of what the witness meant yesterday when he said that he thought that just after the beginning of the battle of July 3, there was a prospect of a melee.'

"I thought," responded the witness, "that the ships were coming right toward us. I thought they would get into us and I thought we would have a mix-up, as they were only about 1400 yards distant."

Judge advocate. "Do you mean that the course of the Brooklyn took her across the Spanish line and that she necessarily manoeuvered so as to make a turn to avoid her?"

"That is what I mean."

"What orders were given by signal from the Brooklyn to the fleet during the action of July 3?"

"I do not know, except what I have already testified to about the wigwag."

Captain William Dawson of the U. S. Marine corps, the signal officer on board the battle ship Indiana during the battle of Santiago said that he had noticed the Brooklyn when that vessel turned to the southward. He had supposed the ship was injured and had gone out of action. Continuing his narrative he said: "At the beginning all the ships turned in toward the Spanish fleet which was emerging from the harbor. The Spanish vessels came out in a southwesterly direction and ported helm; continuing to the westward practically parallel to the coast line. Our ships then not having as great speed as the enemy's, began to fall behind, so that the Indiana, Oregon, Iowa and Texas, starboarded helm and made all the speed they could in a parallel course with the Spanish squadron. I did not see the exact movement of the Brooklyn. The first I noticed her was 20 or 25 minutes after the action began, when I turned my eyes to the westward and saw her standing apparently due southward directly at right angles to and the course the other Americans were steering. This struck me so forcibly because the other ships were in column and steaming westward. The Brooklyn was in close proximity to several others of our ships. They appeared bunched, but the Brooklyn was steaming southward and firing with her stern guns, while some of the others I could not distinguish which, were close to her. The spectacle was so remarkable that I reported the fact to the commanding officer of our ship, saying that I feared the Brooklyn was injured and was going out. She, however, changed her course and went west on a line well outside that of the other ships. I think the Oregon was then in the lead, either the Oregon or the Texas, with the Iowa following and the Indiana in the rear. The Brooklyn steered a course parallel but a mile or a mile and a half to the southward, skirting along the column formed by the fleet. By that time the chase was well under way and the relative positions of the vessels were not changed."

Mr. Rayner's cross examination of Captain Dawson was directed toward showing that his testimony was based upon recollection and that consequently he was liable to be inaccurate. The witness admitted that he testified only from memory, but he said: "I was on deck as a signal officer and it was my duty to observe closely and make reports."

MANUFACTURERS' FIRM

Situation] at Fall River Becoming More Tense

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 4.—The manufacturers have come to the full realization of the belief that the mill operatives are in earnest in their strike threats, and in order to fortify themselves against the possibility of one or more mills weakening and granting the the advance of 5 percent in wages, they have signed an agreement which binds every mill in the city to fight to the finish. When one mill advances the wages then all will follow, a condition which the manufacturers say will not prevail until they have given the operatives a long and tedious term of idleness.

This is the first time in the history of the cotton industry in this city that the manufacurers have been united upon a line of policy without dissenting voice. The exceptions, of course, are M. D. C. Borden and George A. Chace, the latter of the Bourne mill, which is situated just over the line in Rhode Island.

The Brainard Trial

Portland, Me., Oct. 4.—Among the experts who testified yesterday for the defense in the trial of G. Brainard for the murder of two of his fellow workmen last June, was Dr. Bigelow T. Sanborn, superintendent of the state institution for the insane at Augusta. Dr. Sanborn stated that he had been present at the various examinations made upon Brainard to determine his sanity or his insanity. Brainard was also sent to the insane hospital at Augusta on May 17th and remained there until Sept. 30th, during which time Dr. Sanborn had ample opportunity to make careful observations on his case.

While at Augusta Brainard one day attacked another patient named McEntire, at the hospital. He choked him severely and serious results would have ensued but for the timely arrival upon the scene of a keeper. All of Brainard's actions, in th opinion of Dr. Sanborn, were those of a man of unsound mind. His case is entirely similar to the cases of others who have been adjudged insane. Dr. Sanborn testifies that he believes Brainard is incurable.

Grand Lodge A O U W

Boston, Oct. 4.—A special meeting of the grand lodge, Ancient Orrer of United Workmen, of Massachusetts, was held here yesterday. The session was called to consider a change in the plan required by the supreme lodge. The legislation necessary to put the classified plan into effect was adopted. Another matter that came up for settle ment wasth e division of the grand lodge funds with the new grand lodges of Maine and Rhode Island. These funds amounted to $45,000. In accordance wit hthe recommendation of the executive committee, it was voted that one half be set aside as belonging of right to the grand lodges of Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island on a pro ratio basis of membership.

A Trust In Lead

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—The Evening Telegraph today prints a story to the effect that a combination of all the lead interests of the country into one large company with a capital of about $150,000,000 is a probability of the near future.

BRONCHITIS

may mean a mere cold or a chronic incurable inflammation of wind-pipes.

The quickest relief, for a cold, is also the most effectual balm for the worst condition of wind-pipes and lungs.

It takes the edge off a cold in a night, and relieves it progressively—one forgets it after a little.

An old bronchitis, however, is obstinate. Nothing restores the tissues, when once destroyed; and an old bronchitis has gradually impared and partly destroyed the lining of those small pipes between throat and lungs.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is the balm; it sooths if it cannot restore.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

SHOT WIFE WHILE ASLEEP

Hays Goes In'o the Details of His Somnambulistic Attempt

Boston, Oct. 4.—Somnabulism, which is the defense in the trial of George C. Hays, charged with assault to murder his wife and Patrolman Burrill of station 3 on Aug. 16, was given a full and free discussion in the Suffolk superior court yesterday.

Hays was the first witness of the morning for himself. He testified that he had worried about his wife and had grown chronically nervous. That he had tried to adjust the difficulties between himself and wife, that she had instituted proceedings to be separated, and that on the day of the shooting he had drawn up an agreement for separation. He went to their home in the afternoon and his wife was not there. He looked for her again in the evening, and she was still absent. He looked for her at Forbes house, but she wasn't there. At 9 o'clock he returned home after having four drinks of ale all day. At 10 o'clock he lay on the bed and went to sleep. The next thing he remembered was when he was awakened by water falling on his hand while at the sink bathing the wound received by his wife. He rembered telling Griffith to go for a doctor and ambulance. He intended to take his wife to the hospital, and reached the top of the stairs when he saw Officer Burrill coming up. He had the revolver in his right hand pointing downward. He called out the officer to come up, but the officer turned around and went down stairs. Then a shot was discharged. Couldn't tell who discharged it. He went down stairs with his wife. Near the bend in the stairs he sent her before him. It was dark, and a number of blows from a club rained on him. He didn't talk with any officer at the station house.

On cross-examination. He was positive that he didn't remember anything from the time he went to bed until after he did the shooting.

Wounded as Was McKinly

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Augustus Miller, the farmer who was shot in the abdomen by a neighbor, being wounded apparently more seriously than former President McKinley, is much better and the physicians say he is out of danger.

The bullet entered the man's body above and about an inch to the left of his naval and punctured the intestines in 10 places and mesentery in two places. An operation was not performed for more than five hours after he was wounded, and lasted from midnight until 2 o'clock in the morning. An opening five inches in length was made on the right side of the abdomen, in order to reach the wounded parts.

The surgeons, however, went to work rapidly to sew up the wounds and in two hours the operation was ended. The patient recovered quickly, the next morning his temperature being 101.45 and his pulse 130. Twenty-four hours later his temperature had fallen to 99.35 and his pulse to to 86. Both pulse and temperature now are almost normal.

Cuban Demonstration For Reciprocity

Havana, Oct. 4.—A very large demonstration of Havana bankers, manufacturers, merchnts and other business men, waited upon Gen. Wood at the palace yesterday and presented to him a plea for the reduction of duties on Cuban products on lines of reciprocity. It is estimated that between ten and fifteen thousand persons took part in the demonstrtion. Similar demonstrations occurred in many other parts of the island. A general holiday was observed and telegrams from every municipality supporting the plea of the Havana merchants were sent to Washington.

Taunton's Oldest Pastor Dead

Taunton, Mass., Oct. 4.—Rev. Dr. S. Hopkins Emery, pastor emeritus of the Winslow Congregational church of this city died last night of heart desease. Dr. Emery was president of the Old Colony Historical society and a member of the Old Colony commission of Massachusetts and W. H. Bartlett, Post G. A. R. He was 84 years of age. He was prominent in denominational circles in New England and was formerly pastor of a church at Quincy, Ill.

An Accomplished Lawbreaker

Manchester, Vt., Oct. 4.—Harvey Wheeler, who, it is said has been arrested 55 times on criminal charges, was again arrested yesterday on the charge of illegal liquor selling. While in charge of the sheriff, who turned away for a moment, Wheeler made his escape. He has gone into the mountains and the sheriff and a large posse are attempting to make his capture, with the assistance of bloodhounds.

Fatal Fall From His Wagon

Greenville, N. H., Oct. 4.—Ezite Vailaucourt, aged 45, a well-known resident of New Ipswich, while wriving from this town to his home last evening, fell from his wagon and sustained a fractured skull, from which he died later.

HOME SCIENCE.

The Work Accomplished by Quincy Association.

The Kindergarten and Sloyd Schools.

Mrs. Slade's Paper on "Paid Workers in the Home."

The Quincy Home Science association held its autumn meeting on Tuesday, October first, in the Unitarian chapel, attracting an audience, some 50 in number, despite the temptation of a mellow autumn afternoon and out-of-door recreations.

After a few words of reference to the satisfactory condition of the association and work accomplished by the presiding officer, Miss Elizabeth Johnson, reports from the treasurer, secretary and Home Science Intelligence and Sloyd committees were presented and approved.

The treasurer Mrs. Wilson Tisdale, reported a total expenditure since the annual meeting of $568.97 leaving a balance in hand October first, all bills having been paid, of $13.67, the average expense of the three kindergartens had been about $90 each—the Sloyd class expenses coming to some $225. The Sloyd class had thus cost more than double the sum anticipated, but in view of its success and of the fact that the large expenditure this year means no expenditure for benches and tools another season this money would seem to have been wisely expended.

The report of the annual meeting held the last Wednesday in May, was most acceptably presented by Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, assistant secretary—as also that of the summer kindergarten work which was of special interest. Three kindergartens, with an attendance of between 38 and 40 children during the seven weeks' course, had been conducted in the Adams, John Hancock and Gridley Bryant school buildings respectively. The plans adopted last year of selecting a committe to be responsible for each kindergarten found to be a good one, was followed again this year.

On the John Hancock Committee were Miss Emily Wild, chairman, Mrs. C. T. Hardwick, Mrs. A. F. Schenkelberger, Miss Margaret Thomas, Mrs. F. H. Smith, Miss M. C. Kincaide, Miss Etta M. Prescott, Mrs. J. R. Graham and Mrs. William G. Shaw. Miss Jameson of Wollaston was the kindergartner assisted by Miss Annie K. Graham.

The Adams Committee included: Mrs. H. M. Willard, Miss Eliza Sheahan, Mrs. E. E. Davis, Mrs. J. M. Nowland, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Miss Elizabeth Johnson and Mrs. W. W. Dornan. Miss Clara Merrill was the teacher with Miss Florence Howe as first assistant and Miss Jennie J. Harris as second assistant.

The Gridley Bryant Committee consisted of Miss Emmeline Newcomb, Mrs. Theophilus King, Mrs. H. M. Faxon, Miss L. A. Putnam, Mrs. W. E. Burke, Mrs. C. M. Bryant, Mrs. W. E. Simmons, Mrs. R. R. Freeman. The kindergartners being Miss Bertha Waldron, with Miss A. G. Von Cram as first and Miss Lola West as second assistant.

The ladies of these committes took special interest in the kindergartens and had charge of arrangements for the mothers' meetings of which there were two at each school beside a "Last Day" when mothers and fathers were invited to a regular kindergarten session held in the afternoon. Light refreshments donated by the committees were served. Informal talks by the kindergartens teachers gave the mothers present on the occasion of the first of the mothers' meetings some practical information as to kindergarten methods. At the second meetings there were talks on the care of children by three physicians, Dr. Gordon and Dr. Ellsworth of Quincy and Dr. Johnson of Wollaston, who were kind enough to give their services. The pleasure of all the meetings was increased by songs most enthusiastically received, contributed by Mrs. Peters, Mrs. H. M. Faxon, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Miss Clara Merrill, Miss Isaac, Miss Florence Emery all of Quincy, Mrs. George B. Rice of Wollaston and a kind friend and sweet singer from Quincy Point.

In referring to the report of the kindergarten work, Miss Johnson felt

LAID FOUNDATIONS

THE PIKE MONUMENT.

Shaft Erected In Honor of Soldier and Explorer.

NOTABLE HISTORIC CHARACTER.

Pulled Down Spanish Flag and Raised Stars and Stripes For First Time In Kansas—Monument Marks the Spot Where the Incident Occurred.

The monument erected to mark the spot where Lieutenant Zebulon H. Pike hauled down the Spanish flag and raised the stars and stripes for the first time in Kansas territory has been unveiled. The monument is located at the Pawnee Indian village close to Courtland, on land donated to the state last winter by Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson.

The ceremonies were attended by members of the Kansas State Historical society, headed by Secretary of State George W. Martin, and prominent men from all parts of Kansas. State Senator John C. Carpenter was master of ceremonies. A half dozen speeches were delivered by well known public men, after which the exercises partook of the nature of an old fashioned picnic.

An interesting relic which was exhibited was a commission issued to Lieutenant Pike's father, Zebulon Pike, as major in the regular army by Thomas Jefferson. This relic is the property of Mrs. Sarah Sturtevant, who lives at Larned, Kan. She was a daughter of General Pike's sister, Maria Pike, and is now eighty years of age.

The Pike family were New Jersey people, and the famous explorer was born in the outskirts of what is now Trenton in 1779, while his father, a captain in the Revolutionary army, was fighting King George. Captain Pike entered the regular establishment of the United States army when the United States came into being and saw much active service, ranging from campaigns against the southern Indians to the establishment of frontier posts in the northwest, several of which he commanded. He was brevetted colonel, but never received his promotion, and when his son was offered a brigadier general's commission the latter at first refused it because his father, who had served his country for nearly forty years, was still a colonel and only took it at his father's urgent request. Colonel Zebulon Pike (he was a Zebulon also) survived his son many years, dying in 1834, at the age of eighty-three.

Zebulon Montgomery Pike, born in the clash of arms of the Revolutionary war, son of a gallant soldier, naturally chose the profession of arms and was made a cadet in his father's company in 1797. There was no West Point then.

In 1802 he was made a major, and Mrs. Sturtevant preserves the commission that proclaimed that fact to the world. It is an elaborate document, beautifully engraved on heavy parchment and, while yellow with its hundred years, is well preserved. It is signed, "Thomas Jefferson, President," in an angular, plain hand and witnessed by W. Dearborn, secretary of war. Besides this ancient commission Mrs. Sturtevant has many other relics of General Pike. Among them is a letter from the paymaster general in 1806 inclosing a draft for $299 for forage and subsistence for three months, several letters received from men once famous, but now forgotten, and old bills for subsistence and pay.

When General Pike started on the expedition that made him famous and coupled his name with the lofty peak that stands sentinel over the springs of Manitou, his wife and Mrs. Sturtevant's mother, then a girl of eighteen, accompanied him as far as St. Louis, riding many miles on horseback through an unbroken wilderness. St. Louis was then but a trading post, occupied by French and half breeds, and hardly as yet acknowledging the recently acquired allegiance of the United States.

When General Pike plunged into the Missouri wilderness, his wife and sister returned to civilization, destined to hear no more of their heroic brother and husband till he emerged at Nachitoches, two years later, a Spanish prisoner.

General Pike was killed in 1813 while leading his men against the intrenchments before York, now Toronto, the capital of upper Canada.

Mrs. Sturtevant was then but a year old, her mother having married Joseph Wardell. She remembers nothing of her uncle, of course, but her grandfather long survived, and she recalls him sitting before the fire, crippled from exposure and hardship on the frontier and fighting over again the battles of the Revolution and the struggle of 1812, in which he bore a conspicuous part.

Sarah Wardell married a Presbyterian clergyman, with whom she went to Kansas in 1875, settling in Olathe, where her husband died in 1886.

Extension of Rural Delivery.

The official estimates for the fiscal year Beginning July 1, 1902, which Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith will submit to congress at the opening of the session, call for an aggregate of $6,250,000 for rural free delivery service throughout the country. This is an increase of $2,750,000 over the expense of that rapidly growing service for the current year. The total for the free delivery service proper, which is that operated in cities, is $18,745,000, an increase of 9 per cent. The grand aggregate for the entire postal free delivery service, inclusive of both the free delivery and rural free delivery, is $24,995,000.

Too Realistic.

"Look here," said a Suffolk farmer to a friend, "I'm going to kill my pig, but I owe so much pork to my neighbors that I shall have none left for myself if I pay it all back. What would you do?"

"Quite easy to trick 'em," said the friend. "Kill your pig and leave it hanging outside until late at night, so's every one can see it. Then take it in and say some one stole it. Stick to the tale, and you'll be all right."

The farmer followed instructions, and the kind friend watched his chance and stole the pig. The poor farmer came around next morning to tell what had happened.

"Somebody's stolen my pig!" he cried.

"Good!" said the friend. "Stick to it, and the neighbors 'll believe you, sure enough."

"But it was stolen, I tell you!"

"Excellent!" quoth the friend. "Just you stick to the tale."

"You confounded ass!" yelled the farmer. "Don't you understand? It was really stolen!"

"Superb!" laughed the delighted friend. "You ought to have been an actor, so you ought."

That Suffolk farmer slammed the door and went away fuming.—London Answers.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

HOME STUDY COURSE

EDITED BY E. BENJAMIN ANDREWS LL.D.

The National Period of American Literature

BY LORENZO SEARS, LIT. D.,
Professor of American Literature in Brown University.

I.—Political Writers of the Critical Period.

THERE was no immediate change in literary habits when the independence of the colonies was established in 1783. A people could not adjust themselves to a new condition of liberty in a day or a year after their life of a century and three-quarters as subject provinces. Neither could they get out of the ruts of thought and expression in which they had been brought up. Moreover, in the five years succeeding the end of the war there were causes which continued to literature the complexion it had during the war. If it was controversial then, when the majority were for freedom from British rule, what could be expected when opinion was much divided about the form of government that should be adopted? Indeed, opposition and disputation had become chronic. The Declaration of Independence was passed with difficulty, the war was prolonged by dissent, and now the plan of union was to be five years in getting itself adjusted to provincial notions.

This process made a continuation of political literature inevitable. Men who eight years before dropped their pens and picked up swords now hung these over the fireplace and returned to their desks. Many who had in these years kept up a wordy war protracted it until the constitution was adopted, believing that the fruits of all the sacrifice made would be lost with the rejection of their own theories of government. Hence followed a new installment of political literature whose importance in tiding the new nation over dangerous shoals cannot be overestimated.

The men who contributed to it were principally those who had guided the war to its successful issue. There was enough opposition among them to give zest and point to the writings of all in discussing the question of changing the confederacy to a union of states. The leaders in this great debate were Samuel Adams, Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson on the side of the established government.

On the other side were ranged Alexander Hamilton, John Jay and James Madison as leaders of the party for the adoption of the constitution. With them were associated George Washington, John Adams, Fisher Ames, Thomas Paine, Albert Gallatin, John Marshall and Joseph Story. The first three of these made The Federalist famous as the leading collection of political writings in this long and violent controversy. The constitution had been called a "triple headed monster" and "as deep and wicked a conspiracy as ever was invented in the darkest ages against the liberties of a free people." Evidently some one must arise to its defense and explanation. Hamilton undertook this with the help of Madison and Jay in 85 short essays, published in The Independent Gazetteer of New York in 1787-8, of which Hamilton himself wrote 51. They did for the adoption of the constitution what Paine's essays did for the Declaration of Independence. The writers did not have the creation of literature in mind so much as of a new government. Incidentally they accomplished the first while laboring with all their might for the second, producing not only "the most profound and suggestive treatise on government that has ever been written," but also a piece of writing which reflects the spirit of liberty guided and controlled by the wisest law. In addition, it has literary values which cannot be overlooked. The clearness and directness of the opening sentences declare in unmistakable terms the purpose of the writer and the importance of the question to be discussed.

"After an unequivocal experience of the inefficacy of the subsisting federal government, you are called upon to deliberate on a new constitution for the United States of America. The subject speaks its own importance, comprehending in its consequences nothing less than the existence of the union, the safety and welfare of the parts of which it is composed, the fate of an empire in many respects the most interesting in the world. It has been frequently remarked that it seems to have been reserved to the people of this country by their conduct and example to decide the important question whether societies of men are really capable or not of establishing good government from reflection and choice or whether they are forever destined to depend for their political constitutions on accident and force. The crisis at which we are arrived may with propriety be regarded as the era in which that decision is to be made." The man who could write this and what follows in the cabin of a river sloop had his subject well in hand, to say the least. He also had knowledge of the times sufficient to recognize that the period was a critical one in the life of the nation, and that imperialism threatened its existence on one side and anarchy on the other. His own aim was to call men away from the separatism and individualism which had been bred in and in from colonial beginnings in colonial seclusion and exclusiveness now cropping out in the rights which each new state desired to keep, surrendering little or nothing to the union of all, which alone had brought them through recent perils. He frankly admits that he is on the side of this union, a view of affairs not so familiar then as it is now and regarded by many with doubt and suspicion. They considered 13 states along the coast as too many to be held together, or, if possible, that centralization of government would end in imperialism. Accordingly Hamilton proposes to meet their objections and to show the utility of union, the insufficiency of the present confederation, the necessity of a stronger government, the conformity of the constitution to republican principles, the additional security it will afford to liberty and to property and the inevitable dismemberment that would follow a rejection of the proposed constitution.

It is impracticable of course to follow the discussion of these vital topics here even in outline. It must be read to appreciate the wisdom of its views and the dignity and moderation with which they are presented. Much may be argued for the good sense of a people to whom such a series of articles could be addressed with the expectation that they would be carefully read and thoughtfully pondered. That they were so received is evident from their continuation through 85 numbers and their repeated issue in edition after edition when they were completed. That they were successful in their purpose is established by the fact that the particular community to which they were addressed was induced to do that which the majority had informally declared it would not do, and the people of New York, accepting this interpretation of the constitution as true, determined to favor its establishment between itself and the other states of the union. The Federalist had a similar efficacy wherever it was read. The men who wrote it were Americans rather than provincials. They were statesmen and foremost thinkers in a time which called for profound and earnest reflection on questions of immense consequence. Other papers were written by their peers in other journals, but this collection is pre-eminent among them all.

Accordingly it has seemed imperative to call particular attention to a production which is sometimes spoken of as a series of newspaper articles or as a partisan view of a question that has long since been settled. That these articles were not ephemeral is shown by their repeated reproduction to the present day in 20 editions. That they are something more than a Whig document is evidenced by the fact that they are the best interpreters of the intents and purposes which the builders of the nation had when they framed the constitution of the United States. This instrument itself cannot be well understood without the contemporary commentary of The Federalist.

Reference has already been made to the writings of the group of statesmen who were both the product of this critical period and the agents in bringing it about. They were as a rule voluminous writers. When the few books which were at their command are considered, as compared with present accumulations, their creative resources are remarkable. They pondered diligently and wrote continuously. As a consequence their works fill volumes. These have not been perused or often consulted by the average reader in the latter part of the century as they were in the former, but with the revival of interest in American history and literature and the growing habit of investigating original documents and writings the worth of them will be rediscovered. Especially to those who incline to a study of the highest political science and the nature of republican forms of government will these writings of the founders of our own be a literature in which they may take both delight and pride. It was this which first won attention to us in other countries—in England because the loss of colonies was impending, on the continent of Europe because of a widespread sympathy with the cause which was so clearly stated and ably defended. The new nation had not yet attained to the graces of literature, but the strength and vigor which ought to precede these were abundant. The foundations of empire and of letters were laid simultaneously by Franklin and Adams and Otis, by Jefferson and Henry and Hamilton, by John Adams and Quincy Adams, by Paine and Marshall and the rest of the constellation of publicists which ruled in the ascendant at the birth of the nation.

"DEAR SCHLEY" LETTER

Sampson Will Be Called Upon to Testify

"SANTIAGO" WAS WRONG

In the Opinion of Counsel For Schley. Lemly's Refusal to Make a Correction Leads to the Decision to Summon Sampson Before the Court

Washington, Oct. 5.—In the Schley naval court of inquiry yesterday Mr. Rayner, chief of counsel for Admiral Schley, asked Judge Advocate Lemly to summon Admiral Sampson as a witness in the case.

The request grew out of a difference in the construction of a sentence in Admiral Sampson's letter to Schley, written from Key West, May 20, while Schley, with the flying squadron, lay off Cienfuegos. This is known as the "dear Schley letter," and as it is printed in the navy department documents supplied to the senate, Sampson said, after expressed his opinion that notwithstanding the report that the Spanish squadron was in Santiago, it were better to continue to blockade Cienfuegos and Havana, "we shall continue to hold Havana and Santiago until we receive more positive information."

During the examination of Commander Rogers this despatch was under consideration when M. Rayner expressed the opinion that the word Santiago had been inadvertently used by the commander-in-chief, assuming that he meant to use the word Cienfuegos, as better corresponding with the contents. As the document was printed there was a parenthetical note to which Schley's initials were attached, saying that evidently the wrong city had been mentioned. Mr. Rayner asked Mr. Lemly to make this concession, but the latter declined to do so, saying that he would produce the original of Sampson's dispatch to prove that he had said Santiago. Then Mr. Rayner said: "I cannot take the word Santiago to mean anything but Cienfuegos. It is an imputation upon Commodore Schley and I cannot permit it to rest without summoning the author of that dispatch," to which Mr. Lemly responded: "I have told you once before you can summon anyone you please."

"Then," retorted Mr. Rayner, "Summon Admiral Sampson."

This occurred only a short time before the adjournment of the court for the day, and was the subject of more or less conversation of an animated character after the day's work was concluded. Mr. Rayner would only say that he would insist upon the admiral's being summoned unless the correction was conceded.

The witnesses for the day were Lieutenant Dyson, of the bureau of steam engineering, concerning the coal supply of the flying squadron; Commander Rodgers, who was second in command of the battleship Iowa during the Spanish war and carried Sampson's dispatches of May 20 to Schley, and Commander Hodgson, who was the navigator of the flagship Brooklyn.

While Commander Rodgers was on the stand Mr. Rayner submitted a computation of shells from the American fleet which had struck the wrecked vessels of Cervera's squadron, showing that at least 34 percent of them were fired by the Brooklyn. This computation, Mr. Rayner said, had been prepared by Admiral Schley upon the basis of a report made by a board of survey, of which the witness was the senior member.

Commander Hodgson gave a description of the battle off Santiago, describing the part taken in it by the Brooklyn and explaining the charge in the entry of that vessel's log.

Anarchist Sheet Seized

Rome, Oct. 5.—The Agitazione, an anarchist sheet, has been seized by the police for publishing an article signed by Malaatesta, defending Czolgosz.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Philip J. Kane, charged with wilfully neglecting his duty as a caucus officer at Boston, was found guilty and sentenced to serve three months in jail.

Death removed a prominent figure in American academic life in Rev. Cecil F. P. Bancroft, for 28 years the head of Phillips Andover academy. He was a graduate of Dartmouth college, 1860, and of Andover Theological seminary, 1867. He was 61 years old.

The scientific world suffered a distinct loss in the death at Nashau, N. H., of Roswell T. Smith, whose skillful invention in mechanical engineering had given him an extensive reputation. His age was 76 and an attack of heart trouble caused his death.

The National Tobacco convention at Richmond perfected the details of the new organization which will be known as the "Tobacco Association of the United States."

McKinley Memorial Church.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., has the honor of having the first church named after the late president. The trustees of the new German-English Evangelical Lutheran church decided to call the church the William McKinley Memorial chapel. It is now being built, the cornerstone having been laid six days before the president was shot.

Professor Dewar's Appointment.

Professor Dewar of the University of Cambridge has been appointed president of the meeting of the British association at Belfast next year, and among those elected vice presidents are the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, the Marquis of Londonderry, K. G., the Earl of Rosse and Professor Ray Lankester.

HUMAN MONKEYS STUDIED.

Professor Haeckel Tells of the Interesting Species.

Professor Haeckel's latest publication contains some curious information regarding the human monkey of Java, says a London correspondent. A most interesting specimen of the young gibbon was watched by Professor Haeckel at his own house in Java.

The species is found only in Java and is called Hylobates leuciscus. The natives call it, on account of the characteristic sound it utters, "oa." When standing, it is scarcely taller than a child of six years. The head is comparatively small, and it has a small, slender waist. The legs are short and the arms much longer. The face is more human than that of the orang outang.

Professor Haeckel says:

"Its physiognomy reminded me of the manager of an insolvent bank pondering with wrinkled brow over the results of a crash. Distrust of the oa toward all white Europeans is noticeable. On the other hand, he was on terms of intimate friendship with the Malays in our household, especially with the small children. He never crawled on all fours when tired of running, but stretched on the grass beneath the tropical sun with one arm under his head.

"When I held tasty food just out of his reach, he cried like a naughty child, 'Huite, huite!' a sound altogether different from 'Oa, oa!' with which he expressed various emotions. He had a third and more shrill sound when he was suddenly frightened.

"The speech of these human monkeys has not many different sounds, but they are modulated and altered in tone and strength with a number of repetitions.

"They also use many gestures, motions with their hands and grimaces, which are so expressive in manner that a careful observer can detect their different wishes and various emotions.

"My specimen liked sweet wine. He grasped a cup in both hands and drank like a child. He peeled bananas and oranges just as we are accustomed to do, holding the fruit in his left hand. Most of the Malays do not regard the gibbon and orang outang as brutes. They believe the former are bewitched men and the latter criminals who have been changed to monkeys as punishment. Others think they are men in the course of development."

M'KINLEY'S FACE ON NOTES

Treasury Officials Propose to Put His Portrait on Ten Dollar Bills.

A committee of treasury officials is considering the question of placing the portrait of the late President McKinley on future issues of national bank bills of the denomination of $10, says the Washington Post. The matter is only tentative at present and is in anticipation of the extension of charters of national banks next year. The present law provides that charters expire in 1902. They were renewed in 1882, and Comptroller Dawes has held that the law does not, in his opinion, authorize a second extension of charters. That law, passed away back in wartimes, declares, however, that on the extension of charters new bills must be printed. So whether the charters are to be extended or new charters issued in their stead new national bank bills must be printed unless congress takes some action to the contrary this winter.

It is in anticipation of this situation that the advisability of printing the portraits of prominent men on national bank bills is being considered. The committee has already agreed upon the advisability of McKinley's portrait for the $10 bills, of Harrison's portrait for the $5 bills and of McCulloch's portrait for the $20 bills. Still other portraits for other denominations will be selected and a recommendation made to the secretary of the treasury. There is now sufficient authority to print portraits on new issues of national bank notes. It is the opinion of experts that portraits on bills make it more difficult to counterfeit them, the subject having been investigated quite extensively by treasury officials. But while portraits have been printed on silver certificates and legal tender notes hitherto no portraits have appeared on national bank notes with the exception of Garfield's. It is noteworthy that his portrait appeared on national bank notes in 1882, not long after his assassination.

Roosevelt's Idea of Honesty.

Mr. Roosevelt's ideas of honesty are well illustrated in the following story, says the Chicago Tribune: It was during the time he conducted a cattle ranch in Wyoming. Riding about his ranch one day, he noticed a maverick from a neighbor's ranch. A maverick is a beast which has not been branded. One of his cowboys began to tumble the maverick over preparatory to branding it when the following colloquy occurred:

Roosevelt—What are you doing?

Rustler—Oh, I am just rustling!

Roosevelt—Are you going to put my brand on that maverick?

Rustler—Yes.

Roosevelt—You go up to the ranchhouse and get your time tonight. I don't want to have anything to do with you. If you will steal for me, you will steal from me.

Edgren Goes to Stockholm.

Professor A. H. Edgren, dean of the Graduate school of the University of Nebraska, has been appointed a member of the Nobel institute of the Swedish academy in Stockholm, which is to recommend for the academy's awarding of the annual Nobel prize (about $40,000) in literature. Professor Edgren, whose field will be American and English literature, will remove to Stockholm.

WAS BUT ONE CONTEST

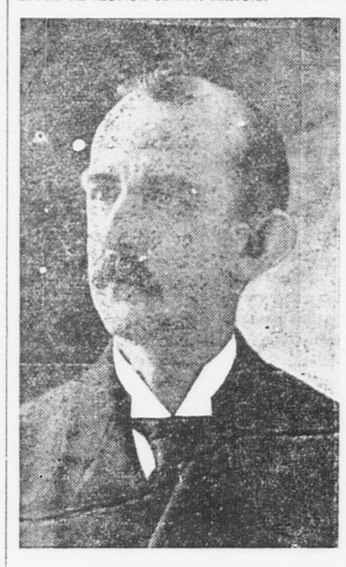

In State Convention of Massachusetts Republicans

HERBERT PARKER CHOSEN

To Go Upon Ticket as Successor to Attorney General Knowlton—Principles Include Protection of President and Vice President

Boston, Oct. 5.—With the ballot which gave Herbert L. Parker of Lancaster the nomination for attorney general over Robert O. Harris of Bridgewater, the only contest in the Republican state convention yesterday was decided.

The other nominations from that of W. M. Crane for governor for a third term, at the head of the ticket, down through the list were unanimous. The vote for Mr. Parker was made unanimous on motion of Mr. Harris.

GOVERNOR CRANE.

The full ticket nominated follows: Governor, W. M. Crane of Dalton; lieutenant governor, J. L. Bates of Boston; treasurer, E. S. Bradford of Springfield; secretary of state, W. M. Olin of Boston; auditor, H. E. Turner of Malden; attorney general, H. L. Parker of Lancaster.

The keynote of the convention was the life and administration of the late President McKinley, deep feeling being shown in the address of the permanent chairman, in the resolutions adopted and the eloquent words of the senior senator of the state, George F. Hoar, who addressed the delegates.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR BATES

At the close of Senator Hoar's speech the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner." This brought the vast audience to its feet and a great cheer from the delegates and spectators followed the closing notes.

Mr. Parker, the successful candidate for atorney general, was introduced to the convention. He made a short address, and the convention adjourned.

Following is the platform adopted by the convention:

First, let us pause to mingle our tears with those of all parties who share in the great national bereavement that has befallen the American people, and who join with us in sending to Mrs. McKinley the deepest sympathy in this, the hour of her great sorrow. At the newmade grave for our dead president, we declare our abiding faith in the great principles of Republicanism of which our immortal leader was the true and worthy example. To our living president, Theodore Roosevelt, the staunch defender of American Republicanism, we pledge our loyal and unfaltering support.

The Republican party has grown with the nation, and in its administration of the government it has met every crisis with ability, firmness and patriotism. Today it pledges itself anew to the maintenance of its exalted ideals and its patriotic principles. Prosperity that does not reach all people is not true prosperity. We denounce all laws that confer special privileges upon the few. We favor such laws as open the widest opportunities to all.

One of the cardinal principles of the Republican party has been the protection of American labor by a protective tariff. When a protective tariff fails to maintain a high rate of wages, then there is no longer any use for it, and this will be when wages have fallen below those in foreign countries. That they are maintained far above the level of the first European nations is sufficient reason why the protective policy should not be abandoned.

Reciprocity of trade with foreign countries is not inconsistent with an adequate measure of protection to American industries. We declare in favor of wise discrimination and businesslike executive and legislative reciprocity, and urge action to that end.

The Republican party of Massachusetts has always been foremost in the advocacy of sound money standard and advocacy of sound money. It reaffirms its declaration in favor of the stability of the money standard and the improvement of our monetary laws.

We favor the immediate construction of the isthmian canal, that shall be built, owned, operated and protected by the United States government.

We favor government aid in building up our merchant marine on a just and equitable basis toward all American citizens.

We favor an amendment to the constitution of the United States that shall give congress the power to regulate the hours of labor.

We condemn all attempts that are being made in some of our states to disfranchise the negro voter as un-American and in the violation of the 15th amendment of the constitution, and urge that the provision of this amendment be enforced by congressional action.

Lynching and unlawful taking of life must be stopped. How can we hope to exterminate anarchy if such lawlessness be permitted or tolerated within our borders.

The Republican party solemnly pledges itself to secure such legislation as shall guarantee to every citizen of the United States the fullest protection for his franchise, for his liberty and his life.

We favor such laws as shall visit an adequate and severe penalty upon any person or persons who shall murder, assault or threaten the life of the president or vice-president.

The public highways belong to the people and must not be diverted to private or corporate use unless the people receive full value for the franchise.

We commend careful consideration of a proper system of initiative and referendum in questions of local interest.

The whole state is interested in the improvement of Boston harbor. We urge upon congress the necessity of a sufficient appropriation to complete the work upon the most comprehensive plans and without any delay.

Governor Crane's administration has been conspicuous for the application of great business experience to the affairs of the state. He has devoted himself with unremitting care and statesmanlike judgment to the public interests, and we heartily indorse all of his acts.

We will give him and the whole Republican ticket our earnest and unanimous support in the coming election.

War Policy Severely Censured

London, Oct. 5.—Winston Churchill, speaking last night at Oldham, declared that the military situation in South Africa was now "not less momentous than when the Boer armies threw themselves into Natal at the beginning of the war, and that the empire today "confronts difficulties and dangers more embarrasing than those which hung over it in the black week of December, 1899." Mr. Churchill, speaking of the ministers said: "Instead of ceaselessly planning for the future, they are drifting helplessly as in a dream."

Confronted by Six Wives

New York, Oct. 5.—Leon Freidlander, otherwise Isaac Rudbone, who was arrested in Boston at the request of the New York authorities on a charge of bigamy, pleaded guilty yesterday, before County Judge Moore of Queens. He did this after being confronted by six women, each of whom swears that she was married to him. Freidlander appears first to have married a young Jewess in Russia 11 years ago. She now lives in Brooklyn. They have five children. His other wives hail from this city and vicinity.

Clothing Pressmen's Strike Ends

Boston, Oct. 5.—The strike of clothing pressmen resulting in the lockout of 450 operatives was declared off yesterday and they returned to work. The strikers gain an advance of 15 per cent in wages and the nine hour day. Piece pressers shall be given the opportunity to earn at least $8 per week and dry pressers at least $10 per week.

Duke Going For Game

Banff, N. W. T., Oct. 5.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall arrived here from Vancouver yesterday and the duke left last night for Poplar point, Manitoba, where he goes for two days' hunting on the place of Senator Kirchoffer. The duchess and the rest of the party are to remain here until Sunday afternoon.

Woman Fatally Burned

Bangor, Me., Oct. 5.—Miss Carrie Boothby, aged 35, was fatally burned in a fire at the Rockaway house last evening. A lamp exploded in her room and she was burned almost beyond recognition.

To Strike on Monday

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 5.—The textile unions, save the spinners, last night voted to go out on strike on Monday for the increase in wages already demanded.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Oct. 6.

Sun rises—5:46; sets—5:18.

Moon rises—12:14 a. m.

High water—6 a.m.; 6:15 p. m.

The weather east of the Rocky mountains continues clear and cool, with very little rain. The temperature changes have been unimportant. The area of high pressure which now extends from eastern Iowa to western Pennsylvania will drift slowly eastward, giving fair and continued cool weather in New England. Along the Atlantic coast, light to fresh northerly winds will continue.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

No Nomination Made Up to One o'clock.

The Norfolk County Republican convention was held this morning at 11 o'clock in Wesleyan hall, Boston, to place in nomination two candidates for County Commissioner and other officers.

Thomas Blanchard of Stoughton, whose term expires this year, was renominated.

For the nominee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Edwin D. Wadsworth of Milton there was a sharp contest between William E. Badger of Quincy, Frank B. Rich of Hyde Park, and Watts H. Bowker, and ex-Commissioner, of Brookline.

Up to 1 o'clock several ballots had been taken, but no one had received the number of votes necessary to nominate. At that hour Frank B. Rich of Hyde Park was the leading candidate.

First Church.

In response to invitations sent out by Mrs. E. C. Butler, Mrs. J. H. Emery, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Miss Edith Randall and Miss Elizabeth Johnson about fifty people gathered in the chapel of First church Friday evening representing the Fragment society, the Woman's Alliance, Sunday school, and the parish officers.

It was not exactly an experience meeting, but Miss Johnson, an earnest worker for the good of the church, conceived the idea that it would be beneficial for the different societies of the church to come together and tell of their work and plans for the coming year.

Mr. J. H. Emery spoke for the Fragment society and said a fair was talked of for next year which was also the fiftieth anniversary of the society. As the poor were well cared for, for the present, the ladies would meet to sew for this fair.

Mrs. Wilson Marsh spoke for the Alliance and urged all the ladies of the church to join and she explained the work done by the Alliance throughout the country.

As Miss Randall was absent Mr. Charles H. Johnson spoke for the Sunday school, the need of more teachers, and of missionary work among children who do not go to church or get the benefit of religious training.

Mr. Luther Anderson spoke for the parish committee and presented the financial condition of the church. He said the new idea of pledges was of great benefit financially, and hoped more would pledge themselves the coming year.

Mr. Butler spoke for himself, his work, the great number of calls he made and of his appreciation of the cordial support and good will accorded him by all.

Every one was invited to ask questions and make suggestions and it was in many ways a most encouraging meeting and sure to result in much good, as well, as general good feeling. It was suggested that a meeting of this kind be held each year which is a compliment to Miss Johnson, the orginator of the idea.

Miss Johnson and assistant served tea and frappe in the parlor after the meeting which was enjoyed, the cheerful fire in the fireplace and bright autumn bouquets adding their charm to the informality of the gathering.

HOME SCIENCE.

that an especial cause for congratulation was the increase on the part of the parents of the kindergarten children of cordial feeling toward those working in and for the kindergarten and on the part of the worker an increasing realization of benefit and pleasure received in doing the work. A tangible expression of the kindly feeling among parents in the shape of recent money contribution amounting to some $12 had been especially gratifying on account of the low condition of the Home Science treasury as was also a contribution of $8.12 from the Busy Bee society of Quincy Point, a group of little girls who had become interested in the kindergarten work and contributed through their president, Mrs. Thomas A. Addison, the proceeds of a fair held last spring.

The report of the Home Science Intelligence committee was made by Mrs. Babcock and among other Home Science news she spoke of the Lake Placid conference where are gathered each summer a group of women especially interested in Home Science work. Many of them being recognized authorities and widely known in its study or practise, like Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, Miss Marion Talbot of Chicago University, Mrs. Helen Campbell recently of the University of Wisconsin, and others. Problems bearing directly or indirectly upon home and family life are read and discussed before an audience of women from all parts of the country, who carry away new ideas and renewed enthusiasm with which to modify their own community and home life elsewhere. Mention was also made of among other things of Home Science news of a government regulation recently passed in Norway by which young girls before being allowed to marry are obliged to prove their capacities as prospective house-wives —to show proficiency in cooking, sewing and other ordinary branches of household work.

Mrs. Emery L. Crane reported for the Sloyd class committee consisting, in addition to herself, of the following ladies: Mrs. C. T. Hardwick, chairman; Mrs. F. H. Smith, Mrs. A. F. Schenkelberger, Mrs. John Downes of Wollaston, Miss M. C. Kincaide and Mrs. W. W. Adams. Her report was practical and most entertaining both in matter and in its manner of presentation, giving details as to arrangements, expense and methods of work, and at the close showing specimens of the work of the class, plant sticks, penholders, sleeve board, corner shelf, foot stool and other articles. All useful and most creditable in point of workmanship. Thirty boys from seven different school districts received three Sloyd lessons each week for six weeks working with an enthusiasm and perseverance which was the best possible argument for the existence of the class and for an extension of Sloyd instructions to other Quincy boys. Twenty-three boys started at the first lesson and continued through the course. Seven dropped out after a lesson or two and their places were immediaely filled from the long waiting list. Mr. Nowland reported the boys as seldom late, most of them being ready for work fifteen minutes before the lesson hour, and glad to work beyond the time for closing, which was surely a well merited tribute to his methods of instruction, and to his cordial personal relation with his class.

Mrs. Crane emphasized the value of sloyd as an occupation naturallly most congenial to boys, and unsurpassed as a moral, mental and physical discipline whatever the circumstances of the boy outside of the class. She hoped sloyd would continually be introduced into Quincy public schools, and, indeed her whole report was such an eloquent and convincing argument to that end as had they had the privilege of hearing it, might well have stirred the most economical among the City Fathers to the necessity of the immediate appointment of a Committee of Ways and Means.

Following the sloyd report, Mrs. J. H. Slade of Quincy Point was introduced, and read to an appreciative and attentive audience her Home Science prize paper.—"Paid Workers in the Home"—their relations to their employes, their rights and privileges, the rights and privileges of their employers. Their social standing as it is and as it should be in comparison with workers in other occupation.

"The paper was a most forcible presentation of present conditions—the dependence of so many homes for heatlh and happiness upon intelligent and willing paid workers—the desirability of household service as an occupation for women, not only as suited to their taste and physical capacities, but from a money point of view—the difficulty experienced at the present time by a majority of wage earning women in securing any positions, even the most poorly paid, as a means of earning a livelihood—the misfortune of their increasing competition with men thus lowering the standard of wages, and of the quality of work for both—yet the wide-spread prejudice against entering the always available occupation of domestic service. The solution of the problem evidently lies in a general and determined effort to remove the undoubted social stigma attached to domestic service, and reform its conditions on a common sense basis. Domestic service should be regarded like any other profession—that of type writer, dressmaker, shop worker, etc. The household workers should be respected and self-respecting. We should deal with them in a thoroughly business-like way, giving them a certain amount of stated time to themselves, adequate wages and accommodations, then require certain standards of work, even at a risk sometimes of temporary discomfort in our households. This well written and well presented paper is to be heard later at a Wollaston meeting, when a more detailed report may be possible. Before adjourning the meeting the president alluded to prospective branch meetings in Wollastan and Quincy Point—to the prize essay—contest for the coming teas—to the general desire that the membership list of the association shall be increased—and to the decision of the executive committee to have the annual Home Science ball or assembly early in December, instead of later in the Winter, when there are so many other social diversions as heretofore.

The question of changing the name of Quincy Home Science association to that of the "Quincy Educational association," favored by some as more dignified, easy to understand, and more comprehensive, was discussed with some animation, but as an important question deserving further consideration on the part of the members of the association as a whole, no deciding vote was taken.

Check Was Bogus.

A young man who had the appearance of being in the navy attempted to pass a bogus check in several of the stores in City square, Wednesday. The check was for $35, and perported to have been drawn by Benjamin Johnson. The fellow who was unsuccessful at several of the stores, finally entered the Public Market and wanted the check cashed. He said he would take part of it in goods and wanted the balance in money. The proprietor said he desired to look up the check and see if it was all right. This the fellow appeared perfectly willing to have him do. He left the check and said he would call the next morning for the goods and money. Mr. Johnson was communicated with and learned that the check was a forgery. The police were then notified and they kept watch on the store so that if the fellow came back as he agreed they would nab him. But he never came back.

Official Report.

An official telegram from Washington came to the home of Judge Bumpus, last night, confirming the news, which earlier seemed only to true, of the death of his son, Lieut. Edward Bumpus, in the fight at Balangiga, Samar, P. I. The message read:

"I am sorry to say that I can now inform you of the official confirmation of your son's death. H. C. Corbin,
"Adjutant-General."

Big Squashes.

An Italian on Water street is proud of two squashes which he raised this season. They are called Sicilia squash. One of them is 4 1-2 feet long, and the other is twoor three inches shorter. The smallest one weighs 13 1-4 pounds. They are on exhibition at Kelley's fish market on Water street. He says they are not fully grown and thinks that they would have reached five feet if left alone.

Again the National administration is afflicted by death and it comes home to New Englanders. This time it is in the family of Governor Long, the popular Secretary of the Navy. Miss Long was a volunteer nurse during the Spanish war, serving without pay. She was popular in Washington society, but contracted consumption in 1898. The sympathy of Quincy people goes out to Secretary Long.

The old court room in the Faxon building, where the Republican City committee has its headquarters, is a much better room than that used last year in Music Hall annex. The present headquarters are not only more centrally located, but are better lighted and ventilated. Then there is a good room in the rear that can be used for private conferences, as it is quite often necessary for the committee to retire for consultation.

—Elisha Vinton Clark, who resided in Quincy from 1840 to 1844, recently died at Farmington, Ill. in his eighty-second year. During his stay in Quincy he married Mehitable W. Thayer, and was engaged in the butchering business. He soon after moved West.

The Norfolk Superior Civil court will open at Dedham on Monday with William M. Bird, John P. Galvin and Patrick McNally as the jurors from Quincy.

The old hose house on Winthrop avenue, has been removed to the corner of Taylor street and Central avenue, where it is being remodeled into a small dwelling house.

An account for $21,944.22 was allowed in the Norfolk county probate court on Wednesday in the estate of Lyman F., Edward C., and Carrie L. Hewitson, all minors of Quincy.

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth A. Mundy was held this morning from St. John's church. Solemn High mass was celebrated by Rev. F. A. Friguglietti. The burial was at West Quincy.

The convention for the nomination of a district attorney for the Norfolk-Plymouth district will be held in Union hall, Boylston street, Boston, Tuesday next at 11 A. M. It looks now as if Asa P. French of Randolph would receive the nomination, and he is in every way qualified for the position and seems to have a majority of the delegates.

The Red Men of Wollaston held a very successful whist party last night as a testimonial for H. A. Corbett, the popular pianist of the tribe, who is very ill. John Hancock lodge of Odd Fellows for which he was also pianst very kindly donated the use of the hall, and was well represented. Prizes were distributed as follows: Ladies, A. Mackay, 47, silver fish knife; Mrs. A. F. Jones, 42, pair of towels; Mrs. E. F. Mitchell, 41, dozen table glasses. Gents: C. Cotey, 55, lemonade pitcher; W. H. Bennet, 44, cut glass dish; B. F. Thomas, 40, vase. William A. Jordan was chairman of the Committee and J. F. McLeod had charge of the party.

The Democratic Representative convention will be held tonight, and rumor says that ex-mayor Keith and George H. Wilson will be the candidates.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

MATTER AND FORCE.

ENERGY CANNOT BE CREATED NOR CAN IT BE DESTROYED.

If Puny Man Could Accomplish Either of These Impossible Things, He Could Cause "the Wreck of Matter and the Crash of Worlds."

If you could imagine an earthworm trying to run the Niagara Electric Lighting and Power Transmission works, you would have some faint idea of the capacity of the greatest human genius that ever lived to run the visible universe. That is probably why the wisest of us is not permitted to understand the final secrets of nature.

Here is a good example. Take a rifle into a place sufficiently far from the habitations of men; put the butt on the ground and support it so that the barrel points straight up and pull the trigger. The bullet will leave the muzzle with a velocity of, say, 3,000 feet a second. It will rise to an enormous height, come to a standstill for an infinitesimal fraction of a second and begin to fall back again. It will strike the earth with very nearly but not quite the same velocity as it left the muzzle of the gun. It would be exactly the same but for the resistance of the air.

What has happened is this: The explosion of the powder has changed a solid into a gas, and the expansive energy of this has driven the bullet upward. In other words, it has for the time overcome that mysterious force by which the earth draws everything toward its own center.

But when the energy of the exploded powder is exactly balanced by the pull of gravitation the bullet falls back. In the first second after its turn it falls 16 feet, in the next 32, in the next 64, in the next 128, and so on till it returns with ever increasing velocity whence it started.

Nothing has been lost, nothing gained. The gases set free by the explosion of the powder weigh exactly as much as the solid. Some of the energy has been used as heat, some in propelling the bullet. Gravitation, overcome for awhile, has reasserted itself. The sum of matter and force in the universe is absolutely unchanged.

This is as true of the quickened beat of a girl's heart when she meets her lover as it is of the march of the planets and suns through the fields of space. Every atom of matter, every unit of force, throughout the universe is constant, external and exactly balanced, and the whole strength and genius of humanity could not increase or diminish them by the slightest fraction.

Now, let us imagine what would happen if man could make that bullet strike the earth with greater or less force than it left the muzzle of the gun. He would either have increased or decreased the total of universal energy, and in either case he would have thrown first the solar system and then the whole universe out of gear.

The earth and all the other planets would begin to revolve in different orbits. The sun, with its family of worlds, would alter its path round the unknown center about which it revolves. Then world would be hurled against world and sun against sun, and stars and planets would be reduced to the flaming gasses from which they cooled into solids and liquids before time began to be.

Just the same catastrophe would happen if man could either create or entirely destroy a grain of sand on the seashore. The balance of the universe, in which swing stars and planets, whose weight is inexpressible in human figures (this tiny world of ours weighs 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons), is infinitely more delicate than that which the chemist has to keep in an airtight case and at an even temperature lest a breath of air should throw it out of gear.

Thus the destruction or creation of a grain of sand would change the orbit of the earth round the sun. In the one case it would be drawn closer and closer to the sun, perhaps after thousands of revolutions to be swallowed up in fiery ruin. In the other case it would gradually leave the sun and year by year wander farther away into regions of space where human life would be impossible.

The result of the dislocation of such a stupendous system, which has worked with unfailing exactitude for countless ages, is, of course, utterly beyond the scope of human imagination, and yet such a seeming trifle as the creation or destruction of a single grain of sand might, and probably would, plunge it into utter chaos and ruin.—Pearson's.

His Ability.

"And how is my old school friend Bimson getting on?" said the man who had returned to his native city after a long absence.

"Oh, he's doing first rate."

"But he was such a bright boy we always expected he would display especial ability."

"Well, I don't know that he hasn't displayed especial ability."

"I never hear him mentioned in connection with any of your elections."

"No; that's just the point. He has shown ability to go ahead quietly and build up a business. He doesn't have to run for office."—Washington Star.

The Bambino di Ara Coeli of Rome is the oldest doll in the world, and if tradition is true, almost as old as the Christian religion, for it is claimed to have been carved out of a tree from the Mount of Olives in the time of the apostles, and to have been painted by St. Luke.

It is said that Saturday has been a fatal day to the royal family of England for the last 185 years. William III, Queen Anne, George I, George II, George III, George IV, the duchess of Kent, the prince consort, the duke of Clarence, the duke of Albany and Princess Alice, all died on that day.

The custom of wearing orange blossoms in the hair originated in Spain. In fact, many of the Spanish peasant girls very seldom wear hats or bonnets of any kind, preferring to adorn their heads with a covering of flowers instead.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Everything Points to a Continuation of Prosperous Conditions

New York, Oct. 5.—R. G. Dun's Weekly Review of Trade says: Trade channels are remarkably free from obstructions, although the movement of goods at some points is checked by insufficient transporting facilities. This is a tribute to the unusually heavy shipments.

Manufacturing is of such vigor that few wheels are idle, and further wage agreements have reduced the number of strikers to a minimum. Foreign trade is also heavy.

Nothing new has developed in regard to the iron and steel situation, and with mills crowded in their efforts to overtake consumptive demand there is little prospect of any material change in the market for some time.

Steadiness is still the feature in textile markets. There was a tendency to hold back the placing of new business, particularly in the cotton goods division. This was attributed to expectation of changes in the price of raw material. During September the volume of dry goods sales was well in excess of the same month last year. Recent advanced quotations are held and exporters for China are unable to secure even the small reductions asked.

New orders for woolens are slow, but buyers complain of late delivery on old contracts. This might result in cancellation if the demand was not uniformly brisk and dealers unable to secure goods elsewhere. Wool comes forward freely and supplies are ample.

Staple products have declined moderately as a rule, with the exception of cotton and pork products. The variation was widest in corn.

Exports have increased, but are still small.

Desperate Man at Large

Manchester, Vt., Oct. 5.—H. Wheeler, who escaped from Sheriff Covey, who had arrested him for illegal liquor selling, has not been found. It is supposed that he is hiding in the mountains east of here. Wheeler, who had previously been arrested 55 times on criminal charges, bears the reputation of being a desperate man.

A novel prosecution took place in Adelaide lately, when a bootmaker was fined a guinea and costs for encouraging a constable in idleness. The bootmaker was found in his shop playing drafts with the constable, who ought to have been on active duty at the time.

YANKEE HUSTLING.

How a New England Boy Made Himself Indispensable.

"I'll tell you of a case of Yankee pluck," said George H. Cummings, a power house contractor of Providence, R. I., to a New York Tribune reporter. "Multer, a Boston friend of mine, is only twenty-four years old. After he was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology a Dorchester (Mass.) tack manufacturing company sent him to Montreal to show the Canadians how we make tacks in this country. Multer took along a machine, hired an office and opened up his little world's fair. He knew that his firm had patented the machine in the principal European countries and in America. About a year later curiosity led him into a lawyer's office to find out how the Canadian patent laws might affect his particular machine. That was on a Saturday. The lawyer told him that he had just two days before the year expired in which to make in Canada a new tack machine, to advertise its sale and to manufacture tacks with it. Otherwise, said the lawyer, the company's patent would be rescinded.

"Multer telegraphed a number of times to his home office, but received no reply because of its being Saturday afternoon. Failing to hear from Dorchester, he hired upon his own responsibility the entire force of a small foundry. Thirty men worked all that Saturday night and all of Sunday casting a new machine, with the old one as a model. I saw the product of their labor, and I must say it was crude. However, they finished the machine on time, and they made about six tacks with it.

"The machine was offered for sale through newspaper advertisement. For the sake of form Multer asked two firms if they wanted it. Of course they did not. Thus the requirements of the law were met, and the Canadian patent was saved to the company. There was a great hubbub in Dorchester when they received a bill from the foundry people for $3,000. When Multer explained the circumstances, the firm was so pleased at what he had done it raised his salary 50 per cent. It keeps that machine at its factory for a curio. The story shows that the young business men of this country can climb out of a pretty deep hole and climb very quickly too."

PAYING PRESIDENTS.

Roosevelt's First Salary Check—Last Payment For McKinley.

The treasury department has sent a messenger to the White House with President Roosevelt's first check, says the Washington Star. It was for $2,017.74 and is the pay for seventeen days of the month of September. The estate of President McKinley will be paid a check for $1,856.88. There was a good deal of discussion in the treasury about these checks and exactly how to divide them. President McKinley died early on the morning of Sept. 14, and President Roosevelt took the oath that day. Under the law Mr. Roosevelt must be paid the salary of president from and including the day he took the oath. The question was not on this, however.

For a number of years each president has been paid monthly one-twelfth of $50,000 a year, the only case in the government service in which the regular salary table was not followed. By this system President McKinley received $4,166.66 for two months in every quarter and $4,166.67 for the third month of the quarter, making the total for the quarter $12,500. As September was the third month of the quarter the salary for that month was $4,166.67. Divided by thirty days the proportion going to President Roosevelt would have been $2,361 and to the estate of the dead president $1,805.44. The auditor's office insisted on a division on the basis that President Roosevelt should receive 17.92 of the entire salary for the third quarter of the year, there being ninety-two days in that quarter.

This division gave the sums that were agreed upon. Hereafter the regular book of the treasury will be used in the salary payments of the president. This system will give different amounts each month, according to the number of days in the month. For the fourth quarter the pay will be: October, 31 days, $4,212; November, 30 days, $4,076; December, 31 days, $4,212. For the first quarter of next year the president will receive checks as follows: January, 31 days, $4,305.60; February, 28 days, $3,888.80; March, 31 days, $4,305.60.

American Anthracite In Germany.

The success of the effort to establish a market in Germany for anthracite coal will depend upon the ability of those who have undertaken the experiment to change the habits of the German people in the matter of heating their houses, says the Philadelphia Record. Anthracite coal requires a specially constructed stove to insure its combustion, and while American stoves are said to have recently had a large sale it may not be easy to induce Germans in sufficient number to give up the porcelain "kachelofen," which is warmed by burning a few sticks of wood or bits of charcoal in the morning and is supposed to radiate heat for the balance of the day. German dwellings would not be deemed comfortable by Americans, but it is useless to dispute about matters of taste.

Gift From the Philippines.

F. Abreu, a wealthy Filipino planter, called at the White House, says a Washington dispatch, and presented to the president a gold headed Palassan wood cane. The head bore a design emblematic of justice and power done in the highest skill of the Filipino engraver's art.

SECOND TIME

Columbia Successfully Defends Cup

Won on Time Allowance by Forty-One Seconds

Lipton Does Not Conceal Disappointment, but Takes Defeat Gamely

New York, Oct. 5.—With victory flags flowing from her masthead and the ends of her spreaders in honor of her concluding triumph in the cup races of 1901, the gallant sloop Columbia returned to her anchorage last night under escort of the entire excursioon fleet.

She completed her defense of the honored trophy in another stirring race with the Shamrock II over a leeward and windward course of 30 miles, crossing the finish line two seconds behind her antagonist, but winning on the time allowance conceded by Lipton's boat by 41 seconds.

For the second time she has now successfully foiled the attempt of the Irish knight to wrest from our possession the cup that means the yachting supremacy of the world. And Sir Thomas Lipton, standing on the bridge of the Erin, led his guests in three hearty huzzahs for the successful defender. "She is the better boat," he said, "and she deserves to be cheered."

The series of races just closed will always be memorable as the closest ever sailed for the cup, and Sir Thomas, although defeated, will go home with the satisfaction of knowing that his golden yacht is the ablest foreign boat that ever crossed the western ocean. During both series of the races not an untoward incident has occurred and Lipton will return to England by far the most popular of all foreigners who have challenged for the American trophy.

Yesterday's race, on paper, was the closest of the series, but because of the flukiness of the wind on the beat home as a contest of the relative merits of the yachts it is not to be compared with the battles of Saturday and Thursday.

The conditions of the race at the start yesterday were very similar to those of Thursday. The wind was strong and from the shore, embroidering the sea with foam, but piling up no swell—ideal conditions for the challenger.

The racers were sent away before the wind, each carrying a penalty for crossing the line after the handicap gun. No official record is kept of the time after that gun is fired, but the experts with stop watches estimated Columbia's handicap at 15 seconds and Shamrock's at 30 seconds. The contest of the yachts fleeting before the wind was picturesque but not exciting. The big racers had every inch of canvas spread, all their light sails, including bulging spinnakers and balloon jibtopsails. Their crews were gathered aft to keep the heads of the boats up and thereafter until the outer mark was reached it was merely a question of holding on to all the canvas and letting the wind do the rest.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Columbia beat the Shamrock before the wind last Saturday, the challenger yesterday gained slowly but steadily all the way out, and rounded 49 seconds before the defender, having actually gained 64 seconds. Immediately after the yachts turned their noses into the wind for the beat home, the breeze moderated and turned fluky. The skippers split tacks, each searching for wind, with the result that the first one would get a lift and then the other.

At one time Columbia seemed a mile ahead when a sudden cant of the wind allowed the Shamrock to point nearer the mark and a mile from home the challenger appeared to be leading by fully half a mile. The talent began to feel nervous but as the yachts approached the finish the Yankee skipper shoved his boat into the light air and 100 yards from home the two racers were almost on even terms. It was a pretty sight, and one seldom witnessed, when they crossed rail to rail, the white yacht's bowsprit just lapping the golden boat's mast.

The usual pandemonium that attends the final Yankee victory in a cup contest followed. Whistles, sirens, bells, bands and cheers united in a grand chorus of jubilation and J. P. Morgan's steam yacht Corsair added to the terrific din by firing a national salute of 21 guns.

After the Columbia had hauled down her sails and set her victory flag, the excursion boats crowded alongside to cheer the Yankee sailors and the winning skipper. Nor did they forget either Lipton or his gallant craft. In turn the crowded steamers ran alongside the Shamrock and the Erin and the vanquished received almost as much honor as the victor. And thus with felicitations all around the 12th series of races for the old cup which the schooner America brought over 50 years ago ended with the best of feeling.

While taking his defeat gamely, Mr. Lipton made no attempt to conceal the disappointment when he talked about the race. "I am very dissapointed," he said. "I thought within 15 minutes of the finish that we had won. When I looked around the situation had changed and we had lost. It was a hard blow to be so near winning and then to lose. I should like to have got one race, just by way of consolation. It is very hard thing to be beaten by a breath.

"Columbia's win today was fair and square and honorable. There is nothing to protest if I wanted to protest. In fact I have a feeling in my heart that if there had been any error in judgment at all it would have been in my favor. If there had been any possibility of choice in the matter, I believe the New York Yacht club would have given me the race. Somtimes a man may have the better boat, but even having it must have a wee bit of luck to win. I am very much grieved indeed, very grieved, and," he added, "I should have liked to have won one race."

Hardly had the Erin's anchors touched bottom after the race when a launch from the yacht Corsair came alongside bearing the regatta committee of the New York Yacht club. Sir Thomas met them at the head of the gangway, and he shook hands with them individually. He said:

"Gentlemen, it was a fair beat. I want to say again that you have treated me with the utmost fairness and courtesy. You have met every wish of mine, and, from my heart, I thank you."

Commodore Ledyard, chairman of the New York Yacht club regatta committee, replied: "Sir Thomas, we have never had a truer sportsman to deal with."

Many of Sir Thomas's guests on board the Erin crowded around to express their sympathy at his defeat, and assured him of the high place he had won in the hearts of all Americans.

"When a man wins a heart he has won more than a cup," said one of them.

There were tears in the Irish baronet's eyes when he thanked them for their kind words. Said he: "The words you have spoken touch me far more than my defeat today. I tried to win the cup and I have done my best. But, better than all that, I have the good wishes of this country."

When asked about his plans for the future, Sir Thomas said: "It is too early to talk about my plans. About the Shamrock I cannot decide yet what I shall do, and as to challenging again, it is too soon to think about it."

Londoners Feel Sorry

London, Oct. 5.—There is a feeling of supreme disappointment in London over the failure of the Shamrock to win even a single race. Those who denounced Sir Thomas Lipton's ambition, asserting that he was using his yacht to advance his business interests, now realize that his sportsmanlike efforts deserve a better result. There never was much betting on the outcome in this country, but the disappointment of the masses is undoubtedly great and sincere.

Carlists on the Move

Barcelona, Oct. 5.—Reports of an impending carlist rising are confirmed. The Duke of Solferino, the Carlist leader here, has gone to the frontier. On the other hand several Carlist chiefs have received from General Moor instructions forbidding any insurrectionary movement except under superior orders.

Lowered Brother's Record

Vailsburg, N. J., Oct. 5.—In an official trial for the 10-mile amateur paced record, Joe Nelson yesterday lowered every record from 6 to 10 miles inclusive, covering the 10 miles in 16.23 3-5. The former record for the distance, 20.04 4-5, was made by Johnnie Nelson in 1898, while an amateur.

British Losses Were Heavy

London, Oct. 5.—The casualty list shows that the total British losses in the attack on Colonel Kekewich's camp at Moedwill were 4 officers killed and 23 wounded and 51 men killed and 115 wounded, numbers much greater than those heretofore reported.

A time-honored prerogative of which no one exactly knows the origin is enjoyed by the natives of the Spanish village of Espinosa, who for centuries have possessed the curious monopoly of watching over the slumbers of the ruler of Spain.

Horse Sense.

"Any fool can take a horse to water, but it takes a wise man to make him drink," says the proverb. The horse eats when hungry and drinks when thirsty. A man eats and drinks by the clock, without regard to the needs of nature. Because of careless eating and drinking "stomach trouble" is one of commonest of diseases. Sour and bitter risings, belchings, unnatural fullness after eating, dizziness, headache, and many other symptoms mark the beginning and progress of disease of the stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases of other organs which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach, and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood, cures obstinate cough and heals weak lungs.

"I was taken with Grippe, which resulted in heart and stomach trouble," writes Mr. T. R. Caudill, Montland, Alleghaney Co., N. C. "I was unable to do anything a good part of the time. I wrote to Dr. Pierce about my condition, having full confidence in his medicine. He advised me to take his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which I did. Before I had finished the second bottle I began to feel better. I have used nearly six bottles. I feel thankful to God for the benefit I have received from Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I can highly recommend it to all persons as a good and safe medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep the bowels healthy.

STEEL TRUST EARNINGS

Official Statement of First Six Months' Operations.

COMPANY MADE $300,000 A DAY.

The Net Earnings For Half a Year Reached the Sum of $54,954,871. Dividends Declared on Common and Preferred Stock.

Net earnings of the United States Steel corporation for the first six months of the company's career, as announced officially, are $54,954,871, says the New York Herald. These figures were given out after a meeting of the company's directors, at which the usual quarterly dividends were declared on both the common and preferred stocks.

Unusual interest was shown by Wall street regarding the probable action of the directors on the matter of their issuing a statement of operations. All doubts were scattered, however, after the close of the Stock Exchange by the formal statement of the company's sound position. The figures show an enormous business, which was not injured, apparently, by the steel strike.

President Schwab tells the story of the company's operations since April last, when the billion dollar trust was launched, in the following figures:

	Net earnings from operation.
April	$7,356,744
May	9,612,349
June	9,334,747
July	9,580,151
August	9,810,880
September (estimated)	9,200,000
Total	$54,954,871

The actual financial requirements of the steel trust, which include dividends at the rate of 7 per cent on the preferred and 4 per cent on the common stock, together with the interest on the bonds, are $71,021,307 for a full year. So far this year, it can be seen, the company has earned within $16,000,000 of this required amount.

During July and August, the months when the steel strike was waged the fiercest, the earnings of the steel trust did not show any decrease. The closing down of the entire system of plants of the American Tin Plate company, half of the mills of the American Sheet Steel company and a large percentage of the properties of the Steel Hoop company, according to the statement, was not reflected in the earning capacity of the big steel company.

This is explained by the statement that the executive management of the company was able to distribute the business which otherwise would have been left unhandled among the various mills which were unaffected by the strike.

Out of this $54,954,871 the company has paid or will pay in dividends on the common and preferred stock a total of $27,968,424. This amount includes the regular 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock, declared July 2 last, and the 1 per cent on the common stock, declared at the same time, together with similar dividends for the second quarter of the year.

In the statement it is announced that $7,059,705 has been set aside as a sinking fund. After this amount was deducted the company charged off the interest of the bonds, amounting to $7,600,000, the interest for half a year on the $305,000,000 5 per cent bonds issued when the company was formed. There was then left a total of $40,295,166 for dividends and other purposes.

In the reports made by each of the subordinate properties of the trust, the interest on the bonds commonly known as the underlying bonds of these companies was deducted before the final report of the earnings was made to the holding company.

The net earnings as stated in the official announcement represent, therefore, all the funds applicable to dividends and interest on the bonded indebtedness. When these amounts are deducted, there remains a balance applicable for a surplus or new construction, as the directors may decide, amounting to $12,326,742.

Lord Rosebery's Library.

Lord Rosebery is reported as saying that if at the end of the furrow which he meant to plow he found himself alone, "I shall remain very contentedly in the society of my books and my home." The ex-premier, as most people know, not only possesses a very fine library, but has added to it a few volumes with his own name on the title page. It is one of the characteristics of British statesmen that their interests are not entirely bound up with politics and that a position of greater freedom and less responsibility does not leave them without an object in life. Even the men of large means and leisure among them generally have distractions which are more dignified than mere hobbies. There are no two such famous examples of this power now as were supplied by Gladstone and Disraeli, but—longo intervallo—parallels are still to be found.

France Friendly to Turkey.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times quotes the Journal des Debats, which informs Turkey that in spite of the present difficulty France is that country's warmest friend. In simple prudence, therefore, says the paper, Turkey should seek the sympathy of France rather than allow the perpetuation of the causes of mutual misunderstanding. On the other hand, the Journal des Debats admits that France has so many material and moral interests in the east that it would be well to abstain from arousing distrust.

CORONATION COACHES.

Some Notable Carriages Will Be Seen When Edward Is Crowned.

Lord Londesborough's state chariot, which has just been finished for the coronation of King Edward, says a London correspondent, is very beautiful. It appears the late Lord Londesborough sold it some years ago. Only recently the present peer went to Messrs. Halland, coach builders, and asked them to try to find what had become of it. This they were able to do, and they have just redecorated it in most gorgeous style.

The body of the coach is dark blue picked out with white, the inside being lined with royal blue tabarette. The hammercloth is of royal blue with tassels and fringes of white silk cord. In the center of the hammercloth is the Londesborough coat of arms in silver, surmounted by an earl's coronet. The lamps are particularly handsome. They are made of old Sheffield plate, the chasing being especially fine. Silver coronets are placed at the top of the panels in the carriage. In fact, the whole chariot is exceedingly handsome.

Another very effective one is that belonging to Lord Powis, which is unlike the ordinary carriage in that the body is painted canary yellow, while the wheels and shutters are painted red and black, with a narrow white stripe in between. That sounds rather strange, but the effect is exceedingly good.

The Duke of Buccleuch is having a coach got ready. So is the Duke of Norfolk. This carriage has not been out for twenty years. Lord Zetland's beautiful coach is also being got ready. The king has sent two or three of the state landaus to have the crowns altered on them.

PORTO RICAN CEREMONY.

How Governor Hunt Was Inducted Into Office.

It was a profoundly impressive scene in the council chamber of the executive mansion when Mr. William H. Hunt was sworn in as the second American civil governor of Porto Rico, says the San Juan News. The ceremony was simple in the extreme, and all present were touched with the solemnity of the occasion. There were less than 100 persons present, including the chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court of Porto Rico, the members of the executive council and the house of delegates, the heads of the executive departments, the bishop of Porto Rico, the Rev. Dr. Drees; the alcade and other city officials of San Juan, the foreign consuls resident in San Juan, and a few invited guests.

During the ceremony an insular policeman stood back of the governor holding a standard bearing the new coat of arms of Porto Rico. Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh acted as master of ceremonies. At 11:10 o'clock he made the following brief address:

"The late lamented president of the United States on the 27th day of August commissioned Mr. William H. Hunt to be governor of Porto Rico and accepted the resignation of Mr. Charles H. Allen as governor of Porto Rico, to take effect on the 15th day of September. In pursuance of law thereof we have met in this solemn hour to attend to the inauguration of William H. Hunt as governor of Porto Rico."

The Right Rev. J. H. Blenk, bishop of Porto Rico, then delivered an eloquent invocation. Chief Justice Quinones administered the oath of office to the governor.

THE DISASTER IN SAMAR.

General Otis Describes the Scene Where Soldiers Were Slaughtered.

General Elwell S. Otis, in command of the department of the lakes, said to a Chicago newspaper correspondent that the slaughter of members of Company C of the Ninth infantry in Samar did not mean that there is anything like widespread revolt in that province.

The Ninth regiment, the general said, is the famous body that figured at Tientsin, when its commander, Colonel Liscum, was killed. "It is," he said, "one of the best fighting regiments in the United States army." Concerning the disaster at Samar, General Otis said:

"Samar is in the department of Visaya, over which Brigadier General Hughes has command. The department includes all the central islands of the Philippine archipelago. During the last month our soldiers have been active in an attempt to subdue the rebellion, which is confined to the boundaries of that island. The insurgent leader Lucban heads the natives, and he and his Tagal followers have been instrumental in keeping alive the spirit of opposition to this government's authority there.

"The location of the ambuscade is in southern Samar, of which the inhabitants are ignorant and barbarous. Probably Lucban got a party of bolomen together and surprised the American soldiers while at breakfast. I think Lucban knows something about the attack, at any rate. There has been trouble in that section for two years, and the character of the country and the barbarity of the natives combine to make its suppression difficult."

A Formidable Insect.

A female giant wasp has just been captured at Chapelgill, in Peeblesshire, England, and is a rather formidable looking insect. It measures from tip to tip of wing two inches and from end of ovipositor to end of antennæ two and a half inches. The wings are glossy brown and the body black, with two sets of orange bands around it.

Little Girl Found Pretty Rocks.

A Mexican child offering to sell an assayer pretty rocks, says a San Francisco dispatch, led to the location of one of the biggest copper and silver mines in the southwest.

SONG.

If all the dreams we dream, dear,
Should happen to be true;
If half what we dream, dear,
Should come to me and you;
Or just suppose a single one
Were granted us some day,
If that one were a fond one,
We'd dream our lives away.

If all the dreams we dream, dear,
Should vanish in a day;
If not the simplest one, dear,
Should ever come our way,
We'd dream on just the same, dear,
Though the fairies might not stay,
And dreams would be as sweet, dear,
For what they are today.

AN AWFUL TEST OF GRATITUDE

By John H. Rafferty.

The friendship between Senator Harbine and old Newt Stuart was for twenty years one of the many anomalies and one of the few edifying conditions that distinguished the social life of the capital. Newton Stuart was a newspaper correspondent—nobody knew how old, but the dean of the press gallery, beloved and undisputed. Senator Harbine held a similar position in that exclusive, clublike organization known as the United States senate. Old Newt hailed from Louisiana, and his senatorial friend was from Ohio, so that as far as an exchange of official favors might go there was no apparent reason for their unfaltering affection for each other. Newt couldn't "boost" Harbine if he wanted to and had never stooped to accept patronage of any kind from the Louisiana legislators who had come and gone during his long career as Washington correspondent.

So far as any outsider knew, there were only three grounds for the mutual admiration between Newt and the old senator—viz, fishing, terrapin and mint julep. Outside of Washington such paltry matters will probably never be regarded as adequate motives for a great and lasting friendship, but in Washington the three delights named are sometimes of vaster moment than the making of treaties or the establishment of national policies. Newt was the champion terrapin chef of Washington for a generation. Harbine's mint juleps were the wonder and envy of all comers. Bartenders made their reputations by advertising "the Harbine julep," and restaurants, cafes and hotels won patronage by announcing "terrapin a la Newt Stuart."

But when it came to fishing neither the senator nor the reporter would yield the palm. For a dozen years they had gone fishing together. As many times had they come home in raging debate as to which had caught the greatest weight of fish, which had cast fly or bait the farthest or which was most dexterous in playing a line. Fishing was the one rock upon which they split incessantly, and once the subject came up between them they would rail and boast at one another till blows seemed the only argument left. One day Newt and the senator, sitting in a circle of most potent, grave and worthy lawmakers at the Shoreham, challenged one another to a final test of their prowess as bait casters. The idea tickled the audience, though it was midwinter. Cases of wine and boxes of cigars were freely wagered, and finally each contestant went for rod and tackle, and the whole party trudged through the snow across to Lafayette square for the duel.

The distances were measured off. A dangling pine cone was selected as the object to cast at, and each contestant, using his own rod and reel, was to have five chances, the decision to go to the caster who missed the least. It was a walkover for the senator, for he whipped his fly across the cone five times successively, while poor old Newt missed his second shot and cast wide on the last. He paid the wager and swore that it was the reel that beat him.

"I bet fifty I can beat you right now with that there gosh durned Meek reel o' yourn!" sputtered Newt.

But the senator said it was time for a julep, wagged his head in triumph and led the party back to the hotel.

"I can beat you at bait casting with any kind of a reel," Newt used to boast after that, "but that there Meek sizzler you've got ain't a reel at all; it's a livin', breathin', conscious piece o' witchcraft!"

It was about two months after this that Newt intrenched himself forever in old Senator Harbine's loving heart. The latter's son was the scourge of his life. He had been expelled from West Point, discharged from half a dozen government positions and arrested a dozen times. Finally a letter from Mrs. Harbine came from Cincinnati announcing that Dick had broke loose there on a wild debauch that threatened to end disastrously for the young man himself and for the fair name of his father's family.

Senator Harbine handed the letter to old Newt.

"Newt, you like my boy, I know," he growled. "He thinks more o' you than he does o' his own father. If you'll run down to Cincinnati and stop him, I'll give or get you anything in reason. I'm rich, and I'm strong with the administration. Honest, now, Newt, I know you never cared for money, and you have no family, but if you'll stop this Cincinnati jag o' Dick's I'll give you a house and lot or—or—anything you want."

Newt started for Cincinnati that night. Nobody ever knew just what he said or did to Dick Harbine, but in a week they came back, Newt silent and satisfied and the senator's son pale, repentant and following old Newt around like a whipped dog. Old Harbine actually grew younger and gayer as the days grew into weeks and the weeks into months and his boy showed no signs of a relapse.

"By Jehosaphat, Newt!" he swore at his friend one night. "I'm blowed if I don't believe you've cured the whelp. You got to take something just to give me a chance to show how I appreciate what you've done. Why, mother was breaking her heart over Dick. I never showed how his doings hurt me, but they were just killing me. You're poor, Newt, and you're getting old—don't deny it—you'll have to quit this blessed newspaper business pretty soon, and I'll bet you haven't saved a hundred dollars. Come, Newt, be fair with me. Let me loan you at least a few thousand? Eh? Or say, better yet, take that house and lot up in N street. I don't want it, and it'll net you two thousand per. What d'you say?"

But Newt would only abuse old Harbine for his pains and turn the talk into a string of "joshing." The senator however, was so serious in his determination to do something for Newt that the dispute between them grew acute and almost bitter. Newt was getting old. Nobody knew whether he had saved anything, but everybody knew that the time for his retirement was at hand. As months went by and old Harbine's solicitude about rewarding him waxed more earnest and persistent poor Newt's powers of resistance began to wane. The senator saw it and was glad. The two old friends became inseparable. Terrapin suppers and bouts with innumerable mint juleps became continuous. Spring was merging into summer when the old correspondent yielded finally to the tempter.

"Senator," began Newt one night as they sat on the hotel balcony, "I've made up my mind to take that reward you insist on giving me."

"God bless you, old man," chuckled Harbine, tinkling the ice in his big glass.

"I'm not going half way about it either," resumed Stuart, looking up with an evident effort to muster his courage "I'm going to hit you hard. I'm"—

"Fire away, you old fraud!" laughed the senator. "You know well I'd give you the shirt off my back."

"I'm going to retire at the end o' the year," continued Newt, "and I'm not going to work any more. I"—

"Bully boy! Go ahead!" laughed Harbine.

"In fact, I expect to pass the rest of my life in ease—fishing, in fact."

"That's the stuff! How much'll it cost a year to keep an old bermit like you in terrapin, mint and bourbon. Let 'er go, Newt!"

"Never mind what it'll cost." Here Newt swallowed the lump in his throat coughed a few times and let go the thunderbolt:

"I want that Meek reel o' yourn!"

"Newt," bawled the senator, getting pale—"Newt, you don't mean it?"

"But I do mean it. Are you going to make it good?"

"Oh, Newt," groaned old Harbine "don't get so grasping! Take the house in N street. It's worth nearly ten thousand."

"Nope," drawled the inexorable Stuart. "No real estate for me. I'd rather have that reel than half o' Capitol hill. Do I get it?"

The senator strode up and down the balcony a dozen times in moody silence. Once he paused before Newt as if to utter further protestations. He finished his julep, made another, tinkled a faint knell with the ice in his glass and fairly groaned:

"It's yours."—Chicago Record-Herald

Sounds That Cannot Be Heard.

A stone thrown into the water produces ripples. In the same way if you strike something, as a drum, there are ripples in the air, and the disturbed atmosphere reaches the ear as a sound The slower the ripples or vibrations the deeper the sound.

The deepest audible sound in a musical instrument is that of the great thirty-two foot pipe of the organ of St Paul's, which gives sixteen vibrations a second. That is probably the deepest sound that the human ear can catch You listen to it, rolling through the sacred edifice like distant thunder, and a little thought will enable you to realize that there may be sounds inaudible to you, but which you can feel. The deep tone pervades your entire being until you have some doubt whether you really hear or feel it.

The thunder of the cataract of Niagara produces a note with exactly half the number of the big organ pipe—that is, eight vibrations. You cannot hear the note, but it can be recorded by delicate instruments and you can feel each of the eight waves beat against your ear drum. The great volcanic eruption of Krakatoa produced a musical note of four vibrations a second. It was registered by meteorological instruments in different parts of the world.

The Rat and the Swan.

During a dreadful storm, when the river Tyne had flooded the country all around, a number of people were assembled watching the huge masses of hay swept along in its rapid course At length a swan came in sight, struggling sometimes for land and at others sailing in its stately manner along with the torrent. As it drew near a black spot was observed on its snowy plumage, which the spectators were astonished to find was a living rat, and it is probable it had been borne from its dwelling in some hay rick and, seeing the swan, had hastened to it for a refuge. On the bird arriving on land the rat leaped off its back and scampered away, but a man having no respect for the sagacity which the rat had displayed, killed it with a blow of his staff.

WHITE HOUSE CHEF OUT

William Sinclair Had Served Under Four Presidents.

TO BE SUCCEEDED BY PINCKNEY.

Retiring Steward Tells of Executive Tastes—Cleveland Fond of Fish, Oysters and Game—Harrison Particular About Salads—McKinley Careful About State Dinners.

William T. Sinclair, the colored steward at the White House, will not retain his position under President Roosevelt, says the Washington correspondent of the New York World. He has been informed that he must leave after Oct. 15. It is expected that Henry Pinckney, the president's body servant, will be the new steward.

Sinclair came to Washington in 1885 as President Cleveland's valet. He was a good all around servant, and before the end of Mr. Cleveland's first term he was promoted to the stewardship of the White House, the emoluments of which would make the average ward politician envious. At the end of his first term Mr. Cleveland took his factotum to New York, and when he returned to the White House in 1893 Sinclair was again installed as head of the commissary department.

President McKinley made few changes among the White House servants, and Sinclair was retained. Sinclair is a wiry little mulatto, slow of speech and very polite. It is his boast that he has prepared refreshments for more great men than any other chef in the country.

"I have now catered for four presidents," he said, "and I don't think there is another man living who can show that record. Presidents have their tastes, to be sure, but they are not much different from other men when it comes to eating and drinking.

"President Cleveland, now, was fond of fish, oysters and game, and I have hunted the market here and have sometimes had to go to Baltimore before I could get what he wanted. We could have the finest of meat for him, but it was nothing at all unless he had the particular sort of fish he liked. Mrs. Cleveland would eat anything you put before her, but she was very particular when she was to have a luncheon.

"I was in the White House about a month with President Harrison. He was more particular about salads than anything else that went on the White House table. Mrs. Harrison was a fine housekeeper, and her dishes were equal to those of a first class chef.

"President Harrison often made his salads himself. On a night when a lot of men would come they would try different recipes for their choice dishes, and many a time the table in the state dining room has looked like a stand in Center market, covered, as it would be, with the things they would call for.

"President McKinley took more interest in the details of a state dinner than any other president I have served under. He would say to me, 'Sinclair, you must have a fine dinner, for some of my best friends are coming tonight.' The night we dined Admiral Dewey the president was just as excited as he could be. He talked about what we would have and would decide first one way and then the other way. It was a long time before he made up his mind about favors. He and Mr. Porter must have talked about it for two hours before they gave me the order. Then they selected a little book, which was to hold the Roman punch. That was the largest dinner I ever served at the White House.

"The ladies of the White House have never interfered with me." And possibly, say the wiseacres at the White House, this is why Sinclair lost his job. Mrs. Roosevelt inspected the mansion last Friday.

FLORICULTURE STATISTICS.

Census Bureau's Bulletin on Flowers and Plants.

The census bureau has announced its statistics of commercial floriculture in sixteen states, showing an aggregate value of $11,000,000 of flowers and foliage plants raised in 1899, with 3,895 establishments and $35,000,000 as the value of the lands and buildings. Large Bequest to Radcliffe College.

Announcement was made on Saturday that Radcliffe college is to come into a bequest under the will of the late Susan Cabot Richardson of Milton which will amount to about $200,000. Under the terms of the will, however, Miss Josephine M. Hicks of Milton and Miss Louisa McK. Loptiff are entitled to the entire income during their lives, so long as they remain unmarried.

SITUATION IS URGENT

Appeal For Funds to Secure the Release of Missionary Stone

Boston, Oct. 5.—An appeal signed by Rev. Messrs. Withrow, Lorimer and Galbraith, and C. A. Stone, for the family and relatives of Miss Stone, is as follows:

The relatives and friends of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missionary, now held captive by brigands in the Balcan mountains, under sentence of death on Oct. 8 if the ransom demanded, £20,000 Turkish, ($110,000), is not paid prior to that date, appeal to Christian America, to aid their efforts to raise this large sum in time to assure her safe deliverance.

The prudential committee of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions have fully decided that as a corporate body they deem it a dangerous precedent, hazardous to the life and safety of other missionaries in the field, for it to raise the money and pay the ransom demanded, although individually in full sympathy with any movement that promises to effect her release.

In view of these circumstances Messrs Kidder, Peabody & Co., bankers of Boston, have consented to act as trustees of all funds which may be contributed for the purpose of ransom. In case the government shall succeed in its efforts or in any other event which shall render a ransom unnecessary, the trustees will at once refund the money to the donors direct. In case the ransom is required, it is stipulated and agreed that it shall be paid through the authorized agent of the American Board at Constantinople, and any reimbursement which may later be received through or from our government at Washington will be returned by the trustees to the donors.

It is absolutely necessary that all contributions shall reach Kidder, Peabody & Co. at their banking house, 115 Devonshire street, Boston, before noon of Monday, Oct. 7.

In view of the extreme urgency of the situation, a special appeal is made to the business community for prompt and liberal response, we believing that all advances will prove simply a temporary investment, certain not only to yield the largest satisfaction in the saving of a precious life, but also, in all probability, to be returned intact.

Miss Stone is an American Christian patriot. She is in imminent danger of assassination. Even moments are precious. Will American Christian patriots come to her rescue?

Death of Helen Long

Hingham, Mass., Oct. 5.—A beautiful life went out in the death last night of Helen Long. The end came sooner than expected, although when Secretary Long was summoned home from Washington earlier in the week it was feared that Miss Long's condition was critical. All the members of the family were at the bedside. Miss Long died of pulmonary ble which had its inception after close attention to the social requirements at the national capital. Helen Long was the daughter of Mr. Long's first wife. Her sister, Miss Margaret, is a student at Johns Hopkins university. A half brother is Pierce Long. She was born in Hingham in 1875. She was of a very lovable disposition and both in Hingham and in the broader circle of friends made during life in Washington and the west, she will be deeply mourned.

Given Extreme Penalty

Alfred, Me., Oct. 5.—After hearing the presentation of the cases against Charles McCloud by the state yesterday, Judge Savage in the supreme court announced that it was the decision of the court that the prisoner was guilty of murder in the first degree in causing the death of Sarah McDonald at Kittery on the night of Sept. 3 last. He was sentenced to life imprisonment. The case occupied the attention of the court less than three hours.

Lad's Awful Fall to Death

Boston, Oct. 5.—So sure was he that the elevator was standing in the place where he had left it but a moment before that Charles Drown, 18, stepped into an elevator well on an upper floor of a building yesterday and fell to the bottom, receiving injuries from which he died. Drown had his arms full of clothing which obscured his view of the well. The boy was the only support of a widowed mother.

Jury Didn't Believe Bascom

Alfred, Me., Oct. 5.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Ida Stacy, indicted for an attempt to defraud an insurance company by hiring William Bascom to set fire to her buildings in Sanford, yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty. Bascom had confessed to having set fire to the buildings and swore that Mrs. Stacy had induced him to start the blaze.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 6—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—This grace also.—II Cor. viii, 7-9. (Giving.)

The grace that Paul here alludes to is the grace of giving or of Christian liberality. In the part of his letter to the Corinthians he is urging them to be ready to meet the obligations which they had taken upon themselves toward the poor saints of Jerusalem. Titus is to come for their offering and Paul is anxious that they shall have it ready, and presents to them a number of reasons why it should be. These reasons are applicable to us today. The grace of Christian liberality needs to be practiced today. The calls for money are many and varied. The church must be supported. God's poor saints must he helped and sustained. The spiritually poor in heathen lands must have the gospel sent to them. That these causes and others may be sustained great liberality must be practiced by the people of God.

1. Paul urged the Corinthians to practice the grace of giving because they had received so much. "As ye abound in everything, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence and in your love toward us, see that ye abound in this grace also." God had freely given to them the most desirable Christian graces. They were rich. Why should they not, out of gratitude and love to God for what he had given to them freely, also give of theirs to the children of God who had not? Having freely received, they should freely give. This principle applies to us. Spiritually and temporally God has blessed us. Let us, therefore, in gratitude and love cultivate the grace of liberality.

Dark days have their mission in the world. "All things work together for good," and we are taught many useful lessons in the days of darkness that we would never learn otherwise. 1. Dark days teach us our dependence upon God. In prosperity how independent we feel; how easily we yield to the temptation to trust in ourselves or in our possessions! But sickness comes or adversity sweeps away our earthly belongings. How helpless we become and how quickly we flee to God and find in him a refuge, a strength and a help in time of trouble. 2. Dark days teach us the preciousness of prayer. Who prizes and appreciates prayer like the man who is in trouble? We "cry unto the Lord in our trouble" and appreciate then as at no other time the priceless privilege and power of prayer. 3. Dark days teach us to appreciate the goodness of God and to praise Him for His goodness. Continued prosperity would lead us to lose sight of the providence of God in our lives. Were the days all sunshine, and no darkness, the hand of God would not be seen. But, "lest we forget," God sends the dark days, and when they are passed we appreciate the goodness of God and are more than ready to praise Him for it. God's providential care is over us at all times. Let us appreciate this fact and praise Him for it. "Oh, that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men."

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Arrange a special programme covering completely the subject of the providence of God.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxviii, 10-22; xlv, 1-8; Ps. xlvi, 1-3; Isa. xliii, 1-7; Math. v, 10-12; John xiv, 1-3; I Pet. i, 1-9; v, 10, 11; Rev. vii, 9-17.

In the Hands of Our Father.

The firm persuasion that all things which concern us are completely, every moment, in the hands of our Father above, infinitely wise and merciful, that He disposes all these events in the best possible manner and that we shall one day bless Him for even His most distressing visitations—such a sublime persuasion will make the heart and the character sublime. It will enable us to assemble our interests together, our wishes, our prospects, our sorrows and the circumstances of the persons that are dear to us and present them in one devout offering to the best Father, the greatest Friend, and it will assure us of being in every scene of life the object of His kind, perpetual care.—John Foster.

Misunderstanding God.

We misunderstand each other—it would be strange if we did not often misunderstand the ways of God. The essential thing is that we should be at rest in heart in the remembrance that it is impossible that He should misunderstand us or judge us hastily or harshly. It is when our minds are most perturbed that we are inclined to quarrel with His dealings, and then (if we will but stop to consider) our opinion is not valuable. As one who waits for a cloudless day to estimate the genial warmth of the sun, we must wait for the clearing of our clouds of doubt before we imagine that we know the purpose of God's love.—Congregationalist.

He Cares For Us.

We are the portion the Lord takes out of the hand of His enemy and ours, and He cares for us as such. A love that is everlasting, a care that is likened to that which guards the pulpit of the eye, a fidelity of attachment to which the mother's love finds no parallel—these have been expended on us and are still in operation toward us. Can it be doubted, then, that He cares for us?—Dr. John Hall.

Faith.

In all the star dust of God's universe,
With the smiles and hopes and pain,
There is none forgot or neglected
Or left to struggle in vain.
He knoweth what's best
Thy soul's faith to test,
And sendeth thee sunshine and rain.
But trust Him still longer;
Thy faith will grow stronger;
Reward will follow the pain.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Park Theatre.

Direct from a phenominal triumph in New York comes "Up York State" to the Park Theatre, Oct. 7, for an engagement of one week only. Darius Green, the hero, is the inventor of a flying machine which has aroused the derision of the little Adirondack village where he lives. Evelyn Blair and her little brother, have lived with him ever since their father's death. The little boy is suddenly stricken blind and Evelyn asks Darius to lend her money for an operation. Darius, to raise the money, sells twenty acres of his farm to Alen Woodford, who has been angling to get posession of this land for years because he knows the land contains a vein of marble. The child's eyes are saved, and, in order to pay her debt, Evelyn consents to marry Woodford on condition that he pay Darius what it cost to save the child's eyes. Thinking that this means merely the $600 he paid for the land, Woodford writes out a check for $600 and hands it to Green. Evelyn snatches the paper and tears it to pieces. "It isn't the money" she cries, "It's the land I want you to give him back." Woodford, who has already made arrangements to trace the marble vein, refuses. The bride refuses to go away with him. She declares that he has broken his word, and she appeals to her old friend Darius for protection. The fourth act solves the problem in an original fashion.

Boston Music Hall.

The artistic success scored by that dainty American-Japanese musical comedy in one act "Miyo San," at Boston Music Hall, has led to further negotiations, with the probability that the engagement will be extended. Vaudeville patrons seldom have opportunity to witness such delightful entertainment, and when they do, they appreciate it to the full. "Miyo San," thanks to the splendid production given it by Adolphe Mayer, is a thing of beauty and a joy for some time to come, at least. It sparkles with pretty scenery, pretty girls, pretty sentiment, pretty songs and pretty dances; it scintillates with musical gems and comedy radiates from it brilliantly. Among the new comers next week will be Sam, Clara and Kitty Morton in a dancing specialty, C. C. Diggins will introduce his dog and monkey comedians in a refined, up-to-date act. There are nine dogs and six monkeys and baboons.

Columbia Theatre.

"Evangeline," Edward E. Rice's classic, for it may be considered a classic in burlesque, goes merrily along at the Columbia theatre, toward the fiftieth performence, which will shortly be given. Little doubt remains as to the quality of the attraction offered by Manager Henderson in the palatial Columbia theatre. At every performance of "Evangeline" may be found not only hundreds of the newer generation of playgoers, but those to whom Rice's burlesque is an old story. The latter seem to enjoy its repetition more than ever. The music throughout is as bright and pleasing as it was before, and, although it may appear hackneyed to the trained musician, it delights the untutored ear, and never fails to impress all hearers. Of course, the chiefest charm of "Evangeline" is its pretty girls. The cost of the present production of "Evangeline" was over $20,000, and there are a hundred people in the performance. Manager Henderson has in view many elaborate productions to be made at the Columbia, but the run of "Evangeline" has proved so gratifying that a change of bill is not at present necessary. It should be remembered that the Columbia is one of the most luxuriously equipped places of amusement in the United States.

Castle Square Theatre.

The immediate success of the new English military and sporting drama "A Million of Money," at the Castle Square Theatre, again shows the good judgment of the management of this popular play house in the selection of an attraction for its patrons. It was a notable bit of enterprise to make the first American production of a play, by such well known authors as Henry Petitt and Augustus Harris, and the action in placing this opportunity with the Castle Square management shows that the good work done at this play house is widely recognized. The new play is of remarkably sustained interest throughout and the story it tells of the temptations reulting from suddenly acquired wealth affords many opportunities for scenes and situations of great dramatic merit. The members of the stock company at the Castle Square have made a notable success in presenting this play and it is pleasant to know that the demand for seats for the first week of its performances was so excessive that it will be continued as the attraction for the coming week.

Keith's Theatre.

Manager Keith has been presenting an unbroken series of strong vaudeville shows during the past three months, and the introduction of the special spectacular production has not been allowed to interfere with this policy in the slightest. For the week commencing Oct. 7, another big bill is announced, including several of the best known stars in the varieties. Among the more prominent of the entertainers are: Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in the farcical sketch, "A Model Young Man;" Fred Ward and Johnny Curran, in a burlesque comedy and singing skit entitled "John's Troubles"; Alexander Heindl the talented young "cello soloist;" Margaret Scott, the colored nightingale; the Maginleys, in daring serial specialties, and the Maxwell quintet, vocalists and comedians. The spectacular feature will be retained, an entire new list of motion pictures will be shown in the biograph, and the regular house orchestra, under the direction of Louis Baar, will perform selections of popular music. The noted Quaker Citz quartet and Sidney Grant, monologue star are underlined for the week of Oct. 14.

Boston Theatre.

The grand old Boston Theatre is about to be the scene of one of the most remarkable productions ever made in this country—William A. Brady's marvelous rendering of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This production, which crowded the New York Academy of Music to the doors and created the biggest sensation on Broadway, will now fill the gigantic stage of New England's greatest playhouse.

When Manager Brady first made the announcement of his intentions with regard to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," his friends on the Rialto did their best to discourage him, and his managerial competitors sneered at what they assured him would prove a downright failure. The result, however, fully justified his own optimistic ideas. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," as he presented it, at an outlay of $25,000, proved to be the biggest kind of a success. Not only was the production itself most elaborate, but the cast was extraordinary, including for principals the highest priced stars in the profession.

The engagement at the Boston Theatre, which begins Monday evening, October 14, is for five weeks with Wednesday and Saturday matinees, and at the same reduced scale of prices as has prevailed ever since the opening of the season. In other words, one dollar secures the best orchestra seat, with 75 cents for the orchestra circle; 50 cents for first balcony; 35 cents for second balcony or family circle, and 25 cents for the gallery. The seat sale for "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will open Monday morning, October 7, at 9 o'clock, at the box office of the Boston Theatre.

MISS STONE'S RELEASE

Assured as Far as Ransom Money Is Concerned

PUBLIC QUICKLY RESPONDS

To the Appeal For Funds to Be Paid to Bulgarian Brigands—Entire Sum of $110,000 Will Probably Be In Bankers' Hands by Tomorrow Noon

Boston, Oct. 7.—The urgency of the case of Miss Stone, the missionary held for ransom by brigands in Bulgaria, brought together the members of the prudential committee of the American board for two hours yesterday. Later the committee issued a statement based upon the views of President Capin of the board and Secretary Smith, on the result of their visit to Washington on Saturday.

Both had interviews with President Roosevelt and the officials of the state department. It was made plain to them, they told the prudential committee, that the only certain way to secure the release of Miss Stone and save her life would be the payment of the ransom. The committee was informed that the government, by reason of constitutional restriction, is unable to pay the ransom. The committee was also made aware of the fact that the American board has no money with which to save Miss Stone. The only practical way, therefore, was shown to be a popular subscription, which already has been started.

The committee approved of this and began sending telegrams to many parts of the country urging subscriptions. The committee says that in view of the spirit with which the appeal is received there is strong ground for the hope that the amount will be obtained speedily.

President Capen says that the government at Washington, both the president and the state department, have done, are doing, and will continue to do, all that is in their power to procure the release of Miss Stone.

Just how much money has been given to the fund for the ransom of Miss Stone is not known. Those directing the effort in her behalf think that the figure is fully $100,000, if not the necessary amount, which is $10,000 more. In Boston and vicinity the amount already on hand from a comparatively small number of sources reaches nearly $30,000,and there are a host of shurches to hear from.

TO SHOW A MODEL CITY.

New York Art Society Proposes to Erect One at St. Louis Fair.

On the call of Charles R. Lamb, chairman of the art committee of the Municipal Art society of New York, says the New York Tribune, a meeting of the society was held to discuss ways and means of definitely formulating a scheme for a model city to be erected in the confines of the St. Louis World's fair. As the exposition must have certain buildings to carry on its work, such as the service building, postoffice, hospital, police, fire and sanitary departments, they could be constructed as the nucleus of the model city.

The object of the society is to show the people of the United States and of the world how a city should be built. It is proposed to show, for example, by means of a miniature city how roads and streets should be laid out, how sewers should be built and how the corners of streets should be properly treated as regards lighting and numbering, a subject in which, as one member expressed it, New York sins to a degree that is a disgrace to the reputation of the United States for ingenuity. It is also proposed to show how a city can be made beautiful and how to utilize toward that end the public buildings of every city, large and small. A letter sent to ex-Governor Francis, president of the St. Louis position, outlining this scheme elicited a favorable response.

Fall River Textile Operatives Got Into a Tangle

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 7.—The threatened industrial strike among the mills in this city for an advance of 5 percent in wages has been postponed for two weeks, by vote of the Textile Council. The secretaries of the various unions say that the movement was supposed to be unanimous. The carders and loom-fixers understood that the agreement was to be unanimous or the vote to strike would take no effect. The other unions understood that the majority was to rule, but if one union stood out against the strike it would be declared off. On these two different understandings the unions took their votes. In view of this difference of understanding, the members of the Textile Council thought it was wise to defer all action as far as ordering a strike was concerned until two weeks from today.

When the announcement was made that the council had called the strike off for two weeks, the manufacturers seemed indifferent. They said it was the only thing the operatives could do under the circumstances and they thought it would have been much better had the leaders come out and declared the strike off altogether instead of putting in the two weeks clause. They pointed out that in the next two weeks the situation will be in a very unsettled condition, all kinds of business will be poor on account of the uncertainty, and unseen complications may ensue. Beyond that they refused to express any opinion.

Secretary Whitehead of the council said that the action of the union in declaring the strike postponed was not to be taken as an indication that they admitted they had been defeated, but that the affair had been simply postponed until the present misunderstanding could be straightened out. It is expected a meeting of the Textile Council will be held during this week to consider plans of action to be taken at the end of the proposed term.

SECRETARY WILSON'S CARDS

Declares the Ordinary Printed Ones Are Good Enough.

There isn't an engraved card to be found among the personal belongings of one of the hundreds of agents, chiefs, experts, professors and untitled scientists employed at the department of agriculture, says a Washington correspondent, although engraving for official cards costs nothing. Secretary Wilson, who is a good deal of a farmer in every sense of the word, is responsible for this wonderful condition of affairs. Some time ago a recently promoted chief made out a requisition for 500 engraved cards, stating his name and office. But he didn't get them.

"You think you need engraved cards," observed the secretary, who had sent for the young man when the requisition was laid before him for approval.

"Well, I don't," said the secretary. "The bureau of engraving and printing has something else to do besides engraving cards for us.

"That's good enough for me," observed the secretary, tossing out a very rummy looking card bearing the words in printed script, "James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture." "I guess we'll change this to printed cards and send it to the printer up stairs."

Since that event the secretary has never used the new chief's name. He refers to him as "the young man who wants engraved cards." Since then all engraved cards have disappeared from the department.

United States Grazing Lands.

A report on the work of the division of agrostology of the department of agriculture since its organization in 1895 has been submitted to Secretary Wilson by Professor F. Lamson Scribner, the government agrostologist. The report says that of the unoccupied public lands about 365,400,000 acres are now regarded as fit only for grazing purposes, and in addition there are 124,300,000 acres of forest land, the greater portion of which is also used for grazing. As a result of the field work already done the department has been enabled to recommend to farmers and stockmen throughout the country the forage crops adapted to their conditions and special requirements and to carry on experiments with introduced forage plants likely to prove valuable in any particular region. Within the United States are grown over 1,000 species of grasses and perhaps a hundred or more other plants of sufficient forage value to justify their investigation and cultivation.

To Teach Soldiers to Swim.

There is a certain inexplicable backwardness in all armies in making the ability to swim as compulsory as other requirements of far less practical importance, says The Army and Navy Journal. If a soldier would not learn how to execute "fours, right," he would be at once attended to, but the fact that he doesn't know how to save his own life if he falls overboard is considered of less importance. This indifference prevails not only among landlubbers, but also among seamen. The accident at Bilancourt, where four French cavalrymen were drowned while engaged in crossing the Seine during a military reconnoissance, has caused a good deal of discussion in France, and the minister of war has issued an order that in every case where rivers are to be crossed in peace operations by swimming certain regulations shall be observed. The chief of these is that when men unable to swim are engaged in the operations they shall be accompanied or be closely followed by certified swimmers in equal number.

SAMPSON DISAPPOINTED

At Non-Participation In Engagement With Cervera

THE OPINION OF ALGER

Regarding the Admiral's Conduct Toward the Army Before Santiago —An Interesting Chapter on the Miles-Egan Beef Controversy

New York, Oct, 7.—General Alger's book on the Spanish-American war will be issued next Thursday.

Opening his book with the survey of the Cuban situation in 1898, General Alger says: "The thoughtful observer of public events during the years of 1895-1897 need hardly be reminded that both the Cleveland and McKinley administrations sought by every honorable means to avoid complications with Spain though protesting against the conditions prevalent in Cuba."

He then comments upon our unpreparedness for war at that time and the splendid spectacle of the country's response to the government's ultimatum upon Spain. He then leads the reader through hurried preparations for war. The account of the march on Santiago is graphically pictured and prepares one for the fight at Caney and San Juan.

The "round robin" incident comes in for a fair share of space. While the negotiations for surrender were pending before Santiago, the general officers of Shafter's army met and signed a "round robin," which was given out for publication. Of the "round robin" itself, General Alger says he has no criticism to offer. But he does criticise the publication of it, saying that it was one of the most unfortunate and regrettable incidents of the war.

General Alger reviews at length the difficulties between General Shafter and Admiral Sampson and quotes many official letters. He concludes this chapter in these words: "It is difficult to account for Admiral Sampson's seeming attitude towards the army during the operations before Santiago, as well as to excuse him for his contradictory statement, subsequently made in his official report. After July 3 the admiral's conduct may have been due to the keen disappointment resulting from his non-participation in the engagement with Cervera's squadron. Possibly he felt that Shafter's request for a conference on the morning of July 3, innocent though it was, was responsible for his being deprived of the honor of actively participating as commander-in-chief in one of the most remarkable victories in the annals of naval warfare."

Of the Miles-Egan controversy on the alleged furnishing of "embalmed beef" to the army, General Alger says: "The commission appointed by the president at my request to investigate the conduct of the war department in the war with Spain met on Sept. 24, 1898. On Dec. 21 the major general commanding the army of the United States appeared before the commission and made his statements with respect to the beef furnished to the army during the war.

"Although the commission had been sitting nearly three months the charges with respect to canned and refrigerated beef were now made for the first time; and, stranger and more inexcusable and more unsoldierly still, during all those months, with this pretended knowledge of facts which, if they existed, should have been made known to the secretary of war, for the protection of the army. General Miles had never mentioned the subject.

"General Miles seemed to be pleased with the notoriety which his startling statement before the commission and his subsequent newspaper interview gave him; for again, on March 31, 1899, in New York city, he published additional charges. This unmilitary and questionable method of making in public grave and scandalous charges regarding a brother officer and the work of his department—charges which subsequent and careful investigation proved both unwarranted and untrue—seemed to appeal to certain characteristics of the major general commanding to which the question to which reference here would be out of place.

"If we were to believe written evidence to the contrary it does not appear that General Miles was even honest in making his dilatory charges that the tinned beef was issued as the 'pretense of an experiment' and that it was not a part of the ration. On June 17, 1898, his most confidential staff officer signed a letter by 'direction of the major general of the army' instructing the depot commissary at Tampa to furnish to General Nunez 10,644 pounds of canned roast beef, to be issued from the subsistance stores of the army. If we are to accept the reading of this letter as correct, it proves that General Miles knew that canned fresh beef was a part of the ration; that he knew there was a large quantity of it at Tampa for issue to the troops; and that he so far approved of its use as to direct that the ration be furnished in large quantities to our allies."

While the defeat of Mr. Badger as a candidate for County Commissioner is a disappointment to Quincy, the nomination of Mr. Bowker wipes away the disappointment, and causes disgust throughout the county. How the Republicans of Brookline could have had the audacity to present such a candidate to the convention is beyond understanding. The support that he received was more surprising. Although nominated, he did not have the majority vote of all the delegates, and he will not have the unanimous support of Republicans at the polls although his nomination was made unanimous. It will be one of the times when Republicans will put good government above partisanship, and vote for his Democratic rival if he is of the right calibre. Such a man as Marshal P. Wright of Quincy would command the support of thousands of Republicans in Norfolk county.

The Atlantic Monthly believes that the American newspapers in emphasizing Mr. McKinley's chivalric devotion to his home people and in revealing his peace with his own conscience and calm submission to the will of God at his death, have done a service which outweighs a thousand evils of newspaper publicity.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ A class in Shorthand and Typewriting taught by Miss Norma Cutter Lowe will meet this evening at 7.30 o'clock at The Brackett Homestead School. Young men and women interested in this study will be cordially received.

☞ Peary has been heard from. He has not found the North Pole, but he knows where it ought to be, and he is steering for the spot. He has not announced what he intends to do with it. Peary simply has the exploration habit. He wants to go somewhere, not for any particular purpose, save to get away from the place where he happens to be, and he expects a relief party to follow him in due season. He has been monkeying around the Arctic regions for a long period of years, and has not added one item to the sum of human knowledge. The old whaler who chases blubber through that chilly neighborhood could give him points. However, the Peary method of amusement does no harm, and if he is hopelessly addicted to walrus meat, there is no use of making a fuss about it.—Beverly Times.

Men's Club.

The first meeting of the Men's club of Wollaston will be held in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Tuesday evening, October 8, at half past six o'clock. The subject for discussion will be "The citizens and the church." Speakers: Rev. H. G. Megathlin, Rev. C. P. Mills, Rev. Jesse Wagner, Rev. E. Chase, Rev. E. C. Butler and Rev. Frank W. Pratt. Music will be furnished by a male quartet.

The Morning Fire.

The alarm from Box 57 at 7.15 this morning was for a slight fire in a double house on Hamden circle, in the side occupied by Luther H. Parrott, Jr. The fire was caused by the chimney flue blowing out and the flames setting fire to the wood work The fire was quickly extinguished. Owing to streets being dug up, the central station apparatus was obliged to take a round about course to reach the fire. The street in front of the house was also dug up, and had the fire been a serious one, the department would have been handicapped.

FIFTEEN BALLOTS.

Necessary to Nominate County Commissioner.

The Norfolk County Republican convention held on Saturday in Boston was entitled to 115 delegates, and that number were present when several of the ballots were taken, the ninth ballot being a full one, and the thirteenth having 114. With either of these votes, it would be necesary for the winner to have 58. On the fifteenth and decisive ballot, however, but 111 votes were cast, and of these Watts H. Bowker of Brookline had a bare majority of 56. Had all the delegates remained it is very probable that William E. Badger of Quincy would have been the candidate, as he received 52 votes on the decisive ballot and there was a strong anti-Bowker sentiment which would have swept the necessary 6 votes to him, even if Mr. Bowker got one more. It was a time when one vote counted, as the vote of one of the absentees against Mr. Bowker on the 15th ballot would have prevented his nomination then, as 57 would have been necessary for a choice. The nomination of Mr. Bowker was made unanimous upon motion of C. M. Bryant of Quincy, seconded by F. B. Rich of Hyde Park.

The other nominations for the day were:

For County Commissioner for 3 years, Thomas Blanchard of Stoughton.

For Special Commissioners for 2 years,—Lewis R. Whittaker of Franklin and John Everett of Canton.

For Sheriff,—Samuel H. Capen of Dedham.

For Clerk of Courts for 5 years,—Louis A. Cook of Weymouth.

The District Committee of 1901 were reelected for 1902, and also authorized to fill vacancies.

The convention organized with C. C. Henry of Wellesley as chairman, and J. Walter Bradlee of Milton as secretary. Henry P. Kittredge was one of the committee on credentials and T. H. Burke, on the committee on ballots.

Watts H. Bowker was placed in nomination for Commissioner for one year by W. G. Nash of Brookline, who spoke at length in his defence as well as in his favor; seconded by H. D. Humphrey of Dedham and Nelson W. Gardner of Weymouth, the last mentioned getting quite excited.

Frank B. Rich of Hyde Park was nominated by Mr. Bunton, the Town Treasurer of Hyde Park; seconded by S. P. Nash of Weymouth.

Samuel F. Morse of Milton was nominated by J. Walter Bradlee of that town; seconded by Jesse P. Baxter.

William E. Badger of Quincy was nominated by President C. M. Bryant of the City Council.

The result of the balloting is best told by the following condensed summary.

At the first Mr. Badger had only the Quincy delegates and 5 from Weymouth. Before the decisive vote he gained in Weymouth and also captured the delegations in Milton, Braintree, Holbrook, Randolph, Hyde Park, and elsewhere.

The first vote was informal:

Ballot	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Total	114	114	114	115	115	113	113	113
Majority	58	58	58	58	58	57	57	57
Bowker	42	39	38	45	44	43	42	42
Badger	22	20	19	24	28	28	26	18
Rich	40	47	47	46	43	42	45	37
Morse	6	6	8	—	—	—	—	16
Mowry	2	2	2	—	—	—	—	—
Southworth	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—

Ballot	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
Total	115	112	111	113	114	112	111
Majority	58	57	56	57	58	57	56
Bowker	46	43	52	53	57	54	56
Badger	18	28	27	35	39	49	52
Rich	44	35	32	25	18	9	3
Morse	7	6	—	—	—	—	—

Early in the balloting a Bowker man got hot because a Brookline man was voting for Mr. Mowry of Brookline.

An attempt was made after the eighth ballot to take a recess but it was voted down. After the ninth ballot (at 2.20) a recess of 30 minutes was voted.

After the fourteenth ballot, Mr. Rich withdrew in favor of Mr. Badger but the later received only 3 of his 9 votes.

CARD OF THANKS.

The undersigned desires to return hearty thanks to all those who have been so loyal to their city during the recent campaign for the Republican nomination for Norfolk County Commissioner to fill the vacancy. For the unanimity at the caucuses, and the unwavering support of the solid Quincy delegation at the long drawn out convention, which came so near being successful, he is exceedingly grateful. He also appreciates the support which came to the Quincy candidate from other parts of the county, but now that the convention has selected Mr. Watts H. Bowker of Brookline as their candidate all should rally to his support.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

Crescents of West Quincy Open Season with a Tie Match.

The Crescent A. C. of West Quincy visited Dorchester Saturday with a badly crippled eleven, caused by the absence of her two best players, and played the strong Dorchester Lower Mills team to a standstill; the game resulting in a tie, 6 to 6.

Dorchester knocked off to McTiernan who run the ball back 15 yards. Shortle took the ball around left end for 4 yards and with a series of end rushes Crescent carried the ball to Dorchesters 40 yard line. Crescents pushed Martell through center for good gains and were within striking distance of Dorchesters goal when they fumbled and the ball went to Dorchester.

With a few rushes at the line Dorchester advanced the ball near to the middle of the field, but were held there for downs. Crescents again put back through tackles and Martell through center and had the ball on Dorchester's 30-yard line at call of time for first half. Neither side scored during first half.

In the second half: Crescent kicked to R. Talbot who was downed in his tracks on his own 25 yard line. Dorchester now used a guard backs formation which worked successively down to the middle of the field where she fumbled and Crescents got the ball on their own 25 yard line. Crescents lost the ball on a fumble the first rush and Dorchester secured ball on Crescents 20 yard line and followed with a series of rushes Harrison crossed Crescents line for a touchdown.

Wheelock kicked goal. Score Dorchester 6; Cresents 0.

Crescents kicked off to Harrison who was downed on his own 25-yard line.

Taylor dropped back for a put and Rollean blocked same, Cresents securing ball on Dorchesters's 20 yard line. McTiernan went through left tackle for 6 yards, Martell pushed center for three, and Shortle went through right tackle for 3 yards. With the ball on Dorchester's 8 yard line Crescents tied the line twice, but Dorchester held firm. The next play O'Brien cleared right end by a brilliant run for a touchdown. He also kicked goal. With 5 minutes left for play Dorchester kicked to Shorlte, who run the ball back 12 yards. With a few end rushes Crescents advanced the ball to middle of field and at the call of time were making good progress on plunges at Dorchester's line.

Thayer Defeated.

Thayer Academy was defeated, Saturday afternoon by Milton Academy 16-6.

Knight kicked off the ball to Milton in the first half. Milton's left half-back fumbled the ball and made no gain.

For two downs Milton failed to rip up Thayer's line until at last Milton punted which was blocked by Arnold, Thayer almost making a safety. As it was they found but little trouble in pushing the ball by Milton's goal. Winslow kicked safely.

On the next kick off, Thayer fumbled the ball, and Milton by repeated gains through the guards and tackles, soon made a touchdown. Milton failed to kick.

Score —Thayer, 6; Milton, 5, at the end of first half.

In the second half, Thayer could not stop the repeated gains of Milton, as they made yards through all positions. A blunder and a poor tackle on the part of a Thayer man was the principal cause for Milton's two goals. Milton failed to kick one goal. Score at end of second half, 10—6.

For Thayer, Captain Carr, excelled by stoping gains around right end, while Arnold and Remick made long gains through the tackles.

This was the first time Thayer has lost to Milton for several years. Last year they defeated Milton Academy 17—0, while year before they made 39 points in fifteen minutes after which they left the field owing to a misunderstanding.

As Thayer is a comparatively light team they made a good showing for their first game of the season, against the heavy Milton boys. This year they are admitted to the Junior League and will undoubtedly make things hot for their opponents.

Good Clubhouse.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

When at the Dorothy Q house the other evening for the lecture, I was impressed with the beautiful stateliness of the old mansion. Why would not this house make a fine country club house for Quincy, similar to the Cochato club which is so popular at Braintree. The front part of the building would do just as it is and there is plenty of land at the back to build on a large hall, billiard rooms and the like, saving the original outlines of the house.

It is rumored that a syndicate is after this place with the idea of destroying the house and using the land for modern houses, which would be a great pity, as the house is very old and has quite a history to say nothing of a secret chamber and a ghost which wanders at night.

Some go so far as to say that a part of the Declaration of Independence was drafted there but whether this is so or not no one in Quincy wants to see the old house torn down.

It is less than ten minutes from the centre of the city on street car lines, and on the new State boulevard and in every way accessible to all parts of the city.

Think it over before too late and see if the idea is not a good one.

Granite Buildings.

The old adage that "shoe maker's children go barefoot," is in a measure verified by the comparative few granite structures in Quincy, where granite is native to the soil.

A stranger, on a visit here, might look about to see how many edifices were composed of this native material; but there is not much of it to be seen outside our stone yards where such artistic work can always be enjoyed, or in the quarries which impress one by the granite in its natural state, or in the cemeteries of the city.

The very inpressive decoration these days, upon our classic Town Hall which lends itself to designs that a more ornamental style would not match, attracts one daily, and the mind dwells upon the building today, and the material that composes it. Directly across the way, the old stone Temple stands, a monument in granite.

These buildings harmonize, but they do not show what granite is capable of today. Better specimens of the stone, better finishings by polish can be seen elsewhere.

Again the public drinking fountain in Quincy centre is of this imperishable material. It resists the great force that comes to it, by the gigantic weight of teams laden with stone, and it tells too, of public spirit and generosity as well as furnishes water to the wayfarer and the teams and animals.

The hugh circular basins were hewn from one block of granite and this structure is a good example of granite for durable purposes, for granite is not a beautiful stone by any means unless unusual specimens are found, or it is polished. It suggests rugged strength rather than beauty.

The picturesque and more ornate Chris'ts church with its surrounding walls and pretty fountain at the corner, are highly ornamented.

Further along school street, a sombre block of a building that served for many years as a schoolhouse, then as an engine house, and now as a police station, stands as an old land mark.

Over the valley from here, across the railroad cut, the attractive Swedish stone church perched upon a miniture quarry and approached by a high flight of stone steps is a most creditable monument to our industry.

Near East Milton Junction is another sombre structure, old, solid, but made of the gray stone which surrounds it.

In spite of its plainness, our granite is an attractive trimming as well as a fine foundation to places and buildings, as seen in the Adams academy, the entrance to the John Quincy Adams estate, and a part of the base of the mansion house there, in the front of the Quincy Savings Bank building, of which it forms an important portion, in the entrance gates of our cemeteries, within their Walls where it marks the last resting place of so many of Quincy's illustrious dead, and in various other places.

The first story of the home of Mrs. Charles H. Hardwick on Chestnut street is of granite, as is the understructure of Mr. Henry Hardwick's on Washington street, selected with the admixture of iron which gives it a mellow tone.

Rough granite lends an added and a fine effect to buildings as can be seen in the private library of the old Adams house near the President's bridge, the stable there and also in the picturesque Unitarian church in Wollaston. These are some of the municipal examples of granite in buildings, still prominent structures like our City Hall are very few in Quincy.

To see this material at its best, one should visit our quarries which form a barrier at the outposts of our city, see it in its impressiveness and realize what a steady sonrce of industry and wealth it has been, then go into our stone yards and sheds and see what graceful and delicate beauty in smaller work can be wrought from this stone.

The only social society which incorporates its name is the Granite City club, which is composed of leading business men of the city.

Debt Raised.

The First Presbyterian church was very successful at its services on Sunday in practically wiping out the debt for church improvements made last year. A balance of $1,200 was the amount desired, and $1,075 were pledged. None of the pledges were for over $50. Such loyalty to church by wage earners is commendable.

RICHES IN PHILIPPINES

Will Not Be of Benefit to Us For a Generation or Two

Denver, Oct. 7.—Congressman Shafroth, who has been travelling in China and the Philippines for the past four months has reached home. Speaking of the conditions in the Philippines he said:

"Peace has been practically restored. There is still a little insurrection in Samar, but aside from that, everything is fairly quiet. I do not believe, however, that the retention of the islands will be profitable, as the government will have to expend a great deal of money on them, even in times of peace. It costs now between $60,000,000 and $75,000,000 a year to keep the soldiers there, and even if the number is reducedto 30,000 the expense will still be greater than the profits from the islands will warrant. The islands are unquestionably rich, but their benefit to the United States will not materialize until a generation or two shall have passed and the need for an army in the island shall have gone."

Mr. Shafroth looked into the silver question in the Philippines and will submit a plan to congress for the reopening of the mint at Manila and the establishment of free coinage of silver of the islands. Mexican and English silver coins are now circulated in the islands, and as American bills and gold command a premium in China and neighboring countries most of the American money is now driven out of the country.

Hodgson Read Correspondence

Washington, Oct. 7.—Only one session of the Schley court of inquiry was held Saturday. Practically the only witness of the day was Lieutenant Commander Hodgson, who was navigator of the flagship Brooklyn during the campaign of 1898. Almost his entire time was taken up with the reading of correspondence which has been published and this fact rendered the proceeding of comparatively little popular interest.

Just the Right Kind of Weather

Poplar Point, Man., Oct. 7.—The royal train conveying the Duke of Cornwall and York and suite arrived here yesterday and was received by Senator Kirchhoffer and Lord Minto. The guests are in excellent spirits and looking forward with great anticipation to the enjoyment of the shooting at Lake Manitoba. The weather is perfect and as game, particularly ducks, are plentiful, there are prospects of a splendid outing.

McKinley Fund Fattened

Toledo, Oct. 7.—A novel plan has been put into execution here by the McKinley Memorial association for the purpose of raising funds toward the erection of a McKinley monument. Voting booths were opened from 4 to 8 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of receiving voluntary subscriptions. A total of 6815 persons contributed, the proceeds amounting to $6801.90.

Killed by a Minister

Carbondale, Ills., Oct. 7.—A tragedy was enacted here at a time when the streets were crowded with people: John C. Brown was shot by Rev. Joseph McCammish, dying 40 minutes later. The two men had been bitter enemies for nearly a year, owing to Brown being jealous of the relations between his wife and the minister.

Hustled From Lynchers

Pendleton, Ore., Oct. 7.—A blacksmith of Alba named McWilliams maligned the late president McKinley Saturday. A mob secured a rope and started to lynch him. McWilliams fled to this place, having spent the entire night in running and walking.

Sheriff Killed Would-Be Lyncher

Ashville, Ala., Oct. 7.—Sheriff North, charged with the murder of John T. Blankenship during the attempt of a mob to storm the jail for the purpose of lynching a negro, was acquitted. The trial was held under the protection of the state militia.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mrs. Anna Coleman died at Somerville, Mass., as a result of being enveloped in flames by the overturning of an oil stove.

John Mayher, one of the most prominent citizens in western Massachusetts, died at his home in Easthampton, aged 70. He was president of the First National bank, and director of the Nashwomock and Glendale Manufacturing companies.

The factory and outbuildings of Moseley & Stoddard, Rutland, Vt., were burned to the ground, causing a loss of $40,000. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin.

While crossing Watuppa pond at Fall River, Mass., Christian Dixon, aged 45, became alarmed at the filling of the boat during a squall and jumped overboard. He was siezed with cramps and drowned.

Harvard's football team has lost the services of Jennings, the former Dartmouth captain, and who was looked upon as the mainstay back of the varsity line. He is deemed ineligible on the ground that he has done professional coaching at Dartmouth.

Reservations to Be Opened.

The interior department at Washington is rapidly completing plans for the opening of the Fort Hall (Ida.) Indian reservation. The date for the opening has not yet been fixed, as the preliminary work has not been completed, but it is expected that the reservation, which contains 400,000 acres, will be thrown open to settlement within a few weeks. The Quinault reservation in Washington, comprising 300,000 acres, probably will be thrown open to settlement next spring. The contract for surveying this reservation is about to be awarded. Commissioner Herman of the general land office said that it was probable the old "sooner" system would be used at the opening of both these reservations.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE
of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN
if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

New Theory as to Cliff Dwellers.

Leopoldo Batres, a Mexican scientist who has been investigating the ruins of the cliff dwellers in Colorado, has a new theory as to the origin of those people. He believes that they were Asiatics, as he found many baskets and other trinkets of Asiatic and Japanese design, but how many thousands of years ago they came to this country he is unable to even make a guess. He thinks the mound builders and the cliff dwellers two distinct races. His theory is that the cliff dwellers, after leaving Colorado, migrated to Mexico, going through Arizona, where indications of their stoppage en route are found. In Mexico they comprised the original Toltecs and built cities. That this is so is verified to Senor Batre's satisfaction by legends and inscriptions he found on the walls of some of the rooms. He took a copy of them and complete samples of pottery and other designs to make further comparisons upon returning to old Mexico; but, having studied the Toltec hieroglyphics, he is positive the cliff dwellers and the Toltecs were one and the same people.

Independent Telephone Combine.

A consolidation of all the independent telephone companies of Easton, Pa., has been effected and is to be followed by the merging of all the independent systems of the state of Pennsylvania with those of New Jersey. The scheme contemplates a system between New York and Boston, says the New York Evening Post. The name of the new combination is the Consolidated Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, and it has a paid up capital of $4,000,000.

Held Up Near Home

Natick, Mass., Oct. 7.—Within a few rods of his house, Victor Gibson, collector of the Royal Society of Good Fellows, was assaulted and robbed about 11:30 last night by two men, who secured $80 and escaped. The place of the robbery is within a short distance of the main street.

Severe Gale on the Coast

Chatham, Mass. Oct. 7.—The most severe storm of the season is in progress along the coast. No vessels will be able to pass over Pollock rip and if any are caught near there they will fare badly. Reports from harbors along the coast say that no vessels have left since the storm began.

Strikers Lost Their Jobs

Reading, Pa., Oct. 7.—There is no sign of trouble on the street railway system of the United Traction company, whose employees went on strike Saturday. The place of every striker was promptly filled and the cars are running on schedule time. Forty employes who were paid off and discharged.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

THREE NEWSPAPER MEN

Implicated In Case of Kidnapping and Robbery

ONE ACTED AS A DECOY

Assisted by a Barber, They Robbed a Woman of Jewelry and Money After Keeping Her Prisoner For Many Days Without Food

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Charged with kidnapping a woman and holding her a prisoner for four days, robbing her of jewels worth more than $2000 and compelling her to sign bank checks for large sums of money, is the story which the police unfolded here yesterday when they announced the arrest of four men, all of whom are charged with complicity in the crime.

The men now locked up are Howard K. Sloan, an unemployed reporter; Henry Wallace, society editor of one of the morning newspapers; J. K. Findlay, stenographer in the business office of another morning paper, and Oscar S. Dunlap, a barber employed in one of the most prominent shops in the city. The victim is Mrs. Mabel Goodrich of North Tenth street. The four men were arrested Saturday night.

Last Monday Mrs. Goodrich went to police headquarters and told a story of kidnapping and robbery so daring that the police at first doubted its truth. She said that a young man, who represented himself as a resident of Germantown last Wednesday week, proposed a drive through Fairmount park. She went out with him in a carriage with a pair of richly caparisoned horses and with a coachman on the box wearing stylish livery. At a lonely place in Fairmount park the carriage was stopped by a man whom she said represented himself as D. Clarence Gibbony, the secretary and attorney of the Law and Order society of Philadelphia. This man, she went on to say, told her that he had a warrant for her arrest on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, but that the matter could be fixed up.

He was invited into her carriage and the next moment she was gagged and blindfolded. The men conveyed her into a building where a fire engine and a hook and ladder truck were standing. She was kept a prisoner from Tuesday night until Friday night without anything to eat or drink, and was then taken on another long drive, blindfolded, to a house where she was kept from Friday until Monday.

In the latter place the men, who were masked, stripped her of her jewelry and at the point of a revolver compelled her to sign bank checks for various sums of money she had deposited in the Third National bank. The men finally put her out of a carriage about a mile from her house.

The detectives secured several clues which led to them to a fire house in Wayne, 15 miles from Philadelphia. The fire company is a volunteer organization and the key to the place was kept in the nearest dwelling. The nearest house was occupied by a family named Findlay and there the police learned that one of the sons was J. K. Findlay. Getting a description of him the police returned to the city and found the young man, who is 21 years old, in the office where he is employed. He was charged with the crime and broke down and implicated three others.

Findlay said that he had impersonated the coachman; that Sloan, the unemployed reporter, acted the part of attorney Gibbony; that the barber played the part of the rich Germantown resident; and that Wallace, the society editor, had rented a house in Germantown, where Mrs. Goodrich was to have been held captive. Sloan, the police said, conceived the whole plot. He was to have begun work today on the same paper on which Findlay was employed. Wallace has been society editor of the paper on which he was employed for only two weeks.

May Have New Evidence

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 7.—The court of appeals having granted former Secretary of State Powers and James Howard new trials, the case of the former will be called here next Tuesday. Powers was convicted as accessory to the murder of William Goebel in January, 1900, and sentenced to life imprisonment. Howard was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. It is generally believed that both sides have secured much new evidence.

Fire Caused $280,000 Loss

Alleghany, Pa., Oct. 7.—Fire in the Pittsburg Clay Pot works yesteray damaged the plant to the extent of about $280,000, injured six men and enforced an idle ness of several mouths upon a force of 165 workmen. The injured men were firemen who were on the roof of the boiler house when the wall fell. Non of them will die. The fire originated in the boiler room from an unknown cause.

Church Partition Fell In

Reading, Pa., Oct. 7.—A dozen people were injured yesterday in St. Peter's Catholic church by the fall of a temporary partition erected on the inside of the outer wall during alterations of the building. A great quantity of timber and bricks fell inward upon a portion of the congregation. The main altar and many pews were broken.

City Official Indicted

Chicago, Oct. 7.—The grand jury voted two indictments against Robert E. Burke, city oil inspector. The charge is embezzlement of the funds of his office. In one instance a shortage of $14,000 is alleged, and in the other $9000 is said to be missing.

LOWELL WOMAN DYING

As a Result of Attack by Man Who Was Madly In Love

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Elizabeth Casey, about 32 years of age, was murderously assaulted by a man alleged to be Mr. Cooley, who has been paying attentions to Mrs. Casey of late. The doctors say there is very slight chances for her recovery.

H. Cooley is still at large and the police do not pretend to have any knowledge of his whereabouts. Mrs. Casey is suffering from hemorrage of the brain and the doctors say she cannot recover.

The police are in possession of evidence in the form of letters and interviews that show Cooley to have been extremely jealous of Mrs. Casey and that he wished death would relieve him of a sorrow that seemed too great to bear. That he was madly inlove with Mrs. Casey there is no doubt.

Within the last three weeks Cooley tried to obtain a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Casey on the grounds that she had stolen his property. Investigation by the police showed that he had no grounds on which to make application for a warrant. Mrs. Casey at that time showed the police threatening letters which she had received from Cooley and she was advised to apply for a warrant, but she said she did not want to have any more trouble with him.

Crooked Work at Polls

Boston, Oct. 7.—So overwhelming was the evidence against Arthur W. Joslin and Herbert R. Averill, who were charged with unlawfully marking ballots and inducing persons to vote illegally at a recent Republican caucus, that their counsel offered no witnesses for their defense. Judge Bolster thereupon sentenced Averill to 1½ years in the house of correction, and Joslin to one year in the same institution. Both appeared and furnished bonds for their appearance in the higher court.

Misery Ended by Suicide

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Pamelia Belanger, who although but 17 years old had been married two years, committed suicide yesterday by taking paris green. She had not lived with her husband for over a year, and two weeks ago when he asked her to return to him she refused. It is said she had been brooding over her family troubles. She left a letter bidding her husband goodbye.

House Wrecked by Dynamite

Boston, Oct. 7.—An overcharge of dynamite fired by blasters in a ledge in the rear of a house at Dorchester, shook the neighborhood like an earthquake and wrecked a dwelling house, seriously injuring Mary J. Feely and slightly injuring two others. Many of the windows in the houses in the neighborhood were blown out and many persons were cut by flying glass.

Fatality In Boston Harbor

Boston, Oct. 7.—Three Chelsea men returning from a smelting trip in a 20-foot sloop were capsized in the upper harbor yesterday when a squall struck their boat. One of them, John T. Bonney, aged about 60, was so exhausted by his struggle in the chilly water that he died. The other men were rescued, but suffered severly from the cold and excitement.

Body Found In Woods

Blackstone, Mass., Oct. 7.—Woodchoppers found the body of a man in the woods at Chestnut hill, which is believed to be that of Charles Wood, for years a demented inmate of the town asylum, from which he made his escape Sept. 1. He was seen wandering about by farmers of that neighborhood two weeks ago.

Revolver Shots Through Window

Auburn, Me., Oct. 7.—A window was smashed in at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Strout on Pine street late Saturday night and two revolver shots fired. Mr. and Mrs. Strout and Mrs. Abbie E. Chase were in the house at the time. Peter Rusha, who had been attentive to Mrs. Chase was arrested.

Schooner In a Bad Plight

Milford, Conn., Oct. 7.—During a hard blow yesterday schooner Marion E. Rockwell pounded so hard that she pulled away part of the wharf to which she was tied. The crew of the vessel left her and the schooner ran ashore and has been pounding badly. No effort has been made to float the vessel.

HOW TO GAIN FLESH

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking Scott's Emulsion.

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample its agreeable taste will surprise you.

OCTOBER DAYS
PAN-AMERICAN

AT Chicago October was the great month in point of attendance at the World's fair. There is every reason to believe the same result will come to the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, where October is always a month of delightful weather. The Exposition in point of beauty and interest is at its climax, and the programme of special events is such as to attract and please. September started with great crowds, and only the tragedy in the Temple of Music, which stunned and shocked a world, halted an overwhelming success in that month. The Exposition management as a tribute of respect closed the gates for one day, Thursday, when the state funeral of the third martyred president took place. The crowds since then have poured to Buffalo. The Temple of Music, now hallowed and historic ground, has been the Mecca of thousands.

Buffalo has demonstrated her ability to care for great crowds satisfactorily, not only in hauling them to the Exposition by street car and steam railway at a fare of but 5 cents from any part of the city, but to house and feed them at prices in the reach of all. The stories of exorbitant prices were long ago shown to be fables, and every visitor who makes the slightest effort to get accommodation can do so wholly within his means.

The Exposition itself, with its beautiful buildings, its coloring by day, its magic lighting at night, its walks and courts, its canals and lakes, its fountains and statuary, its exhibits and its amusements, has been a delight to the 5,000,000 visitors who have already been to the Pan-American.

The Exposition Company opened up the month of October, beginning Monday, Sept. 30, with a Carnival week of splendid events, including a baby coach parade, with 3,000 school children singing in the procession, a monster pageant with the floats used in the New Orleans Mardi Gras and allegorical parade and the feature of the beautiful floral parade at Saratoga. These will take place on Thursday and Saturday, Oct. 3 and 5, but every day from Sept. 30 to Oct. 5 will be replete with interest. Special fireworks on the lake, with decorated and illuminated launches in a procession of fiery grandeur, will afford new and wonderful sensations to the visitors.

Thus October will be ushered in with a programme so arranged as to give the American public a delightful week.

The life saving drill, daily, has become one of the great attractions of the Exposition. It tells the story of the work of the heroic men who guard the shores of ocean and great lakes, always on the alert to drag from death's brink the shipwrecked sailor or passengers. The model camp of United States marines, the seacoast guns, the ordnance and all the exhibits showing war's panoply and our defensive measures have been a great educator to thousands of visitors. Some military company is always encamped in the park, and that part of the grounds is never without interest.

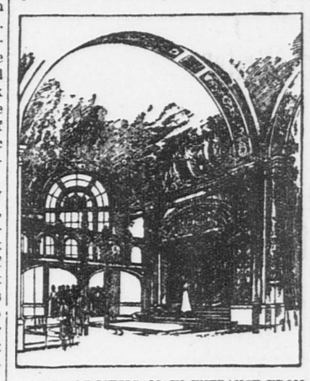

With the magnificent exhibit of the United States Government and the South and Central American States' buildings every visitor can spend a day. No exposition has ever provided in so compact a space, with such beauty of architecture and with so much care for the comfort of the visitor, so much. All exhibit buildings are free, including the Stadium, the great amphitheater, the art gallery, state buildings, and never was so much given for so little.

TEMPLE OF MUSIC, MAIN ENTRANCE—PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

The gorgeous pyrotechnics—and no exposition has ever been so lavish in the display of fireworks—are free to all Exposition visitors. The programme provided by Pain in October includes the magnificent water carnival with gorgeous ballet, wonderful figures in liquid fire, and aerial bombs and rockets of startling beauty and mystifying construction.

To the millions interested in agriculture, stock and poultry rearing, the Pan-American Exposition especially appeals. The cattle show was a tremendous success and the sheep show, beginning Sept. 23 and continuing to Oct. 25, has proved an attraction for those interested, from every section from Maine to California and Canada. Among the states represented are Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Vermont, Ohio, New Jersey, Texas and Missouri. Of the total number of flocks on exhibition twenty-seven have been sent here from the Dominion of Canada, most of the exhibitors being located in the province of Ontario. The province of Quebec is also represented. During the course of the sheep show there will be held in the New York State building a series of meetings of prominent North and South American sheep breeders.

The Buffalo Review of Sept. 24 said that "this ought to be a great time for the farmers to visit the Pan-American. Every farmer in New York State, not to mention those in other parts of the country, ought to see the attractions of the Rainbow City during the next three or four weeks.

"The cattle show last week was a big feature of the Exposition, and this week there is a great sheep show in progress.

"The New York State farmers and the sheep raisers from other states will find it most interesting to compare the South American breeds with those of North America.

"It will surprise many to learn that the pavilions for animals at the Pan-American cover ten acres and are capable of housing 35,000 animals."

The programme for October so far as made up at this time is as follows:

1. Mexican day, fireworks, free organ recital, John P. Lawrence, Washington.
2, 3. Free organ recital, W. H. Donley, Indianapolis, Ind.

TEMPLE OF MUSIC, MAIN ENTRANCE—PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

Can Care For 250,000.

Director General Buchanan says the only problem now confronting the Exposition is how to find days enough within the closing weeks to adequately take care of the many attractions and features now being planned. He predicts a great attendance during the month of October and one far in excess of the highest estimates that have been made by the most sanguine. In answer to the inquiry as to whether or not Buffalo could take care of the crowds, he said there was no difficulty whatever in this regard; that Buffalo could easily care for 250,000 strangers every day comfortably and at reasonable prices.

In the Music Temple.

The organ recitals in the Temple of Music are daily features of the Pan-American Exposition. Many celebrated organists are on the programme for October. Victor Herbert's famous orchestra will be at the Temple of Music from Oct. 14 to the close of the Exposition.

BRIGANDS EXTEND TIME

For Payment of Ransom For Release of Miss Stone

OVER $50,000 RECEIVED

In Cash and Pledges by Bankers Who Have Charge of Contributions—State Department Will Take Charge of Delivery of Ransom

Vienna, Oct. 8.—It is reported from Sofia that United States Consul Dickenson and an envoy of the missionary society arrived there Saturday, intending to follow up Miss Stone, the abducted missionary, and to deposit a portion of the ransom. The brigands have extended the time for payment one month.

Boston, Oct. 8.—Nearly half the money needed to ransom Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missionary, from the Bulgarian brigands, has been placed in the hands of Kidder, Peabody & Co. The exact figures at midnight last night were $45,543.40 cash and $7500 in pledges. Of this amount the firm yesterday afternoon sent $35,000 to the state department to be forwarded to its consular agents at the place where it can be used most expeditiously.

The firm, when informed of the Associated Press cablegram from London to the effect that Vienna advices indicated that there would be a month's extension of time in which to pay the ransom, said that the forwarding of money would not be delayed in the least, as the urgency of the case was not relieved.

The officials of the American board in charge of Congregational missions met informally yesterday. Nothing was talked of except Miss Stone and the matter of the ransom. The officials personally contributed to the ransom, but as officials they adhered to the position that it would be inadvisable for them, as a missionary board, to pay a ransom, for the reason that it would be putting a premium on brigandage that might in the end make missionary work in wild and rough countries more difficult and possibly impracticable.

After this meeting it was officially given out that the state department at Washington has agreed to take full charge of the delivery of the ransom to the brigands. This was repeated later by the officers of Kidder, Peabody & Co., who stated that the money for the ransom would be forwarded to the state department at Washington as fast as received. Further contributions to the fund are therefore solicited. If news comes that Miss Stone still lives, or until the news of her death is received, collections for the ransom will continue to be made.

At the offices of Kidder, Peabody & Co., the day was a wonderfully busy one. Every mail brought stacks of letters containing checks and cash contributions to the ransom. The manual and clerical labor put upon the firm was considerable, since so many of the gifts were so small in amount. All over this city and many other cities subscriptions were being solicited for this purpose.

All the members of the Stone family have borne up admirably under the strain. They are all familiar, too, with the customs of the Bulgarian brigands as they have been corresponding with Miss Stone and other missionaries in that country for 23 years. The family is well aware that threats made by these bandits are carried out to the letter.

Ordered by Macedonians

London, Oct. 8.—The Daily Telegraph publishes the following despatch from Vienna: Mr. Dickenson and the director of the American mission had a long audience with Prince Ferdinand at Sofia. There is no doubt that Miss Stone was abducted under orders from the Macedonian committee.

Philadelphia's Kidnapping Case

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—In the Mrs. Goodrich kidnapping case H. K. Sloan and J. K. Findlay were held in $2000 bail each on the charge of assault and battery and conspiracy and committed to prison without bail on the charge of kidnapping and highway robbery. Henry Wallace, who turned state's evidence, and O. S. Dunlap were committed without bail on the charge of conspiracy for kidnapping. The penalty for kidnapping is life imprisonment.

Son and Daughter Get Fortune

Hartford, Oct. 8.—By a decision of the judge of probate yesterday declaring invalid a will executed by J. G. Batterson, this estate will be settled as intestate and divided equally between a son and daughter. The property is estimated at $500,000.

Confronted by Two Wives

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 8.—Two women each of whom said they married him, confronted Dr. C. O. Smith when he was placed under arrest here last night.

BRAINERD NOT INSANE

Jury Returns a Verdict of Murder In the First Degree

Portland, Me., Oct. 8.—That George H. Brainard was not insane when he shot Iasiah H. Farnham and four other persons in the office of the New England Telephone company here April 24 last was the conclusion of 12 men who for a week had listened to testimony of witnesses and the arguments of counsel in the superior court, and last night, after 3½ hours' deliberation, they returned a verdict of murder in the first degree.

To many this verdict came as a surprise. The prosecution did not offer any expert testimony. On the other hand the defense, after admitting the actual killing and entering a plea of "not guilty because of insanity," called a large number of witnesses, among them four experts on insanity. The experts were unanimous in the opinion that Brainard was insane when the murder was committed, and of the other witnesses a number testified to the prisoner's peculiar acts, dating back several years.

The arguments of counsel and the judge's charge to the jury were devoted almost entirely to the question of insanity. Judge Foster, senior counsel for the prisoner, was not present when the verdict was rendered, and Mr. Greenleaf, the junior counsel, could not say whether a motion for a new trial would be filed.

Simple Funeral Service

Hingham, Mass., Oct. 8.—Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Miss Helen Long, daughter of Hon. John D. Long. The service of the Episcopal church was read by Rev. Mr. Gates as far as the prayer. Then Rev. Mr. Park offered prayer, and a niece of Secretary Long sang "Abide with Me." After the benediction the coffin was taken to the Old Ship cemetery, an ancient burial ground not far from Secretary Long's house. Members of the family walked beside the hearse. The display of flowers was remarkable.

Brought Platinum Into Use

Weymouth, Mass., Oct. 8.—Dr. Alexander G. Nye, known at one time throughout the country as the only dentist who could work platinum, died at his home here yesterday, aged 84. He was born at Plymouth and came to this town half a century ago as a photographer in a travelling car. Later he became a dentist and obtained a national reputation as a chemist and manufacturer of lenses. His discovery of the secret of using platinum commercially brought him distinction. He leaves no near relatives.

Queer Antics With Fatal Result

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 8.—An unknown man gained entrance to Freedman's block yesterday and made his way to the roof. He began jumping from one building to another, a distance of about five feet. At last, being on the lower roof, he tried to get back to the higher one. He slipped and fell four stories to the sidewalk below. Instantaneous death was caused by the breaking of his neck.

Print Cloth at Three Cents

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 8.—Bidding in the cloth market continues active at 3 cents. Matthew Borden being the principal buyer in evidence here. His agents continued their offers yesterday for all regulars obtainable in the next three months at the full quotations, but manufacturers are not yet fully meeting the demand.

The Victor's Close Call

Chatham, Mass., Oct. 8.—Schooner Victor, Captain Refuse, bound for St. John to Vineyard Haven for orders while making anchor at night narrowly escaped sinking through a collision with an unknown schooner. The Victor lost her headgear, but with the help of the life savers the wreckage was cleared away.

Fly Wheel Went Visiting

Northbridge, Mass., Oct. 8.—The fly wheel of a 700-horse-power compound engine at the Paul Whiten Cotton mill burst yesterday and about a dozen persons were slightly cut by small particles of the debris. A piece of the wheel went into the weave room and other portions visited the mule room and machine shop.

Objection to Lower Wages

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 8.—Fearing a cutdown in their wages of from 10 to 14 percent, about 75 girls and a few male carders in the United States Cotton mill at Central Falls went on strike yesterday. They say that they had heard of an anticipaated cutdown. Their wages are now from $6 to $9 a week.

Strike Considered Unlikely

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 8.—Although a meeting of the executive council of the mill operatives has been called for tomorrow night to discuss the wage situation and what action will be necessary after the two weeks' truce expires, it seems to be the general feeling that there will be no strike.

Factory Hand Has Smallpox

Wakefield, Mass., Oct. 8.—A case of smallpox has stirred up the town, and will bring about the fumigation of a factory in which the patient works and the vaccination of the factory employes. The patient is Lucy Forbes, 25 years old. The house in which she lived has been quarantined.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists

TRUST TO BEAT TRUST

Cotton Producers to Adopt Co-operative Plan

CONTROL OF WORLD'S CROP

Can Be Secured by Southerners Acting In Concert and Holding Product For High Prices—Wheat and Corn Combination May Come Later

Boston, Oct. 8.—From a trip abroad in the interest of the proposed fifty million dollar co-operative trust to fight the cotton trust, George F. Washburn, president of the Commonwealth club of Massachusetts, has just returned. When interviewed he said:

"I was commissioned to go abroad and visit Rochdale, Eng., also Belgium and other co-operative centres, and investigate their co-operative methods, with a view of applying to our co-operative plan whatever features might be of value to it.

"Our plan contemplates the organization of the first Twentieth Century Co-operative trust, with a capital of $50,000,000. Our banking and commercial headquarters, executive departments and wholesale supply houses will be in St. Louis, while our warehouses and shipping centers for cotton will be at Memphis. My associates are determined that this co-operative trust shall be sufficiently powerful, financially and numerically, to protect the cotton growers of the south and absolutely control that market in the interest of higher prices for cotton. It is not intended as a philanthropic or reform movement, but rather as a plain business scheme to meet the existing cotton trust on their own ground.

"Unlike organized labor, the cotton growers are men of means, and united, can easily control the cotton market of the country. In fact, they raise so large a proportion of the cotton crop of the world that once they act in concert they can hold their crop for higher prices and practically control the cotton market of the world, thereby restoring living prices to the producer.

"As soon as my business interests in Boston will permit, I will visit the cotton producing states of the south and consult with the leaders of this great movement, as well as with the leading cotton growers' associations in each state, so that their special local needs shall not be overlooked.

"We have no announcements to make, no stock to sell, no promises to redeem. We are more anxious to move slowly and mature our co-operative plan. If this system succeeds it will be followed by co-operative wheat and corn trusts in the west, and conforming to the spirit of the new century will inaugurate a new business system that will bring help and good cheer to thousands of producers who now feel that they are the victims of the money sharks and trusts.

"The plan has already aroused widespread interest on both sides of the Atlantic, and each new development is awaited with eager interest by thousands of persons who believe we are on the right track.

"The only way to beat a trust is to organize a bigger and better one in the interest of the producer. Capital and co-operation are the two mighty agencies through which this can be done."

Strict Quarantine Measures

St. John, Oct. 8.—The smallpox scare has made quarantine measures very strict at this port. All vessels from all United States ports are to be detained at quarantine for examination before being allowed to enter the harbor. This applies to all vessels, from the regular passenger and freight steamers coming here from Boston and Maine ports even to the small packet which may touch at Eastport. The orders are from Ottawa.

Traction Company to Retire

Newark, N. J., Oct. 8.—The Worcester Traction company, which owned street railroads in the Massachusetts city from which the company takes its name, held a special stockholders' meeting yesterday and voted to retire and cancel 19,600 shares of the preferred stock. The company recently sold its road to a syndicate and will probably go out of business.

Alleged Counterfeiters Caught

Detroit, Oct. 8.—Five men were arrested yesterday on the charge of counterfeiting the labels of a New York drug house and selling certain coal tar preparations which are patented in this country under these labels. Their products were sold, under the counterfeit labels, about 50 percent below the market price of the genuine article.

Cudahy Kidnapping Recalled

Omaha, Oct. 8.—An echo of the Cudahy kidnapping case was heard yesterday in the district court. James Callahan, acquitted on the charge of kidnapping and highway robbery, and now held for perjury, was before the court. His attorneys announced that they will file a plea later at which time the matter will be fully heard.

American Capital In Russia

St. Petersburg, Oct. 8.—Murray A. Verner of Pittsburg offered to take over the entire surface traction of this city and to form a company, under Russian law, with a capital of 100,000,000 roubles. The lines will be largely extended and electrified. The prospects of a favorable answer are excellent.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Now, it is said, the bachelor-girl is tearing her old love-letters into small bits and stuffing sofa pillows with them. Girls who have a very big pillow of this kind, or two small ones, are objects of envy to their less favored sisters.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ The money expended on the international yacht race was not thrown away, as some lament, and probably did as much good by finding its way into industrial channels as it would have been likely to have accomplished were there no such event. A large part of the cost, from first to last, found its way into the pockets of labor and the balance benefited trade in some form.—Lynn Item.

☞ The proposal that the names of the Philippine Islands be changed to memorials of the men who won fame by their valor on land or sea in the Spanish war deserves a second thought and then retirement. Much better effect will be gained if the plan of the commission is followed which is bestowing the names of Philipino heroes upon the islands. It must be remembered that Philipinos and not Americans are to inhabit those islands in the future.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ President Roosevelt has been saying some very kind things about the south, and as blood is thicker than water he doubtless feels most kindly toward the people of this section. But the south asks no favors at his hands. It simply asks and demands that the states of the south be treated as the states of other sections are treated, without prejudice or favoritism. The southern states are parts of the union and they simply ask that the president will treat them as such.—Richmond Times.

☞ Some of the attempts at community life—life like that of the Shakers, for example—have demonstrated a high degree of efficiency in some directions; but it is clear enough that the life of the individual members is painfully shrunken. Such communities have been unable to sustain themselves, for one reason or another. But at their best, they have fallen far short in their adaptation of ways to ends, in the pitiless accuracy of their working, and in their wonderful provision for perpetuation, that we find in the bee hive. Possibly they show that if a man would make his social organization as perfect as that of the bee, he must follow the example of the bee. But would the result be worth while when it was attained?—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The action of the Steel Trust in issuing to the public a quarterly statement of its earnings, the last of which extends over two quarters and shows remarkable business, is being hailed in some quarters as a notable step forward in trust management, a beginning of the publicity which has been called for often as a means of regulating the trusts. That might be, if it were not for the belief which there are strong grounds for deeming a fact, that there is as much duplicity as there is publicity about the report. It is noted that the stock market did not grow very enthusiastic over the report, as it would naturally upon such a showing, and the opinion is openly expressed that the figures were doctored. Such publicity amounts to nothing, for it means nothing except that the management desires the public to believe certain things about its business.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The proposition of the Municipal Art society of New York that the St. Louis exposition, in its buildings and general layout, demonstrate how a city should be built, is an excellent scheme. The subject of the city beautiful has been agitated in the abstract, but not much progress has been made in the United States in the actual attempt to make a model city. It is proposed to show at St. Louis, if the plan matures, how roads and streets should be laid out, how sewers should be built, how the corners of streets should be properly treated as regards lighting and numbering, and how a city may be made beautiful as well as healthful and convenient, and at no greater expense than if it were allowed to be ugly. The administration buildings of the exposition would be used as a nucleus for the city. The scheme has an admirable practical purpose, and if well developed should give to the show's exterior a sufficiently distinctive character.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Daniel Webster's eloquence bound great multitudes fast captive to his chariot wheels: he was the idol of a wide circle of the most devoted friends; he was a charming companion in private life: in his family he was intensely affectionate and deeply loved; his theological opinions were entirely orthodox; he paid many splendid tributes to the worth of the Bible and the importance of the Christian system; he gave token at times of strong religious desires and aspirations; but how far they represented the deepest currents of his being, is not easy to say. A few months before his death he said to Professor Silliman: "I have given my life to law and politics. Law is uncertain, and politics are utterly vain." His sun of life set amid clouds. "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity," was his prevailing thought as he surveyed his career, even as it has been with so many others of the world's greatest. It is not so with Heaven's greatest. And surely the lesson is that the glittering gold of this life, however large the heap and high the glitter, ought not to deceive any into believing that solid happiness and enduring satisfaction lie that way.—Zion's Herald.

VACANCY FILLED.

James H. Churchill of Atlantic Elected on School Committee.

A joint meeting of the City Council and School Committee was held at 7.15 Monday night to fill the vacancy at large in the School board caused by the resignation of Charles F. Merrick.

Of the City Council, Councilman L. Craig, Gassett and Hughes were absent. The members of the School Committee present were Miss Adams, Messrs. Smith, Peirce, Hallowell and Record. Christopher A. Spear read the call and upon motion of Charles M. Bryant, Dr. Hallowell was elected chairman.

Christopher A. Spear was elected clerk.

Councilman Nichols moved that Messrs. Record and Faxon be a committee to count ballots.

Councilman Langelier opposed, as it was his intention to move the election of a gentleman by acclamation.

The motion was lost.

Councilman Langelier then moved that James H. Churchill be elected by acclamation.

The motion prevailed and the convention adjourned after a session of a few minutes.

Mr. James H. Churchill, the newly elected member of the School Committee, is a man well fitted for the position. He was born in Worcester, where he received his early education and about ten years ago came to Quincy, settling in Atlantic where he has since resided. While in Quincy he has never aspired for public office but takes a deep interest in our schools, and has been a close student of school matters. His election as a member of the School board will place him in line for the nomination, for the remainder of the term to which Mr. Merrick was elected. Mr. Churchill's business is that of a patent attorney with an office in the Exchange building, Boston.

Political Potpourri.

The Democratic convention for the Fifth Norfolk Representative district will be held in Quincy on Saturday evening of this week.

Charles P. King of Holbrook, who has been nominated by the Democrats of this district for senator, was last year the Democratic candidate for Congress against Congressman Lovering of Taunton. Mr. Lovering received 17,788 votes to 7,434 for Mr. King. Even Holbrook went over two to one against their townsman.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles J. Hart was arraigned for the larceny of a battery at Milton. Case continued until Wednesday.

MORE FOR CLERKS

Mayor Hall sent a communication requesting an appropriation of $200 for clerical services for the Assessors and $125 for cerical services for the Mayor. Laid on the table until later, when an order was offered.

VACANCY

A communication was received from the Board of Examiners of Norfolk County giving notice that the vacancy in the Board of County Commissioners would be filled at the coming State election. Placed on file.

ELECTION OFFICER.

The Mayor forwarded the appointment of Michael F. O'Brien as inspector in precinct one, Ward Four, in place of John J. Barry resigned. Confirmed.

CITY CAUCUSES.

The Democratic City Committee requested polling places for the municipal caucuses on Nov 8. Laid on the table until later when an order providing places was passed.

SCHOOL PLANS.

A communication was received from the School Committee saying that they approved the sketch of Albert A. Wright for the new school building at Quincy Point and would probably approve the detailed plans.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned for permission to attach wires to the poles of the Old Colony street railway on Quincy avenue, and for change in location on Washington, Liberty and Howard street.

The Washington street petition was laid on the table until later when an order was offered. The others were referred.

J. S. Smith petitioned that the telephone pole in front of his property on Copeland street be changed. Referred.

WATER TRANSFER.

The Committee on Finance reported on the order transferring $3,000 from water receipts to water construction, and of that amount $1,021 to pay bills of 1899. Rules suspended and order passed.

DOUBLE TRACK.

The Committee on Streets reported an amendment to the order granting the street railway a location for a double track on Hancock street from Johnson avenue to the new car barn, changing the time at which it must be completed to June 1, 1902. Laid on the table until later when the rules were suspended and the order passed.

NEW TURNOUT.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the street railway a location for a turnout on Washington street near Revere road. Order took its second reading.

SCHOOLHOUSE PLANS.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for $1,500 for making plans of the new school building in Ward Two. Laid on the table.

ILLEGALLY SOLD.

Councilman Freeman offered an order for $2000 to redeem the tax title of Louisa S. Metcalf, illegally sold to George E. Rogers. To Finance Committee.

$2,000 FOR LAWYERS.

Councilman Freeman offered an order for $2,000 for defending the land damage cases against the city now pending in the superior court. To Finance Committee.

POLICE SIGNAL.

Councilman Callahan offered an order for $7,500 for installing a police signal system and patrol wagons. To joint Committee on Finance and Police.

SCHOOLHOUSE APPROPRIATION.

Councilman Thompson offered an order for $55,000 for procuring working plans and building a twelve-room school building at Quincy Point.

Councilman DeNormandie opposed. This question had been carefully considered in the committee room, and it was agreed that the proper thing was an order for working plans. Under the charter no money can be appropri-

There is on exhibition at the market of Johnson Bros. a fine deer shot by George Lawton of President hill, a lad of fifteen years, while in Maine. The young man had a guide, but they become separated, and Lawton was lost for over an hour. He improved the time, however, by shooting the doe.

The Relief Corps of Kingston is being entertained in the City of Presidents today by Paul Revere corps. The women arrived this morning and were met by a committee who escorted them to places of historical interest. At noon a dinner was served. This afternoon they attend the regular meeting of the Quincy corps.

Several residents of Quincy were on the Steamship New England which arrived from abroad on Saturday, including William S. Williams, who returns from a visit of four months in England and Wales; Mrs. Parson and Archibald Parsons; Miss Roberts, a sister of John Roberts, who is to take up her residence here; Miss Bishop, Mrs. McGregor, Mr. Moorhouse and others.

Runaway Accident.

Charles W. Miller met with quite a serious accident on Hancock street near Carruth street this morning. He was driving a green horse which became frightened at an electric, and turning suddenly to one side, threw Mr. Miller out. Mr. Miller is a sufferer from rheumatism and being unable to help himself, he struck violently on the ground. Neighbors rushed to his assistance, and he was placed on the car and brought to Quincy. Dr. Davis was then called and removed him to his home. Beside being shaken up and bruised, his collar bone was broken.

The horse ran but was soon captured, but not before the buggy was smashed somewhat.

ated until plans are approved by the School Committee. They have approved the sketch but not the plans. It was a more business-like method to procure working plans. If the present order passed it must be hung up in Finance Committee as the plans after being made must be approved.

Councilman Freeman was called to the chair.

Councilman Bryant. Any architect who has the assurance that the school committee will approve his plans would be perfectly willing to make plans. He did not want the City Council to appropriate $1,500 for plans and then if there was any hitch the city would be $1,500 out. He saw no reason why the order for $55,000 should not take one reading.

Councilman DeNormandie — If the building should cost considerable more than this Council is willing to appropriate there will be no money to pay the architect. He questioned if it was right to introduce an order for money when we only have a preliminary sketch. They are all right as far as they go, but the details are not worked out.

Councilman Bryant—With one exception we have always proceeded as proposed. He then, through the president, asked Commissioner Knowlton if he did not think the architect would be willing to furnish plans with the understanding that if the order went through he would get his money?

Commissioner Knowlton—From conversation I have had with him, I think he would.

Councilman DeNormandie — By our charter we cannot appropriate money for a school building until plans are approved by the School Committee. Would like to ask the Commissioner if on the Wollaston Hose house plans he was not obliged to guarantee the payment of them.

Commissioner Knowlton—Yes. But the amount guaranteed was only a question of about $25 paid for stenographer's services.

Councilman Bass thought we should proceed legally. The School Committee have not approved plans. He did not think an order could be introduced at this stage and rushed through.

City Solicitor Sears was asked if the Commissioner would have a right to go to any architect and say "in all probability the order would pass" whether the city would not be liable.

In reply Mr. Sears said the Commissioner had no right to incur any liability for the city without an appropriation. It was incumbent upon the architect to find out if an order had been passed.

Councilman Langelier said as far as he could find out, it was legal to introduce the order for $55,000.

The substitute order was then accepted and referred to the Committee on Finance.

TO CONNECT TRACKS.

Councilman Nichols offered an order that a committee of three be appointed to confer with the Mayor to secure some action whereby the tracks of the Old Colony street railway and the Boston Elevated street railway should be connected at Neponset so that cars from Quincy should run through to Dudley street, fare from any point in Quincy not to exceed five cents.

Councilman Nichols said it was time some action was taken to get better car service. Other suburban cities had been granted permission to run to Boston. He believed it possible to bring this about.

Councilman DeNormandie thought the last clause might limit the committee. It would give them more power if it were stricken out.

The order was adopted.

The president appointed Councilmen Nichols, Bass and Adams.

FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Asa. P. French, Quincy's Choice, The Nominee of Convention Today.

The Republican convention for the Southeastern district to nominate a candidate for district attorney was held in Boston today and Asa P. French of Randolph was the nominee.

Lawyer French was placed in nomination by Fred H. Williams of Brookline, and the nomination was seconded by R. H. O. Schulz of Dedham.

Upon motion of John Everett of Canton, the convention proceeded to an informal ballot, which resulted as follows:

Thomas E. Grover had	38
Asa P. French had	136

Upon motion of Mr. Everett the ballot was made formal and the nomination unanimous.

A committee of five was appointed to wait upon Mr. French and request his presence. Mr. French responded and addressed the convention, accepting the nomination.

Charles Gallagher of Milton pledged support to the candidate.

The officers of the convention were empowered to fill vacancies.

SPRAGUE'S RIVAL.

Charles F. King Democratic Candidate For Senator.

Through some misunderstanding, or because of lack of interest, but 20 of the 52 delegates to which the Democratic Senatorial convention was entitled, were present at the convention held in Quincy on Monday evening. The convention was called for 8 o'clock but it was after 9 before it got down to business.

William T. Shea of Quincy was chairman, and Walter B. Wilson, also of Quincy, secretary.

F. W. Whitcomb of Holbrook nominated Charles F. King of the same town as the candidate for Senator, and moved his nomination by acclamation. The motion prevailed.

William T. Shea of Quincy was re-elected a member of the Democratic State Committee.

Mr. Shea thanked the convention, and spoke a good word for candidate King. He said he had served creditably for two years as a representative in the Legislature. He thought the prospects good for Democratic success in the near future.

Mr. Whitcomb said that when he came to the convention he did not know that Mr. King was to be the candidate, but he was pleased to place him in nomination, and the district should give him a big vote.

James F. Burke believed Mr. King would, if elected, serve with credit, and hoped delegates would enthuse over him. He was the first Democrat ever elected to the Legislature from Holbrook. Mr. Burke urged all to look after registration.

T. R. Newell of Braintree knew the Quincy man nominated by the Republicans was popular and a good man. He did not personally know Mr. King, but believed him worthy, and that an effort should be made to elect him. Great and unexpected changes often occur.

Mr. Holbrook of Weymouth was not personally acquainted with Candidate King, but felt that if his rival was elected it would be because he was a Republican. The Republican was a good looking man, but our candidate may be also. Mr. Quincy would keep the Republicans guessing this year and land next year.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Prominent Mason of Wollaston Passes Away in His Store.

John F. Neil of Wollaston, aged 47 years, a well known botanic druggist, died suddenly Monday night at his office, 10 Union street, Boston. He had attended the McKinley memorial services of the Ancients and was returning to his store. When near the corner of Union and Hanover streets he slipped and fell. He was assisted to his store where he complained of feeling drowsy and said he would take a short nap. Later, when he could not be aroused, his friends became alarmed. Dr. Dunn was called and pronounced him dead. Dr. Dunn said that death resulted from compression of the brain due either to apoplexy or a fracture of the skull.

Mr. Neil returned to Wollaston to reside but a few days ago, and his death came as a great shock to his wife who was at her home on Belmont street at the time.

He was a well-known Mason and the first master of the Wollaston lodge. He was also a past master of Massachusetts lodge of Boston, and a member of John Adams council, Royal Arcanum.

EXTREME REQUIREMENTS

Not Expected to Be Met In the New Isthmian Treaty

Washington, Oct. 8.—As stated some weeks ago, a treaty with Great Britain concerning isthmian affairs has been completed in rough draft and will be ready for submission when the senate meets in December. It has always been assumed that this new treaty would abrogate the Clayton-Bulyer treaty, since that was one of the conditions which the senate by its amendments insisted on, and the new treaty is supposed to meet, at least approximately, the expressed wishes of that body. This is the theory upon which it has been drawn. That it does so completely and in direct terms is not to be expected; some circumlocution has necessarily been employed in getting around the phases of the question over which the two countries are at odds.

That there is still some need for a reasonable attitude on the part of the senate is indicated by the report here that Ambassador Choate will be in Washington when congress meets and that Secretary Hay's request will go before the foreign relations committee and acquaint that body with all the details of the negotiations and the exact state of the feeling in each particular. President Roosevelt is known to be in hearty sympathy with the negotiations thus far conducted and will do everything possible to secure their consummation by the senate.

While the prospects of getting a treaty are thus good, the department officials say that a great mistake has been made in many newspaper versions of the situation by assuming that England had yielded everything and that the new compact would explicity meet the extreme requirements of the senate. A serious attempt has been made to reconcile the views of the senate with the position of Great Britain and it is hoped that the result will be the final removal of the Clayton-Bulwer bone of contention.

Afghanistan Ruler Dead

London, Oct. 8.—No confirmation has been received at the foreign office of the report of the death of the Ameer of Afghanistan, but the accuracy of the report is not doubted. In view of the existing critical situation in South Africa, the news sent something like a shock through the United Kingdom. Great confidence, however, is expressed on all sides in the ability of the Indian viceroy to deal with the situation.

Superintendent Must Move

Shamokin, Pa., Oct. 8.—The 1300 employes of the Natalie colliery returned to work today, James Bateman, ex-inside superintendent, having agreed to remove from Natalie. Bateman gained the enmity of a number of miners and a strike for his discharge was successful, Bateman being dismissed. He, however, continued to live in one of the company's houses, and the present strike was inaugurated to enforce his removal from the house.

Hits Alger's Administration

Washington, Oct. 8.—General Miles will not discuss ex-Secretary Alger's criticism upon him in his recently published book on the Spanish war beyond saying: "There are many transactions in General Alger's administration as rotten as beef pulp in the can. I do not care to say anything on the subject at present." Admiral Sampson would not discuss the book, nor would he see anyone in regard to it.

Eighty Killed In a Riot

Moscow, Oct. 8.—In [illegible]alouka, a town of 4000 inhabitants, a quarrel between Stundists and Orthodox church people led to a free fight. The Russian church was wrecked. Eighty people were killed. The police were powerless, and troops were sent from Kharoff to restore order. The Russian priests escaped with the more valuable sacred images and altar vessels.

Democrat Gets Judgeship

Washington, Oct. 8.—The appointment of Thomas G. Jones to be United States district judge for the north rn district of Alabama shows that the president has the courage to go outside of his own party when he is in search of a good man for judicial honors in the south. Jones is an ex-governor of Alabama and a gold Democrat.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

AS BECAME COMMANDER

Hodgson Testifies as to Schley's Conduct on July 3

IN POSITION OF DANGER

And Always In Full View of the Enemy's Ships—Schley Said "Damn the Texas" When Told That There Was Danger of Colliding

Washington, Oct. 8.—Lieutenant Commander Hodgson again occupied the greater part of the Schley court of inquiry yesterday as a witness. He was followed on the stand by Captain Folger, formerly chief of the bureau of ordnance of the navy department, but commander of the New Orleans during the Spanish war. Lieutenant Dyson also was recalled to add some details to his former testimony concerning the coal supply of the American fleet during the Santiago blockade.

Commander Hodgson repeated and extended his story of the battle of July 3, giving the opinion that Commodore Schley's conduct on that occasion was such as that of a commander-in-chief should have been.

The witness said that the commodore had occupied a place on a platform around the conning tower during the engagement. This, he said, was a position of danger, as the commodore was there always in full view of the enemy's ships.

"It has been stated here," said Mr. Rayner, "that the Brooklyn ran 2000 yards away from the enemy's ships in making her loop." The witness replied: "Any witness who made that statement, although he may have stated what he thought had occurred, was absolutely mistaken."

"How far did she go from the enemy's vessels?" "She must have gone about 600 yeards to the southward, as that is about the tactical diameter of the Brooklyn at that speed."

"Did this turn interfere with the Brooklyn's ability to keep up her firing?" "It did not; she continued to fire from her aft turrets.'

"Did you ever see the Indiana during the engagement?" "I did not. The smoke was very dense in the direction of the Indiana."

At this point Mr. Rayner questioned Hodgson at length concerning his reported colloquy with Admiral Schley during the battle off Santiago, in which the commodore was reported to have said "D—n the Texas!". Mr. Rayner asked the witness of it was not Captain Cook who had given the order to "port helm." The reply was that Captain Cook might have given the order to the man at the wheel. Mr. Rayner then asked: "Did Commodore Schley give the order to port the helm?" "He did," was the reply.

"Was the helm already aport?" "I guess so; Captain Cook says so." Objection was made by Captain Lemly to the use of the word "guess" by the witness, but Admiral Dewey said that the form of expression was immaterial and asked that counsel should not interrupt.

Continuing his statement, in response to Mr. Rayner's question, the witness said that when his conversation with Commodore Schley had occurred on the Brooklyn, the commodore was standing on the platform around the conning tower and two or three feet from himself (the witness) and that Captain Cook a part of the time, stood in the door of the conning tower four or five feet distant. He said that Captain Cook had taken part in the conversation.

Mr. Rayner then questioned the witness very closely in regard to the language used by Mr. Hodgson in his correspondence with Admiral Schley. He read the newspaper version of Commander Hodgson's statement of the colloquy as follows:

"Schley. 'Hard a-port.'"

"Hodgson. 'You mean starboard?'"

"Schley. 'No. I don't. We are near enough to them (the Spaniards) already.'"

"Hodgson. 'But we will cut down the Texas.'"

"Schley. 'D—n the Texas; let her look out for herself.'"

Mr. Rayner then had the witness scrutinize the letter which he had written to Schley on June 8, and drew from him the statement that he had not then informed the admiral that he had used the expression, "D—n the Texas." When the witness was asked if he thought there was any suggestion of such an expression, he replied: "When I suggested to Commodore Schley that there was danger of colliding with the Texas, he said, 'D—n the Texas.' He used the expression as not in any way condemning the Texas for being there, but as if he were irritated as one might be about anything." Mr. Rayner then asked about the expression attributed to the witness, "she will cut down the Texas." Commodore Hodgson replied that there was no such expression in the letter, and that he never had said that the Brooklyn would cut down the Texas.

"There is a good deal in that reported colloquy that I did not say," he added. "The statement was never made," he went on, "but the commodore did say, 'D—n the Texas.'"

Captain Folger testified that the bombardments of the Christobal Colon on May 31 had been eminently successful in developing the strength of the Spanish shore batteries and had shown them to be very weak. He also said that if the Spanish vessels had attempted to escape at night they could not have been seen by the blockading fleet in bad weather.

Live Stock Shows
...AT THE...
PAN-AMERICAN

WHEN Superintendent Converse promised a better series of live stock shows at the Pan-American Exposition than was ever before attempted, the statement was accepted as an ordinary pleasant and pardonable exaggeration.

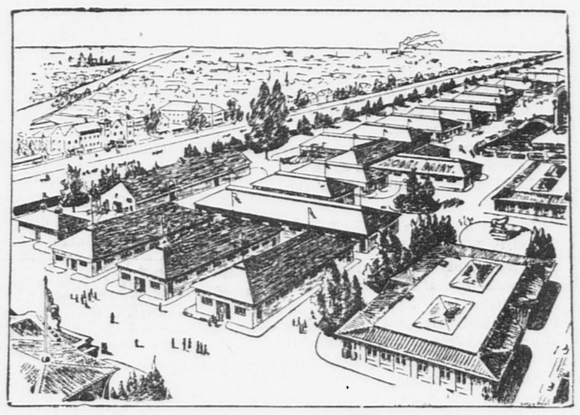

The complete success of the dog and the swine shows, however, proved to be the first steps toward redeeming his promise.

The cattle show was an agreeable surprise to every stockman who saw it and at once established a new standard of excellence that will not be equaled for years to come and possibly never surpassed as regards quality.

The sheep show, now fully under way and lasting to Oct. 25, is in every way a worthy successor to the dog, the swine and the cattle shows. The best flocks in the United States and Canada are represented, together with their recent additions of imported stock, consisting of about twenty fine animals now shown in this country for the first time.

The sheep show, taken as a whole, is one of the most complete ever brought together. Every important breed has a strong representation, while every breed known has an exhibit of some kind. The Island Black Face, of which there are but three or four flocks in the United States, are well represented, and they are creating a great deal of interest among the exhibitors and visitors.

All classes in the middle wools are particularly strong, among which are noted prizewinners from the east, west, north, south and Canada. The strongest representation of all is from the Merinos. Vermont, the home of the Merino, where the only distinctive American breed of sheep originated, is represented by many of her best breeders. This fact deserves more than a passing notice, as our domestic animals of American origin are not numerous. We have borrowed almost everything of this nature from other countries. The only other exception is possibly the American trotting horse.

LIVE STOCK BUILDINGS, PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

Angora Goats.

In connection with the sheep show is an exhibit of 240 Angora goats. These interesting animals fill one of the live stock pavilions. The growing of Angora goats is a comparatively new business in this country, and very little is known about it in the east. Their adaptability to rough, rocky pasture lands, where they graze and grow contentedly, has brought them prominently into consideration where such lands have proved useless or nearly so.

Wool Exhibit.

As another feature of the sheep show Superintendent Converse has arranged an exhibition of wool. This is international in scope, having fleeces from the different states, Canada and several South American countries. Argentina alone contributes more than 200 sample fleeces. Chile, Costa Rica, Bolivia, Salvador and other Central and South American countries are also represented. Such an international wool exhibit was never before attempted. It cannot fail to produce lasting benefits that will be shared by growers of sheep, manufacturers of woolen goods and through them the general public.

Shearing Machinery.

Still another accessory to the sheep industry is elaborately illustrated. In one of the stock buildings a platform was erected about three feet above the floor, upon which is installed the latest and best shearing and clipping machinery. Some of the machines are operated by electricity, while others are worked by hand. To show to Exposition visitors their practical working, twenty sheep are brought from the East Buffalo stockyards every morning. One machine is set in motion each half hour during the day, and one of the men in charge removes a fleece with it. One of the operators claims a speed of one and one-half minutes to a fleece.

Range Sheep.

In a pen outside of the regular sheep exhibit is a carload of range sheep direct from the Canadian northwest. These are sent as an advertisement of the rich pasture lands and an illustration of what may be produced there without additional feed and without artificial shelter.

The Pan-American Horse Show.

Dame Fashion may have withdrawn her smile of approval and the different styles of autos turn their backs in derision, but the horse still holds favor with the great majority of mankind. The horse show at the Exposition which holds the boards for two weeks, from Oct. 7 to Oct. 19, will be no exception. Five hundred horses are coming which are carefully selected to faithfully represent the best of every breed found in the United States and Canada.

Vermont is again courting prominence by sending a fine lot of Morgan horses, a breed that should receive more attention than it does.

Draft horses, especially the Clydesdale and Percheron breeds, are well represented. These are principally from Canada and the western states.

German coach horses attract a great deal of attention. One large importation of these horses will be brought direct to the Exposition.

French-Canadian horses from Quebec are entered more as a special feature of the horse show. They are little known in the United States, but their style and endurance will commend them as superior coach horses and those that will command favor in any market.

Instead of enumerating the different breeds it is only necessary to select any kind of horse wanted, with the assurance that it will be on exhibition. The finest stables on the continent are contributing to the show with sufficient enthusiasm to insure the finest representation possible. The judging takes place in the Stadium on the 9th and 10th of October, when this immense structure will be none too large to accommodate those who will want to see this crowning climax to such an elaborate series of live stock shows.

Poultry and Pet Stock.

From Oct. 21 to the close of the fair the stock pavilions will be once more filled with life, though in a very different form. Poultry of high degree from all parts of the United States and many places in Canada will fraternize without regard to politics or tariffs. As near neighbors the poultry will have mice, rabbits, cats, cavies, prairie dogs, squirrels, ferrets, rats and Belgian hares, besides a great assortment of pigeons, owls, magpies and a great many cage birds.

Eight thousand animals and birds are being gathered together to form this complete cosmopolitan assemblage of birds and animals.

The Pan-American Exposition is proving a great success. While the enterprise suffered for a few days from the national tragedy, the crowds that have put off going until the fall are rushing to Buffalo in great numbers now.

President Roosevelt said of the Pan-American Exposition, "It is well worth the while of every man, woman and child in the country to visit the Pan-American Exposition."

More than 5,000,000 people have visited the Pan-American Exposition. As Secretary of Agriculture Wilson said on Sept. 11, after a visit, "No one can afford to keep away."

Thomas A. Edison said of the Pan-American Exposition after viewing the illumination, "This is the apotheosis of the incandescent light."

Poultrymen from all over the United States will be meeting at Buffalo and the Pan-American Exposition the last three weeks of October.

The stock shows at the Pan-American Exposition have been most popular. The sheep show began Sept. 23 and lasts until Oct. 25.

Innes' band, one of the best in the country, will give concerts free to all Pan-American Exposition visitors from Oct. 7 to 20.

SAMPSON'S HEALTH

The Admiral Is Suffering From Mental and Physical Afflictions

Washington, Oct. 8.—Rear Admiral Sampson is profiting by the daily care and attention of one of the best local physicians. He receives no callers at his present home on New Hampshire avenue and is directly under the personal care of Mrs. Sampson.

As to the admiral's condition it is stated that he suffers at present from an unusually prolonged attack of aphasia, an ailment which has troubled him in greater or less degree since he was chief of the naval bureau of ordnance. Save for this and a feeble condition resulting from a too close application to work it can be stated that Admiral Sampson has no other affliction and that his condition is not serious to a degree wherein his life would be considered as in danger. He has been for a great many years a sufferer from the most painful headaches and these among other things are held responsible for his present mental condition. He is able to take short walks and other light exercise, but nothing more. Admiral Sampson will retire next February at 62 years of age.

Telephone Linemen May Strike

Chicago, Oct. 8.—A general strike of the linemen employed by the Bell Telephone company and its numerous allied systems throughout the country is threatened as a result of the Chicago Telephone company's refusal to grant the striking linemen's demands for an increase in the wage scale. The Chicago company is declared by the strikers to be practically the same as the Bell company. If the general strike shall be called, more than 12,000 linemen of the Bell company and allied concerns will be involved.

Move of Boer Sympathizers

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Boer sympathizers in this country are preparing to appeal to President Roosevelt to stop the sending of supplies from the United States to the British in South Africa. The endless chain plan has been started by the American Transvaal league of Chicago and sympathizers are sent bundles of private post cards addressed to President Roosevelt with instructions to sign them and get friends to sign the cards and mail to the president.

Must Await Developments

Washington, Oct. 8.—Both parties to the asphalt controversy, the New York and Bermudez company and the Warner-Quinlan syndicate, have declined to enter into the arrangement for an amicable settlement of their troubles, the foundation of which was laid by Minister Bowen at Caracas last week. In this state of the case the department of state can do nothing but await the developments in Venezuela.

Chemist Found No Poison

Dayton, O., Oct. 8.—Profssor Russell Elliott, the chemist, has made a report to the coroner on the chemical examination made on 12 drugs found at the home of Mrs. Witwer, who has been arrested because she is suspected of having committed at least a dozen murders. The chemist failed to find any poison in 11 of the drugs. The other drug will be examined today. Mrs. Witwer insists that she is innocent.

Czolgosz' Doings Kept Secret

Albany, Oct. 8.—State Superintendent of Prisons Collins has given orders that Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley, must not be the subject of notoriety while in Auburn prison awaiting death by electricity. The guards and other employes of the prison have been notified that divulging of information concerning him or his doings will be considered a grave breach of discipline.

The Country's Death Rate

Washington, Oct. 8.—Statistics compiled by the marine hospital service for 1190 cities and towns in the United States having a population of 1000 or more, indicates for the United States an annual mortality for the last calendar year of 17.47 per 1000 of population according to the census of 1900.

THE POISE

Of a woman in perfect health attracts the eye at once. Such a woman is all too rarely seen. The most of women bear scars of suffering on their faces which no smiles can hide, and often in their very carriage betray the womanly weakness which oppresses them.

There can be no perfect health for the woman who suffers from disease of the delicate womanly organism. Her general health is so intimately related to the local health of the womanly organs that these must be cured before the general health can be established.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures womanly disorders and diseases; brightens the dull eye, rounds out the hollow cheek and gives strength for wifely duties and maternal cares.

"My health is the best now that it has been for four years," writes Mrs. Phebe Morris, of Ira, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Box 52. "I have taken but two bottles of your medicine, 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' These medicines have done me more good than all that I have ever taken before. I couldn't do my work only about half the time, and now I can work all the time for a family of four. Before I took your medicines I was sick in bed nearly half the time. My advice to all who are troubled with female weakness is to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery'—the most wonderful medicines in the world."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

GOVERNMENT AT WORK

In Endeavor to Secure Release of Miss Stone

MISSION BOARD'S POSITION

Reiterates That It Had No Right to Pay a Ransom, Thereby Establishing a Dangerous Precedent, Even If It Had the Funds

Hartford, Oct. 9.—After devotional exercises at last evening's session of the American board, President Capen read the official report of the board concerning the captivity and ransom of Miss Ellen M. Stone. The report was as follows:

There is such universal interest in the case of Miss Stone that it seems wise for the officers of the board to make a brief statement of the facts as they exist at the present time. For several weeks the government authorities at Washington have been at work, using every possible effort to secure her release. We have been in frequent communication with our representative in Constantinople. Last Thursday we received a dispatch from Washington which told us how increasingly grave the situation had become. On the receipt of this telegram the prudential committee came together and considered the situation most thoroughly. On the one side was the fact that if we yielded to this demand for ransom it was putting a premium on the lives of the missionaries of every society in the world. The question was even broader than the case of missionaries; it practically concerned the safety of any and every American citizen.

Recognizing the full gravity of the situation, the committee decided that it had no right to pay a ransom and establish a precedent which would be sure to be dangerous in all the future. Furthermore, we were restrained by the further fact that we had no funds that could be employed for this purpose. The government was restrained from paying the money by constitutional limitation and the American board seemed equally restrained from paying a ransom.

The solicitude of the committee was such and their purpose to do everything possible was so strong that they sent a deputation to meet President Roosevelt and the officials of the state department This conference was held last Saturday forenoon. It is impossible to overstate the sympathy and interest of the president, the acting secretary of state and other officials.

The government showed what steps it was taking and how every power of diplomacy was being used to effect the release of Miss Stone. Confidential details were given and the friends of the board can be assured that everything conceivable is being done to further the recovery of Miss Stone. The heart and the persistence of the president in this effort were most significant. They assured us that apparently at the moment the only practicable method to secure her life was to have the funds promptly at hand to pay the ransom.

But it ought to be clearly understood that this is but one step; that when she is released there will be a vigorous attempt not only to secure the return of the money, but, furthermore, to bring about such conditions that such an occurrence shall not be possible in the future. No one doubts that our government will not drop this matter until the rights of American citizenship are established.

Meanwhile a movement was begun under the leadership of the family of Miss Stone to secure by popular appeal the amount of the ransom.

Under this new advice of the government a meeting of the prudential committee was called on Sunday morning. The report of the gentlemen sent to Washington was received and it was decided that while we could not recede from the action of last Friday, the tidings of the government made it most evident that the first thing was to secure Miss Stone's safety, then the other steps would follow; therefore we felt that as individuals it was our duty and to help by all means in our power the securing of this ransom from the general public.

Money has been received in answer to this appeal for humanity. The government has showed its supreme interest in this matter by already becoming the custodians of this fund as handed to them by Kidder, Peabody & Co. This plan not only shows the government's interest, but it guards any possibility that any part of the money will be paid over until Miss Stone herself has been placed in safety in the hands of the proper authorities.

It will be seen from the above statement that the board has been a unit in its whole action from the beginning and consistent throughout. Any one who had been present at the conference in Washington would not hesitate to have full confidence in the government's efforts. The officials of the board, having been received into its confidence, are willing to trust the government; we, in turn, have no doubt that the friends of the board will have confidence in us.

Contributers' Rush Is Over

Boston, Oct. 9.—No additional statement of money received for the ransom fund for Miss Stone was given out by Kidder, Peabody & Co., after the one yesterday afternoon showing a total of $56,574.61. The rush of contributors is over, because of the general opinion that the critical moment has been averted and that a month's time offers ample opportunity to add to the fund.

A Female Check Swindler

New York, Oct. 9.—Emma A. Sargeant, who says she is a maid to a member of a theatrical company now playing in Worcester, Mass., was arraigned before Judge Cowing yetsterday to answer the charge of petty larceny. Assistant District Attorney Train alleged that she had a systematic way of swindling by passing worthless checks. The jury convicted the woman of passing a worthless check and she was remanded to the tombs until Friday for sentence.

Isaak Wants Paper Re-entered

Washington, Oct. 9.—Abraham Isaak, the publisher of a Chicago paper called Free Society, which was barred from the mails by the Chicago postmaster, has applied for re-entry of the publication to the second class. Postmaster Coyne forwarded a copy of the paper containing an article by Emma Goldman on the assassination of President McKinley for a ruling on the question of its re-entry to the mails.

Engines Chained to Track

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 9.—Since Saturday morning the engines of the Chicago and Southeastern railroad have been chained to the tracks by the workmen. A strike has been on in the local shops of the road for over a week. The men declare they have received no pay for two months. Suits have been filed in the circuit court by the workmen demanding their wages.

Wholesale Vaccination

St. John, Oct. 9.—The stringent quarantine regulations relative to vessels arriving from United States ports are being most rigidly observed. Dr Harch boarded the steamer St. Croix on arrival from Boston yesterday and any not vaccinated had to undergo the operation, 50 being treated. Several sailing craft were also inspected and the crew vaccinated.

Faith In Kitchener

Liverpool, Oct. 9.—Lord Roberts, after distributing medals to the troops yesterday, alluded to the concern of the nation over South African affairs and to the attacks of the press on the government for not doing more. The government, he said, relied on Lord Kitchener, whose every request had been complied with. He exhorted the people to be patient.

Fund For Disabled Bicyclists

New York, Oct. 9.—The National Cycling board of control announces that one of the matters that will receive attention at the next annual meeting of the National Cycling association is a plan for establishing a fund out of which will be granted an allowance for professional riders injured in competition.

Alleged Colombian Outrages

Kingston, Ja., Oct. 9.—The newspapers here print a number of letters from ports of Colombia complaining of outrages on British subjects, including women. Strong appeals are made to the government to send a warship for their protection and also to demand compensation.

Carrie Strikes Another Snag

Wheeling, Oct. 9.—Carrie Nation, the saloon-smasher, is in jail here because she will not pay a fine of $20, give a peace bond, or leave the city. She entered a saloon here, accompanied by 400 women and men, but was arrested before she could do anyuthing.

A Private Affair

New York, Oct. 9.—Sir Thomas Lipton was the guest of the New York Yacht club at a reception and dinner given at the club last night. About 200 members of the club were present. There were no set speeches and nothing that was said was made public.

Ship Sunk Off Cape Horn

London, Oct. 9.—The French bark Dupleix, from San Francisco May 1, before reported spoken partially dismasted, has arrived at St. Nazaire. She reports having collided off the coast of Cape Horn with a four-masted ship, which sunk.

CANNOT GET BEARINGS

Of Relative Positions of Ships In Santiago Fight

CHART-MAKING TESTIMONY

Wainwright Says That Navigators Who Signed Official Report Were Dissatisfied—Much-Discussed Chart Was a Compromise of Opinions

Wshington, Oct. 9.—There were two new witnesses before the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. They were Commander Wainwright, who commanded the Gloucester during the war with Spain, and Lieutenant Bristol, who as ensign, was a watch and division officer on the battle ship Texas during that period.

Commander Wainwright's testimony dealt largely with chart making. He was for a time senior member of the board of navigators which prepared the official chart showing the position of the American ships during the battle off Santiago and he gave details of the method of its preparation. He said he did not consider the position assigned in that drawing accurate, but that they were given as a result of a compromise of the veiws of the members of the board.

Captain Lemly began his examination of Commander Wainwright by drawing from the witness the fact that he had been a member and latterly senior member of the board which had officially acted in making the chart showing the positions of the American and Spanish ships at Santiago. The witness told how conclusions were reached by that board.

He said: "When I reported as senior member of the board, the board of navigation had a sketched chart before them with the number of positions sketched on it, which had been determined by them, starting at different periods, first when the ships came out and afterward when they went ashore. Each navigator, as near as possible, would put the position of his ship at that time. Then there was a great deal of discussion as to the relative positions. Of course it was impossible to get any position by bearings and there was nothing known about the relative positions. The impossibility of getting bearings even if we had a correct chart was apparent, but it gave a general idea of the positions of the vessels during different periods of the battle."

Mr. Rayner asked if it was true, as officially stated in the report, that the positions were assigned from unknown bearings. The witness replied that the statement was incorrect; that they were established by estimated bearings. Most of the positions were, he said, fixed by discussions among the navigators constituting the board, although Captain Chadwick was before the board. The navigators had done the best they could in plotting the vessels and had made it as nearly correct as possible, so long after the engagement as had been stated by the board. Asked by Mr. Rayner about the places assigned to the Brooklyn and the Texas, while the former vessel was making her loop, Commander Wainwright said he did not consider them correct. "For myself," said he, "I was never satisfied with the places assigned." He said further that while the board had done the best it could at the time, as a board, it had not done the best to satisy any member of the board. "It was the best we could do to get all the members of the board to sign the report," he said.

"Who, in addition to yourself, was not satisfied?" asked Mr. Rayner. "I would not like to say," responded the witness. "I know that the navigator of the Texas was not, for one. I think none was satisfied, except the navigator of the Brooklyn, and I don't know that he was."

"But notwithstanding you were all, including the navigator of the Brooklyn, dissatisfied you signed the report?" "That is correct."

On redirect examination, Commander Wainwright said that in making the chart all the members of the board were at liberty to contribute whatever data they had, or make whatever arguments they might desire. He also said that the chart was a compromise of opinions. In response to further questions the witness said that he did not see the Brooklyn on the day of the battle of Santiago.

Lieutenant Bristol had not concluded his testimony when the court adjourned for the day. He did not see the loop made by the Brooklyn, the greater part of his testimony turning upon a chart he had made showing largely, according to his opinion, the positions of the various ships of the American fleet at different times during the engagement of July 3. There were several spirited controversies between counsel over questions asked the witness by Mr. Rayner concerning this chart.

Lieutenant Commander Hodgson, Captain Folger and Lieutenant Dyson made additions to their previous testimony.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ If the White House pleaess President Roosevelt and his family the rest of us have no immediate reason to grumble. But on general principles it would seem that the president of the United States ought to have a home which he did not share with business and the public.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The Democracy of childhood teaches many lessons to older persons. To the schoolmates of Kermit Roosevelt the fact that he is the president's son will make no difference whatever. The lad will be compelled to stand upon his own merits and to take from his companions just what he earns by his own conduct. The public schools train the best citizens, for they provide a mimic world in which personality counts. The freedom from ulterior motives makes the actions of school children a good criterion by which to judge the mature life of the future. As he coins his geography and struggles with his etymology lesson, young Roosevelt will be on the level of the humblest pupil and may be he will live to see the boy from the alley in the White House.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

☞ Capt. William Andrews and his bride have started to cross the ocean blue in a small sail boat. There is nothing new about the trip except the fact that there is a bride in the case, but there is the same foolhardy quality about it all that has characterized other attempts of this nature. There is no gain in any of these voyages except the opportunity if the trip is completed to get engagements in the museums. It has been proven that a small boat can sail across the ocean and live. That fact, of some interest if of no value, having been established, there is now nothing in the imitation of the first pioneers but simple reckless idiocy. To see, therefore, two people deliberately taking enormous risks so unnecesarily and so unprofitably is to realize again that we all have our follies and that some are greater than others.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ The head bookkeeper in a Philadelphia carpet factory, who has just returned from the Pan-American exposition, says that labor saving machines for keeping accounts displayed there threaten to put him and many more like him out of business. He says he saw five machines that will enable a merchant to dispense with his bookkeeper and turn over the control of accounts to a young woman who incidentally acts as typewritist. The machines, manipulated by the typewritist, will make out a bill, copy the invoice permanently in a book and make permanent sales sheet copy. The accuracy, rapidity of action and economy of labor strongly recommend them to employers. The principal drawback just now is the cost. The lowest priced machine is $160. But it may be only a question of year or two before they will be as cheap as typewriters.—Philadelphia Record.

Memorial Service.

A memorial service will be held at the Stone Temple, Quincy, upon Saturday afternoon October 12, at 3 o'clock, for Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus and his comrades of Co. C., 9th U. S. Infantry, who were killed at the recent massacre at Samar in the Philippines.

The occasion calls for the sympathetic interest of everyone. There will be appropriate speaking and music. All are invited.

SENATOR SPRAGUE RENOMINATED.

Was Elected Last Year by Plurality of Over 2900 Votes.

The Republican convention for the First Norfolk Senatorial district was held in Wesleyan hall, Boston, at noon today, and the business was transacted expeditiously.

Hon. Eugene H. Sprague of Quincy was renominated by acclamation.

Last year Candidate Sprague was elected by a plurality of 2,904 over Edwin C. Jenney, a popular Democrat of Hyde Park. In every city and town he made gains in plurality, and the total vote of the district was: Sprague, 6,642; Jenney, 3,738. Even Canton got into the Republican column, and Randolph went Democratic by only 7. Quincy, his home city led with a purality of 884, but Hyde Park and Weymouth each gave over 500, and Milton nearly 500. Braintree gave over 300, and the small town of Holbrook rolled up 173 plurality. Only one candidate for Senator in the district ever received a larger vote than was given Senator Sprague last year.

H. Clifford Gallagher of Milton was elected a member of the Republican State Committee.

Senator Sprague entertained after the convention at the Parker House.

NEW CHURCH HOME.

Work of Remodelling of Swedish Congregational Church Completed.

The rebuilding of the church home of the Swedish Congregational society on Garfield street will be completed this week and the new edifice will be dedicated on Sunday, Oct. 20. Frequenters of this section of the city will hardly recognize in the pretty church the little barn-like building that served as a church for several years, for it has been enlarged and changed so that all resemblance to the old building has been eliminated. The carpenter was Eric G. Bergfors and he has fulfilled his part of the work very creditably.

In the old building, a long flight of steps led to the single entrance on the front of the building. These have been removed and now there are two entrances, one on either side. On the west side of the front a tower has been built giving it a church appearance.

A sixteen-foot addition has also been erected at the rear of the building, and gables on the east and west side made it possible to put in large stained glass windows. In the front the small windows have also been replaced by large window. Add to this a new coat of paint and the change is complete.

The entrance on the east side leads to a small vestibule from which doors lead to two toilet rooms and also to the Sunday School room, which is now nearly twice the size of the former room, which was largely taken up with a furnace.

In the rear of the Sunday School room is a room for the library, a kitchen and a third room in which is located the boiler, which will heat the building.

There is also a stairway leading from the library to the rear of the platform in the main auditorium.

The entrance on the west side of the front leads to a vestibule from which a broad stairway leads to the main auditorium on the second floor. Here several changes have also taken place. The pulpit platform which was formerly located in the southeast corner is now in the centre in a large alcove, on either side of this are two small rooms.

Another addition is a gallery which extends across the front of the building. The large gable windows furnish plenty of light while the stained glass has the effect of softening the light.

The building is heated throughout with steam, and lighted by electricity.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Thayer Again Defeated.

Thayer Academy was defeated Tuesday for the second time this season. Although equally matched, Thayer lacked the vim and pertinacity which helped wonderfully toward Brookline's victory. Brookline showed up well both on the offensive and defensive, except in the latter part of game, when Thayer made repeated gains through Brookline's line. Little trouble was found in making one touchdown, and there would undoubtedly have been another were it not for the unfair decision of the referee. Thayer was again pressing the visiting team's line when time was called, the score standing 11-6 in Brookline's favor.

In the first half Thayer seemed afraid of the visitors, for they could not stop or break up Brookline's strong interference. With a few more such men as Carr, Reilley, Remick, Arnold and Platt, Thayer would probably have had a walkover.

A big improvement has been noticed in the team since its first game and there is chance for considerable more before the next one. It is evident that this year's team misses the coaching of Mr. James Townsend.

The Quincy Telephone exchange has been made a night office and the operator is not permitted to sleep as heretofore.

The excitement incident to traveling and change of food and water often brings on diarrhœa, and for this reason no one should leave home without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. For sale by all druggists.

A pool tournament for the championship of Brackett, Field, Pond and Canal streets, known as the Back Bay district is soon to be played between Edward Myett and Maurice Gatcomb.

The Atlantic beach begins to take on a dismal appearance, although many boats are seen dotting the bay, while their occupants are fishing. The greater part of the boats have been stripped of sails and coverings ready for winter housing.

Mrs. Frank C. Granger of Randolph is to read a paper on Abigail Adams, to the Junior Auxiliary of the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, at their meeting Saturday morning at the John Adams birthplace.

Miss Mollie Adams of Wollaston was tied for first place in the qualifying round of the United States Golf Association on the links of the Baltusrol club at Short Hills, N. J., on Tuesday and will play Miss Lane of Baltimore.

Once again the overflow from the Quincy school has to find shelter in Poland's hall, Norfolk Downs. It is hoped, now that Mr. James Churchill of Walker street has been elected on the School Board, that the prospect of a new building will be more in evidence for it has long been needed. Mr. Churchill has the reputation of not letting the grass grow under his feet.

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Morton, dated lastfrom London, expressing more admiration for England than for any of eleven countries visited. They were at Stratford when the sad news of the assassination of our late President reached them. Later, while walking in a street in Paris, they were accosted by a stranger, who said, "Your President is dead." They joined in the very great and impressive services in Paris. They will next take a run through Ireland, and will leave Queens town in a few days for home.

SCHOOLS IN PORTO RICO

Encouraging Results of the Work of a Year.

IMPROVEMENT IN FACILITIES.

Dr. Brumbaugh, United States Commissioner of Education, In a Private Letter to a Friend Tells What Has Been Accomplished In a Short Time.

Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh, United States commissioner of education of Porto Rico, in a private letter to a friend at Schenectady, N. Y., tells of the progress of educational work in the island. He says:

First.—We maintain school in Porto Rico for nine months—i. e., the average school year is nine months. This is as high as any state in the Union, I think.

Second.—Our average daily attendance for nine months was 75 per cent. In 1897-8 it was in Massachusetts 76, Pennsylvania 74, New York 68, Kansas 69, Virginia 68, Texas 66 and New Mexico 64. Thus, you see, we are now ahead of Pennsylvania by 1 per cent and within 1 per cent of Massachusetts. This is a conclusive argument that our schools are popular in the true sense.

Third.—Under military government we had 612 schools. On May 1, 1900, we had 800 schools. For term opening Sept. 30 we shall have 1,000 schools.

Fourth.—When I came here, we had less than 100 good American school desks for pupils. Washington sent a few secondhand desks. Since I came we have put into the schools' use 7,000 first class desks. This year we shall add 7,500.

Fifth.—In January we had not one schoolhouse of our own in Porto Rico. We now have eighteen agricultural schoolhouses built and ready for Sept. 30, eight more in process of erection, six four room brick graded schools ready, two four room almost ready, three ten room in process, ready Sept. 30; one six room in process, ready Sept. 30; three two room in process, ready Sept. 30; cost of all, $200,000; cost of equipment, $30,000; insular normal, ready Nov. 1, $35,000; value of permanent equipment, $265,000 in six months.

Sixth.—We have petitions for more schools daily; demand greatly exceeds supply. Our limit is money. We have $500,000 in this year's budget for schools, which is 25 per cent of all insular funds. Impossible to maintain more from insular revenue. United States government ought to give us $250,000 to $300,000 annually for ten years to erect schoolhouses. No local district has been able to erect a schoolhouse.

Seventh.—We have in many schools fifty-five pupils—the limit—and as many as 124 on the waiting list—i. e., batches up to 124 ready to enter various schools as soon as we can find room for them.

Eighth.—Spain had a few schools—only in towns. The poor peons never had a single school. We have now opened over 400 rural schools and 200 more will open Sept. 30, 1901. This is democratic ideals working among the humble and neglected. To us it is one of our best results.

Ninth.—Some one in Chicago is trying to have an official (?) Spanish version of the "Star Spangled Banner" adopted. It is not needed in Porto Rico. All our 40,000 children sing "America," "Hail Columbia" and "Star Spangled Banner" in English. We want no Spanish version of our national hymns. The children easily and quickly sing in English, and a national song loses force in a translation of any sort.

Tenth.—We are now on a propaganda to beautify the school grounds. First attempt—houses are being whitewashed or painted, grounds fenced, campus provided, flowers planted, an effort to take care of grounds and house. Its influence in the homes of the people is good.

Eleventh.—Local boards this year will have money to pay all their debts for the first time. This is the financial stamina injected in one year—e. g., Ponce owed $8,000 last year.

Twelfth.—Systematic practical agriculture will be taught in twenty schools—i. e., one acre of ground will be worked daily. Thus the industrial future of Porto Rico is being conserved.

Thirteenth.—The total cost of a pupil 1 nour schools during the past year to the insular government is $12 for nine months.

Fourteenth.—The Hon. Andrew Carnegie has practically conceded to us a free public library ($150,000), due to my personal effort.

Fifteenth.—A free public library is furnishing 7,500 volumes; open daily till 10 p. m. Doing much good.

Sixteenth.—Budget for 1900 gave $400,000, for 1901 $500,000, for maintenance of schools.

This 25 per cent increase represents only our financial, not our educational growth. We could have voted $1,000,000 and had support from public sentiment. But we knew our financial limits. The main objection to the budget was that the school fund was too small.

Shamrock May Stay Here.

The New York Commercial Advertiser states upon what it believes to be reliable information that Sir Thomas Lipton has decided to allow the Shamrock II. to remain in American waters and that she will be here in trim to race either the Columbia or the Constitution next season. Captain Sycamore and the greater part of the present crew, it is said, will remain with her, so as to improve every opportunity to familiarize themselves with American waters.

Fall Hunting in Maine Woods.

The hunting season is now on and the sportsmen have already commenced to migrate towards the inexhaustible woodlands and forests of Maine where game in abundance can be found.

The reports received this year state that Deer are more plentiful than ever before, and during the close season hunters who had gone down to camp early so as to get a line on their whereabouts and be able to bag a few deer at the outset, were startled at the great numbers which appeared to be everywhere.

From the Moosehead Lake country reports are to the effect that the guides are making ready for more sportsmen than ever before, and scores of moose have been seen in that vicinity.

The country along the Penobscot River and the Aroostook region are fairly alive this year with deer, and this is also considered a remarkably good moose territory.

Maine offers scenes and pleasures in the line of fishing and hunting all her own, and in the chase for big game, she has no competitors. Deer are not only more numerous in Maine, but they grow to a much larger size and the person who knows how to handle a gun at all, is reasonably sure of his full quota of deer and moose.

Although deer and moose are usually enough to satisfy the appetite of the average sportsman, still they are by no means the only kind of game to be found in these vast timberlands. Braces of smaller game, together with a plentiful supply of partridge and quail have already been brought into camp; and in that section which lies contiguous to the Dead River Region, and known as the Rangeley Region, the farmers are very much troubled on account of the numerous depredations which have this year been made by bears on the orchards and cornfields. Bears are much more numerous this season than ever before, and to the sportman who enjoy this exciting sport, this portion of Maine is an especially desirable spot.

All ways now lead to Maine, and remember that the Boston & Maine Railroad is the only road out of New England that makes direct connections for the heart of the Hunting and Fishing region.

Send two-cent stamp to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, for their illustrated book called "Fishing & Hunting."

TODAY'S COURT.

Guiseppie Macoqui and Ameclo P. Nardini were fined $5 each for trespass at Milton.

The continued case of Charles J. Hart for the larceny of a battery at Milton, was called, and he was fined $10.

Columbia Theatre.

An arrangement has been effected by which Rice's superb presentation of "Evangeline" will terminate its engagement at the Columbia theatre, Boston, Saturday evening, October 19, and go on tour, appearing in all the principal cities. On the Monday following, "The King's Carnival" will appear, coming direct from the New York theatre, with its entire gorgeous paraphernalia, and nearly two hundred people. In New York "The King's Carnival" has appeared for many months, to audiences crowding the house to the doors. The present attraction, "Evangeline" shows no diminution in its popularity. At every performance the Columbia is crowded. Among the new comers in the cast is Mr. Gus Daily, a young comedian who has made a decided hit in the part of LeBlanc.

A series of Sunday night concerts for charitable purposes was inaugurated at the Columbia last Sunday evening. The best reserved seat costs only fifty cents. Next Sunday night the second of the series will be given. Towne's First Battalion Cavalry Band furnishes music.

When you have no appetite, do not relish your food and feel dull after eating you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Price, 25 cents. At all druggists.

Theatrical Man Drops Dead

Ogden, Utah, Oct. 9.—Professor William Robinson, well known to theatrical people through the United Staes, dropped dead of heart disease in this city yesterday. Robinson was a pupil of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan in London, was musical director for the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, led the orchestra for the Castle Square companies in New York and Chicago, and later was connected with the Southwell company.

Heroic Work at a Fire

New York, Oct. 9.—The bark Griffel was damaged by fire and sunk last night while lying at her dock in the East river. Firemen and policemen went into the hold and removed 250 cases of gunpowder which were part of the cargo. The cases were thrown overboard as fast as passed up. Captain Billett estimates the loss at about $150,000.

Bank Embezzler Sentenced

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 9.—Charles A. Johnson, former cashier of the First National bank of Niles, who embezzled over $100,000 from the institution, pleaded guilty yesterday to violation of the United States banking laws and was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment, the limit of the law.

Jew Colony In Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 9.—Dr. Von Blowitz says he has arranged for colonizing 65,000 jews in this republic and claims to have bought 1,000,000 acres of land in the state of Sonora where the first Hebrew colony will be established.

Norfolk County League.

The Norfolk County League has reorganized again for its games this winter and a very warm and close contest is looked for. The North Quincy club, a new member this year to the league, has some very strong men they will put in the field, and they certainly anticipate carrying off some of the prizes. The league will consist this year of the following clubs:

Braintree, of South Braintree.
Merrymount, of Wollaston.
North Quincy, of Norfolk Downs.
Commonwealth, of Weymouth.

The games will be whist, pool, billiards and candle-pin bowling.

The following is the schedule for the winter:

Oct. 15	Commonwealth at Merrymount North Quincy at Braintree.
Oct. 22	Merrymount at North Quincy. Braintree at Commonwealth.
Nov. 5	North Quincy at Merrymount. Commonwealth at Braintree.
Nov. 19	Braintree at North Quincy. Merrymount at Commonwealth.
Dec. 3	Merrymount at Braintree. Commonwealth at North Quincy.
Dec. 17	Braintree at Merrymount. North Quincy at Commonwealth.

Jan. 7	Braintree at Commonwealth. Merrymount at North Quincy.
Jan. 21	Commonwealth at Braintree. North Quincy at Merrymount.
Feb. 4	Braintree at North Quincy. Merrymount at Commonwealth.
Feb. 18	Commonwealth at North Quincy Merrymount at Braintree.
Feb. 25	Braintree at Merrymount. North Quincy at Commonwealth.

The Men's Club.

The first regular meeting of the Men's Club of Wollaston was held Tuesday evening in the vestry of the Unitarian church at half past six o'clock. After a blessing was pronounced by Rev. Jesse Wagner, the members of the club partook of a bountiful supper.

A short business meeting preceded the speeches. The secretary's reports were read and accepted, and two names were added to the membership list of the club.

The subject to be discussed for the evening, "citizens and the church" was successfully handled by the following: Rev. H. G. Megathlin, Rev. E. A. Chase, Rev. C. P. Mills, Rev. E. C. Butler, Rev. Jesse Wagner and Rev. F. W. Pratt.

The solo "Indifferent Mariner," and "Stein Song" by Mr. Mahn, gave great pleasure. The selection, "Golden Youth" by Mr. Loeffler was brilliantly rendered on the piano.

The club, accompanied on the piano, by Mr. Loeffler, closed the evening with one verse of "America."

YEAR'S POSTAL BUSINESS.

Receipts, $111,631,193; Net Deficit About $4,000,000.

Auditor Henry A. Castle of the postoffice department at Washington has closed the books of the postal service for the fiscal year ended June 30 last, something over three months being always required to balance the ledger accounts with 77,000 postmasters and make all the other settlements required with the numerous branches of the system. The results of the year's business are as follows:

Receipts, $111,631,193.39; expenditures, $115,554,924.87; net deficit (including losses by fire, etc.), $3,981,520.71. The deficit for the fiscal year is thus shown to be less than $4,000,000 and about $1,500,000 smaller than for the preceding year. Owing to the extension of rural free delivery and other augmented appropriations in every department, the expenses of the service were $8,200,000 greater than the preceding year, but the continuance of the nation's prosperity raised the receipts more than $9,250,000.

There has been a steady decrease in postal deficits during the past ten years. In round figures they were $11,500,000 in 1897; $9,000,000 in 1898; $6,500,000 in 1899; $5,500,000 in 1900 and $4,000,000 in 1901. If this percentage of shrinkage in the deficit should continue, it would be entirely wiped out within three years.

It is considered significant of the increased business activity of the country that while owing to enormous extensions of the postal service its expenditures have increased $21,500,000, or 22 per cent, in five years, its revenue has increased $29,000,000, equivalent to 35 per cent, during the same period.

The auditor's report also shows the transactions of the postal money order business for the same period. Every money order issued in the United States comes into the auditor's office as a voucher, and all the accounts are kept and settlements made with postmasters in that bureau. The aggregate amount of money orders issued during the year was $294,618,680.99. The amount paid was $281,554,711.72. The difference between these two amounts represents principally money orders issued in this country and paid in foreign countries.

The total of monetary transactions of the postoffice department, including postal receipts and revenues and money orders issued and paid, foots up for the fiscal year 1901, $803,359,576.97. This total was less than $715,000,000 for the next preceding fiscal year, showing an increase of nearly $89,000,000.

Willie Owen and Howard Gordon of Hobart, Ind., spent their summer vacation on their wheels, during which they traveled 1691 miles.

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

AN ANATOMICAL FREAK.

Vital Organs of St. Louis Man on the Wrong Side.

The case of Arthur Zimmerman, twenty-two years old, of St. Louis, who died at the City hospital, says a St. Louis dispatch, presents a complete reversal of the natural order of anatomical arrangement in that all of his organs which normally should have been on his right side were on his left side, and vice versa. Physicians say that only a few similar cases are recorded.

Dr. Nietert, superintendent of the City hospital, remembers no such case since he has been at the hospital. Zimmerman became ill about a week ago at his home. A physician was called in, but the case was puzzling. There was apparently intestinal inflammation of a kind similar to appendicitis, but the seat of trouble appeared to be on the left side of the abdome... The appendix is always on the right side.

A diagnosis of appendicitis seemed out of the question. Zimmerman's condition became worse, and his physician decided to have him removed to the City hospital, where an operation could be performed. Dr. Nietert performed the operation. He found that general peritonitis had set in and that the source of infection was on the left side, as the external appearance had indicated.

But he was astonished at discovering that the source of infection was in the appendix and that the appendix was on the left side. The appendix was removed, but the disease was too far advanced for Zimmerman to benefit by the surgeon's skill, and he died.

A postmortem examination showed that not only was the appendix transposed, but the heart was on the right side instead of the left. The right lung, with its three lobes, was on the left side, and the left lung, with its two lobes, was on the right side. The stomach was on the right side instead of the left. The liver was on the left side instead of the right, and the spleen was on the right side instead of the left.

Dr. Louis Rassieur said that the scientific name for such a case is "situs viscerum inversus."

"I never saw such a case before," said he, "though a few are recorded. I do not think that the transposition of the organs had any connection with the appendicitis. That was merely a coincidence. Still, it may have cost the man his life, as it confused the diagnosis."

BITTER WORDS

Socialists Cross Swords With Trade Unionists In Discussing Politics

Holyoke, Mass., Oct. 9.—The state Federation of Labor convention yesterday brought up the resolution condemning trusts and recommending that economic questions be discussed by trade unions. The committee favored the discussion of economic questions, but desired that the other be abandoned. The discussion was interesting, Frank K. Foster replying sarcastically to delegate Goldstein. He characterized the resolution as an attttempt to foist socialist labor party principles on the trade unionists. This attempt to indorse socialism should be condemned. The business of the politician has no place in this convention. Mr. Foster did not know but what he would vote for George H. Wrenn for governor, but he would not permit, if his voice prevailed, any indorsement of socialism through any subterfuge.

Mr. Goldstein, who introduced the resolution, was within two years a member of a party that sought the destruction of the trade union movement.

The debate became acrimonious, when the pronounced socialistic element fiercely crossed swords with the trade-unionist faction and comments were bitter. The greater part of the afternoon was spent in the debates between the factions and only a few other resolutions were considered before adjournment.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

ENGLAND MUCH DISTURBED

Over Possible Complications Arising From the Death of the Ameer—Much Depends Upon the Personality of the Successor of Abdur Rahman

London, Oct. 9.—The Afghan spectre, which forever haunts British power in Asia, has rearisen with unwelcome suddenness at a moment that is undeniably inopportune for the British and Indian governments. With the death of Ameer Abdur Raham a crisis is immediately created, which, pending a satisfactory settlement, will not fail to cause serious anxiety in Great Britain.

Much depends upon the little known personality of Habib Ullah Kahn, Abdur Rahman's eldest son by a slave girl, who, it has long been believed here, was nominated as his successor by his father. It is recognized that if he inherits his father's strong character he will be able to control his turbulent countrymen with his father's iron hand. Internal peace, on which external relations depend, may be maintained, but it is recalled that never once in history has there been a peaceful transfer of the sceptre in Cabul, and there is too good reason to fear that the present occasion will not be an exception.

Should history be repeateed and the country given over to the strife of rival factions it is impossible to predict the effect on the course of Central Asian politics.

The average Briton will be convinced that chaos in Afghanistan will be the immediate signal for Russian intervention for the purpose of promoting Russia's advance on the Indian frontier. The London press fully appreciates the gravity of the situation and does not conceal its anxiety, especially in view of the complications in South Africa.

The frontier key to Afghanistan and to India is Heret. But just removed from its gateway is the Russian military colonial zone, little settlements of 500 population each, in which no man is permitted who is over 35 years of age. One does not fight well after 35, and Russia is waiting. The double game of Abdur has not tired the Muscovite, for it is of such his diplomacy is made. He believes the natural momentum of his gross weight will shove him into Herat some day. No doubt it was hoped that this would be the case when the ameer died.

No dispassionate student of the various phases of Russia's slow absorption of Central Asia can believe that she has willingly arrived at the stage of finality in her advance. From time to time she has swallowed huge slices of Transcaspia; the process of digestion has not been unduly hastened; but its completion has each time been the signal for a fresh move forward.

Twelve years have passed since last she added to her already enormous area of territory beyond the Caspian, if Manchuria is left out of consideration. In the interval she has been carried to the head of the Kushk valley, and her troops are now massed within half a dozen marches of Herat. The railway was completed two years ago. The troops were only concentrated within the last year. The reasonable inference is that in strengthening her position at Kushk she contemplates the possibility of seizing Herat. She will only be restrained from resorting to force so long as the immediate and potential opposition to her advance remains tolerably strong.

General Dukhofsky some time ago had 60,000 Russian troops disposed along the Transcaspian line. At his back are the vast resources of Russia. If he were to advance and had to meet the Afghans alone, the mud-walls of Herat would crumble before his guns. But behind the ameer there is Great Britain, and she is pledged to assist the ruler of Afghanistan if Russia crosses the border.

But the nearest British fort, Quetta, is 514 miles away across a country difficult and cut up by rivers which it is sometimes hard to cross. In any case the road from Quetta to Herat is less easy for the passage of an army than it is from Kushk or Pendjeh.

The late ameer owed his throne to the British, who set him up in business after the Afghan war of 21 years ago, in which Lord Roberts distinguished himself. An Afghan politician plays in his time many parts, and Abdur Rahman was once an exile dwelling under the protection of the Russians, so that the English were rather uneasy about their protege. Still he appears to have lived up to his bargain.

The questions before the British government are what they will have to pay the new ameer, whether he will remain faithful while paid and whether he will be as successful as his father was in controlling the great feudal chiefs. Each of these is no mean antagonist for an ameer, and collectively they are superior in power to the throne.

Manitoban Visit Ended

Winnepeg, Man., Oct. 9.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York bade farewell to the west yesterday and are once more speeding eastward on their special train. They will reach Toronto tomorrow afternoon.

Lynchers Caused Woman's Death

Shelbyville, Ky., Oct. 9.—Mrs. Ben C. Perkins, wife of the jailor at this place, died yesterday as the result of shock and fright suffered Wednesday morning when a mob attacked the jail and lynched two negroes.

CRITICISM BY HULL

Of the Franchise System Now In Vogue In the Philippine Islands

Washington, Oct. 9.—Chairman Hull of the military affairs committee of the house complains vigorously of the American policy of forbidding new franchises in the Philippines. He says that it has thrown most of the "business" in the islands into the hands of Europeans, largely English and Scottish, who hold concessions under old Spanish contracts which they insist are still valid.

CHAIRMAN JOHN A. T. HULL OF THE HOUSE MILITARY COMMITTEE.

"I think it is high time," he is quoted as saying, "to inquire whether we intend to spend $75,000,000 a year for the maintenance of an army and a government in the Philippines chiefly for the benefit of the foreign merchants in trade there. I believe that for some years at least we must expect to keep an army of about 40,000 men in the Philippines; just now we have about 43,000. I should prefer to have 10,000 more soldiers in the islands than are really needed than to have 1000 too few there. While I was in the Philippines, General Hughes was fighting the rebels on the island of Samar, where the recent disaster to one of our companies occurred. The people on that island are all hostile to us. The interior of none of the islands is extensively developed. A great part of the islands is suited for guerilla warfare; the conditions are such as we would term peaceful in this country, but it is not a condition of peace because these brigands and highwaymen are constantly dashing out of their retreats to strike a blow when they can do so to the best advantage, and then fly back to cover. The substantial business men of the island, and the more intelligent, are now thoroughly in sympathy with our regime, and are doing all they can to bring the remainder of the Filipinos to the same attitude, but they are a very small percent of the whole, and the process will necessarily be slow."

Kirk Armour's Will

Kansas City, Oct. 9.—By the will of the late Kirk B. Armour filed in the probate court yesterday, the estate is left share and share alike to the widow and three children. In addition, Mrs. Armour is left, without reservation, the homestead at Armour and Warwick boulevards. Mrs. Armour and C. W. Armour are made executors of the will without bond. This stipulation makes an accurate estimate of the vaule of the estate practically an impossibility. While no public bequest is mentioned in the will, it is known that this was not overlooked by Armour.

Forbes Won the Fight

Kansas City, Oct. 9.—Clarence Forbes won the decision last night over Oscar Gardner in the ninth round of what was scheduled as a 20 round bout. Gardner made a poor showing.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Oct. 10.
Sun rises—5:51; sets, 5:12.
Moon rises—3:59 a. m.
High water—9:45 a. m.; 10 p. m.

The area of high pressure on the eastern coast gave way slowly during Tuesday and its western edge rested over New Jersey. The temperature has generally risen over the eastern third of the country. The rain area will extend to the New England districts Thursday.

BABY'S BUSINESS

A healthy baby is comfortable; and that is enough for a baby. His business in life is to grow.

Aside from acute diseases, his food is the cause of most of his troubles. But Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil delivers him from it.

He isn't sick; only a little hitch, somewhere, in his machine for turning food into growth.

It is a great thing to do, for a baby, to help him over a hitch with mere food—the emulsion is food that has the tact to get there.

The tact to get there is medicine.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

CONTRACTORS YIELDING

But Ranks of Striking Garment Workers Are Expected to Increase

Boston, Oct. 9.—Ten contractors have signed the new scale demanded by the clothing operatives who went on strike yesterday morning and 20 more employing in all some 800 hands, are expected to sign today. This is in contradiction of the assertions made by the contractors, both in their association and to individuals, that they would never give in and would sign no scale or bond.

Until last night the strikers have been acting entirely independent of any union, and the strike had not been officially endorsed by the union, but last evening Garment Workers' union No. 1 voted to endorse the strike and a mass-meeting of operatives voted to call out everybody who is not granted the new bill of prices.

There are about 2000 men and women employed in the various shops now out and this number, it is expected, will be somewhat increased today even should the expected concession be granted by the 20 contractors before mentioned.

Print Cloth Market Improved

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 9.—A marked improvement is noted in the condition of the print cloth market, due to the prospect of settled conditions in the mills for months to come. While the market is nominally 3 cents flat for regulars, the price basis has been lowered 1-16th by manufacturers on odd counts, in order to dispose of the surplus of narrow odds.

Police Did'nt Know He Was Wanted

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 9.—John F. Flannery, who is reported missing from his home at Lowell, was given a lodging at the local police station Monday night. Flannery stated that he had a brother in this city and he was going to look him up Tuesday. As it was not known at the time by the local police officials that Flannery was wanted, he was not detained.

Dangerous Ballast For Boat

Winchester, Mass., Oct. 9.—F. S. Pratt, 17 years old, and James Newman, Jr., were sailing on Mystic lake yesterday, having a gun in the bottom of the craft. A squall keeled the boat over to its gunwale and the gun rolling over was discharged. The charge of shot tore much flesh from Pratt's left arm and amputation may be necessary.

Didn't Intend to Keep Money

Taunton, Mass., Oct. 9.—Alderman Simon Swig, who was charged with misappropriating funds for a children's excursion, was discharged from custody by Judge Fox yesterday. No intent to keep the money was shown and Swig had recently paid all the outstanding bills.

A Football Knockout

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 9.—During the football practice of the Harvard freshman team, W. Phillips had his collarbone broken. He was playing halfback on the defense, and the accident occurred in an end run.

Goes to Prison For Life

Portland, Me., Oct. 9.—George H. Brainard, the convicted murderer of Isaiah H. Farnham, was yesterday sentenced to life imprisonment in the state prison by Judge Bonney.

Mrs. McLeary Divorced

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 9.—In the district court yesterday, in the case of Mary K. McLeary vs J. P. McLeary for divorce, Judge Clark granted the petition of the plaintiff and a decree of absolute divorce was entered. The petition alleges abandonment. The defendant was, on last Saturday, appointed justice of the supreme court of Porto Rico by President Roosevelt, and was associate justice of the supreme court of Montana under President Cleveland.

Blames Sultan For Abduction

Kansas City, Oct. 9.—Dr. M. Mesropian of this city, a native of Armenia, declares that the abduction of Miss Stone by brigands was the work of the Sultan of Turkey; that he ordered her to be taken across the Bulgarian border, so as to divert suspicion from himself, and that the move is in retaliation for the $90,000 indemnity which the United States exacted of Abdul Hamid for the burning of American missionary buildings.

Jealousy Causes Double Tragedy

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 9.—Frank Hemingway, a musician employed in a theatre orchestra, was shot and killed yesterday by Clara Stuart. The woman then sent a bullet through her own brain. Death was instantaneous in both cases. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy. Hemingway was from South Framingham, Mass.

Jenkins Defeats Rooney

Cleveland, Oct. 9.—Tom Jenkins of Cleveland demonstrated his superiority in wrestling last night when he threw John J. Rooney, Chicago's champion, in two successive falls. Jenkins weighed 196 pounds, Rooney's weight being over 200 pounds. The contest was for $1500; $1200 to the winner and $300 to the loser.

Nicaraguan Coast Flooded

Managua, Oct. 9.—Severee subterranean disturbances, probably caused by volcanic activity in the Pacific, raising the level of the ocean, occurred Sunday night. The Nicaraguan coast was flooded to a depth of eight feet and considerable damage was done.

Heno Takes Matron Stakes

New York, Oct. 9.—Clarence H. Mackay's Heno, second choice, at 3 to 1, won the rich Matron stakes of $20,000 at Morris park yesterday. He made most of the running and won cleverly from William C. Whitney's Yankee, the futurity winner.

Football Player Killed

Detroit, Oct. 9.—Robert McKee, left tackle of the Alma college football team, who was injured in a game here Saturday by being bunted in the abdomen, died at Alma yesterday.

PRIVATELY AS POSSIBLE

Negotiations For Ransom Will Be Carried On

MISS STONE IS LOCATED

Held by Eighteen Men, Who May Soon Be Surrounded by Turkish and Bulgarian Troops—Missionary Is Not Yet Harmed

Boston, Oct. 10.—No statement of the ransom fund for Miss Ellen Stone was made public yesterday by Kidder, Peabody & Co. They have stopped giving it out. Contributions have come in slowly, and the increase yesterday was less than it was Tuesday; so instead of publishing a list of acknowledgments, the firm now has instructions to give each individual contributor a receipt.

A falling off in the number of subscriptions is not the only reason for this new method. It is in direct line with the feeling at Washington that the whole transaction with the brigands and the attending negotiations should be carried through as privately as possible. And so far as the contributions themselves are concerned, it is easy to see that if the newspapers are allowed to tell day after day that large amounts of money are still being subscribed, it will be more or less of an obstruction to any attempts made by the American representatives abroad to have the amount of ransom cut down.

The amount now on hand is in the neighborhood of $57,000.

A Constantinople dispatch states that a trustworthy report locates Miss Stone's abductors on the summit of a mountain at Gulpep, on the Turko-Bulgarian frontier near Dubnitza. It is said that the kidnapping band numbers 18. Arrangements have been made to surround the mountain with Turkish and Bulgarian troops. It has been suggested that the abductors of Miss Stone are members of the old Macedonian committee, actuated by motives of jealousy, and that they are endeavoring to accomplish the downfall of the present committee. The Bulgarian government has promised to act vigorously.

The time allowance by Miss Stone's kidnappers expired Tuesday, yet she is still alive and unharmed. It is now officially known at Washington that her captors have granted a short extension of time—how much is not stated—and the officials feel that if the responses to the appeals of Miss Stone's friends do not cease or diminish there is yet reasonable hope for getting the money in season to save her life. The danger in the situation lies in the abatement of popular interest which was so generously manifested during the first few days following the issuance of the appeal.

Russia Is Interested

St. Petersburg, Oct. 10.—United States Ambassador Tower has been most active in connection with the abduction of Miss Stone. The Russian government is cordially supporting the efforts being made to secure the release of the American missionary.

New Law Swells Tax Receipts

Albany, Oct. 10.—State Excise Commissioner Cullinan has issued a statement showing a comparison of liquor tax during the past year as compared with the last year of the operation of the old excise law. There were 26,839 licenses issued last year, as compared with 33,537 in 1896. The total receipts last year were $11,724,755, as compared with $2,921,268 in 1896.

For Constitutional Amendment

New Haven, Oct. 10.—The complete returns show a majority for the constitutional convention at last Monday's election of 20,311; for the plurality amendment 35,341 and for the popular senate amendment of 26,198. Only 42 percent of a full vote was polled.

LYNN POLICE WAITED

For Appearance of Man Who Claimed That His Wife Had Eloped

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 10.—J. H. Morgan of Middleton called at the police station here last night and found his wife, who so mysteriously disappeared last Saturday night.

Last Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. Morgan drove to Lawrence from their home in Middleton, and upon their return, while Mr. Morgan stepped into a cigar store for a few minutes, his wife disappeared as completely as though the earth had opened and swallowed her up. About the same time Charles R. Townsend, a farm hand employed by a Mr. Richardson of Middleton, also disappeared, and Mr. Morgan gave it as his opinion that the two had gone off together. He notified the police of neighboring cities to be on the lookout, furnishing them descriptions of the missing couple.

On Tuesday Townsend was arrested here for drunkenness and in court yesterday he was fined $10, which he was unable to pay. During the afternoon, a woman answering the description of Mrs. Morgan, and who later admitted her identity, called at the station to arrange for paying Townsend's fine, saying that his employer, Mr. Richardson, would settle it. Mr. Richardson did call later and paid the fine and Townsend was allowed to go, as there was no charge upon which he could be held longer. The woman, however, was detained. Her husband arrived last night, a reconciliation was effected, and the two left for home together.

A Clergyman's Unique Record

Middlebury, Vt., Oct. 10.—Besides holding the record for having performed the largest number of marriages among Vermont clergymen, Rev. Sedgwick W. Bidwell of this place has just had the unique experience of officiating for the fifth time at a wedding in which either the bride or the groom had participated. David Stone and Mrs. Volda Harrington appeared before Rev. Mr. Bidwell to be married. Each of the contracting parties had twice been married, and on each of the previous occasions Rev. Mr. Bidwell had officiated. They gave their age as 55 each. The clergyman is 92 years of age.

Mustn't Publish Cuts of Coins

Boston, Oct. 10.—At least one Boston school book publishing house is threatened with a considerable loss, owing to the action of the United States government in strictly enforcing the law against counterfeiting. The secret service has seized a consignment of primary arithmetics destined for the Philippines. On one page of these arithmetics there is a cut representing United States coins. Although the book having this cut has been in existence 12 years, the United States authorities have just decided that it is contrary to law.

Postponement of Banquet

Boston, Oct. 10.—The annual banquet of the Republican club of Massachusetts will be abandoned this fall out of respect to the memory of President McKinley. Five days before the fatal trip to Buffalo, President McKinley made arrangements at Canton to open the national congressional campaign of 1902 at Boston with an address to be delivered at the club's dinner. It is believed that this was the last engagement the president made.

Fatal Gunning Trip

Brattleboro, Vt., Oct. 10.—Stephen Ellis, a barber, 55 years old, died last night from the effect of gunshot wounds sustained yesterday while returning from a hunting trip with Hiram Levingston. The shooting is believed to have been purely accidental, but both men are said to have been under the influence of liquor and Levingston has not yet given a clear story of the affair.

Used Dynamite In Postoffice

North Hero, Vt., Oct. 10—The store and postoffice kept by James Dodge here was broken into and $150 worth of stamps and about $200 in money, besides considerable merchandise, was taken. The burglars blew the safe into pieces with dynamite and nearly wrecked the building, as well. They stole a boat and escaped.

New Evidence Ready

Ellsworth, Me., Oct. 10.—County Attorney Tracy has been working quietly on the Sarah Ware murder case and new evidence bearing on the case is ready to be presented by him to the grand jury. He has secured evidence which he considers important.

Meyer an Alleged Embezzler

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 10.—President Meyer of the Western Baseball association is under arrest on a charge of embezzling $500 belonging to the Columbus, O., baseball club and deposited with him as a forfeit. Meyer's alleged shortage of funds belonging to the various clubs and the association is said to exceed $5000.

Big Flock of Sheep Drowned

Halifax, Oct. 10.—A flock of 127 sheep were on the way to Sydney from the mainland. At Hulgrave the cars were placed on a raft to be towed across the strait of Canso to Point Tupper. When near the middle of the strait the raft upset, and cars and sheep went to the bottom. Only seven of the sheep escaped.

ARE AGAINST STRIKING

Spinners Demand Unanimous Vote on the Matter

THE TANGLE AT FALL RIVER

Appears to Have Become More Complicated Than Ever, Because of the Misunderstanding Between the Different Unions Interested

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 10.—The whole question of whether or not there will be a strike in the cotton mills of this city on account of the refusal of the manufacturers to grant a 5 percent increase in wages was reopened last night.

A misunderstanding in regard to a unanimous or majority vote existing among the unions was the reason assigned by the executive committee of the textile council for postponing the strike for two weeks from last Monday. At the time this action was taken it was said it would necessitate meetings of the various unions to take action upon the acceptance or rejection of the recommendation, and thus the results of the previous meetings were rendered void.

There was a meeting of the council Tuesday night to discuss the situation and it was then voted to leave the whole matter to the unions to settle in their general meetings called for this week and next. The first of these meetings were held last night by the carders. The carders, after a long discussion, instructed their secretary to call a special meeting for next Tuesday evening, for the purpose of taking action upon the recommendation to strike, and to find out whether the union will consider itself bound by a majority vote.

It was understood by some of the unions that in the event of three of the five unions voting to strike the others would consider themselves bound by their action. In other unions it was believed that the vote must be unanimous or there would be no strike. Four of the unions voted to strike, and the action of the spinners last Saturday in voting not to strike complicated matters to such an extent that the council postponed the strike. The recommendation of the textile council calling upon the unions to strike still remains in force, and will be voted upon at the special meeting of the carders.

That the spinners were almost to a man in favor of not striking was shown by the fact that there was but a small attendance at their meeting last night. It was voted that in order for the strike recommendation to become operative there must be a unanimous vote of the unions, and the delegates to the textile council were so instructed.

Secretary O'Donnell said after the meeting that the reason the spinners were in favor of a unanimous vote was that they thought that upon a question of such vital importance and affecting such a large number of operatives action must be unanimous or the result will be a failure. There must be no factions among the unions, but all must work in harmony. No special meeting was called to act upon the recommendation. The vote of last Saturday, 213 to 87 against a strike, showed the feeling of the spinners. Secretary O'Donnell said the action was still in force and would remain in force until the matter was settled. The spinners do not want a strike and in case the other unions decide that the vote must be unanimous the spinners can prevent a strike.

A meeting of the weavers wil be held tonight to decide which vote they think should be operative. The general sentiment outside of union circles is against a strike, and the business men of the city are doing all in their power to avert it.

McKinley's Head on Postal Cards

Washington, Oct. 10.—The postoffice department has decided to place the late President McKinley's head on the new issue of postal cards, which will appear shortly after Dec. 1 next. The design includes the year of birth and year of death immediately at the left and right respectively of the name of McKinley, which will be directly under the head.

On the Gridiron

Brown university defeated Manhattan college by the narrow margin of one point in a game of hard fought football at Providence.

Yale ran up a total of 24 points against Wesleyan and shut out the visitors in the game at New Haven.

Thirty-nine to nothing in favor of Cornell was the result of the game with Hamilton college at Ithaca, N. Y.

Harvard made the score against Amherst a little larger at Cambridge than did Yale on her grounds against the same college. Harvard's score was 11 to 0, or five more than Yale made.

Princeton defeated the New York university football team at Princeton by the score of 23 to 0.

The Technology football team opened its season with Holy Cross of Worcester at Cambridge. The Boston team was hardly up to the visitors' standard, and the Worcester team won, 15 to 0.

At Hanover, N. H., the Dartmouth backs ripped up the Boston college line as if it were made of paper, until the score stood 45 to 0.

Phillips-Andover defeated Hopkins at Andover, Mass., 5 to 0.

Williams defeated Colgate at Williamstown, Mass., 29 to 0.

Good Afternoon.

Before the City Council passes all the appropriation orders now pending, it should carefully note whether they will not place the municipal debt in excess of $12 limit fixed by State law loan orders have been large and numerous this year, yet the Council is now asked to appropriate $25,000 for the enlargement of Mt. Wollaston cemetery, $55,000 for a 12-room schoolhouse at Quincy Point, and several other amounts which aggregate a considerable sum.

The City Clerk seems to find considerable time for politics, and to work against citizens of Quincy. At the Republican senatorial convention on Wednesday he placed in nomination a Milton man in opposition to a Quincy man, and on a close vote secured the defeat of the latter. It is said that many of the same men would have defeated the renomination of Senator Sprague could they have secured a little more encouragement. Yet for no good reason.s

Although Norfolk county is strongly Republican, it is not so hide-bound by partisianship that it will knowingly elect to office an unworthy candidate, even if he be the Republican nominee. On the other hand independent Republicans have successfully resisted attempts to remove faithful officials because they were Democrats, as was exemplified by the defeat of the late J. Walter Bradlee when he was the Republican candidate for sheriff a few years ago, against Augustus B. Endicott of Dedham who was a Democratic candidate. Against Mr. Bradlee there was no claim of incompetency or unworthiness, and he was a good Republican, but Sheriff Endicott was an honest and efficient official.

There appears to be a great need of a shelter chapel near the entrance to the Wollaston cemetery. On Sundays, in particular, although the weather is threatening, like last Sunday, a great many people feel that duty calls them to visit the graves of beloved ones. Our cemetery is in an isolated spot and a long distance from shelter, so that if rain falls there is no place to get under cover. At this season of the year, the Houghs Neck electrics do not make frequent trips, and in waiting for the cars people are exposed to the sun and winds, as well the storms. If the city cannot provide a chapel, it should afford a shelter with seats for the ladies and others who are faithful to father or mother, husband, relative or friends who have gone before.

We congratulate the city of Quincy and the First Norfolk Senatorial district on the renomination of Hon. Eugene H. Sprague for the senate. All that Hon. Wilbur H. Powers of Hyde Park and ex-Councilman Harry W. Read of this city said in placing Mr. Sprague in nomination at the convention are heartily endorsed by his friends who are not confined to the city or district. The candidate's geniality and frankness; his experience in the Quincy City Council, in the House of Representative,s and his year in the Senate; his conscientious work; all make him a most desirable senator, and he will be handsomely reelected. We do not say this because he is a Republican in a Republican district because we believe he would stand a good show of an election in a Democratic district, and we hope next year to see him a candidate for Congress in the Democratic Tenth district.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Having instructed the public as to the correct pronunciation of his name, he now informs it that the correct reference to the house in which he officially resides is "The White House," not the "Executive Mansion."—Manchester Union.

☞ The Democrats of this state want, or think they want, to abolish the executive council. Possibly one reason for their ardent championship of this alleged reform is found in the fact that few Democrats can hope to obtain membership. Of the eight members, one is now a Democrat. We observe that he holds place on five of the most important committees indicating that he is not discriminated against on account of his politics, and that he has a fair share of the honor and responsibility attaching to his official position. Possibly if the council were seven Democrats and one Republican, the Democratic party might be less consistent in its demand for the change—a demand which we fancy is not made with much seriousness.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Judge Hadley of Lowell and Judge Stone of Lawrence have set an example in the matter of examining persons who desire to be naturalized that should be adopted generally. All applicants and their witnesses are closely questioned with a view of discovering Anarchistic principles and whether or not they are seeking citizenship because of attachment to our laws and institutions. Failure to present a clean record and to show an honest purpose, which is the very essence of the law, results in denial of their requests. That this is right admits of no parley. Too many tramps whose only purpose is to obtain the right of suffrage, which they abuse, are given all the same right and privileges as legitmate people who were born on our soil and have endured the hardships and privations of war to secure liberty. Trifling with American citizenship should cease. It must cease, or, as experience has shown us, our government will be weakened.—Nashua Press.

Away From Home.

It is becoming the fashion for a woman to seek a maternity hospital that her children may be born amid conveniences lacking at home. The children are sent away from home to school. They are married away from home, and members of the family are taken to hospitals for their final illness and buried from an undertaker's parlor. It is becoming a fashion to take everything from home except the family rows. They are still sacred to the family hearth.—Atchison Globe.

Italian Brigandage In 1848.

One summer evening in the crowded theater an impatient house demanded the drawing of the curtain preliminary to the first act. When at last it was upraised, Il Passatore and his armed band occupied the stage, with muskets aimed at the affrighted audience. The chief stated that he should levy a tax per head, which he then and there collected. The gang made off with their booty unmolested.—Lady Presturch's "Essays."

Gold.

The specific gravity of gold is 19.50—that is, it weighs nineteen and a half times as much as its own bulk of water. The ductility and malleability of this metal are equaled by no other. By ductility is meant the property of allowing itself to be drawn out into a wire and by malleability its property of flattening without splitting under the hammer.

Make Some One Happy.

Charles Kingsley thus counseled a friend: "Make it a rule and pray to God to help you to keep it never, if possible, to lie down at night without being able to say, 'I have made one human being at least a little wiser, a little happier or a little better this day.' You will find it easier than you think and pleasanter."

Bowlegged Sailors.

Sailors are a bowlegged class. An old salt always walks as if he were on the deck of a ship, and he never takes great strides like a landsman. He is used to having to walk great distances, in his imagination, on the quarter deck, and he can't get rid of the habit of making the most of his promenade.

The Sponge.

The sponge reproduces its kind mainly by eggs. In each animal are contained both the male and the female elements, and it throws out the ova to be hatched in the water. At first the young are free swimming, and afterward they attach themselves to convenient spots and grow.

WINS FIRST GAME.

High School Foot Ball Team Opens Season With Victory.

Quincy High won its first football game of the season on Wednesday by defeating Everett High 5—0.

The game was full of misunderstandings on both sides. High kicked off to Everett the first half but once the ball went outside and again beyond Everett's goal. High was parylized and Everett kicked off to High, who made but short gain. High then ploughed through Everett's line repeatedly and soon had the ball on Everett's twenty-five yard line, where it remained for several downs until at last Magnuson succeeded in getting around left end and after another rush High made their only touchdown. Jones failed to kick the goal.

For the rest of the first half the ball went up and down the field. The long gains of Barber, Miller, Jones and Magnuson were particularly noticeable at this stage of the game.

In the second half, High came near making another touchdown. When about thirty yards from the goal, quarter back Wright took the ball and made a touchdown. This was a surprise to Everett so of course they said the ball was passed forward and the play was not allowed. Several times High gave in to Everett even on unjust plays.

Time was called when High had the ball within a yard of Everett's goal.

Captain Wright used good judgment during the whole game and his team put up a most creditable showing.

About Ozone.

Many people talk about ozone without so much as knowing what ozone is. There is a prevalent idea that it is something you get at the sea and that it is good for the lungs. What that something is, however, few people have sufficient curiosity to inquire. Ozone is what chemists call an allotropic form of oxygen—that is to say, it is oxygen in a highly active and concentrated condition. In ordinary pure air ozone exists, but only in what chemists call "traces." Larger amounts are found in ocean and mountain air. It instantly disappears when brought in contact with decaying matter, dissipating itself, as it were, in the act of oxidizing that matter.

Ozone is known to occur more plentifully during thunderstorms, and we have, of course, the analogy of its being artificially produced from oxygen by electrical discharges in the laboratory. On the body ozone is believed to act as a stimulant; hence the popular notion of its beneficial effects as experienced by the sea, but in any greater amount than mere traces it is a violent irritant. One authority goes the length of asserting that it is doubtful whether it is beneficial to animal life at all.

Colored Swedes.

A little Swedish monthly magazine published in New York city requested its readers a short time ago to send in accounts of the experiences they had when they first arrived in this country. Here is the prize specimen: "In my unsophisticated days I once started out to call upon a girl I had known in the old country. I was told that she lived at Madison avenue and —— street. When I reached that corner, I was in doubt which house to try, but I finally went up the steps of one that faced on the avenue and rang the bell. A girl came to the door. 'Does Miss Nelson live here?' I asked as politely as I could.

"'I don't know any such person,' she answered, and I was turning away when she called after me, 'Is she white?'

"That irritated me. 'Did you ever know any Swedes who were colored?' I asked.

"'Well, I have seen some green Swedes,' was her retort, and I did not continue the conversation.

Trials of a Lecturer.

A well known English woman lecturer tells these stories at her own expense:

"I was," she says, "on a tour through the provinces, and one night as I appeared on the platform in a small town the chairman introduced me to my audience in the following way: 'You have heard of Mr. Gladstone, the Grand Old Man. Let me now introduce to you the grand old woman.' This was intended as a sincere compliment.

"On another occasion a bluff old farmer, who boasted of his ability to look on all sides of a question, announced me as follows: 'This lady's come here to talk about her rights,' he said. 'She's hired the hall, and so she's got a right to be here, and if any of you don't like what she's got to say you've got an equal right to walk out in the middle on't.'"

BRITAIN'S COMING PREMIER

King Said to Favor the Duke of Devonshire.

King Edward is said to be anxious that the Duke of Devonshire should be prime minister at the king's coronation, presumably next June, says the London correspondent of the New York World.

The duke, who is lord president of the council in the Salisbury cabinet, would be willing to stand aside and let the king choose for premier the Marquis of Lansdowne, now secretary of state for foreign affairs. But the Duchess of Devonshire insists upon her husband becoming prime minister.

Lord Salisbury is rapidly falling into a condition of chronic somnolency. For months it has been growing more and more difficult to arouse him to a sense of the gravity and urgency of the government's situation. The result is that each minister is acting without control.

The scheme is said to be to retire the Marquis of Salisbury, make the Duke of Devonshire prime minister, put the Marquis of Lansdowne into Devonshire's present position of lord president of the council and appoint Lord Curzon of Kedleston, now viceroy and governor general of India, secretary of state for foreign affairs to succeed Lansdowne.

When Lady Curzon of Kedleston was about to leave England, she told friends that she hoped to be at home in England before the coronation.

WHAT'S IN A NAME.

Unique Cognomens of Indian Students in Kansas.

Among the pupils at the Haskell (Kan.) institute this fall, says a Chicago exchange, are Miss Minnie Squint Eyes, Mr. Bobtail Bull, Miss Laura Nicetalker, Miss Minnie Stands Up, Miss Emma Beaverclaw, Mr. Edward Woman's Leggins, Mr. Hinton Big Leg, Mr. Elmer Long Jaw, Miss Anna Wounded Eye, Mr. Joseph Crazy Mule, Mr. Beans Young Bird, Miss Clara Rolling Bull and Mr. Hall Red Nose. The noble red man derives his name not from his ancestors, but from circumstances, and, owing to this practice, it is to be feared that he will be handicapped more or less in his efforts to keep up with civilization. It is true that Mr. Hall Red Nose might not be at a serious disadvantage if he were to settle in Kentucky, and Mr. Bean Young Bird might win honors in Boston, but we can't think of any place where Miss Clara Rolling Bull or Miss Anna Wounded Eye would not be likely to appear a little sweeter if known by some other name. Elmer Long Jaw might go into politics or the auctioneering business with a fair chance to succeed, and Minnie Stands Up would have a suitable name if she had to come and go in Chicago street cars, but for Minnie Squint Eyes, Hinton Big Leg and Bobtail Bull there are no appropriate places in sight. It must be said for the Indians, however, that if their names sometimes sound like a rough and tumble fight their spelling is to be commended. When an Indian calls his pappoose Wally Gosh, he doesn't write it Vladostezchosze. The Indian may skulk behind things when he has enemies to deal with, but he doesn't beat about the bush in his spelling.

City Loses $20,000,000 Property.

Judge Toulmin of the United States circuit court in equity lately rendered an important decision against the city of Mobile. The suit involved the ownership of the wharf property along the river front within the limits of the city. The question was one of riprarian rights and ownership, and Judge Toulmin decided that, while the legal title to the land was in the name of the city, it was stopped from asserting the title because it had granted property owners the right to build wharfs and bulkheads.

This litigation carries with it the possession of the entire river front, valued at $20,000,000, and this suit, while it involved only $100,000 of values, has settled the law as to the ownership of the river front and its many valuable improvements, sheds, warehouses, docks and mills.

The Presidential Belt.

With the exception of Andrew Johnson every president since 1856 has come from the short group of states which follow the southern shore of the great lakes from New York to Illinois, inclusive, says the Springfield (Ill.) Republican. These five states, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, run in a line side by side. New York has furnished Arthur, Cleveland and Roosevelt; Pennsylvania, Buchanan; Ohio, Hayes, Garfield and McKinley; Indiana, Harrison, and Illinois, Lincoln and Grant. It may now be fairly called the presidential belt, and it seems almost hopeless for any one who lives outside of it to become president of the United States.

Career of M. Delcasse.

M. Delcasse, the French minister of foreign affairs, who had much to do with the arrangements for the czar's visit to France, is a journalist who has won his way to his position straight from journalism. Journalism in France is one of the highroads to political rank; witness MM. Brisson, Dupuy, Delcasse and others less known out of France. Delcasse began life on the Republique Francaise and made foreign affairs his specialty. He has been in the French parliament for only twelve years, but he got into office eight years ago.

DOES NOT LIKE PASTOR

Mr. Rockefeller Said to Be Displeased With Dr. Eaton.

HE MAY LEAVE THE CHURCH.

Cleveland Baptists Afraid the Oil Magnate Will Decide to Attend Another House of Worship—New Minister of Other Church His Friend.

Baptists of Cleveland, says a dispatch to the New York Herald, are greatly disturbed at the prospect that the old Euclid Avenue Baptist church may lose its member and cofounder, John D. Rockefeller.

Mr. Rockefeller has not only brought to the city a pastor of his own choosing for the East End Baptist church, but he seems to have taken the young minister in as almost a member of his own family, the new pastor having lived in the home of the multimillionaire ever since he came to the city. In fact, he is still living there.

He is the Rev. E. A. Hanley of the University of Chicago. He has not yet been ordained a minister, but he has been appointed pastor of the struggling little East End Baptist church, and will receive a salary that has warranted his planning a tour of Europe for next summer. He probably receives the highest pastoral salary ever paid a divinity student not yet ordained a minister. His formal ordination is to occur soon in the church of which he is pastor.

Lack of sympathy between the new pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, the Rev. Charles A. Eaton, D. D., and Mr. Rockefeller is responsible for the present condition of affairs. Dr. Eaton has preached several sermons that seem to some to be of a socialistic nature. In some of them he has made remarks concerning wealthy men which appear to be somewhat pointed.

Mr. Rockefeller has not only guaranteed the comparatively large salary that is to be paid young Mr. Hanley, but he has also arranged to build him a new church. The East End church is much nearer Forest Hill, the Rockefeller home, than the old church, and it is feared by many Baptists that if Mr. Rockefeller does not transfer his membership to the East End church when he returns to Cleveland he will, at least, worship there under the young minister he has chosen.

Members of the old church recall several speeches by Dr. Eaton which are supposed to have incensed Mr. Rockefeller. At the recognition services held in June Dr. Eaton outlined his policy in these words:

"I don't care how rich a man is or how poor he may be. I don't care how ignorant or how wise he is thought to be. It makes no difference with me whether a man has 10 cents or $1,000,000. When I enter this pulpit, I enter it as an expert in morals, and I see not the personality of the people who sit before me, but the souls to be saved.

"In my career I have seen the distinguished and wealthy members of my congregations put on their rubbers at least three times during one sermon because they did not like the way I treated some of the practices in society and in politics. But that did not worry me then and it would not now. I am a messenger of what I know to be the truth."

Relic of Old World Belief.

A curious relic of old world belief is reported in Yatesville, Pa. Two young men, from their names evidently Italians, were out chestnutting on Sunday and on their way home dropped their bag of nuts into an old well. One of them went down into the well to get the nuts, and when he did not return the other followed to see what had happened. The well was full of black damp, and both were suffocated. The next day an undertaker went to their homes to bury them and found that this had already been done by their parents, who had put the bodies under six inches of fresh soil in the garden, their belief being that if a person is suffocated he could be restored by burying him in fresh earth. So deep seated was this belief in the minds of the family and neighbors of the boys that it was with the utmost difficulty they were persuaded to allow the bodies to be interred properly and then only after another twenty-four hours had passed. It would be interesting to know what the origin of such a strange superstition is. Doubtless it can be traced back to some mediæval miracle story.

Yale's Supply of Governors.

"It is a rather curious fact," says the Waterbury American, "that the new governor of Porto Rico should be a classmate at Yale of the governor general of the Philippines—that is, that both Judge Taft and Judge Hunt were in the class of '78 at New Haven. We have no doubt that when it comes to choose out of the millions of eligible Americans a governor for Cuba some other member of the class of '78 at Yale will find the honor thrust upon him, although at the present moment we have no one in mind who could by any chance fill the bill. In this connection it is rather interesting to note that when Judge Taft stopped at Yokohama on his way to the Philippines and was entertained by the premier at an official dinner the man who sat next to him was Inajiro T. Tajiri, the assistant secretary of the treasury, who was also a member of the class of '78 at Yale. In short, it seems to be a habit of that class to make sure of public office—at the greatest possible distance from New Haven."

Grain Moved In Streams.

Nowhere in North America will you come on a more thrilling night scene than the fresh water cargo tank unloading at Buffalo, says Rollin Lynde Hartt in The Atlantic. Here she lies beneath the towering grain elevator, which thrusts a long pumping pipe (called the "leg") down through her hatchway. Mount the gangplank, dodging the spinning ropes that make your head reel, stumble about on the dark deck, look down, down, down through the open hatch, and, zounds, what a sight! The hold glows with electricity. It is misty with blown dust. It roars with mechanical activity.

An enormous steel "shovel," big as the inside of a house and manipulated by countless flying ropes, charges back and forth through the whole length of the ship, pitching the yellow grain before it and heaping it up where the leg can get hold of it to whisk it into the bin that is somewhere up in the sky. Beneath, in the hold, an army of blue clad men with wooden "scoops" barely dodge the deadly shovel as they swing the grain into its path.

Observations by Mildred.

Scene: Tramcar. Dramatis personæ: Four-year-old girl, mother and several passengers.

Child (in high, shrill treble)—Mamma, did you get papa's birthday present?

"Yes, dearest."

"What did you get, mamma?"

"Cigars, lovey."

"The cheap ones that Aunt Millie told you about?"

Silence from mamma, but a heightened flush on her face that was not entirely the reflection from "dearest lovey's" red velvet hat.

"Mamma, that man over there has on a dreadfully dirty necktie. You told papa the other day that no gentleman would wear a soiled necktie."

Man glares and pulls his coat about his neck.

"Mildred, stop talking."

Mildred was silent for a little while.

"Mamma, that lady over there forgot to polish her shoes this morning."—London Spare Moments.

All Cheese Is Densely Populated.

Professor Adametz, who devoted considerable time to the study of the fragrant subject, said that the population of an ordinary cheese when a few weeks old is greater than the number of persons upon the earth.

Professor Adametz made some interesting researches dealing with the minute organisms found in cheese. From a microscopic examination of a soft variety of Gruyere cheese he obtained the following statistics: In fifteen grains of cheese, when perfectly fresh, from 90,000 to 140,000 microbes were found, and when the cheese was seventy days old the population had increased to 800,000 in each fifteen grains. An examination of a denser cheese at twenty-five days old proved it to contain 1,200,000 in each gram (about fifteen grains) and when forty-five days old 2,000,000 in the same small particle.

Spiders Are Industrious.

No small insect ever escapes from the web of a spider, a fact which is not to be wondered at when it is considered that an ordinary sized snare may contain as many as 120,000 viscid globules. The spinner is constantly engaged in repairing injuries to the web inflicted by wind, stray leaves or captured insects. Once a day the whole snare is subjected to rigorous examination, and any broken or loosened threads are adjusted.—Cornhill Magazine.

Thunder.

Winter thunder is considered throughout Europe to be of very ill omen, but April thunder is considered to be very beneficial. In Devonshire and other cider counties of England there is a saying that "when it thunders in April you must clean up the barrels"—in readiness, that is, for a plentiful crop of apples.

The French consider April thunder to be indicative of a good yield from their vineyards and cornfields.

Chance For Vengeance.

Simson (angrily)—I have sent the editor of The Hightone Magazine forty-two of my poems, and he has returned every one of them.

Friend—Don't send him any more. He might get mad.

"Suppose he should. What could he do?"

"He might publish one of them under your real name."—New York Weekly.

Abandoned Cisterns.

An abandoned cistern is often a dangerous thing and should be filled, as stagnant water which may remain in it is a common source of disease. If this cannot be done at once, it is a good plan to throw in proper disinfectants and gradually fill it up with sifted coal ashes.

The Real Bitterness.

Mamma—But, darling, why should you object to taking the good doctor's advice?

Bobby—It isn't his advice, mamma. It's his horrid old medicine that I hate to take.—Chicago News.

Why He Never Attains Her Ideal.

A man who is earning the living for a family doesn't have time to live up to his wife's ideals, and by the time he has made his money he is too old and wants to be comfortable.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

To make good tea and coffee the water should be taken at the first bubble. Remember continued boiling causes the water to part with its gases and become flat. This is the cause of much bad tea and coffee.—Ladies' Home Journal.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

TEXAS OIL FLOW DECREASES

Observers of Beaumont (Tex.) Wells Puzzled by Recent Eccentricities.

The oil wells in the Beaumont fields, says a Beaumont (Tex.) dispatch to the New York Times, have caused new wonder in the last few days, and an investigation of the principal cause of the strange action of these former gushers is to be made by a geological survey, of which Dr. William B. Phelps is at the head.

The well drillers have noticed that the flow of oil in some of the wells in the Beaumont district was spasmodic, that they would spurt the fluid with their old time vigor for a few minutes and would then almost completely die out. When this occurred in the older wells, it was the theory that the pipe had become clogged. In the new wells it was thought the spasmodic flow was caused by gas pockets and that the real oil basin had not yet been reached.

This condition has become so general, however, that it is now admitted by the oil men and dealers that the flow of all the wells is rapidly decreasing in volume. They hold the opinion that this result is due to the numerous wells that have been bored and the consequent decrease of pressure in the basin of oil. It is a mystery to geologists and oil men what could cause this peculiar demonstration on the part of these wells.

It has been the opinion of some that the pressure of the Beaumont fields was from sea under water. The nearness of the wells to the gulf gives some strength to this belief. Others think that it is a gas pressure. The fact that almost every well which has been "brought in" was preceded by a terrific gas explosion is strong evidence that their theory as to the character of the pressure is correct.

A few days ago expert drillers cleaned up the Lucas gusher, the original well of the new field, which once had an established record of 70,000 barrels of oil per day. A strong flow followed for a short time, but it again subsided and the well was closed.

Black Powder Preferred

Washington, Oct. 10.—The board of artillery officers which is now conducting mortar tests at Fort Preble, Me., has informed the war department that in experimental shots smokeless powder has proved ineffective at short range and has been granted authority to use the old black powder.

Fruit Schooner Lost

Key West, Fla., Oct. 10.—Schooner Gertrude, which runs between this port and Central American ports, engaged in the fruit trade, is supposed to be lost. She left the coast a week before another fruiter which arrived last week and nothing has been seen or heard of her.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Friday, Oct. 11.
Sun rises—5:52; sets—5:10.
Moon rises—4:58 a. m.
High water—10:15 a. m.; 10:45 p. m.

The weather conditions have not changed greatly during the last 24 hours. Light rains are indicated for the western portion of New England. Light to fresh southerly winds will continue on the coast.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Carrie Gives Bonds

Wheeling, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, who was arrested here Monday night for leading a crowd of 400 women into a saloon, and fined $20 which she refused to pay, has given bond to keep the peace and appealed the case. She left the city yesterday.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial parrlysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va.. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

TAYLOR SAW THE LOOP

Indiana's Commander at Santiago Gives Testimony

NO ATTEMPT AT RAMMING

Made by Vessels of the Spanish Fleet —Potts Says That Schley Appeared Excited Durin; the Bombardment of the Colon on May 31

Washington, Oct. 10.—In the Schley naval court of inquiry yesterday Lieutenant Bristol completed his testimony begun Tuesday and three new witnesses were introduced. They were Rear Admiral Taylor, who as captain commanded the battleship Indiana during the war with Spain; Lieutenant Commander Potts, who was navigator of the battleship Massachusetts during that period, and Lieutenant Leiper, who was on the New Orleans during the war, the last named being still on the stand when the court adjourned for the day.

Rear Admiral Taylor testified that when the battle off Santiago on July 3 began the Indiana, of which he was in command, had occupied the easternmost post on the line of blockade, having taken the place of the flagship New York when it left for Siboney. In reply to a question from the judge advocate as to whether he had observed the position of the Brooklyn at the time of the beginning of the battle, the witness said: "When the battle had been on about 10 or 15 minutes my attention was attracted to the Brooklyn by my signal officer, Captain Dawson. He said to me that the Brooklyn must be injured, or words to that effect, as she was dropping out of action. I observed the Brooklyn heading apparently about south or off shore.

"She was then on my port bow, half a mile perhaps ahead of us, and at that time a quarter of a mile outside of the line of our column. She was not turning, as far as I could see. The Texas was apparently lying still in the water. I did not see whether she was backing or not. The distance between those two ships was impossible for me to see to judge the distance between them. I simply observed that there was a bunch of ships ahead of me. Not more than a few minutes later my attention was again turned to the Brooklyn. She had then proceeded a distance not over two miles and not under one mile from the time I had seen her first and the second time I saw her as near as I could figure out, 1½ miles to seaward to our column of battle. Immediately afterward she passed into the black smoke which was lying in patches about. I took no further notice of her. On those occasions however, my recollection is very plain and the distance very near to what I stated."

Judge Advocate: "Can you state generally in what direction the Brooklyn was headed when you last saw her?" "Not more than two points difference from when I first saw her; apparently, not any difference, but I can say it could not have been more than two points, and that if she was headed as I believe, south by west, when I first saw her her across the bows of the Texas, she was not headed more south by west west than when I last saw her."

"Did you see Cevera's fleet when they came out of Santiago harbor?" "Yes, sir."

"What direction did they take first after getting out and how far outside the mouth of the harbor were they when they changed their direction?" "Their change appeared gradual, porting their helms as they cleared the mouth of the harbor and proceeding perhaps with changes, of course, of one or two points at a time until they were in line parallel with the shore."

"Did you observe whether there was any attempt on the part of any of these vessels to ram any of the vessels of the American squadron?" "I observed that there was no such attempt."

Admiral Taylor said that on the morning of July 3 the Indiana had signalled: "The enemy is escaping." The Indiana, was, he said, at that time always cleared for action. He had, he said, personally seen the Brooklyn while on her southern detour, commonly known as the "loop." He had also seen signals from other ships during the battle, but he did not recall what they were.

Lieutenant Commander Potts, who was on the witness stand in the afternoon, said when asked by Captain Lemly to give his estimate of the bearing of Commodore Schley on the day of the bombardment of the Colon, May 31: "His manner was that of a man laboring under extreme mental excitement; of man who had a disagreeable duty to perform and tried to get through with it as soon as he could."

During Commander Potts examination, Mr. Rayner secured permission from the court to introduce as evidence the order of Secretary Long to Admiral Sampson, dated April 6, in which he was admonished against the exposure of the American vessels to the fire of strongly fortified ports. The paragraph in that order which he especially wished to have considered reads as follows:

"The department does not wish the vessels of your squadron to be exposed to the fire of the batteries at Havana, Santiago de Cuba or ather strongly fortified ports in Cuba, unless the more formidable Spanish vessels should take refuge within those harbors. Even in this case the department would suggest that a rigid blockade and employment of our torpedo boats might accomplish the desired object, viz, the destruction of the enemy's vessels, without subjecting unnecessarily our own men-of-war to the fire of the land batteries."

GARMENT WORKERS WIN

Over Twelve Hundred Returned to Work at Boston

Boston, Oct. 10.—The backbone of the garment workers' strike in this city was broken yesterday when 21 contractors accepted the new bill of prices and filed their bondd to put it into effect, while 25 others agreed and will file their bonds today. This sent 1250 operatives back to work this morning. The strike has been brought to the attention of the state board of arbitration, but after looking over the ground the board decided that it was not warranted in interfering, as a settlement with the operatives seemed to be assured. It is believed that the remaining contractors will fall into line in a day or two.

Boston Aeronaut Won

Buffalo, Oct. 10.—The baloon race from the stadium of the Pan-American exposition grounds yesterday between Charles Litchfield of Boston and Leo Stevens of New York for a purse of $3000 was won by the Boston aeronaut. The men started at the same moment and their balloons rose rapidly to a high altitude before the parachutes were cut loose. Litchfield's baloon ascended about 200 feet higher than did Stevens', deciding the race in his favor.

Admiral Casey Will Investigate

Washington, Oct. 10.—It is said at the navy department that the reports of misconduct on the part of Captain Tilley have emanated for the most part from Samoan missionaries. Rear Admiral Casey will proceed to Tutuila aboard his flagship, the Wisconsin, and personally investigate the charges preferred against the captain. Navy department officials are very loath to believe the stories of unbecoming conduct preferred against him.

In Memory of McKinley

Washington, Oct. 10.—At a meeting held here last night under the auspicies of the National Memorial Bridge association was organized the William McKinley National Memorial Arch association. The object of the association is to raise funds with which to construct a memorial arch to the late president at the Washington side of the proposed memorial bridge across the Potomac.

"Unfortunate Coincidence"

New York, Oct. 10.—Johan Most, the anarchist, was tried yesterday on a charge of violation of the penal code, in publishing a certain article in his paper, the Freiheid. Most testified that the article had been published years ago. The use of it just at the time of the murder of President McKinley, he said, was an unfortunate coincidence. Decision was reserved until Monday next.

Explosion Does $50,000 Damage

Erie, Pa., Oct. 10.—A large boiler in the brass foundry of the Hayes Manufacturing company exploded last night, completely demolishing the three-story brick building in which it stood. The annex of the Lloyd house, adjoining, was also demolished and six girls who were in the hotel kitchen were carried down in the wreck, two of whom may die. The damage is $50,000.

Two Deserters Caught

Halifax, Oct. 10.—Two British sailors who had deserted from the warship Niobe were forcibly taken from the American schooner Mist yesterday by a squad of civil police and an armed escort of marines. The captain of the vessel was prepared to give the men up, but the sailors refused to come on deck. The police then forcibly removed the men.

Martial Law to the Sea

Cape Town, Oct. 10.—The Gazette proclaims martial law in the districts of Cape Town, Wynberg, Simon's Town, Port Elizabeth and East London. Martial law will be modified in its application to the ports by leaving the docks, railroads and harbors under the control of the civil authorities. Military rule will be mitigated in some other respects.

ATTENTION

To physical warnings will often prevent a serious illness. When there are oppressive fullness after eating, bitter risings, belching, headache, dizziness, nervousness, with physical and mental sluggishness, prompt attention should be given to the condition of the digestive and nutritive systems. Not all these symptoms will occur at once or in any single case, but any one of them indicates a disordered condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

A prompt cure of these conditions will be effected by the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It heals diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, perfectly and permanently. Many diseases, seemingly remote from the stomach, have their origin in a diseased condition of the organs of digestion and nutrition. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures through the stomach diseases which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach, and hence diseases of liver, lungs, heart and other organs are cured by use of the "Discovery." It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, or other narcotic. It is a true temperance medicine.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing else "just as good."

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep or eat," writes Mr. J. O. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep, and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation by curing the cause. They do not beget the pill habit.

ORGANIZATION SUPPORT

A Secondary Matter With President In Making Appointments

Washington, Oct. 10.—President Roosevelt talked with great frankness yesterday with Senator Mason of Illinois regarding federal appointments. Mason was urging the claims of a constituent with great vigor, saying as a sort of climax, "He is backed, Mr. President, by the Illinois organization."

Here the president interrupted: "I wish to say, senator, that I want to stand well with the organization and all that, but I wish it distinctly understood that I will appoint no man to office, even if recommended by the organization, unless he is wholly qualified for the position he seeks and is a man of integrity."

Schley Returns From Active Duty

Washington, Oct. 10.—Notwithstanding yesterday marked an important turning point in the career of Rear Admiral Schley, being nothing less than the date of his transfer from the active to the retired list of the navy, he was in his accustomed seat within the railing of the Schley court of inquiry, and gave his usual attention to the proceedings of the court. The retirement of Admiral Schley is in accordance with law, he having reached the age of 62 years.

Partisanship Cast Aside

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 10.—Ex-Governor Jones has apparently accepted his federal judgeship for this district in the same spirit as that of which the president gave it to him. The new judge declares that no partisan considerations entered into his appointment and that under such circumstances, for a Democratic appointee of a Republican president to turn out Republicans and substitute Democrats in their places, "no gentleman would think of such a thing."

A Chinese Complaint

Pekin, Oct. 10.—Prince Ching has written to the ministers of the powers requesting a withdrawal from Pekin of the foreign business establishments. He says that Pekin is not a treaty port, that foreign business houses have been illegally established here, and that all such should be moved to treaty ports. The ministers have arranged a meeting to endeavor to agree upon joint representations in opposition to Prince Ching's demand.

No Fault to Find

New York, Oct. 10.—Hugh Kelly, secretary of the Royal Ulster Yacht club, sailed yesterday on the steamer Majestic. He expressed himself as being perfectly satisfied with the treatment he had received here and with that accorded the Shamrock II. He said that he was satisfied that England would again strive to "lift the cup."

Says He Can Explain Discrepancy

Havana, Oct. 10.—A. W. Miller, formerly city clerk of Sandusky, O., who has been arrested here in connection with an alleged shortage of nearly $100,000, which came to light after his d's appearance from Sandusky, will not resist extradition. He says he can explain the discrepancy in his accounts.

Talk of Whi e's Resignation

Berlin, Oct. 10.—The Berliner Tageblatt says there are renewed rumors of the early resignation of United States Ambassador White. Nothing is known here definitely on the subject. Mrs. White professes to be uninformed.

Kaiser May Tackle Cup

Berlin, Oct. 10.—It is rumored that Emperor William has instructed the Kiel Yacht club to challenge for the America's cup.

PAMPHLET ON BOER WAR.

Portuguese Consul Places England In a Bad Light.

Viscount de Matelha, formerly consul general and special plenipotentiary for Portugal in the Transvaal, says the London special correspondent of the New York Tribune, has issued a pamphlet reviewing the administration in South Africa during the last quarter of a century. The viscount throws little light on the political intrigues of the Boer government. He states that Conyngham Greene, the British representative at Pretoria, was kept well informed of the doings of Mr. Kruger and the preparations that were being made by the Boers for war. Mr. Greene was also supplied by friends with the correspondence of the Transvaal representatives and agents in Europe with Pretoria detailing their interviews with different foreign ministers on the European continent, besides copies of official and secret correspondence that went from Pretoria to Europe.

It is only fair to assume that Mr. Greene forwarded all the documents that came into his hands to the British government, so that it becomes more difficult than ever to understand England's unpreparedness for this war. Copies of the secret correspondence are, says the viscount, still in existence for all that is known to the contrary. Before hostilities broke out one of the parties who held the information sent the particulars out of the country for safety and future use. On the arrival of Lord Roberts at Pretoria an order was given to send the papers back to the Transvaal capital. Directly afterward it was deemed fit to countermand this order, but lest the papers should be lost the ciphers were confided to Major Poore, provost marshal at Pretoria.

The writer of this pamphlet expresses the hope that when the time is ripe and seasonable the press will be in a position to publish this correspondence. With regard to the future, he thinks that if there was a Laurier in South Africa, one whom the Dutch people could implicitly trust and believe in, always close to the high commissioner, there would be a chance soon of creating the desired harmonious whole by making the able proconsul better understood and appreciated.

Bunkoing a Japanese.

"J. P. G." was only an enlisted man in Uncle Sam's navy, but his messmates called him "the Swell" because whenever he went ashore he carried a suit of civilian's clothes. At Yokohama, in his fine raiment and a white felt hat, he passed himself off to a Japanese coal merchant as the paymaster of the fleet and contracted for several thousand tons of coal. The price named was $14 a ton.

"What is my rake off?" he asked the dealer, who offered a generous commission. "Make the price sixteen dollars a ton and have —— thousand tons ready for delivery at the earliest possible hour tomorrow morning," he said.

The merchant opened wine, and when thoroughly warmed up the sailor remarked, looking indolently at his watch: "By the bye, I'm expected to visit the club tonight, and it is probable that I may need a little more money than I have in my pocket. Perhaps you had better advance me three or four thousand dollars on account."

Of course he got what he wanted. Next morning the vessels were surrounded with scores of barges laden with coal, and it was all the officers could do to prevent the Japs from unloading their cargoes. The dealer dared say nothing, for he had entered into a conspiracy to defraud the government, so he pocketed his loss in silence.—New York Press.

Now They Never Speak.

A coolness growing out of the following conversation has sprung up between Jones and Smith.

"I had a splendid time last night," said Jones. "I spent the evening at a little social gathering at the Goodman mansion."

"Are the Goodmans nice people?" queried Smith.

"Well, I should say so. They are very aristocratic. To get into their circle one must have either a great deal of money or a great deal of genius."

"You don't tell me so? And you say you were there?"

"Yes."

"You were invited, were you?"

"Of course."

"And to be invited a man has to have plenty of money or a great deal of genius?"

"Precisely."

"Well, Jones, I am very glad to hear you have become rich all of a sudden. Lend me five pounds!"—London Answers.

Reasons For a Divorce.

The Druses sometimes divorce their wives for apparently the most trivial causes. Thus a man named Soleiman Attala had a wife, Isbakyeh. The woman frequently worked for us, and on several occasions I had to complain that she talked too much and worked too little. At length I was obliged to tell Soleiman that owing to his wife's laziness I could employ her no longer. Shortly afterward I went to England.

On my return after a couple of mohths' absence I was surprised to find that Soleiman had divorced Isbakyeh and had already married another woman. On inquiring from him the cause of this he replied, "Your honor told me that you would not employ my wife again, so I thought I would get rid of her and marry another woman whom you would employ."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Coaling a British Visitor.

A big British battleship coming here to attend a patriotic function of some kind on the invitation of our government ran short of coal, and Uncle Sam, as host, agreed to fill her bunkers free of charge. This courtesy was done through the medium of a Jersey City merchant, who supplied fine furnace coal, worth from $6 to $7 a ton and presented his bill to the English captain. "Send it to the navy department," said the latter, and to Washington it went, to be returned by the next mail with a memorandum attached saying that an error had been made in the charge, "the government contract calling for coal at $3 a ton." And that is all the smart Jerseyite ever received.—New York Press.

No Rebate.

When Adelina Patti visited Madrid one time in company with her husband, Signor Nicolini, who thought himself a tenor singer, there was an effort to engage the noted artist for an especial occasion. The opera director asked:

"How much will you charge us if you and your honored husband appear on this occasion for one night?"

"Ten thousand francs, sir."

"And how much if you come without the signor, madame?"

"Ten thousand francs."

Catherine de' Medici.

Catherine de' Medici of France was a tall, dignified woman of striking personal appearance. Her manner was often cold and repulsive, her language haughty. She was never popular or well liked. Her features were regular, and the chief merit of her countenance was a full black eye that seemed to fascinate those on whom she looked.

Jungle Talk.

"Hello! Where are you going?" cried the lion as the fleet footed stag dashed by him.

"Oh, I'm just traveling for my health," panted the stag. "Why do you ask?"

"My friend the tiger invited me to participate in a stag dinner party today, and I was wondering if you were the party."—Philadelphia Press.

A Lesson In Washing.

Pliny the Great could see things in front of his nose as well as afar off. "I notice that the women rub the washing in cold water," he wrote one day. "Let them heat the water, and the alkali in the soap will be freed and take far better effect." And only after that did women know how to wash.

A MEMORIAL AT CANTON

To Fittingly Honor Memory of Our Martyred President

PUBLIC ASKED FOR FUNDS

To Enable Trustees to Carry on the Work Allotted to Them—Donors to the Fund to Receive a Souvenir Certificate Worthy of Preservation

Cleveland, Oct. 11.—At the conclusion of a meeting of the trustees of the McKinley National Memorial association held here yesterday, a statement was issued to the public.

The association, having been incorporated according to law, met for the purpose of affecting an organization by the election of officers and adoption of regulations for its government.

The President of the United States, at the request of Mrs. McKinley and members of the family, named a board of trustees, of which Governor Crane of Massachusetts is a member. The trustees, having qualified, chose as president William R. Day of Canton, O.; vice-president, Marcus Hanna, Cleveland; treasurer, Myron T. Herrick, Cleveland; secretary, Ryerson Ritchie, Cleveland. The statement says:

The purposes of the association are the erection and maintenance at Canton, O., of a suitable memorial to the late president and raising the necessary funds for said purposes, and, after fully providing therefor, the surplus of such fund, if any, to be devoted to such memorial as may be provided for the late president at the national capitol. The memorial will be erected at Canton, that city having been his home throughout his public life and selected by him as his final resting place.

The memorial is to be, in the highest sense, the sincere expression of all the people of the country of their love for President McKinley and of their admiration for the qualities expressed so eminently in his life and deeds.

It is the purpose to have the offerings of the people voluntary with a full opportunity to all to contribute.

The co-operation of the governors and officer of the states and municipalities of the United States and all religious, educational, civic, patriotic, fraternal, benevolent and other organizations is cordially invited.

All public officials, organized bodies and the press are requested to take immediate steps to secure, at the earliest possible time, a full response to this appeal. The association looks to the press of the country to lend its efficient aid to the collection and forwarding of subscriptions.

Moneys may be deposited in banks and other financial institutions, with telegraph, telephone and express offices, and with postmasters, who are requested to receive and transmit them to the treasurer promptly.

The trustees of the association will receive subscripttions. Subscriptions ceive subscriptions. The subscriptions abroad may be received by the ambassadors, ministers and consuls of the United States, and in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands by the respective governors thereof, or persons authorized by them. Remittances may be made directly to Colonel Myron T. Herrick, treasurer, Cleveland, O.

The association will prepare and distribute to all donors to the fund a souvenir certificate which will be worthy of preservation as evidence of the holder's participation in the work. The name and postoffice address of each contributor should be forwarded to the treasurer of the association with the fund remitted for preservation in the permanent archives of the association.

It is hoped that the response of the people will be so liberal that a memorial may be erected which will fittingly honor the memory of our martyred president, and emphasize their loyalty to our institutions and their abhorrence of that spirit of lawlessness which inspired the assault upon his life.

Marquis Ito Laid Up

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Stricken by a severe affection of the heart, a malady to which he has long been subject, Marquis Ito, former premier of Japan, is confined to his room at a hotel and may be forced to abandon his prospective tour of the United States. His condittion is such that his attendants are much distressed concerning him.

Three Children Suffocated

Montreal, Oct. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Chapleau left their three children asleep in bed last night and went to a neighbor's. A lamp left burning in the kitched presumably exploded. When the flames were extinguished the children were suffocated.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists

THEY DID THEIR BEST

Lipton as Thankful to His Sailors as If He Had Won the Cup

New York, Oct. 11.—Sir Thomas Lipton last night dined the crews of the Shamrock II, the Erin and the tender Porto Rico, the three vessels which composed the Lipton fleet in America during the last racing season, at Hotel Marlborough.

"Better luck next time" was the toast Sir Thomas proposed, then following with a little speech in which he said: "I am delighted to see you all so jolly, then. And there is really no reason why you should not be happy, for while we did not lift the cup, we got fairly and squarely licked. You did your best, and no man can do more.

"Captain Sycamore ought to be proud of his crew, and the crew of the Shamrock ought to be proud of Captain Sycamore. I am proud of you all. If I should decide again to race, I would not change a single man, provided you would all be willing to go with me. Captain Sycamore is as good a skipper as ever stepped on a boat's deck, and the crew is as good as any that ever manned a racing yacht.

"I thank you for what you have done for me. You never for a moment left your post of duty. Your conduct has been such as to make you a credit to your country, and for this also I thank you most sincerely. We were not successful in lifting the cup; but I tell you, if we had won, I could not be more thankful to you.

"You have heard that this is a great country for trusts, and they cornered the wind; that's the reason why we could not get it. The Shamrock is as good as any boat afloat. Designer Watson deserves all the credit for the thought and skill he has laid down in its construction. But the best of boats need a little luck, and while there was plenty of luck about that day, we did not seem to get any of it."

The evening was wound up with a vaudeville entertainment.

They Incited to Murder

Paris, Oct. 11.—Laurent Tailhade, editor of The Libertaire, the anarchist sheet, was tried yesterday for an article he published during the visit of Emperor Nicholas to France, inciting to the murder of the czar, President Loubet and four ministers. He was sentenced to imprisonment for one year and to a fine of 1000 francs. M. Grandidier, manager of The Libertaire, was sentenced to imprisonment for six months and to a fine of 100 francs. The announcement of the judgment was followed by an ovation to Tailhade on the part of his friends and sympathizers. Tailhade is an inveterate anarchist, although a man of great literary talent.

"Goebel Was Not Conscious"

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 11.—The defence in the Powers trial has called Miss Helen Baulzeimer, the trained nurse who attended Goebel, to testify that Goebel was never conscious after he was taken to his room and could therefore never have taken the oath of office. This continued W. S. Taylor as governor, and his pardons issued to Powers and others are declared to be legal.

Carried Revolvers and Knives

Barrie, Ont., Oct. 11.—Floyd Mann, giving his address as Buffalo, and another man claiming to be from New York, were arrested near here yesterday as suspicious characters. They were going up the railway tracks about the time the train bearing the Duke and Duchess of York was expected. Both carried loaded revolvers and knives. They are being held pending investigation.

Fresh Troops For Philippines

Washington, Oct. 11.—It has been determined at the war department to send troops to the Philippines to take the places of those whose term of enlistment expires. If any considerable number of enlistments expire in a single organization, it is probable that the organization as a whole will be returned and another regiment sent to take its place.

Bark Badly Battered

St. Johns, Oct. 11.—The Russian bark Pehr Brahe arrived here last night, 51 days out from Carnarvon for Miramichi, N. B., short of food and water. Captain Westerland reports that he encountered rough weather and was driven north until forced among the ice floes and in great danger of foundering. The ship was badly buffetted.

National Anti-Vice Movement

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Vice will be opposed by the national organization as the result of the purity convention which has been in session here for the past two days. The convention closed last night after appointing a committee with power to call another conference at any time to extend the scope and power of the work.

Will Cost $135,000 For Repairs

Halifax, Oct. 11.—The damage to H. M. S. Indefatigable, which struck on a reef in the St. Lawrence, is far more serious than was at first supposed, and it is estimated that it will cost $135,000 to put her in repair.

AFTER SHORT SICKNESS

President of Mormon Church Breathes His Last

WAS CONVERTED IN 1836

Had Devoted His Time Since Then to Building Up the Religion In Which He Believed—Served In the Legislature and Founded a City

Salt Lake City, Oct. 11.—Lorenzo Snow, fifth president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, better known as the Mormon church, died unexpectedly at his residence, the historic bee hive house, yesterday afternoon. The immediate cause of his death was hypostetic congestion, superinduced by aggravated bronchitis.

LORENZO SNOW.

Several weeks ago President Snow contracted a cold. He was at his desk, however, attending to business as late as Tuesday. Wednesday morning he was seized with an attack of nausea, which continued at intervals throughout the day. Wednesday night his physicians were called and remained in constant attendance until death came.

The church authorities became alarmed at his condition Wednesday and most of the leaders, together with such members of his family as could be summoned by telegraph and otherwise, remained in the sick chamber until the end.

President Snow's death caused a shock to the entire community, and is deeply deplored. He was regarded as a broad minded man who desired the upbuilding of Utah as well as the progress of the Mormon church.

President Snow's death dissolves the first presidency, of which he was the head, his two counsellors being Joseph Smith and Rudger Clawson. Until his successor shall be chosen, which may not be until the annual conference next April, the leadership of the church will devolve upon the council of 12 apostles, of which body Mr. Smith is the recognized head. Unless death should come to him in the meantime, Mr. Smith will be the next president of the church.

President Snow leaves a large family, the members being scattered throughout the world.

Lorenzo Snow was born in Mantua, O., April 3, 1814, and received a classical education at Oberlin college. He became a convert to Mormonism in 1836, and then immediately began prosleyting. Since then he has been one of the most active and prominent members of the church organization. He has been on numerous foreign missions, the most important being that to Great Britain in 1840, where he became president of the London conference. In 1848, at the head of a train of 160 wagons, he made the overland trip from Illinois to the present site of Salt Lake City, and in all the work of founding and building up this city he was a leader.

For 30 years commencing with 1852, he was a member of the territorial legislature, chiefly as presiding officer of the upper house. In 1855 with 50 families, he founded and named Brigham City, in northern Utah, which was his home for many years. In 1886, during the agitation against the practice of polygamy, he was convicted of unlawful cohabitation and sentenced to three terms of six months each, but later was released on a writ of habeas corpus. On Sept. 13, 1896, he was chosen president of the church in success.on to Wilford Woodruff.

Capital Almost Wiped Out

Berlin, Oct. 11.—The committee that has been investigating the affairs of the embarrassed Hecklenburg-Strelitz Mortgage bank reports deficit of 10,000,000 marks upon a capital of 12,000,000 marks and that the annual loss from interest on mortgages will be 794,000 marks.

Railroads Can't Use Convicts

Dallas, Oct. 11.—Superintendent Rice of the state penitentiary announces that the penitentiary board has determined to discontinue the practice of leading convicts to do railroad and repair work. It is said approximately 2000 convicts have been leased yearly.

People Fleeing From Colombia

Kingston, Ja., Oct. 11.—Steamer Barbadian has brought more refugees from Colon. They say the situation there is still serious, that trade is entirely crippled and that they left Colon in order to avoid compulsory military service.

IN HONOR OF M'KINLEY

Procession of Boston Italians Followed by a Memorial Meeting

Boston, Oct. 11.—Little Italy did honor to the memory of President McKinley yesterday with an observance which was none the less sincere because it was unique. Business was generally suspended throughout the north end and at 2 o'clock a parade which included all of the Italian societies of the city started from North End park. The route was through the principal streets of the district, after which the procession passed through several streets of the business section, being reviewed by the mayor at city hall and by the governor at the state house.

About 500 men were in line, and there were several brass bands. The most conspicuous feature was a huge float designed as a funeral car, which was surmounted by a broken column entwined with green. On front was a picture of the dead president, and beneath it a bronze tablet bearing the inscription: "From the Italians of Boston in memory of President William McKinley, Oct. 10, 1901." The float was drawn by four black horses and created an impression of awe as it passed through the narrow, winding streets of the north end. The tablet was shipped to Canton at the close of the memorial services.

The procession was disbanded at Faneuil hall, where exercises were held by the societies last evening. Ex-Councilman Badaracco presided and addresses in Italian were delivered by Mr. De Marco, Dr. Brindisi and Mr. Caldbro, and in English by Antonio Capecosto, Dr. Santuosso and Councilman Seigliano.

American Board's Resolution

Hartford, Oct. 11.—At the annual meeting of the corporate members of the American board in this city yesterday Samuel B. Capen, LL. D., Boston, was re-elected president. The following resolution was passed: "That the American board is in deep and tender sympathy with its missionary, Miss Ellen M. Stone, now held in captivity by brigands; that its officers and members are heartily grateful for the prompt and strenuous efforts of our government in seeking her release and for the popular movement to provide for her ransom, and trust that these efforts in her behalf may speedily be crowned with success."

Dearth of Information

Boston, Oct. 11.—No new information was made public yesterday relative to the case of Miss Stone. The imperilled missionary is still in the lesser Balkan mountains. Acting under instructions, the progress of the ransom fund has not yet been made public, so it is not known to which extent the $57,000 which had been subscribed up to Wednesday morning has been increased.

Says He Is a Bankrupt

Boston, Oct. 11.—Thomas A. Scott, the reputed millionaire railroad builder of the west, whose imprisonment on a civil suit since last February has attracted much interest, appeared yesterday in the municipal court and asked to be allowed to take the poor debtor's oath. He claimed that he had gone into bankruptcy. Judge Dewey will render a decision later.

Brainerd Appeared Cheerful

Portland, Me., Oct. 11.—Geeorge H. Brainerd, the murderer of Isaiah H. Farnham, was taken to the state prison at Thomaston yesterday to serve a sentence of life imprisonment. He seemed in a peaceful frame of mind and appeared to be little troubled by the curious gaze of those encountered while leaving the jail and boarding the train at the depot.

The Garment Workers' Strike

Boston, Oct. 11.—The striking garment workers are fast getting recognition from the clothing contractors and 750 more operatives returned to their work yesterday. This will make over 2500 now back at work. Contractors who still hold will be given three days in which to sign the list and file their bonds.

Strike Sentiment Decreasing

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 11.—The chances of a strike in Fall River, apparently, are decreasing, and last night's action of the weavers pointed that way, when they voted not to favor a strike movement unless four of the five unions in the Textile Council vote to strike.

Nearly Eight Thousand Endeavorers

Brattleboro, Vt., Oct. 11.—The state convention of the Christian Endeavor union closed last evening. The membership of the Vermont union is 7975, a gain of 131 in the last year. The union has received gifts amounting to $4340 during the year.

Killed Himself Because Friend Did

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 11.—Peter Olander committed suicide here by slashing his wrists and bleeding to death. He had brooded over the suicide of a friend, Niles Bolin, earlier in the week. He was 40 years of age and single.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

Good Afternoon

The town of Brookline has adopted the Boston caucus act, but may find that its trials have only just commenced.

To the "doesn't" of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., should be added "Doesn't believe in single blessedness." A young millionaire who doesn't smoke, drink, race horses, care for the theatre or club life sets a high example. It is a pleasure to see a rich young man who is a student, a church worker, and free from ostentation.

The present system of placing candidates in nomination for Mayor and Councilmen at large, is as unsatisfactory as the nomination for Representatives to the General Court. Would it not be better in the Republican caucuses if the Republicans voted directly on all the candidates for Mayor. This year there appears to be four candidates in the field: Messrs. Packard, Jones, Jameson and Bryant, and Republicans in each ward should have a chance to express their preference of the four, and not delegate their rights. Under the system of the past, Ward One Republicans must vote for or against Mr. Packard; Ward Three for or against Mr. Jones, while Ward Five fights it out between Messrs. Jameson and Bryant. Then Wards Two, Four and Six may run in a dark horse and secure his nomination.

The movement for through cars to Boston is in the line of rapid transit and better service. There is no good reason for a break in the street railway tracks at Neponset. To be sure there intervenes the tracks of a steam railroad, but it is a single track of a branch but little used. Really an emergency branch, because the main route of Mattapan and Milton trains is via. Ashmont and Fields Corner to Harrison Square. On the north of Boston, cars from more distant cities and towns enter Boston. Not only Cambridge, Somerville and Chelsea adjoining, but Arlington, Medford, Malden and Revere and even Lynn and Marblehead. The last mentioned is at least 17 miles from Boston. There is more of a demand for through cars and better time than there is for a five cent fare. The waits at Neponset, especially when outward bound, are vexatious.

Drift of Opinion.

Apropos of the ransoming of Miss Stone from the Bulgarian brigands, Rev. J. F. Clark, now in Boston states, that if she is ransomed not a missionary in the east will be safe. As Mr. Clark speaks from experience with brigands, who repeatedly threatened to injure him if money was not forthcoming, his words have much weight.

Rev. Dr. Berry of Worcester believes the presence of newspaper representatives at business meetings of religious organizations is prejudicial to the best interests of the cause which they represent, inasmuch as it tends to restrict the freedom of debate. While it is not the purpose of the journalistic fraternity to intrude upon the privacy of secret organizations, they have been led to believe that their presence at meetings of religious bodies has been desirable as an aid to the spread of religion. As to the restriction of debate it is difficult to see wherein this claim holds good if such debate is always carried on in a spirit of Christian fellowship.—Lowell Mail.

The man who wishes to be remembered after he is dead and gone must be something more than a mere collector. He must do something as well as save something. What the gatherer of books, pictures, postal cards, stamps, medals and what not should think of his own present enjoyment. If he likes it, let him do it, but let him not expect his children, or at least his grandchildren, will care anything for his collection except as it may have a money value. Men collect books, have them installed in handsome cases, bound in expensive leathers, embellished with elaborate name plates and after they have passed away the collection is broken up and the fragments sold to other collectors. The philatelist, the numismatist and all the other ists have the same experience, and one may ask what is the good of being a collector? The fun of the thing, the love of conquest, of discovery, of securing something that has hitherto eluded the search of others, that is the good of it, and its principal value. Occasionally something is collected that has a permanent value, not only in its association, but financially, but as a rule collecting like "virtue, is its own reward." And for that very reason it should be encouraged. It is harmless except when it leads to kleptomania, and the collector finds pleasure where the scoffer would little expect it.—Lynn Item.

DEBT TO BE PAID.

Enthusiastic Meeting of Hospital Corporators.

Physicians and Others Speak of Needs.

Committee Appointed for House to House Collection.

The meeting at Colonial hall Thursday evening, called by the trustees of the City Hospital to dicuss plans to improve the financial condition of the hospital was largely attended many clergymen, professional men and prominent citizens being present.

Hon. William B. Rice president of the corporation presided. He stated that the financial condition of the hospital was somewhat better than usual at this time of the year. He urged a more organized effort within the churches in connection with the Hospital Sunday collections. He said the hospital did not like to be continually begging in public but the needs of the institution were growing more rapidly than the populaton of the city.

The hospital owed about $8,000 and needed to raise $3,000 for its needs this year and he hoped a determined and well organized effort would be made to solicit subscriptions from every house in the city, and from the churches. He believed every citizen took a pride in this noble institution, that was maintained for the most part by public subscriptions and he had no doubt but the people would rally loyally to the support of the hospital when its necessities became known.

The past year had been the busiest ever recorded at the hospital. Cots had to be placed between the regular beds and every other available space of room was occupied, yet with all this there were times when the matron did not know where to put the next patient. Another regular ward was needed, and a ward for contagious diseases, and a nurses home.

He paid a noble tribute to the nurses, and told how they were obliged to occupy narrow rooms in the attic of the building, six of them living in a place hardly large enough for two. He appealed to the generosity of some wealthy man to erect a home for nurses and thus perpetuate to himself a monument more enduring than bronze or stone.

Addresses were also made by Dr. John A. Gordon, Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, George H. Field, Rev. C. P. Mills, Rev. E. C. Butler, Rev. Edward Anderson and Richard L. Tappenden.

Mr. Tappenden spoke of the work done at the hospital as one who had had considerable experience. While at work as foreman as the works of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company a steel bar an inch and a quarter in diameter, had been driven through his body so that two feet of it protruded beyond the back. He had been treated at the hospital and had had recently been discharged in perfect health. His recovery was considered miraculous by the attending physicians.

A committee was appointed to solicit subscription from citizens, as follows: Ward One, Fred B. Rice; Ward Two, Arthur W. Newcomb; Ward Three, George H. Field; Ward Four, Dr. Thomas J. Dion; Ward Five, Dr. Elmon R. Johnson; Ward Six, Roger H. Wilde. This committee was authorized to appoint prominent citizens to aid them in the work, and it was decided to make the collections from Oct. 21 to Oct. 26, and Oct. 27 was appointed Hospital Sunday for the churches.

After the meeting coffee, cake and ices were served. The meeting was very enthusiastic throughout, and the trustees are confident that the hospital will be generally remembered this year.

Riding the Wooden Horse.

Torture on a grand scale went out with Felton, the assassin of Buckingham, but torture on a small scale continued to be practiced on military offenders down to the eighteenth century. The form most frequently resorted to was that known as the wooden horse, to ride which was the punishment accorded for petty thefts, insubordination and so on. The wooden horse was made of planks nailed together so as to form a sharp ridge or angle about eight or nine feet long. This ridge represented the back of the horse and was supported by four posts or legs about five feet high placed on a stand made movable by truckles. To complete the resemblance to the noblest animal in creation a head and tail were added.

When a soldier was sentenced, either by court martial or by his commanding officer, to ride the horse, he was placed on the brute's back, with his hands tied behind him, and frequently enough, in order to increase the pain, muskets were fastened to his legs to weigh them down or, as was jocularly said, to prevent the fiery, untamed, bare-backed steed from kicking him off.—London Graphic.

The Camphor Eater.

It is surprising what a number of camphor eaters there are among the well to do classes. The idea seems to prevail that this gum,' taken in small and regular doses, gives a peculiarly clear creaminess of complexion, and scores of young women buy it for this purpose. The habit is, moreover, very difficult to cast off, for camphor produces a mild form of exhilaration and stupefaction, and in many instances where very large doses have been swallowed the habit has become a sort of slavery.

These camphor eaters all have a dreamy, dazed and very listless air, and in most of them there is an ever present longing to sleep or at least to rest. Extreme weakness generally follows the taking of regular doses, and I have seen cases where it has been almost difficult to tell the effects from those of alcohol. As to the complexion, if a ghastly pallor be an improvement camphor certainly produces it.—Clinic.

When "Pluck" Was Slang.

The word "pluck" affords another instance of the way in which slang words in the course of time become adopted into current English. We now meet with "pluck" and "plucky" as the recognized equivalents of "courage" and "courageous." An entry in Sir Walter Scott's "Journal" shows that in 1827 the word had not yet lost its low character. He says (volume 2, page 30), "Want of that article blackguardly called pluck." Its origin is obvious. From early times the heart has been popularly regarded as the seat of courage. Now, when a butcher lays open a carcass he divides the great vessels of the heart, cuts through the windpipe and then plucks out together the united heart and lungs—lights, he calls them—and he terms the united mass "the pluck."—Notes and Queries.

A Victim of Scotch Logic.

A highland hotel keeper was one day having a squabble with an Englishman in the lobby of the hotel about his bill. The stranger said it was a gross imposition—he could live cheaper in the best hotel in London.

The highland landlord replied, "Oh, nae doot, sir, nae doot; but dae ye no' ken the reason?"

"Not a bit of it," replied the stranger hastily.

"Weel, then," replied the host, "as ye seem to be a sensible bit callant, I'll tell ye. There's 365 days in the Lunnon hotel keeper's calendar, but we have only three months here. Dae ye understand me noo, freen'? We maun mak' hay in the hielan's when the sun shines, for it's unco seldom she dis't."—Scottish American.

The Appian Way.

The famous Appian way, mentioned by almost every Roman writer, connected the Eternal City with all parts of south Italy. For many miles from Rome the space on each side was filled with sepulchers, many of them of persons distinguished in history. To have a sepulcher on the Appian way was equivalent to being buried in Greenwood, in New York, or Pere la Chaise, in Paris.

A Peculiar Word.

The word "habit" is one of the most peculiar in our language. If you take off the first letter, you still have "a bit." If you remove the second, the word "bit" is still on hand. Decapitate that by removing the "b" and it is still a word. Take off the "i," and you find the old "habit" not "t" totally destroyed.

The River Jordan.

SWEDISH BISHOP.

His Visit This week and His Mission to This Country.

The visit of Bishop von Scheele, the special representative of King Oscar and the State church of Sweden, to this country, is an occasion of great interest to the Swedish Lutherans. Tuesday he was in Boston, and a few Quincy people had the pleasure of hearing him speak, and meeting him. Wednesday he was at Worcester, Thursday at Providence, and Sunday will be New York state, and he will go into many states.

He is not simply Bishop von Scheele on the credentials given him by his king and signed by him and the governor of Gotland. There he is "The right reverend, the lord bishop of the diocese of Wisby (Gotland, Sweden), Knut Henning Gezelius von Scheele, member of the Swedish riksdag, commander Grand cross of the royal order of the North star, doctor of divinity and doctor of philosophy."

Oscar, king of Sweden, and his bishop von Scheele, are so much alike in personal appearance that those who are not aware of the difference in their height frequently take the one for the other.

To a Worcester reporter he said he had enjoyed every moment of his stay in America so far, and expected nothing different. It is his second tour and he knew, he said, what to expect. The voyage across had been an unpleaant one, extremely stormy and rough; but fair weather and American hospitality since his arrival had practically wiped away every unpleasant memory of the trip. Busy as he has been since his arrival, with three addresses delivered to Swedes an Americans in New York and with one Tuesday night in Boston, with banquets in both cities and much other hospitality, he says he has scarcely begun.

Sunday I shall be in Jamestown, N. Y., and the following day will be in attendance at the general council of Lutherans at Lima, O., and then I shall come East again as far as Washington to deliver the greetings of my king to President Roosevelt, Thursday. Later there are trips to Swedish Lutheran colleges throughout the country, my longest being at Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., and there will be visits to all large Swedish centers as far South as Denver and as far West as Minneapolis."

The bishop spoke with great feeling regarding the death by assassination of President McKinley. "It was a great shock to the people and the King of Sweden. We could not understand how in a country with such freedom as America gives to all her people such a terrible crime could be committed. It was the more astonishing that such a man as President McKinley was, loved and respected, not only by his own people, but by the whole world, should have been the victim. The grief of Sweden was genuine. King Oscar was stricken at the news, as though the president had been his brother. The grief of all Sweden was great. We feel the death of President McKinley as a blow to our hearts. As he said this slowly in deep voice full of genuine feeling, the bishop placed a hand over his own heart "We could not understand at all how such a crime could happen in America."

Speaking of the regard which Sweden bears this country, the bishop smiled and said heartily. "It is the closest. We are two free countries, and our best sympathies are with America, and I think always will be. America to us is a great country of tremendous resources, vigorous and grand, governed nobly by her people. There is no thought but that of admiration and high regard. Personally I am charmed with the country. Had I not been so charmed on my first visit I should not be here today. My lady I have brought with me, and that," he said smilingly "is another and greater proof of how America impressed herself upon me. She is delighted with her vsit so far, and it is the first time she has been in the land." Speaking of his mission, Bishop von Scheele was emphatic regarding the standing of the Augustana synod as true daughter of the state church of Sweden. The claims of the Swedish Episcopal church of America he would not discuss, except to say that church was Calvanistic, and the Augustana synod and the state church of Sweden Lutheran. "My first visit was to recognize in the name of king and state church the daughter church of America. This visit also is partly with that purpose. My mission, however, is broader than that of 1896. I have permission to speak over the country to our people, and to visit the educational institutions of the Swedes. My greeting to the Augustana synod is official, in the name of the king and the church. No other denomination is recognized by either in such a way.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

Demand For Good Bank Officials

Denver, Oct. 11.—Secretary of the Treasury Gage was the principal speaker at a meeting of Denver banking employees here yesterday. Mr. Gage said: "If I knew that you were capable I would take 20 young men out of your midst and place you in positions in various parts of the country which would pay you $25,000 a year. Fifty years from now the country will have a population of 190,000,000 people and the banking business will increase proportionately."

Giving Satisfactory Service

Mexico City, Oct. 11.—Powell Clayton of Arkansas, United States ambassador here, on Sept. 20 forwarded his resignation to President Roosevelt, according to established precedents. Ambassador Clayton has received a reply from the departmentof state expressing the hope of the president that he will remain in the office he now holds.

No Demonstration Intended

Washington, Oct. 11.—On Sept. 30 the navy department issued an itinerary for the battleship Indiana. She was to take a number of landsmen on board on a training cruise through the West Indies. The publication was misinterpreted as indicating a demonstration on the coast of Venezuela. To remove any cause for criticism the navy department has cancelled the itinerary and hereafter will refrain from publishing the projected movements of ships.

For a Very Good Reason.

"I told him I would make him eat his words," declared Mr. Beechwood hotly, speaking of a quarrel he had had with Mr. Brushton. "He has been telling things about me that are rank untruths."

"How foolishly men talk to one another!" commented Mrs. Beechwood placidly.

"What do you mean?" demanded her husband. "Do you intend to insinuate that men talk to each other more foolishly than women chatter?"

"Of course I do," the lady went on imperturbably. "Now, women never try to make each other eat their words, no matter how angry they may be."

"Certainly not," retorted Mr. Beechwood, "and for a very good reason too."

"What reason?" she demanded.

"Because their digestive apparatus is inferior to their vocabulary."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Why Water Won't Fry.

Why cannot we fry in water? Because water can only be heated to the boiling point, 212 degrees, and any additional heat does not increase its temperature. Two hundred and twelve degrees of heat will not brown the surface of anything. Fat, on the contrary, can be made much hotter, the temperature depending on the kind. There is a lesson here for the economical housewife. Don't stuff the stove with fuel when the vegetables, meat, etc., are already boiling. They cook no faster because of the increase of heat.

A Typical South African Store,

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

SCHLEY GAINS A POINT

Evidence In His Favor by a Government Witness

LEAF FROM SCORPION'S LOG

Shows That Schley Was Not Notified That Spanish Fleet Was Not at Cienfuegos—Schuetze Signed Board of Navigators' Chart Under Protest

Washington, Oct. 11.—Just before the Schley court of inquiry adjourned yesterday, Judge Advocate Lemly introduced Lieutenant Holden, formerly watch officer on the Scorpion, as a witness.

Lieutenant Holden signed the entry in the Scorpion's log, giving the particulars of the receipt of a message for Commodore Schley from the Eagle, which that vessel had brought from Captain McCalla on May 19, 1898, when the flying squadron, then bound for Cienfuegos, fell in with Captain McCalla's subsquadron, which had just left that port.

The government had sought to show that by this message Commodore Schley had been notified that the Spanish fleet was not in the harbor of Cienfuegos, and Lieutenant Commander Sutherland of the Eagle had testified that he had megaphoned to the Scorpion that there were only a torpedo boat and several connonieros in that harbor. Captain Lemly told the court that the log of the Scorpion did not show the receipt of the message in this form, and that he was prepared to admit that the evidence did not carry that message to Commodore Scfley.

Other witnesses were Lieutenant-Commander Schuetze, who served on the Iowa, and Lieutenant Grant, who was on the Massachusetts, who testified concerning the general campaign of the flying squadron. Lieutenant Leiper concluded his testimony, begun Wednesday.

Lieutenant Commander Schuetze, who as lieutenant, was the navigator of the battleship Iowa, during the summer of 1898, was a member of the board of navigators which prepared the official chart of the positions of the vessels engaged on both sides in the battle of July 3, "I protested," he said, "against signing the report as being inaccurate, but I was finally persuaded to do so by the senior member of the board, Commander Wainwright, who thought that was the best we could do, even if we stayed until doomsday, and I signed it under protest. My first objection was that the chart was inaccurate; that the position of the Iowa as plotten on this chart gave her too much speed. In order to keep the Iowa in relative postion to the other ships for certain distances she approximately appeared to be making 18 knots, when she was making 9 to 10."

"Another objection I had was the initial position of the Brooklyn when the Spaniards first left the harbor. I contended that the Brooklyn's position was too close to the mouth of the harbor; that she was not in her regular position. She was south of it. I based the opinion on the fact that when I first discovered the Spaniards coming out of the harbor I looked over toward the other ships on our left, and the Brooklyn was very nearly abeam of the Iowa. The Iowa was holding north, directly into the harbor."

Commander Schuetze was asked in regard to his observations of the Brooklyn in the battle of July 3. He replied: "I saw the Brooklyn at the beginning of the action about port abeam of the Iowa. I saw her some minutes afterward, when she appeared to be headed a little to the eastward of north. It is difficult to tell, because she was very nearly broadside on. Soon afterward I saw her headed to the eastward, about due east, I should say. That is the last I saw of her."

Captain Lemly: "I want you to state whether you saw the Texas about this time? How was she located, relative to the Brooklyn? Did you notice anything particularly as to the speed or maneuvering of the Texas?"

"When I first saw the Texas she was heading to the eastward of north. Soon afterward I noticed her again and she was headed to the westward and apparently lying dead in the water. I called Captain Evans' attention to the fact that she was in our way—that she was lying dead in the water and cautioned the captain that we would probably run into her if we kept on the way we were heading. She was then on our port bow. We were trying to get close into the harbor and steamed at first directly for the mouth of the harbor. As the Spaniards turned to the westward we turned in the same direction, and in this maneuver we were hindered by the Texas."

Captain Lemly. "It is in evidence here that the Brooklyn crossed the bow of the Texas. Have you any personal knowledge of that?" "No, sir."

The court put a number of questions to the witness. "How did you determine the distance of the Iowa from the shore while blockading Cienfuegos?" "We did not determine the distance at all, except simply by bearings occasionally. There was not any regular effort made to maintain any particular position."

"Were the vessels nearer to or further from shore at night at Santiago?" "At what time of the blockade?"

Captain Lemly. "Prior to the first of June." "About the same distance night and day is my recollection—about eight miles.'

Disaster to Many Vesse's

Berlin, Oct. 11.—Thus far reports have been received of the loss of some 40 vessels in the North sea during the recent storms. Many lives have been lost.

When Coal Was Prohibited.

It makes the present generation smile to read the accounts which have come down to us concerning the prejudices which were formerly entertained against certain articles which are of everyday consumption.

For instance, it is said that when coal was first used in England the prejudice against it was so strong that the house of commons petitioned the king to prohibit the use of the "noxious" fuel.

A royal proclamation having failed to abate the nuisance, a commission was issued to ascertain who burned coal within the city of London and its neighborhood, to punish them by force for the first offense and by the demolition of their furnaces if they persisted in transgressing. A law was finally passed making it a capital offense to burn coal in the city and only permitting it to be used by forges in the vicinity. It is stated that among the records in the Tower of London a document was found according to which a man was hanged in the time of Edward I. for no other crime than having been caught burning coal. It took three centuries to entirely efface the prejudice.

Antiquity of Playing Cards.

The game of cards was first played in the east and seems to have had a military origin. Cards were introduced from Asia into Europe at the time of the crusades and were first used by necromancers to foretell fortunes. They soon became a popular amusement in the south of Europe, where the Saracens and Moors taught the people how to use them, and card playing spread to all parts of the continent. The state records of Germany mention the fact that Rudolph I., in 1275, was fond of the game and played with his courtiers.

After the invention of paper the manufacture of cards became extensive, but declined somewhat when card playing was forbidden by several of the German states and by the English government on account of the supposed immoral tendency. Before the era of paper cards in the orient were made of ivory, papyrus and canvas, less frequently of the precious metals and quite commonly of wood.

A Share In a Jewel.

There is a story told of a French servant who was shown a priceless jewel by a great duke.

"Thank you, my lord duke," said the man of science, "for allowing me to share with you the possession of so great a treasure."

"In what way?" said the duke.

"Why, your grace can do no more than look at it, and you have allowed me to do the same."—All the Year Round.

Living Like a Savage.

Civilized people will be shocked at the advice of an English physician to a wealthy patient to live like a savage to be cured. Savages, it may be recalled, do not belong to clubs, have no stock exchanges, know nothing of trust and trade combinations, run no political campaigns and so reserve some vitality and nerve force for purely living purposes.—Baltimore American.

Foolish.

Robert Lowe, afterward Lord Sherbrook, once saw a deaf member of parliament trying his best to catch with his ear trumpet the words of an extremely dull speech. "Just look at that foolish man," said Lowe, "throwing away his natural advantages."

No Deferred Payments.

"Is your daughter learning to play by note?"

"Certainly not," answered Mrs. Cumrox a little indignantly. "We pay cash for every lesson. The idea!"—Washington Star.

Well Bred.

Gentleman—That looks a well bred dog.

Owner—I should think he was well bred. Why, he won't have a bit of dinner till he's got his collar on!—Punch.

The Nile is noted for the variety of its fish. An expedition sent by the British museum brought home 2,200 specimens.

Railways use up over 2,000,000 tons of steel a year, almost half the world's product.

ARE YOU PLUMP

or thin? red cheeks or sallow life in your step or feel your weight? are you comfortable or hoping to be so next spring or summer or fall?

One is health; the other is not-quite health.

This condition of not-quite health can be turned into health with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It is a pity to get in the habit of thinking of health as a thing to be hoped for; why not go for it now!

There is only one way to make strength: by food. You want appetite first, then food. The emulsion will give you food-rest, to master your food with.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

FAITH IN KITCHENER

British Government Satisfied With Prosecution of the War

London, Oct. 11.—The secretary of war, Mr. Brodrick, replying to Sir Charles H. Vincent's offer to raise fresh troops or do anything else to assist the government, declines the proposal, and, in doing so, lengthily reviews the British position in South Africa, obviously in answer to the persistent and searching criticisms of the ministerial journals and members of parliament that the government is languidly content to let the war drag on.

Mr. Brodrick says, to begin with, that nothing Lord Kitchener has asked for has not been promptly met. He adds: "We have, roughly, 200,000 men and 450 guns in South Africa, and over 100,000 men are under training at home. We have no difficulty, therefore, in keeping the field army up to its requisite strength by drafts, and if a further call be made we are in a position to meet it with the utmost promptitude."

Mr. Brodrick recites what the war office is doing, providing supplies for 314,000 persons, directly or indirectly connected with the war, feeding 248,000 horses and mules, and maintaining four months' reserves of food for men and animals. Sixty-nine mobile columns, perfectly equipped, are now in the field, and 10,000 remounts are being landed monthly, besides those captured.

Mr. Brodrick says the anxiety can be set at rest at home. The government has never interfered with Lord Kitchener, in whose vigorous prosecution of the war they have entire confidence.

Alluding to Lord Kitchener's sending back poorly trained yeomanry, Mr. Brodrick replies that they would have been trained earlier but for the opinion of military advisers in South Africa and at home, up to November, 1900, that no fresh troops were needed.

"When Lord Kitchener asked for 9000 more," says the war secretary, "the government sent out to him 61,000 fresh troops during the first six months of 1901, besides arms for 20,000 local levies."

Boers Take Thirteen Scouts

Heilbron, Orange River Colony, Oct. 7.—Thirteen of Kitchener's scouts have been captured in the Boer ambush.

Geers' Efforts Rewarded

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 11.—After trying for seven years, Ed Geers yesterday landed a Transylvania stake. Urging Onward Silver, tired from seven fast heats, to his top speed, he captured the first money in the $6000 event, only a short neck measuring the victory. After the fifth heat all save Onward Silver Chain Shot, and Susie J had retired to their stables. Boralma, who is sick, was led out upon the track amid cheers. From the grand stand a statement was read from his owner, Thomas W. Lawson, giving in Boralma's name $5000 to the charities of Lexington.

To Give Ocular Demonstrations

Washington, Oct. 11.—The Southern railway, in pursuance of the policy of President Spencer to encourage the development of all territory tributary to the Southern system, will have a good roads special train leave here shortly for the south. It will make frequent stops and sample good roads will be built to arouse interest among the people in the subject. The aim is to educate the southern people in practical road building. The train will carry the necessary road machinery and a corps of road experts.

Storm Didn't Dampen Ardor

Toronto, Oct. 11.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall have reached Toronto and their entry was marked by a great popular demonstration. Wind and rain had no appreciable effect upon the throngs which turned out to aid in the welcome and show their loyalty. The people waited for hours in the sodden streets and warmed themselves with cheers when the royal couple finally came. Despite the severe storm the entire out-door program was bravely carried out.

Freight Wreck and Fire

New Albany, Ind., Oct. 11.—A rear-end collision caused a freight wreck near Georgetown yesterday. Fifteen cars were wrecked and burned, an engine was demolished, three men seriously and one fatally injured and many thousand of dollars' worth of property destroyed. In the wrecked train was a car loaded with dynamite and powder. The dynamite exploded and in a moment the greater part of both trains was a mass of burning wreckage.

Tornado In Kansas

Clifton, Kan., Oct. 11.—A tornado passed two miles south of this place last night, doing much damage to buildings. The path of the storm was about 80 rods wide and everything was swept before it. Vague reports of casualties are coming in.

Increase of Forty Millions

Washington, Oct. 11.—Money orders sold at postoffices throughout the country during the past fiscal year reached a total of $300,000,000 in round numbers. This is an increase of almost $40,000,000 over the previous year.

THE DRUNK RULING.

Henry H. Faxon Says It Is a Very Serious Matter.

Judge Dewey's decision as to how thoroughly a man must be under the influence of liquor to be drunk has aroused no end of comment and yesterday His Honor was as much in evidence and talked of as his famous namesake Admiral Dewey.

His Honor's decision in brief was that a man was not drunk unless his mind was frenzied or stupefied by liquor and he had lost control of his legs.

In an interview on the decision Henry H. Faxon says:

"That is the greatest folly I ever heard," said Mr. Faxon, when Miss Brown read him the decision yesterday morning. "This judge takes no consideration of the different degrees of drunkenness. He defines a condition that it would be impossible for some men to reach, yet they might be drunk just the same.

"Some men are rendered drunk by one glass of liquor, while others require a large amount. It seems to me that a judge ought to take that into account and not set up a hard and fast rule for every man. I should think if a man staggered all over the sidewalk, breathed the fumes of liquor and used such filthy language as the officers testified Mr. Brick did, that should be sufficient proof that he was drunk.

"I consider this decision worse than Judge Dewey's decision on sandwich law, that a man may call for a drink on Sundays and holidays, and the law is being lived up to if the waiter brings with the drink, food without its being ordered. I consider this decision the worst setback that the cause of temperance has received in this city for years.

"Nothing could be more discouraging to policemen anxious to do their duty than to be told, as Judge Dewey tells them, that they must not arrest a man for drunkenness, even if he staggers all over the street, talks loud and uses objectionable language and makes himself generally obnoxious, if he can command speech sufficiently to call the arresting officer a 'lobster,' or some vile name.

"Apparently all that the judge considers necessary is that the alleged drunk shall prove his sobriety by his ability to denounce or swear at the arresting officer. This decision I consider a very serious matter, and one liable to do a great deal of injury to the cause of temperance."

Capt. Hanson on Drunks.

Capt. Mark E. Hanson, who is acting chief of police during the absence of Chief Hayden has been interviewed by the Globe and says relative to drunkenness:

"If a man was on the sidewalk and was so unsteady on his feet that other people had to get out of his way something would have to be done for the protection of those who are sober. That can only be done by the arrest of the man who makes himself obnoxious.

"There are different kinds of 'drunk' cases or rather intoxicating liquor affects men in different ways. I have heard a judge of a superior court charge a jury that if a defendant was drunk in the head, even though he was steady on his feet, a verdict should be returned against the defendant.

"And, on the other hand, I have heard a jury charged to find against a man who was drunk in his legs but whose head was apparently all right.

"I should say that, on the public street or sidewalk any man who staggers so that people have to get out of his way or who uses such language that passersby have to avoid him, ought to be locked up."

Professional etiquette prevents French judges and judicial officials from riding in omnibuses.

THE UNITY CLUB.

Season Auspiciously Opened at Wollaston Last Night.

The Wollaston Unity club gave an informal reception in the vestry of the Unitarian church last evening at eight o'clock. The decorations consisted of autumn leaves which were artistically placed all around the rooms. Large vases of dahlias adorned the tables and were bunched on the chandeliers. Prominent on an easel was a portrait of the late founder, Rev. James E. Bagley with flowers arranged about it.

After half hour or more of social intercourse meeting was called to order by President Charles F. Harper who gave the address of welcome.

The program was spoken of as a change from past years. This year the club is to take up the study of cities insteadof countries with miscellaneous subjects interspersed as formerly.

Mr. Harper also alluded to the members of the club who were fortunate enough to attend the Pan-American exhibit and thought it a literary occasion for them to relate their experiences at the first meeting.

The subject "Echoes from Buffalo was treated by the follwing members,—Mrs. Frank W. Pratt, who gave for her subject, "A Visit"; Mrs. W. S. Washburn followed with "Personally Conducted"; Mrs. F. H. Bishop, "The Power House"; Miss Tucker of the High school, "A Visitor," and "Music," by Mr. H. Y. Follett.

All of these reminiscences were listened to with much interest by the audience.

A delightful feature of the evening was the singing of the "Toreader's Love Song," Conchois, and "Love's Trinity, DeKoven, by Mr. Theodore A. Schroeder, bass soloist of the First Baptist church, Boston.

Programs were freely given to all who paid their annual dues or joined the club.

The refreshment table was presided over by Miss Annie Marden and Miss Zannetta Sprague.

The next meeting will be held Friday, October 26, subject, "Cities of the Past," under the direction of Mrs. William S. Washburn. A specially interesting and instructive meeting is looked forward to as Dr. William Gallagher of Thayer Academy, Rev. Edward Chase, and Rev. Mr. Robbins will speak on Babylon, Tyre and Thebes.

UP-TO-DATE PLANT.

Granite Railway Co. to Have Granite Shed 410 Feet Long.

Extensive improvements are under way at the plant of Granite Railway Co. which when completed will give the company one of the best equipped plants in the city. The company has long felt the need of better sheds and other facilites for handling and manufacturing granite, and the improvments now under way have been contemplated for sometime.

The contract which has been given to a Vermont firm calls for a straight cutting shed 60 feet wide and 410 feet long. The usual wings will be done away with, which also does away with the catch-all space for everything not in use. It also makes it possible for the crane to cover all parts of the shed. The travelling crane to be put in has a capacity of forty tons. Arrangements will also be made for granite saws in the same shed. In addition to above there will be a drafting room 30 by 60 feet, and a polishing mill fitted with six wheels. Pneumatic tools also form a part of the equipment. The power is to be supplied by a 100-horse power boiler, and an 80-horse power engine.

Granite Business Good.

The condition of the granite business in Quincy was never better at this time of the year than it is now. A trip through the granite district finds all firms busy. All report that they have a good number of orders on hand, and the indications are that there will be no dull season this year.

No good cutter has wanted for work this year, although doubtless not as many men have been employed as in some other years. Under the present bill of prices the manufacturers have tried to employ none but those workmen who were able to earn the price called for in the bill which has resulted in throwing some of the inferior workmen out of a job and forced them to seek employment in some other lines. While the larger part of the work cut in Quincy this year has been of the medium sized memorials, there have been many handsome jobs and a number of large jobs cut.

The Colonial club of Dorchester have engaged Miss Corlew to conduct their dancing classes this season.

HOPE.

And can a thing created live and its creator die?
If worthy deed and worthy thought may not be lost, then why
Should man pass down this finite life and ruin mark his way?
Who builds for earth may well expect his treasures to decay.

But he, the man of worthy deed or man of worthy thought,
Builds not for time nor fame. The battle of this life is fought
And won by him alone who climbs so high that he disdains
To look below for hope and fame and followings of their trains.

Oh, men of worthy deed! Oh, men whose thought ennobled life!
We, watching for your footprints in the midst of toil and strife,
Take courage and believe that there is no eternal night,
And we press on to find as ye have found Eternal Light.

COPPER AND GOLD

I was practicing medicine at the time in Rotherham, a large, struggling town six miles south of Sheffield, in Yorkshirt, England, in the heart of the South Yorkshire coal district.

It is a rough class of people with whom a general practitioner generally has to deal in such a district, though there are some very big swells in the neighborhood, to be sure. Still, as is always the case in life among the roughest and most uncouth, one sometimes finds a gentle flower.

Such a sweet exception was little Elsie Underhill, to whose bedside I was called professionally on the evening of Nov. 22, 1873. It is a long while ago, and I doubt much if any of the persons connected with the little story I am about to tell, should any of them still be surviving, will remember Dr Newman. At any rate, not one of those who knew me will be hurt, and the one person against whom I shall have much to say is so mean and contemptible, in my opinion, that I care little for his.

It was a poor little home I was called to in Church street, where Elsie's parents lived, but very different from the dirty, carelessly kept cottages and small houses in the vicinity. But I am not going to weary you with a description. I was met by the dear, old kindly faced mother at the door, where, before taking me up stairs to the tiny room where lay her suffering daughter, she told me something of her history.

Elsie was only just turned nineteen, but she had already made herself a reputation which was honorable and ennobling. The years before, when just turned sixteen, being a pretty and well developed girl, with more than the average amount of intelligence, she had obtained an engagement at the local theater, where she had appeared in the character of Jeanie Deans in Andrew Halliday's adaptation of Sir Walter Scott's novel, "The Heart of Midlothian." She had attracted a great deal of attention. The local correspondent of a London theatrical paper The Hornet, then the property of Stephen Fiske, had spoken highly of her, and more than one London manager had visited Rotherham to see her act. There were stock companies in those days.

Among the many young fellows who had become infatuated by her beauty was one Horace Willington, the son of a physician in Sheffield, a very rich man. This young man's attentions were very marked. He obtained an introduction to the young girl's parents, and through them to Elsie. And then he began a serious courtship.

In every way his manner and apparent object were decidedly honorable Only one thing he omitted—he did not take her to his own home.

In order to be near the man who had completely won her heart she refused more than one lucrative offer to go to London, where she would have at once been on the highroad to fame, and accepted an engagement at the Sheffield Theater Royal, which, being close to her own home, she could also reach very easily. Here her opportunities were wider than in Rotherham, it is true, and here she succeeded in increasing her already high reputation. She remained in Sheffield two seasons, playing during the summer a series of traveling engagements throughout the northern counties.

Then came a proposal from a great London manager which was so good that she could not afford to neglect it Her aged mother went with her to the city of smoke and fog, and in September, 1873, she made her debut before London audience at the Princess' theater. Less than a month later her health entirely gave way, and she found it necessary to throw up her engagement and return with her mother to the little home in Rotherham in which she had breathed her earliest breath.

So much her mother told me, then took me up to see her daughter.

Did I say just now that she was suffering? That was hardly the case. She was dying of rapid consumption. She was too weak to suffer much physically, but the broken heart was giving her exquisite torture.

Such a lovely girl I have rarely seen Brown curling hair swept back from the sweet face and long dark lashes shaded the blue gray eyes that were all intelligence and had been wont to fill her audiences with blind enthusiasm.

The little room in which she lay was filled with delicate feminine knick-knacks, reminiscences of her favorite roles, souvenirs of her professional friends, all arranged about the room with gentle, thoughtful love by her stricken mother. But most interesting of all was a rather curious thing hanging above her pillow on the bedpost by a narrow blue ribbon. It was something that would attract the attention of the least observant.

A large gold split ring, elegantly chased and evidently of antique manufacture, to which was suspended a common copper English penny piece. The combination was so incongruous, so ludicrous, that I could not refrain from taking it in my hand to examine.

"Oh, please don't touch that," exclaimed the dying girl. "It is all I have."

Then there was a story to it!

When I had prescribed a simple palliative for the racking cough and had given instructions for other simple treatment, I went down stairs again with the mother.

"You saw the penny and the ring, doctor," she said, "and you wondered. Is it not so?"

I confessed that I had felt a little curious to know its history, and here is what the old woman told me:

The old gold ring had belonged to Elsie's great-grandmother. It had once been a thumb ring. Elsie looked upon it as a sort of heirloom and had carried it with her as a sort of talisman since childhood. One day, after she had known Mr. Willington a few months before they were engaged to be married, the young man had laughingly pulled from his pocket a penny through which some foolish person had bored a hole. Elsie was just about to appear in a new character, so Horace, in fun, remarked: "Take this penny and keep it for luck. You will never fail in a part so long as you keep it."

Elsie entered into the spirit of the thing and said, "Now, if I could only get my own talisman split I would hang the penny on to it."

"That is easily done," said Horace, as he took the ring in his hand and admired its chasing. "I will take it to Evans', in Sheffield, and have it split."

Accordingly he took the ring and in a few days returned it with the penny hanging to it. Elsie fastened a ribbon to it and wore it around her neck.

Alas, that ring and that penny were the parallels of the characters of the two persons to whom they had belonged! The one pure gold, refined and chased by a master hand, destined to be broken by the owner of the baser metal which entered the golden heart and broke it in two and left it.

When she went to London, Willington followed Elsie, and there, amid the follies and excitements of the great Babylon, he came out in his true colors, a conscienceless, loveless scoundrel. It seems unnatural and untrue that a man could deliberately lay plans and take years to mature them for the ruin of a young girl's life, but so it was with Willington and Elsie Underhill.

Plenty of people there are living yet who remember the success of the young actress on the Princess' boards and who remember with sorrow her sudden departure and death.

Willington succeeded in his designs, then left her, as it was afterward known he had left others, to droop and die or to go from bad to worse. He cared nothing.

Elsie's sensitive nature was too high strung. She could not survive the disgrace even though it was apparent only to herself. Her heart broke, and in the early weeks of December, when the narrow little Church street and the roofs of the neighboring cottages were covered with snow, when the timid robin had become so tame as to fly to the windows of human habitations for the food of charity, when the world was beginning to prepare its annual festival of "peace and good will toward men," the poor little actress, who was a delicate flower in the midst of a life of nettles and brambles, withered and passed away, to be transplanted in the garden that is kept forever beautiful by those angels whose duty it is to soothe and comfort those poor waifs of humanity who are not strong enough to overcome humanity's blows and buffets.

What became of Willington? I have never heard of him since. Somewhere, probably, he holds an honored position on earth, for he was rich, and wealth on earth covers innumerable sins; but surely when his time comes to go to that bourn from which no traveler ever returns he will be met by the dark recording angel with a page not yet blotted out, on which he will be shown—

A penny suspended from a pure gold ring.

The Judas Tree.

The Judas tree is a native of the southern countries of Europe, and is a handsome low bush with a flat, spreading top. In the spring it is profusely covered with purplish pink blossoms, which burst out before the leaves begin to unfold. The blossoms have an agreeable acrid taste and are made into salads and sometimes fried. There is an ancient tradition that Judas hanged himself from this species of tree. A tree called the Judas tree is common to some parts of the American continent. It differs somewhat from the one described, but the blossoms are made into good pickles, and the young twigs are bought by dyers for the brownish pigment contained in them. The Judas tree draws great numbers of bees around to feed on the sweets contained in its blossoms.

To Prevent Paint From Scaling.

To prevent the paint on iron or wood from scaling off when exposed to the weather first thoroughly wash the parts to be painted and then brush over the surface with hot linseed oil. By following this method, especially with iron articles, no scaling of the paint will occur. In cases where the articles to be painted are small and can be readily heated it is better to heat them and plunge them into the oil. The thin liquid oil when hot enters into the pores of the metal, absorbs the moisture, and the paint then applied so firmly adheres that frost, rain or air cannot effect a separation.

ALGER SCORES MILES.

One of the Principal Chapters of Ex-Secretary's Book.

CONDUOT OF WAR WITH SPAIN.

Commanding General of the Army Severely Criticised For Alleged Derelictions In Connection With Santiago and Porto Rico Campaigns—Sought to Embarrass the Department, Former Secretary Says.

General Russell A. Alger's book on the "Spanish-American War," published by Harper Bros., New York, advanced sheets of which have been given to the press, is creating much comment and reopens the discussion of questions relating to the conduct of the campaign against Spain while he was secretary of war.

In his opening chapters, says a writer in the New York Tribune, General Alger makes plainer than ever before the utter unpreparedness of the country for war. The law making the $50,000,000 appropriation was so worded that up to the declaration of war it could not be used for the most necessary part of army equipment. Consequently there was much confusion in organizing for the campaign. The government did not have and factories could not supply promptly munitions and clothing required, and many of the shortcomings of the army severely criticised at the time were not due to the officers or the department, but to the impossibility of doing on short notice what should have been prepared for by congress years before.

The book does not refer directly to the attacks made upon General Alger personally or give any account of his relations with the administration or the events leading to his retirement. It defends the army appointments and declares that no favoritism was shown in selections; that the greatest care was taken to choose fit men, and that as many regulars were taken for volunteer service as could be spared from the army establishment without impairing its efficiency.

The substance of General Alger's chapter on the army beef controversy was published in The North American Review of last January, and the public is already familiar with his defense of General Eagan's administration, though not of the language for which the latter was court martialed, and also with his strictures on General Miles. In other respects he is also severe on General Miles. After recounting what he calls the general's "impossible and impracticable" plan to move an army from Nuevitas westward to Santa Clara, building roads with the aid of prisoners, he says:

"This proposition, however, was only one of numerous others which were not approved. Many of the general's proposals were obviously impracticable and not infrequently absolutely impossible. He recommended the shipment of 12,000 men to Key West, where all drinking water would have to be brought in tank ships. With our hands full at Santiago and not enough troops there, he proposed to send 'a battery of artillery and a regiment of infantry' as an expedition to the Isle of Pines, then of no military or strategic importance. He insisted on sending to Cuba, for use with infantry operating in a tropical jungle and over a country impassable to vehicles, his 'portable' shields, each weighing 1,000 pounds and each occupying as much room on a transport as a hospital ambulance. He recommended the abandonment of Santiago after Cervera's fleet had been destroyed, thereby lifting the siege of the city and large garrison, without reaping the fruits of victory then practically in our hands. He wanted 500 marines of the navy placed under his control; he expressed the opinion that a proposed force of 16,452 men, mostly volunteers, was '10,000 more than will be required' for General Merritt's Philippine expedition, and while in Porto Rico he cabled to the war department a recommendation that 'the manufacture of Springfield rifles, .45 caliber ammunition, all white canvas tentage and black leather equipments of every description be discontinued, as they are obsolete and should not be a part of the army equipment.'"

In answer to this last recommendation the following dispatch was sent by General Alger under date of Aug. 5, 1898:

"As you ought to know, the last .45 caliber Springfield rifle was manufactured in 1893. Smokeless powder cartridges are now being manufactured and will be forwarded. I suggest that you get along with what the government has on hand."

Continuing, General Alger says:

"It was decided that General Shafter should command the Santiago expedition, otherwise known as the Fifth corps, and after sailing orders had been issued to him General Miles was directed to organize an expedition to Porto Rico. Upon the capture of Santiago, which it was then believed would require but a short time, General Shafter and his force were to rendezvous at Nipe and there join the army for Porto Rico, to be organized by General Miles, who was to command in person both forces when thus united.

"It soon developed, however, that General Miles regarded the Porto Rico movement of greater importance than the expedition to Santiago. On June 6, the day before the Fifth corps was ordered to sail from Tampa, General Miles recommended the abandonment of the movement to Santiago until after the taking of Porto Rico. * * * Translated into plain English, this plan proposed an invasion of No. 2 (Porto Rico), leaving No. 1 (Santiago) 'safely guarded'—whatever that might mean The occupation of Porto Rico having beena ccomplished, the army was then to return to Santiago, leaving a guard behind to take care of Porto Rico and promptly crush the Spanish power in Cuba, beginning with Santiago.

"On July 8, more than thirty days after the orders were issued, General Miles sailed from Charleston with about 4,000 men, touching en route at Santiago.

"General Miles * * * had been explicitly informed by the president, as well as by myself, before he went to Tampa, that he was at liberty to go in command of the Santiago expedition or to organize the force for the invasion of Porto Rico. * * * General Miles' instructions to organize and command the Porto Rican expedition were purposely withheld until Shafter or Miles should sail. General Miles did not command the Santiago expedition, and that he did not was his own mistake or misfortune. He lost the opportunity to command in the greatest land battle of the war."

Speaking of the government's refusal to permit General Shafter to agree to the evacuation of Santiago by the Spaniards instead of their surrender he says:

"General Miles, who had reached Cuba on the Yale July 11, arrived at General Shafter's headquarters on the afternoon of the next day. Although he was fresh from the United States and had not been subjected to the trying experience of three weeks' campaigning in the tropics, he seconded the only recommendation made by General Shafter which met with the disapproval of the government."

A NATIONAL QUESTION.

Game Preservation Difficult Because State Laws Conflict.

The interdependence of states in the matter of game laws may be illustrated by one or two examples, says Leslie's Weekly. The New England states without exception protect the robin, but their efforts can never produce the best results so long as the bird is treated as game during its winter sojourn in the south and killed for market. Eastern cities now obtain their supplies of quail, prairie chickens and other game very largely from distant states in the west. Nebraska finds that her quail are being rapidly killed off to supply the markets of Philadelphia and other eastern cities and for her own protection prohibits the shipment of birds from the state, while Pennsylvania, finding her supply of quail entirely inadequate to meet the local demand, declares that birds taken within the state shall not be sold at any time.

The Philadelphia game dealers contend that this law cannot restrict sales of game brought in from other states and accordingly supply their customers in season and out with imported quail kept in cold storage. High prices stimulate their agents in Nebraska to evade the shipping law and their country correspondents in Pennsylvania to ignore the local law, and the native birds when placed on sale cannot be distinguished from those which are imported. Game preservation in Pennsylvania thus becomes doubly difficult. Under the operation of nonexport laws the supply of quail from the west is diminished, prices naturally rise, and a premium is placed on the destruction of native birds. Unless the state can enforce the law with respect to imported game she cannot effectually protect her own birds.

Buddhist Nun to Visit America.

Sister Sanghanulla, a Buddhist nun, is coming to this country soon to lecture on the condition of the women of India and to interest the women of America in their behalf. The sister is an American woman, born in Texas, and was the wife of Senor A. de Souza Canavarro, in the diplomatic service of Portugal. The couple have three sons and a daughter. In entering the sisterhood Senora Canavarro discarded her name and her home, but renounced only her social duties, not those of wife and mother. During the prolonged absence of her husband in the discharge of his official duties his wife took up this serious work in the interest of women and has worked in connection with the Bodhi society, principally in Ceylon, establishing schools and orphanages for girls. In order to discover the best methods she has studied the different religions of the country and finds that most of the troubles of the orient arise from the superstitions and idolatrous rites of the people, the greatest suffering in India being caused by the caste system.

Landsmen For the Navy.

Recruiting men for the navy in the interior, says the Kansas City Star, is made possible by the new style of warships, which do not require sailors accustomed to managing canvas. The old time sailor is passing away both in England and America. Now a young farmer from Kansas or Missouri can enlist in the United States navy, take on the smartness that comes from bearing arms, see the great world, accustom himself to steam machinery, a useful accomplishment for any man, and return to the pursuits of peace better equipped in every way for his experience.

London's New Lord Mayor.

Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, who becomes lord mayor of London, is managing director of the banking firm of Prescott, Dimsdale, Cave, Tugwell & Co. He has been an alderman since 1891 and became sheriff three years later. He has represented the city in parliament for the last eleven years, and since 1895 as one of its members on the London county council he has done good service.

NO CODE SENT SCHLEY

Sampson's Chief of Staff on the Witness Stand

MASSACHUSETT'S OFFICERS

Testify to Receiving Orders to Sink the Colon—Very Weak Fire From the Land Battery at Santiago, but Shots Came Near Americans

Washington, Oct. 12.—Captain Chadwick, who was in command of Admiral Sampson's flagship, the New York, and who also was chief of the admiral's staff during the war with Spain, testified before the Schley naval court for a short time yesterday afternoon.

He was the last witness called and when the court adjourned was still under cross-examination by Mr. Rayner, who stated that he had only a few more questions to ask him. There was considerable interest in Captain Chadwick's appearance because of his close relationship to the commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic squadron.

Captain Chadwick's testimony related very largely to despatches sent by Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley, while the latter lay off Cienfuegos, in May, 1898, and to the code of signals agreed upon between Captain McCalla of the Marblehead and the Cuban forces operating near Cienfuegos. He said this code had not been sent to Commodore Schley by despatch because Captain McCalla had expected to join the commodore immediately and communicate the code to him.

He also told of being present at an interview between Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, in which the latter had expressed his intention to be loyal to the commander-in-chief. He related in detail the change of opinion concerning the whereabouts of Cervera's fleet by Admiral Sampson on May 21, between the sending of the two despatches of that date by Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley, one of which was dated at Key West and the other at Havana. Captain Chadwick said he had not approved of Admiral Sampson's despatch of May 28, congratulating Commodore Schley on his accomplishments to that date.

Five witnesses were heard during the day, two of them being officers of the New York. One of these was Lieutenant Marsh, the flag secretary of Admiral Sampson, who testified concerning despatches to Commodore Schley, and the other was the ship's flag lieutenant, Lieutenant Bennett. Lieutenant Dewey, Adelbert Althouse, who served on the Massachusetts, and Lieutenant Boughter, who served on the Marblehead, were the new witnesses of the day.

Lieutenant Althouse said that on the day of the bombardment of the Cristobal Colon he had been in charge of the eight-inch turret of the Massachusetts. He said that the ship had not been to exceed three minutes in passing the entrance to the harbor in first passage and that only two shots were then fired. The instructions were to make the range 7000 yards, but the shots fell short and the range was increased on the return trip to 8500 and then to 10,000 yards. Asked what was discovered as to the strength of the land batteries by this reconnaissance, he said that to his mind it was shown they were very weak. In reply to a question as to whether he had made any notes concerning the engagement, he replied: "No, we went under instructions to sink the Colon." His orders had been to direct his fire at that vessel.

When Lieutenant Althouse was excused Captain Lemly introduced as evidence the reports made by Commodore Schley to the secretary of the navy of the engagement of May 31. In one of these, dated June 3, Commodore Schley said: "Reconnaissance was intended principally to injure and destroy the Colon. The fire was returned without delay by the heavy batteries to the east and west entrance, large calibre, long range; reconnaissance developing satisfactorily the presence of the Spanish squadron lying behind the island near inner fort, as they fired over hill at random. Quite satisfied the Spanish fleet is there."

Lieutenant Dewey, nephew of Admiral Dewey, who was a watch officer on the Massachusetts, was the next witness. He placed the distance of the blockading line under Commodore Schley from the mouth of Santiago harbor at from five to eight miles, the distance being about the same day and night. There was, he said, no particular formation of the vessels.

Captain Lemly: "Did you have any conversation with the commanding officer of the flying squadron or anyone in his presence in relation to the fire on the Colon, or otherwise?"

Lieutenant Dewey: "I was told shortly before we started to the entrance that the commodore wished to see the turret officers in the pilot house. I went to the pilot house and the commodore said that he intended to go in a few moments and have a 'try' at the Colon, and that he hoped we would sink her. I asked what speed we would make, and was told 'about 10 knots.' I remarked at the time that I thought that was giving us very little chance at the Colon as she would be in sight between the headlines only a couple of minutes and that the smoke from the guns would probably make our fire very slow. To the best of my recollection, the commodore stated we would have to do the best we could; that the speed would be 10 knots."

Describing the range at which he had fired his guns on that occasion, he said at first it was 7000 yards under orders and then he had increased it to 9500 yeads, but that all the shots fell short. He said in reply to questions that the Spanish shore batteries had not given the American ships much trouble on that occasion. "None from the Colon came near," he said, "but two of three shots from the batteries fell about the Massachusetts at the time, one passing over it."

"What conclusion did you arrive at as to the calibre of the shore guns?" "I did not think they were of very large calibre, not over six-inch."

In reply to a question as to whether he was ordered to direct his fire on the Colon or on the batteries on May 31, Lieutenant Dewey said his orders were to direct his fire at the Colon entirely, but he could not say whether Commodore Schley or Captain Higginson had given the order.

CRESCEUS AND KETCHAM

Lower a World's Record and Gladden Hearts of Toledo's Poor

Toledo, Oct. 12.—Cresceus lowered the world's trotting record yesterday on a half-mile track one-quarter of a second. The record was previously held by himself, having been made on the Toledo track one year ago. It was 2:09 3-4. This was reduced yesterday to 2:09¼.

He trotted yesterday afternoon for the benefit of the charitable institutions of the city and more than 40,000 people gathered to see him. This is the home of George Ketchum, his owner, trainer, and driver, and last spring Mr. Ketchum anounced that he would give an exhibition trot on the Toledo track for the benefit of all Toledo charitable institutions. The offer was at once accepted. The result is that they will now receive about $18,000.

Late in the afternoon Cresceus was given a mile to a wagon and he covered it in 2:12 flat. It was the first time the wagon had been used. Mr. Ketchum was given a great ovation after the trot.

New Trial For Molineux Likely

Albany, Oct. 12.—The court of appeals, when it met yesterday, did not hand down any decision in the appeal of Roland Burnham Molineux, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Catherine Adams, though up to the last moment it was expected that some definite action would be taken.

It is expected that the court will next Tuesday hand down a decision giving a new trial to Molineux, but that the court's views on expert testimony will discourage the state from insisting on a new trial on account of the great expense involved.

Jury Not Yet Completed

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 12.—Ten men were accepted by the commonwealth yesterday as jurors in the case of Caleb Powers, charged with being an accessory to the murder of Governor Goebel. They are, however, subject to peremptory challenge by the defense and the jury is by no means completed. Judge Cantrell ordered mounted sheriffs to go over into Bourbon county and bring a special venire of 100 men in the court.

Miners Had a Close Call

Fairmont, Va., Oct. 12.—There was an explosion of gas in the Fairmont Coal company's New England mines yesterday. The loose coal at once took fire and filled the mine with smoke. The miners were penned in for about four hours and it seemed as if there would be many fatalities, but the flames were finally subdued by putting up brattices and the men all came out unhurt.

Inspector Wanted Big Game

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Charles Norris, car inspector for the Lehigh Valley railroad, is charged with the theft of bonds, jewelry and other property, valued at $70,000, belonging to Mrs. Denman Thompson and Mrs. Franklyn Thompson of the Old Homestead company. Most of the property has been recovered. The property was taken from trunks in the company's baggage car.

At the Andover Theological seminary the new president, Charles O. Day, was inaugurated as Bartlett professor of practical theology and John W. Platner as Taylor professor of church history.

President Adams of the University of Wisconsin has resigned. Dr. Adams says he is actuated both by the condition of his wife's health and his own.

John Visbohn, while on his honeymoon trip with his bride at New Haven, lost $900. No trace of the missing money has been found.

Philip F. Nichols, a veteran of the civil war, was struck by an engine at Nashau, N. H., and killed. He was 61 years old and unmarried.

Two freight trains collided at Westfield, N. J. Fireman Harrister was caught under the wreck of his engine and burned to death. Twenty tanks of oil were burned.

According to a despatch from Kiel, preparations on the German cruiser Falke are being hurried so that she may leave for South American waters next Tuesday. The gunboat Panther, which is nearing completion in the imperial yards at Dantzic, is destined for use on the Amazon, the Orinoco and the Platte for the protection of German interests.

MOST SERIOUS OUTLOOK

Story of Long Respite For Miss Stone Discredited

AN URGENT NEED OF MONEY

To Save a Valuable Life From Being Sacrificed—London Spectator Holds Sultan of Turkey Responsible For the Outrage

Boston, Oct. 12.—The misunderstanding existing in various parts of the country, indicated especially in private advices received here as to progress of the fund to ransom Miss Stone, is considered to be of sufficient reason for the issuance of another appeal for further funds by the clergymen who signed the first one.

MISS ELLEN M. STONE.

The idea is to impress upon the people of America the danger which still threatens Miss Stone. Messages received through private and public sources abroad indicate to Miss Stone's family that her captors are just as determined as ever to secure the ransom or sacrifice a valuable life in revenge. The second appeal says:

The promptings of our hearts compel us to issue a second urgent appeal to the people of America to come to the rescue of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, now held captive by brigands in the Balkan mountains, for a ransom of $110,000. Nearly one-half that sum is yet to be raised.

Private advices received yesterday were to the effect that it was absolutely necessary to raise the full amount at once. The story of the 30 days' respite is absolutely discredited in the best informed circles.

Today's information from Washington is that the outlook is far from being so reassuring as was hoped yesterday.

The public should not be deceived by the idea that the American board, as such, will pay any of the ransom. It has officially declared that it could not, although its members have unanimously expressed sympathy with the movement. Will not pastors, tender hearted women, patriotic men, and representatives of commercial and financial industry everywhere; will not every one aid by giving and soliciting until the entire fund is at hand?

A life is at stake, the life of a Christian, a missionary, a patriot and a noble woman.

All contributions should be sent direct to Kidder, Peabody & Co., 115 Devonshire street, Boston, or Baring, Magoun & Co., 15 Wall street, New York.

All money contributed will be returned to the donors in case its use is not necessary, or in the event of its being hereafter returned by or through the United States government.

Sees Trouble For the Sultan

London, Oct. 12.—After detailing the history of the abduction of Miss Stone, the Spectator remarks: President Roosevelt and the Washington cabinet maintan justly that the sultan is responsible, as it is his misgovernment which provokes and protects brigandage; and they intend to demand reparation from the Porte. It will not be limited, we imagine, to £25,000. The Porte will be requested to punish the authors of the outrage; and, as Turkey is sure to shuffle and America is tired of being played with, a naval demonstration is quite on the cards. The sultan will, of course, yield to the first show of force.

Miss Stone May Be Mutilated

London, Oct. 12.—The United States legation here, says a despatch from Constantinople to The Daily Telegraph, have received information which they withhold, of some expected developments in the Stone affair. The attempts to capture the band have made the brigands shy of future traps, thus rendering negotiations difficult. Such tactics are severly criticised here. The brigands may in revenge kill their captive. Moreover the fact that no money was produced on the first demand may cause the brigands to mutilate Miss Stone as a warning.

Troops Give Up Search

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—In compliance with a request from Washington, the search by Ottoman troops for the abductors of Miss Stone has been abandoned, it being feared that the brigands would kill her should they be closely pursued. Arrangements are now being made to pay the ransom demanded.

Firebug Destroys a Town

Dallas, Oct. 12.—All the town of Alba, 100 miles east of Dallas, was destroyed by an incendiary fire last night. Only two business houses of the 17 are left. A large quantity of cotton was also burned.

FRAUDULENT DEALS

Said to Have Been Made by Member of a Bankrupt Firm

Boston, Oct. 12.—As an unexpected incident in the inquiry into the affairs of the late Ferdinand Abraham, head of the bankrupt firm of F. Abraham & Son, tobacconists, in the United States district court yesterday, came the petition of Isaac Klous, one of the receivers, to place Yetta Abraham, the widow, in involuntarily bankruptcy as endorser of notes signed by the insolvent firm. Other persons have joined in the petition as well.

The receivers of the concern have reported that the insolvency is beyond hope, the liabilities reaching nearly $250,000, with assets of only about $40,000. As inquiry proceeds, some startling allegations are made, wholesale forgery being one of them. In consequence, creditors are anxious to know the condition of their securities. Several banking houses have tangible security in leaf tobacco, amber and meerschaum.

Leopold Abraham, the junior partner, just sent to an insane asylum, is said to have made the fraudulent deals, the alleged bad endorsements representing $125,000. The inquiry by the receivers has not progressed far enough to indicate future proceedings.

Gave Reasonable Explanation

Boston, Oct. 12.—Although three men were wounded by bullets from his revolver during the strike of express teamsters recently, Charles W. Gibson was discharged in court yesterday. The hearing extended through three days and the government's witnesses differed materially in the condition of affairs around the express wagon at the time. Gibson claimed that he fired the first shot when he was assaulted in the wagon. The other shots were fired while he was in the unfriendly grasp of many men. Judge Adams thought this a reasonable explanation in view of the disagreement of the others.

Specialty of Robbing Tailors

Salem, Mass., Oct. 12.—It is now thought by the police that William J. Howell, who was arrested for robbing William F. Fisher, a tailor, and sentenced to one year in the house of correction, is a western crook. The number of Howell's gold watch tallies with that of the timepiece stolen from a Woburn tailor. A Somerville tailor who had also lost a watch identified Howell as the man who had his clothes mended the day the watch disappeared.

Judge Wants Time to Consider

Concord, N. H., Oct. 12.—On the defendant's motion to take the case from the jury and render a verdict in his favor, the lawyers in the case of Spead vs. Tomlinson, the Christian science damage suit, had a field day yesterday. The defense contended that no case had been made, while the plaintiff's counsel noted the neglect of the legal points involved. Judge Stone will take until Monday to determine his ruling.

One of Radcliffe's Founders

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 12.—Professor James Greenough, until April, 1901, one of the faculty of Harvard college, died yesterday of heart failure. He sustained hemorrhage last year, and since that time he gradually weakened until his death. Professor Greenough was born in Portland, Me., May 4, 1833. He was one of the founders of Radcliffe college.

End of Garment Workers' Strike

Boston, Oct. 12.—Yesterday witnessed the virtual collapse of the garment workers' strike, and all have now returned to their shops excepting about 125 out of the more than 4000 originally involved. But eight contractors have now failed to sign the new schedule, and it is expected that these will fall in line today.

Still Without a President

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 12.—The trustees of Williams college held their annual fall meeting yesterday, but the matter of filling the vacant presidency of the institution was not taken up. The meeting was adjourned to Nov. 3, when the question of the presidency will be considered.

Women Hurt In Car Collision

Somersworth, N. H., Oct. 12.—A car on the Dover and Somersworth trolley line ran into the rear of another car, which had stopped to let off passengers here yesterday and seriously injured Mrs. Jennie Pidgen and Miss Bessie Joyce, two students of a business college in Dover.

Waterspout Scared Sailors

Boston, Oct 12.—A big waterspout went by the Gloucester fishing schooner Clara R. Harwood last Sunday while she was on the Georges banks, according to Captain Silva's story. He said that the Harwood escaped damage, but the sight scared everyone on board.

Fresh Smallpox Cases

Boston, Oct. 12.—Two new cases of smallpox were discovered yesterday. One victim is a woman, about 30 years of age, residing at the South End, the other, a child of 2, whose home is in South Boston.

She Had Five Husbands

Middleton, O., Oct. 12.—The fact has just been developed that Mrs. Mary Witwer, suspected of being a wholesale poisoner, has had five husbands instead of four. John Williams, whose name has not heretofore figured in the affair, left two days after the marriage ceremony had been performed, and is the only one of the five husbands living. His present whereabouts are unknown.

To Follow Father's Footsteps

Simla, Oct. 12.—Ullah Khan, the new Ameer of Afghanistan, has officially informed Viceroy Curzon that he will follow in his father's footsteps, hoping that the friendship existing between the Afghan and British governments will continue to increase.

Good Afternoon

The publication of the valuation of the 33 cities and towns of the Metropolitan district show that only five made larger gains in real estate valuation this year than Quincy, viz: Boston, Cambridge, Brookline, Melrose and Somerville. The gain in Quincy was $1,151,935, making the total real estate valuation $18,869,710, which is only excelled by nine of the 33 cities and towns. Quincy leads Waltham, Everett, Medford, Melrose, Revere, Woburn, Arlington, Belmont, Cohasset, Dedham, Hingham, Hull, Hyde Park, Lexington, Manchester, Marblehead, Milton, Nahant, Stoneham, Wakefield, Watertown, Wellesley, Winchester and Winthrop. Next year Quincy will probably have a larger real estate valuation than the city of Salem, and promises to overtake Chelsea in two or three years. Quincy is one of the 14 municipalities which reduced their tax rate, while 13 are larger, and 7 the same as last year.

At the next City election, the voters of Quincy will be asked to vote "Yes" or "No" on the Act of the Legislature of 1901, which if accepted would require the incoming Mayor to appoint a City Clerk for three years. We have had some City Clerks in the past whom it would prove very acceptable to have appointed for life, but when city officials take an active part in politics they should not expect to hold their positions during the many changes made in these days.

Again, the appointment of the head of a department for three years would be contrary to the spirit of the Quincy charter, which hold all departments of the city accountable to the Mayor, and gives him sole power of appointment or removal from office at any time. In other cities where the City Clerk is elected either by the people or the aldermen, and is not directly acountable to the Mayor, the new law may be a good thing.

A conscientious Republican or Democrat dislikes to break away from regular party candidates, yet there are times when it is advisable so to do. A Republican who bolts the nomination of Watts H. Bowker of Brookline for County Commissoner does his party a great service, and in the end the party will command more respect. Because of the way financial affairs of Norfolk county were transacted while Mr. Bowker was on the board; because of the facts brought to light at the county investigation by the Legislature; because Mr. Bowker was dropped from the board as speedily as possible, are all good reasons why he should not be elected.

The second instalment of the home study course in American literature appears in this issue, being devoted to epics and dramas. As the study progresses it will be found more interesting and valuable. The instalment next Saturday will review early fiction. The feature will continue several weeks in the Ledger, and later instalments will be illustrated.

Calcutta, India, is a great educational center, one of the greatest in the world. It has 20 colleges, with 3000 students, and 40 high schools, with 2000 students. In the city there are altogether about 55,000 English speaking and non-Christian natives.

IN HIGH ESTEEM.

Funeral Services of John F. Neill Very Largely Attended.

The funeral of John F. Neill of Wollaston took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Mt. Vernon Congregational church, Massachusetts avenue and Beacon street, and the Globe says:

The presence of an assemblage which occupied every seat in the edifice from chancel to porch attested the depth of the regard and affection which Mr. Neill had won from the whole community in all the relations he had sustained toward his fellow man. Representatives were present in large numbers from the various religious, fraternal, business and social organizations of which the departed had been such an exemplary member. Particularly large were the delegations from the Masonc and Odd Fellows' societies.

Services for the family were first held at the home of the mother of Mr. Neill at 140 Walnut avenue, Boston.

The officiating clergyman at the church service was Rev. Dr. Samuel E. Herrick, the pastor. The exercises consisted of the reading of appropriate scriptural selections and prayer. The Albion quartette sang the following favorite hymns of Mr. Neill: "Abide With Me," "Sometime We'll Understand," "Passing Out of the Shadow" and "When the Mists Have Passed." Sir Knight William Chute was the organist.

There was a very large collection of floral tributes, all of exquisite beauty both in design and material, some of the society offerings being also of massive size.

The ushers were Charles L. Huckel, John R. Griffin, George W. McPherson, Richard L. Harper, Walter M. Hatch, Thomas E. Sharpe, Herbert E. Bronsdon, W. Eugene McGregor, Irving Jones and E. H. Rogers.

The honorary pallbearers were Charles Lewis, worshipful master of Massachusetts lodge, F. and A. M.; A. W. Fay, worshipful master of Wollaston lodge, A. and A. M.; Hon. William H. Lott, past grand of Boston lodge, I. O. O. F., and Capt. Charles A. Straw, E. F. Sweet and Charles W. Ripley, representing business friends of the departed.

Among the societies of which Mr. Neill was a member represented at the funeral were the Massachusetts lodge, F. and A. M. of which Mr. Neill was a past master; Wollaston lodge, F. and A. M., which he founded and of which he was the first worshipful master; grand lodge of Masons, of which he was standard bearer; St. Paul chapter, De Molay commandery, Boston council, R. and S. M., all the Scottish Rite bodies, up to and including the 32d degree; Aleppo temple, Order Mystic Shrine; Royal Arcanum, A. O. U. W. Commercial Travellers, and Boston lodge, 25, I. O. O. F.

The interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Mr. Neill leaves a wife, mother, four sisters and three brothers.

NICKNAMES IN VOGUE.

Growing Frequency of the Use In Great Britain.

One cannot fail to be impressed of late with the fact that nicknames are becoming very much more common than formerly, writes a London correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald. This holds true in every rank of life, from the very highest downward—in fact, few popular persons escape them.

The king himself among his own particular set is generally spoken of as "the master." The Duke of Cambridge, on account of his connection with the royal parks, is known as "George the Ranger," while the Princess Charles of Denmark is always called "Harry" by her family.

As is well known, the Duke of Westminster is known as "Ben d'Or" for reasons which have frequently been mentioned. The Duke of Athol has been dubbed "All Scotland," the Duke of Marlborough's nickname is "Sonny," the Duke of Portland's "Jumbo," the Duke of Manchester is known everywhere as "Kim" and the Duke of Newcastle as "Linnie," which is an abbreviation of his second title, Lord Lincoln. The late Duke of Wellington was known as "Spurgeon," probably on account of his immense size.

Prince Soltykoff, a well known racing man, is generally known at Newmarket as "Solty." Prince Victor Dhuleep Singh is known as "Tulip." Lord Londonderry will probably be known always as "C," a nickname given to him when he was Lord Castlereagh. Lord Cholmondely, hereditary great chamberlain of England, is familiarly known as "Rock;" this, too, because of his second title of Rock Savage.

Lord Coventry is known as "Covey;" his nephew, Lord Lurgan, as "Billy." Lord Cowley is known as "Toby," Lord Raldon as "Piggy Palk" and Lord Spencer as "The Red Earl" on account of his tawny beard. Lord Warwick is affectionately called "Brookie" and Lord Yarmouth "The Bloater," a name his father, Lord Hertford, earned when he was in the foot guards.

Major Lawson and Major Greville of the Chester and Scots guards are known as "Bubble" and "Squeak" and that well known sportsman Captain Machell as "El Capitano." Schomberg McDonnell, brother of Lord Antrim and private secretary of Lord Salisbury, rejoices in the nickname of "Pom." Colonel Byron, formerly aide-de-camp to Lord Roberts, is known as "the strong man." George Faber, an exceedingly good looking man, is known as "Beautiful George."

Cecil Rhodes is truly named "the Colossus." Harry Stoner, one of the king's gentlemen in waiting, is so good looking that he is known as "Apollo." Captain Seymour Fortesque, author of "The King's Equerry," is styled "Commodore." Lord Kitchener is briefly designated as "K. of K." Humphrey Stuart among his most intimate friends is called "Humpty Dumpty" and "Buzbuz." Dunbar Barton, K. C., is "the boy Alfred."

NEW DIVORCE CANON.

Text of Decree Adopted by Episcopal Convention.

The house of bishops at the triennial Episcopal convention at San Francisco adopted the following canon on the divorce question:

The solemnization of matrimony in this church, in which the mutual consent of each party entering into this state of life is given in the presence of a minister who, having pronounced them in the name of the Holy Trinity to be man and wife, invokes the divine blessing upon their union.

The requirements of the laws of the state regarding the conditions for the civil contract of marriage shall in all cases be carefully observed before the marriage is solemnized.

No minister shall solemnize the marriage of any person who is a minor under the law of the place of marriage unless the parent or guardian of such minor is present and consenting or shall have given written consent to the marriage or is permanently resident in a foreign country. No minister shall solemnize a marriage except in the presence of at least two witnesses, the minister or the witnesses being personally acquainted with the parties. Every minister shall without delay formally record in the proper register the name, age and residence of each party. Such record shall be signed by the minister who performs the ceremony and, if practicable, by the married parties and by at least two witnesses of the marriage.

No minister shall solemnize a marriage between any two persons unless or until by inquiry he shall have satisfied himself that neither person has been or is the husband or the wife of any other person then living unless the former marriage was annulled by a decree of some civil court of competent jurisdiction for cause existing before such former marriage.

A Queer Competition.

A singular competition is reported between two Italians who have devoted their existence to collecting editions of the "Divina Commedia." One had discovered 214 editions and his rival the same number; but, determined not to be beaten, the latter had a two hundred and fifteenth edition specially set up and printed in Paris, taking care that only one copy of it was printed.

Love at Second Sight.

At the Orange county fair at Middletown, N. Y., Eugene W. Cox met Irene Van Tassell. They did not meet again until two weeks after at the Orange county horse show. It was a case of love at second sight, for they left the grounds together and went to a justice and were married. They took an express train for the Pan-American exposition.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

WILL RUN CZAR'S CARS

Pittsburg Men to Control St. Petersburg Traction Lines.

SCHEME FAVORED BY RUSSIANS.

McKee and Verner Propose to Form Company With $50,000,000 and Take Over Roads of Russian Capital—Czar Nicholas, It Is Believed, Will Approve the Project.

According to the Pittsburg Dispatch, announcement has been made by Murry A. Verner, the well known Pittsburg traction capitalist, that William A. Heydecker, representing himself and H. Sellers McKee, had presented a memorial to the municipal council of St. Peterburg, offering to absorb the entire surface traction system of that city and to form a company under the Russian laws, with a capital of 100,000,000 rubles ($50,000,000). The lines are now operated by horses and are eighty-five miles in extent. The Pittsburgers intend to install electricity and extend the system to 300 miles, making the deal the crowning venture of their remarkably busy lives in large traction affairs.

Negotiations were begun by Mr. Verner two years ago, and during that time he has made nine trips to the capital of the czar, leaving the details of the transaction to Mr. Heydecker, a resident of St. Petersburg. The traction roads of the city have been operated for the last twenty-five years by three companies of Russians, Belgians and Germans. These companies had the right to operate cars in St. Petersburg for twenty-five years, and their right to do so expired some time ago.

The city at once purchased the systems and is now operating them. The Pittsburgers have offered to take the lines off the hands of the city, place them on a modern basis and reach every populous section in the vicinity of the capital.

Mr. Verner said recently that he and Mr. McKee were alone for the present in the venture, but it is believed that the Clarkes and Magees of Philadelphia and Paten & Co. of New York, who have been in previous traction ventures of the two capitalists, will eventually be associated. The existing tramways of St. Petersburg form a perfect network, intersecting the city in all directions and reaching also the more remote islands and suburbs. Mr. Verner said the other night that he knew the amount of traffic of the roads, but would not make it public. The three lines are said to carry about 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 people every year, or about the same number carried on the Consolidated Traction lines of Pittsburg. Mr. Verner said that the fare was paid by the mileage, but averaged practically the fare charged in American cities. It is believed that when the lines are completed and extended and equipped with electricity the traffic will increase tremendously, as St. Petersburg is about as large as Chicago and is prosperous and busy.

It is not known what will be done in winter in the event of the Pittsburgers being successful. The present horse car lines are not operated in that season, omnibuses and public sledges maintaining the traffic when the snow becomes deep, as it invariably is for some months of the year. The number of carriages in use increases from about 10,000 in summer to about 15,000 to 18,000 in winter. This is said to be one of the most serious questions involved in the installation of electricity.

Mr. Verner and Mr. McKee say that, while the prospect of receiving the properties was good, they did not care to say much about their plans until they had accomplished what they sought. Mr. Verner said that the perpetual lease sought was unusual in Russia, but that the prospect of its being granted was good. He said that the matter would be referred to the government and finally to Czar Nicholas before it was finally approved.

Mr. McKee and Mr. Verner were pioneers in the electric traction period. In their time they have been the most extensive traction owners in the United States with the probable single exception of P. A. B. Widener and William L. Elkins of Philadelphia, whose example they closely followed.

Surrendering Himself Involuntarily.

It is not often that the police have a man surrender himself to them and the prisoner unaware of the proceeding, yet such was the case one night at the Eighth and Lombard streets station, says the Philadelphia Ledger. House Sergeant William L. Nones and I were conversing at the time, when a colored man came in, with his hat carried respectfully in one hand, while in the other he held a piece of paper.

"The boss sent me down with this piece of paper," said he of the ebony hue, "and said you'd understand it."

Nones gasped. The paper was a warrant for the arrest of the bearer on a charge of larceny. The sergeant made sure that he was the right man and then proceeded to lock him up.

Then the negro gasped. "Say, boss," he said, "dere's sumfin' wrong here. You doesn't understand things, sure."

"Well," replied Nones, "your boss apparently understood, and I guess I do too."

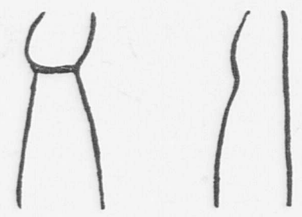

And the prisoner seemed still puzzled when I left. It appears that a suit case had been stolen, and suspicion turned on the colored man. A warrant was issued, and the suspect was sent to the station, an innocent messenger, securing his own arrest.

THE FEMALE FORM DIVINE.

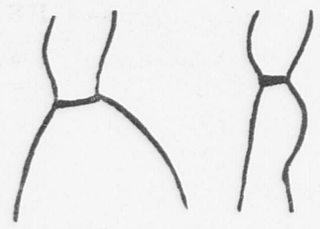

Some Suggestions as to How It Should Be Gowned.

An observer, who signs the nom de plume Fashion, writes the New York Sun as follows:

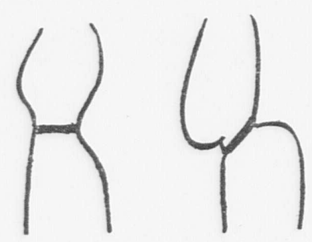

What puzzles me is whether the female form divine is itself kaleidoscopic or if dress makes it seem so. Diagrammatically expressed we have had in the last fifty years these divergent shapes as to waist and skirt:

Here is the Grecian or empire style with short waist and the Mother Hubbard with no waist.

Again we have the medium waist with crinoline, and the princess, long waist, with "pull back."

The penultimate style, just right to my mind, medium waist with Eton jacket, and the "Hottentotesque" or latest monstrosity, long waist in front, short in the rear and, oh, such a basal protuberance!

KOCH'S THEORY UPHELD.

Tests Show That Cows Are Not Infected by Human Tubercle Bacilli.

Interesting experiments of much importance to the public health are being made at the bacteriological laboratory of the board of health in New York, says The Tribune. They are being held to test Professor Koch's theory that human tubercle bacilli will not readily infect cows or calves. So far the experiments have shown the theory to be correct, it is said. All the calves reacted, however, to a tuberculin test, but the reaction was very slight and may have been due, it is said, to inflammation or other causes, considered by the investigators at the laboratory to be of minor importance.

One calf was killed and an autopsy held on the body. It failed to reveal any tubercle bacilli, and it was thought that the slight infection indicated by the tuberculin test might have been diminishing and not progressive in nature. The tests were made by Dr. William Hallock Park. He gave a report about them recently at a meeting of the New York Pathological society held at the Academy of Medicine. The other calves will be kept at the laboratory for about ten months more and will be carefully watched. They are now in fairly good health.

The four calves were taken to the laboratory building about two months and a half ago and were at once subjected to the tests. The sputum from about twenty consumptive persons was placed in milk, and about an ounce of sputum was in this way given to each calf once a day for two weeks. The sputum was also injected under the skin of the calves. Dr. Park said at the meeting last night that the calf killed on Tuesday showed no lesions.

GREEK BRIGANDS.

Adventure of Miss Stone Recalls a Similar Incident.

The adventures of Miss Stone reminds an old diplomatist of the case of a party of English travelers who in the spring of 1870 visited the site of the battlefield of Marathon and were captured by Greek brigands and carried off to the mountains. Lord and Lady Muncaster, who headed the party, and all the ladies who accompanied them were permitted to go to Athens, with the understanding that they should try to procure a ransom of £25,000 for three gentlemen who remained as hostages. The Greek government communicated with the British government, and between them it was arranged that a body of troops should start on the trail of the robbers, surround them in their camp, which could be pretty definitely located from the description of the released parties, and seize or kill the whole band and rescue the detained tourists.

The enterprising British newsgatherers at Athens got wind of what was going on and telegraphed it to the London press. It came back promptly to Greece as an interesting item of local news and was published there about forty-eight hours before the troops moved. The expedition was a great success as far as concerned finding its way to the bandit camp. But on arriving there it found the camp empty, the fires neatly extinguished, the place generally garnished for its reception—and the dead bodies of the three English prisoners, their throats cut from ear to ear, stretched artistically on the rocks!

Political Potpourri.

Democratic Representative convention in the Quincy double district this evening.

The Norfolk County Democratic convention will be held next Tuesday. The candidacy of Marshall P. Wright of Quincy for County Commissioner is received with favor.

The annual banquet of the Republican Editorial Association will be held at the Parker house, Boston, Tuesday afternoon of next week. Addresses will be made by Lieut.-Gov. Bates, Gen. Curtis Guild, Jr., and Col. Olin.

If the Stoughton delegates had not got left on a trade with the Bowker men of Brookline whereby they were to get the senatorship, and Bowker the County commissionership, the following comment would not have appeared in the Hyde Park Gazette:—"It is said that as a result of the recent second district Republican senatorial convention which nominated Senator Fales of Norwood for a third term, Dr. W. O. Faxon of Stoughton announces to his friends, that he is 'out of politics.' We are not surprised that the genial doctor is disgusted, but we think that when the next caucus is held in his town he will be within hearing of the megaphone. Citizen Hobart once announced that he was out of politics, but it wasn't a month before he was up to his neck in ballots.'.

Edward N. Phelps of Foxboro is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for County Commissioner.

One of the reasons why Candidate Bowker captured the Brookline delegates to the Republican County convention was because only two lists of delegates were filed, and both were favorable to him. Only 341 voted for both lists, however, whereas 2,166 voted for Gov. Crane, and 2,096 for President McKinley at the last election.

The Dedham Transcript comments today as follows: "The delegates from this town have only words of praise for William E. Badger of Quincy, who was a candidate for County Commissioner at the late Republican Convention. While unable to give him their support, they admired his dignified attitude and the manly manner in which he accepted his defeat. The next time a vacancy exists on the board he will be the logical candidate, and a winner."

At the Democratic convention held in Weymouth Thursday evening Horace R. Drinkwater of Braintree received the nomination for Representive in the General Court for Weymouth and Braintree.

"Trades deliver queer goods," writes a prominent Republican who regrets the defeat of the Quincy member of the Republican State Committee through the action of our political City Clerk.

Within three weeks, probably, the Republican City Committee will call for nominations for the Municipal caucuses in connection with the City election. Candidates should not be caught napping.

The Milton-Canton Republicans have selected a strong candidate for the Legislature—Joseph W. Wattles, Jr., of the Canton board of selectmen.

The Republican committee for the District Attorney district includes: Eben W. Sheppard of Quincy, W. B. Atherton of Randolph, W. L. Baker of Brookline, George W. Stetson of Middleboro, H. S. Fuller of Brockton, and Elmer L. Curtis of Hingham.

Because of the turn politics have taken in the last few weeks, many have rallied to the support of ex-Councilman Elisha Packard as their standard bearer for Mayor. Last year Mr. Packard carried the Ward One Republican caucus, which was very largely attended. This year his friends say he will also carry Wards Two, Three and Four, which would give him the Republican nomination.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A Republican Who Favored a Clean Sweep.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Another mistake of the Republicans who desire good government was, that they did not attempt to prevent the renomination of Thomas Blanchard of Stoughton, as well as the renomination of Watts H. Bowker of Brookline for county commissioner. The friends of Mr. Badger, who were anxious to secure his nomination for county commissioner evidently, thought it was not wise to antagonize other candidates, but rather to work for Mr. Badger's nomination on the merits of their candidate.

But where was Commissioner Blanchard and his friends in the contest? Why did Commissioner Blanchard object to the filling of the vacancy in the board which occurred early in 1901? It could have been done any day when Commissioners Blanchard and Hewins and Clerk of Courts Cook were assembled, as these three were given the authority. But the sympathies of Mr. Blanchard were with his deposed associate, Mr. Bowker. Single handed he was in the minority, and could he have brought it about he probably would though he did not care to assume the responsibility, especially as his term also was expiring.

At the recent convention, friends of Mr. Blanchard were for the Brookline man, the Stoughton delegation voting solid for him, and expected to get the senatorship in return, only to be disappointed.

As Mr. Blanchard was a new member of the County board at the time of the investigation, the Legislature was charitable and placed no censure on him, and when his term expired the voters gave him the benefit of all doubts and reelected him. His efforts to reinstate Mr. Bowker cannot, however, meet with full favor.

Republican

Logrolling and Extravagance.

Messrs. Editors:

A Boston newspaper observes that the trouble with the tier of towns north of Boston is, that they have been living beyond their means, real estate being taxed more than it will sell for, so that renters are more numerous than buyers.

The city of Quincy has a like disease in aggrevated form, for instead of the healthy parts of the body politic imparting strength and tone to the system, the gangrene of logrolling and extravagance spreads over the whole, loading the old municipal craft to the scuppers, which policy cannot be longer continued without financially submerging it.

SAYS PAY THE RANSOM

Dr. Henry Otis Dwight's Views on the Stone Case.

LOOK TO TURKEY FOR REPAYMENT

Was a Missionary For Ten Years In the Levant—Brigands, He Declares, Will Keep Their Word and Return the Captive Safely After All Demands Are Met.

Rev. Henry Otis Dwight, LL. D., who was for thirty-two years a missionary in Turkey, and who has written much about the Turk and his faith, believes that Miss Stone, whom he knew well in the orient, is safe, and that she will be promptly returned upon payment of the ransom.

Dr. Dwight believes that the ransom should be paid and that the Turkish government should later be looked to for restitution. Dr. Dwight was one of the pioneer missionaries in Turkey. He was born in Constantinople, entered Wesleyan university, but left it to go into the army and served with distinction during the civil war. He declined a commission to enter the missionary field.

"What I cannot understand," said the Rev. Mr. Dwight, "is why Miss Stone has not already talked her way out of captivity. Miss Stone is not only known, but greatly loved by the villagers in the district where she was taken. The villagers have great influence with the brigands, who depend upon them not only for information about the doings of the officials, but also for food.

"I feel sure that those villagers would not under ordinary circumstances stand for such an outrage as the abduction of Miss Stone, and until the last few days I expected every day to find in the papers the announcement that she had been set free.

"This is the first case within my knowledge where a missionary has been held for ransom. Up to this time the natives have always felt that missionaries had back of them some great political power. Of course that is not so, but that belief among the natives went far to protect us. That is what worries me now.

"The abduction of Miss Stone would indicate that the lawless elements of the orient had begun to realize that missionaries have no more protection than merchants. A precedent has been made, and it is a precedent that I greatly regret.

"It does not seem probable that the Macedonian committee sanctioned this deed. This body is always glad to foment internal troubles, but it does not want to antagonize any foreign power and would naturally try to steer clear of the international quarrel that must result from this affair.

"The brigands of Bulgaria may be likened to anarchists. They are recruited from the villagers who are disgusted with the government, and they are openly opposed to law and order. The majority of them fear the sight of blood, and when they resort to murder it is usually with the sandbag.

"Their word is good. When they offer to return a captive upon payment of a sum of money they will do as they say.

"The abduction of Miss Stone could not have been by Turks. The Turks are not long headed enough to put up any such plot.

"In this case I believe the United States government should first see that the ransom is paid and then get indemnity from the Turkish government.

"Under the treaty of extraterritoriality, made by Turkey in 1640 and into which the United States entered in 1830, the Turkish government guarantees protection to all foreigners within its territory. The Turkish government will not for a minute admit that Bulgaria is not under its control—hence it must furnish the protection guaranteed by its treaty.

"Twenty years ago Colonel Synge, an Englishman, who was chief of the Turkish police, was taken captive and removed to the southern part of Macedonia. The brigands demanded $15,000 ransom and the British government made a demand upon Turkey for his release. The Turkish government declared that it had no money and could not meet the demand. Great Britain paid the ransom and again demanded the money from Turkey. This demand was made in a manner that left no room for discussion and the money was promptly repaid. That is the way to do now.

"I remember in 1893 a young man named Corpi, son of a millionaire Italian banker of Smyrna, was kidnaped by brigands and $250,000 ransom was demanded. The Turkish government wanted to send troops, but the father begged it to desist. The young man, who had a smooth tongue, convinced the bandits that he was not the son of the rich banker, but only a poor relation, and tried to compromise for $1,500.

"After much parleying he finally secured his release upon the payment of $5,000, out of which the brigands repaid him $20 that he had lent them to buy food.

"That just goes to show what queer persons these brigands are."

Stole Horse as a Joke.

Miss Lizzie Bass, eighteen years old, was arrested in Mount Vernon, N. Y., for horse stealing. A few days before she hired a horse from a liveryman, promising to return in two hours. The horse and wagon were found in New York city. Miss Bass said she did not intend to steal them. It was all a joke. She was held for trial.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 13—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Dark days and their lessons.—Ps. cvii, 1-15.

The One Hundred and Seventh Psalm is in all probability not historical. The psalmist selects a number of incidents in life which are general in which he shows the goodness of God in delivering man and calls upon all who have thus been delivered to praise the Lord for His goodness. The experiences described in the psalm come in some of their forms to all men at some time. There are dark days in every life, and sometimes there are days so dark that it seems as if the light has forever gone out of our lives. But all who trust God find that it is not so and that, while "weeping may endure for the night, joy cometh in the morning."

There is no intimation in the word of God that we shall not have dark days in our lives. Some Christian people seem to think that the Bible teaches that God's people are exempt from trouble in this life. Nothing could be further from the truth. The Bible emphasizes the fact that "in the world we have tribulation," but it urges us in spite of it to be of good cheer because Christ has overcome the world. It teaches that God will be with us in trouble and that He will sustain us, but it nowhere suggests that we shall be free from adversity and affliction. Let us have no such a misunderstanding of the Scriptures as this, for, if we do, when trouble comes, as it surely will, our faith in God will be shaken or perhaps even destroyed.

2. Paul urged the Corinthians to practice the grace of giving under the inspiration of the benevolence of others. "I speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the forwardness of others." Paul would not use his authority to command them to give, but appealed to them to be inspired by the benevolence of others. Others had been forward in giving. Their forwardness should be emulated by the Corinthians. The liberality of others should inspire us to liberality. Christian liberality should receive a tremendous uplift under this stimulus today. It is an age of philanthropy and of liberality. Colleges, libraries, hospitals and institutions of various characters are the objects of great liberality. These gifts should spur Christian people to greater giving. Benevolence should inspire benevolence.

3. Paul urges the Corinthians to practice the grace of giving under the inspiration of the example of Christ. "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, how that though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might become rich."

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Make a special study of systematic and proportionate giving.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxviii, 20-22; Prov. iii, 9, 10; xi, 24, 25; Mal. iii, 8-12; Math. vi, 1-4; Luke xiv, 13, 14; Acts xx, 35; I Cor. xvi, 1, 2; II Cor. ix, 6-8.

Being Content.

When those hours come upon us in which we yearn for the wings of a dove that we may fly away and be at rest, let us strive to overcome our sadness by the cheering influence of hope. Let us go to God for that "peace that passeth understanding," and thus change the burdens of life into blessings. There is no sorrow which may not in this way be alleviated, no wound that may not by this balm be healed. In doing so we will indeed be carried away from our sorrows and trials to a condition of holy rest in God. This is after all the great blessing. As Hunt says, "Being content, the poorest man is rich, while he who counts his millions hath little joy be he otherwise."—Christian Leader (Universalist.)

Without Prayer.

A modern writer on Christian ethics says of prayer that, "whatever else it is—duty, privilege or spiritual exercise—it is also a necessary element of the spiritual life. When it stops entirely, life stops. To be without prayer is to be without God." These are uncompromising assertions, but they cannot be denied. They are according to Scripture and to all human experience. But what a ghastly testimony they bear against those who restrain prayer before God, who go to a prayerless bed and rise to a prayerless day's work, who are neither drawn by joy nor driven by sorrow to the mercy seat, but live from day to day and week to week like the beasts that perish!—Christian Intelligencer (Baptist).

Earthly Trials.

The earthly trials that come to us are God's means of securing our heavenly joy. They lie upon the road we have to travel, and they help us forward. As means of sanctification they make us meet for the inheritance. If Christ prepares mansions for His people it is by preparing them for the mansions. The affliction is not merely light compared with the weight of glory, but it actually worketh that very glory and secures it. It holds a chief place among the "all things" that work together for good.—Sunday at Home.

The Survival of the Fittest.

What the scientists term the survival of the fittest is one of the commonest laws of God. It operates everywhere, and we are all subject to it. Jesus often spoke hard things just to test His followers. He sought to create character, and not appearances. One reality with Him had more force than a thousand semblances.—Presbyterian Journal.

COTTON MARKET RUMOR

Does Not Appear to Worry "Cotton King" Borden.

HE REITERATES HIS CLAIM

That Raise In Wages In His Mills Was Justified by Business Conditions—Does Not Fear or Seek War With Other Manufacturers

New York, Oct. 12.—Matthew C. D. Borden disclaims any knowledge of a combination of cotton manufacturers against him and laughs at the rumor that the manufacturers would try to head the cotton market.

M. C. D. BORDEN.

"The manufacturers,' said he, "have no influence on the cotton market, as their entire consumption amounts to 369,000 bales out of a total of 12,000,000 bales.

"Now I want it understood that I have no desire to dictate to the manufacturers as to the rate of wages they will pay, nor how they shall conduct their plants. As for myself, personally, I must say that the condition of the cotton cloth market justifies an increase of 5 percent in the pay of wages of operatives.

"The cloth market is strong and today shows an advance of 5-8 of a cent. Cloth that was 2 3-8 is now selling for 3 cents.

"There is every indication that the demand for cotton cloth will remain strong for an indefinite time, and I feel that I was justified in granting an increase in wages in our mills amounting to about $5000 additional anually.

"I am glad that the operatives have deferred action until the 31st inst. With winter coming on they show judgment in delay. I wish the manufacturers could understand that our interests are identical. Their interests and mine are the same, and whatever influence I have had in the market has been for its good; whatever action I take for the conduct of my mills is for their good. A slight advance in wages at this time will be for the good of all concerned.

"I do not fear any manufacturers' war, nor no I invite one. It must be borne in mind that there are 30 different manufacturing corporations in Fall River. All do not think alike, and I sincerely hope that they will see that it is to their own interests to grant an advance in wages that is more than justified by the condition if the market. The result of increased wages in my mills have been satisfactory from every point."

Lotter Sentenced to Death

Middleburg, Cape Colony, Oct. 12.—Sentence of death has been passed upon Commandant Lotter, the Cape rebel whose commando, composed almost wholly of rebels, was captured by Major Scobell, early last month. Lord Kitchener has confirmed the sentence. Five of Lotter's comrades have been sentenced to the penitentiary for life. One, a youth, has been sentenced to 20 strokes with the rod, to be followed by imprisonment until the close of the war.

Organization Nearly Completed

Washington, Oct. 12.—The organization of the William McKinley National Memorial Arch association, whose purpose is to have a two-million dollar arch to Mr. McKinley erected by a national popular subscription, to be placed at the Washington approach to the proposed memorial bridge to connect Washington with Arlington, is being rapidly completed. Henry B. MacFarland is president and Secretary Gage is treasurer of the association.

Venezuela Willing to Yield

Caracas, Oct. 12.—Venezuela, on the surface, in inclining to the attitude of favoring a friendly and conclusive arrangement with Columbia of the existing trouble, principally because the Venezuelans were defeated at Guajira. They see small chance of vanquising the Colombians on the Tochira frontier. President Castro fears the effect on nationalism of another military disaster.

Oxford Boy Wins Futurity

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 12.—Lawson's Oxford Boy won the 2-year old trotting futurity after a hard struggle with Grace Eldred yesterday. The pace set was too swift for the majority of the youngsters, and at the finish of the third heat only the two were left. Accordingly the son of Red Clute took first, third and fourth money.

Ito Able to Go Visiting

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Marquis Ito, who is on a trip around the world, and who was confined to his apartments through illness, was able to visit the stock yards yesterday. His physician said the visit might be taken as a denial of the report that the marquis would be confined to his room.

The National Period of American Literature

BY LORENZO SEARS, LIT. D.,
Professor of American Literature in Brown University.

II.—Epics and Dramas.

THE writings of statesmen in the closing period of the eighteenth century were not equaled by other contemporary literature. There was no such absorbing motive in other departments to give the unconsciousness of self in which the best results are produced. Few periods have had such an overpowering stimulus to intense yet logical exposition of privileges which are essential to constitutional liberty. The literature which resulted ought to have been and was exceptional prose.

The verse which accompanied it was exceptional, too, but not in the same way. All ballads were of course inspired by patriotic or loyalist sentiments. Even when John Trumbull's long poem, "McFingal," appeared, it could be referred to the same kind of inspiration. Still the channel in which the devotion of the youthful versemaker flowed was inevitably narrowed by its prevailing satire. This was effective, as no one can deny, and by its mirth provoking sallies did good service for a good cause. It is not to so much purpose to inquire here who furnished the copy which he followed with greater or less fidelity as to know that the help furnished was not after the manner or in the degree of the aid lent by the political prose of the day.

Nothing but the controversy which had its participants on both sides, in England as well as in America, could have carried this mock heroic performance through several editions. Besides the literary taste of the time in poetics was not far above this level. We can be grateful to the author for winning supporters whom statesmen could not reach without calling him an eminent poet.

However, he did not aspire to write an epic, as two of his contemporaries did. But they had their sense of obligation as citizens and men of letters in the young America that had just been released from old England. A new and free nation of almost boundless expanse, with limitless prospects and high hopes, it was urged, should have a commensurate literature or the beginning of it at least. A patriotic aspiration of this kind must have impelled Timothy Dwight, president of Yale college, to undertake in 1785 his "Conquest of Canaan," the first American epic, as the author himself calls it. The resemblance it bears to those which had preceded it, notably the "Iliad" and "Paradise Lost," consists largely in the antiquity of the subject. Differences must be explained by saying that Homer and Milton were born to be poets, as the American was born to be a college president and a diligent and persevering versifier. Genius is not always the faculty of taking pains. If it were, the "Conquest of Canaan" would not have perished in a hundred years. Nevertheless it is worth reading—some of it. Biblical students will be pleased to note what side lights can be thrown upon the sacred story by a poetic imagination if they read as far as the eleventh book. The crookedness of Hanniel, the loves of Irad and Selima, of Elam and Mina, the ghost of Herzon, the prowess of Jabin, the valor of Zimri, are for the modern reader what the miracle and mystery plays were to the dark ages. Modern battlefields and Revolutionary generals are somewhat belated actors, but the heroes just returned from Monmouth and Yorktown did not object to being in company with Caleb and Joshua. They knew their Bibles as well as their descendants knew a Sunday newspaper, and they understood a Scriptural allusion or an Old Testament hero a great deal better. And as for the versification, the rhymes of Dwight were as good in their esteem as Pope's translation of the "Iliad" and his characters not inferior to Milton's in their Biblical derivation. It was a book for the age by a counselor of statesmen and a theologian. He, if any one, could meet the demands of the youthful nation for an epic of its own. Moreover, a note of progress might be discerned from one to the other of the three epics, and a humanistic element could be found in the "Conquest" which was not in the "Iliad" or in "Paradise Lost." Even the oratory of the Argive leaders or that of satan himself is at least recalled by Caleb's address to the assembled host.

Our great and greater grandfathers reveled in this and were not ashamed to liken it to the Homer of Pope and to the verse of Milton. The anticlimax was reached when Joel Barlow wrote his "Vision of Columbus," afterward developed into the "Columbiad." The very title was sublimated American, and the poem was regarded as a "tremendous epic" in its day. With mitigated modesty the writer declares that he shall not try to prove that he has written an epic poem. Nevertheless he ranks the "Iliad" and the "Æneid" in the same class with his own "Columbiad," which he sends forth "with no other concern than what arises from the most pure and ardent desire of doing good to the country."

Barlow was a type of the cultivated and patriotic young American of his day. He belonged to the Dwight-Trumbull knot of young men in college who were the first to break away from the traditions of the elders and devote themselves to a study of outlander literature in the English classics. In vacations he shouldered a musket and fought bravely with the Massachusetts militia in the opening battles of the Revolution. His commencement part in 1778 was a poem on "The Prospect of Peace," hopeful, enthusiastic, expansive, prophetic.

As there was a shortage of chaplains in the army, the young law student crammed himself with enough divinity in six weeks for war purposes and with his friend Dwight went in and out among the troops, animating and encouraging them by patriotic addresses and odes. Turning editor—and doctor of Watts' version of the psalms to make them fit the regnant theology—he meditated and composed by turns the "Vision," which was received with applause by friends and reprinted in London and Paris. It anticipated by a year the one sided philanthropy and erratic enthusiasm of the French revolution, and in consequence the author was welcome when he arrived in France to give his "Advice to Privileged Orders" and follow it with his poem on the "Conspiracy of Kings."

The design of Barlow's masterpiece, "The Columbiad," evolved from "The Vision," was to give a historical view of events from the time of Columbus to that of Washington as foreseen by the great discoverer from his prison. Conducted by Hesper to the mount of vision, he takes a long lesson in American geography and the history of Mexico and Peru. The story of colonization by Raleigh and others follows, preparing the way for the old French and the Revolutionary wars. Officers in the latter are thus signalized:

> Here stood stern Putnam, scored with ancient scars,
> The living record of his country's wars:
> Wayne, like a moving tower, assumes his post,
> Fires the whole field and is himself a host.
> Bland, Moyland, Sheldon, the long lines enforce
> With light arm'd scouts, with solid squares of horse,
> And Knox from his full park to battle brings
> His brazen tubes, the last resort of kings,
> When at his word the carbon cloud shall rise
> And well aimed thunders rock the shores and skies.

It was in this post revolution period that the first intimation of a submerged dramatic tendency bubbled up to the surface from the ooze where it was sunk 150 years before. Puritan laws and frowns had kept it out of sight and hearing thus far. Hospitable Virginia had allowed the "Merchant of Venice" to be acted by professionals in Williamsburg as early as 1752, and Farquhar's "Beaux's Strategem" was played the same year in the first American theater at Annapolis, Md., which was followed by the second in New York the next year and another in Philadelphia six years later. But in Massachusetts previous to 1792 players appeared on the stage at the risk of arrest. Only in unorthodox Rhode Island and under the patronage of planters who came to Newport were they safe within the bounds of New England. As early as 1765 Thomas Godfrey of Philadelphia had peeped in a closet drama entitled "The Prince of Parthia," but Royall Tyler of New York was the first domestic playwriter to put a piece upon the stage. He called it the "Contrast," possibly with reference to the change in public sentiment since Massachusetts enacted an ordinance, in imitation of Cromwell's parliament in 1642, abolishing theaters. This act was annulled in England 14 years later, but here there was no relenting until 170 years after the pilgrims came to Plymouth. Under such regime not much could be expected of American dramatic talent. When at length it dared to appear on the boards, it seemed not to the manner born. The tragedy was high enough and the comedy low enough, but the Elizabethan dramatist or even the restoration playwright had not accompanied the star of empire westward. Have they yet arrived?

Still there were homemade plays which pleased provincials by their local color and hits, and as good a beginning was made as could be expected in a climate which ranged from temperate to frigid in the matter of dramatice. What need was there of tragedy representation when the genuine article could be had by standing in front of the meeting house near the whipping post, stocks and pillory or by climbing the hill where the gallows loomed stark against a wintry sky? And as for comedy, it might be had whenever a pirate crew was brought ashore or a knot of witches convicted. The Puritan boy was not without his diversions. For awhile he had no need of theater or circus. When, however, his primitive entertainments went out of fashion, it was unfair to expect counterfeits to take their place all at once or to be satisfactory. Had not everything fictitious been sternly forbidden and painfully discouraged? Accordingly the early American drama should not be scrutinized too sharply.

Tyler, Dunlap and Payne made the best beginning they could with such plays as "May Day In New York," "The Father of an Only Child," "Brutus" and "Therese," all of which were appreciated at home and some in London. Dunlap's interlude of "Danby's Return" drew unusual laughter from the grave Washington, and sympathetic merriment from all who were watching to see how he would take an allusion to himself. But no one unearths these old provincial tragedies and comedies for present reading, and a company which should venture to reproduce them would not undertake their repetition a second night.

GREAT DAYS ...AT THE... PAN-AMERICAN

THE postponement of some of the special days has crowded many great events into the month of October. Toronto day opened the month with many thousand visitors from Canada on the 3d. Pennsylvania day, on Oct. 4, with Governor William A. Stone, his staff and several regiments of the national guard, made a splendid showing. New York day comes Oct. 9, following Brooklyn day. These two days will be the occasion for reunions of people west and east, as New Yorkers are found all over the Union.

The Citizens' Committee of Brooklyn has been hard at work for several months preparing for Oct. 8, and the programme which has been arranged promises a rare treat for those who are fortunate enough to gain admission to the Temple of Music during the time of its presentation. The special oration of the day will be delivered by the Hon. St. Clair McKelway, editor of the Brooklyn Eagle. The Hon. Ludwig Nissen will preside at the gathering, and other addresses will be delivered by Mayor Diehl of Buffalo, William C. Bryant, chairman of the Brooklyn Citizens' Committee, and Hon. W. I. Buchanan, director general of the Exposition. The music incidental to the occasion will be furnished by the Innes band of New York city. Elaborate fireworks have been planned for the evening.

On New York day Governor Odell will be escorted to the Temple of Music by sixteen out of town organizations in addition to the three located in Buffalo. Over 3,000 men will be in line, composing one of the largest and most imposing parades which has ever taken place in times of peace. All branches of service will be represented—infantry, cavalry, artillery, naval and signal. An elaborate programme has been arranged for the Temple of Music and a reception in the New York State building with magnificent fireworks in the evening.

Illinois day, on Oct. 7, is to be one of the great days of the Exposition. While the death of President McKinley made it necessary to postpone the day from Sept. 16, Governor Yates and the State commission have determined that the day shall be an event of great importance at the Exposition. Thousands of Illinois people are coming. The great middle west, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, with Michigan, have sent great crowds already to the Pan-American, and there is every indication that the attendance from that section will be greater than ever during the month of October.

Buffalo will have a great day on Oct. 19. At the Chicago fair Chicago day was the crowning event of the Exposition. So Buffalo people are laboring hard to make Buffalo day the climax in point of attendance.

Many nearby cities will have special days in October, notably Erie, Pa., on Oct. 10 and Dunkirk, N. Y., on Oct. 10. The list is constantly being added to. National Grange day, Oct. 10, will bring Patrons of Husbandry from every part of the nation. Atlantic City people and New Jersey people will visit the Exposition on Oct. 11, Atlantic City day.

Alaska day, on the 28th, will bring into prominence the products and people of that great golden land of the midnight sun, ice, snow and wealth. Every day from Oct. 1 to the 31st will be replete with interest, from Carnival week, which opens the month with the gorgeous floats of King Rex and the replica of Mardi Gras pageantry, to the magnificent pyrotechnic display on the night of the last day of the month.

No exposition ever held in the United States so appealed to the American public as has the Pan-American Exposition in its architectural beauty and symmetry, its gorgeous flowers, now in the fine beauty of fall bloom; its gardens and fountains and its special amusements, music and carnival features. "No person," said Secretary of Agriculture Wilson during a visit on Sept. 10, "should miss seeing the Exposition. It is magnificent beyond compare." Never again will the world see such an illumination. Not every city has the wonderful electric plant driven by Niagara Falls, and without some such plant it will be impossible to reproduce the solemn grandeur the glorious beauty, the impressive radiance of this City of Light.

There are yet a few more weeks in which to see this vision with all its attendant beauties.

Conventions at Buffalo.

October will be a great convention month at Buffalo. Thousands of members of organizations will take this opportunity of visiting the Exposition at that time. Beginning with the International Cremation congress from Oct. 1 to 3, the month closes with the American Langshan club on Oct. 26.

National Grange Day.

Thursday, Oct. 10, will be National Grange day at the Pan-American Exposition. At a meeting in the city of Washington held in 1900 the National Grangers adopted resolutions setting aside this day, and a great assemblage of Patrons of Husbandry and farmers generally is expected.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Volume of Business Contiues to Gain to an Extraorniary Extent

New York, Oct. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.s Weekly Review of Trade says: Reports from all sectoions of the country agree that there has seldom, if ever, been such vigorous prosecution of constructive work. Widely divergent lines exhibit similar symptoms. Lumber advances in price because the demand exceeds the supply, steel fuel, wearing apparel, etc., all enjoy great activity. It is not exceptional to hear that all previous records are being surpassed. Labor is well employed at good wages, and the buying power of the people is more than sufficient to meet the advance in the cost of living of 4.6 percent over prices prevailing a year ago.

Wholesome activity is still the feature at iron furnaaces and steel mills. While old orders are filled as rapidly as possible, there is no immediate prospect of catching up with contracts.

Footwear shops are still producing at full capacity, not only in the old established New England factories, but in this state and at the west and south. At this season there is usually much work on spring orders, but at present there is little thought for the future, jobbers importuning manufacturers for immediate delivery of heavy weight goods on old contracts. Retailers are not carrying over the customary supplies of summer shoes, while having a healthy demand for seasonable goods. Prices are unchanged as yet, though manufacturers contemplate the advancing leather market with some uneasiness.

Quiet conditions prevail in the dry-goods market, not because of light demand, but through the strong views of sellers, which prevent export sales as well as domestic business. The recent advance in raw cotton is immediately responsible for the firmness of prices.

At Fall River the print cloth situation is most satisfactory; standard goods for delivery up to February are held at 3 cents, and the labor situation is much clearer than it was a week ago.

Slightly better relative prices have been established by the leading cereals, wheat making a fair gain, while corn lost a little of its exceptional strength.

Free Passes Not Abolished

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Railway passes will not be abolished Dec. 31 next. The plan to wipe them out of existence was killed here yesterday at a meeting of the executive officials of the western roads. The plan to abolish passes, in all probability, will be resurrected about a year hence, since many railway magnates firmly believe that the officers and employes of railroads and members of their families should pay regular rates when they travel, as others do.

Palm's Name On the Ticket

Harrisburg, Oct. 12.—The Democratic state committee met here yesterday and substituted the name of Elisha A. Coray, Jr., (Independent Republican), the Union party candidatte for state treasurer, for that of Andrew J. Palm, the regular Democratic nominee for the same office. Palm withdrew from the ticket in the interest of fusion.

Law May Have Been Violated

Oswego, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Seventy-five French-Canadians, employed in the construction of the sulphite mill at Battle island, are on strike. It is now asserted that the men were brought here from Ottawa, contrary to the alien labor law. An official investigation will be made.

LIEUT. BUMPUS.

Quincy People Today Honor Hero of Philippines and China.

The decorations at the First church for the memorial service to Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus, which are being held this afternoon, are the same as those used at the recent memorial service to President McKinley. Some additions have, however, been made, the principal of which are the draping of the American and Chinese flags across the front of the altar. These are entwined together and caught up in the centre with a large wreath of white roses and pinks.

The speaking will be from a raised platform in front of the altar. On either side of this are colors of Camp Boyd Legion of Spanish War Veterans. These are furled and are tied with black crape. On each altar rail is a smaller flag and a large potted fern.

The seats on both sides of the centre aisle were reserved for the family and organizations.

Hecker vs. Herron.

Miss Hecker and Miss Herron will play the finals today for the U. S. women's golf championship.

News of the Ocean.

The attention which the Boston Journal is giving to shipping news and shipping interests is worth remark and commendation. The Journal has for years had the deserved reputation of being the marine newspaper of New England, both in amount of space given to shipping news and in the accuracy of its reports. Now all news of this character is grouped together under the head of "News of the Ocean," a convenience of arrangement which Journal readers will not be slow to appreciate.

Colonial Troops Reviewed

Toronto, Oct. 12.—Thousands of loyal Canadians joined in the reception given to the Duke of York yesterday. The events of the day began with a grand review of 10,000 troops and a march past, which was highly commended by English army experts present. Both infantry and cavalry evolutions proved features with the spectators and critics, and the duke seemed highly pleased with the work of colonial troops.

Has Murdered Three Men

Dallas, Oct. 12.—Gregorio Cortez, the Mexican outlaw, for whom an exciting hunt was kept up for two weeks in the lower Rio Grande valley last spring, was convicted yesterday at Karnes City of murdering Sheriff Morris, and was sentenced to hang. Cortez was recently sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment for the murder of August Schnabel. He is still to be tried for the murder of Sheriff Glover.

Death Sentence Imposed

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Amos Stirling, colored, twice convicted of murder in the first degree, was refused a new trial yesterday and the death sentence was imposed. He was implicated with Henry Ivory and Charles Perry, also colored, in the murder of Professor Ray White. Perry and Ivory were hanged last Tuesday.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Castle Square Theatre.

The attraction at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week will be the drama, by Mark Twain, "Pudd'nhead Wilson" which has only been seen in this city heretofore at the Tremont Theatre some years ago. In this play the author has, in his prologue, recalled types of characters known along the Mississippi below St. Louis some sixty years ago, and then brought out many of the same characters twenty odd years later. The central figure of all the scenes in "Pudd'nhead Wilson," a queerly quaint, wittily wise and humorously philosophical good natured lawyer who occupies the time left on his hands, by the absence of clients, in indulgence of his inclination towards proving odd theories regarding his associates. The plot deals largely with the experiences of Thos. A' Becket Driscoll and Valet de Chambre who become mixed "in childhood's happy hours' and cause much trouble as to their identity later on.

An elaborate revival of "Shenandoah" follows on Monday, the 21st inst. The usual distribution of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

Keith's Theatre.

With the exception of the beautiful spectacular production, the entire bill at Keith's will be changed for the week commencing Oct. 14, and the new show will be made up of some of the best known and cleverest entertainers in the varieties. Among those announced to appear are: Sidney Grant, a Brookline boy, who is rated as one of the brightest monologue entertainers and mimics in the country; the Quaker City quartet, comedians, singers and instrumentalists, who will present their most successful sketch, "The Musical Blacksmiths"; Rixford brothers, wonderful acrobats; Colville and Mc Bride, in singing and dancing specialties; and Prof. Burton's acrobatic and comedy dogs, including the highest leaping greyhounds in the world. There will be a few changes made in the spectacular features tending to still further beautify them, and the list of new pictures in the biograph will be as interesting as any shown for months past. Announcement is already being made of the coming of Cinquevalli, the noted European juggler, but no date is yet set for the beginning of his engagement.

Park Theatre.

Sadie Martinot will present a new play entitled 'The Marriage Game," at the Park Theatre, Boston, next Monday night, from the French of Emile Augier and by Clyde Fitch, author of "The Climbers," "Barbara Fritchie," "Beau Brummel," "Lovers Lane." It is in three acts, the first of which takes place at a fashionable gaming saloon known as the Villa des Fleurs, at Aix les Bains in the height of the season. The second act is at Montrose Castle in Devonshire, England; and the third at the Duke of Montrose's town-house, London. Wherever it has been performed it has created nothing short of a sensation, and its presentation here will undoubtedly attract more than ordinary interest. The cast is one of unequivocal excellence the most important members being Miss Sadie Martinot, Edwin Arden, Mrs. Mckee Rankin, Grace Ficher, Junius B. Booth and others of like calibre. The production is said to be one of the most elaborate on the present day stage. The engagement is for two weeks only—Saturday matinees.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Por or Visits the Sultan

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—The sultan received in private audience yesterday Horace Porter, United States Ambassador to France, and Mrs. Porter. To the former he presented a valuable souvenir and upon the latter he conferred the grand cordon of Chefakat.

HALF A MAN.

When a man is sick and can only work half the time he is practically half a man. It requires his whole physical energy to do half a man's work.

In general the weak run down condition which cuts the strength and energy in half is due to disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. You could not expect a half starved man to work more than half the time. The condition of the man with weak stomach is that of the half starved man. He is weak through lack of nutrition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect nutrition of the body and so restores the strength.

"I had stomach trouble from birth," writes Mr. Willis Seaman, of Washingtonville, Orange Co., N. Y., "and suffered with it more or less as I grew up. At the age of 25 I was broken down with dyspepsia. My suffering was terrible. Could not eat without distress. Could only eat a few certain things and was not able to work half the time. Every thing I tried only gave me temporary relief. My wife finally persuaded me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I then felt so well that I stopped taking medicine. Several months have passed and I can do the hardest kind of work, can eat anything that is set before me and enjoy it. I am 27 years old and this is the first time I have ever been well."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

QUARTET OF CROOKS

Rounded Up After Extensive Operations In Boston and Vicinity.

$2500 WORTH IN THEIR ROOMS,

While Much Stolen Property Has Been Disposed of.

Boston, Oct. 14.—Stolen property, the proceeds of recent robberies in Boston and nearby cities, and valued at $2500, was found yesterday by Boston police inspectors in rooms at 11 Boylston place, occupied by a quartet of self-confessed crooks who were placed under arrest Saturday evening.

The prisoners are Herbert S. Dudley, 24, and Mrs. Annie Dudey 27, his wife, of 11 Boylston place; Abert Reynolds, 22, of Cleveland, and Frank P. Gordon 20, of Utica, N. Y. Mrs. Dudley, the others say, took no part in the robberies, but disposed of some of the plunder.

There was such a weight of evidence against them that the men made confessions. They could not give an accurate account of all burglaries committed, but the lowest estimate made by them was 40.

In their confession the men told Chief Watts that they had been operating almost every night. Their method was to ring door bells and if the occupants were away they would pry open windows and doors with a chisel and loot the place. In almost every instance they say their work was done in the early evening. A chisel, two revolvers and a dark lantern were found in their rooms, while the stolen property included almost every article to be ound in a well furnished home, with the exception of heavy furniture.

Nearly all the pawsbrokers in Boston will be summoned to police headquarters to look at the prisoners for the purpose of indentifying them as men who have sold stolen property to them.

All of the prisoners deny having been arrested before and so far as the Boston police know they never have been.

The display of recovered loot is considered the greatest since the arrest of the famous Barrett and Chaffee burglars.

Dudley staid that lots of the stuff had been sold, and that from jewelry with diamonds in it the stones had been taken out and sold. He said sometimes he would take the best of the goods gathered in and make a price on it and buy out the shares held by Renods and Gordon. He would make them think he sold it, but would hide it until he got good money for it.

After Dudley told how he belonged in Boston and that he had been carrying on the wark for four months, he was taken from the room. The others were brought in, one by one, and they told the same story. When told that Dudley had given up they were very much down hearted.

The attempt to locate the men who were causing trouble began two months ago, when the police were told that a number of persons living in Boston were concerned in breaks in several nearby towns.

These persons were not located, but within a short time quantities of goods reported stoen weeks before began to appear in the pawn shops. Then by shadowing the men who were selling goods the rooms of Dudey were located. The men were taken on suspicion and then the police watched 11 Boyston place all Saturday night, until after they saw Mrs. Dudley go in. Chief Watts headed the raid and everybody interested had a big surprise.

TURKISH PLOT EXPOSED.

Paris Oct. 14.—A despatch from Susa, Tunis announces that a Turkish officer was arrested there on a charge of swindling and that an investigation conclusively proved that he received insructions from the Ottoman minister of war to organize a rising of the Arabs in South Algeria in the event of the rupture of diplomatic relations between France and Turkey resulting in a declaration of war. The incriminated officer is only one of several who were entrusted with the same mission.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Adam Thompson, a brakeman on a freight train, was killed at New London, Conn., by falling beneath the wheels of his train.

WAS INSTANTLY KILLED.

Boy Met Death From Rifle He Was About to Purchase.

Adams, Mass., Oct. 14.—James L. Kearns, 15 years old, was accidentally killed yesterday by a ball from a rifle in the hands of James Dacy. Dacy, who is 35 years old, married, gave himself up to the police and will be arraigned on the charge of manslaughter. The shock of the accident has temporarily unbalanced his mind and his condition is pitiable.

Young Kearns and his brother Edward, 18 years old, left their home in company with Dacy to test a rifle, owned by Dacy, which Edward thought of purchasing.

They went to East Hoosac street, where they fired several times at a target. Then they prepared another target and Dacy loaded the rifle with a 32-calibre bulet preparatory to handing it to James Kearns for the first shot, when in some manner the weapon was discharged.

The bullet struck Edward Kearns in the muscles of the right arm, between the shouder and elbow, cutting a deep gash, then glanced and struck James Kearns, who was standing just behind Edward, on the chin, leaving a slight mark, then taking a downward course and passing through his lung.

The lad died instantly. Medical examiner Brown was called and his report will be that death was due to accident.

COLLECTION OF $60,000.

New York, Oct. 14.—As a result of the annual missionary sermon preached yesterday in the Gospel Tabernacle by Dr. A. B. Simpson, the missionary fund solicitor, the sum of $60,000 was collected during the day. Yesterday's meeting was the last of the 11 conveations that have been held throughout the United States and the whole amount thus far contributed for missionary purposes is nearly $175,000.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

Port Townsend, Wash., Oct. 14.—Reports from Nome state that a reign of terror prevails a Nome. Hold-ups and robberies are of nightly occurrence. Men are being sanbagged and robbed in broad daylight when caught in lonely places. Sluice box robberies are frequent. Business houses have been entered and even women walking on the streets are made victims.

TWO FISHERMEN LOST.

Boston, Oct. 14.—Fishing schooner Harry L. Beden of Boston arrived yesterday with her ensign at half-mast for the supposed loss of two members of her crew, John McNeil and John Morrisey. Captain Paul says that McNeil and Morrisey went astray at 6 o'clock last Friday night on the south channel while tending trawls during a dense fog.

TWO HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

South Framingham, Mass., Oct. 14.—The First Parish Uniterian church of this place yesterday observed the 200th anniversary of its organization and ordination of its first pastor, Rev. John Swift, the event being signified by historica addresses by prominent Unitarians from different sections of the country.

FUNDS ON THE WAY.

Constantinople, Oct. 14.—Thus far there have been no fresh developments in the case of Miss Ellen M. Stone. Secretary Eddy of the United States legation in Constantinople has received a notification rom Washington that the funds for ransom have been forwarded.

The Shah as a Connoisseur.

During the shah's last stay in Paris he paid a visit to the Gobelins, where he showed a most appreciative interest in all that he saw. Before a remarkably fine Persian carpet, given to the museum by M. Goupil, he remained for some time, interpreting for himself the symbolic allusions thickly embroidered upon it, which, however, he declined to translate into French. A few days since the mystery was cleared up. There arrived in Paris the manager of the imperial carpet weaving factory in Teheran, who stated that he had been commissioned by the shah to study the methods of manufacture in use at the Gobelins. To him the director applied for a solution of the legends of the carpet which had so captivated the shah. Thereupon the Persian began to read out a running translation: "A carpet for the ruler of the earth; superiority for his feet; how beautiful it is; it is in his cabinet and knows his secrets. It is pleasant as paradise and brighter than the academy of Mari (a Persian painter), for it contains all the colors of China. The nightingale coming to perch upon it cannot tear itself away from its loveliness. Neither winter nor autumn can ever change the tints of this carpet." This is a good deal for one carpet to signify, but critics say that it is justified in holding a high opinion of itself. It is about three centuries old.

Will Attend Yale Celebration.

The Yale Alumni Weekly says: "Mrs. Rowena Eakin Overall, the firstborn of the class of '56, and Miss Caroline Hale Steinman of Lancaster, Pa., the youngest child, will be present at the women's reunion incidental to the forty-fifth anniversary celebration of the class in October. Miss Steinman is a daughter of A. J. Steinman, president of the Penn Iron company, and Mrs. Overall, the first of her sex to receive the silver cup at Yale, is a daughter of the late Emmet Eakin of Murfreesboro, Tenn."

CROWE HEARD FROM.

Will Surrender If Reward Hanging Over Him Is Withdran.

ALL HE WANTS IS "SQUARE DEAL"

Willing to Face Jury of Twelve Good Citizens.

Omaha, Oct. 14.—Chief of Poice Donahue has received from Patrick Crowe, through a friend of the latter, an offer to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head is withdrawn, for the alleged kidnapping of Edward A. Cudahy.

PAT CROWE.

Chief Donahue yesterday received a letter from Crowe, naming the terms on which he will surrender. The letter came in care of an Omaha newspaper, in which it is published, and covers 15 closely written pages of manuscript. The postmark is illegible, but the letter was mailed at 8 o'clock in the morning and reached this city at 8 o'clock in the evening of the same day, indicating that it had not travelled a long distance. In the letter Crowe agrees to give himself up at once and stand trial for the kidnapping of Edward Cudahy, provided he shall not be locked up until a jury shall adjudge him guilty. He says he is unable to furnish bond in excess of $500, and demands that bail be fixed in that sum.

Chief Donahue expressed himself as quite satisfied that the letter came from Crowe. Donahue has known Crowe for several years, is accustomed to his manner, handwriting and style of speech. The chief also received yesterday a letter from Crowe's uncle in Manchester, Ia., submitting similar terms for Crowe's surrender, which lead the police to believe that they are dealing with the right man.

Crowe's letter begins: "Nearly a year has passed by since I was accused of the Cudahy kidnapping. A large reward was offered and plenty of time has been given for the police and detectives to have made a prisoner of me. So far they have failed to do it. Now I wish to make a short statement to you and the public."

Crowe then takes the detective agencies to task, defying them to attempt to arrest him and continues: "Now, Mr. Donahue, let me tell you all I want is justice, a fair trial by 12 citizens of Douglass county, I want you to understand that I am not afraid of the combined wealth of all the Cudahys on earth and the united efforts of all the scrub detectives that their money can hire. The man who tries to pinch me will bite the dust, for I am ready to die in the mix. I will not be kangarood.

"You say it is your business to deal out justice. I will take you at your word. Give me a square deal. Leave it to the jury of 12 citizens. Chief, I ask, but I do not expect to get justice. There is some one else who wants to put away and I know the God of gold."

The letter then states that he has been in South America and Africa, fighting with the Boers, and expresses his disgust with Great Britain and his sympathy for the Boers. He closes the main part of his letter by saying he regrets that Mr. Cudahy should suspect him of kidnapping the boy, and hoping soon to receive a reply from the chief which he directs should be made through a local paper. This part is signed "Pat Crowe," but the signature is partly erased and four pages of postscript added, in which Crowe says if his offer is no accepted he will return to a foreign country from which he probably will never return, then recites a few reminiscenses, discusses the Boer war and its causes and signs the postscript with the name "Pat Crowe."

THE FINES PILED UP.

Augusta, Me., Oct. 14.—The September term of the Kennebec county superior court has adjourned. Over $14,000 was collected in liquor fines and jail sentences were given to several for infraction against the prohibitory law.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

SCHLEY'S CONTENTION

As To First Knowledge of Spainards' Presence at Santiago.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The Schley court of inquiry held but one session Saturday. Captain Chadwick concluded his testimony begun Friday and Lieutenant Commander Staunton, who served on the New York as an aide to Captain Chadwick as chief of staff for Admiral Sampson, and Lieutenant Twining, formery of the Iowa, were introduced as new witnesses.

Commander Staunton's testimony dealt largely with despatches forwarded by Sampson to Schley, and while he was under examination Mr. Rayner outined a contention on behalf of Schley to the effect that the despatch written May 27 was the first positive notice that the commander-in-chief had given him of the presence of the Spanish fleet in the harbor at Santiago.

Lieutenant Twining said in his testimony that while the flying squadron occupied a position of from three to five miles out from Cienfuegos during the daytime the distance was increased to from seven to nine miles at night. He was in charge of the eight-inch guns during the bombardment of the Cristobal Colon on May 31, and he said that at all the shots from the American fleet fell short of the mark.

Near the close of the day's session Judge Advocate Lemy and Mr. Rayner became engaged in a controversy over the admissibility at that time of a chart showing the speed of the vesses of the flying squadron, and when Mr. Rayner spoke concerning the matter to be introduced the judge advocate took exception to its reception, saying Mr. Rayner's summary might be inaccurate, as other statements made by him, referring especially to the contents of documents presented, had been. Mr. Rayner resented the exception and replied to that effect that if it were uttered outside the coutroom he would say that it was false. Before the cour adjourned both Mr. Rayner and Captain Lemly made statements concerning the incident to the court and Admiral Dewey expressed the opinion that Captain Lemly's explanation should be satisfactory to Mr. Rayner.

WON'T TALK POLITICS.

New York, Oct. 14.—Senator Lodge returned Saturday on the steamer St. Louis from a vacation abroad. Because of his intimacy with President Roosevelt he was besieged by those who sought to learn his views concerning the policy of the new administration. "With Theodore Roosevelt in the White House the country is in safe hands" was all that he could say regarding national affairs. "I have decided not to talk politics for the present."

TIRED OF THE BARGAIN.

Ellsworth, Me., Oct. 14.—Richard H. Paine of Eden, aged 73, asked for a divorce from his wife, who is 60. The petition was contested, but the decree for the libellant was granted Saturday, and a cross-libel of the wife was withdrawn. Both applicants were based on statutory grounds. The couple were married in front of the grand stand as one of the attractions at the Hancock county fair seven years ago.

DID $5000 WORTH OF MISCHIEF.

Portand, Me., Oct. 14.—Nearly every plate glass window for a distance of four blocks on one side of Congress street has been practically ruined by vandals. A double edged glass cutter was used and the double edges were drawn across the panes from sash to sash. The value of the disfigured glass is estimated at more than $5000.

A REMINDER FROM RUSSIA.

Constantinople, Oct. 14.—M. Zinovieff, Russian ambassador to Turkey, had an audience of the Sultan Friday The conversation dealt chefly with the deplorable situation in the Mush district and the persecutions and murders of Armenians. The Ambassador insisted that Turkey should punish the guilty parties.

ANOTHER FOOTBALL VICTIM.

Philadelphia, Oct. 14.—Edwin Longenecker, aged 21 years, quarterback on the football team of the Brown preparatory school, died last night as a result of injuries received in a game ast Tuesday. Longenecker, who was preparing to enter Cornell university, was heavily thrown and fractured his spinal column.

A Young University President.

The Rev. Burris A. Jenkins, who has just been elected dean of Kentucky university, is thirty-two years old and one of the youngest men in the country to be chosen head of a college. He was born in Kansas City, where he received his early education in the public schools, after which he entered Bethany college, in West Virginia, from which he was graduated with the highest honors. He was a reporter on the Kansas City Times before he was ordained to preach and went to California, where he filled several pulpits. Later he preached in the Hawaiian Islands. Returning to America, he entered Yale, taking the graduate course for two years.

Earl Roberts' New House.

The house in Portland place, London, which Earl Roberts has purchased for his town residence was for long a center of society and fashion. From 1820 to 1860 it was occupied by the dowager Duchess of Richmond and was famed for the brilliancy of its entertainments during the London season.

Good Afternoon.

The tide of travel across the corners about the Quincy station and Saville street is steady, in spite of a grade crossing and an unaccepted street. New houses are being put up near Goffe street, and the cut over Upland road from the west end of our city, brings the station and centre nearer. The faithful flagman at the station is very busy. He lowers the flag after the signal has been given, to let the people to go over, but not satisfied with this, great risks to life are taken.

Although we had on an extra force we were so busy in our printing department last week that we had to refuse several large jobs of programs and and flyers, and business is still rushing.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The Schley inquiry is a sorrowful thing for the man who loves to honor heroes. It has proven that even in the hero trade there are mistakes made all the while. It has proven that there is petty bickering and petty jealously prevalent among the men who are so big that it would seem that they were altogether above the little verbal and written skirmishing of ordinary life. It has shown that courage and devotion and single-hearted attention to duty during war time are now and then succeeded during the times of peace by all the mental illnesses that we notice in the common-place fellows we meet every day.—Brockton Enterprise.

Merrymount Golf.

The second round for the club championship was played off, Saturday, at the Merrymount golf links. The most exciting match was that of Fairbanks and Guilford, the former winning 1 up, after playing 19 holes.

F. E. Wingate beat N. T. Smith 5 up and 4 to play.

C. S. Erswell beat A. T. Leavitt, 2 up and 4 to play.

H. W. Porter beat A. A. Highlands, 6 up and 4 to play.

In the men's foursome handicap tournament the cups were won by R. B. Vinton and F. M. Flannagan, whose gross score was 93; net, 78.

A. G. Lockwood and G. A. Noyes were tied for second with 85 gross, 82 net. The other scores were:

	Gross.	Net.
Dr. Brush & S. F. Hurley	94	85
R. B. Vinton & F. M. Flannagan	93	78
A. G. Lockwood & G. A. Noyes	85	92
D. W. Noyes & N. T. Smith	99	86
C. P. Guilford & C. S. Erswell	98	87
A. A. Highlands & A. E. Burr	93	82

In the semifinals for the club championship, H. W. Porter will play C. S. Erswell and F. E. Wingate will play H. M. Fairbanks.

GREAT SACRIFICE.

Soldiers Who Give Life for Their Country.

Service of Lieut. Bumpus and Comrades.

Organizations and Prominent Persons Pay Honor.

Seldom has there been a more notable gathering in the historic First church, beneath whose portals rest the sacred ashes of two Presidents of these United States, than that of Saturday at the memorial service in honor of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus and his comrades who perished in the far away Philippine island of Samar. There were many there prominent in the service of the State, officers of the U. S. Army and Navy, and former comrades of the Massachusetts militia.

Conspicuous among the drapings about the altar was a large yellow Chinese flag with its red moon and blue dragon captured by Lieut. Bumpus in fight before Pekin in 1900. It was during this terrible fight that Lieut. Bumpus won not only his promotion, but the highest praise of his superior officers for his bravery. Suspended from the pulpit were wreaths of carnations, roses, and violets, gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams and Mr. and Mrs. William Power Wilson.

Among the many prominent personages present were: Capt. George F. Wilde, late commander of the U. S. S. Oregon; Capt. John Boardman, late of the 20th infantry; Col. Abner B. Packard of the 4th Mass. Inf., in the Civil war; Sergt. George P. Field of Battery A. 1st. Mass. Artillery; Lieut. John Downs, U. S. N., Mayor John O. Hall; Col. Charles H. Porter, Judge Albert E. Avery, Judge Louis A. Cook, Charles Francis Adams, Samuel B. Capen, Augustus B. Endicott, Peter F. Mahar, Charles T. Gallagher, Frederick Dodge, Charles Theodore Russell, William B Kellem, Judge Lothrop of the supreme court, Otis Kimball, Brig. Gen. Henry S. Dewey, Parker C. Chandler, ex-Judge Heard, J. H. Williams, Horace G. Allen, Albert P. Worthen, William H. Sayward, E. C. Boles, Horace E. Wier, Dr. Maurice F. Richardson.

There were also present delegations from the Union club, St. Botolph club, Papyrus club, the 32d Regt. Association, G. A. R. post 113 of Boston, Paul Revere Post 88, of Quincy, John A. Boyd Camp, L. S. W. V. and officers from Fort Warren and the 1st. Mass. heavy artillery

The ushers were Homer Morrison, Harry Russell, Robert Plukham, W. Field and Ramon Burke.

The exercises commenced at 3 o'clock with the singing of the hymn, "A mighty fortress is our God."

Rev. George A. Strong read the Episcopal burial service, and Miss Florence Emery sang a solo "Sands of time are sinking."

Brooks Adams was the first speaker and he said in part:

We meet today to commemorate the last great sacrifice which men can make for their country; that sacrifice which has been offered up for all of us by the soldiers of our republic who have perished in a distant land. As to me there is nothing so magnificent as the soldier's death, so there is nothing regarding which I feel so deeply the impotence of words. I pray you therefore, to bear with me in my shortcomings.

After a tribute to the American soldier, particularly in the Civil war, he said: "Among those who have since served and suffered there have been many with a courage as high and a patriotism as pure as was their fathers when they marched in 1861. If I recount to you the story of but one it is only because I regard him as a type, because he is our fellow-townsman, and I have followed his career with sympathy and pride from its outset here in Massachusetts to its ending in Samar.

"Edward Bumpus came of an old New England family. His great-grandfather, his grandfather and his father had all worn the national uniform.

Born in 1875, he was 23 at opening of the Spanish war. He answered to the call. Part of the summer he served with the 1st Mass. artillery stationed at Nahant. In July he passed his examination for the regular army. He was commissioned second lieutenant in the 21st infantry and then sent to the Philippines.

In August, 1899, he was promoted and assigned to the 9th infantry and made with them the campaign in China. In China the regiment suffered severely. It then went to the Philippines and was about to return home when the disaster occurred for which we mourn today."

Mr. Adams read from letters sent by Lieut. Bumpus to his father in which his part in battles of the Chinese war was modestly told. He then spoke for the attachment of Lieut. Bumpus for his father, his sister and his brother Chauncy, who passed away earlier in the year.

"Before such lives as these," said Mr. Adams, "I stand abashed. This man was honest, intelligent, obedient, unselfish, patriotic and brave. He proved these things by his acts and he sealed his devotion with his blood. I know not if parents ask more of their sons, or a country more of her children; but this I do know well, one attribute is still lacking to fill the military ideal.

"We shall see whether Edward Bumpus enjoyed this last and noblest gift. I ask you men who hear me what is the trait we prize the highest in one another? I apprehend this supreme quality to be constancy. To be that power certain men posses of making others know that when they stand on their right hand, they will abid unto the end that they will be true to death. More than this can no man do to give his life for his duty.

"When I read the news of the massacre in Samar, my heart failed me as I thought of speaking with my old friend, so I wrote imploring him hope, for, indeed, it seemed to me that his son might well have saved himself. Afterward we met. "I read your letter," said he, "but could not hope. I knew "Ed" would never leave his men. He was an American soldier."

"You know the rest. No officer survives. May God long grant to our republic such fathers and such sons."

"The Lost Chord," that touching hymn, was played as a cornet solo by Mr. J. W. Flockton.

Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, the pastor of the church said in part:

"The 9th U. S. regular infantry is regarded today as the ideal infantry regiment of the U. S. army. Its history and traditions in the past, its heroic services at Santiago, its triumphs in battle at Manila, its selection as the first U. S. regiment to go to China, where in a bloody battle at Tien Sien, it lost 25 per cent. of its men and 37 per cent. of its officers, the frightful march to Pekin, its heoric fight under the walls of that city, its return to Manila and the final fight and destruction of one of its companies—all justify this proud claim.

"The officers that have commanded and been of it, the soldiers who have belonged to its ranks, have created this esprite de corps. Nowhere in its history can be found any false note or tone. Every officer has been taught that he must live and die with his men, and when the news came of the disaster at Samar—that the officers of Co. C had escaped, every other officer of that regiment knew that it could not be so, and their faith was justified by the action of the men whom we lament today.

After an allusion to the death of a New York boy, Tommy Connell, Mr Butler said: "It is so pathetic to run over the list of names of the 40 or more soldiers of all nationalities and of all degrees who died in Co. C. Some, doubtless, were in the company with ambition to work upward and become officers. Others simply loving the life of a soldier and ready to accept stoically whatever came along.

"To them came the terrible rush and attack of everpowering numbers. To them death meant no high renown or reputation. Many of them must have left behind them people now still more dependent than before their death. Let us hope the kindly hand of charity will be stretched out to relieve the widows and the afflicted of these poor men"

After paying a high tribute to the memories of Lieut. Bumpus and Maj. Griswold, Rev. Mr. Butler read letters of sympathy sent to the family of Judge Bumpus by Gov. Crane, Secretary of Navy Long, Chief Justice Holmes, Senator Hoar, the widow of Capt. Springer, 21st U. S. Infantry, who was killed in Luzon and who commanded Lieut. Bumpus' first company in the regular army, Capt. George F. F. Wilde, U. S. N., Atty. Gen. Knowlton, Col. Frye of the 1st Mass. artillery, Dyr. F. A. Harris and the Papyrus club.

Sig Rotoli of the New England Conservatory of Music, beautifully rendered as a solo, "Rests of Rests."

Col. Edward Anderson who commanded the 14th cavalry in the Civil war said in part: The story of the dead soldier should make the eyes of the relatives shine with pride through their tears of grief. How many are there who come up and go out and leave nothing behind. Why must that life live on, instead of going out as a flash? It will leave a light that shall shine on in the future. What has been the outcome of that life that was closed so suddenly?

If at the close of the Revolutionary war, one of those old soldiers had been asked what had been accomplished, he would have said the British have been driven out and we are to have a country of our own. But he could not dream of what was to come. The greatest and mightiest country of the world.

What are we to say of the outcome of the past few years? Who can tell? This morning we could see no sun, but we knew those clouds belonged to the earth, and if we could climb so high we would find sunshine.

And so above all these dark things, there is only a cloud that belongs to the earth, for up above it is the sun. Let us take courage for these flags are not always to be draped in black.

As we contemplate the life of this young man, let us take new courage and determination, that we will teach our children there is glory and grandeur for what God means this country to become.

The hymn "It singeth, low in every heart," to the air of Auld Lang Syne, followed by Capt. John Beardman, late of the 26th Infantry, who said in part:

"One who has not been in the service can not realize the family ties that exist in military organization. This was the case of Co. C. I know they were a little world by themselves. As I came through Manila last July, Edward introduced me to Capt. Connell of his company, Maj. Griswold, who was formerly with my regiment, was a jolly happy fellow, the life of any company. Lieut. Bumpus first came to me in 1897. I saw him on his departure for the Philippines and we corresponded. He was a manly man. He was ever eager and anxious to do his whole duty. As I left Manila he came to the pier to see me off, and one of his last words were, "Go and see my family. Tell them I am well and hope to come home soon. I felt that he would seen be ordered home.

The massacre could have occurred with the sharpest vigilance. A camp was placed in a town and it was impossible to place pickets to watch every avenue. The custom is, for health sake, to have the mess table a little away from the guard hall where the rifles are kept. The Filipinos were massed in houses within one hundred yards of the mess hall and barracks, and it was an easy matter for a band of them to overpower the guards. It was the basest treachery that made the massacre possible.

Beyond the sorrow we can feel the satisfaction that was given to them to make the sacrifices they have for their country, that they have mingled their blood with others who have gone before.

The singing of "America" followed and the services closed by sounding of "taps" by Bugler Flockton.

Surprise Party.

A very pleasant surprise party was tendered to Miss Selina Beliveau last evening at her home on Centre street. She was presented with a silver bracelet from her friends and a handsome gold watch chain from her parents. The presentation speech being made by Miss Lavenia M. Dean.

Those present were as follows: Misses Polly McConnell, Ruth Burnham, Olive Smith, Gertrude Barnicoat, Ada Nutting, Gertrude Smith, Lottie Barnicoat, Esther Bergeron, Mary McDonnell, Lizzie McCarthy, Gertrude Crowley, Alice Feely, Margaret and Gertrude Dean, Lena Moynahan, Theresa Roche, Misses Shortle, Pratt, LeClare and Provost.

Messrs Stanley Barnicoat, George Williams, James and John Mavers, Walter and Joe Elcock, John LaBrique, George Provost, Willie Provost, Phil McDonnell, Thomas Skinner, Joe Mally and Joe LaDuc, Gus and Edmund Mitchell from Marlboro, also Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and Mr. Bergeron.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

A PORTERHOUSE STEAK

that's a "porterhouse" in reality, as well as in name—tender, juicy, fine flavored—can always be had at Hancock Meat Market, first because it will be cut from a prime grade of beef, second because great care is taken in handling the meat, third because it's cut just exactly as a porterhouse should be cut. We take special pride in our steaks, but equal care is taken with everything in the meat line.

Turkish Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

KEITH AND WILSON

Nominated by Democrats for Representatives.

An Ex-Mayor and an Ex-Councilman.

Friends of Messrs. Duggan and Walsh Make It Unanimous.

The Democratic Representative convention was held Saturday night at Wilson's hall. There was little or no friction, and had things been conducted with a snap, thirty minutes would have completed the business. It, however, lasted over an hour.

The convention was called at 8 o'clock but it was half an hour later when Chairman Wilson read the call.

A temporary organization was had with Walter B. Wilson as chairman and George D. Cahill as secretary.

A committee on credentials was appointed as follows: James E. Dunn, William Kane, Andrew Howley, John J. Dugan, William J. Colligan and Stephen H. Edwards. They reported the convention entitled to 21 delegates all of whom were present.

A question was raised as to whether the convention was entitled to a delegate at-large. It was finally decided that it was not.

The chair then announced that nominations were in order.

David Roche nominated ex-Mayor Harrison A. Keith, and James E. Maxim nominated ex-Councilman George H. Wilson.

Mr. Roche moved these two be nominated by acclamation, but the motion was lost.

The names of John A. Duggan and John W. Walsh were then added to the list of candidates.

The names of John A. Duggan and John W. Walsh were also placed in nomination.

The following were appointed to receive and count ballots: James E. Dunn, William Kane, James E. Maxim, John J. Dugan, William J. Colligan and Stephen H. Edwards.

It was voted to take an informal vote for two Representatives.

The result of this ballot was as follows:

George H. Wilson had	18
Harrison A. Keith had	11
John W. Walsh had	7
John A. Duggan had	4

Voted to make the vote formal, whereupon Mr. Wilson and Mr. Keith were declared the nominees.

Voted to make the nominations unanimous.

The chairman and secretary were empowered to fill any vacancy.

Adjourned 9.40.

ONLY THREE WEEKS

To the Republican Municipal Caucuses—Representation, Etc.

The Republican caucuses, in connection with the City election of Dec. 3, will be held on the night following the day of the State election, Wednesday, Nov. 6, and the municipal convention will be held Friday evening, Nov. 15, at 8 o'clock. The convention will be entitled to 51 delegates, which includes one at large from each ward, as follows:

Ward One,	12
Ward Two,	7
Ward Three,	9
Ward Four,	7
Ward Five,	10
Ward Six,	6

Ward Three Republicans are to have one of those ante-caucus love feasts on Wednesday night which have done so much in the past to solidify the ward. Every Republican is invited and requested to express his opinions and preferences freely. The Ward Committee say they do not want a cut and dried affair at the caucus on Nov. 6, but want every Republican to feel that he is a factor. Candidates for mayor and councilmen will be discussed. There is a strong sentiment in the ward in favor of ex-Councilman Frederick L. Jones for mayor, and the ward will probably support him solidly at the caucus and convention.

Four members of the School Committee will be elected this year, two at large and one each from Wards Two and Three. The terms of the following expire: Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting and James H. Churchill at large, Frederick H. Smith in Ward Two and Miss Mabel E. Adams in Ward Three. All four should be unanimously renominated by all parties and thus keep politics out of the School department.

The Scandinavian Republican club held a meeting one evening recently at Wilson hall to discuss candidates for Mayor. It was voted, providing Mayor Hall is not a candidate for renomination, to support ex-Councilman Elisha Packard.

WILL OF PEOPLE

Cannot be Wilfully and Carelessly Disregarded by Officials.

[Editorial from Canton Journal.]

Some few years ago, not so long that the snows of ages have yet whitened hairs of the middle-aged men of that day nor has a new generation yet grown up to fill the places of their fathers, it was deemed necessary that the court-house at Dedham should be enlarged and wrought more into a style befitting one of the most prosperous counties of this hustling state of Massachusetts.

Now for such a purpose funds were needed and legislative sanction was required and so the matter was brought before the Legislature and a bountiful sum was named as the amount which might be spent thereon. And the work was begun and a beautiful structure was the result, but when all was completed some were wicked enough to count the cost and it was found that the sum thereof was nearly twice the authorized amount and there was a legislative investigation and it was shown that certain sums supposed to have been raised for specified purposes had been transferred to the court-house account and that the building the voters of the county had been willing to pay liberally for, had been erected and at a greatly increased cost without the sanction of voters or Legislature. And there arose a great cry from one end of the Commonwealth to the other, and some suggestions were made as to the methods, but it was decided that the commissioners had legal power to do as they had done and that the voters must pay the bills and there was no redress. But the disapproval of such unauthorized excess of expenditure over the amount named was bitter, and at least one of that board was promptly at the next election set aside, not that he alone was in fault but that he could be more easily reached than the others.

There has never been any proof that that board of commissioners profited personally by their disregard of the authority under which the work was done, but they did spend a large sum of the people's money without the sanction of their constituents. They claimed and sustained the claim that they were absolute in authority in such a matter. They, or some of them, are said to have replied, in effect, to remonstrances that "the county was raising less money by taxation than any other counties and could afford it." It is needless to thresh the old straw over again; every voter of that time in the county remembers it, but when in the Republican convention this week, the objection was raised to Mr. Bowker that he was a member of that board and it was not known that he did otherwise than approve the action, the criticism was met with the sneering reply, "O, that's an old matter," and the convention put him in nomination.

Perhaps it is an old matter, but what do we judge men by but by their past? This magnificent court-house has already proved too small and new county building for the registry is to be erected this coming year, and do we want to set the seal of approval on the past by placing a representative of that board on this?

Is Norfolk so bare of men competent to occupy the seat of a county commissioner that she must seek out one, who, if not deliberately disregardful of the wishes of the people, has at the least committed so serious an error of judgment? Or is the confidence in the "go-it-blind" party adherence so strong that the Republican leaders confide in the usual majority so far as to disregard the sentiment so strongly expressed a few years ago and believe that what they say will go and the voters can be driven to the polls like sheep?

It is true that the blindness and idiocy of the Democratic managers have practically wiped that party out of consideration in Massachusetts politics, but the voters of this county have ever been apt to vote for men and not for party in county matters, and a good nomination, even though Democratic, should, and we believe will, receive a hearty endorsement at the polls.

The officials of the county are elected to carry out the will of the people and in public as well as private life the servant who wilfully or carelessly disregards the expressed wishes of his employer should be peremptorily set aside.

Miss Hecker Champion.

Miss Genevieve Hecker defeated Miss Lucy Herron at Short Hills, N.J., Sarurday, in the finals for the U. S. woman's golf championship.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frederick Brooks and William H. Robinet, were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Francis A. Loyd was fined $5 for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

William Henry was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until Thursday.

Edward Condon was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

Michael E. Lawry was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth and was fined $15.

STAGE IN VISBY RUINS

Historical Play Given In Summer by Swedish Peasants.

TO ATTRACT FOREIGN TOURISTS.

A Roofless Church Is the Theater. Scene of Production Similar In Some Respects to That Given at Oberammergau.

Actuated by a desire to extend the fame of their picturesque old city and convert its historical associations and ivy clad ruins into cash by bringing tourists, who seldom go there now, and at the same time to revive and preserve the memories of the past the good people of Visby, writes William E. Curtis from Sweden to the Chicago Record-Herald, are trying to emulate those of Oberammergau and are presenting a historical play each Sunday during the summer season. The cast is composed entirely of home talent, the costumes, scenery and properties are all of local design and manufacture, and every one who participates is an amateur, young men and women of good families, who contribute their services for no compensation but glory and the admiration of their friends. Ossian Hamrin, superintendent of schools, is the genius who suggested and organized the affair and acts as stage manager.

The play selected to inaugurate the enterprise is entitled "Santa Maria" and was written by Zacharias Topelius, a Finnish poet of local fame, who died last year. It is based upon the first Swedish crusade, when Raimund Gothe went from Visby to Finland with an army of crusaders to convert the Finns from paganism to Christianity. Raimund was accompanied by his beautiful daughter Sigrun, a missionary named Angelethus and a large company of monks.

This play is given within the roofless walls of the old church of St. Nicholas. The bricks are ripe with antiquity, and the wounds which time has made are concealed by masses of English ivy which hang in festoons from the arches. The pillars, the windows and the arches that sustain the roof are almost perfect. There is no more beautiful ruin in all Europe. The stage is placed where the altar formerly stood and is encircled by the foliage of the trees that grow within the sacred walls. Long tiers of pine benches rise one after the other throughout the entire edifice and make a striking contrast to the mullioned windows, whose delicate carving has endured for seven centuries.

The audience came from all over the island, from Stockholm and from other ports of Sweden, from Helsingfors, the capital of Finland, and other cities of that country. A row of excursion steamers was tied up at the dock, and special trains from the uttermost parts of the little island of Gotland arrived and departed, so as to accommodate the people who wished to attend the play. It was a solemn and thoughtful gathering. The audience seemed to be impressed with the romantic surroundings and to appreciate in the profoundest manner the importance of the occasion. We had been in and out of churches all the morning, but nowhere did we feel the air of solemnity so much. People spoke to each other in whispers. The prattle of children was hushed, and the policeman who stood at the door shrank back into the shrubbery, feeling that he was out of place.

The lines were recited in a very amateurish manner, like schoolboys in a dialogue on Friday afternoon, and the scenery and the costumes were of the most primitive character. The robes were of ordinary shirting, ornamented with the commonest kind of colored cloth. The helmets and the arrows were made of tin by the local tinsmith, and all the other properties had a homemade appearance. In such costumes the priest and the warrior, the monks and the beautiful maiden stood up and declaimed their lines at the audience without elocutionary effect and with the most awkward gestures. On an ordinary stage it would have been grotesque and excited ridicule, but in those surroundings it was most impressive. The spectator forgot the present. His mind was transported into the past, far back into the centuries, and he seemed to see real people doing real things upon the stage.

Although rude, the play is well worth seeing. We went expecting to stay only a few moments, but remained to the end.

St. Nicholas, in which it is given, is the best preserved and the most imposing of all the ruined churches, being 195 by 65 feet in size. Two hundred years ago it was the chapel of a Dominican monastery.

Colorado Woman Slays Bears.

Mrs. Katherine Sullivan, who owns a ranch ten miles south of Colorado Springs, Colo., has broken all Colorado records as a woman bear killer. When she drove home one day recently, she found three bears in possession of her premises. They retired as she appeared, but reappeared later, and the mother bear, weighing 600 pounds, was caught in an improvised trap. Mrs. Sullivan dispatched it and also a 100 pound cub.

Sued For $3,000 Worth of Kisses.

A circuit court judge at Sheboygan, Wis., awarded Mrs. Bouska $500 in a curious suit. Peter Hugent was the defendant. He promised Mrs. Bouska $1 for every kiss she gave him. Failing to collect, she instituted suit. She asked the court for $3,000 damages, asserting that she had given that many kisses in accordance with the contract.

FRANCE'S WHEAT SHORTAGE

An American Consul Writes of Its Effect on Our Market.

Thornwell Hayes, United States consul at Rouen, France, sends the following to the state department at Washington:

France is disturbed at present over a deficient wheat harvest, a deficiency all the worse as the grain is very inferior in quality. Wheat has risen 2.50 francs (48 cents) per 100 kilograms (220.46 pounds), and the price of a quartern loaf of bread has already advanced from 65 centimes (12.5 cents) to 70 centimes (13.5 cents).

The annual consumption of France, including seed wheat, is 122,000,000 hectoliters (346,236,000 bushels). Substracting from this the 10,000,000 hectoliters (28,380,000 bushels) now in reserve, leaves 112,000,000 hectoliters (317,856,000 bushels) necessary between now and this time next year.

Within the last decennial period three years have been especially deficient—1893 yielded only 97,000,000 hectoliters (275,286,000 bushels), 1897 87,000,000 hectoliters (246,906,000 bushels) and 1900 109,000,000 hectoliters (309,342,000 bushels). This constantly recurring deficit is as logical as chronological. The varying mood of nature is not the only cause. The increased development of manufacturing, the flocking of the peasants to the town and city industries, the partial belief that the country can buy wheat cheaper than it can raise it, the greater profits gained from growing beets for sugar and alcohol, the replacing where possible of wheatfields by vineyards—these are the processes that will some day perhaps allow the profitable introduction of American wheat if not flour all over France.

So strongly organized is the French milling industry that the importation of flour presents a serious difficulty. L'Association Nationale de la Meunerie Francaise was founded in 1886, with headquarters at Paris, and at present it numbers between 3,000 and 4,000 members. So great is the capital invested in mills and so strenuous are the efforts of this alliance against foreign competition that since the 27th of February, 1894, the tariff on flour has been about double that on wheat, which condition enables the French to import wheat, grind it and sell it cheaper than imported flour. While Paris and a few of the larger cities consume American flour, this giant internal organization, the excessive duty and Russian, Hungarian and other competition prevent the possibility of any general introduction thereof.

The prospect for American wheat grows continually better. Against its importation there is no prejudice on the part of the mill owners. The residue of the wheat is in demand for domestic animals, and the grinding of it gives employment not only to the mills, but to the many poor people who would go without work if flour were imported instead.

GETS AMERICAN BRIDE.

Announcement That an English Baronet Is to Marry a Louisville Belle.

Louisville is again to figure in an international marriage, the third time within a period of little more than a year. The marriage of Miss Patti Burnley Ellison to Sir Charles Henry Augustus Frederick Lockhart Ross will add the name of a third Louisville girl to the recent list of titled Americans in Europe, Miss Grace Carr having married Lord Newborough and Miss Lillian Langham having married Baron von Sternberg of Germany. The engagement of Miss Ellison and Sir Charles Ross is now announced.

Miss Ellison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ellison and has a most distinguished Revolutionary ancestry. She is the great-granddaughter of General Charles Scott, the third governor of Kentucky, who was general on Washington's staff. In addition to being a girl of most charming address, Miss Ellison is an accomplished musician. She has enjoyed every advantage that education and travel can give, and it was while in London last winter that she met Sir Charles.

Sir Charles Ross is a baronet of Nova Scotia and is the ninth to hold that title, which was created in 1672, and to which he succeeded in 1883. He was a lieutenant of the Third battalion, Seaforth highlanders, until 1894, and after recently volunteering for South Africa he received a commission as major. He fitted out his own battery and only returned from South Africa a year ago.

Edison's Shorthand Greeting.

Thomas A. Edison, as is known, is very deaf, says the New York Times. Perhaps owing to this or possibly to a playful pleasantry he has invented a sort of shorthand speech, among which is his greeting to the older hands in his shop and laboratory. When he sees one of these men, "Boo!" says Mr. Edison. That expression has come to mean good morning or good afternoon or good night. The laboratory men have picked up the peculiar greeting so that when the "boss" appears in the morning he is greeted in his own shorthand speech. It is therefore "Boo, Mr. Edison," to the wonder and bewilderment of the uninitiated visitor.

Had No Use For Cars.

Because he never rode in a street car or railroad train in his sixty-eight years David Boland walked all the way from Chicago to Wilkesbarre, Pa., to visit the friends he had not seen for thirty years. It took him twenty-five days to make the journey, and he says he can walk back in eighteen. "I never had no use for railroad trains or street cars," he said. "They kill too many people."

IMPETUS TOWARD STATEHOOD

May Be Given Arizona Through Recent Discoveries of Gold.

Washington, Oct. 14.—When the census of 1900 was taken there were 812,235 American citizens dwelling in territories, exclusive of the Indian territory and of the possessions we acquired as the result of the war with Spain. Of these, 398,245 were dwellers in Oklahoma, 193,777 in New Mexico, 154,001 in Hawaii and 122,212 in Arizona.

Oklahoma had more inhabitants than Vermont, Delaware, North Dacota, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada or Idaho all sovereign states. Her population was more than twice that of Delaware, more than four times that of Wyoming, more than nine times that of Nevada Nor was the population of Okahoma a collection of hamlets spread over a vast territory. Oklahoma's area is less than that of Wyoming or of Utah. Oklahoma had ten inhabitants to the square mile, and Utah had but three. Oklahoma was, therefore, in all senses of the term well settled.

Okahoma has a good case for her claim for statehood, a much better one that that of Arizona. Nevertheless, as "a marvelous gold discovery" is reported from Arizona the latter may take on a boom that will put an obstacle in Oklahoma's path. According to the reports of the preliminary surveys, the new gold fields in the Galluro mountains 70 miles north of Tucson, are rich beyond the dreams of the most avaricious prospector. If these reports are only in part substantiated there should be an inrush of miners which should give Arizona a decided impetus towards statehood.

Still considering what the experience of the union has been with Montana, it may be doubted if a "mining camp state" will be eagerly welcomed in these days. Oklahoma has diversified industries and a population which "goes in for" common schools and savings banks.

Forbids His Own Wedding.

Edward A. Schiller, manager of the Schiller Stock company at the Lyceum Opera House, says a Wilkesbarre (Pa.) dispatch, has announced his engagement to Miss Ella Fountainebleau, his leading lady. Miss Fountainebleau, who had gained quite a reputation in Spain, made application, but when it came to signing a two years' contract she objected because it contained a paragraph forbidding her to marry within the period covered by the contract, but finally signed. She was then engaged to marry Adolphus Garcia of the diplomatic corps at Madrid. In July, 1900, Garcia came to this country, but Schiller headed off his marriage to the actress by injunction. When Miss Fountainebleau decided to remain with the company, Garcia went home. Under Miss Fountainebleau's contract Schiller himself cannot marry her until the agreement expires.

A Joke on Senator Beveridge.

The Rev. W. M. Massie of Kauai, Hawaii, who has just returned from Manila, says a Honolulu correspondent, tells of an amusing incident at the expense of Senator Beveridge. The senator was addressing 700 schoolteachers who had just reached Manila on the transport Thomas. His theme was the duty of teachers to inculcate neatness and proper ideas of dress among the people. He dwelt on the importance of men shaving every day and of women doing up their hair and of general neatness of apparel. The senator himself looked very natty in a white duck suit of military cut buttoned up to his chin. But as he indulged in vigorous gestures a button of his coat flew off, and a cuff fell among his audience, revealing that he wore no shirt except a thin undershirt and no collar at all.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

It is claimed that the perfume of flowers disappears as soon as the starch in the petals is exhausted, and it may, it is said, be restored by placing the flower in a solution of sugar, when the formation of starch and the emission of fragrance will be at once resumed.

UTILITY OF BALLOON

In Time of War Being Put to Practical Test by France.

TRIP ACROSS MEDITERRANEAN

Has Thus Far Been Attended With Success.

Paris, Oct. 14.—Considerable interest is manifested in the attempt of the Comte de la Vaulx, the aeronaut, who left Les Sabzlettes, near Toulon, Saturday, on a balloon voyage across the Mediterranean with a view of testing the possibility of using balloons between France, Corsica and Algeria in time of war.

The success of the experiment has been frequently endangered of late by hitches in the arrangements. Comte de la Vaulx has received the semi-official support in the shape of subscriptions from the ministers of marine and war. The former had promised a cruiser as a convoy and also lent the inflating apparatus. A fortnight ago, however, M. De Lanessan decided that the season was not propitious for the experiment and withdrew the cruiser and the apparatus.

Comte de la Vaux, with difficulty, replaced the apparatus. Then a portion of the balloon shed collapsed in a gale and tore the balloon. This damage was repaired, but a few days ago another accident delayed his departure.

Finally the aeronaut's luck changed. Weather and wind improved and, at the last moment, M. De Lanessan revoked his decision and ordered the French cruiser La Chayla to convoy the balloon, which is also convoyed by a private yacht.

The aeronaut is accompanied by two other aeronauts and a naval lieutenant. He expects to reach Algeria Wednesday night or Thursday morning. He took with him 75 carrier pigeons, to be released in three batches daily. The balloon, which is decorated with the tricolor, carries accumulators for electric signa lamps and an electric pump to draw up sea water for ballast, whenever necessary by tubes immersed in the sea.

Compe de la Vaulx, by a system of floats, intends to keep about 40 feet above the water.

A steamer which has arrived at Marseilles reports having sighted the balloon o Compe de a Vaulx yesterday about 12:30 p. m. The balloon was about 50 miles from Marseilles and shaping its course for Algeria. The car was about 60 feet above the sea. Comte de la Vaulx signaled that all was well.

LORIMER HAS NOT DECIDED.

Boston, Oct. 14.—Rev. Dr. Lorimer, pastor of the Tremont Temple Baptist church, announced yesterday that he would give his decision in regard to accepting a call from the Madison Avenue Baptist church next Thursday. The sum of $8000 was yesterday added to the $30,000 already raised toward the fund of $100,000 with which to reduce the debt of the church, the securing of which latter amount, it is claimed, will have great influence in determining Dr. Lorimer's decision.

MOURNING PERIOD ENDED.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The 30 days' period of mourning prescribed by President Roosevelt in respect to the memory of the late President McKiney expired yesterday and the flags on all the government buildings which have been half-masted since Sept. 14, are displayed again at full mast, beginning this morning.

Sir Donald Wallace's Tact.

Speaking of the tact shown by the Duke of Cornwall in his present journey, The Candid Friend says: "Perhaps he owes much of his success to the fact that he has always had at his elbow as counselor and friend that remarkably shrewd Scotchman whose career has been one of the most remarkable of modern times. I allude to Sir Donald Mackenzie Wallace, who bids fair to become a sort of twentieth century Stockmar. Sir Donald Wallace first came into prominence in the late seventies, when his book on Russia took the town by storm. It was of course prohibited in the country it described, but the whirligig of time brings its revenges, and today it is translated into Russian and actually used as a textbook in the higher grade schools. Sir Donald began his career long before this book was published and was favorably known as a philologist and folklorist years before it ever occurred to him to go to Russia."

A Friend's Bequests.

Under the will of Thomas Elkinton, late of Philadelphia, a well known member of the Society of Friends, more than $100,000 is bequeathed to charity, some of the bequests not becoming operative until after the death of his widow. Five hospitals in Philadelphia receive $5,000, the remainder of the public bequest being divided between Quaker schools and charitable organizations.

New Italian Submarine Boat.

A new Italian submarine vessel, the Delfino, has proved very satisfactory. It is provided with an instrument which permits a submarine vessel navigating below the surface to have a view of the whole horizon while it is under water. It is called a cleptoscope and was invented by two Italian engineers.

NISSEN'S GREAT FEAT.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 14.—Peter Nissen successfully navigated the whirlpool rapids Saturday afternoon in a 21-foot cigar shaped boat. Nissen has been taking soundings of the river below the falls and has secured much vauable data. The trip through the whirpool rapids was witnessed by 15,000 people. The boat passed through the rapids in four minutes. Nissen attempted to take soundings in the rapids, but the force of the water broke his cable.

PETER NISSEN.

A VISIT TO NIAGARA.

Niagara, Ont., Oct. 14.—The Duke and Duchess of York passed a quiet Sunday. They attended a special church service held at their hotel, and later proceeded to Queenstown. At this point the royal party boarded a special electric car and they were taken up past the whirlpool rapids to Niagara Falls. They seemed keenly interested in the splendid scenery aong the line of route.

HIS SKULL SHATTERED.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 14.—By the accidental discharge of a shotgun at Frankfort, Frank Leonard, aged 16, was shot and instantly killed. The gun was carried by Thomas Caloon and the boys had just started out on a hunting expedition. One side of Leonard's skull was entirely shattered, and a coroner's inquest was not deemed necessary.

THREAT AGAINST SULTAN.

Constantinople, Oct. 14.—The Ottoman students in Paris, who are generally secret agents of the Turkish government, have demanded the immediate payment of their allowances. Otherwise, they threaten to launch an agitation which will endanger the throne.

AN IMPORTANT EVENT.

Pekin, Oct. 14.—The Chinese plenipotentiaries yesterday performed their last official act and forwarded to the Spanish minister, who is dean of the diplomatic corps, a bond for the indemnity of 450,000,000 taels.

HER PLATES BROKEN.

London, Oct. 14.—The Vulture, another torpedo boat destroyer, has buckled in heavy seas, while on her way from Portsmouth to Portland. It was found that several of her plates were broken in.

INGALLS SAFELY ARRIVES.

Washington, Oct. 14.—General Chaffee has notified the war department that the transport Ingalls has arrived at Manila, 50 days from New York.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Amanac, Tuesday, Oct. 15.
Sun rises—5:56; sets—5:03.
Moon sets—6:46 p. m.
High water—12:45 a. m.; 1 p. m.

A storm which developed in the ower Mississippi valley Saturday has passed beyond the field of observation northeast of the lake region. A second disturbance appears north of the Dakotas. The weather will clear rapidly in New England, with lower temperature. Along the coast the winds will be fresh westerly.

NOT HEREDITARY

In the main, consumption is not hereditary; it is infectious. People are too afraid of heredity; better not think of the subject at all. Infection occurs continually.

Low vital force is hereditary; which gives consumption its chance. And infection plants it.

Between the two, the crop is a big one: about one-sixth of the human race, so far as is known.

We suppose it needn't be 5 per cent, if people would take fair care and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

The care saves life in all ways; the emulsion is specially aimed at the lungs, beside its general food-effect.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

CHILDREN'S EYES.

Proper Way to Care For Them, Especially if They Are Weak.

An eminent specialist, in discussing the seemingly increasing number of cases of bad eyesight, says among the wealthier classes it is more prevalent with children than among the poor. This seems strange, as, having sufficient money at command, the wealthy parents are more able to attend to such afflictions, but, nevertheless, there is too much eye weakness, and the number of children wearing glasses is increasing every day. A well known oculist said the other day that in the majority of cases more care of the eyes in infancy would prevent the later development of weakness.

"It is not a difficult matter," this oculist said, "to ruin eyes that are normally healthy by mere inattention. When the infant receives its first bath, the eyes should be washed with a soft linen handkerchief dipped in a weak solution of boracic acid, and this should be repeated two or three times a week for at least three months. If the slightest redness appears or matter in the corners, the physician should be informed immediately, and it may be ophthalmia neonatorum, which is dangerous both to the child and others, as it is highly infectious. The nurse should burn all pieces of linen used to apply lotions or to wash the eyes in such a case.

"The eyes often are injured in infancy by being exposed to too much light. The child should not be held or allowed to sleep with the light from window, lamp or gas shining upon its face. The old fashioned cradle, with its hood, was far more sensible than the modern cribs and bassinets that afford no protection from either glare or draft. On the same principle is the English baby carriage, which has been introduced into this country within a year or two. It has a hood like a buggy, with shades at sides and back, any or all of which may be rolled up or lowered as sun and wind make necessary, while the top protects from an overhead glare. With such an arrangement the eyes may always be protected. It makes one's blood boil to see the way in which babies' eyes are exposed to the fierce glare of a summer sun by careless nursemaids, who take no pains to adjust the parasol top that has been in general use to afford even such protection as it might give.

"It is much better for children to sleep in the dark, and, if accustomed to it from the beginning, there is no trouble about it. Dark is as natural as light, and unless children are taught to fear it they will welcome it at bedtime as eagerly as their elders do. A baby's nerves become strained by the excitement of its waking hours, and it needs the restful darkness for eyes and nervous system alike.

"When a child is four or five years old, its eyes should be tested to see if they are alike in visual power.

"An easy method is to hold a small object with which he is unfamiliar before him and, covering each eye in turn, ask him to describe it. In this way it may be ascertained whether one eye has stronger vision than the other. If it has, an oculist should be consulted immediately to prescribe suitable glasses. If attended to in season, the eye is likely to strengthen, so that in a few years the glasses become unnecessary."

Women's Work.

The march of progress which has brought so wide an extension of opportunities for women shows no signs of ceasing or even diminishing. Every year a new department of labor, a new college, a new field of investigation, is opened up to this once scorned, petted or ridiculed sex. Not only industries but the professions, high and low, now offer avenues and outlets for the energies of girls and women who are ambitious, clever and willing to work. Stenographers, clerks, factory hands, teachers, are now so predominantly feminine that mention is almost never made of these in praise or censure. But every month discloses some unique profession adopted by some path breaker among women or some new and especial honor bestowed upon a deserving girl.—Denver Republican.

How a Woman Interviewed President Tyler.

It is related that during President Tyler's administration Ann Royall, editor of Paul Pry, a sensational sheet, forced the then chief magistrate into an interview by employing quite unusual means. President Tyler occasionally enjoyed a swim in the Potomac, whose banks were then far from civilization. Ann Royall, strolling by the river, spied the presidential apparel and seated herself thereupon. She would not budge until the irate executive, up to his neck in water, had granted the interview.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Marriage In the New Books.

A man should marry a woman half his age, plus seven.—"Her Royal Highness, Woman."

Marriage is not a matter of a license and a ceremony and Mendelssohn and gaping crowds and a tour.—"The Master Knot of Human Fate."

A woman who studies her husband is unconsciously making him a curse to other people. He is bound to develop into a monster of selfishness.—"Another Woman's Territory."

Inconsistency of Beauty Doctors.

The beauty doctors are always advising women not to worry, as it makes wrinkles and various things that are very bad for them and their appearance, and then these same doctors will plan out a regular course of treatment for the complexion, and to follow their directions would involve so much thought and anxiety on a woman's part that she would certainly lose all the good looks that she ever had.—New York News.

Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

PRESIDENT'S BUSY DAY

Receives a Number of Callers at the White House

NEW SHIP SUBSIDY BILL

Discussed With Senator Frye of Maine—Appointment of Judge Jones Endorsed—Talked on Immigration, Labor and Other Matters

Washington, Oct. 15.—Senator Frye of Maine, chairman of the committee of commerce, to which falls in the senate the oversight of shipping subsidy legislation, called on the president yesterday to go over the whole subject.

Mr. Frye said, on entering the White House: "It is true that I have worked out a new subsidy bill, or rather am now engaged in perfecting one. Its terms I shall steadily refuse to make public until it can be presented to congress for action. I am unwilling that in the meantime its detailed feature should be become the shuttlecock of journalistic comment. When presented the bill will be found to meet the reasonable wishes of the friends of our merchant marine, and to do that as comprehensively as possible has been the object of my long study. Notice that I say friends—I do not care what the enemies say. Personally I think the old bill was the best subsidy bill that could be drawn, but some of our associates, friendly to the principle involved, did not think so and so I shall do everything in reason to meet their wishes. Events are showing the great need of subsidy legislation. Our trade with the Philippines and the east reveals how handicapped we are by dependence on foreign companies. I believe that the subsidy project is much stronger before the people than a year ago, and that a satisfactory bill will become law at the next session of congress."

The whole subject was discussed with the president by the senator, who remained at the White House to luncheon.

The president had quite a number of other callers yesterday. Bishop Grant of Indianapolis, of the A. M. E. church, called to express to the president his hearty endorsement of the appointment of ex-Governor Jones of Alabama to a federal judgeship in that state. He told the president that ex-Governor Jones, in his message to the state legislature, said more in opposition to lawlessness and lynching than any president had said, and that in his (Bishop Grant's) opinion such appointments as that of Governor Jones would do much to better conditions between the races in the south.

The president told the bishop that he had read ex-Governor Jones' message and that it was one of the things which had induced him to make the appointment. Bishop Grant asked that the president consult well known, level-headed colored men before deciding matters affecting the colored race.

The president is devoting considerable time to investigating immigration conditions and yesterday consulted Assistant Secretary Taylor and Commissioner of Labor Wright upon the subject.

Representative Overstreet of Indiana, who is very much interested in the enactment of a law which will make silver exchangeable with gold, talked with President Roosevelt upon that subject.

Representative Hay of Virginia, who is a member of the military affairs committee of the house, spoke of his interest in the enactment of a law that would increase the efficiency of the militia of the states, and met with a hearty response from the president.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor introduced to the president Santiago Iglesias, who is going to Porto Rico as the representative of the American Federation of Labor to organize the working people of the island into trades unions. Mr. Gompers desired that Governor Hunt and other Porto Rican officials be informed of the legitimate character of Mr. Iglesias' mission in order that he might not be interfered with. The president told Mr. Gompers that he believed in the national organization of laboring men and that every right of Mr. Iglesias would be protected.

Chief Justice Fuller and associate justices of the supreme court visited the White House in a body to pay their respects to the president.

Among the others who saw the president were General Ell Torrence, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., Rev. Schick, the president's pastor; Commissioner Evans and Representative Holoday of Indiana.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained Senator and Mrs. Lodge at dinner at the White House last night.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cent per box. At all druggists.

SEDITIOUS PUBLICATION

Results In a Year's Imprisonment For Anarchist Most

New York, Oct. 15.—Johann Most, the anarchist, was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary yesterday by Justice Hinsdale, presiding in the court of special sessions, for publishing in his paper, The Freiheit, alleged seditious article on the day following the shooting of the late President McKinley.

The article in question was entitled "Murder Against Murder." In his defence, Most claimed that the paper containing the article was printed and ready for distribution before the president was shot. Also that it was a quotation from an article published 50 years ago and republished by him 15 years ago. After imposing the sentence Justice Hinsdale read the opinion of the court, in which he said:

"It is no answer to the evil and criminal nature of this article to claim that it was written for the purpose of destroying crowned heads. It inculcates and enforces the idea that murder is the proper remedy to be applied against rulers. The fact that it was published 50 years ago and again republished about 15 years ago only emphasizes and gives added point to the criminality of republishing it at any time. It shows a deliberate intent to inculcate and promulgate the doctrines of the article. This we hold to be a criminal act. It is not necessary to trace any connection in this article with the assassination of the late president. The offense here, in the eyes of the law, is precisely the same as if the bloody event had never occurred. The murder of the president only serves to illustrate and illuminate the enormity of the crime of the defendant in teaching his diabolical doctrine."

Washington, Oct. 15.—The anual report of the Smithsonian institution for 1900, just issued, gives much space to reviews of the progress in various branches of science during the 19th century, prepared by men distinguished in their various fields. The subjects thus reviewed are astronomy, chemistry, geology, physics, electricity, geography, biology, medicine, psychical research, which, with an article on the century's great men of science, furnish in brief a picture of scientific activity of the past century. There is a brief sketch of the Pekin observatory, the looting which created much comment recently. Minister Wu discusses our relations with China and there is an interesting article on Chinese folklore and some western analogies. Other topics presented in this report are aeronautics, malaria, incandescent mantles and yellow fever.

Royal Train Starts East

Bellevelle, Ont., Oct. 15.—The Duke and Duchess of York yesterday covered a considerable distance of their eastward journey. Leaving Niagara in the morning the regal train went westward as far as Hamiltof, where several hours were spent. The train then rounded the western end of Lake Ontario and started on its long journey to the Atlantic coast. The royal party received a series of hearty ovations.

Long Imprisonment Recommended

Havana, Oct. 15.—The indictments in the postoffice fraud cases have been sent by the fiscal to the audiencia. The fiscal has asked that Neely, Rathbone and Reeves, the indicted officials, be sentenced to imprisonment for terms ranging from 24 to 26 years. Each of the accused men is charged with from 15 to 18 offenses. The counsel for the defense have 20 days in which to file answers to the indictments.

Rumor Caused Run on Bank

Buffalo, Oct. 15.—A run on the Fidelity Trust company, a state banking institution, began yesterday. A long line of anxious depositors stood for hours waiting to withdraw their money. Extra paying tellers were installed and their windows were kept open until 4 o'clock in order to accommodate the depositors. Prominent bankers say the rumor which caused the run is groundless.

Abductors Held Without Bail

Philadelphia, Oct. 15.—Howard K. Sloan, D. K. Finlay, Oscar Dunlap and Henry E. Wallace, the four men accused of having abducted Mabel Goodrich, proprietress of a disreputable house, and robbing her of money and diamonds valued at $2500, were given a final hearing yesterday and committed without bail for trial.

Shopmen Had to Close

Seville, Oct. 15.—A general strike began here yesterday, although the tobacco workers and some others have thus far declined to join. There has been some rioting, compelling the cafes and shops to close.

Tightening the Lines

Cape Town, Oct. 15.—No passengers are allowed to sail from Cape ports without military permits. Four additional squadrons of colonial troops are enlisting for active service.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Oct. 16.
Sun rises—5:58; sets—5:02.
Moon sets—7:29 p. m.
High water—1:15 a. m.; 1:30 p. m.

A disturbance which formed off the Carolina coast Sunday night has moved to southern New England and given rains generally along the coast from the Carolinas to New England. The temperature has fallen 10 to 20 degrees east of the Appalachians. Rain is indicated for New England, followed by generally fair weather. Fresh to brisk northwesterly winds will continue on the coast, becoming variable.

KNOWS HE HAS TO DIE

Czolgosz Expresses No Fear of the Electric Chair

THOUSANDS OF LETTERS

Sent to Him by Sympathizers and Cranks, but He Does Not Get Them—Same Conditions Apply to Express Packages of Flowers and Fruit

Albany, Oct. 15.—Superintendent Collins will send a request to Secretary of State Hay to designate an official representative of the government to be present at the death by electricity of Leon F. Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley.

There will be but 26 witnesses in the chamber of death when the sentence of the law is executed. Warden Mead of Auburn prison has sent to Superintendent Collins the requests he has received for permission to attend the execution, over 1000 in all. The law will limit the number of witnesses and the superintendent will decide who the witnesses shall be.

It is stated at the state department of prisons that statements to the effect that Czolgosz is in a continuous state of collapse and that he breaks down and weeps every time anything is said to him concerning his execution is false. Superintendent Collins had a talk with the condemned man some days ago and at that time he said he knew he had to die. He expressed no fear of the electric chair, but said that he would not care to go outside of the prison, for he believed that the people would kill him.

Since his confinement in Auburn prison several thousand letters have been received for him at the prison, as well as a large number of express packages containing flowers and fruit. Not any of the letters, flowers or fruit have ever reached him. The flowers and fruit, it is learned, have been sent by Christian societies, as have a number of letters consoling him in his last moments. Other letters have come from cranks who have written him about the species of torture to which they would put him if they had the execution of justice in his case. It is stated, however, that it would be a matter of surprise if the names of the senders of fruit and flowers were made public.

The state prison department has pursued a uniform policy in regard to Czolgosz. An effort has been made to prevent the murderer from gaining any notoriety while awaiting death and to surround him by as perfect an isolation from the world as possible.

Has Had No Spiritual Advice

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 15.—"Absolutely nothing new with Czolgosz" was Warden Mead's reply to a query yesterday. He has not asked for any spiritual adviser whatsoever. The death warrant has not been read to him yet. He has not given the least intimation that he would like to make way with himself, contrary reports notwithstanding. Of course he will not be given the slightest opportunity for this purpose. He eats heartily and has not a complaint about his health.

Evans Going to Samoa

Washington, Oct. 15.—Rear Admiral Evans has left here for San Francisco, whence he will accompany Rear Admiral Casey on the flagship Wisconsin to Tutuila, Samoa. Admiral Casey is charged with the investigation of certain allegations made by missionaries in Samoa against the moral character of Captain Tilley, naval governor of Tutuila. In case it should be found necessary for trial of Captain Tilley, Rear Admiral Evans will be appointed president of the court.

American Capital In Russia

Moscow, Oct. 15.—American enterprise in Russia has culminated in a proposition to the city of St. Petersburg to take over the entire tramway system under a 25-year contract, to relay and extend in all directions electric instead of horse tramways and to build a substantial bridge over the Neva to replace the present wooden structure. The necessary capital, 10,000,000 roubles, will be raised in the United States.

Gun Not Badly Damaged

Washington, Oct. 15.—In regard to the report that one of the forward 13-inch guns of the battleship Alabama had been disabled in the recent gun test off the Virginia capes, Rear Admiral O'Neil says that at present the bureau does not contemplate making any repairs on the gun at all. A shell exploded within the bore of the gun and scarred it somewhat, but did no serious injury.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

SPEAD VS. TOMLINSON

Jury Failed to Reach Agreement In the Christian Science Case

Concord, N. H., Oct. 15.—The suit of Mrs. Spead against Irving C. Tomlinson, a reader of the Christian Science church here, growing out of his alleged failure to cure the plaintiff by Christian science methods, was not settled in supreme court, after having been on trial for a week, for at 1 o'clock this morning the jury reported a disagreement and was discharged.

It left the court room at 6:30 p. m., after an afternoon devoted to arguments of counsel and the charge of Judge Stone. The action placed the damages at $6000. The trial was a battle of lawyers over legal technicalities, because the introduction of evidence had been restricted directly to Mr. Tomlinson's treatment of Mrs. Spead, and everything else pertaining to Christian science was ruled out as irrelevant.

The plaintiff alleged that Tomlinson was negligent, lacked ordinary skill and common sense in treating Mrs. Spead. The defense claimed that he did not hold himself out to the plaintiff as a physician or surgeon, but simply as a healer by spiritual means alone, and that the plaintiff employed him with a full knowledge of these facts. He further claimed that there had been no default in the treatment by prayer.

AN UNUSUAL INCIDENT

Boston Aldermen Would Give $9500 to Fireman Who Refused to Retire

Boston, Oct. 15.—The board of aldermen yesterday voted to pay Andrew C. Scott the sum of $9500, being the amount of salary he would have drawn as a clerk in the fire department from June 7, 1895, to Oct. 7, 1901. Scott, as a member of the volunteer fire department of the city, was injured, and received a clerical position in the fire commissioner's office at $1500 a year. In 1892 the legislature passed a special act permitting Scott's retirement, as well as that of another clerk, Adamson, on half pay, at the discretion of the commissioners.

Adamson accepted the retirement and went out on half pay after undergoing physical examination. Scott remained as a clerk until 1895, when the commissioners retired him on one third pay under a general act. Scott has always refused to undergo physical examination, so his pension has not begun. He persists in the claim that he is still a clerk in the commissioner's office and the sum voted him by the board represents his pay. The council has got to concur in the order and the legality also of such a payment is to be passed upon.

Sensational Attempt at Suicide

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Estelle Smith, 42 years old, of New York, has been a sufferer from nervous prostration, and she has been living with her mother Mrs. Mary Emerson. Her mother was startled yesterday by the reflection from a mirror of her daughter attempting to cut her throat with a carving knife. Mrs. Emerson shouted for help and the knife was secured. Her daughter then seized a small pocket knife and drew the blade across her neck, inflicting a deep wound. The knife was taken from her, when suddenly she inserted her fingers in the wound and tried to tear it open. This was prevented only by the efforts of several men who had responded to the call for assistance. Mrs. Smith is in a precarious condition.

Killed by His Own Revolver

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 15.—With a bullet in his head from a revolver that lay by his side, Dr. Donald R. Hinckley of New Haven, aged 31, was found lying upon the floor of a room in his father's home here yesterday. He died half an hour later. Friends believe that the revolver was discharged accidentally.

Formation of Braid Trust

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 15.—A braid trust, the principal corporation members of which are located in this city, has been organized, with headquarters here and general offices in New York City. It is expected, under the new arrangement, to secure better prices for braid and prevent disastrous competition.

Boston Labor Man Jailed

Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 15.—George M. Gunther, an organizer of the Woodworkers' union from Boston, was arrested in Hornellsville and taken to Mayville. He is charged with being a public nuisance because of alleged attempts to bring on a strike of the woodworkers in Jamestown. He is also accused of uttering false rumors about a strike with the object of depreciating the value of bonds and stocks of Jamestown manufactories and ruining their business. Gunther pleaded not guilty and was admitted to $600 bail, which he was unable to furnish. He is now in the county jail.

Campaigning Under Difficulties

Dublin, Oct. 15.—John O'Donnell, M. P., attempted to address his constituents yesterday in Kilmaine. He was dragged off the platform five times by the police and finally was taken to the barracks. Nearly 200 police were present at the meeting. The crowd hurled stones, and several persons were injured.

Father and Son Asphyxiated

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Mathias Thorsson was afflicted with partial paralysis. He arose to prepare his breakfast yesterday, leaving his son sleeping in an adjoining room. He turned on the gas, but before he could light it he was stricken helpless by paralysis and he and his son were asphyxiated.

Good Afternoon.

The hearing to be given by the special committee of the City Council on Thursday evening relates to the street railway travel in general. The committee is anxious to learn what the public wish in the way of conveniences, and how they are at present accommodated. The hearing is public and all are invited. The efforts of the Old Colony Co. to accommodate of late have been appreciated, and we do not anticipate there will be much "kicking."

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Laws made by men in the heat of passion cannot stem the tide of anarchism. The remedy must be found in true Christian effort, in Christian education and in Christian morality. —The Republic, Boston.

☞ County conventions have occupied the attention of Massachusetts politicians considerably of late. There is more activity in connection with these assemblages than any of the other political gatherings in the state arouse. Rivalries between the leaders in the various cities and towns in each shire are intense, as a rule and while the mass of the voters know very little about county affairs and care still less, the politicians make it their annual business to be on hand and look out for the county loaves and fishes. These are sufficiently valuable to be worth striving for and at the same time sufficiently remote from the cognizance of all who are not politicians to be somewhat involved in obscurity so that they have become the natural prey of "rings" and "hustlers" to a greater extent than any other official departments of governmental machinery. Not in Suffolk county alone is the struggle to hold the spoils an aggressive one. Bristol and Norfolk counties in particular furnished examples of energetic campaigning that attracted attention beyond the limits of the counties themselves.—Practical Politics.

☞ A correspondent of the Springfield Republican makes the good point that mere criticism of existing institutions will not do but that constructive ideas are wanted. Nothing is more true. Mankind does not progress on criticism, but on ideas. Nevertheless, the critic in his way performs a useful work and a work which cannot be dispensed with. He clears the way for the man of constructive ideas and for the other man who follows with the ability to put those constructive ideas into effect. Social progress is some degree, the work of three varities of specialists. One, who comes first, shows the defects in the existing order. He is necessary to stimulate the second, who dreams out remedies, and in his turn comes the man who works out these remedies in practice. As a rule no man is capable of the three tasks, though each one of them is essential to progress. And while each specialist is rather apt to depreciate the work of the other two, there is no doubt by the candid student that neither would do good work alone. There are men whose function is criticism, dissection, tearing to pieces, pulling down, and having done this they have prepared the way for the man of imagination who plans better conditions. But planners are by no means the best doers and the work has finally to be accomplished by one who has neither genius for criticism nor ability for designing. Criticism, ideas, work; these are the factors of progress—equally useful and necessary but rarely united in one man.—New Bedford Standard.

BARBOUR--GRAHAM

Braintree Groom and Quincy Bride.

Reception a Brilliant Society Affair.

Dancing in the Barn One of the Features.

Galvin of Boston beautifully decorated the home of Mr. John R. Graham on Monday for the wedding of his daughter, Mary Augusta, and Mr. Perley E. Barbour, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barbour of Braintree. The decorations were white chrysanthemums and red roses with quantities of green and potted plants.

Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony which was solemnized by Rev. George A. Strong of Christ church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Annie H. Graham, and the groom by Mr. Elmer E. Ricker of Bigelow street.

The bride was beautiful in a gown of white mousseline de soie over peau de soie, and the bridesmaid was in charming contrast being gowned in a white Swiss muslin over pink taffeta.

Following the ceremony a large reception was held from eight to ten which was one of the merriest, dancing being enjoyed in the large barn, where also the wedding supper was served.

The ushers were Frederic Howe of Wollaston, Dr. Clayton Marstin, Harry Patten and George E. Sampson of Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. Barbour received many beautiful presents which were displayed in one of the upper rooms.

After the congratulations of their friends Mr. and Mrs. Barbour departed amid a shower of rice and good wishes for a trip to Buffalo. On their return they will reside at Braintree with Mr. Barbour's parents.

A BAD TUMBLE.

Many Injuries and Yet Young Man May Live.

Henry Djerf met with a serious accident this morning at the quarry of Oscar Djerf. He was at work about the quarry when he accidently fell and landed thirty feet below on the rocks. He was removed to the City Hospital. He sustained a concussion of the brain, concussion of the spine, an injury to his knee, and a wound on his scalp and chin, yet the physicians think that he will live.

Keep Away from Quincy.

Saturday night three young men hailing from Boston visited Quincy with the evident intention of painting the town a bright red color. As a foundation to their frolic they had taken copious draughts of red liquor. They sailed up Hancock street arm in arm taking up the whole sidewalks and making the night air ring with their discordant voices. About 8.30 they meandered along in front of the Savings Bank building, taking the whole sidewalk forcing other people into the street. It was here that Officer Murray came along and ran them all in. They gave their names as Frederick Brooks, William H. Robinett and Francis A. Lloyd, and Monday they lined up before Judge Avery and contributed $5 each to the court's treasury.

Favorite Perfumes of Rulers.

Some one has been compiling a list of the favorite scents used by reigning monarchs. The kaiser prefers "Garden of the Parish Priest," but occasionally uses ylangylang, coryopsis and iris. The Empress Augusta Victoria prefers hay scent and for her private rooms eau de cologne. The czar has a weakness for scents, but his especial favorite is unknown. The czarina prefers violet perfume for the handkerchief. Her rooms and corridors are sprinkled with jonquil and jasmine. The queen dowager of Italy, Margherita, prefers eau de cologne. The crown prince of Roumania is fond of rosewater. Sultan Abdul Hamid has a delicate taste, for he indulges in a mixture of lilacs and violets.

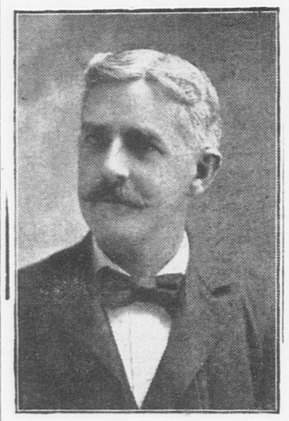

An Indianapolis dentist has given up the use of forceps for pulling teeth and has adopted the primitive method of the Chinese, using nothing but his thumb and index finger. He considers that the sight of the forceps themselves is responsible for much of the harrowing part of tooth-pulling and that many nervous persons are greatly shocked by the sight of these instruments. The pain is also said to be less. He can take out the most firmly rooted double tooth in a few seconds. He learned this art from a Chinese practitioner.—Scientific American.

LABOR CANDIDATE.

Gustave B. Bates Named for County Commissioner.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Gustave B. Bates of Quincy nominated by acclamation by the Social Democratic Convention for County Commissioner is a man of affairs, the proprietor of a large and successful business, a heavy tax payer, and, above all, a cordial sympathiser with the effort of workmen to improve their condition by organizations. By his personal and persistent efforts the 8-hour day was established in Quincy for journeymen plumbers and helpers.

As a business man coming from the ranks of the wage workers, he thoroughly believes that a reciprocity of interest between employer and employe in business is possible by cooperation thereby establishing a better feeling between employer and employe which can alone abolish industrial warfare.

POLITICAL FIELD.

Notes and Comments of Local Interest.

Now it is reported that Candidate Quincy will not make as many speeches as at first announced.

The Socialists expect to lose votes this year because of the assassination of President McKinley.

The Norfolk County Democratic convention will be held at Memorial hall, Dedham, this afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

It is said that City Clerk Cleaves will drop politics if he succeeds in electing his candidate for Mayor and also hoodwinks the voters so that they will accept Chapter 332 of the Acts of 1901, so that he secures an appointment for three years, But—

The Democratic State Committee are taking an interest in the contest for Norfolk county commissioner.

Registration for the State election will close tomorrow night at 10 o'clock. The Registrars will be in session tomorrow from 12 M. to 10 P. M.

Nineteen of the 40 senators have not been renominated, so that half of the Senate of 1902 will be new.

The Democratic County Convention will be held at Memorial hall, Dedham, this afternoon.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Joseph Coleman, for the larceny of chickens from George Gibbs at Squantum, was heard and he was held for the grand jury.

A device for producing dimples has been patented. It is a woman's idea. The device consists of a wire mask put on when going to bed. By an arrangement of screws, pencils of wood are made to press upon the cheeks and chin at the point where dimples are desired.

The largest kite ever made in England was one owned by Mr. George Pocock of Bristol, grandfather of W. G. Grace, for the purpose of drawing a carriage along the roads. It was 12 feet by 15 feet, and proved the feasibility of such a mode of conveyance.

Adams Academy Wins.

Adams Academy played its first home game on Saturday with Dorchester High school. The score was 6—0 in favor of the Academy.

In the first half Adams kicked off to Dorchester and soon secured the ball on downs. Elcock finally made a touch down and O'Brien kicked the goal.

Dorchester kicked off to Adams and Adams lost the ball on a fumble: Dorchester lost it on downs and secured it again in the same way. At the end of the first half, Dorchester had the ball in the centre of the field.

In the second half Dorchester fumbled the ball on Adams' 25 yard line with two minutes to play. Capt. Flaherty fell on it. Dorchester, seeing her last hope gone, disputed the referee's decision and withdrew from the reld. The score stood 6--0 in Adams Academy's favor.

On Saturday Adams will play the graduates in the park.

New Plant Soon.

We are informed on good authority that the paragraph in "Granite" for October and in Saturday's Ledger, relative to the scope of proposed improvements by the Granite Railway Co., are to say the least, decidedly exaggerated and misleading.

The company proposes soon to build a new cutting and polishing plant of a capacity about equal to the existing sheds, and to equip the new structure with a travelling crane of modern type, thereby dispensing with the slow, cumbersome and antique method of handling stone with oxen and jacks.

No contracts whatever have yet been let for either building, machinery or any other kind of material.

Castor Oil Bean.

Mr. Walter O. Parker 59 Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, has a castor oil bean plant in his garden that measures in height ten feet and six inches, leaf measure across from tip to tip 29 1-2 inches.

This bean was planted the first of May. June 17 it was only nine inches tall.

The bean has grown since Oct. 1st to Oct. 14th eight inches.

The plant has two stalks of beans at the top, which grow in the form somewhat like that of grapes.

Dr. Symonds' Fire.

The house, stable and shed situated on the Dr. Symonds farm on West street, Braintree, were totally destroyed by fire shortly after 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The premises were occupied by Theodore Hayden and the fire was caused by the overturning of a kettle of hot tar.

By hard work most of the contents of the house were saved. The fire made a fine illumination and was plainly seen from Quincy. The loss was about $5,000.

Mr. Jacob Warshaw, who has been teaching at the University of North Carolina, will return about the middle of the month, to Paris, where he spent part of the summer. He will spend a a year there, studying for one of the higher degrees conferred by the University of Paris.

Auctioneer Crane reports a very successful sale of thoroughbred horses and colts on Monday at the Bradley stock farm at Hingham. Over 300 horsemen were present from Boston, Worcester, Springfield, the South Shore and elsewhere. James McGann of Quincy secured one of the most promising colts, the bay gelding Titus.

A PORTERHOUSE STEAK

that's a "porterhouse" in reality, as well as in name—tender, juicy, fine flavored—can always be had at Hancock Meat Market, first because it will be cut from a prime grade of beef, second because great care is taken in handling the meat, third because it's cut just exactly as a porterhouse should be cut. We take special pride in our steaks, but equal care is taken with everything in the meat line.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

THE QUINCY GANG

Boston Quartette Had Worked in This City.

Stolen Property Identified Yesterday.

K. McLean and H. S. Dudley Two of the Gang.

Quincy people have more than ordinary interest in the arrest, made by the Boston Police, Sunday, of the men and woman on Boylston place, and the finding of a large quantity of articles stolen from various places and their subsequent confession to forty or more breaks. The articles found were placed on exhibition, Monday, at Police headquarters and among those who viewed them were Mrs. Howes of Goffe street, Mrs. Hall of Russell Park, and John A. Duggan. There are others in Quincy whose places have been broken into during the past summer and they will go to Boston today and identify their property.

Monday Mrs. Howes identified a lot of silverware stolen from her house, Mrs. Hall identified a dress suit case and has gone in again today to see if she can identify any more of her property. John A. Duggan, identified a fur boa and jewelry.

Two of the men arrested are well known to Inspector McKay, in fact one of them claims his home to be in Atlantic and the other resided in Quincy up to a short time ago.

When Inspector McKay saw the men on Monday he immediately recognized the young fellow who gave his name as Albert Reynolds of Cleveland O. as Kenneth McLean of Atlantic. Herbert S. Dudley formerly lived in Quincy with his father at the house called the Norfolk House. The young fellow who gave his name as Gordon, is also evidently well acquainted in Quincy; although he knew Inspector McKay that officer could not place him.

McLean's father is a respectable man and now lives in Alantic.

New Voters.

Thirty-three names were added to the voting lists by the Registrars of Voters on Saturday night, as follows:

WARD ONE, PRECINCT ONE.

Andrew E. Nord, Timothy J. Bowler, Anders G. Wallin.

WARD ONE, PRECINCT TWO.

Albert E. Grant, Ernest M. Norteman, Albert R. Shedd, Albert W. Parker, Madison M. Cannon.

WARD TWO, PRECINCT ONE.

Edward F. Alden, William S. Osgood, Thomas F. Merrill, Albert N. Merrill.

WARD TWO, PRECINCT TWO.

William O. Rumrill, Timothy J. Sullivan, Jeremiah A. Carey, Charles N. Baxter.

WARD THREE, PRECINCT ONE.

Charles Anderson, Cornelius J. Cronin.

WARD FOUR, PRECINCT ONE.

Lewis A. Pendis, Frank S. Leavitt.

WARD FOUR, PRECINCT TWO.

John A. Hanninen, Michael J. Daley, William J. Donnelly.

WARD FIVE.

William E. Hayden, James V. Tobin, William C. Lapham, George Gurney, John Delaney, Harry C. Stevens, Samuel Davis, Augustus A. MacDonald.

WARD SIX.

James Bowles, Joseph T. Goodwin.

Giants Nearly Twenty Feet Tall.

The giant Ferragus, who was slain by Orlando, the nephew of Charlemagne, was eighteen feet high. He always accompanied the army on foot, there being no horse tall and strong enough to carry him. Platerus in his published writings tells of a giant whom he examined at Lucerne whose body measured 10 feet 4 inches and 3 lines.

Politely Put.

Anxious Father (from top of stairs)—Say, Mary Jane!

Mary Jane—Yes, papa.

Anxious Father—Is it 11 o'clock yet?

Mary Jane—Yes, papa.

Anxious Father—Well, give the young man my compliments and ask him to kindly close the front door from the outside.—Chicago News.

The Mississippi.

Before the coming of the whites to America the Mississippi river was known by a different name every few miles of its course. Each tribe that dwelt along its banks gave it a name, and more than thirty of these local designations are preserved in the narratives of the early travelers.

In Scotland a twentieth of the area is forest land. The greater portion of the country is mountain heath and lake. The cultivated land is comparatively very limited in its area.

The excitement incident to traveling and change of food and water often brings on diarrhœa, and for this reason no one should leave home without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. For sale by all druggists.

CITY BREVITIES.

Several dancing parties are announced for this month.

These are the times when the courts are busy making citizens.

The hard rain shortly before midnight, washed the streets quite badly in some places.

Charles L. Carter of Webster street has accepted a position in the Navy Yard at Port Royal, South Carolina. He will be absent two years.

A foot ball team has been organized at Atlantic, and would like to arrange games with teams averaging 140 pounds. Address, John Moir, 419 Hancock street.

A number of the members of Franklin lodge of Odd Fellows of Boston with their ladies made a fraternal visit to John Morgan, on Monday evening, at his new home on Standish avenue. When Mr. Morgan arrived home from Boston he was surprised to see so many of his friends present. After the first surprise was over, Mr. Morgan was presented with an oak sideboard and Morris chair. Mrs. Morgan was presented with a handsome bouquet.

Crabs Are Fighters.

Crabs are fighting animals. In fact, they will fight anything, says a naturalist. I have seen a crab, in conflict with a lobster, catch the latter over the fore part of the head, where the shell is hardest, and crush it in by one effort, and it rather bears out my idea that the claws of these creatures are particularly weapons of war; that the moment one of them receives severe injury in a claw it drops it off by voluntary amputation, severing its connection with the body at the shoulder by an act of its own will. It seems to me probable that if the claw were necessary for feeding nature would rather seek to cure an injury to it than let the animal discard it altogether.

The species of crab which is most conspicuously a fighter is the hermit crab. Its first idea of independent life is to eat a harmless whelk and occupy its shell. Its next notion is to give battle to every crab of the same persuasion as itself that it comes across. Altogether hermit crabs are undoubtedly the most quarrelsome creatures in existence.

The Hand Kiss.

The kiss of the hand is undoubtedly ancient and therefore is not derived from that of the lips, but probably the converse is true. The hand kiss is loosely asserted to be developed from servile obeisances in which the earth, the foot and the garments were kissed, the hand and cheek succeeding in order of time and approach to equality of rank. But it is doubtful if that was the actual order, and it is certain that at the time when hand kissing began there were less numerous gradations of rank than at a later stage.

Kissing of the hands between men is mentioned in the Old Testament, also by Homer, Pliny and Lucian. The kiss was applied reverentially to sacred objects, such as statues of the gods, as is shown by ancient works of art, and also among numerous etymologies by that of the Latin word "adoro," and it was also metaphorically applied by the inferior or worshiper kissing his own hand and throwing the salute to the superior or statue.

Convincing.

The methods employed by ex-Governor Throckmorton of Texas to make clear the claims of his clients were perhaps unlike those of any other lawyer, but they often carried conviction with them.

At one time he was defending a man who was on trial for murder in Gainesville, Tex. He desired to make it plain to the jury that the man whom his client had killed, although in his shirt sleeves and without a pistol pocket, might have been well armed.

"Can you see any signs of arms about me?" demanded the general, taking off his coat and standing before the jurors.

They shook their heads.

"Watch me!" he said dramatically, and with that he proceeded to draw a pistol from under each arm, one from each boot leg and from the back of his neck a bowie knife of most sinister aspect.—Youth's Companion.

Hearing a Fly Walk.

As the fly glides rapidly over a smooth surface every step presses out a supply of gum strong enough to give him a sure footing and to sustain him in safety if he halts. So strong is the cement that that upon one of his six feet is quite sufficient to sustain the weight of his whole body. But if he stands still the gum may dry up and harden quickly and so securely fasten the traveler's foot as to make a sudden step snap the leg itself.

If you wish to hear a fly walk, you can do it without the aid of the nugaphone. Having made friends with the fly, spread a silk handkerchief over your ear and induce the insect to crawl across the handkerchief. As he approaches your ear you will distinctly hear a harsh, rasping sound, made by the contact of the insect's feet with the filaments of silk.

Two Good Arguments.

"I say that Adam and Eve never existed," declared the first theological disputant.

"Oh, but they did," answered the second theological disputant.

"How do you know they did? Were you there?"

"How do you know they didn't? Were you there?"—Baltimore American.

WILL GO TO COLLEGE.

An Indian Girl Who Is to Take a Course at Radcliffe.

Wah-ta-Waso (Bright Star), the Indian girl stenographer in the office of Montague Chamberlain of Boston, probably will enter Radcliffe college, the annex of Harvard, this fall. Her employer has been for many years recorder for the Harvard Scientific school. The girl is exceedingly bright, and he is anxious to give her a good education. Bright Star is the interpretation of the Indian name Wah-ta-Waso, but to all whom she meets in a business way she is Miss Lucy Nicola. She is a full blooded daughter of the Pannawabskik tribe of Maine and is the first young woman of the tribe to leave the community life for that of the world. Her father is dead, and only one unmarried sister, Neeburbase, remains to bind her to the tribe.

The Honeymoon.

A contemporary complains that by degrees, as marriage has come to be taken less seriously and love is spoken of as something old fashioned and essentially middle class, the honeymoon has been cut down, and it is a sign of the times and their spirit that there is a marked tendency on the part of brides to ignore the honeymoon altogether. Rumor has it that in due course its extinction is bound to be brought about, but we cannot help hoping that this is an invention of the enemy. In the fact that a young husband and wife go away from all their friends and pursuits for the first week or so after their marriage, there is, of course, no special virtue, but it is good for us to think that they are wholly engrossed with each other and need no ordinary society. That the modern bride cannot endure the sole companionship of her husband for even the first few days of married life and that Benedick must have golfing or playhouses or the society of friends lest he should be bored by the woman he has just taken as a life companion is truly a pitiful exposure of the spirit in which the holy estate is entered upon by the present generation. What in future is to tinge our lives with the rosy glow of romance? And how shall we get that sentiment without which life is dull and gray and nothing worth, if we proceed on these lines? Our grandparents may have been less clever in some ways, but, at least, they were more successful as lovers than their descendants.—Philadelphia Ledger.

For Charity.

A Frenchwoman has invented a new plan for securing contributions to charity. She is a great favorite in her own circle. Recently while staying at a country place near Paris she attended a charity fete. One of her men friends sought her hand for a dance and the lady said:

"With pleasure. Twenty-five francs, please."

"I beg your pardon," said the puzzled man. "I had the honor to ask you for a waltz."

"To be sure," said mademoiselle, "I thought it was a quadrille. A waltz will be 40 francs."

Then she explained that for that evening she was dancing for the poor, and her partners must contribute. The other belles took up the idea and the result was a handsome increase in the fund.—Chicago Chronicle.

She Makes a Living Marking Linen.

A Chicago girl whose marriage will take place this fall in the east, whence her family came, writes that, like all Boston brides of high degree, she is having her linen marked by Mrs. B. This quaint little old lady entirely supports herself by writing names in indelible ink on the underwear, sheets, tablecloths, etc., of Boston swelldom. She has become a fad. Her narrow quarters look like a white goods warehouse and smell like a chemist's from a preparation she puts on the linen to give it a smooth, paperlike surface. She is to be found any day with her old fingers cramped about the special pen she uses in marking small, neat initials or elaborate monograms which no one else can equal.

Servant and Mistress.

The Boston Herald tells of a new organization in Colorado called the Sheldon union. To it belong progressive girls who do housework for a living. At a recent club meeting the girls debated on the question, "Resolved, That the trials of the servant are greater than those of the mistress," with some witty things said and good points made on both sides. The mistress' side of the argument was sustained by two members who were once housemaids, but are now housekeepers, and who declare that their last state is worse than their first. Those on the other side of the question affirmed that training schools for the mistresses would accomplish a great good.

Rockefeller a Heavy Loser

Kansas City, Oct. 15.—The bankruptcy proceedings against Frank Seigel, late president of the Siegel-Saunders Livestock Commission company, were formally dismissed in the federal court yesterday on the ground that Siegel has no assets. Frank Rockefeller is said to have lost $500,00 in the failure. The criminal proceedings against Siegel have not been dropped.

Furnished $10,000 Bail

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 15.—William K. Lacey, former president of the First National bank of Niles, which was wrecked by the embezzlements of Cashier Johnson, who was indicted by federal grand jury last week for violation of the national banking law, was yesterday released under $10,000 bail.

Congressman Hull Sick

Des Moines, Oct. 15.—Congressman Hull, chairman of the committee on military affairs, is seriously ill at his home here. He returned from Washington Sunday evening.

In Hands of Turks

Vienna, Oct. 15.—Todaroff, the driver who accompanied Miss Stone when she was kidnapped, has arrived at Sofia. He says her captors are Turks. The Bulgarian police, who are not satisfied with his statements, are keeping him under surveillance.

SANTIAGO ENGAGEMENT

Described by the Commander of Schley's Flagship

PRAISES SUPERIOR OFFICER

As Enthusiastically Brave and Patriotic—Tells Story of the Retrograde Movement, Declaring That Collision With Texas Was Never Thought Of

Washington, Oct. 15.—In the Schley court of inquiry Judge Advocate Lemly concluded presentation of testimony for the government yesterday and the first of Admiral Schley's witnesses was introduced.

Captain Cook, who commanded Admiral (then commodore) Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, during the Santiago campaign, and who acted, though unofficially, in the capacity of chief of staff for the commodore, was on the witness stand the greater part of the day.

He was followed by Lieutenant-Commander Fullam, who was senior watch officer on the New Orleans during the Spanish war, and former Lieutenant Beals, who, as an officer on the Harvard, translated the cipher despatches between Commodore Schley and the navy department carried by the vessel. Among those despatches was that sent by Commodore Schley May 28, expressing his regret at not being able to obey the orders of the department and explaining the reason why he could not do so. There are some verbal discrepancies between the original draft of this despatch and the official print of it, and these Mr. Beale explained.

Lieutenant Beale was last of the government witnesses, although Captain Lemly explained that he would reserve the right to call others, if reason should demand that he do so.

The lieutenant had no sooner retired than the first witness for Admiral Schley was called. This proved to be the Cuban pilot, Eduardo Nunez, who told Schley on May 26, 1898, that he did not believe the Spanish fleet under Cervera was in the harbor at Santiago.

Captain Cook's testimony was a review of the entire campaign after Cervera's fleet, beginning with the departure of the flying squadron from Key West on May 19, and concluding with the battle off Santiago, July 3. He said that at first it had been believed by both Sampson and Schley that the Spanish fleet was in the harbor at Cienfuegos and that no information to the contrary had been conveyed to Schley until the arrival of McCalla on May 24; that it was Schley's expectation to meet the Spaniards in the open sea and his constant care was to have coal enough for such emergency. He gave particulars concerning the retrograde movement and explained the Brooklyn loop in connection with a graphic account of the engagement of July 3. Asked for an opinion as to Schley's bearing, as a commanding officer, he said: "I always regarded him as an enthusiastically brave and patriotic officer."

General interest was manifested throughout the court room when Mr. Hanna began inquires about the battle of July 3. He asked: "Were you on deck when the fleet came out of Santiago harbor on July 3? When were they first sighted?" The reply was in the negative. Captain Cook said he had at that time been in the cabin. The next question was: "How did you first learn the fleet was coming out?"

The reply to this brought Captain Cook's story of that engagement as follows: "I heard the executive officer call out: 'Clear ship for action,' and as I had been given instructions to have the ship ready for inspection I knew at once something was happening. I went on deck immediately."

"When you came on deck where were the Spanish vessels? What were they doing?" "When I first arrived on the forecastle there were two in sight. The third was just outside the entrance, and the fourth appeared immediately afterward."

"What did they do when they came out, which way did they head?" "We were to the westward. The entrance to us was about northeast by north. The fleet came out south and turned as they left the entrance to four points southwest, so that they turned in our direction. When I first got on deck the helm had been starboarded, heading a little to the northward. When I saw the fleet they were heading southward and seemed to be coming straight for the interval between the Texas and the Brooklyn. I went in the conning tower and directed the helmsman. I told him what I wanted to do was to keep straight for the fleet. They wavered a little.

"Sometimes they turned one way and then another. We shifted helm once or twice, but very little indeed, and finally when we were getting up fairly close, say between 1500 and 2000 yards, it seemed to me clear that they wanted to pass between the Texas and Brooklyn. The Texas was well on our starboard hand, and she was headed to the northward and westward. All ships were carrying out the instructions of the commander-in-chief, and that was to head in for the entrance. We were well to the westward, and headed to the northeast. When I saw that, I ported the helm perhaps half way over. She was swinging starboard very rapidly. The Spanish fleet was coming straight for this interval. I stepped out of the tower on the port side to get a good look at this fleet, to see just what they were going to do as to our relative positions, and I saw they evidently put helms hard aport and were turning to the westward. We were then turning very rapidly to starboard with port helm and we had turned, I think, almost to the east. The Texas was well on our starboard side. I then gave the order 'hardaport' to the helmsman, ran through the opening between the shield and conning tower to the other side on purpose to see our own fleet and our relative positions. Quicker than I could tell it the commodore called to me, 'Cook, hardaport, or 'Is your helm aport?'. I answered: 'The helm is hardaport, turning as rapidly as possible.' As I watched the Texas the bow of the Brooklyn seemed first to point to her port bow. I never saw the starboard bow of the Texas, and changing her bearing very rapidly, the bow of the Brooklyn passed along the port side of the Texas until there was a clear opening between us and the stern of the Texas. We made a complete turn, a very quick turn, with helm hardaport until we came around and paralleled the fleet on the other side. As we paralleled the Spanish fleet the Viscaya—"

Admiral Dewey. "May I interrupt? How near did you pass to the Texas?" "I never thought of a collision. It never entered my head. I never for a moment had one idea or vicissitude in that respect."

"We passed, I judge, about 400 yards. I had handled the ship under all circumstances and got so I could judge pretty correctly, and my impression was that we were about the distance we sailed in squadron. But a collision I never thought of. She turned perfectly clear of the Texas, came around, and then we had the Viscaya on our starboard bow and about abeam was the Oquendo and then the Colon. At the time I thought it was the Teresa, but I soon discovered this vessel was dropping out and heading for the beach. That was about the hottest time of the action. It was a critical time. There was not any time for indecision, and I do not think there was any. I have always felt in my mind, in studying the positions, that the chances would have been for a disaster had we shifted helm at such a time."

"Was the starboard engine of the Brooklyn reversed during that turn?" "It was not. There was some question about that. The reason I feel positive of that is in recalling the circumstances. My impression is, it may have been the commodore or the navigator, one of the two, said something about backing the starboard engine. My reply, I remember very well, was I did not want to lose the speed of the ship."

Judge Cantrill's Precaution

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 15.—After the jury was completed yesterday afternoon in the trial of Caleb Powers as accessory to the murder of Governor Goebel the defense challenged the entire jury, charging it with political bias, and the officers of the court with packing the jury for the purpose of conviction. Judge Cantrill overruled the motion of the defense to disqualify the jury and also a demurrer to the indictment, to which the defense took exceptions. Judge Cantrill announced that at future sessions of the court during the Powers trial, all persons, whether lawyers, jurors or spectators, will be searched for arms before they will be allowed to enter the court room.

Hope of Ultimate Success

Washington, Oct. 15.—All that can be gained from the state department officials respecting the case of Miss Stone is that she is alive and that efforts are being continued for her release. The officials, while declining to indicate the nature of the measures they are pursuing to this end, still have hope of ultimate success.

Five Miners May Die

Tunnelton, W. Va., Oct. 15.—By an explosion in a mine here yesterday, 13 miners were burned, five probably fatally. The accident was caused by a miner loading a hole with too much powder, causing the dust from the electric machines to ignite and explode.

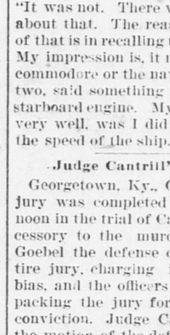

Grabbing Persian Territory

London, Oct. 15.—It is reported in Teheran, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from the Persian capital, that Great Britain has declared a protectorate of Koweyt.

WHY?

Why do women continue to endure suffering caused by womanly diseases?

There are many answers to that question. Sometimes because they have exhausted the skill of local physicians and remain uncured. At other times it is because they shrink from submitting to obnoxious examinations which local physicians deem necessary. And to sum it all up, they endure suffering because they do not know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I enjoy good health; thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. J. J. Schnetyer, of Pontiac, Livingston Co., Ill. "I was taken sick and the doctors here called it 'Grip.' I lay for four weeks in bed, then when I got up I found I had 'displacement.' Had such aches and pains in my back and limbs could not stand any length of time. I knew that our home doctor would insist the first thing on an examination, and that I would not submit to, unless I was dangerously sick. My son had your book, 'Common Sense Medical Adviser,' and I thought from reading it that Dr. Pierce's medicine would do me more good than all the home doctors—and so it has. I can truly say I was surprised at the benefit I received. I can do all my washing and also tend my flower garden. In fact I am on my feet most all the time. An old friend of mine said to me, 'Why what is the matter with you? You are getting young again.' I told her I had taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicines, and that if she would do likewise she would feel ten years younger, too."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser paper covers is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

OCTOBER FLOWERS.

There Is a Beautiful Display of Them at the Pan-American—The Gardens of the City of Light Are One of Its Most Attractive Features. Artistic Scenes Which the Lover of Beauty Should Not Fail to See.

The Pan-American is one of the greatest flower shows that ever was, but there are so many other things in which it is great that the rarity and beauty of its floral features are perhaps apt to be overlooked. If people would take more time to allow the artistic and beautiful features of the Exposition to impress their senses and permeate their inmost being instead of racing from one part of the grounds to another, trying to see every exhibit and every show on the Midway, they would go home feeling greater benefit from their stay in the Rainbow City.

The Pan-American is full of gardens which tempt the visitor to rest awhile and drink in the beauties of nature. It may seem surprising that in the month of October there are flowers worth looking at, but such is the fact. The rains of the past few weeks have kept the landscape as fresh and beautiful as in May and June, and as one flower goes out of the scene another takes its place. On opening day the hyacinths filled the air with their dainty fragrance, in June tulips lifted their proud heads, later in the month of brides and sweet girl graduates came roses, with their rich perfume, and as the summer passed the other flowers in their season sprang up as if by magic to take the place of those which had done their blossoming and served their turn in the entertainment of the visitors to the City of Light. And now one sees the tall canna, the gay geranium and such old fashioned flowers as grandmother's garden had—the phlox, the pink, the begonia, the petunia and other posies which are no less beautiful because they do not happen to be novel.

In entering the grounds by the Elmwood gate visitors pass two tall and curious looking trees, which perhaps few in their anxiety to reach the heart of the Exposition stop to notice. If they realized that they were century plants just budding, a thing which, as all know, century plants only do once in a long, long time, they would doubtless stop and look with open mouths and wondering gaze. It is a sight which one cannot see very often anywhere else. One of these century plants is nearly forty feet in height.

The Rose Gardens around the Woman's building, having for their background the outlines of the Spanish renaissance buildings about the main court and the Electric Tower looming up at its north end, with the Mirror Lakes and the Triumphal Bridge and the groups of statuary abounding, form a scene whose artistic aspect must appeal to even the least æsthetic visitor. The cannas are very effective decorative plants, with their tall leaves in green and red and brown. A rich canna one sees here is named Governor Roosevelt. It would seem appropriate now to change its name to President Roosevelt.

On the opposite side of the Triumphal Bridge is the Wooded Island, and here one roams amid old fashioned flowers, growing as though they had sprung up there all by themselves without any assistance from the landscape gardener and his corps of assistants. But of course that is not the case. The studied carelessness of the gardening of this island is only one of the pretty deceits employed to produce the impression that it is all the work of Mother Nature herself.

Have you seen the fairylike effects in the garden about the Fountain of Abundance at night? It is one of the new things. This small garden is very beautiful by day, and at night electric lights of different colors have been hidden among the flowers and planks, so that one sees the surface of the ground dotted with these little spots of light, bringing out the beauty of the flowers, and all forming a scene impossible to describe, but very charming indeed to witness. It is quite a pretty surprise even to old Pan-American visitors.

Did you ever notice in crossing the Court of Lilies, south of the Machinery building, a heavy vapor arising from the basin in the center of that court? Sometimes it has so much the appearance of smoke that people think something must be afire in the garden, but it is only the steam or vapor created by the heating of the water in that basin for the benefit of the tropical lilies which grow therein. These lilies, which are known as the Victoria Regia, have enormous leaves, some of them three feet in diameter.

Other gardens where there are flowers in bloom during this month of October are those in front of the United States Government building and the Horticulture group, where the gay geraniums and sweet petunias contrast their colors with the green flags growing in the basin and with the white statuary disposed along their slopes.

There was a floral fete at the Exposition during the first week of October, and this in its way, of course, was an affair of much beauty and magnificence; but, as a matter of fact, there have been floral fetes at the Pan-American since opening day.

Indicted Inspector Seeks Release

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Robert E. Burke, under indictment for failure to turn over certain fees collected as city oil inspector, has applied for a writ of habeas corpus. The petition avers that the city ordinance making the oil inspector's office a salaried one is invalid, and that there is no state law covering the exact facts in Burke's case. Judge Dunne will hear arguments later.

He Touched a Live Wire

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 15.—While he was trimming an arc lamp at the General Electric company's works last evening, Lucian Harwood, 19, came in contact with a wire charged with a high voltage and was almost instantly killed.

Turkish Bed Couches.

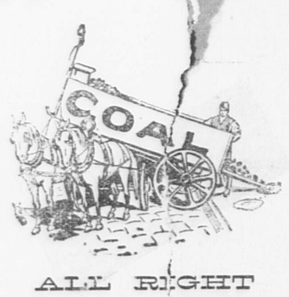

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

5 STYLES, $12.00 to $18.00.

A PORTERHOUSE STEAK

that's a "porterhouse" in reality, as well as in name—tender, juicy, fine flavored—can always be had at Hancock Meat Market, first because it will be cut from a prime grade of beef, second because great care is taken in handling the meat, third because it's cut just exactly as a porterhouse should be cut. We take special pride in our steaks, but equal care is taken with everything in the meat line.

FIVE LIVES SACRIFICED

BRIGANDS STILL IN HIDING

Missionaries Unable to Open Negotiations In Behalf of Miss Stone—Story of Todaroff, Who Knows Details of the Kidnapping

London, Oct. 16.—"Pastors Dimikroff and Zirkoff, with three female mission workers," says a despatch from Vienna to the Daily Express, "have been killed by the band that kidnapped Miss Stone."

The Times has the following from its Vienna correspondent: The Sofia correspondent of The Pester Lloyd says that Todaroff, the driver who accompanied Miss Stone when she was kidnapped, has been arrested on suspicion of connivance. He is a Bulgarian protestant from a Macedonian village, and his statements are regarded as authentic.

Todaroff asserts that Miss Stone, accompanied by Zirkoff and his wife, by Dimitroff and three women teachers, all Bulgarians, was stopped by brigands Sept. 6, toward 6 o'clock in the evening, in a narrow pass in the road leading from the village of Bankso to Dimnaia in Turkey. The brigands took Miss Stone and Mme. Zirkoff away and left men to guard the others. This guard, however, disappeared the following morning, leaving all the luggage and horses behind.

Todaroff's attempt to represent the brigands as Turks is considered suspicious. The fact that the brigands left the luggage untouched is held to confirm the belief that their sole object was to fill the empty pockets of Macedonian adventurers. Todaroff declares that the closing of the frontier in these districts is quite illusory, as he crossed without a passport and declares he did not meet any of the frontier guards.

The belief is growing at Constantinople that the Bulgarian and not the Turkish government is responsible for the retention of Miss Stone, whose capture was committed with the connivance of Macedonian agitators, if not with that of the higher authorities. The attitude of the latter toward brigand bands is most suspicious and very different from what it was during the time of Stambuloff.

Messrs. Biard and Haskell, the missionaries, have not yet succeeded in getting into touch with the brigands or opening negotiations.

Wellesley Interested

Boston, Oct. 16.—Wellesley college is trying to interest the other women's colleges throughout the country in the plan to raise an additional fund for the ransom of Miss Stone, the American missionary, who is held by brigands for a ransom of $110,000, of which only $60,000 has been collected. A letter to that effect was made public last night.

Wonderful Fair Buildings

St. Louis, Oct. 16.—The development of the Louisiana Purchase exposition along many lines during the last few days has been quite appreciable. The definite statement of the sizes of the principal exhibit buildings is of special interest. The largest of these will cover 32½ acres, and will be devoted to agriculture and allied industries. Seven other buildings will cover about 17 acres each, and four others about nine acres each. The total now planned for will amount to about 187 acres. These figures give some idea of the magnitude of the exposition by which the centennial of the Louisiana purchase is to be celebrated in 1903.

Promoted to Presidency

Hartford, Oct. 16.—Sylvester C. Dunham of Hartford has been chosen president of the Travelers Insurance company, to succeed the late James G. Batterson. Mr. Dunham has been the vice president of the company since that office was created in 1898. He became counsel for the Travelers Insurance company in 1885, and was elected a director in January, 1897, and became vice president in 1898.

Preparing For First Message

Washington, Oct. 16.—The regular meeting of the cabinet yesterday was routine in character, being devoted entirely to the hearing of the statements from each of the five officers present of the state of business in their respective departments. These are to be supplemented later on by more detailed reports to aid the president in the preparation of his first message to congress.

Suicide Runs in the Family

New Fairfield, Conn., Oct. 16.—The body of E. J. Briggs, one of the last survivors of a family famous for its suicides, has been found in the woods a mile from his home in Sherman, hanging from a tree by a halter. Fifteen members of the Briggs family have committed suicide, including the paternal ancestors of E. J. Briggs for four generations.

FAMOUS CRIMINAL CASE

Will Be Reopened by Granting of New Trial to Molineaux

Albany, Oct. 16.—The court of appeals has granted Roland B. Molineux a new trial. The court grants a new trial on a prevailing opinion, written by Judge Werner of Rochester, his principal ground being that the lower court erred in admitting evidence as to the alleged crime, the death of H. C. Barnet, and thus merged two issues.

Every member of the court of appeals agrees for the reversal of the judgment of conviction on the ground that the trial court erred in receiving in evidence the declarations of Barnet made to Drs. Phillips and Douglas that he had received kutnow powders through the mail.

The action of the New York court of appeals reopens one of the most famous cases of modern times. Dec. 28, 1898, Mrs. Katherine J. Adams died after taking a dose of bromo-seltzer given her by Harry S. Cornish. Cornish was also violently ill but recovered. The bottle was found to contain a mixture of bromo-seltzer and cyanide of mercury, a deadly poison. At the close of the inquest, Feb. 24, 1899, Roland B. Molineux, a young chemist, was arrested. An indictment was found but later dismissed. Another grand jury refused to indict and the prisoner was released only to be rearrested on the charge of assaulting Cornish, to whom the bromo-seltzer had been sent by mail.

After a long legal battle Molineux was again discharged and rearrested. In July, 1899, he was again indicted. His trial began before Recorder Goff, Nov. 14, 1899. The government case turned largely on expert testimony as to handwriting. Feb. 10, 1900, the jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree. Feb. 16 he was sentenced to be electrocuted in the week of March 26. His counsel appealed on questions of law, chief being the admission of testimony regarding the death of Barnet, whose death by similar poison was indirectly laid to Molineux's door. This appeal aided as a stay. The appeal was not argued until this last summer. David B. Hill was chief counsel for the government, while John G. Milburn was retained as chief counsel by Messrs. Weeks and Battle, who had fought the case in the trial court. Meantime Molineux has been confined in Sing Sing prison.

Shipbuilders Suffer

Bath, Me., Oct. 16.—The effects of the gigantic steel strike in Pennsylvania are yet evident at the Bath Iron works, where work on government vessels is greatly delayed. It was expected that 1100 men would find work here during the winter, but the lack of material will prevent more than 750 from getting steady employment.

Newfoundland Needs More Attention

London, Oct. 16.—According to despatches published today by The Daily Mail a crisis is imminent in Newfoundland unless the British government pays more attention to the demands of the colony than has hitherto been the case.

Bicycle Stock Reduced

New York, Oct. 16.—It is officially announced that the directors of the American Bicycle company have resolved to recommend to the stockholders a reduction in the authorized capital stock of the company, amounting to $80,000,000, to $26,996,400. Vice President Pope states that the scheme is to reduce the authorized capital to the actual stock outstanding, which amounts to nearly $27,000,000.

One of Spain's Highest Grandees

New York, Oct. 16.—The Duke of Alba, one of the highest grandees of Spain, died from heart failure yesterday at his apartments in the Holland house. The duke came to this city on Sept. 21 to witness the international yacht races, as the guest of Sir Thomas Lipton. On the day of the last race he contracted a severe cold, which developed into a case of influenza. The Duke of Alba was 53 years old.

Judge Was Searched, Too

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 16.—Under the operation of Judge Cantrill's order that all persons be searched for concealed weapons before being permitted to enter the trial room, the judge himself and all the lawyers on both sides submitted to a search by deputy sheriffs yesterday. The trial of Caleb Powers then began in earnest.

German Sailors' Revenge

Berlin, Oct. 16.—The Tageblatt says that on board the coast iron-clad Hagen some of the sailors cut the fire hose and damaged other parts of the fire apparatus. It is supposed that the action of the sailors was due to discontent on account of their furloughs having been curtailed.

Dole Will Stick to Office

Honolulu, Oct. 16.—Governor Dole declares that all reports that he will soon resign are without foundation. He declares that he has not resigned, that he has no intention of resigning and that he fully expects to serve out his term.

America Sets the Example

London, Oct. 16.—Lord Rosebery, speaking yesterday at Birmingham on the necessity of Great Britain being better equipped in political and commercial education, dwelt upon the "dangers of British complacency." He urged his countrymen to imitate the United States, and referred to "the restless enterprise of the Americans, their devouring anxiety to improve existing machinery and methods and the apparent impossibility of accumulating any fortune, however gigantic, which shall satisfy or be sufficient to allow of leisure and repose."

THE DEATH OF M'KINLEY

The Subject of a Talk to a Medical Society

THE BULLETINS WERE TRUE

Unfortunate Turn For the Worse Was Entirely Unlooked For—Contributory Causes of Death Were Age, Lack of Exercise and Weak Heart

New York, Oct. 16.—Physicians and surgeons who attended President McKinley during the closing days of his life presented yesterday to the State Medical society, gathered here in semi-annual session, a lengthy report covering the medical and surgical history of the case.

It was signed by Drs. Mann, Mynter, Wasdin, Stockton, Rixey, Park and McBurney. The report was read by Dr. Mann, who discussed its features as he proceeded. No reporter was present during the reading, but a general summary was given out by one of the physicians.

Dr. Mann omitted all mention of the operation. He described the president's symptoms and treatment from day to day, going into the fullest details. In speaking of the bulletins issued, Dr. Mann said everyone was absolutely true. None had been misleading in any manner. He told of the progress of the patient from day to day until the unfortunate turn—a very sudden one—of the seventh day, and said he mentioned it to show that the bulletins issued were true and not misleading.

Dr. Mann declared there was absolutely no bacteriological infection. Continuing he said: "If you ask me what caused the president's death I could not tell you. I doubt if that ever will be discovered. Amongst contributory causes, however, were the president's age, his lack of exercise and his naturally weak heart, which made his pulse high."

Dr. Mann was asked by one of the medical men why the X-ray was not applied, so the missing bullet might be located. Dr. Mann replied that there was nothing in the condition of the patient to show that the bullet was doing any harm, and he said that if the X-ray had been used it would only have been to satisfy the curiosity of the physicians and the excitement attending the operation would have been harmful to the patient, so the doctors refrained from using the X-ray apparatus.

Dr. Mann went on to say that at no time whatever had there been the slightest disagreement among the physicians. He said that complete harmony marked every moment of the time they were in attendance on the president. He said he had never known of such complete harmony among physicians in attendance on a single patient. Dr. Mann did not say anything of the autopsy, but he described the technical treatment of the president daily.

Dr. Mynter, a colleague of Dr. Mann in the president's case, corroborated all Dr. Mann said. He spoke of the fine traits of the president and of the remarkable exhibition of patience Mr. McKinley had displayed. Dr. Mynter spoke very feelingly of the Christian charity of President McKinley toward his assassin, and said that the president's manner of bearing his trials was so impressive that there was not one of the nurses who would not have gladly taken his place.

Wants Divorce and Damages

Ballston, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Justice Houghton has granted orders of publication and summons in two actions brought by Mrs. Julia E. Selby against Norman E. Selby, (Kid McCoy), for divorce and for $25,000 personal damages for assault upon her at Saratoga last August. This is a renewal of the action previously brought and afterwards discontinued by Mrs. Selby when a partial reconciliation was effected with her husband.

Promotion For Naval Gunners

Washington, Oct. 16.—The navy department has received the papers in the case of Naval Gunners Francis Martin and Henry B. Soule, who have passed good examinations, and have been recommended for appointment as officers of the line. When these two men receive their commissions they will be the first enlisted men to obtain such advancement.

Big Department Store Deal

New York, Oct. 16.—A new stock company, of which Henry Seigel is to be president, has brought the department store of Simpson, Crawford & Simpson in this city, the cash consideration being more than $5,000,000. The purchase includes the old store with its full stock of goods and the new building in process of construction.

Made a Doctor of Laws

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 16.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York passed a pleasant day among the Thousand islands. It was a busy day for the royal party, but quiet demonstrations were in order. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon the duke by Chancellor Fleming of Queen's university.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

Good Afternoon.

The Democrats have taken the Daily Ledger at its word, and nominated Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, as their candidate for County Commissioner for the one-year term to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Edwin D. Wadsworth of Milton, and the fight will come between Mr. Wright and ex-Commissioner Bowker of Brookline who was on the board of county commisioners which was investigated by the Legislature a few years ago and found wanting.

Commenting on the nomination of Mr. Bowker by the Republicans in the paper of the next day the Ledger said in part:

"It will be one of the times when Republicans will put good government above partisanship and vote for his Democratic rival if he is of the right calibre. Such a man as Marshall P. Wright of Quincy would command the support of thousands of Republicans in Norfolk county."

We congratulate the Democrats upon the unanimous nomination of Mr. Wright on Tuesday and as the gentleman is the Ledger candidate we shall work heartily for his election. It is pleasing to note that nomination papers are already in circulation which will give Mr. Wright an Independent Republican nomination so that Republicans can vote for him as a Republican if they wish.

The nominee is all that ex-City Treasurer Burke claimed in his speech of nomination, and more:— clean, honest, trustworthy, and conscientious; a gentleman above politics; modest and faithful; in fact a gentleman after the same pattern as the late Edwin D. Wadsworth of Milton, who died in office. Mr. Wright as a former road commissioner and water commissioner of Quincy; as a granite quarryman and contractor, as a foreman of granite cutters and quarry workers; as a quiet thinking citizen and taxpayer, has the qualifications necessary for the important office of County Commissioner. Having retired from business he could also give the duties attention.

He personally, if necessary, could intelligently pass upon plans and supervise the construction of the new steel bridge between Quincy Point and North Weymouth, which will soon be started; also the new registry building to be erected at Dedham. After a few weeks he could also grasp understandly the road business and other matters which come before boards of county commissioners. No voter of Norfolk county, be he Republican or Democrat, should hesitate to vote for Marshall P. Wright.

While a new police station is being built, it is too bad that it is not made an up-to-date station in every respect. In all modern stations there are automatic flushing stool in every cell and these should have been installed in the cells at the new station now being built. Instead of these however a bucket with a stationary iron cover will be used. These are little better than those in use at the present station. The additional cost of the automatic flushing buckets could not have been very great. Why were they not installed?

The City Clerk informs the Ledger that the rumor that he is to drop politics is not correct and that he does not intend to. Also, that he has not hoodwinked the voters so that they would accept Chapter 332 of the Acts of 1901. He has not asked any one, he says, to vote for the act.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The record of the week shows a white man lynched in Montana for "the usual crime;" half a dozen negroes lynched in Texas for failing to come to agreement on picking cotton, and two negro boys taken from jail and lynched in Kentucky because it was feared the evidence might not be sufficient to secure their conviction for the murder of a white man. This is a civilized country.—The Independent.

☞ One of the gravest crimes one can commit is to rob a child of his school days. Don't keep a boy out of school to work a week or two or a month after school commences and thus greatly discourage and handicap him when he begins. If there is anything in the world a man can afford to sacrifice for it is the education of his children. They do not need your money—a boy is better off to earn it—but what he does need is a good training and good schooling, and there is but one way to get it and that is while he is young.—Portage, Wisconsin, Register.

☞ The true and final remedy for anarchy is a wide and clear seeing that both society and government are the survival through infinite struggle and unselfish sacrifice out of worse things. Some of these survive. The corruption of the past and savage squalor and beggary are still among us. They exist alone as survivals. All rule was once savagely selfish and corrupt. All men were once naked, starving and poverty stricken. The remedy is not going backward, but forward; not down, but up, and the man who does not see this and act upon it has a mind which is an open field for the seeds of anarchy.—Philadelphia Press.

☞ It is not altogether surprising that the lady who is going to marry Senator Depew announces that she does so because she loves him. She would indeed be a lady of original ideas if she admitted that she was about to wed that lively if no longer youthful gentleman for any other reason. It is a little surprising, perhaps, to think of metropolitan newspapers, supposed to be so wise and canny, asking a lady to state that bald old formula. But they often do it, as they do so many other queer things. Love is a peculiar manifestation, and it is invariably the case that it is brought about with especial fervor in cases where there is prosperity and world wise popularity existing in either party to a suit. We can love sometimes the poor and lowly but the teachings of modern experience are against the idea that love can be safely depended on to endure unless there is money to keep the little god smiling. Cupid in these days is getting to be a mercenary rascal, who loves to hang around where the trusts and the stocks and bonds are to be found. So all the young women who are about to be wedded to dignitaries, whether the latter are handsome or hideous, tall or short, fascinating or boorish, aver with all the passion of a Juliet that they are to be wedded "because they love him!" Bless their unselfish little hearts, we hope they do!—Brockton Enterprise.

New Circle King's Daughters.

At a meeting of the Junior King's Daughters, held on Monday evening, seven members withdrew, and formed a new King's Daughters circle called the Sunshine circle. The following officers were elected: Eva Sheldon, president; Marion McCloud, vice president; Alice Shunk, secretary; Marie McSword, treasurer. They have made application for membership in the State and also International organization and have been asked to send delegates to the State convention soon to be held in Boston. The girls are very enthusiastic over their plans for the winter's work and will bear in mind the motto on their little silver crosses.

A Quiet Wedding.

At the residence of Rev. E. N. Hardy of the Bethany Congregational church, Tuesday afternoon, a quiet wedding was solemnized, the bride was Miss Grace Edythe Emery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Emery, of Washington street, formerly of Whitman. The groom was Mr. Joseph Belcher Mills of Boston. The bride was attired in a costume of mode colored cloth and was unattended.

Mr. Mills is connected with Samuel Usher, in the publishing house in Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Mills, left on the 5.12 train for Boston, taking the night boat for New York and will tour as far south as Washington. On their return they will reside in Boston.

Political Potpourri.

Asa P. French of Randolph, the Republican nominee for district attorney was endorsed at the Democratic convention at Dedham on Tuesday, and is to be congratulated.

Papers are being circulated giving Marshall P. Wright an independent Republican nomination for County Commissioner. They are being freely signed.

ALL FOR WRIGHT.

Quincy Man Nominated for County Commissioner.

No Other Name Presented to Convention.

The Democrats Enthusiastic for His Election.

A very harmonious county convention was held by the Democrats at Dedham on Tuesday, and there was more enthusiasm than usual because the delegates felt that they had an excellent chance of electing a member of the board of County Commissioners.

Because of this opportunity it was expected that there would be a contest, especially as Edwin N. Phelps of Foxboro and others besides the nominees were favorably mentioned before the convention.

However, only one gentleman was placed in nomination, Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, who was presented by James F. Burke the ex-City Treasurer as follows:

Mr. chairman and gentlemen of this convention:

We meet here today for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the important office of County Commissioner, and in making our selection we should have only one purpose in mind, namely: to select a man who has the business ability and is of sterling character; who possesses the natural requirements to fulfil the duties of the office to the satisfaction and with credit to the people. In fact we stand in an era today that in the choice of public officers, a party must put its best men to the front, or meet with defeat.

If there ever was a time in the history of this country that we need such a man, that time has arrived, and I say to you Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of this convention, that the eyes of all the citizens of this county are upon us; especially those who believe that "a public office is a public trust," and that any man who has betrayed that confidence imposed in him by the people deserves to be defeated at the polls.

Therefore, it is my pleasure to present a man of sterling character, and standing and possessed of good business ability, a man who has made a success of life in the business world, who has successfully managed one of our large granite concerns with credit, being water commissioner of our city for three years, and as an employer of labor always looking to the interest of his workmen. Such a man I will present to you, and I ask you delegates representing the people from your respective towns to accept him as your choice for the one-year term. For I believe if you do, the citizens of this county will accept him by electing him at the polls on election day. I present to you the name of Marshall P. Wright of Quincy.

No other names being presented, Mr. Wright was unanimously nominated by acclamation.

Then came the nomination of a candidate for the three-year term. Mr. Burke advocated the endorsement of the Republican candidate, Thomas Blanchard, whose term expires. This suggestion, however met with prompt protest from James N. Follan of Norwood who said he wanted to see Democrats nominated for every office.

Mr. Follan nominated John Cavanagh of Braintree, and the convention placed him in nomination.

No nominations were made for Special County Commissioners although two are to be elected this year.

The convention renominated Samuel H. Capen of Dedham for sheriff, and Louis A. Cook of Weymouth for clerk of courts, both Republicans. Judge Cook was placed in nomination by D. W. Murray of Hyde Park who five years ago was his opponent for the office.

Chance for Quincy Veterans.

It has been stated, says the Register, that the Randolph Veteran Firemen's Association are liable to lose their machine, the "Alabama Coon," owing to a mortgage given to the Fore River Iron Works of Quincy Point for recent repairs, unless some generous minded citizen comes forward and takes up the mortgage in the interest of the Association. The boys would regret to lose their machine, which has cost them so much to put in good condition. It has been proven that when a well trained company of men man the brakes, they can take the cake.

Weighed 110 Pounds.

It has been a curious fact to many, that however stout, or however thin they were, by the weight register in the Atlantic station they balanced 110 pounds. It was thought perhaps, everyone in town weighed the same, until Tuesday afternoon. In the presence of several, a woman entered the station, whose size was not to be gainsaid. She, however, not being sure herself, stepped upon the tactful machine and those near heard the click of a penny. There was one mad revolve and lo! the register marked 110 pounds. 'Nuf said.

On the Macdonough.

A party of prominent Boston business men went on the trial trip of the torpedo boat destroyer Macdonough Tuesday by invitation of the Fore River Ship & Engine Co. The boat cruised in the outer harbor and ran out to sea about four miles beyond the lightship. They expressed themselves as highly interested in the machinery of the boat. An average of 24 knots which was the fastest time that most of the party had ever sailed, was attained.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY Virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Hannah K. Ahlstrom, wife of Carl T. Ahlstrom of Quincy, Massachusetts, to Susan E. Garey, dated September 12, 1900, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 879, page 255, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage deed, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on FRIDAY, October 25, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the property described in said mortgage, namely:

The following parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in that part of said Quincy called Atlantic, being parts of lots 847 and 848, on plan of "Norfolk Downs," by Charles D. Elliot, dated April, 1892, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book of Plans No. 14, plan numbered 640, bounded and described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a point on the northwesterly line of Apthorp street, distant twenty feet northeasterly from the division line between said lots 847 and 848, thence running northwesterly by a line parallel with and distant twenty feet northeasterly from the division line between lots 847 and 848, one hundred and five (105) feet; thence turning and running southwesterly by the remaining portion of lot 847, eight feet; thence turning and running in a southerly direction by parts of said lots 847 and 848, about twenty-six feet and six inches; thence turning and running southeasterly by the remaining portion of lot 848 by a line parallel to the first boundary, ninety (90) feet to said Apthorp street; thence turning and running northeasterly by said Apthorp street, thirty (30) feet, to the point of beginning; be any or all said measurements more or less, or however otherwise bounded, measured or described. Being a part of the same premises conveyed to said Hannah K. Ahlstrom by Hilma E. Peterson, by deed dated June 5, 1900, duly recorded with Norfolk Deeds, and the premises are hereby conveyed subject to the restrictions referred to in said deed.

Said property will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes and assessments. Two hundred dollars to be paid at the time and place of sale. Balance within ten days at the office of my attorney.

WOMEN WHO SMOKE.

A Subject That Is Being Extensively Discussed In Europe.

A good deal of correspondence has been going on lately in the columns of the London Mail on the subject of women smokers.

Inquiries as to how the question is viewed in other countries brought forth some interesting facts. Smoking among women in France is, it seems, far more prevalent than is generally supposed. There a lady of fashion no longer apologizes to her guests for lighting a cigarette after dinner, and even as an accompaniment to 5 o'clock tea a golden tipped Egyptian cigarette is frequently indulged in by fair Parisiennes. Russian ladies, we are told, who inhabit the capital are largely responsible for the growing taste for tobacco among the grandes dames of Paris. It is interesting to hear that at the leading couturieres boxes of fragrant cigarettes are kept in stock to help madame to pass the time agreeably while being fitted.

"In Germany," according to a Berlin inquirer, "feminine emancipation is not sufficiently advanced to make the practice of smoking among ladies very prevalent. In certain circles and the smart restaurants, however, many women may be seen with cigarettes and even cigars. Among the middle and working classes it is safe to say that scarcely a woman would think of smoking except for fun. But there is one class of feminine society that greatly affects the cigarette, and that is financial ladies engaged in speculation."

In Belgium, it seems, among the better class ladies an after dinner cigarette is not at all tabooed, and among the feminine frequenters of the boulevard cafes smoking is fairly common, but in other cafes the practice is forbidden by the proprietors.

It was a long time before the czarina grew accustomed to the habit of smoking, so prevalent among the ladies of Russia, and it is said that she had so strong an objection to it at first that she forbade the habit to be practiced in her sight.

If, as one of the writers in The Mail declares, nicotine is very detrimental to the moral tone in females, produces neurosis and dull, stupid, indolent, deceitful charcteristics, stunts the mind, lowers the stature and nervous systems, and that female reformatories, prisons and lunatic asylums show that in many cases of unstrung nerves, morals and mind, smoking was the first step of the downfall, let us abolish it by all means.

There Were Others.

After a woman had devoted several years and some money to the task of learning the German language thoroughly she felt herself more accomplished than some of her friends and took pleasure in the pride that this knowledge gave her. One day she was in a street car when a man entered and vainly tried to tell the conductor where he wanted to go. He spoke only German, the conductor understood not a word, and the passenger in despair turned to the others in the car.

"Does anybody here speak German?" he asked.

This, thought the learned young woman, was an opportunity for her to make practical use of her really thorough knowledge of the language. She was preparing to volunteer her services as interpreter when the others who had heard the request also offered their aid. In all there were among the passengers on the car eleven men and two women who spoke German. While she still prizes her accomplishment, this studious young woman does not think her knowledge so unusual as she once did.

Robed In a Single Shade.

It is not to be a winter of touches of this tint and scraps of that color added to a frock of neutral tint. From Paris comes the edict that everything one wears must match in color. It is an effective way to dress, but hardly economical. Signs of the coming thraldom are already manifest in Paris. Gown, gloves, parasol, hat and even shoes and stockings, accord or, at any rate, correspond in shade. Imagine a gray crepe de chine, with a large gray velvet hat, worn with gray gloves, a gray ruffle, gray silk stockings and gray suede shoes—a symphony in soft gray—with a knot of pink carnations as a color relief. It proved an unqualified success for its charming wearer. Her bank account is another story.

Pearls Scarce In Paris.

Paris is passing through the hardships of a pearl famine.

The pearl necklace has become so fashionable, not only in Paris, but all over the world, that pearls have become exceedingly rare and consequently unconscionably expensive.

The more they cost the more they are sought after. In a well known dealer's establishment, the Figaro affirms, is a necklace of forty-five pearls, a dozen of which are black. The price is £17,600.

Americans are especially keen pearl hunters, and they will pay from £4,000 to £12,000 for a collar without a murmur. In consequence of continued demand a necklace which fifteen years ago was worth £400 will today fetch £1,200 to £1,600.—London Express.

An Orleans Princess.

Princess Clementine d'Orleans, who is now the only survivor of the large family of Louis Philippe, has celebrated her eighty-fourth birthday at Schloss Ebenthal, her seat near Vienna, whither she has just returned after a long stay at Mentone. Princess Clementine married Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, a brother of the late king of Portugal and a first cousin of Queen Victoria and of the prince consort.

The Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any similar article in the world. It makes more, better and more healthful food.

Car Travel Interrupted.

The section of the Metropolitan sewer between J. W. Dennen's and Shelton road runs along directly beneath the street railway tracks. Work has already been commenced on this section and the tracks have been torn up, making it necessary for passengers to walk quite a distance. Quite a question has been raised as to who shall pay for placing the tracks in a temporary location so that travel may not be interrupted. The street railway people say that under the law the contractor is obliged to put the tracks in temporary location. The contractor says the law permits him to take them up but does not oblige him to put them down again. Meanwhile the passengers have to walk.

Republican Dates.

The Republican State Committee has already issued a calendar of dates in connection with the State election of Nov. 5.

Oct. 2—Earliest day for holding Republican representative conventions.

Oct. 4—10 A. M., Republican state convention in the Boston Theatre.

Oct. 5—Latest day for calling conventions for nominations of candidates for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth. Must be called before 5 P. M.

Oct. 6—Last day for designating polling places.

Oct. 6—Last day for registrars of voters in every city and town, except Boston, to post in each voting precinct preliminary alphabetical list of voters.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

A LITTLE BOY FLOWER.

The Pretty Notion of the Baby's Poetic Little Uncle.

This is the story of a little California boy who thought he would like to be a flower—at least that is what his six-year-old uncle thinks he thought. The two little boys, the little uncle and the baby, had been playing together all morning. A California garden is a beautiful place to play in, so it is no wonder that they felt very happy. And presently the little uncle climbed up on top of one of the big porous water jars which are used for cooling water to drink. Then the little uncle was called into the house suddenly, and Baby Ward must have decided that he wanted to get up into that great jar, quite a bit taller than he was himself.

So when the little uncle came out of the house again he found his baby nephew trying and trying to climb up to the top of the jar. The little uncle caught up the baby and held him on top of the jar, but that didn't satisfy King Baby in the least. By and by the little uncle realized that the baby wanted to get inside the jar, and he lifted the child and placed him in position. Then, as the baby's head was some distance beneath the top of the jar, and the baby voice cried to be lifted, the little uncle found a big stone for the baby to stand on.

"Why do you suppose the child wanted to get in the jar?" puzzled the baby's mother and grandmother when the little uncle had summoned them from the house to see how sweet his dear little nephew looked in the strange new position.

"I think," answered the little uncle, watching the baby reach toward the big, lovely bush of marguerites or white golden hearted daisies which stood near, "that he loves flowers so much that he wanted to be a nice little flower boy himself, and he thought if I put him in water, as we do the flowers, maybe he'd grow to be one."

And as the baby said nothing the little uncle was probably right.

He Got In.

"Father said it wasn't worth while trying to get into this coat, as it was too small, but I knew I could do it."

Imitative Tots at Play.

Wordsworth's lines of a child at play, "as if his whole vocation were endless imitation," were recently recalled by a conversation overheard in the children's ward at a provincial hospital.

A little girl whose role was that of nurse rang an imaginary telephone on the wall to talk to her companion at the farther end of the room, who played the part of doctor.

"Hello!" said the nurse. "Is that the doctor?"

"Yes," answered her companion in a deep voice; "this is the doctor."

"This lady is very ill," he was informed.

"Well, what seems to be the matter?"

"She has swallowed a whole bottle of ink," said the nurse.

The doctor, not flurried, inquired what had been done for the patient; but the nurse, too, was ready in emergencies.

She answered, "I gave her two pads of blotting paper!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Good Deed of the Ants.

In speaking of the havoc some ants make, let us also remember some good service rendered. In the West Indies there is a red cockroach which is four times as large as the common one. It smells horribly, scents everything that it touches, is far more destructive than the ant and eats everything with which it comes in contact.

Now, although one cockroach in bulk outweighs 200 ants, the latter little creatures kill and devour innumerable cockroaches.

Whenever one ant comes upon a cockroach that is at rest, eating or in its hole, suddenly myriads of others appear, swarm round the roach as if by magic, surround it completely and then, with one consent, rush all over it. As it is dragged away only a mass of ants can be seen moving along. All the time the ants carry their prey they are busily eating it until only the shell is left.

Caught Twice.

Henry M. Davenport of New York city writes that while spending a month at Cooperstown, N. Y., on Otsego lake, he went fishing one day. After waiting some time for a bite he felt a pull on his line and, drawing it in, found that a fish had bitten the hook off. Fastening another hook on the line, he threw it into the water and in a moment, to his surprise, caught the very fish that had stolen his hook, the broken hook being found imbedded in its throat.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

WOMEN WHO SMOKE.

A Subject That Is Being Extensively Discussed In Europe.

A good deal of correspondence has been going on lately in the columns of the London Mail on the subject of women smokers.

Inquiries as to how the question is viewed in other countries brought forth some interesting facts. Smoking among women in France is, it seems, far more prevalent than is generally supposed. There a lady of fashion no longer apologizes to her guests for lighting a cigarette after dinner, and even as an accompaniment to 5 o'clock tea a golden tipped Egyptian cigarette is frequently indulged in by fair Parisiennes. Russian ladies, we are told, who inhabit the capital are largely responsible for the growing taste for tobacco among the grandes dames of Paris. It is interesting to hear that at the leading couturieres boxes of fragrant cigarettes are kept in stock to help madame to pass the time agreeably while being fitted.

"In Germany," according to a Berlin inquirer, "feminine emancipation is not sufficiently advanced to make the practice of smoking among ladies very prevalent. In certain circles and the smart restaurants, however, many women may be seen with cigarettes and even cigars. Among the middle and working classes it is safe to say that scarcely a woman would think of smoking except for fun. But there is one class of feminine society that greatly affects the cigarette, and that is financial ladies engaged in speculation."

In Belgium, it seems, among the better class ladies an after dinner cigarette is not at all tabooed, and among the feminine frequenters of the boulevard cafes smoking is fairly common, but in other cafes the practice is forbidden by the proprietors.

It was a long time before the czarina grew accustomed to the habit of smoking, so prevalent among the ladies of Russia, and it is said that she had so strong an objection to it at first that she forbade the habit to be practiced in her sight.

If, as one of the writers in The Mall declares, nicotine is very detrimental to the moral tone in females, produces neurosis and dull, stupid, indolent, deceitful charcteristics, stunts the mind, lowers the stature and nervous systems, and that female reformatories, prisons and lunatic asylums show that in many cases of unstrung nerves, morals and mind, smoking was the first step of the downfall, let us abolish it by all means.

There Were Others.

After a woman had devoted several years and some money to the task of learning the German language thoroughly she felt herself more accomplished than some of her friends and took pleasure in the pride that this knowledge gave her. One day she was in a street car when a man entered and vainly tried to tell the conductor where he wanted to go. He spoke only German, the conductor understood not a word, and the passenger in despair turned to the others in the car.

"Does anybody here speak German?" he asked.

This, thought the learned young woman, was an opportunity for her to make practical use of her really thorough knowledge of the language. She was preparing to volunteer her services as interpreter when the others who had heard the request also offered their aid. In all there were among the passengers on the car eleven men and two women who spoke German. While she still prizes her accomplishment, this studious young woman does not think her knowledge so unusual as she once did.

Robed In a Single Shade.

It is not to be a winter of touches of this tint and scraps of that color added to a frock of neutral tint. From Paris comes the edict that everything one wears must match in color. It is an effective way to dress, but hardly economical. Signs of the coming thraldom are already manifest in Paris. Gown, gloves, parasol, hat and even shoes and stockings, accord or, at any rate, correspond in shade. Imagine a gray crepe de chine, with a large gray velvet hat, worn with gray gloves, a gray truffle, gray silk stockings and gray suede shoes—a symphony in soft gray—with a knot of pink carnations as a color relief. It proved an unqualified success for its charming wearer. Her bank account is another story.

Pearls Scarce In Paris.

Paris is passing through the hardships of a pearl famine.

The pearl necklace has become so fashionable, not only in Paris, but all over the world, that pearls have become exceedingly rare and consequently unconscionably expensive.

The more they cost the more they are sought after. In a well known dealer's establishment, the Figaro affirms, is a necklace of forty-five pearls, a dozen of which are black. The price is £17,600.

Americans are especially keen pearl hunters, and they will pay from £4,000 to £12,000 for a collar without a murmur. In consequence of continued demand a necklace which fifteen years ago was worth £400 will today fetch £1,200 to £1,600.—London Express.

An Orleans Princess.

Princess Clementine d'Orleans, who is now the only survivor of the large family of Louis Philippe, has celebrated her eighty-fourth birthday at Schloss Ebenthal, her seat near Vienna, whither she has just returned after a long stay at Mentone. Princess Clementine married Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, a brother of the late king of Portugal and a first cousin of Queen Victoria and of the prince consort.

The Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price per pound, and is cheaper and better at its price than any similar article in the world. It makes more, better and more healthful food.

Car Travel Interrupted.

The section of the Metropolitan sewer between J. W. Dennen's and Shelton road runs along directly beneath the street railway tracks. Work has already been commenced on this section and the tracks have been torn up, making it necessary for passengers to walk quite a distance. Quite a question has been raised as to who shall pay for placing the tracks in a temporary location so that travel may not be interrupted. The street railway people say that under the law the contractor is obliged to put the tracks in temporary location. The contractor says the law permits him to take them up but does not oblige him to put them down again. Meanwhile the passengers have to walk.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

A LITTLE BOY FLOWER.

The Pretty Notion of the Baby's Poetic Little Uncle.

This is the story of a little California boy who thought he would like to be a flower—at least that is what his six-year-old uncle thinks he thought. The two little boys, the little uncle and the baby, had been playing together all morning. A California garden is a beautiful place to play in, so it is no wonder that they felt very happy. And presently the little uncle climbed up on top of one of the big porous water jars which are used for cooling water to drink. Then the little uncle was called into the house suddenly, and Baby Ward must have decided that he wanted to get up into that great jar, quite a bit taller than he was himself.

So when the little uncle came out of the house again he found his baby nephew trying and trying to climb up to the top of the jar. The little uncle caught up the baby and held him on top of the jar, but that didn't satisfy King Baby in the least. By and by the little uncle realized that the baby wanted to get inside the jar, and he lifted the child and placed him in position. Then, as the baby's head was some distance beneath the top of the jar, and the baby voice cried to be lifted, the little uncle found a big stone for the baby to stand on.

"Why do you suppose the child wanted to get in the jar?" puzzled the baby's mother and grandmother when the little uncle had summoned them from the house to see how sweet his dear little nephew looked in the strange new position.

"I think," answered the little uncle, watching the baby reach toward the big, lovely bush of marguerites or white golden hearted daisies which stood near, "that he loves flowers so much that he wanted to be a nice little flower boy himself, and he thought if I put him in water, as we do the flowers, maybe he'd grow to be one."

And as the baby said nothing the little uncle was probably right.

He Got In.

"Father said it wasn't worth while trying to get into this coat, as it was too small, but I knew I could do it."

Imitative Tots at Play.

Wordsworth's lines of a child at play, "as if his whole vocation were endless imitation," were recently recalled by a conversation overheard in the children's ward at a provincial hospital.

A little girl whose role was that of nurse rang an imaginary telephone on the wall to talk to her companion at the farther end of the room, who played the part of doctor.

"Hello!" said the nurse. "Is that the doctor?"

"Yes," answered her companion in a deep voice; "this is the doctor."

"This lady is very ill," he was informed.

"Well, what seems to be the matter?"

"She has swallowed a whole bottle of ink," said the nurse.

The doctor, not flurried, inquired what had been done for the patient; but the nurse, too, was ready in emergencies.

She answered, "I gave her two pads of blotting paper!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Good Deed of the Ants.

In speaking of the havoc some ants make, let us also remember some good service rendered. In the West Indies there is a red cockroach which is four times as large as the common one. It smells horribly, scents everything that it touches, is far more destructive than the ant and eats everything with which it comes in contact.

Now, although one cockroach in bulk outweighs 200 ants, the latter little creatures kill and devour innumerable cockroaches.

Whenever one ant comes upon a cockroach that is at rest, eating or in its hole, suddenly myriads of others appear, swarm round the roach as if by magic, surround it completely and then, with one consent, rush all over it. As it is dragged away only a mass of ants can be seen moving along. All the time the ants carry their prey they are busily eating it until only the shell is left.

Caught Twice.

Henry M. Davenport of New York city writes that while spending a month at Cooperstown, N. Y., on Otsego lake, he went fishing one day. After waiting some time for a bite he felt a pull on his line and, drawing it in, found that a fish had bitten the hook off. Fastening another hook on the line, he threw it into the water and in a moment, to his surprise, caught the very fish that had stolen his hook, the broken hook being found imbedded in its throat.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Oct. 17.
Sun rises—5:59; sets—5.
Moon sets—8:16 p. m.
High water—2 a. m.; 2:15 p. m.

Very little rain has fallen in any part of the country during the last 24 hours. Generally fair weather is indicated for New England. The winds along the coast will be mostly light to fresh west to northwest.

English horticulturists have come to the conclusion that it is a mistake to wait till November to plant the bulbs of tulips and hyacinths and crocuses, and that when the summer display is over (September) the sooner bulbs are got in the better.

The innumerable shades of blue and green which consititute what may be called the natural color of sea water are due to a greater or less proportion of salt held in solution. The appearance of intense blue is the result of the presence of large quantities of saline matter.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

WORTHY OF EMULATION

Schley's Conduct Under Fire Praised by Sears

THE BATTLE OF SANTIAGO

Is Again Described and Details Given of Persistent Chase After Colon—Schley's Report of Battle Never Reached Navy Department

Washington, Oct. 16.—Only one new witness was heard in detail by the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. This was Lieutenant Commander James H. Sears, who was Admiral Schley's flag lieutenant during the Spanish war.

He gave a detailed account of the entire campaign, including the brief siege of Cienfuegos, the retrogade movement of the flying squadron in search of coal, the blockade of the Santiago shore batteries and the bombardment of the Cristobal Colon, May 31, and the battle off Santiago July 3, when Cervera's fleet was destroyed. He placed the distance out of the blockading line at Cienfuegos at from one to four miles and at Santiago at from three to six miles. He expressed the opinion that in the battle of July 3 it had been the Viscaya's intention to ram the Brooklyn.

The witness saw the engagement of July 3. After stating the preliminary incidents he said: "I was in my room when I heard the cry of the executive officer 'Clear ship for action.' I knew what that meant, and ran to the quarter deck. I looked aloft to see if the prescribed signal 'Enemy is escaping' was up, and saw that it was. I met the commodore on the quarter deck. He directed the signal 'clear ship for action,' followed by the signal to close in, all of which were made. From my position I had a good view of the entrance. Our ship was heading at the time, I should say, to the westward of north. The engines had been started by the time I got on deck, and she was gaining way and swinging toward the enemy. The first vessel, which proved to be the flagship Maria Teresa, came out. She was directly on our bearing from the entrance to the port.

"As the ships swung toward the Teresa, she swung slowly around. To me the Teresa appeared to not hold an exactly straight course, and the helm of our ship was eased one way or the other to keep our ram pointing toward the Teresa. The Teresa shortly turned squarely toward the westward, and as she did so I got a view of the next ship following in her wake. It was my observation that the Brooklyn was then held up to meet the second ship approaching. Of course, we ported helm.

"The second ship passed in the wake of the first one, the Brooklyn was held toward her and she appeared to me to be uncertain in her course. The Brooklyn was handled by her captain and quartermaster. She turned after she had passed to the southward of the Teresa's wake and followed her, and then it was generally remarked on the tower bridge they were all going to try to escape to the westward. Just about the time the Viscaya turned, Yeoman Ellis came to me and said that his stadimetre showed 900 yards to the Viscaya. I immediately took an especial look at the Viscaya with that in mind, and my judgment confirmed the stadimetre. I said to the commodore: 'I think we are about our tactical diameter from that ship now,' and he said: 'I think so, too,' or 'We are.' Then the order was 'hard-aport.' I am not positive who gave that order. I think the commodore said: 'Hardaport,' and Captain Cook said 'It is hard-aport. The helm was kept hard-aport and the ship swung rapidly in her turning circle. When the order was given, hard-aport,' I looked at the next vessel in our fleet—the Texas—and in my judgment, we were completely clear of her, and as we turned we passed clear of her. After the turn was completed we found ourselves abreast or possibly a little before the beam of the leading ship with slowly convoying course toward the leading ship. The smoke at this time was very dense, but there were two ships in plain sight, and occasionally we could get a glimpse of the third.

"The commodore spoke of the advisa- of signalling through the Oregon to the Texas to stay by the Viscaya, when she turned in and insured her surrender, but after a moment's thought he said: 'Philip will know enough to look out for that,' and then we proceeded. While we were engaged on the beam of the Viscaya the Colon had passed inside of the Viscaya, firing, but gradually drawing away. We were increasing our speed as rapidly as the fires could be forced, and after the Viscaya had gone in, we continued to chase after the Colon. The forcing of the fires told presently, and we began to slacken her speed. We estimated the distance of the Colon to be fully 12,000 yards. It was beyond the extreme range of the stadimetre.

"After we began to gain upon the Colon, the commodore directed the Oregon to try her guns at her. Then the Oregon and the Brooklyn fired deliberately at the Colon. After our fire she began to waver in toward the shore. Her course was unsettled and the commodore said he thought she had enough of it and was looking for a soft spot to lie upon, which proved to be the case. She fired occasionally at us, rather rapidly at first, and then it became weaker. She was close into shore at that time and at 1:15 hauled down her flag. Captain Cook and Lieutenant Wells were sent on board the Colon to receive the surrender."

Mr. Rayner questioned the witness again concerning his association with Lieutenant Commander Potts on the Massachusetts, and asked if he had heard the commodore say, on the occasion of the Colon reconnoissance, anything in the presence of Mr. Potts concerning the conspicuousness of the uniforms of the officers as they stood on the turret during the firing of the enemy's batteries. The witness replied in the negative.

"Was the commodore behind the conning tower on that occasion?" "He was both behind and in front of it, he was moving about.'

In reply to a question, Commander Sears said he had been with Commodore Schley in five engagements, all told. He was then asked as to the bearing of that officer under fire and replied: "His bearing to me was a model for anybody, worthy of emulation at all times. Under fire his faculties, if it was possible, seemed to be clearer and more in possession than at any other time."

"Was he in any state of excitement?" "Not the slightest."

"Was he cool and calm?" "Absolutely."

"How about points of danger, would he get away from them or did he expose himself to them?". "He was always putting himself in exposed positions. I requested him many times not to expose himself, as it was useless to do so."

Mr. Rayner sought to secure the introduction of a brief report of the battle of July 3, which Commodore Schley prepared for transmission to the secretary of the navy. It was stated that Commander Sears had taken this despatch ashore to be cabled to the secretary, but that it never reached that official. The despatch was ruled out on the ground that as it was not received it was not an official communication. It was not read in the court room, but the following is a copy of it:

"The Secretary of the Navy, Washington: Spanish squadron came out of Santiago harbor this morning, July 3, at 9:30, and were all captured or destroyed in a running fight to the westward of about 3½ hours. Very few casualities in our fleet; Ellis, chief yeoman, killed, and one man wounded on the Brooklyn. Reports from other ships not in yet. The commander-in-chief now superintending transfer of prisoners from the Cristobal Colon, which surrendered to the Brooklyn and Oregon at 1:15 p. m. About 1000 prisoners in all, including Spanish admiral. Victory complete; details later. Schley."

Captain Cook was recalled during the day and in response to a question by Captain Lemly made an additional statement concerning the retrogade movement of the flying squadron May 26 to May 28. He also said in answer to a question by the court, that Commodore Schley during the battle of July 3 was "cool, brave and enthusiastic. I cannot imagine any conduct in battle more admirable."

To Fight American Trust

London, Oct. 16.—The British tobacco manufacturers who signed a preliminary agreement early in the moth to form a combination with a view of preventing American competition, yesterday issued a circular to their customers inviting support in the undertaking and announcing the registration of the combination under the title "The Imperial Tobacco company of Great Britain and Ireland."

The Case of Pat Crowe

Omaha, Oct. 16.—Chief of Police Donahue is making arrangements by which he hopes to be able to accept the conditions laid down in Pat Crowe's letter for the latter's surrender. Judge Vosonhaller, before whom Crowe must appear, refuses, however, to bind himself to the proposition of putting the alleged kidnapper under a $500 bond.

Failure of Old Shoe Firm

Boston, Oct. 16.—Woodbury Bros. and the Woodbury Shoe company of Beverly, one shoe manufacturing firm doing business under two names, have made an assignment. The liabilities are about $130,000. The concern has been in business in Beverly 32 years and has done a business as high as $900,000 a year.

Deserters From Training Ship

Berlin, Oct. 16.—Advices from Kiel say that when the United States training ship Buffalo sailed from there recently 10 members of the crew of that vessel failed to rejoin their ship in time and were left behind. The commander of the Buffalo offered a reward of $40 each for the capture of the deserters.

MOTHER AND CHILD

Let the mother take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil for the two; it is almost never superfluous.

One can eat for two; but nourishing two is a different thing; it implies a degree of interior strength not often found in woman of either extreme.

Luxurious people are not very strong by habit, and overworked people are weak from exhaustion in some of their functions. Between the two is the happy mean; but how many women have plenty of life for two?

The emulsion is almost never superfluons.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.

ABRAHAM'S FORGERIES

May Cause a Loss of Over $200,000 to Banks and Individuals

Boston, Oct. 16.—The financial condition of the bankrupt firm of F. Abraham & Son, pipe manufacturers and tobacco dealers, are said to be in worse shape than was ever contemplated, notwithstanding it was known that forgery and other irregularities had developed, and there seems to be a slim chance of the creditors receiving a dividend of more than a few cents on the dollar. The receivers who are investigating the firm's affairs will not discuss the matter, but of the total liabilities of $240,000, as shown by the meager returns to the court showing the condition of the Abraham estate, over $200,000 is represented in notes, drawn and realized upon by the firm of Abraham & Son, on the strength of indorsements of reputable individuals and concerns, practically all of which are alleged to have been forged by Leopold Abraham, a partner in the concern, now confined in an insane asylum.

The protesting of notes, as they fall due, is a daily occurrence. Many of them are indorsed several times, each signature in turn being repudiated as forgeries as often as presented. As many as 50 banks, concerns and individuals will suffer as a result, each believing that not only was the bankrupt concern good for its promissory notes, but that the indorsements placed them beyond all question.

UNDER HEAVY BONDS

Three Alleged Housebreakers Are Held For the Grand Jury

Boston, Oct. 16.—The city of Cambridge has obtained the custody of the three alleged burglars who were arrested in this city Sunday and in the third district court, Cambridge, each of the defendants was held by Judge Almy in $5000 for the action of the grand jury. The men are Herbert Dudley, 24 years old; Albert Reynolds, 22, of Cleveland, and Frank B. Gordon, 22, of Utica, N. Y.

Nine cases of breaking and entering in Cambridge are laid at the doors of the men, the breaks in the house of Senaotr Parry and in the house of Chief Cloyes of the Cambridge police being among the number. When the defendants' names were called in court each waived examination. Later the men were removed to police headquarters and photographed, and after that taken to the jail in East Cambridge.

Scores of people in all conditions of life have called on Chief Inspector Watts and Captain Dugan, at Boston police headquarters, in the endeavor to find some of the property stolen from them during the summer months.

The two days of overhauling has had its effect on the property, and its apperance is that of a "rummage sale" collection. There are still many articles which have not been identified and the police are anxious that those who really have had things stolen should call and try to identify the goods. Quite a lot of goods were received from New York which had been pawned there by the prisoners. This includes wearing apparel and jewelry.

Mrs. Annie Dudley, wife of one of the men arrested, was released by orders of Chief Inspector Watts. The chief says she is not legally responsible for her acts. Her husband alone must account to the courts for her actions if she is guilty of the crimes alleged.

Mayor Hurley's Bomb

Salem, Mass., Oct. 16.—Mayor Hurley gave the city a shock last night by practically declaring that the police force was demoralized in a communication to the board of aldermen, and the board ordered a strict inquiry into the charges. The mayor in his letter said that bitter antagonism exists between the members of the force. Officers passed each other on the street without recognition or with a scowl and insulting remarks. Backbiting and scandal are prevalent. There is no discipline on the force. He placed the blame on City Marshal Hart.

Politics Forsaken For Cupid

Boston, Oct. 16.—Hon. George Fred Williams appeared in a new role yesterday. Politics was forgotten while he filled a fatherly role and gave away the hand of his niece, Miss Helen Louise Lutz, at a fashionable noon wedding at St. Paul's Episcopal church. Miss Lutz is the daughter of Mrs. H. Louise Lutz of 25 Chestnut street, and the groom, Dr. Edward Russell Williams, is the son of the late Dr. Henry Williams of Arlington street, Boston, who built the first house on that thoroughfare.

Rhode Island Democrats' Ticket

Providence, Oct. 16.—The Democrats of Rhode Island met in convention in this city yesterday. The following-named candidates were nominated for the state officers: For governor, A. F. C. Garvin; lieutenant governor, Adjutant Archambault; secretary of state, Frank H. Fitzsimmons; general treasurer, Clark Potter; attorney general, D. J. Holland. The feature of the platform is the recommendation for a new constitution.

Succeeded In Killing Herself

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 16.—A subtle poison caused the death of Mrs. Estelle Smith at the Hale hospital last night. On Monday she tried to kill herself by cutting her throat with a carving knife and then with a pocket knife, but was overpowered. Later she tried to reopen the wounds. At the hospital the doctors could not counteract the poison, as they did not know its character.

On a Three-Cent Basis

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 16.—The market for narrow odds was marked up another 16th yesterday and the entire market was on a 3-cent basis at the close of business. The market is bare of all spot goods, the low figures quoted by manufacturers on narrow goods cleaning up the heavy surplus of that grade of cloth and causing an advance in the prices of odds for contract delivery.

UPLIFTING INFLUENCE

Shown by Christian Endeavor as Years Advance.

CHURCHES HAVE PROFITED

Much Done Toward Bringing Happiness to the Home Circle and Upright Citizenship—Glorification of God Chief ObjectOf the Society

North Adams, Mass., Oct. 17.—The Christian Endeavor convention came to a close with a meeting last evening at which resolutions were adopted expressing sympathy with Mrs. McKinley in her bereavement, and expressing confidence in Dr. Clark, founder of the society.

The chief address of the evening was by Rev. Dr. Clark, who spoke at length upon the work of the society, answering the question: "What is the chief end of Christian Endeavor?" Dr. Clark said:

Some confusion has arisen in the mind of the general public because of the two relations sustained by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. Sometimes it is spoken of as a local society owing allegiance only to one local church, and so it is. Sometimes it is spoken of as a world wide movement with relations to all the churches, and so it is. Both relations are correct, and neither excludes the other. In fact, both are necessary to the highest development of either.

What is the chief end of Christian Endeavor as a society? To start with the phraseology of the old catechism, its chief end is to glorify God, and build up the local church with which it is connected. Out of 1800 ministers interviewed, 94 percent of them declared that Christian Endeavor had decidedly increased the loyalty of their young people to their own church, 96 percent declared that the interdenominational fellowship was only a help and not a hindrance, and these same ministers declared that 47 percent of the accessions to their churches had come from the ranks of the Christian Endeavor Society.

But Christian Endeavor is a movement as well as a society. What is its chief end as a movement? To glorify God and to promote certain great international and interdenominational efforts among the young people of the world. This end is just as important, just as necessary, just as inevitable, as its end as a local society.

As a movement, Christian Endeavor can stand and does stand peculiarly for Christian citizenship. Its ranks are filled with young citizens,—young men who are casting their early ballots; young women who have "a voter if not a vote." Every four years 200,000 Christian Endeavorers, it is said, join the ranks of voters. How could it be otherwise than that millions of young people banded together should come to feel their collective duty as citizens to make their native lands nobler, purer, more Christlike.

As Christian Endeavor expanded into all the world, its relations to other lands and its responsibility to uplift other peoples came home to its members, and its period of missionary activity and zeal began. Through the denominational boards of the different churches this zeal has been chiefly manifested, and it has materialized in gifts aggregating millions of dollars.

But Endeavorers have other relations besides those that bind them to their own churches and their native lands. Many of them are "set together in families." They are husbands or wives or children or brothers or sisters, as well as church members and citizens, and so the home comes within their ken. W. T. Stead of England declares that the great value of the movement is that in the society so many young men have found good wives and so many girls good husbands. The consciousness of these relations have come to them of late, and they have come to see that in making home a nobler, sweeter, purer place they have an opportunity, and consequently a duty. A practical thing that they can do in a multitude of homes is to promote and sustain the family worship. This vastly important matter, has been taken up in earnest, and the "Home Circle of Christian Endeavor" will mark the year 1901 as an important one in the annals of the movement.

You will see how natural and inevitable are all these features. It has been the result of the environment and relationships of Christian Endeavorers. The society could not live unless it grew. If these natural developments had been cut off or stunted it would have dwindled and died long ago, and all of them are possible only because the society has become a movement. None of them would be practicable in the same degree to a single society, or to those of one denomination, or even of the country.

I have yet to speak of another development which is just as inevitable as the others, and which is perhaps the most important of all. Thank God for the quiet hour. Thank God for all that it means of communion, of peace, of comfort, of insight, of uplift. Thank God for the staying power it has given to the societies and the movement the world around.

These, then, are the chief ends of the Christian Endeavor. As a local society it stands in its humble place to help to the uttermost of its ability the local church. As a movement Christian Endeavor stands for Christian fellowship, Christian citizenship, Christian missions, Christian homes, Christian character.

SUSPENDED IN 1897

Belknap Savings Bank Has Just Had an Assignee Appointed

Laconia, N. H., Oct. 17.—William H. Plummer has been appointed assignee of the Belknap Savings bank of this city. The appointment was made by Judge Charles E. Stone in Concord, at the request of Bank Commissioners John Hatch and George W. Cummings.

The Belknap Savings bank, which is one of the oldest institutions in the city, stopped doing business on May 17, 1897, on account of the temporary tying up of much of its resources, and since that time the trustees have been engaged in turning the assets into cash for the benefit of the depositors, many of whom resided here, while others are scattered all over the United States.

When the bank ceased doing business the amount due to depositors was $961,273. The first dividend was declared and paid 10 months after the bank suspended business and the second eight months later. Since that time four other dividends have been paid, aggregating 70 percent. The first two were 10 percent, the third 20 percent, and the other three 10 percent.

Preparing For Lipton's Visit

Boston, Oct. 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton's visit to Boston, while not as yet an absolute certainty, will in all probability occur, and the date of the visit will be some where about the middle of next week. He will be the guest of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade and Charles E. Adams, president of that body, says: "Provisional arrangements are made for a large reception under the auspices of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade, at the Hotel Vendome, in case of his visit here becoming a fact. Notices are prepared, all details perfected; and when I receive definite word of his coming I have only to give the word to have everything let go that will carry out thes conditional preparations."

Executive Council's Trip

Boston, Oct. 17.—Last night Governor Crane, accompanied by the members of the council and Secretary John P. Smith, left for the annual trip through the western part of the state. Today the Agricultural college at Amherst and the Insane hospital at Northampton will be visited, the party returning to Springfield on Thursday night. On Friday the deaf school at Hartford will be visited, as more than half of the children there are wards of this state. On the return trip a stop will be made at Monson, and the party will reach Boston at 5:40 Friday afternoon.

Rhode Island Republicans

Providence, Oct. 17.—The state convention of Republicans held in Infantry hall, this city, yesterday nominated the officers of the state ticket and perfected a permanent organization of the party. Then the following state ticket was unanimously chosen: For governor, William Gregory of Wickford; lieutenant governor, Charles D. Kimball of Providence; secretary of state, Charles P. Bennett of Providence; general treasurer, Walter A. Read of Gloucester; attorney general, Charles F. Stearns of Pawtucket.

But One Method of Voting

Boston, Oct. 17.—The Boston Election commissioners have decided not to use voting machines at the election in this city this year. According to a decision of the supreme court voting machines may not be used at state elections without a constitutional amendment, but they may be used at city elections. The commissioners do not think it would be proper to vote by printed ballot at the state and by machine at the city elections.

Burglars Got Money and Stamps

Moodus, Conn., Oct. 17.—Burglars cracked a safe in the postoffice here some time after midnight yesterday, and departed with $4000 worth of stamps and $120 in cash from the money order drawer and the postal funds. No mail in the office was disturbed. The postoffice occupied part of a business block in the center of the town. Entrance was gained by forcing in the front door.

Increase Credited to Democrats

Boston, Oct. 17.—The total registration in this city for the state election, which closed last night, is 108,240, as against 106,329 last year. This increase is believed to be almost entirely due to active interest taken on the subject by the Democratic managers this year, as the Republicans have appeared indifferent as far as the preliminary work of the campaign is concerned.

Thrown From Carriage and Killed

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 17.—As a result of his carriage locking wheels with another carriage, Henry Hanson was thrown to the ground and almost instantly killed last night. He was on the way from North Westport to Fall River when the accident occurred, and he died before reaching the hospital.

WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Building Caught Fire and Two Women Were Cremated

INJURED MAN DIES LATER

Fallen Partition In Front and Flames Behind Hemmed Three Women In a Stairway, but They Were Pluckily Rescued by an Injured Man

Bangor, Me., Oct. 17.—A terrific explosion of gasoline, or some other equally powerful explosive, occurred on the second floor of a building on Harlow street, in the apartments of Miss Nellie Haney, yesterday. The explosion completely wrecked the first and second floors and caused a fire, in which Miss Haney and Mrs. Mary F. Carrigan were burned to death. John Barry was frightfully burned, and died last night in a hospital.

The explosion so wrecked the walls of her apartments that Miss Haney was unable to force her way out and expired before the firemen could reach her. The force of the explosion threw a heavy bureau from one room into and half way across another.

Mrs. Carrigan was employed in the restaurant of Nathanial Ladd, located on the first floor of the building, as assistant cook, and worked in the kitchen, which was located at the rear of Miss Haney's apartment. At the time of the explosion there were in the kitchen besides her, John Barry, the cook, Mrs. Emma Sprague, another assistant, and the cook's wife and Mrs. John Cannon. When the shock came Mrs. Carrigan made a dash for the attic, thinking to get out on the roof. The others started for the stairs leading to the street, but Mr. Barry rushed after his assistant to bring her back, knowing that it was impossible to reach the roof from the attic. He was unable to reach her and the blaze cut him off from again descending to the second floor, and he was finally forced to jump from a third floor window.

When the other three women reached the stairway they found it blocked by a fallen partition, thus preventing them reaching the street by that way, while the flames behind them formed a barrister that had them in a veritable trap.

William McAllister, a waiter, was struck on the head by a piece of the steel ceiling that fell when the explosion came, receiving a severe cut, but he kept control of his faculties and rushed to the rescue of the women up stairs. He succeeded in clearing the wreckage so that they could escape, but though he could hear the cries of Miss Haney, was unable to reach her.

The building was owned by the Stillwell estate and is damaged about $1500. The damage to Ladd's restaurant is about $1500. Elgin Greenleaf, who has a saloon in the building, has a loss of about $800. The fire also got into the store-room of the Bangor Bicycle company and did about $800 damage.

Uncomplimentary to Builders

London, Oct. 17.—The court-martial which has been taking testimony regarding the loss of the torpedo boat destroyer Cobra on Sept. 18, while on her way from the yard of her builders to Portsmouth, resulting in the loss of nearly 70 lives, found that the vessel simply collapsed at sea because she was structurally weak, that she did not touch ground, and that there were no errors made in her navigation. The purchase of the Cobra for the government was condemned.

Ready For Work on Treaty

Washington, Oct. 17.—Secretary Hay returned to Washington yesterday from his summer home in New Hampshire and resumed his duties in the state department. Ambassador Choate is expected to arrive in Washington next week and Lord Pauncefoote is due the following week, so that the final stages of the treaty preparation will soon begin.

Still Fighting In Colombia

Colon, Oct. 17.—The situation on the Isthmus of Panama is unchanged. The government forces defeated the insurgents recently at Panonome, killing a large number. The government loss in the engagement was 40 killed and wounded. By a recent decree all import duties in this department were doubled. All liquor duties have also been doubled.

Serious Uprising of Students

Vienna, Oct. 17.—The Neues Abend Blatt reports that there has been rioting in Kicheneff, Bessarabia, where 1000 students attacked and wrecked the house of the governor, the headquarters of the police and the office of The Official Gazette. Eleven persons were killed and 36 injured.

Did Her Part Well

Berlin, Oct. 17.—The debut of Miss Geraldine Farrar of Boston, at the Royal Opera house, where she appeared as Marguerite in "Faust," was a pronounced success. The Berlin musical critics are unanimous in her praise. Miss Farrar sang in Italian.

Preparations Not Yet Begun

Brussels, Oct. 17.—In regard to King Leopold's proposed visit to the United States, absolutely nothing is known in court circles as to when he intends to carry out his purpose. There is no sign of preparations being made for his departure.

WILL NOT ACCEPT BAIL

Molineaux Prefers to Remain Imprisoned Until Date of Trial

New York, Oct. 17.—Roland B. Molineux, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, in New York, was notified by Warden Johnson in Sing Sing prison that the court of appeals had granted him a new trial. When the warden told him the news Molineux flushed slightly, then laughed, and said: "That's good news warden. But I have expected it for several days." The men in the other cells, when they understood the news that Molineux had received, shouted out their congratulations to him.

In talking of his case Molineux said that he did not want to be admitted to bail. He said: "I will not accept any bail if it is offered to me. What I demand is a new trial. I wish to be vindicated and to remove the stain from the name of my family that has been cast upon it by this accusation against me. I would rather remain here in the death house than be taken to New York and released from prison on bail."

Mussolino Caught at Last

Rome, Oct. 17.—The notorious brigand, Mussolino, has been captured after a fierce resistance at Urbino. He had long terrorized Colabria and is credited with having committed 25 murders.

MUSSOLINO.

Owing to the sympathy shown him by the peasantry he has always escaped capture, despite the immense reward the government offered for his arrest. His career as an outlaw began two years ago, when he was liberated from what he considered an unjust imprisonment. He vowed to kill the 15 witnesses who were responsible for his conviction and he is said to have actually despatched 12.

Must Pay $560 For Conspiracy

Buffalo, Oct. 17.—The jury in the supreme court in the case of Westlund against Murphy, for conspiracy, has awarded the plaintiff $560 damages. Westlund was one of the half-dozen laborers who went to Cleveland to take the place of striking moulders last spring. He was lured to Buffalo and sent to the penitentiary for 30 days by Murphy, who is leader in the local labor federation and a saloon keeper. The jury held that it had been established that men were sent to the penitentiary at the instigation of Murphy and gave damages accordingly. The defendant did not testify, a circumstance that told against him, and on which the judge dwelt in his charge to the jury.

A Wicked Couple

London, Oct. 17.—The hearing of the charges against Theodore and Laura Jackson, (Ann O'Delia Diss Debar), was devoted yesterday to revolting testimony of the behavior of the male defendant towards a young woman who was one of the alleged victims of the pair. The alleged deceptions were seemingly accompanied by hypnotic influence. The testimony was of such a character that the London papers, which usually print verbatim reports of sensational criminal trials, say that in this instance they are unable to do so.

Favors Strong Navy

Washington, Oct. 17.—Representatives Dayton and Meyer, who are members of the naval affairs committee of the house, had a talk with the president yesterday with respect to the navy. The president was vigorous in his expressions of a desire to see a strong navy built up.

Barkentine Burned

Boston, Oct. 17.—Advices from Newfoundland state that the British barkentine Shamrock was burned with a cargo of fish at Cape Harrison. The fire was caused by an explosion of a lamp in the cabin.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

Good Afternoon.

The fact that the Trustees of the Quincy Hospital are to make but one appeal this year, should stimulate the citizens to make a very liberal contribution at this time.

The candidacy of Marshall P. Wright of Quincy for County Commissioner is gaining strength daily, and promises to sweep the county on Nov. 5. Mr. Wright is worthy of all confidence and support.

The fact that the son of the late County Commissioner, E. D. Wadsworth, is against Mr. Bowker, Republican candidate for commissioner, is a straw which shows that the Brookline man is not considered a worthy successor of his esteemed father. Mr. Wadsworth senior, fought a winning fight against Mr. Bowker, and we hope his son may be equally successful.

There was plain talk at the Ward Three Republican meeting, but no more so than is necessary to meet the issues. The voters want in 1902 a safe, conservative, independent mayor, and also a City Council which will work in harmony with the administration, be it Republican or Democrat. The voters want neither a Republican-Democrat or a Democratic-Republican, but businessmen who have no old scores to pay.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The astounding information that the first Sunday after Seth Low was nominated for mayor of New York he "arose, breakfasted, went to church, came home again, ate dinner, chatted with his friends and read the newspapers, ate supper and at 10 o'clock retired" is given to the public in a New York sheet that is known as a newspaper. It is strongly suggestive of the principal entries in Mark Twain's diary, which were: "Got up, washed, dressed, and went to bed," and which the genial humorist stated always gave him great consolation to read in after years, as it was convincing proof that in his youth he was not numbered among "the great unwashed."

Political Potpourri.

The Democrats of this Councillor district have nominated N. G. Collins of ward 16, Boston, as their candidate.

Clerk Cleaves, who betrayed his friend Mr. Prescott at the Republican Senatorial convention, and made possible the election of H. Clifford Gallagher of Milton on the Republican State Committee, may have a job at the chocolate works at Milton Lower Mills when he retires from City Hall.

The practice of keeping ambassadors ordinary in foreign courts is generally ascribed to Cardinal Richelieu. Raymond de Beccaria, Baron de Forquevaux de Pavie, knight of the order of St. Michael, was one of the first public ministers who resided permanently at a foreign court.

CANDIDATE JONES.

Ward Three Almost Unanimous for Him.

Plain Talk at Meeting Last Night.

A Strong Feeling Manifest Against Bryantism.

The campaign of Frederick L. Jones, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Mayor at the coming municipal election, was opened by the Republicans of Ward Three Wednesday night at a kind of love feast held at Malnati hall. The meeting developed the fact that the ward is solid for Mr. Jones, and that they will leave no stone unturned to secure him the nomination and land him in the Mayor's chair.

John P. Bigelow opened the meeting, and said it had been called by no one in particular but was to give the Republican voters of the ward an opportunity to express their sentiments for mayor, councilmen and ward committee, and to criticise those who now hold posts.

The meeting then organized with Walter E. Piper as chairman and Frank Carleton as secretary.

Mr. Bigelow then started the ball rolling. He argued that the Republicans of the ward should place in nomination a gentleman from Ward Three and support him strongly. This year we have a candidate who is the peer of anyone yet mentioned or who has filled the Mayor's chair. He desired that the meeting freely express their sentiments.

Frederick L. Jones wanted to take this opportunity to thank all for what they did two years go. I want to know just how you feel toward me. I do not want to go out of the ward without your support. If I have it I shall feel considerable confidence. It is not the money in the office I am after, you all know that, but the honor of it. The time has come when the wards outside of wards One and Five have got to combine before we get any mayor outside these wards. I want a secret ballot for your choice. If it falls on me I go out with a good backing. I want every man to vote as he feels. The mayoralty is very complicated this year, and it is hard telling how it stands. We know there is one candidate from Ward Five who will go into every ward with a delegation.

William Mitchell, John J. Byron, Alex. Clark, W. T. Spargo and others had a good word to say for Mr. Jones and urged the voters to work for him.

A ballot was taken, Messrs. Daniel McLennan, James W. Young and Murdock Campbell being appointed tellers.

The result of the vote was:

Frederick L. Jones had	86
Charles M. Bryant	4
Elisha Packard	1
Blanks	4

Mr. Jones then said he was proud to be among friends. The way you vote suits me. I do not believe in going out without the sanction of the voters. I shall now go into the contest with a good chance and ready to face the enemy. He would like to name his delegation and he suggested the following names which the meeting adopted: John P. Bigelow, Harry S. Nicol, Alex. Clark, Julius Johnson, William F. McCalder, Thomas W. Smith, William Pratt, Daniel McLennan, and Lester M. Pratt.

Councilman Nicol said there was likely to be another candidate with a delegation, but he hoped the caucus would give Mr. Jones 300 votes. He thought it would be wise to carry the fight into other wards.

Mr. Jones said he would leave no stone unturned to secure the nomination. He would not sit back as he did two years ago. Everybody knows that there is a candidate up this year who has gone back on his party. If I ever get to be Mayor it will be by honorable means. He would scorn to go into wards with a barrel of beer and ask men to vote for him.

As to delegates in other wards I am going to be governed by my friends in those wards.

Alexander Falconer hoped all would do their best to secure Mr. Jones nomination and election.

Lester M. Pratt said, the same gentlemen who turned Wollaston Democratic in 1898 now asks us for votes. He also said a word in favor of Mr. Jones.

John Roberts, Andrew Milne and Peter W. Dakers also said a good word for the Ward Three candidate, and thought it was time Ward Three had a Mayor.

The matter of Councilmen then came up. Councilman McLennan thanked the voters for their support for the past three years, and said he wished to step aside and give someone else a chance this year.

John J. Byron believed we should have a Councilman who would not wait for petitions but would make it their business to find out what the ward needed and fight for it. We want live men.

Mr. Jones thought we had good councilmen the past year and that Ward Three had got a lot of improvements.

Councilman W. T. Spargo said, the first year a councilman went in pretty green. He had put in some orders and saw them through. He did not talk much but did what he could.

The following were then suggested from the floor for Councilmen: Thomas W. Smith, William T. Spargo, Walter E. Pipper, Alfred O. Dyer, Charles L. Orne and Julius Johnson.

It was suggested that the name of Councilman at large should be suggested, in case one was needed.

The meeting wanted Harry S. Nicol to run again. Several bouquets were thrown at him but he refused. Councilman McLennan was then selected.

A LITTLE EXCITEMENT.

Up to this time everything had gone smoothly, but Mr. Jones stirred up a little excitement when he said he was sorry that some of the Councilmen had gone back on the administration this year, and instead of the dog wagging the tail the tail had wagged the dog. He liked to see good Republicans in the Council who would stand by the administration. He did not like those Republicans who were half Democrats.

Councilman Spargo seemed to think the coat fitted him and he was on his feet in an instant. He thought that was a little rough on some of the councilmen. He did not know whether it meant him or not. He would like to know who was a half Democrat. He had gone back a little on the Mayor because he vetoed all the appropriations. If we sustained the Mayor there would have been no improvements.

Mr. Jones said he thought their was no need for Mr. Spargo to get his back up. He had made no reference to any Councilmen from this ward. When I said Republican Democrats I did not mean Mr. Sprago. I mean the man who runs the City Council. There was no question but a Republican Democrat run the City Council and the Council fell in with him.

This explanation satisfied Mr. Spargo and the incident dropped.

The following were then nominated as Ward Committee for 1902 and the meeting adjourned.: John P. Bigelow, James W. Young, Frank W. Flowers, Daniel McLennan, Frank L. Carlton, James W. Pierce and William T. Spargo.

The Old Songs Sung.

An old folks' concert under the direction of the Methodist church society, was held Wednesday evening in the church at Wollaston. At six-thirty the people assembled in the vestry, and after a blessing by Rev. Jesse Wagner, partook of a bountiful supper. After the repast they assembled in the church where an old folks' concert was given. Many participated and a delightful evening was enjoyed by all.

Both Miss Belcher and Mr. Sargeant read interesting selections. The following selections were sung:—"Invitation," "Turner," "Strike the Symble," "Old Folks at Home," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Auld Lang Syne," "Complaint," "Cousin Jedidiah," and "America."

Wollaston Alliance.

At the Ladies' Alliance of the Wollaston Unitarian church, Wednesday, a large number were present to hear Miss Marie Baldwin, principal of the Aggasiz school, Cambridge, speak upon Harriet Beecher Stowe. Miss Baldwin's pleasing personality, combined with an eloquent flow of language, kept her audience intensely interested for an hour or more, while she sketched the life and works of Mrs Stowe. An informal reception followed with light refreshments. Some musical selections by Mrs. H. Y. Follett gave much pleasure. The next meeting of the Alliance will be held at Mrs. Edmund Taylor's on Hancock street.

The Edward Hewiston associates will hold their first meeting of the season in the Congregational church, Wollaston, on Tuesday evening at 7.30. As usual the boys will be conducted in music by Herbert Y. Follett.

The dedicatory services of the remodeled Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street will take place on Sunday at 3 P. M., to which the public is invited. The present pastor of this society is the Rev. G. Wald Luefstedt.

Walter L. Whittemore of the junior class of the Quincy High school, has successfully met and passed the examination for the Institute of Technology. Mr. Whittemore completed the four years course at the High school in three years.

The Woman's Alliance of the First church will send barrels in a few days to Tuskeegee, the Calhoun Industrial school and Snow Hill. Contributions of articles are solicited, and may be left with Mrs. J. H. Emery, Hancock street; Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Hancock street; Mrs. George Saville, Saville avenue.

A Harvest for Our Hospital.

A noted speaker in one of our churches, making an appeal for money for a worthy cause, said, "Put it upon the altar of your conscience, and give what comes from this." Thus in this beautiful harvest weather let us count what we glean for our share and make a bountiful offering Hospital Sunday. We found a few years ago that shoe operatives in Lynn gave $13,000 from small individual donation, each year.

Turkish Bed Couches.
We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.
5 STYLES, $12.00 to $18.00.

A PORTERHOUSE STEAK
that's a "porterhouse" in reality, as well as in name—tender, juicy, fine flavored—can always be had at Hancock Meat Market, first because it will be cut from a prime grade of beef, second because great care is taken in handling the meat, third because it's cut just exactly as a porterhouse should be cut. We take special pride in our steaks, but equal care is taken with everything in the meat line.

THE VOTING LIST.

Quincy Has More Voters Than In Presidential Year.

The Registrars of voters were in session Wednesday from 12 o'clock noon until 10 o'clock at night, and they were kept busy a greater part of the time, especially in the evening. During this time 76 new names were added to the lists, and 25 restored.

By actual count there were on the voting lists at the close of registration in October last year 4,584 voters. This year when the preliminary lists were posted in August the number of voters was 4,264. Since then 355 names have been added and restored, swelling the number to 4,619. This is even larger than at the Presidential election, and shows how Quincy is growing.

The following table shows the number on the lists August 12 by precincts and the number added:

	Aug. 12.	Added.
Ward One, Pre. 1,	364	38
Ward One, Pre. 2,	445	33
Ward Two, Pre. 1,	205	25
Ward Two, Pre. 2,	326	24
Ward Three, Pre. 1,	440	37
Ward Three, Pre. 2,	381	20
Ward Four, Pre. 1,	393	18
Ward Four, Pre. 2,	406	35
Ward Five,	695	78
Ward Six,	529	47
	4,264	355

The totals for four years at the State elections are given below, and they are today 621 larger than three years ago:

	1901	1900	1899	1898
Ward One, Pre. 1,	402	911	797	738

C. E. Entertainment.

The Christian Endeavor society of Wollaston held a sale and entertainment Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Congregational church. There was a large variety of articles for sale, and all the tables were tastily decorated.

Fancy table, Miss Alice Thompson and Miss Elsie Patterson.

Apron table, Mrs. H. E. Rhodes, Misses E. Woodworth and Sadie Wiley.

Candy table, Misses Flora White and and Mary Chase.

The entertainment under the guidance of Miss M. Nickerson consisted of a piano duet by Misses Winship and Williams, piano solo by Master Carleton White, and selections on the mandolin and guitar by Messrs. Kenneth Lewis and C. C. Dow, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Gordan Gannett. There were many present and a good pecuniary result is expected.

The excitement incident to traveling and change of food and water often brings on diarrhœa, and for this reason no one should leave home without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. For sale by all druggists.

THE LOGS READ.

And Season of Wollaston Yacht Club is Ended.

The very successful season of the Wollaston Yacht club was brought to a close on Wednesday evening by a large gathering of the members and a few guests at the clubhouse at Wollaston Park.

The attraction of the evening was the reading of three logs by members of the crews of the Claytonia, Brant and Rover, the first two having cruised to the coast of Maine, and the last mentioned as a bird flies to Yarmouth and Lockport, N. S.

The notes of Mr. H. W. Pinkham for the Claytonia were very copious and entertaining—but the captain of the Brant afterward said he had not told all, insinuating that there were good reasons why. The log, however, was very interesting, and gave considerable light on the pleasures, tribulations, and incidents.

Capt. J. A. Fenno of the Brant told his story at length off hand, and it was full of dry wit and fun.

It was a long time before Capt. Smith could be induced to read the log of the Rover, but the records of the club would not have been complete without it. Mr. Smith did not follow the shore, but struck out boldly for Yarmouth. He kept his bearing remarkably well and made a memorable voyage. Commodore Baker spoke enthusiastically of the yachting season, the progress of the club, and the high character of its members. Just fifty new members have been added this year. He awarded prizes as follows:

First championship prize, a cock-of-the-walk pennant, to the Theodora, Capt. Frank Burgess.

Second prize, $3 cash, to Mudgekeewis, Com. A. L. Baker.

Third prize, $3 cash, to Thelma II, Capt. Eugene Merrill.

Cup in first club race to the Theodora.

Cup, a second prize to the Mudgekeewis.

Cup in Boys' race to Splash, Capt. Harold Waterhouse.

Cup, as second prize, to the K. C., Capt. Brook Keyes.

Also other prizes for aquatic sports.

Clever harmonica solos were introduced, and F. F. Prescott and ex-Commodore Gardner were called upon for remarks.

About 9.30 a fine oyster stew was served with pickles, sandwiches, doughnuts, coffee, etc.

CITY BREVITIES.

Now is about the date when Adams Academy takes gorgeous tints upon the foliage that clothes its front face.

The young surveyors, their assistants and our genial Superintendent of Public Works, make a welcome and pleasant group upon Upland road. The property there is valuable to Quincy and improvements are in season.

At the whist party, held at the home of Mrs. Alice Litchfied, Tuesday evening, souvenirs were awarded to those having the highest scores: first lady's, Mrs. F. A. Lapham, 50 points; second lady's, Miss Etta Lapham, 49 points; first gent's, Mrs. Sadie Johnson, 48 points; second gent's, Miss Gertrude Osborne, 45.

The Entre Nous whist club was entertained by Mrs. Richard Prout o South Quincy, Wednesday afternoon Prizes for the best scores were awarded to Mrs. Samuel Burrell and Mrs. Arthur Feltis and Mrs. Harry Taber received the booby. Refreshments were served. The club meets next week with Mrs. Arthur Feltis.

Mr. Lewis P. Webber, formerly chief of the Boston fire department, bu lately retired after a long continued service of thirty eight years, is about to take up a permanent residence at Quincy Adams. The house purchased is one of J. W. Pratt's finest, situated on Independence avenue which of late has grown to be one of the prettiest avenues in the city.

Brothers Separated 52 Years.

Benjamin Johnson, the well known lumber dealer, had the pleasure Wednesday of meeting his brother, LeBaron H. Johnson, whom he had not seen for 52 years. The brothers were born in Maine, and when a young man, LeBaron left home. For years nothing was heard of him, and he was given up as dead. After a lapse of thirty-two years word came that he was in Alaska. Since then the brothers have had some correspondence, but as both are well along in years they never expected to meet. Wednesday morning a carriage drove to Mr. Johnson's house, and a gentleman alighted It proved to be the long lost brother. The two brothers, as they grasped each others hand, were hardly able to recognize each other, but the greeting was none the less warm, and the day was given up to recounting incidents of boyhood days and their lives since then. Mr. Johnson's brother has been in Alaska for 48 years.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection, October 21 to 26—Hospital Sunday, Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bounteous response?

(Signed) Timothy Reed,
Secretary Board of Trustees.

WON BY FORFEIT.

Thayer However Was Anxious to Play It Out.

Thayer Academy defeated Boston Latin school on French's Common, Braintree, Wednesday afternoon, by forfeit when Boston Latin was ahead, being credited with one touchdown.

Thayer kicked to Boston Latin the first half, the latter making but little gain. At first Boston Latin made repeated gains about the centre, but were checked before they reached Thayer's goal. The latter found the Latin's line harder to break up and made most gains through tackles and ends. Thayer to make gains punted to the Latin school holding them on the fifteen yard line. They ripped up Thayer's line in good shape and soon succeeded in pushing the ball beyond the goal. Again when within five yards of the goal Thayer held Latin on downs and when time was called the ball was within five yards of Boston Latin's goal. At the end of the first half a misunderstanding arose which resulted in the forfeiting of the game to Thayer. It was understood at the outset of the game that Mr. Gallagher should referee throughout but the captain and coach of the Latin school stated that it was customary for the umpire and referee to change their positions in the second half. As this was not decided at first, Thayer would not give in and as the Latin school left the field. The referee thus forfeited the game to Thayer.

Boston Latin was by far the heavier team but would undoubtedly have been beaten if the game continued. Remick at punting and long gains and Carr at tackling excelled for Thayer.

Kiley who has been coaching for Thayer and Latin school, too, through the game seemed anxious for disputes, but found he had little weight in the game. Thayer is a little sore over the treatment received by the coach, who so suddenly left them in the lurch before this game. Being thus betrayed Thayer had to change its signals, and plays, but proved to put up a better game than when they had been under the supervision of this coach.

Thayer has beaten Latin school for several years and this year put up a noble fight in an unequal match. Saturday they desire to make it an even thing with Milton Academy. The line up:

SCHOOL CENSUS.

Quincy Contines to Make Great Gains.

Charles H. Johnson has just completed taking the school census of the city and his returns show that the tot number of school children between the ages of 5 and 15 years to be 5,281, a gain of 182 over last year.

All wards show gains except Ward Four which shows a loss of 22, which is somewhat remarkable as this has always been considered the banner ward for children.

The largest increase in any one ward was in Ward Six, where the gain was fifty more than any of the other wards. The increase in ward six as will be seen by the accompaning table was 95.

In Ward Two the increase is also quite noticeable. The figures show but 33 more than last year, but when it is considered that 54 children have moved from the ward during the past year it will be seen that the ward is more than holding its own.

The smallest increase was in Ward Five, where there are but nine more than a year ago.

The following table explains itself:

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

Put Bullet In Cousin's Head

Monson, Me., Oct. 17.—Henry McPeters, 40 years old, assistant cook for a woodchoppers' crew, was shot and instantly killed last night by his cousin, Leslie Peters. McPeters went to an orchard and got a bag of apples, when he was seen from a distance by McPeters. The latter shouted and whistled, but receiving no response decided that it was a deer and fired, the bullet passing through his cousin's head.

Weight Too Much For Boat

Portland, Oct. 17.—Seaman Starks and John Davis started from Yarmouth yesterday afternoon to sail down the bay. The jib halyards became unrove and Davis, who weighs 170 pounds, started to climb to the top of the mast. He had almost reached the top when the little craft capsized and sank. Starks was drowned, but Davis was rescued.

Rogers Litigation Ended

New York, Oct. 17.—All litigation with regard to the will of Jacob S. Rogers has been settled. In commenting on this Robert W. De Foresi, counsel for the Metropolitan Museum of arts, said: "The effect of this settlement will be to put the museum within a short time in possesion of Mr. Rogers residuary estate, the value of which is upwards of $5,000,000, and to enable it to [illegible] carry out his benevolent intentions promptly [illegible] intentions."

Educational Statistics

Washington, Oct. 17.—About 21 percent of the population of the United States attend public schools and 2 percent of the rest attend private schools, according to the annual report of the commissioner of education. The grand total in all schools, elementary, secondary and higher, public and private, for the year ended July 1, 1900, was 17,020,710 pupils, an increase of 282,348 over the previous year.

A Compressed Program

St. Johns, Oct. 17.—The Duke of Cornwall and York has made large alterations in the program for his reception in St. Johns next week. The yacht Ophir will arrive Oct. 24, but the duke will not land until 11 o'clock the next morning, when the functions will be hurried through. The state banquet will be given in the evening and the Ophir will sail for England Friday morning.

Extensive Surgical Operation

Montreal, Oct. 17.—Sixty inches of cuticle were removed from the body of Mathilda Mitchell at the general hospital yesterday and grafted upon her brother's body. The boy was injured in a railway accident and the skin grafting operation was necessary to save his life. The operation is one of the most extensive ever performed.

Crooked Bank Bookkeeper

Altoona, Pa., Oct. 17.—David M. Wolf, 31 years old, bookkeeper of the First National bank of Tyrone, Pa., has confessed to the embezzlement of $12,000 of the bank's funds. He is bonded for $10,000 by a surety company. The bank officials have taken no action against him.

Filing of Claims Not Ended

Boston, Oct. 17.—The claims for damages resulting from the L road already represent an aggregate amount of $10,000,000, divided among about 1000 entries on the superior court calendar. It is said that only half the claims are in at the present time.

Trunkful of Jewelry Astray

Boston, Oct. 17.—Officials of the Adams Express company state that no trace has been found of a missing trunk containing jewelry valued at $15,000, shipped by Martin Copeland & Co., of Providence on Sept. 28 to D. D. Percival & Co. of this city.

On the Gridiron

New Haven, Oct. 17.—Despite their pluck the Bowdoin football players went down under Yale's attack yesterday to the score of 45 to 0. The game was of the whirlwind order from the start until the very last minute of the play.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

IRRITATED AT DELAY

Sears Testifies as to Conversation In Ward Room

DID NOT CRITICIZE SCHLEY

Gives Further Explanation of Points Covered In His Previous Testimony —No Satisfactory Conclusion as to Time Consumed In Brooklyn's Turn

Washington, Oct. 17.—The officers of Admiral Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, occupied the attention of the Schley court of inquiry for the entire day yesterday.

The proceedings began with the recall of Captain Cook and Lieutenant Commander Sears, both of whom made material additions to their former testimony, and they were followed in succession by Commander Mason, who was the executive officer of the Brooklyn, Lieutenant McCauley, who was the signal officer, and Lieutenant Webster, who had charge of the forward gun deck battery of the Brooklyn during the battle off Santiago and was a watch officer on board that ship.

Captain Cook's new testimony related to the uncoupling of the Brooklyn's engines and to the voyage of the flying squadron from Cienfuegos to Santiago, explaining in some detail the cause of the slow progress made on that occasion.

Commander Sears spoke again of the conversation reported as having taken place between himself and officers of the Massachusetts in the wardroom of that vessel on May 31, in which he was alleged to have said that it had been difficult to get Commodore Schley up to the point of undertaking the bombardment of the Colon, and he again denied that he had said anything reflecting upon his superior officer.

Lieutenant Commander Sears by correction in his testimony made a pose of explaining [illegible] for the purpose of explaining the disposition of the vessels at night while Commodore Schley was in charge of the blockade of Santiago. He said these vessels had been sent a distance out each night, and every night in different directions on account of the fear of torpedo attacks.

The judge advocate then asked: "In regard to the conversation in the wardroom of the Massachusetts, as alleged on May 31, in order to refresh your memory in regard to that matter you are informed that Lieutenant Potts, Lieutenant Grant, Lieutenant Glennon and Major Wood are supposed to have been present and participating in that conversation."

"I do not recollect it all. It could not be possible I said such a thing. They have misunderstood what I said. I was irritated at the delay. In the wardroom talk something might have been construed in that way, as statements often are, but it is entirely impossible that I could have said that. I was impatient, excited, perhaps, it being my first engagement, and I might have made some remark. It is something someone might have misunderstood, but that remark I never made."

"What do you mean by irritated at the delay?" "Delay of not going immediately into this work."

"Explain what you mean by immediately?"

The witness: "As I recall, I was irritated at Captain Higginson's request to delay the reconnoissance until after the men's dinner. I remember that very well."

The court questioned Commander Sears on various points covered by his previous testimony. He said in reply to these questions that on the morning of July 3 the Brooklyn had begun turning to starboard immediately after the engines were started; that the helm of the Brooklyn had been put aport when the helm of the Viscaya had been put aport. "It was," said he, "a practical simultaneous movement." He also said that when he had said to Commodore Schley during the battle that he thought the Brooklyn was about its tactical diameter from the Viscaya, he did not mean that the distance was less than had been reported by Yeoman Ellis. The tactical diameter of the Brooklyn had not then been determined, and he had supposed it to be about 750 yards. The Viscaya had been passed long after the Brooklyn's turn and they ran along together for some time.

After the Colon had passed the Viscaya she had outfooted the Brooklyn and it was then that she was 12,000 yards from the Brooklyn, as indicated by the stadimeter, which the witness said he did not consider an accurate instrument. After that time the Colon, having exhausted her best coal, lost her speed, and the Brooklyn gained upon her.

Asked how much time had been consumed in the Brooklyn's turn, Commander Sears said he had never been able to reach a satisfactory conclusion on that point. The time had seemed very short to him; it might have been 15 or 20 minutes. On the morning of July 3, but previous to the battle, he had, he said, noticed that all the ships were near to positions assigned to them except the Texas. That ship was outside her assigned place, and was at the time headed to the eastward about as much as the Brooklyn was to the northward. The official chart putting the Texas well inside of the Brooklyn and the Iowa, he said, was contrary to his observations.

The last of the court's questions was concerning the relative positions of the Brooklyn and the Oregon during the chase of the Spanish fleet up the Cuban coast. The Oregon was not, he said, so near the Viscaya as was the Brooklyn, but might have been nearer the Oquendo. "We were always nearer the Colon during the chase," he said, "nearer during the chase and surrender."

Commander Mason and Lieutenants McCauley and Webster all gave accounts of the engagement of July 3. Mr. McCauley recited in detail the signals made in connection with that historical event at the instance of Commodore Schley. When asked if Commodore Schley said anything during the battle for the encouragement of the men this witness replied that he several times said: "Give 'em hell, bullies."

All these witnesses testified that the conduct of the commodore when under fire was cool and courageous.

Cabinet Changes Unlikely

Washington, Oct. 17.—When the attention of Secretary Long was called to the report in the morning newspapers that he was about to resign, a somewhat persistent report, he said, in substance: "The cabinet situation with all its members is on just the same basis as if President McKinley had lived; there might have been changes before 1905, and so there may be now. But when President Roosevelt asked us all to remain we accepted the invitation in the spirit in which it was given, and we shall do by him as we would have done by his predecessor. Personally, I am settling down in Washington for the winter, and making my plans accordingly. I do not contemplate any early change of purpose."

Rivals For Circus Woman's Hand

Ballston, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Joseph C. Banks was arraigned here yesterday on an indictment for murder in the first degree in shooting and killing Herbert G. Tackaberry. Banks was superintendent of a circus, and Tackaberrry a discharged employe. It is said the men were rivals for the affections of an equestrienne and jealousy was the motive of the shooting. Banks pleaded not guilty. He was exonerated at the inquest by the coroner on the ground of self-defense.

Bryan Praises Towne

Duluth, Oct. 17.—Eight hundred men of all shades of political opinion attended a farewell banquet tendered by Duluth citizens to Charles A. Towne last night. The affair was non-partisan and a testimonial to Mr. Towne's personal popularity among his friends and neighbors. William J. Bryan highly praised the guest of the evening for his action in 1896, at the time of his farewell to the Republican party to follow silver. Mr. Bryan did not inject politics into his speech.

Cannibals Feasted on Marines

Madrid, Oct. 17.—A despatch received from Rio Muni, a Spanish possession on the west coast of Africa, say that some cannibals who recently captured several marines have eaten the prisoners.

Two Years For Forgery

San Francisco, Oct. 17.—John M. Neall, formerly a captain in the United states army, recently convicted of forgery, was sentenced yesterday to serve two years at San Quentn at hard labor.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Maine railroad commissioners have denied the petition of the Kittery and Eliot Street Railway company for right to cross the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad in the town of Kittery.

The Boston board of health has reported another case of smallpox, the patient being a woman in Dorchester. The victim has been under observation for several days.

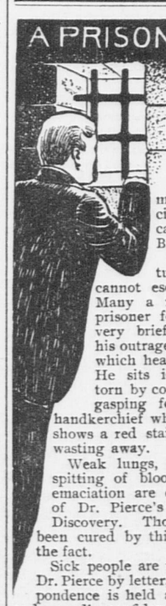

A train struck and instantly killed William Crocker, a farmhand, at a grade crossing at North Beverly, Mass.

Benjamin R. Bryant, agent of Cambridge, Mass., has filed a petition in bankruptcy, showing an indebtedness of $13,454. He has only $20 assets.

Suit Against Sherman Estate

Mansfield, O., Oct. 17.—Treasurer Brimfield of Richland county yesterday filed suit against the executors of the late Senator John Sherman's estate for $277,174, claimed as back taxes, penalty and treasurer's 5 percent.

A PRISONER FOR LIFE

Offences against the laws of health are punished rigorously and inevitably by nature. A man may break civil laws and escape punishment. But the man who transgresses nature's law of health cannot escape the penalty. Many a man is to-day a prisoner for life, and for a very brief life, because of his outrage of the laws upon which health is conditioned. He sits idly in his chair torn by coughing spells and gasping for breath. The handkerchief which wipes his lips shows a red stain. He is slowly wasting away.

Weak lungs, obstinate coughs, spitting of blood, weakness and emaciation are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Thousands who have been cured by this medicine attest the fact.

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." The sole motive for substitution is to enable the dealer to make the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines.

"Three years ago I had the grip," writes Mrs. Tillie Linney, of Gravel Switch, Marion Co., Kentucky. "It settled on my lungs, and the doctor said I had consumption. I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and am thankful to say I am entirely well. You may print this letter if you see fit to do so."

His One Daily Meal.

Dr. George Fordyce, the celebrated anatomist and lecturer on chemistry, used to eat one meal a day and one meal only, but it was a mighty one, washed down with liberal drafts of wine and beer. At 4 o'clock every day he used to enter a certain chophouse and take his seat at a table always reserved for him. A silver tankard containing a quart of strong ale, a full bottle of port and a quarter of a pint of brandy were placed before him immediately.

The moment the waiter announced the doctor's arrival the cook put a pound and a half of rump steak on the fire, and to while away the time until the steak should be properly broiled the waiter brought the doctor some tempting morsel like a broiled chicken or a plate of fish. When he had eaten this, Dr. Fordyce drank half of his brandy and then began on his steak. While eating the steak he drank the tankard of ale and after that the rest of the brandy. The waiter then uncorked the bottle of port, and the doctor proceeded slowly to enjoy it until it was all gone. He spent an hour and a half daily at his one meal and after it returned home to give his lectures on chemistry, which are still quoted as classics of that science. He ate nothing else until the next day, when he returned at the same hour to the same chophouse for the same sort of a meal. Dr. Fordyce lived to be sixty-six years old and kept up his one meal custom to the last.

Why the Joke Fell Flat.

A big, good natured farmer was awaiting the suburban train, accompanied by a handsome Gordon setter. Two sons of Britain stood near him. The dog strayed away from his owner, who was reading a newspaper.

"Hey!" called the farmer. "Come here, Locksmith," and the dog immediately ran to his feet.

One of the Englishmen approached the farmer.

"May I ask," he said, "what you called that dog?"

"Locksmith," said the farmer.

"And why, pray?"

"Because every time I kick him he makes a bolt for the door."

There was a general laugh, in which the Englishman joined.

When he returned to his companion, he remarked:

"Most extraordinary name that man over there calls his dog."

"What?" asked his friend.

"Locksmith," replied the first Briton.

"And why such a name?"

"Because, he says, every time he kicks 'im he bolts for the door."—St. Louis Republic.

The Weight of Ice.

The iceman and the coalman are often suspected of giving short weights—maybe oftener suspected than guilty; maybe oftener guilty than suspected. The means of testing the weight of from ten to thirty pounds of ice are not always at hand in the house, but a close estimate of the weight can be reached by multiplying together the length, breadth and thickness of the block in inches and dividing the product by thirty. This will give very closely the weight in pounds. Thus, if a block of ice is 10 by 10 by 9, the product is 900, and this divided by thirty gives thirty pounds as the correct weight. A block 10 by 10 by 6 weighs twenty pounds. This simple method can be easily applied, and it may serve to remove unjust suspicion or to detect short weights.

French Railways.

Railways in France are forbidden to carry persons visibly or notoriously affected by contagious diseases in compartments that are used by the public. In the second place, the daily cleaning and the periodical disinfection of all cars are required. Linens of sleeping cars must bear a ticket indicating to the passenger the date of the last cleaning, and they must be properly washed and afterward subjected to a high temperature. Dry sweeping and dusting, which only serve to scatter disease germs, are prohibited, it being required that all floors, seats and woodwork be wiped with cloths moistened with some antiseptic solution.

The Arctic Weasel.

In cold countries where snow prevails during a long winter many of the animals change the hue of their coats to a white tint. The arctic bear and fox are white throughout the year. The northern hare is brown in summer and white in winter. The weasel is especially curious. It retains its brown coat until the first snow appears and then whitens in a few hours.

He Remembered.

Wife (revisiting the scene of her betrothal)—I remember, Algernon, so well when you proposed to me how painfully embarrassed you were.

Algernon—Yes, dear, and I remember so well how kind and encouraging you were and how easy you made it for me, after all.—Tit-Bits.

A Clever Dog.

"A Durango man," remarks the Floresville (Mo.) Chronicle, "was showing to a friend the good points of his dog and threw a half dollar coin into the river. Obediently the dog dived for the coin and brought up a two pound catfish and 35 cents in change."

The Railway Instinct.

"How did that railway magnate's daughter happen to accept Jim Boozle by Buffer?"

"I think it's because he runs his name in three sections."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Friendless.

Kind Lady—Poor fellow, have you got no friends?

Hay Hazard—No, mum; I hain't got nobody but relatives.—Exchange.

MORE WARSHIPS.

Work Ahead for Quincy Shipyard.

Secretary Long Wants at Least Five.

The Naval Board of Construction Favor More.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Secretary Long expresses the opinion that three big battleships, two heavily armored cruisers of high speed and a number of gunboats should be added to the navy. This gives a reliable forecast of the naval increase program that will be laid before congress. At the last session a clause was added to the naval bill directing the secretary of the navy to prepare plans and estimates for two big battleships and two armored cruisers and submit them to congress at the beginning of the coming session. The secretary regards gunboats as essential, and will probably renew the recommendation he made last year that 12 be authorized. Mr. Long will recommend that the enlisted strength of the navy be increased to 30,000 men and that provision be made for adding line officers to the navy by increasing the number of cadets at the Naval academy.

Speaking of estimates for the naval establishment, Secretary Long said: "We can't have a navy unless we pay for it. The cost of the ships is only the beginning. We must have men to man them and must buy coal for them. Coal is expensive, and it takes a lot of money to supply the fuel needed for the ships. Then we must have yards in which to care for the ships and facilities for repairing them. The greater the number of vessels the greater must be the outlay in this direction. As for the appropriations asked for the Philippines and other islands we must have facilities for caring for the vessels at those stations."

Bostonians Pleased the Duke

St. Jonn, Oct. 18.—St. John was in gala attire yesterday on the occasion of the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. They were loudly cheered as they passed through the city on the way to the exhibition building where the address of welcome was read by Mayor Daniel. The duke in his reply to the civic address, referred to the deputation from Boston in the following terms: "I am glad to find from the kind words of the address from the British societies and residents of Boston that though they have transferred their homes to a foreign land, their hearts still beat in sympathy with the aspirations and ideals of the empire of their birth."

Lorenzo Snow's Will

Salt Lake, Oct. 18.—The late President Snow of the Mormon church left no will. The property owned by him is valued at $10,000 to $12,000. The heirs number 30, including two wives, 12 sons, 13 daughters and three grandchildren, but in the administrator's list the name of Lerol C. Snow, the reputed favorite son of the late church president, does not appear. Neither does the name of his mother, Minnie Snow, the youngest wife, with whom the decedent was living at the time of his death. The attorney for the administrator says omission was unintentional and will not in any way effect the rights of these two heirs.

Seventy Hurt In Riot

Budapest, Oct. 18.—At Dobreczin, on the announcement that the liberal candidate had been elected to the Hungarian parliament, the Kossuthists began to stone the military and police who were on duty. The police finally charged the mob. Some 70 rioters and many soldiers and policeman were severely injured in the conflict. The windows of the town hall and of other buildings were broken. Hundreds of persons have been placed under arrest and the disturbances have not yet been quelled.

George Men Against Tammany

New York, Oct. 18.—The most significant political development is a letter sent to Edward M. Grout, the fusion candidate for comptroller, by Charles Hennessy, who managed the Henry George mayoralty campaign in 1897. Mr. Hennessy declares that he and the George men generally are opposed to Tammany Hall, and will support Mr. Grout and the whole fusion tickeet. On the other hand, young George has declared himself for Shepard.

When you have no appetite, do not relish your food and feel dull after eating you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Price, 25 cents. At all druggists.

SENTENCE DEFERRED

Jury Returns Verdict of Guilty in the Case of Mrs. Earnshaw

Boston, Oct. 18.—A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury in the superior court against Mrs. Susie Earnshaw, who was charged with kidnapping 3-year-old Susie May Addison from her home on Compton street, on Sept. 29. Judge Bell deferred sentence. Under the law the penalty for the crime is not more than 10 years in prison or a fine not exceeding $1000 and not more than two years in jail.

The government sought to show that the child had been kept against her will at the Earnshaw house on Alhion street for several days; that she had been illtreated and had been fed with whisky to prevent her crying and that when found by a police officer Mrs. Earnshaw had declared that the child was her sister's child, and she had been sent to her for safe keeping. The defense was that the little one had strayed to the Earnshaw house, that she had in fact not been detained at all, but was being simply kept in safety until her parents were found.

Wants County to Settle Bill

Boston, Oct. 18.—The courts will soon have another important question of law to settle in the case of the commonwealth versus Charles R. Eastman, who was discharged several months ago after a long trial on an indictment charging murder. There were many expensive expert witnesses for both the prosecution and deefense employed then. The government experts have already been paid by Middlesex courts. Mr. Eastman believes that the expense he incurred in hiring the expert witnesses who testified during the presentation of the case of the defense should also be borne by the county. The bill which the defendant thinks he ought not to be asked to pay amounts to about $4300. The particular issue involved has never been passed upon by the Massachusetts courts.

Strike Sentiment Dying Out

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 18.—The Textile council held a long session last night and voted that in the future no line of action should become operative unless sanctioned by four of the five unions. Secretary Whitehead said there would be no strike next Monday at which time the two weeks' postponement declared by the council will expire. The action of the council has caused a feeling of relief throughout the city and the impression generally prevails that the strike will not materialize.

Patrolman Out of a Job

Newton, Mass., Oct. 18.—Patrolman Jeffrey H. Marchant has been found guilty of neglect of duty and sentenced to dismissal from the police. He was charged with "conduct unbecoming an officer and neglecting to properly patrol his route." On the particular charge of breaking and entering the office of the Newton & Boston Street Railway company and abstracting five bunches of transfers, the decision is "that the evidence is not sufficient to sustain the charge."

A Decision In Bankruptcy

Boston, Oct. 18.—A decision was handed down by Judge Lowell in the United States district court, in the case of Zephaniah Talbot, a bankrupt, to the effect that the wife of the bankrupt is not entitled to prove a claim against the estate of her husband for money advanced to him from her separate estate, because a debt between husband and wife is void at law and is unforceable either at law or in equity. The wife's claim is therefore denied proof.

A Boom For Milford

Milford, Mass., Oct. 18.—The largest contract for building stone that ever came to Milford was awarded yesterday to Daniel W. Darling of the Bay State Pink Granite company. The contract calls for the furnishing of cut pink granite for the Hanover National bank, which is to be erected in New York city, and which will be 23 stories high. The general contract involves millions of dollars.

The Missing Trunk of Jewelry

Boston, Oct. 18.—It is believed that the trunk containing about $15,000 worth of jewelry, which was shipped from Providence for Boston Sept. 28, by Martin, Copeland & Co., and which since has been missing, is somewhere in Boston. It is thought likely that it was stolen and taken to some boarding house, where the contents were removed.

Labor Difficulties Adjusted

Boston, Oct. 18.—The differences of coal teamsters and helpers, which one time threatened to assume proportions of a strike, in which nearly 1500 men would be affected, were amicably settled yesterday with the signing of an agreement as to wages and hours of labor, which is mutually satisfactory to employers and employes.

Heroic Work of Firemen

Boston, Oct. 18.—At a fire at the corner of South and Beach streets yesterday, 15 women were cut off from means of exit to the street. They were all rescued from the third story by the heoric work of the firemen and several citizens. But three bear marks of the fire. The property loss is very heavy.

TRIP FROM CIENFUEGOS

Was Made In Heavy Weather and Choppy Sea

THE COALING QUESTION

Again Comes Before the Court—Ships Proceeded With Dispatch as a Unit—Further Testimony as to Schley's Conduct In Trying Period

Washington, Oct. 18.—The presentation of Admiral Schley's side of the controversy was continued before the Schley court of inquiry yesterday, eight witnesses being examined. Of these, five were ensigns, and the entire eight had served on board the Brooklyn with Admiral (then commodore) Schley.

The first of the day's witnesses was Lieutenant Webster, who had begun his testimony Wednesday. He was followed by Lieutenant Commander Griffin, who had charge of the powder division on board the Brooklyn during the fight off Santiago, and he was succeeded by Ensigns Abele, Haligan, Macy, Hand and Marble. The last witness of the day was Medical Director Fitzgibbons, who was chief surgeon of the flying squadron.

Commander Griffin gave details of the Cienfuegos campaign, saying that the distance of the blockading line there varied from three to seven miles, being farther out at night. Speaking of the voyage from Cienfuegos to Santiago, the witness said the weather was "heavy" and that there was a "short, choppy sea." He also said that the heavy sea had impeded the fleet by delaying the smaller vessels, especially the Eagle.

Referring to the battle of July 3, the witness said that he had been in charge of the powder division and that it also was his duty to look after the lower decks. Consequently he had not seen a great deal of the fight. He said that he had seen the Viscaya go ashore and that, looking abaft the Brooklyn's beam along the coast, he had seen two other Spanish ships on fire, with the Colon some distance ahead on the starboard side firing occasionally. Then he went into the forecastle, where Commodore Schley, Captain Cook and Commander Mason were standing, remaining there until the Colon surrendered. The Oregon was, he said, then following very close to the Brooklyn.

Commander Griffin said that when the Colon gave up the conflict the Oregon was close to the Brooklyn's starboard quarter, and that the Texas and Vixen were within sight astern.

"Can you speak of the conduct, bearing and manner of Commodore Schley during the engagement in which you saw him?" "He impressed me as being remarkably cool considering what had just occurred. He was perfectly natural in manner and bearing."

On cross-examination, Captain Lemly questioned the witness closely concerning the weather on the trip to Santiago, the sending away of the Eagle for coal and the blockade of Cienfuegos. Reading from the Brooklyn's log, he said that at the time of the Eagle's departure the sea was recorded as moderate. He also, at Captain Lemly's request, again detailed the position of the Oregon when the Colon surrendered, saying that the vessel was from 600 to 800 yards on the starboard quarter of the Brooklyn, slightly in shore. The two vessels were headed in practically parallel lines. Mr. Hanna said: "Did you hear Commodore Schley say anything about leaving Cienfuegos?" "I did not."

"Or coaling difficulties?" "I did not remember. I know he was always extremely anxious and seemed to coal whenever there was an opportunity. I do not remember any particular conversation. The conversation about going to Guantanamo impressed me particularly, because afterward I thought it was a wise decision."

Mr. Hanna asked the witness whether the flying squadron had "proceeded with despatch" on the voyage from Cienfuegos to Santiago, and the witness replied: "Yes, as a unit, until we made the turn to the westward on May 26. The slowest ship fixed the speed, and that was six or seven knots an hour."

"Then in your answer you except the retrogade movement?" "I do."

Having said that when the fleet left Cienfuegos it was the general understanding that it was bound for Santiago, the witness, under questions of Mr. Hanna, stated that the fleet was headed east, when it stopped south of Santiago May 26. He said in reply to a further question, that if the squadron had continued as then headed it would have landed "anywhere to the eastward."

The court asked: "Was it the roughness of the sea that made it difficult for the Yale to take the Merrimac in tow or that caused the hawsers to part?" "I am not sure."

By the court: "What difficulties did the Brooklyn have in coaling off Santiago prior to June 1?" "I do not think there was any difficulty during those dates."

Mr. Rayner: "Isn't it a fact that the derrick beams on the colliers were too short and were not coaling breeches rigged on all the ships in order to coal?" "That is the case of the Brooklyn. I cannot say about the other ships."

While Engign Haligan was on the stand, Mr. Rayner sought to bring out information as to the American ships in sight at the beginning of the battle of July 2, but Captain Lemly objected on the ground that the question was intended to show the absence of the New York and the interrogatory was withdrawn. Ensign Marble stated that he had heard Captain Sigsbee tell Commodore Schley when he came aboard the Brooklyn on May 26 that the Spaniards were not in Santiago.

There has been some inquiry as to Admiral Schley's standing in the navy since he was placed on the retired list because of age, but it appears that all question on this point has been settled by the department having assigned the admiral to "active duty" at the court of inquiry while it is in progress. This action was taken to prevent any question as to the effect the admiral's retirement would have on the action of the court.

BULGARIA MUST ACT

Consul Dickinson Refused to Pay Ransom For Miss Stone's Release

Cologne, Oct. 18.—A dispatch to the Gazette from Sofia says that Mr. Dickinson, the American counsul general at Constantinople, who has been active in trying to secure the release of Miss Stone, the American missionary, has discovered that the brigands who captured her are the tools of the Macedonian committee. He has, therefore, resolutely refused to pay any ransom and has asked the Bulgarian government to arrest the chief instigators of the abduction. Several influential members of the Macedonian committee have already been arrested.

Not Known In Boston

Boston, Oct. 18.—It is reported at the headquarters of the American board nothing is known of Pastors Dimikroff and Zirkoff, reported killed by the brigands who carried off Miss Stone. The secretaries say, however, that they might be connected with the Bulgarian mission without any personal report of their names in Boston. But Rev. J. F. Clark, D. D., a missionary of the American board, now in Boston, who has worked in Bulgaria and European Turkey for more than 40 years, declares positively that there are no preachers of that name in the whole region.

Liberal Offerings to Ransom Fund

New York, Oct. 18.—Secretary Creegan of the American board announces that a Mr. Ingram of Eau Claire, Wis., has offered to be one of 10 to pay the $50,000 required to complete the ransom fund for Miss Ellen M. Stone. Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage has offered to be one of the 50 to pay $1000 each to complete the fund. Contributions are being received by Kidder, Peabody & Co. of Boston and by the American board, 105 East 22d street, New York.

Bulgaria's Debt to Macedonians

London, Oct. 18.—Discussing the abduction of Miss Stone editorially, The Times says: It is extremely doubtful whether the Bulgarian government will exert itself to inflict inconvenience upon the Macedonian committee, from which it is accustomed to expect political services.

End of Maine Relief Fund

Washington, Oct. 18.—The battleship Maine relief fund has now been exhausted. This fund was turned over to Captain Sigsbee for disbursement when he came ashore from his last sea duty, and he has been distributing it as fast as deserving applications were received. Captain Sigsbee has requested Secretary Long to appoint a committee to audit his accounts.

No Loot From China

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—H. G. Squiers, secretary of the American legation at Pekin, who arrived here on the steamer Coptic, denies the story that he has brought a lot of loot from China to give to the American museums. During his stay in China, he says, he purchased art treasures and bric-a-brac worth $50,000 or $60,000.

Mutinous Conduct of Sailors

London, Oct. 18.—The gunsights and other fittings of the British first-class battleship Magnificent, flagship of Rear Admiral Aoland, have been cast into the sea in the English channel by members of the crew in order to bring about the righting of grievances which the crew complain of.

To Make Shovel Handles

Mercer, Me., Oct. 18.—A large tract of timber land north of this village has been purchased by S. L. Marble and H. A. Hennison of Springfield, Mass., who propose to erect a shovel-handle factory on Sandy river, near Starks.

Treasure From the Klondike

Seattle, Oct. 18.—The steamship St. Paul arrived yesterday from Nome. The vessel had more than $1,500,000 in treasure, $245,000 of which was for Seattle and the remainder for San Francisco.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Vills, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

The new act relative to a three-year term for CityClerks does not take effect unless approved by a majority of the voters at the next City election. If adopted it would be compulsory on the incoming mayor to appoint a CityClerk for three years. The adoption of the act would be against the fundamental principle of the Quincy charter, which holds all departments responsible to the Mayor. No other official who is alone in charge of a department is appointed for more than one year.

The act reads as follows, sections 2 and 6 relating more especially to Quincy:

Section 1. In the year nineteen hundred and one and every third year thereafter there shall be elected by the voters in every city required to elect a city clerk in December, a city clerk, to hold his office for three years from the beginning of the next municipal year.

Section 2. In the year nineteen hundred and two and every third year thereafter, in every city not required to elect or appoint a city clerk in December, there shall be elected or appointed as required by the charters of their respective cities, a city clerk, to hold his office for three years from the day of his election or appointment.

Section 3. Every such clerk shall hold his office until the election or appointment and qualification of his successor, unless sooner removed by due process of law.

Section 4. When a vacancy shall occur in the office of city clerk the person elected or appointed to fill the vacancy shall hold the office until the end of the unexpired term of the person last holding the office.

Section 5. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 6. This act shall be submitted to the voters of every city at the next annual municipal election, and upon its acceptance by a majority of the voters voting thereon in any city shall take effect in that city.

The Hearld gives sound reasons why our navy should be enlarged. The United States is a big country and appropriations must of necessity be large. The Herald says editorially:

"The opinion of the secretary of the navy, backed, as it doubtless will be, by the President, that a considerable addition should be made to the war fleet of the American navy will go a long way toward convincing Congress of the desirability of this augmentation to our fighting force. The experience in South Africa has shown—and our own experiences in the war with Spain is of a confirmatory character that effective armies can be improvised in relatively short space of time. It may take months, but it certainly will not take years.

With the construction of a modern navy, conditions are entirely different. A battleship that was planned and built in a year would be completed in an extraordinary short space of time. Indeed, it is questionable whether any of the large modern craft of this character have been thus made ready for service in twelve months' time. It is certainly safer to estimate on eighteen months or two years as the term needed for careful construction.

"Besides this, the number of shipyards where craft of this kind can be built is relatively small, and for these two reasons, in order that a nation may undertake an offensive and defensive warfare on the high seas, it must begin its work several years in advance of the breaking out of hostilities.

"The standard of a nation's naval strength is conditioned by that which other and possibly hostile nations possess. While it is unnecessary for us to adopt the standard of England for our guidance, or the reason that a war with England is not only exceedingly improbable, but we have through the possible occupation of English territory to the north of us a means of effective warfare, the same cannot be said of other European nations.

"Although not admitted at Berlin, there is what seems to be a tolerably well founded belief that the Germans have the wish to acquire possessions on the American continent, and that, if they thought their naval strength was considerably superior to that of the United States, they would not hesitate to make a public declaration of these intentions. It appears to be a part of the policy of our government to prevent possible trouble coming from this qurarter by not allowing the Germans to build up a navy having an effective strength greatly in excess of our own: and if the apprehension referred to has any justifiable foundation, these increases of naval strength may be a cheap rate of insurance to pay for the maintenance of national peace."

Drift of Opinion.

☞ That we live too fast in this country has long been conceded. Fundamentally the cause of it is the old mistake of considering the means as the end. We pursue business and attainments of whatever sort as if the pursuit were the thing and not the results of the pursuit, and therefore as if the fiercer we pursue it the more it is to be desired. The result is that we wear ourselves out without getting the finest fruit or flavor of anything. —Indianapolis (Ind.) News.

Street Railway Company Ready Listeners.

A Hearing by Council Committee.

Likely to Adopt Many Improvements Suggested.

The public hearing given by the special committee of the City Council, to enquire into street railway accommodations, needs, etc., held at City Hall on Thursday evening was not largely attended. Some supposed that the hearing was relative to through cars to Boston but chairman Nichols stated that the hearing was in relation to the order of April 22, which was to inquire into what locations the street railway had other than those built upon, to hear complaints and secure better service and connections.

Vice President John R. Graham, General Supt. Robert S. Goff, and Assistant Supt. John T. Conway of the Quincy division were present to represent the railway; also Andrew A. Meyers for Houghs Neck, Henry P. Kittredge and Representative Badger.

Mr. Meyers asked if the hearing had any reference to any matters pending. He then spoke of the tracks on the Houghs Neck line which had been torn up by the sewer. People were obliged to walk quite a distance. He would like to have the Council use its influence in having the railroad build a temporary track. In stormy weather these breaks would make it bad for passengers. The railroad accepted the franchise and should accommodate patrons.

Supt. Conway said the tracks were torn up last Friday. The company can not help themselves.

Chairman Nichols said this discussion did not properly came under the order. He would like some suggestions as to improvement of service. The railroad is not on trial.

Mr. Graham. At a previous hearing it was suggested that through cars be put on between West Quincy and Neponset and that has been done.

Chairman Nichols asked what the prospect was for fifteen minute service to Wollaston.

Supt. Goff—The policy of the company is to extend and keep ahead of travel. We are contemplating additions to the equipment. Twenty-six new cars are now due for delivery, and Quincy will probably get ten of these. We are mapping out all the time for improvements.

Supt. Conway hardly thought the Wollaston line as deserving of fifteen minute time as some other lines. It had not been so considered.

Supt. Goff, in answer to a question, said improvements were to be made in the Houghs Neck line in the way of new track. The company is alive to its own interest, and if there is a demand for fifteen-minute time to Wollaston we will certainly put it on.

Councilman Adams asked about cars on the East Weymouth line.

Supt. Conway said half-hour cars were run with extra cars in the morning and evening. Delays were frequent at the Quincy Point drawbridge which could not be helped. A car would arrive and find the draw up and would have to wait. Sometimes on the evening trip we get a load and some times we do not. When we do, an extra car is run out, but owing to the facilities the people will not wait for an extra car but will crowd onto the other car.

Chairman Nichols asked if there was not a demand for more cars around Norfolk Downs.

Supt. Conway in reply said the Norfolk Downs car seemed to be the one that caught people at both ends who were going through and this was the occasion of the loaded cars rather than the demand by Norfolk Downs people.

Representative Badger spoke of the need of a line through Faxon road and Atlantic to Neponset. This would build up that territory. Such a line was talked of some time ago.

Supt. Goff—We will be very glad to look the territory over.

Mr. Graham—We had plans made of such a route and was very much in favor of it, if we could discontinue the line between Faxon Road and Hancock street. We thought we would wait until the new depot was built as we were told there was to be a new street built through to Atlantic street. The scheme to run a car through here and come out onto Hancock street at the corner of Atlantic street was a good one and a plan for such a route had been made.

HOUGHS NECK.

Mr. Meyers—Half hour cars between 6.30 and 8.30 in the morning, and between 4 and 6.30 in the evening on the Houghs Neck line would be appreciated. He had made no complaint for the past year as the railroad had shown a disposition to accommodate the people. The people of Houghs Neck would like a car every night at 9 o'clock and a late car on Wednesday and Saturday nights.

A little tilt was then started between Mr. Meyers and Mr. Graham, relative to the agreement of the railroad to run cars in winter. Mr. Graham said the agreement was if the line did not average $5 a day between November and April the company would not be asked to continue it. In looking over the receipts for last year it was found that between these dates the average was less than $3 a day.

Mr. Meyers asked if that was not an agreement for a franchise?

Mr. Graham. No.

Chairman Nichols shut off further discussion on this question.

Henry P. Kittredge complained of the sudden discontinuance of cars on the Houghs Neck line without notice. It seemed to be a mistake to change so suddenly without notice.

Supt. Conway—When the time was first changed printed timetables were gotten out and circulated. A new timetable had been made out giving running time on all lines.

A matter of building a temporary track around the sewer on the Houghs Neck line was again brought up.

Mr. Graham said it would cost $800 to build a track around the sewer that would be safe. We have no location there and if we had an accident we would be liable for trespass. The question whether the contractor should be made to pay for building the temporary track was a new one, and it would cost more than the expense of a new track to go to law and find out.

The hearing then adjourned.

As one of J. F. Merrill's delivery teams was entering the C. H. Hardwick estate on Washington street this morning the transom bolt broke, allowlowing the wagon to fall. A large box and a barrel of flour fell on Mr. Ford the driver, and he was severely injured. The horse ran through several streets.

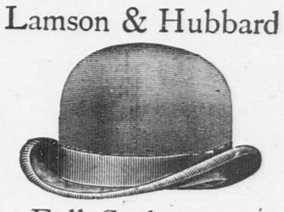

There is considerable complaint over the poor connection of the Quincy and Milton cars at East Milton. By a change of the running time on one, and the through cars from Neponset being generally late, it necessitates a long wait. The two roads should work together for the benefit of the public.

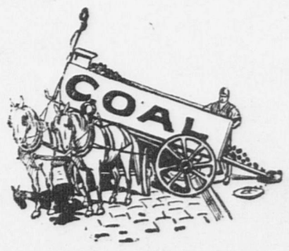

Shortly before 7 o'clock Thursday evening a man well advanced in years entered the store of Charles M. Jenness. He appeared to be in a dazed condition and as he was apparently getting worse a physician was summoned, who ordered his removal to the hospital. At that time it was thought he could live but a few minutes. This morning he was reported as comfortable. His home is in Holbrook.

Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

A PORTERHOUSE STEAK

that's a "porterhouse" in reality, as well as in name—tender, juicy, fine flavored—can always be had at Hancock Meat Market, first because it will be cut from a prime grade of beef, second because great care is taken in handling the meat, third because it's cut just exactly as a porterhouse should be cut. We take special pride in our steaks, but equal care is taken with everything in the meat line.

BRAINTREE WONDER

Leo, the Son of Dr. Brett, Does RemarKable Things.

The story of the wonders performed by Leo Brett of Braintree, the son of Dr. F. W. Brett, is not new, but here is scientific statement of one of his achievements told by the editor of the Coming Age which will be of interest:

The examination took place at the residence of Frank W. Brett, M. D., at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The patient was a young man from Fall River, who was accompanied by his father, a gentleman of intelligence, who seemed to be thoroughly familiar with the uses of the X-ray, having taken a great number of successful pictures of his son's arm, which was the subject for examination by the boy.

Dr. Brett called his son, Leo, in from the street. The boy came in with face flushed and eyes dancing from the excitement of his play. He sat down and was almost instantly hypnotized by his father, who, as soon as he was unable to open his eyes, said to him: "Now, Leo, you will be able to see the young man's arm perfectly plain when you open your eyes. Open your eyes." The command was promptly obeyed, and the boy was then requested to look at the right arm and to describe what he saw. He said immediately:

"Why part of the bone of the upper part of the arm is gone."

"Well, do you see any bone formation going on?"

"On the inside," he replied, "the bone is growing, because I see a place between the old bones where it looks like gristle and I think the bone is forming there; but on the outer side there is a place where there is no bone."

He was then requested by the father to show just the location, which he did by touch. His father also requested him to draw a diagram of the bone which he did showing exactly where he contended there was no bone on the outer side and the part of the arm where the new-formed bone appeared more like gristle than bone.

Leo was then requested to see if he could not perceive anything else. He, looked very intently. I noticed his eyes wandered apparently over every part of the arm from the shoulder down. He seemed to be concentrating his gaze almost as a microscopist would in examining something quite fine. He was seated about three and one-half feet from the subject. Finally he said "I see holes, but I do not see anything."

I suggested the fact that as the accident occurred so long ago there would not be any holes in the tissues, and that it might be possible that what appeared to be holes to the child were in reality the shot. The doctor then asked him to point with his hand to where the holes appeared. This he did, and the father said, "That is exactly the place where the shots are." He then asked him if he saw any other holes, and he said, "Yes; up there," pointing to another place. "How many? "Three."

The father said that this was correct. The X-ray revealed three shots in that location, but to the boy they appeared merely as holes. The doctor then asked him how many holes there appeared near the bone where he had indicated. He replied: "Quite a number. They are very close. I do not know how many." The doctor then pressed him. "Should you say there are 10, 15, 20, 60, or 100. "I should say there were at least 15," replied the boy, "and there seem to be some a little way off from the bone, only a few."

The father replied that the X-ray showed about 20 shots in the locality to which the boy referred.

When the examination was over, the doctor released him with a word and the suggestion that he rest for a minute. When he came into a perfectly normal state he was able to talk about and describe what he had seen as intelligently as he did while hypnotized, but, of course, he was no longer able to see in any other than a normal way. The whole impression gained from this the observation was that in some strange way, when hypnotized, the vision of the subject is extended, or the eye rendered sufficiently sensitive to the vibrations to be able to penetrate where it is impossible for the normal vision to explore.

Later this patient was taken to New York, and without a word of suggestion as to what Leo Brett had seen, Dr. McBurney diagnosed the case exactly as described by this wonderful boy.

WRIGHT vs. BOWKER.

County Contest Based on Character of Two Candidates.

[Editorial from Herald Oct. 17.]

The commissionership in Norfolk county has apparently settled down to a contest based on the character of the two candidates. It will be remembered that a few days ago the Republican of Norfolk county convention put in nomination, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of one of the commissioners, Mr. Bowker of Brookline, a man who was one of the board of county commissioners at the time the Dedham court house scandal occurred and who was admitted to be responsible for the serious derelictions, in official duty which were made evident by the investigation of a special legislative committee. At that time Mr. Bowker's term of office ended with the year in which the investigation was made, and for that reason his indignant townsmen did not consider it necessary to have special action taken in his case. But at a town meeting in Brookline, held for the purpose, the other member of the board of county commissioners, who with Mr. Bowker was responsible for what had taken place, was thought to be so obnoxious that the town voted to ask the Legislature to impeach him, a proceeding which the General Court found involved so many difficulties that it was hardly wise to undertake it. But this incident indicated public opinion on this subject, that those who had in effect betrayed the official trust that was reposed in them were not proper persons to continue in public office.

That under the circumstances, Republican convention in Norfolk county should out of all possible candidates have made Mr. Bowker its nominee is one of those strange proceedings that can only be accounted for by realizing that a political machine possesses enormous influence at party conventions, that it is rarely scrupulous concerning those whom it selects for preferment.

The Democratic convention, which was held on Tuesday put in nomination in opposition to Mr. Bowker Mr. Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, a man who has held in Quincy several important public offices, and has served the city in a manner to win for himself the approval and confidence of all classes of his fellow-citizens. Mr. Wright is a retired business man who has acquired a competency by industrious application and we believe we are justified in saying has the respect of all who know him. There is not much doubt that Mr. Wright will receive on nomination paper an independent Republican nomination for the purpose of thus making it easy for certain Republicans to vote for him who are so strongly partisan that they dislike to vote for any one who has simply a Democratic nomination.

This office, as many others in this state, is in no sense political in its official aspect. The nominations are made by political parties because we have grown into that habit; but what is needed in a position such as this is good business judgment combined with entire honesty and Mr. Wright's past career, both in private and public life, gives every reason for believing that those who cast their ballots for him will vote for a man whom they can implicitly trust.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bounteous response?

(Signed) Timothy Reed,
Secretary Board of Trustees.

Ward Three Appeal.

To the people of Ward Three:

Our City Hospital is about $8000 in debt, and is in need of $3000 to carry on its good work for this year.

Committees are appointed from each ward to canvass and collect for this purpose, and we feel assured that Ward Three will liberally respond to this worthy object. It is the intention of your committee to call on every person in the ward, and if each man and woman will contribute a little, with the assurance that no other collection will be made for one year, the desired results will be secured.

The collectors will receive and credit to you whatever you wish to contribute during the week commencing October 21, 1901.

HENRY McGRATH,
Chairman Committee Ward 3.

Bigelow Street Couple Serenaded.

It is not often that hurdy-gurdys are accompanied by a goat, but Thursday evening the combination appeared at a Bigelow street residence. It was an "awful lovely" goat, and while the crank of the hurdy gurdy was being oiled for a long engagement, the goat all bedecked with blue ribbons was tied to the front door knob. Then the soul inspiring music filled the air. When the door was opened there was the goat and the musical instrument, and two Italians who "no understand English." The goat was invited in, and the music continued for over an hour. The B. B. C.'s gathered and commisserated with the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Abbott L. Melcher who had but just returned from their wedding tour.

When the hurdy gurdy had exhausted itself, there was vocal and instrumental music within. The intruders had ordered ices and refreshments, and all in all it was a lovely evening.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

NEWS IN BRIEF

George Godfrey, once a pugilist of note in New England, died at his home in Revere, Mass. Dropsy was the cause of death. He was 53 years old and leaves a widow and six children.

As a tribute to the late President McKinley, the Boston common council voted to change the name of Postoffice square, its location being signified by its name, to McKinley square.

A controlling interest in the stock of the Somerset, Me., railway has been sold to John F. Hill of Augusta and William T. Haines of Waterville. The stock of the road is capitalized at $736,648.

The Connecticut lodges of the Ancient Order of United Workmen have ceased to work under the jurisdiction of the grand lodge of Massachusetts, and will have a separate jurisdiction under the grand lodge of Connecticut.

At a banquet of schoolmasters of New Hampshire, held at Manchester, resolutions were adopted looking toward the organization of a social organization to be known as the "New Hampshire Schoolmasters club."

An incident in the opening of Oxford county supreme court at Norway, Me., was the excusing of a grand juror because he had been bound over to the jury on a case against himself.

All Mussulmans Secure Converts.

Europeans habitually forget that every Mussulman is more or less of a missionary—that is, he intensely desires to secure converts from non-Mussulman peoples. Such converts not only increase his own chance of heaven, but they swell his own faction, his own army, his own means of conquering, governing and taxing the remainder of mankind.

All the emotions which impel a Christian to proselyte are in a Mussulman strengthened by all the motives which impel a political leader and all the motives which sway a recruiting sergeant, until proselytism has become a passion, which wherever success seems practicable, and especially success on a large scale, develops in the quietest Mussulman a fury of ardor which induces him to break down every obstacle, his own strongest prejudices included, rather than stand for an instant in a neophyte's way. He welcomes him as a son, and, whatever his own lineage and whether the convert be negro or Chinaman or Indian or even European, he will without hesitation or scruple give his own child in marriage and admit him fully, frankly and finally into the most exclusive society in the world.—Townsend's "Brown Man."

Loaded With Fat.

In the good old days when we were greatly pestered by a neighbor's sow, or mule, or bull, or dog, invading our premises and taking unwarranted liberties we loaded the old shotgun with powder and fat meat and, after serving due notice upon said neighbor and said notice being ignored, set out to uphold the first law of nature, self defense.

The amount of execution that can be done by a wad of fat meat on top of a good charge of powder is amazing. Wherever it strikes hair and hide disappear. It seldom if ever kills, but leaves scars that time does not obliterate. The fat being salty, causes excruciating pain, which lingers long in memory, and the stricken animal does not offend again.

A tallow candle can be shot through a two inch oak board without injury to the candle. In like manner a tallow bullet if driven by a sufficient charge of powder would penetrate a man's body and grease him so well internally that he would not care to go dueling again. A glancing shot would plow ugly furrows in the skin.—New York Press.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

CLOSE TO CAPE TOWN

Boers Have Penetrated to Saldanha

GOT RECRUITS AND SUPPLIES

In the March Through Great Berg Valley—British Find Ample Stores of the Enemy Miles From Railways. Women Inspecting Refugee Camps

Cape Town, Oct. 18.—The invaders have reached the sea, a commando of 500 men having penetrated through the rich Great Berg river valley to Hopefield and Saldanha bay, 60 miles northwest of Cape Town.

The republicans have secured a number of recruits and considerable quantities of supplies. General French is directing the operations against them.

In a brisk fight at Twenty-Four streams, near Piquetberg, yesterday, Captain Bellews and four other British were killed and several others were wounded.

The British having surprised several camps, the Boers are now in the habit of shifting camps by night. Lately the British columns after long night marches have arrived at their objectives only to find the Boers gone.

British columns penetrating Orange River colony miles from the railways, find fields of maise or freshly plowed lands, the Boers making off at their approach and returning when the columns pass on. The herds on the high veldt still seem to be numerous. The Boers are living on cattle and mealies stored in out-of-the-way places.

A British convoy left Bloemfontein Saturday for Dewetsdorp with 120 tons of supplies for the Boglie Smith column escorted by 120 of the Scots guards under Major MacGregor. When it reached Lefuew Kop it was attacked by 200 Boers, who held a position on a hill. The fighting lasted all day Sunday, until dusk. The Boers decamped during the night, leaving 20 of their dead behind them. The British had 11 slightly wounded. The convoy delivered the supplies at Dewetsdorp and returned without further trouble.

A commission of six Englishwomen is inspecting the Boer refugee camps with exceptional thoroughness. There are 39 such camps and the commission is not likely to finish its labors before the end of December. The government is rigid in its requirement for secrecy, and all points relating to the humane treatment of the Boer women and children will be reserved for the parliamentry blue book.

Reunited After Half a Century

Boston, Oct. 18.—After a separation of 52 years Benjamin Johnson of Quincy met his brother De Baron H. Johnson of Alaska at the former's home. During all that period Le Baron Johnson has been on the frontier or in Alaska and away from civilization. The Johnsons' belonged in Bangor, Me., and in 1849 Le Baron went to California in search of gold. For 32 years he was not heard from, but since then an intermittent correspondence had been kept up. Le-Baron Johnson has come east to see his brother.

Molineaux Leaves Death House

New York, Oct. 18.—Roland Molineux was brought from the state prison at Sing Sing yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied on the trip by General Molineux and Mr. Battel, one of his counsel. He is in his old cell in the tombs. Molineux looks very healthy, although very spare and showing the prison pallor. He is in excellent spirits.

From a Russian Standpoint

Moscow, Oct. 18.—The Rossiya calls upon the United States government to sacrifice Secretary Gage or to compel him to change his views concerning the tariff war It is inconceivable that political friendship can co-exist with economic war, and any leaning of President Roosevelt toward reconciliation would be cordially met by Russia.

Would-Be Judge Is Fined

Amsterdam, N. Y., Oct. 18.—John N. Wallace and Edmund F. Lake, socialists, were tried here yesterday for obstructing the streets and disturbing the public peace by holding a meeting. They were convicted and each fined $10. Wallace is a socialist candidate for judge. The men were tried before a jury.

Charged to United Irish League

Dublin, Oct. 18.—Judge Morris, at the opening of the Roscommon sessions yesterday, said he had received documents purporting to emanate from the United Irish league, marked with a coffin and containing diabolical threats against King Edward.

Cresceus Meets With Failure

Columbus, Oct. 18.—Cresceus went against time at the local driving park yesterday to beat his own record of 2:02 1-4, and failed. The best he could do was the mile in 2:05½. The record which Cresceus holds was made on this track.

Postoffice Named For McKinley

Washington, Oct. 18.—Assistant Postmaster General Bristow has ordered the establishment of a postoffice to be named McKinley in Franklin county, Washington. This is the first office so named since the death of the late president.

Mormons' New Leader

Salt Lake, Oct. 18.—As the regular meeting of the Mormon apostles yesterday Joseph F. Smith was chosen and set apart as president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in succession to the late Lorenzo Snow.

Case of Murderer Storti

Boston, Oct. 18.—While the great fight to save Luigi Storti from the electric chair this month is going on in the supreme court at Washington and the supreme court here, his spiritual adviser says the condemned man cannot live more than one or two months, as consumption has fast hold upon him.

Lipton Won't Visit Boston

Boston, Oct. 18.—President Charles E. Adams of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade, the organization which expected to entertain Sir Thomas Lipton here next week, has received a dispatch announcing that owing to pressing business engagements in London Sir Thomas cannot come.

Two Battles.

Porfirio Diaz gained national prominence and won his spurs at the battle of Puebla, where the Liberal forces made a gallant but ineffectual stand against the French who had invaded Mexico for the purpose of erecting a throne for Maximilian. Notwithstanding the fact that the Mexican forces were defeated, their defense against superior numbers was so gallant that the anniversary of the battle of the 5th of May became a national holiday in Mexico.

A brusque American once asked the president, "Why do you Mexicans celebrate a defeat when you know that the French finally took Puebla?"

President Diaz, with a twinkle in his eye, replied, "Perhaps we have imitated the Americans even to the extent of celebrating our defeats, for I have been told that the British defeated the colonists at Bunker Hill, and yet you built a monument to commemorate the event."

Scotch Economy.

A Scottish noble lord, famed among his friends for his saving, or, as he would have put it himself, his careful propensities, went out one day shooting in his broad moors, accompanied only by his keeper. After an afternoon's hard work he sat down to rest and, ruefully contemplating his bag, observed thoughtfully, "And to think that each brace has cost me, first and last, at least 15 shillings, Donald!"

"Eh, eh!" answered Donald consolingly. "Then it's a mairey yere lairdship missed the many ye did today, for it's a nice bit ye've saved, I'm thinking."—London Sketch.

Sedan Chairs In France.

The sedan chair still exists in Orleans, a bustling town not far from Paris. In this pretty city, says a Paris newspaper, especially on Sundays at the hour of mass, the classic sedan chair, as it was known to the gallants of the eighteenth century, is borne through the streets by robust carriers, its occupants being aged people and invalids, to whom the jolting of a carriage is intensely disagreeable.

The Cause of It.

"May I ask, sir, how it is that you and your brother are so bald?" inquired the inquisitive barber.

"Well," replied the customer, "I'll tell you if you'll promise not to say anything more about it."

"Oh, certainly, sir!"

"Well, it's because our hair has fallen out."

A Wonderful Fan.

Mme. Pompadour had a wonderful fan. The lace cost about $30,000, and it took some years to make the five sections, each one containing a medallion so minute as to be almost invisible to the naked eye. It is now in existence, broken and apart, but still showing traces of its great beauty.

His Size.

He—Often when I look up at the stars in the firmament I cannot help thinking how small, how insignificant, I am after all.

She—Gracious! Doesn't that thought ever strike you except when you look at the stars in the firmament?—Exchange.

In the year B. C. 128 eight hundred thousand persons perished by a pestilence arising from the putrefaction of great swarms of dead locusts.

BLOOD

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor.

There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high, we are being refreshed, bone muscle and brain, in body and mind, with continual flow of rich blood.

This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood, is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil. It sets the whole body going again—man woman and child.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

THE NICARAGUAN ROUTE

Favored by Those Interested In Canal Question

PANAMA COMPANY'S CLAIM

Must Be Clearly Presented and Go Beyond Financial Consideration In Order to Make a Favorable Impression—Diplomatic Points Involved

Washington, Oct. 18.—In the opinion of incoming members of congress who discuss the Isthmian canal question in the light of the visit of M. Hutin, president of the board of directors of the Panama Canal company, the bent in their body remains stronger toward the Nicaragua route than toward the Panama route, and the latter will have to have its claim presented with great clearness and force in order to make a favorable impression in the face of such odds.

The Panama company will have to offer not only reasonable terms in dollars and cents, but a plan which involves the transfer of an absolutely flawless title, guaranteed by the French courts against all claims and other incumbrances. Then, also, it will be necessary to ascertain what the Colombian government itself is willing to do in the premises. If it proposes to charge so much for consent to a bargain between the Panama company and the United States as to make the total cost of the Panama enterprise more expensive than total cost of building the Nicaragua canal and paying the demands of the Nicaraguan and Costa Rican governments, it will be useless to try to woo congress away from its first love.

Nor will the delay be wise, in the opinion of the best judges. The most urgent endeavors have been made for the last year to induce the department of state to negotiate tentative treaties with Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Colombia, in which shall be definitely stated the sum each will demand for the necessary concessions to the United States government in case the path shall be cleared of diplomatic and all other obstacles to our construction of the canal. Secretary Hay has persisted in his opinion that the Hay-Pauncefote treaty must be got out of the way first, but has admitted that as soon as that matter had been settled the rest would be in order.

The prospect seems fair that the Hay-Pauncefote treaty will be ratified in a very short time, and that means, of course, that the other negotiations will follow promptly. It is unfortunate for Colombia's share in these that her minister, Dr. Silva, has been caalled away by the Pan-American congerss, and that her domestic affairs have been seriously upset by a war. But congress is not likely to assemble in a mood which will permit such drawbacks to stand in the way of early and definite action on the canal question. Hence it behooves the Panama company to speak at once and to the point if it is going to have any consideration at all.

Without doubt a proposition has been made by M. Hutin to our Isthmian Canal commission for the transfer of the Panama property to this government. M. Hutin, accompanied by Jules Roeufve, chancellor of the French embassy, called on Admiral Walker yesterday. They expect to hold conferences for several days, and announce that while they will rigidly refuse to make known anything that has yet transpired, it is likely that some statement will be given out later in the week. The conference this time had more of an air of seriousness than at any of the previous ones.

M. Hutin submitted this time a revised statement of the expenditures and liabilities on the Panama route, and the first purpose of the conferees was doubtless to get together in an estimate of the value of the present work toward carrying out the American canal plan in distinction from its value as a part of the simpler French scheme. When an agreement is reached on property value, a definite financial proposal to this government will doubtless be submitted, and its consideration begun.

Police Looking For Bank Employe

New York, Oct. 18.—George Armitage, aged 22, a messenger for the New Amsterdam bank, has been missing since Tuesday afternoon and the police are looking for him. He was last seen carrying a wallet filled with papers and checks worth about $26,000. Armitage's salary as runner for the bank is said to have been $8 a week and it was his duty to make the daily rounds of the creditors and make collections.

Smallpox at at the Hub

Boston, Oct. 18.—The board of health yesterday reported two cases of smallpox in East Boston in the immediate neighborhood of the cases reported on Saturday and Sunday. The patients are man and wife, about 50 years old. The rest of the family, consisting of five children, are expected to contract the disease.

May Have to Leave Italy

Rome, Oct. 18.—The frequent meetings of Carlist leaders at the residence of Don Carlos in Venice have led the government, it is rumored, to determine to expel him from Italy, as his proceedings, if continued, would be likely to compromise the friendly relations between Italy and Spain.

He Approved Assassination

Berlin, Oct. 18.—Herr Maurer, editor of the Neues Leben, an anarchist sheet, was sentenced yesterday to four months imprisonment, owing to the publication of an article approving of the assassination of President McKinley.

Turkish Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

WELL-APPOINTED RECTORY.

A Description of the Nearly Completed Home for Rev. George Alexander Strong.

The new rectory of Christ church is well along toward completion. The lathing is nearly finished and plasterers should commence their work in few days. It is impossible however, at the present time to give the date when the rector's famly will occupy the new building but it will not be far from the New Year.

The building when completed will certainly be an ornament to the city. Its dimensions are about 30 by 50 feet and it is of the English domestic style of architecture. Its outside finish is what is known as the English half timber construction. That is, Portland cement is substituted for clapboarding and colored to represent granite. On this are, three-fourth inch boards stained a dark brown color, which represent, what were in the olden times, the timbers of the building.

The main entrance, to the rectory, is from the west side. Over the entrance is a covered porch from which a broad piazza extends to the southerly end of the building.

This outer entrance leads to a small enclosed vestibule from which a door leads to the lower landing, on a level with the entrance. Three steps lead to the main landing. From this landing, or hall, doors lead to the drawing room, dining room, rector's reception room and study and also the kitchen.

The drawing and dining rooms are on the north end of the building, and are connected by folding doors. These rooms are respectively 15 by 17 feet, and 15 by 16 feet. The rector's study and reception room are on the south west end of the building, the former being 15 by 15 feet, and the latter 11 by 8 feet. The kitchen is on the south-esat end and is 12 by 17 feet. Leading from this is a large pantry and a hallway to the back porch.

Between the dining room and kitchen is a butler's pantry with entrances from both rooms.

From the main front hall a broad stairway leads to the upper story. This stairway is broken by a landing half way up. There is also another stairway leading to the upper rooms from the kitchen.

On the second floor are four sleeping rooms and a bath. The sleeping rooms are about 15 by 15 feet. There is also a linen closet leading from the upper landing and here are the switches that control the electric light circuits.

From the landing of the rear stairway, is another stairway leading to the third story. Here there are three good sleeping rooms and a bath. Above these is the storage attic.

The interior entrance to the basement is from the kitchen. There is also a bulkhead entrance at the southerly end of the building. This basement is divided into three room, namely: laundry, furnace room and cellar.

The front hall and stairway will be finished in oak, the drawing room in ivory, and the other rooms in cypress natural finish.

The rectory is abundantly supplied with closets, both large and small, and there are also open firepiaces in several of the rooms. It is also piped for gas and wired for electric lights

The architect was T. M. Clark, and the contractor A. A. Hirtle. The cost of the building when completed will be about $6,000.

Instruction in free-hand drawing will be given on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening, and in mechanical drawing on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings.

Evening Common schools will open in the Adams and Willard school buildings next Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

The Adams school will be in charge of James M. Nowland, principal, assisted by Thomas B. Pollard, Minnie E. Donovan and Annie E. Burns. The Willard school will be in charge of Austin W. Greene principal, assisted by John D. MacDonald, Frances C. Sullivan and Catherine McGovern.

Big Sewer Contracts.

Among the contracts let this week by the Metropolitan Sewer Commission were the following for sections of the new high level sewer which runs through Quincy.

Section 47 and 50 to C. G. Belden & Co. for $95,796.28 and $94,169.80; and sections 52, 53 and 54 to the National Construction Co., for $99,502; $99,502; and $93,936.

Section 47 is from the end of the section now being built at Houghs Neck by Messrs. Belden to near Littlefield's farm.

Section 50 is from the end of the section on Greenleaf street extension to near Shelton road.

Sections 52, 53 and 54 are from Hancock street opposite Greenleaf street through Adams street to near the residence of William N. Eaton near the Milton line.

The Old Colony Association.

The Old Colony Association of Universalists will hold its annual session at North Weymouth, Wednesday, October 30, with the following program:

A. Tuttle; 5 p. m., Business Session; 5.30, supper served by the ladies of the North Weymouth parish; 7. p. m., evening session. Devotional exercises. Address by Rev. W. M. Kimmell; address, by Rev. G. W. Bicknell, D. D.

The meeting will close early to accommodate those who live at a distance.

The excitement incident to traveling and change of food and water often brings on diarrhœa, and for this reason no one should leave home without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. For sale by all druggists.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

Vol 43. No. 244. QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1901. PRICE 2 CENTS.

TO HELEN.

Helen, thy beauty is to me
Like those Nicæan barks of yore
That gently o'er a perfumed sea
The weary, wayworn wanderer bore
To his own native shore.

On desperate seas long wont to roam
Thy hyacinth hair, thy classic face,
Thy naiad airs have brought me home
To the glory that was Greece
And the grandeur that was Rome.

Lo, in yon brilliant window niche
How statuelike I see thee stand,
The agate lamp within thy hand!
Ah, Psyche, from the regions which Are Holy Land!

—Edgar Allan Poe.

MISPAH.

The Story of a King Who Loved a Commoner.

It was an ideal May. At one of the biggest houses in London a ball was in progress. The small hours had come and out over the tops of the trees the moon was shining. In the park a man and a girl were sitting out dance after dance.

The man was of courtly presence and splendid physique, with face clean cut as a cameo, red gold hair and pointed beard, wondrous even there in the hall light, and blue eyes that fell before neither man nor woman.

In low, passionate tones he was pleading with the girl at his side—pleading as strong men only plead for life or love. But to all the fervor of his wooing she was adamant.

"You do not love me, Blanche," he cried at length. "You have only been playing with me."

"Ah, Rex! What a lifetime of regrets and loneliness I should be saved if I did not!"

He caught her in his arms, raining hot kisses on her cheeks and lips.

"My love! My life! How can I persuade you to forget everything but our love for each other and marry me?"

"Why do you tempt me? Why do you love me? Why have we ever met?"

She half freed herself from his embrace and stood, her hands on his shoulders, scanning his face.

"Heaven only knows, since you insist on parting again," he answered. "And yet you say you love me."

"I do love you with all my heart and soul, Rex, my prince of men, my king. But how can I marry you? Would you have your people say you had brought them a country girl, a commoner, a nobody, from over the sea? In what disaster would the royal marriage end? No, no, my Rex. Our dream is over tonight. We have come to the parting of the ways. Go back to your throne and wed a woman fit to be your mate—a princess. And I—the memory of this May madness shall go with me to the grave, and no man shall call me wife."

"Before God, Blanche, I will never marry any woman but you! There shall be a lifelong troth between us if you will have nothing else."

He drew a ring set with blazing diamonds from his own finger and slipped it on hers.

"Send it to me, darling," he said, "if in the years to come you repent tonight's decision, and I will be at your side as fast as rail and boat can bring me. And send it to me if the great summons come first to you, and it shall be buried with me, for love of a peerless woman."

He bent his handsome head and kissed her again.

"I have no jewel to give you back, Rex," she whispered, "only this little 'Mizpah' ring—'The Lord judge between me and thee when we are absent the one from the other.'"

She raised her lips to his for a last caress, and he kissed the teardrops from her eyes, too, before he led her back to the glare of the ballroom and the scrutiny of a score of pairs of jealous eyes and the murmur of a score of envious feminine tongues, "She has refused him, the little fool."

* * * * * * *

Blanche Drummond sat sewing at the open window of a gray, ivy grown house, with the golden sunshine of another May, ten years after, showing up all the finger prints that relentless time and trouble had placed on her beautiful face.

Squire Drummond had never possessed more wealth than would suffice for his own requirements and those of a prodigal son, and it had been a standing grievance to him that his daughter had so steadily refused every offer of a rich husband. He did not know the story of the diamonds on her left hand, and, moreover, he had no soul for sentiment.

Now that he was gone to his long home and the prodigal far off in a foreign land Blanche lived on at the old country house with the aunt who ten years previously had chaperoned her one London season.

Suddenly that lady looked up from the newspaper she was reading.

"Do you remember the king of Stervia, Blanche," she asked—"the handsome man with the red beard? He called himself the Count von Glenchen that season we met him in London." Her eyes were dimmer than they had been ten years ago, and she did not see the flush on her niece's cheeks as she murmured assent, but went on in blissful unconsciousness.

"Here is news of him. He is going to be married at last." And she read aloud:

"It is officially announced that a marriage has been arranged to take place shortly between his majesty King Rex of Stervia and her royal highness Princess Flavia of Rhodania."

That was all—only a bald press paragraph, but it set the sweet May sunshine all dazzling before Blanche Drummond's eyes and brought the waves of the ocean surging through her ears.

"Before God, Blanche, I will never marry any woman but you!"

He had forgotten her, then. Even a king could forget his vow.

She put away her sewing presently and went up to her own room. Out over the woods, yellow green in their young leaves, and the distant sea, shimmering sapphire, the sunshine swept in a flood of gold. The birds twittered a hundred glad songs, and the scent of the lilac and hawthorn hung on the air. But she heard nothing save the memory voice of her king lover's pleading, saw nothing but his diamonds on her hand—diamonds that mean constancy! And he was about to do as she had urged him—marry another woman. Ah, well! When the Princess Flavia was queen of Stervia, she would put away his love pledge forever.

The days crept on, and the weeks, and now and then a paragraph appeared in the papers anent the forthcoming royal wedding. It was brought to remembrance that King Rex was the handsomest ruler in Europe. The Princess Flavia was said to be beautiful and accomplished. The names of the bridesmaids were announced and the clergy who were to officiate, and then came the entire programme of the great event.

Blanche read it all through as though it were part of a dream. In imagination she saw her own name in place of that of Princess Flavia. It might have been. Yet not once did she repent her decision of that fateful May night. She still believed that to have yielded to her love and married him would have been the greatest wrong she could have done him. And so his wedding morning dawned in that tranquil country spot, and Blanche Drummond's left hand was minus its blaze of diamonds. She wandered out into the garden that morning, restless and agitated and, sitting in a tiny summer house beneath a big lilac tree, fell a-musing while the hours passed, and by and by the glare of the noonday sun warned her to return to the house. As she neared the garden gate the vicar was passing on the road outside, and mechanically she paused to speak to him.

"So you have returned, Mr. Willoughby. Have you completed your business in town satisfactorily?"

"Thank you, yes," he answered. "And I feel like a giant refreshed by these few days in London—one drops into such a rut, forever in the country. Of course you have not heard this morning's news?"

"No. What has happened?"

"The king of Stervia, who was to have been married today, you know, was found dead in his bed this morning."

With a choking cry Blanche reeled, and before the vicar could reach her she lay faint and prone on the graveled path. For hours she passed from one fit of hysterics to another. The doctor said her nerves were completely unstrung, and the shock of the vicar's tidings had been the last straw.

No one dreamed of connecting the country girl, who had not been in London except for three months of her life, with the king, who, instead of being principal in the pageant of a wedding, lay dead, it was whispered of poison, in his darkened palace.

It was for her he had died, Blanche felt assured, and by sheer effort of will she overcame her nerves and her anguish and waited—waited until on the second day the postman brought her a little package with many foreign stamps thereon. When she next summoned up strength to face the world again and take up the burden of life, every one marveled at the alteration in her. Years older she looked. The luster was gone from her eyes, and her expression was that of a woman who had just turned away from the deathbed of all that the world held dear to her. Above the diamond ring on her wedding finger was a plain gold circlet engraved with the old tryst word "Mispah," and next her heart lay a letter, the only letter she had ever received from her king lover:

My Blanche—You have seen all the reports of my approaching marriage, and you are thinking that I have altogether forgotten the one woman I love. No so, my peerless Blanche. It has been necessary, for state reasons, to acquiesce in the match arranged for me by my ministers, but tonight I make my own quietus. No other course is open to me but the one I am about to take, believe me, Blanche; also I am delivering the princess from a lifelong hypocrisy, for, like myself, she has been forced into this. I send back the Mizpah ring, and I know a merciful God will judge me innocent in the time we have been absent the one from the other. Wear it always for my sake. Heart of my heart, farewell until we meet in the land where all are equal and where love is the only king. REX.

Moor Baths.

The moor baths which are provided at many Austrian and German health resorts, were first used at Franzensbad. In 1823 Dr. Poschmann, a physician there, believed that he had found in them a new curative medium, and they have since become popular. Some physicians still question their efficacy, while others in Austria and Germany rely upon them to render good service in many maladies. Though the bath is composed of peat, or moor earth, to which enough water has been added to make a thick paste of the mass, yet the peat is different from that which is extracted from a bog in Ireland or Scotland.

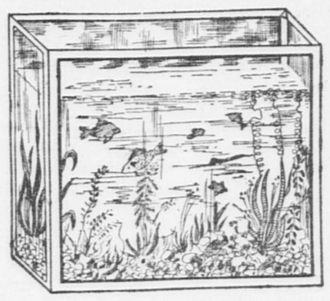

In both Ireland and Scotland the peat is used as fuel. At Franzensbad the mineralized peat will not serve such a purpose. The bog from which it is extracted has been saturated throughout countless ages with mineral water, and the product is a strong chemical compound. Thus a moor bath is a mineral bath in a concentrated form, and effects are produced upon the system by taking a course of these baths which cannot be produced, according to experts, by any mineral water.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A HOMEMADE AQUARIUM.

Will Be a Source of Pleasure and Profit to the Young Folks.

When deciding upon a Christmas present for the children, select, if possible, something that will both amuse and instruct. An aquarium answers these requirements. A very good one may be made at home.

To make the tank get four pieces of thick glass, the size to be governed by circumstances. The most convenient proportions are 13 inches long, 13 inches high and 8 inches wide. The bottom of the tank consists of a piece of zinc nailed to a board. Zinc and board are to be an inch longer than the tank is to be. The extra inch of zinc is bent up to hold the glass. Four strips of zinc or galvanized iron are bent at right angles, stood upright and nailed to the edges of the wooden base. Test them and if firm stand the panes of glass in the zinc supports, strap the whole so that it is firm and then put a closely doubled strip of zinc around the upper edge. This will make the frame stronger.

When the glass sides are in place, the joining must be filled with cement and left at least five days to dry. On the sixth day fill the tank with water and watch it carefully to see that there is no leak. Assured of that, coat the zinc with green oil paint. This must dry for at least a week before plants or fish are put in. No paint should be applied to the inside of the tank.

CROCHETED SLIPPERS.

A Christmas Gift That Will Be Useful In the Invalid's Room.

For an invalid no more acceptable gift can be made than a pair of bedroom slippers for a winter night. The soles for the slippers may be purchased anywhere and are of leather covered with soft wool. The uppers are crocheted in loose pattern, the top being done in shell pattern, with one row of open crochet through which the ribbon is to run. Begin to crochet at the toe and widen at the instep by working in more stitches until it is two inches wider than the sole. Then half of the heel part is worked, and when the two halves will meet they are crocheted together, and the fancy shellwork around the top is done. Ribbon adds the finish. Any person who knows how to crochet can easily complete several of these pairs of slippers. They are nice to wear about the bedroom when shoes and stockings have been removed preparatory to retiring. They are a good thing to don in the bathroom and are sometimes called bath slippers. Although especially serviceable to invalids, their usefulness is by no means limited to them.

CROCHETED SLIPPERS.

A Fanciful Holiday Remembrance.

A small footstool was employed to make one of the prettiest pincushions seen this season. It was the invention of a young girl. The stool was about six inches high and had bamboo legs—in fact, the whole thing was of that wood. The legs were tied with ribbon, and each end had a star of steel beads worked on it. The cushion was of pale pink satin, with a curious design in silver thread wrought over it, reminding one of the windings of the fabled labyrinth. The cushion was stuffed high, and all around the edges was a deep fringe made of steel or silver beads. The corners were rosettes of baby ribbon, each rosette holding six yards of ribbon. From the center of each rosette hung a fringe of the beads. It would be easy to imagine new combinations for this main idea. The one difficulty is to find a stool small enough. This is supposed to be just the thing to give big brothers. Another suggestion is a pocket for collar buttons.

How to Make Napkin Rings.

Something new in Christmas napkin rings has been lately devised by a clever woman. These rings are made of two thicknesses of heavyweight bleached grass linen. They are embroidered with an initial flower letter or bird.

The linen is cut in strips about two and a quarter inches wide and eight inches long, which allows of one-quarter inch turnings all round. A true half square point is made at one end of each strip before the rings are made up. The embroidery is also done on the upper piece before putting together. The embroidered piece is sewed to a lining, turned through the square end, smoothed, pulled in shape and the square end blind stitched up. A buttonhole is worked in the point and the ring completed by a button at the other end.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 20—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—A bad bargain.—Gen. xxv, 29-34.

The contrast between the children of the same parents is nowhere more aptly illustrated than in the twin sons of Isaac and Rebekah. They were different in physical appearance, in natural disposition, in earthly pursuits, in character, in the love they inspired in their parents and in their appreciation of the blessings belonging to the firstborn. It was the last difference which resulted in the treachery of Jacob and the undoing of Esau. Appreciating the birthright and its accompanying blessings, Jacob, though the younger son, determined to have it. Not appreciating these things, Esau became an easy prey to Jacob's unprincipled shrewdness. In an evil hour he sold his birthright for a mess of pottage! A bad bargain indeed. The birthright carried with it inestimable blessings. These Esau surrendered for a meal of pottage which he could have had in a little while for nothing. Yet how typical of thousands of the children of God who are selling their birthrights for the gilt and tinsel of the world.

Two factors controlled Esau in the bad bargain he made. 1. He did not appreciate the birthright and its blessings. He could not have done so, else he never would have parted with them so easily. How many do not appreciate the privilege of being the children of God and for this reason forfeit this relation to God? 2. Esau was dominated by his appetite. He lacked high purpose and stability of character. Quench his thirst, satisfy his hunger, and he asked nothing more. Thus far he was little more than an animal, and animalism is the leading characteristic of many modern Esaus. They are controlled by their appetites and passions and are bartering for them their best interests for time and eternity.

The result of Esau's bad bargain was disastrous. Even Esau learned to appreciate this fact. He repented of his act, but, alas, when it was too late! Bad bargains are usually repented of, but in most cases when it is too late to prevent the harm that has been done. The fate of Esau should be a warning to every Christian Endeavorer. As Jacob lay in wait for him to deceive him and rob him of what was more precious than life itself, so the adversary of the human soul would deceive us and for a worthless mess of pottage deprive us of the blessings that come to us as the children of God. Let us not be deceived; let us not bargain away for a trifle our priceless heritage; let us appreciate our relation to God as His children, control ourselves by the grace and power of God and more and more experience the joys and blessings of our heavenly birthright.

BIBLE READINGS.

Eccl. xii, 13, 14; Math. vi, 19, 20; xvi, 24-28; xxvi, 14-16, with xxvii, 1-5; Acts v, 1-11; Luke xvii, 32, 33; Heb. xii, 14-17; I John iii, 15-17; Rev. xxii, 12.

Comforting Thoughts.

Christian brother, is the way dark and rugged? Have you lost heart and hope because of the disappointments and sorrows that, like poisoned arrows, wound and distress you? Remember that He who gave His life for you trod every step of life's toilful road, and remember that He careth for you; that not an event occurs in your life without His knowledge; that there can come to you no sorrow that may not help to round and polish and perfect your character and more abundantly qualify you for citizenship in that city whose builder and maker is God, and where no earthly ill can ever come. Comfort yourself with such thoughts as these, but more especially covet the constant companionship of the Spirit that bringeth peace.—Central Christian Advocate.

Half Hearted.

Do we find ourselves half hearted in our work, lacking in the true spirit of service? Do our thoughts turn often to complaining that we must work and to thinking how we can escape with the least labor? Shall we seek relief in this philosophy or that? Shall we look to a change of outward conditions as the remedy? Rather let us go straight to the Lord Jesus Christ, who came into the world to bring the true love of service, and who is today and ever will be the only source of that love to men. Let us go to Him and receive of His spirit.—Rev. William L. Worcester in Helper.

Words Are Forces.

The words we so often carelessly use reflect a force in the mind that uses them. They are the messengers of the secret life of men to other men. Born of mental energy in one, they are mighty for good or evil in others. Guard well the door of your lips; weigh with care the words that are to poison or bless forever.—Philadelphia Methodist.

Creeping Up the Stairs.

In the softly falling twilight
Of a weary, weary day,
With a quiet step I entered
Where the children were at play.
I was brooding o'er some trouble
Which had me unawares,
When a little voice came ringing,
"Me is creepin up the stairs."

Step by step she bravely clambered
On her little hands and knees,
Keeping up a constant chattering
Like a magpie in the trees,
Till at last she reached the topmost,
When o'er all her world's affairs
She, delighted, stood a victor
After creeping up the stairs.

Fainting heart, behold an image
Of man's brief and struggling life,
Whose best prizes must be captured
With a noble, earnest strife.
Far above there is the glory
Which no sinfulness impairs,
With its rest and joy forever,
After creeping up life's stairs.

SHE'S A PRINCESS NOW.

An American Woman's Alliance With a Famous Italian Family.

On Aug. 26 at the palace of the prince, near Lamporecchio, Italy, Miss Marie Jennings Reid was married to Prince Rospiglioscl. Miss Reid was born in New Orleans, though her home for several years before going abroad to live was in Philadelphia. She comes of an old and aristocratic American family.

Her ancestor it was who designed the present American flag. Her grandfather was United States minister to Italy. From her mother's side the bluest blood of Kentucky flows in her veins. Her uncle is General di Cesnola, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, with a world-wide fame as an archæologist.

The fairy prince is none other than the head of the oldest noble house in Italy—the enormously wealthy Prince

PRINCESS ROSPIGLIOSCI.

Rospiglioscl, whose family has furnished no less than two popes to the Roman Catholic church and whose name has for centuries been one to conjure with in the Latin kingdom.

The prince is very wealthy, while the Reids are only in comfortable circumstances.

The princess has been married before. Her first husband was Frederic H. Parkhurst, a young lawyer from Maine, whom she met in Washington while she was a young girl. They were married in 1887 and divorced in 1898. Her income has been her alimony.

The Presidents and Woman Suffrage.

Roosevelt is the first president of the United States since Abraham Lincoln who had expressed himself publicly in favor of woman suffrage before attaining the presidency. Cleveland proved himself favorable to it by actions rather than words, as he signed bills giving women partial suffrage in New York when he was governor of that state. Hayes favored it in his quiet way, and helped the senior editor of The Woman's Journal to get a woman's rights resolution through the national Republican convention of 1872. Garfield recognized its growing importance. He said, "Laugh as we may, put it aside as a jest if we will, keep it out of congress or political campaigns, still the woman question is rising on our horizon larger than the size of a man's hand, and some solution ere long that question must find." Some other presidents were believed to be more or less friendly to it, but Roosevelt and Lincoln have been the only ones to put themselves conspicuously on record.

The Empress Frederick Monument.

Professor Uphues has finished the sketch of the empress' monument and showed it to the emperor. The bust of the empress is placed on a slender pedestal, representing her at about the age of forty. The head is adorned with a crown, and the right hand holds the regal robe together over the breast. Below is the inscription, surrounded with a wreath, "Victoria, Empress Frederick." On the steps lies a palm interwoven with roses, to which, in accordance with the wish of the emperor, passion flowers have been added, as a symbol of suffering. For the rest the sketch pleased the emperor exceedingly, and he found the head very good and lifelike. The bust, twice the natural size, will be wrought in marble. The pedestal will be of red granite, while the wreath and the palm will be cast in bronze.—London Telegraph.

A Novel Idea.

At a children's party given this summer every boy and girl represented some character in a historic novel. It was more amusing than a book party and quite as pretty as a fancy dress ball, as every one wore a picturesque costume. Dorothy Mannering and Richard Carvel led the procession, she in a dress of old brocade that, by the way, had seen service in the days when Richard Carvel was alive, if he ever was.

Following them came characters from "To Have and to Hold" and "The Helmet of Navarre" and all the others the land is now so familiar with.

Even General Washington was in the scene, so he could dance with Janice Meredith, and doughty little Paul Jones led the Virginia reel with the lovely English girl from "To Have and to Hold."

"The Major."

To Mrs. McKinley the dead chief magistrate of the nation, whom all the world honors and mourns, is still "the major"—not the congressman, not governor, not even the president (most simple but most potential of titles), but only "the major."

"I want to see the major!" is her constant plaintive and most pathetic cry.

It was Major McKinley, the young hero of the war, returning home with the modest commission bestowed upon him by President Lincoln "for gallantry in battle," who won her admiration, affection and love. It was Major McKinley with whom she began the married life destined to be in turn so happy, so sorrowful, so pitiful and so tragical in its termination.

It was "the major" who made the most devoted and tender and chivalric of husbands, watching and guarding and sustaining her "for better, for worse, in sickness and in health," under trials that the world knows not of, with unfailing constancy and unreckoning self sacrifice.

And now "the major" is gone, and there is no one left—neither parent nor child, brother nor sister. The president is dead; long live the president! But "the major" is dead, and his widow sits forever desolate and alone, with Grief as her abiding guest and Memory and Hope her only comforters.

"Oh, the pity of it!"—New York World.

Mrs. John G. Milburn.

While the name of Milburn has since the attack on President McKinley become almost a household word, and though John G. Milburn was well known even before, very few have heard of Mrs. John G. Milburn. In reality Mrs. Milburn is a potent factor in home and society in Buffalo, but club life knows her not.

She is a woman of splendid character and strong physique and would be of inestimable value in the larger affairs of life, but Mr. Milburn is still sufficiently English to prefer women in private and deprecates their being prominent in a public way.

In fact, he has stated that he does not believe in women's clubs and thinks the home a sufficient outlet for her energies; hence Mrs. Milburn's membership in the colony of unknown wives of well known men.—New York Times.

Wearing Mourning For the President.

Members of the New York city chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are wearing mourning for a period of thirty days for President McKinley. This was done at the suggestion of the chapter regent, Mrs. Donald McLean, who sent notices to each member, requesting them to wear a small badge of mourning upon the left breast for a period of thirty days, beginning with the date of the president's death, Sept. 14. This badge consists of a small piece of crape or other soft black material fastened to the corsage by the insignia of the D. A. R. or the pin of the New York city chapter, D. A. R., or by a miniature flag of the nation.—New York Journal.

Dorothea Dix's Birthplace.

The National Dorothea Dix Memorial association announces a fair to be held at Hampden, Me., on Oct. 23 and 24. The proceeds are to be added to the fund already started by the society to complete the payment for the old farm homestead which was her birthplace and which is already in the possession of the society. Maine's daughters everywhere are asked to contribute articles to the fair, and it is hoped that any who are centenarians, or nearly so, will send specimens of their work. The centennial anniversary of Dorothea Dix's birth falls in 1902, and it is hoped to have the birthplace free from all incumbrance by that time.

A New Arm Scarf.

A new method of covering the arm with a low cut gown and yet dispensing with the sleeve is to make use of the tulle scarf. A good deal of tulle is required, as the tulle scarf follows the lines of the decolletage and softens the sharpness of outline. The shoulder is covered with a small puff or butterfly bow of tulle, and from beneath this start two ends of a short tulle scarf, which are tied just above or at the elbow in a neat bowknot with short ends. This aerial sheath is an excellent apology for the sleeve. It is called the arm scarf.

A very young woman of Syracuse is paying her way through college by a domestic occupation on a large scale. Even as a child her spare time was spent in fruit canning and jelly making, and this work she has found more lucrative than undergraduate teaching in order to secure money for her university expenses.

Many cloth and wool costumes have their edges cut in square tabs, which are about an inch apart. The tabs are stitched down on an under band of contrasting color in silk, often dotted in black, steel or silver. The effect is easily obtained by an ordinary dressmaker, yet is decidedly modish.

Mrs. Eames and Miss Sayre of Mont Clare, Ill., have been made captain and assistant marshal of the fire department. The places are not sinecures, and it is no new thing for women to fight fires in Mont Clare, as most of the male population is in Chicago all day.

Nellie Brown, granddaughter of John Brown, the Kansas abolitionist, is a Salvation Army lass at Astoria, Or. Her father, Solomon Brown, one of the famous border fighter's sons, went to California after the civil war and subsequently located in Oregon.

Black velvet applique is in evidence at all the shops, and there are, too, beautiful velvet appliques of softly shaded colors which promise stunning effects upon gowns in white or soft pastel tints.

A WEBFOOT PROPELLER.

New Device Which May Greatly Increase Speed of Steamships.

A Sioux City man named Martin A. Peterson is the inventor of a propelling mechanism for steamships which he believes will revolutionize navigation. It is a contrivance whereby ocean steamers may attain the speed of railroad trains. It saves a large part of the energy wasted by the screw propeller, and it will largely do away with the rolling of a vessel in a storm. These are the claims made for his invention by Mr. Peterson.

The most remarkable feature about Mr. Peterson's invention is its simplicity. The action of his propelling mechanism is very similar to that one might imagine in a webfooted horse swimming at a trot. Five paddles are arranged on each side of the vessel. The forward two on one side and the rear three on the opposite side act simultaneously in the same direction. When five of the paddles are in this manner making a push on the water, the other five are coming back preparatory to making a push.

Each of these paddles is as exact a reproduction of a duck's foot as it is possible to make of steel, and the action is very similar. Indeed, the idea was suggested to Mr. Peterson by his observation of a duck swimming.

He noticed that when the duck made a stroke the web was expanded and struck the water with great force; that when the foot was brought back for another stroke the web was closed, so that it cut the water with the minimum of resistance, and that in propelling itself it used practically none of the water a second time. All of these features he has embodied in his device.

A GOWN OF GLASS.

Wonderful Dress Worn by Miss Elene Jaqua of Brooklyn.

The most wonderful dress in the world is owned by an American singer, Miss Ellene Jaqua of Brooklyn, who has recently purchased for the sum of $1,250 the gown made of spun glass which was such a feature of the costume exhibit at the Paris exhibition.

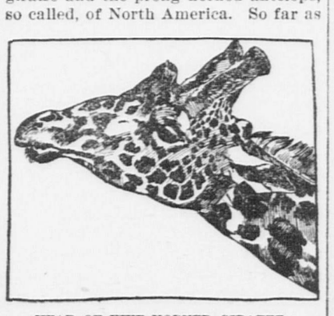

The gown differs materially from the famous glass dress shown at the World's fair in Chicago and purchased by the Infanta Eulalie, for the dress in the possession of the Spanish princess cannot be worn on account of the fragility of the strands of glass, which snap and splinter with the slightest effort to bend them. Therefore Miss Jaqua is the first woman to wear a real glass gown. Indeed her dress is really more serviceable than the average ball costume.

The glass blowers of Dresden, Germany, who fashioned this wonderful gown, were five months in "blowing" the cloth. Infinite care and labor were necessary to blow the glass until the strands or threads were strong and yet pliable enough to be woven into a cloth that could be cut and handled.

Fourteen yards of extra wide glass cloth, thirty-five yards of spun glass braid and twenty-five yards of glass fringe were required for the dress. In spite of this quantity of cloth the dress is no heavier than an ordinary evening gown of the softest material.

The Animal World

Sir Harry Johnston's discoveries in Uganda are of great importance. One of the new animals which he found was the okapi. It has no near living relation unless it be the giraffe and belongs to a group of ruminants only represented at the present time by the giraffe and the prong horned antelope, so called, of North America. So far as can be ascertained the okapi is a living representative of the hellatotherium genus, which is represented by extinct forms found fossilized in Greece and Asia Minor. The hellatotherium may be described as a poor relation of the giraffe, which has lost all but minute traces of its former horn cores, for the giraffe, it will be remembered, has on its skull three bony prominences from which horns or antlers sprang.

The okapi is about the size of a large ox. Its coloration is perhaps unique among mammals. The body is of a reddish color, the hair is short and the appearance of the hide is extremely glossy. The legs are cream color, but the skin between the stripes is often white. The legs and hind quarters only of the animal appear to be striped.

Another animal which Sir Harry Johnston has found in Uganda is a five horned giraffe. Specimens of the five horned giraffe were shot in the country lying to the east of Mount Elson, in the northeastern part of the Uganda protectorate. The females have only three horns, while the male specimens exhibit five horned cores.

The Wrong Leg.

There was an eminent sergeant at law some years ago who had a cork leg that was a triumph of artistic deception. None but his intimates knew for certain which was the real and which was the sham limb. A wild young wag of the "outer bar," who knew the sergeant pretty well, once thought to utilize this knowledge of the sergeant's secret to take in a green, newly fledged young barrister. The sergeant was addressing a special jury at Westminster in his usual earnest and vehement style, and the wag whispered to his neighbor:

"You see how hot old Buzfuz is over his case. Now, I'll bet you a sovereign I'll run this pin into his leg up to the head and he'll never notice it, he's so absorbed in his speech. He's a most extraordinary man in that way."

This was more than the greenhorn could swallow, so he took the bet. The wag took a large pin from his waistcoat and, leaning forward, drove it up to the head in the sergeant's leg. A yell that froze the blood of all who heard it, that made the hair of the jury stand on end and the judge's wig almost fall off, rang through the court.

"By Jove, it's the wrong leg! I've lost my money," exclaimed the dismayed and conscience stricken wag, quite regardless of the pain he had inflicted upon the learned sergeant.—London Answers.

To Judge the Age of Lace.

In fixing the approximate date of any given piece of lace it is well to remember that machine made thread was not used till after the beginning of the eighteenth century. Before that time the threads ran in lengths of about twenty inches, for the worker could stretch no farther than her distaff and had to break off and join again, so that after unraveling some twenty-five inches of thread no joint is found the lace is surely after the introduction of machine made thread. The "bride's ornee" alone are enough to go by. In the fifteenth century the bar had only a knot or a dot as ornament, in the sixteenth a double or single loop and in the seventeenth a star. The edging also helps. A sharp angle in the scallop fixes the date in the middle ages, the rounded scallop came in with the nineteenth century, with the seventeenth a dotted scallop, and the eighteenth century one is more elaborate, a large alternating with a small scallop and dots along in the center of each.—Connoisseur.

Some Tyrolean Epitaphs.

A German traveler has discovered some quaint epitaphs in a Tyrolean cemetery.

On a tombstone in a valley of Tux was this inscription: "In pious remembrance of the honest widow Anna Kriedl, forty years long."

A miller is thus remembered: "In Christian memory of H——, who departed this life without human assistance."

A farmer whose initials only are given and who appears to have been the author of his own epitaph has this memorial: "Here rests in God F. K. He lived twenty-six years as man and thirty-seven years as husband."

On the tomb of a man who fell from a roof and was killed are these words: "Here fell Jacob Hosennkopf from the roof into eternity."

This wail of a desolate husband caps the climax: "Tears cannot bring thee back to life. Therefore I weep."—Household Words.

She Needed Them.

"I wish, John," she said regretfully, "I had had sense enough not to destroy all the letters you wrote me during the year and a half of your courtship."

He smiled in a gratified way. "I knew you would regret that some time," he said.

"Indeed I do," she replied. "I need a little change the worst sort of way, and the man who buys rags and old paper was here today. How wasteful we are in our youth!"

He looked at her reproachfully, and almost involuntarily his hand sought his pocketbook. It is seldom indeed that a resourceful woman has to make a direct request for money.—Chicago Post.

Furniture Polish.

A recipe for a very superior furniture polish given by a dealer in musical instruments to a housewife as the cause for the shining surfaces of the pianos in his rooms consists of four tablespoonfuls of sweet oil, four tablespoonfuls of turpentine, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and ten drops of household ammonia. This polish must be thoroughly shaken before using and applied with an old flannel or silk cloth. Rub briskly and thoroughly, which is at least a third of the merit of all polishes. Use a second cloth to rub the mixture into the grain of the wood and a third for the final polish.

Eating a Pineapple.

A Florida fruit grower states that the natives of the pineapple district never think of cutting a pineapple across. They pare it, cut it lengthwise, slice it or not, and, with the trimmed crown as a handle, eat it much as a New Englander does his green corn, rejecting the core. This, the writer states, not only improves the flavor, but lessens the strings of fiber that get in the teeth.

Jack and the Baby.

Eleanor—What was the baby crying about just now? Did he want the moon again?

Carolyn—No; Jack was trying to make him smile with the glove stretcher.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

An Anxious Inquiry.

When little three-year-old Ada was told the story of Lot's wife being turned into a pillar of salt, she asked her mother anxiously, "Is all salt made of ladies?"

Good Afternoon

Now it is said the delegates to the Norfolk county Republican convention did not want William E. Badger for County Commissioner because he is too honest. What kind of a Commissioner do the voters want?

One of the surprises of the voting lists is that Ward Two with its large new ship yard has less voters than last year, or in 1899. It has 22 more than three years ago, however, and is bound to be heard from next year.

The children of the school age—5 to 15 years—have now got a good lead on the voters of the city, there being 5 281 of the former and 4,619 of the latter. Wards One and Six, however, have more voters than children, while the children of Ward Five lead the voters only 6.

With a church dedication on Sunday and the ordination of a pastor on Wednesday, next week promises to be Church week as well as Hospital week. The list of Sunday services in this issue has announcements for fifteen or more churches, and there are ten or more other religious societies, so that Quincy is well churched.

The Hyde Park Gazette and Times strongly endorse the candidacy of W. H. Bowker of Brookline for County Commisssioner. They are not "sore" because their favorite and fellow towns-man, Mr. Rich failed to receive the nomination. Quincy papers might profit by their example. — Dedham Transcript.

Quincy is not sore, although the friends of Mr. Badger believe he was sold out. Had Mr. Rich been the candidate or any other man except Mr. Bowker the city would have supported him heartily.

There are in Quincy over 25,000 people. If each one should contribute fifty cents to the City Hospital, the institution could cancel all debt and have a surplus. The committee on collection have had printed 4,000 contribution envelopes to be left at houses next week, and to be successful in raising the $8,000 needed, it will be seen that each envelope, if all are returned, should average $2. As one-half may never be returned, it will be seen that the real average must be nearer $5, or $1 for each member of the household. Some cannot afford as much, but others will pay more, so that it may average up all right. The collectors will be an unpaid corps of workers, and they should be kindly treated and generously remembered. The Quincy Hospital has been a blessing to many.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ There used to be two kinds of lies, plainly defined and labeled, but it looks as if the witnesses in the Schley inquiry would introduce a new catalogue.—Lyn Item.

☞ Mr. Quincy need not apologize for being in the gubernatorial tight this year. He knows what he wants and need not be ashamed of making use of any legitimate means to obtain it.—Haverhill Gazette.

Estabrook—Sutherland.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth May Sutherland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sutherland, to Delbert Wesley Estabrook of Quincy, was solemnized Tuesday evening with impressive ceremonies at the residence of the bride's parents, 13 Robinson street. The Somerville Journal reports the wedding as follows: The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. William J. Day, the bride being a member of his church.

The maid of honor was Miss Helen V. Sutherland a sister of the bride, and her brother, James C. Sutherland, was best man.

The bride was tastefully gowned in ivory duchesse satin, trimmed with lace and pearl ornaments, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her veil was caught with a bouquet of the same flowers. A diamond and pearl pin the gift of the groom added to the pleasing effect of her costume. The maid of honor wore pink silk muslin and taffeta, and carried a shower bouquet of bridesmaid's roses.

At the reception, which followed the ceremony the bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sutherland, Mrs. Bowes and Mr. Estabrook, cousins of the groom, the maid of honor and best man. Mrs. Sutherland was attired in black duchesse satin, trimmed with white applique and net. Mrs. Bowes wore white muslin over white taffeta.

The ushers were Misses Louise and Evelyn Sutherland, sisters of the bride, Miss Millie Preston, of Somerville, and Miss Edna Spencer, of Cambridge. Miss Evelyn Sutherland wore pale blue muslin over taffeta; Miss Louise Sutherland, lavender silk trimmed with mousseline de soie; Miss Preston, yellow silk with white chiffon; and Miss Spencer, white silk with chiffon. Each carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Andrew Merrill, of Medford, acted as chief usher.

The parlors, in which ceremony and reception took place were decorated with festoons of evergreens, pink and white roses, arranged in prettily alternating color effects, smilax, ferns, and potted plants. Music was furnished by Professor Snow of Charlestown.

The reception, which lasted until ten o'clock, was attended by 150 guests. The ceremony was witnessed by relatives only.

After a short wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Estabrook will take up their residence at the Hotel Greenleaf, Quincy, of which the former is proprietor. They will be at home on Tuesday after December 11.

Miss Ada E. Thayer.

Again has Mr. Ephriam Thayer and daughters been visited by death, this time a dear daughter and sister, Ada Elizabeth, has been called home. Of a reserved disposition she was not widely known outside the home circle, but the friends she gathered about her were friends from childhood, it was with her, once a friend, always a friend, and a true friend she was to the last, and her death has saddened many hearts.

She was ill only about six months with heart trouble and failed rapidly until her death early Monday morning. The funeral was held on Thursday at noon, from the home which she loved so well and from which had already gone forth a dear sister and mother. Rev. George A. Strong of Christ church officiated. The floral offerings were beautiful and many.

Much sympathy is extended to the aged father who has lost so many of his dear ones and to the sisters: Mrs. Henry A. Bowers of Brookline, who is doubly bereaved, her husband dying only a few weeks ago; Mrs. Hattie Kinney, of Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Clarence Underwood and Miss Blanche Thayer of Quincy.

—A noted physician gave the following excellent advice to a woman suffering from nervous breakdown. He found her generally out of order in brain, heart and digestive organs. "I cannot cure you," says he, "but you can easily cure yourself. All you have to do is to go to bed at 10 o'clock every night no matter what company you are entertaining or what temptation you have to go out or stay out late. I do it, and have for years refused to allow any business or pleasure to interfere with my habit. If you don't do it, your friends will say, "Mrs.— — was a clever woman. How well she used to entertain us! But she is dead and gone. If you do it, they will have no chance to declare you dead and gone, for many a year to come. There, that's my prescription. You will not follow it, I know, but it is all I have, to offer or suggest."

—Johanna Most, the Anarchist, was sentenced on Oct. 14 to one year in the penitentiary by Justice Hinsdale presiding in the court of special sessions, New York, for publishing in his paper, the Freiheit, a seditious article on the day following the shooting of the late President McKinley. Good for Justice Hinsdale. Wish he had made it twenty.

—The Flemish triennial prize for dramatic literature has been assigned to the poets, G. D. and I. Minaert, for their play, entitled, Siddharia.

IT IS SAID

Concerning the Mayoralty of the City of Quincy.

That nobody knows how many candidates there are.

That there are many on both sides of the fence.

That the Republicans have at least three, and possibly five or six.

That Packard, Jameson and Jones are surely in it.

That Bryant probably is.

That it is rumored that he is not.

That he may attempt to swing the delegates for Hall.

That then he would attempt to defeat Hall.

That Hall would, however, be elected.

That many would like to see Bryant a candidate.

That they could then vote for or against him.

That Packard is stronger than he was last year.

That he may carry Wards One, Two, Three and Four.

That then there would not be much left for the other candidates.

That Jones is sure of Ward Three.

That he may also carry Ward Four.

That if Packard should capture Wards One and Two; Jones Wards Three and Four; and Jameson Wards Five and Six; then there would not be many for Bryant.

That Jameson's friends are putting up a great contest in the Wollaston ward.

That the Democrats are looking for a new candidate.

That they would like a young man.

That Fred B. Rice has been mentioned.

That John W. Walsh and James F Burke have friends.

That the candidate may be Walter B. Wilson, chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

That Henry McGrath or Thomas Curtis would suit some better.

That there is a dark horse.

POLITICAL TALK.

Notes and Comments of Interest to the Voters.

The Registrars of Voters met Thursday night and looked over the names on the Independent Republican nomination papers of Marshall P. Wright for County Commissioner. It is understood 300 names are needed throughout the county to place him in nomination. Over that number were obtained in Quincy.

The Hyde Park Gazette notes: "At the Democratic county convention held at Dedham last Wednesday the city of Quincy was very much in evidence and its delegates were sufficiently powerful to name the candidate for county commissioner. Ex-postmaster and ex-city treasurer James H. Burke vouched for Mr. Wright's Democracy when some suspicious delegates wanted information. Coming from such a reliable source all other candidates were sidetracked and Mr. Wright came under the wire at a Star Pointer gait. The nominee is a retired granite dealer and has the confidence and esteem of his fellow citizens."

The Randolph Register says: "The American citizen should use every care in marking his ballot. Help elect no one who will not be noble, honest or influential in the position he may call upon to occupy. Education, home standing, business characteristics and general influence should be called in question and if worthy stand by him."

Unitarian Conference.

The Norfolk Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches will be held Wednesday, Oct. 23, with the Unitarian Society in Hyde Park, Rev. W. H. Savage, Minister. Addresses by Rev. Edward Cummings of Boston, "The Failure of Self-seeking;" Rev. C. F. Dole, President, on the question "Is the Subject of Temperance a Matter of Secondary Importance?" and Rev. William I. Cole of the South End House on "Substitutes for the Saloon." Trains from Boston, South station, 9.15 A. M.

—More than 400 guides have been insured free against accidents by the Swiss Alpine club, at an annual cost of over 12,000 francs.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

The Rev. Dr. Todd will give a series of half hour adresses at the First Presbyterian church on "Mistakes of Modern Scepticism" The first will be given next Sunday evening.

A very pleasing entertainment will be given at the chapel of Bethany church on Wednesday evening next. Excellent singers have been engaged; also Miss Burpee as reader. For more full particulars see notice in another column.

A liberal use of tar paper and printers ink on elm and apple trees this fall, before the heavy frosts, will be even more beneficial to the trees than if used in the spring. There is nothing better to prevent canker worms.

The school census shows children of five years of age to predominate in Wards Three and Four; children of seven years in Ward Six; children of eight years in Ward Two; and children of fourteen years in Wards One and Five. There are more five-year-olds than children of any other age.

Work in our printing department is still rushing and also at our office at Braintree, but with an increased force we are able to turn out our usual first class work at short notice. You will not be disappointed in getting a creditable job promptly just when you want it at this office.

It would be impossible to praise too highly the illustrated lecture on the Passion Play as given by Rev. J. J. Lewis at the Universalist church Tuesday evening. His photographic views of the peasants of Oberammergau—who live, rather than act the incidents of Jesus' last days,—seem like the paintings of the great masters. It is safe to say that such stereopticon views were never before seen in Quincy, and the new story of the Passion Play of 1900 excels what seemed the matchless excellence of the old.

The entertainment which the Music Committee of Bethany church announce for next Wednesday night and which is advertised in another column offers some superior talent. The Chapel ought to be crowded, and already the reserved seats are nearly all taken. Miss Bertha Smith, the zither soloist, is spoken highly of by the papers of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other cities where she has played. The zither is an instrument rarely heard here and few will miss this chance to hear it played by an artist.

TODAY'S COURT.

Lunch Prices and Dinner Prices.

Any one who will take the trouble to compare the lunch and dinner menu cards of some of the leading restaurants of New York will make a rather surprising discovery. He will ascertain that the prices on many dishes are cut on the dinner card from 10 cents to 20 cents.

A gentleman whose curiosity was aroused by this singular practice to the extent that he went to the head waiter for a more satisfactory reason than the table waiter could advance was given this explanation:

"You see," said the waiter, "the generality of men don't care for a heavy lunch. One dish and a glass of milk or a cup of coffee, with bread and butter, are sufficient for them; consequently to prevent them from getting off too cheap we have to put up the price of single dishes. At dinner time it is different. A man wants a number of dishes for dinner, and so we can afford to make our meats and fish cheaper."

"But do you think that is exactly"—

"Honest? Why not? It is always honest to take what people are willing to pay you for what you have to sell, is it not?"—New York Times.

Why Hindoos Don't Go Mad.

Why are there so few lunatic asylums and so small a proportion of insane persons in India? That is a question which many a traveler has wonderingly asked.

The Hindoos regulate their lives entirely in accordance with their religion—that is, their working, eating, sleeping, as well as what we usually regard as our "life" in the religious sense of the word. Everything is arranged for them, and they follow the rules now just as they did 2,000 years ago. This constant observance of the same rules for twenty centuries has molded the brains of the race into one shape, as it were, and although their rites are queer enough, yet there is but an occasional example of that striking deviation from the common which is called insanity in countries inhabited by the white race.

They are fatalists too. With them it is a case of "what is to be will be" carried to the extreme. This has in time given them the power to take all things calmly and so freed them from the anxiety that drives so many white men into the lunatic asylums.

Met His Match.

That well known historical personage, Augustus the Strong, elector of Saxony, has furnished the subject for many a tale of his wonderful muscular power. We need refer only to one characteristic story in which, however, he met his match. On the occasion in question he entered a blacksmith's shop. To show his suit how strong he was, picking up several horseshoes, he broke one after the other, asking the blacksmith whether he had no better.

When it came to paying the bill, the Elector Augustus threw a six dollar piece on the anvil. It was a very thick coin. The blacksmith took it up, broke it in half, saying, "Pardon me, but I have given you a good horseshoe, and I expect a good coin in return."

Another six dollar piece was given him, but he broke that and five or six others, when the humiliated elector put an end to the performance by handing the blacksmith a louisd'or, pacifying him by saying, "The dollars were probably made of bad metal, but this gold-piece, I hope, is good."

Searching For a Soul.

Before the astonished eyes of a number of Parisians a singular funeral ceremony took place the other day.

A resident property owner in the Rue Malte-Brun had just died. On the evening of his death, when darkness had fallen, his relations, five or six in number, each provided with a lantern, slowly made the circuit of the garden, as if they were searching for something in the walks. When they came to a large heap of stones, they turned each one of them over and then re-entered the house.

This curious procession is an old Norman custom. The dead person was a native of the country near Gisors. Before interring the dead it is necessary, according to the tradition, to investigate and see that the soul of the deceased is not concealed in a corner of his property or under some rubbish.

Eggs of Crabs and Lobsters.

Crabs and lobsters are hatched from eggs, resembling upon birth nothing so much as the animalculæ shown by the microscope in a drop of ditch water. They are as unlike the shellfish they are to become in mature life as a grub is unlike a butterfly. In the case of the crab the egg clusters are attached beneath the animal after extrusion, while with the lobster they become fastened to the tail, which, by its fanning motion, increases the stream of oxygenated air through and among the ova.

One Kind of Conjunction.

"What is a conjunction?" asked the teacher.

"That which joins together," was the prompt reply.

"Give an illustration," said the teacher.

There is a quality in Royal Baking Powder, coming from the purity and wholesomeness of its ingredients, which promotes digestion. Food raised by it will not distress. This peculiarity of Royal has been noted by hygienists and physicians, and they accordingly recommend it in the preparation of food, especially for those of delicate digestion.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bounteous response?

Ward Three Appeal.

To the people of Ward Three:

Our City Hospital is about $8000 in debt, and is in need of $3000 to carry on its good work for this year.

Committees are appointed from each ward to canvass and collect for this purpose, and we feel assured that Ward Three will liberally respond to this worthy object. It is the intention of your committee to call on every person in the ward, and if each man and woman will contribute a little, with the assurance that no other collection will be made for one year, the desired results will be secured.

The collectors will receive and credit to you whatever you wish to contribute during the week commencing October 21, 1901.

Chairman Committee Ward 3.

Quincy High at Dedham.

The Dedham Transcript has this report of the game of Wednesday.

A most interesting football game was played at Stone Park, Dedham, Wednesday afternoon, between the Dedham and Quincy High schools. Quincy and Dedham are friendly rivals but previous to this year, Dedham has won invariably 5 to 0. This year Quincy had expected to win, and 100 or more "rooters" cheered the Quincy players.

The first half was a heart-render for Dedham. Quincy rushed the kick-off from their 15 yard line to Dedham's 45, where Koppmann got the ball on fumble. Dedham then rushed the ball to Quincy's one yard line. Quincy held and gained, 10 but Dedham held, and rushed the ball to Quincy's two yard line, time being called.

In the second half, Dedham rushed the kick-off from their five yard line to Quincy's 25 yard line. Referee Hardwick had a close decision to make on a fourth down and gave the ball to Quincy. Quincy rushed to Dedham's 50 yard line where they were held. Dedham gained steadily to the Quincy 20 yard line when with first down and 8 1-2 minutes to play the game was called by the referee.

The half could have been played out easily but for the continual disputing of official decisions by Quincy. The features of the game were a 65 yard run by Staples and 25 yard sprint by Dugan. The latter would have scored but for fine tackle by Barbour. Dugan also made a 15 yard run for a touchdown in the first half but the run was not allowd by the referee. Dedham did not make a fumble in the entire game. The entire Dedham team worked as a unit while the best individual playing by Quincy was done by Magnuson Jewell and Barbour. Dedham's goal was never in danger.

BANK EMPLOYES GONE

Lowell Institution Would Like to Find Them

EXPERTS WORKING ON BOOKS

What Is Believed to Be an Accurate Estimate Places the Bank's Loss at About $90,000—Detectives Put to Work on the Case

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 19.—Albert G. Smith, teller, and Lewis K. Swift, bookkeeper of the Merchants' National bank, have been missing since Thursday night, and their absence has led to an examination of their accounts.

The directors of the bank held a meeting that lasted until 12 o'clock last night, and as a result made a statement to the effect that the bank's interests are not affected.

The statement follows: "The bank is absolutely sound. The first knowledge that we had any trouble was in the failure of the men to appear at the bank this morning at the usual time. That fact alone in a bank would call for an investigation. We don't know what the examinaation has revealed. It has not been completed as yet, and will not be until tomorrow. A final statement will be made at that time."

The teller and bookkeeper were in Lowell Thursday night. They left their respective homes early in the evening, and, so far as is known, said nothing to their people as to their intentions of leaving the city.

The missing men have held positions in the Merchants' National bank for a number of years, and have been boon companions. They are among the best known of Lowell's young men, and socially, occupy excellent positions. The effect of their absence from the city did not become generally known until long after the bank had been closed yesterday. The directors are prepared for a brisk demand for money and President Pollard is authority for the statement that the bank will be able to pay out $100,000, or more, if it becomes necessary.

The disappearance of the two men is the one topic of converstion in Lowell. While the reports have the loss of the bank at from $40,000 to $250,000, the belief is that the most accurate estimate is $90,000. Experts have been working on the books all day and night, and will continue to do so until the last account has been examined. Speculation is given as the source of the alleged defalcation. Pinkerton detectives have been placed in charge of the case.

Smith has been teller of the Merchants' National bank since 1891, he having entered the bank two years prior to that in the capacity of a bookkeeper. He is 35 years old. Swift has been a bookkeeper in the bank for a number of years.

The capital of the bank is $400,000. The last statement of the bank's resources, which was issued on Sept. 30, 1901, shows a total of $1,559,197.37, and a totalcash supply in hand of $69,743.65

It is said, but confirmation is lacking, that word has been sent to the bank directors by Smith and Swift that they will return if assured protection. The only explanation of this advanced was that both men might have had a shortage in their accounts, and being in danger of discovery, seized a sum at hand and are now in a position to suggest terms. On this report an effort was made to secure statements from the bank officers, but there was a refusal to talk.

Venezuelan Government's Loss

Willesmtad, Oct. 18.—A fishing schooner brings the story that the Arends, a Venezuelan schooner bound from La Guayra for Maracaibo, carrying a sum of money from the government destined to pay the troops, the amount being estimated from $25,000 to $100,000, encountered heavy weather off Aurba island and foundered in deep water, the entire sum being lost. The crew reached the island in a boat. The sinking of the schooner was attended with certain suspicious circumstances.

Winter's Early Visit

Utica, Oct. 19.—Northern Oneida and Herkimer counties are covered with about four inches of snow. In the southern Adirondacks the snow is from four to six inches deep and deer hunters are happy.

Chester, Vt., Oct. 19.—Winter came ahead of schedule time in the form of snow yesterday. At Lowell and Londonderry the snow fall was an inch and a half.

Have No Right In America

New York, Oct. 19.—Secretary Gage of the treasury yesterday directed the arrest and deportation of 13 Hessian waiters, who are alleged to have been brought here and put to work by the Plaza hotel, in violation of the contract labor law. The men were taken at once to the prison at Ellis island, from whence they will be sent away on the steamship Laurentian.

The Latest In Telegraphy

London, Oct. 19.—Experiments were made yesterday at the residence of the inventors, Messrs. Armstrong and Orling, in Buckinghampshire, of a new system of wireless telegraphy and telephony, using earth currents instead of air currents. Operations were successfully conducted over a distance of 500 yards.

Bark Sunk In Collision

London, Oct. 19.—A dispatch from Esbjorg, on the coast of Jutland, states that the Russian bark Louis was sunk on Oct. 14, by collision with bark Concordia. No lives were lost.

"TREASONABLE" PAPERS

Caused Fiske Warren Some Trouble Upon Arrival In the Philippines

Manila, Oct. 19.—Fiske Warren of Boston, the first man to take the oath of allegiance required under the recent act of the Philippine commission of all suspects atempting to land, has been closely identified with Sixto Lopez. Many treasonable and inflammatory proclamations were found in his baggage. Regarding these, he said he had only one copy of each, having retained these as souvenirs. It was known also that he was intimate with the members of the junta in Hong Kong. He at first objected to taking the oath, saying that he was a loyal citizen; but he signed it when notified that on no other condition would he be allowed to land. Some of his fellow passengers told Civil Governor Taft that Warren and Lopez shook hands and retired for consultation upon hearing of President McKinley's assassination. Governor Taft considers the action of the commission in requiring all suspects to swear allegiance perfectly justifiable.

Boston, Oct. 19.—Fiske Warren was one of the executive committee of the New England Anti-Imperialist league up to a short time before his sailing for the Philippines, in midsummer. It was through Mr. Warren that Senor Lopez was introduced at numerous assemblies in and near the city, and Mr. Warren was regarded as exerting a kind of advisory power over his goings and comings for some time.

When they made their arrangements to go to the Philippines together, the announcement caused consternation among the other leaders of the Anti-Imperialist league, and Hon. George S. Boutwell not only remonstrated with Mr. Warren, but also sent him a letter, urging the need of keeping the anti-imperialist movement separate entirely from Filipino soil, and pointing out that this would be seriously menaced if Mr. Warren, an executive officer of the league, should land at the islands with a native Filipino agent. Mr. Warren realized the significance of what Mr. Boutwell took so seriously, and in reply sent in his letter of resignation from the office in the league.

Secretary Hackett to Resign

Washington, Oct. 19.—Frank W. Hackett, assistant secretary of the navy, will ask to be relieved from that office shortly. He will resume his law practice in Washington. He had intended to do so on Oct. 1, but remained at the request of Secretary Long, who, on account of the death of President McKinley and domestic afflictions, has been obliged to be away from the department. Judge Charles H. Darling of Bennington, Vt., will succeed Mr. Hackett.

Dubious Story of Severe Conflict

Paris, Oct. 19.—Le Drapeau, a bitter opponent of the Waldeck-Rousseau cabinet, says a letter received recently from the Ivory coast, West Africa, mentions a report that General Combes, the French commander there, has lost 70 kiled and 200 wounded in engagements with rebels, and that the government has not replied to his request for reinforcements. There is no confirmation of the story, which is of dubious authority.

Agreement as to "Buffer State"

St. Petersburg, Oct. 19.—The British and Russian governments have come to a complete agreement regarding the Afghan situation. Even should complications arise in Afghanistan in consequence of the death of Abdur Rhaman and the accession of Habib Ullah, these would not lead to concurrent intervention.

Met Death Underground

New York, Oct. 19.—Five men were killed and two injured yesterday when an enormous mass of rock caved from the side and roof of the rapid transit funnel, in course of construction on Broadway. The section of the tunnel where the cave-in occurred is 105 feet below the surface.

To Be Biggest Battleship

London, Oct. 19.—The admiralty has sent instructions to Devonport to prepare for the construction of a battleship larger than any now existing. Her displacement will be 16,500 tons and her length 425 feet She will be the first vessel of the King Edward class.

THE STATE ELECTIONS

A Glance at Conditions In Various States

INTEREST CENTERS IN OHIO

Where Legislature Will Be Chosen Which Will Have the Choosing of Foraker's Successor—Atmosphere of Doubt as to Outcome In New Jersey

Washington, Oct. 19.—The general public is paying very little attention to politics this fall. Off-year politics are usually dull, but today they appear duller even than usual. Yet elections are to be held in several states and one or two of the contests may exert an influence on national affairs.

What interest the public feels seems to be mainly centered on Ohio where a governor, lieutnant governor, an attorney general and a treasurer are among the state officers to be elected. The legislature chosen in November will be called upon to fill the vacancy in the senate caused by the expiration of the of Senator Foraker's term in 1903. Probably Senator Foraker's prominence in the councils of the Republican party accounts for the public interest being greater in the Ohio contest than in the campaigns in other states in which a senatorship is involved.

The Maryland legislature will be called upon to elect a successor to Senator Wellington, who, elected as a Republican, deserted his party in the last campaign and supported Bryan. Mr. Gorman is working with all his might of political shrewdness to get back into the senate, and if the Democrats carry Maryland in November his ambition will be gratified.

The Kentucky and Iowa legislature to be elected in November will also choose United States senators, the former filling the vacancy occasioned by the expiration of Senator Deboe's term, March 4, 1903, and the latter choosing a successor to the late Senator Gear, whose place in the senate is now filled by Mr. Dolliver, appointed by the governor.

There are also five vacancies in the house of representatives, occasioned by death, to be filled by special elections, one in Pennsylvania, one in South Carolina, one in Texas, one in New York and one in Michigan.

Of the campaigns now in progress those in Maryland, Iowa, and New Jersey appear to have a greater degree of animation than the others. In Maryland the Democrats have raised the cry that "white supremacy" is in danger and "Ang'o-Saxon civilization" is in peril because of the 20 or 25 per cent of the inhabitants of the state who are of African descent. This cry increases in intensity since it daily becomes more apparent that the Gorman ballot act, passed last spring, is destined to fail of its object of scaring illiterates into remaining illiterates.

The Iowa campaign, which is sure to end in a Republican success, is peculiar in that it is being fought out on national issues. The Iowa Democrats still regard Mr. Bryan as a "peerless leader," and they stand by the Kansas City platform. The Republicans not only antagonize the Democrats on this issue, but they incline to reciprocity and are using President McKinley's Buffalo speech as the leading document of their campign literature.

The New Jersey campaign appears to be entering into an atmosphere of doubt. At the outset the Republicans seemed confident of electing their candidate for governor, Franklin Murphy, with only pro forma opposition, but of late they are realizing that James M. Seymour, the Democratic candidate, is a politician of remarkable resources and an opponent whom they cannot afford to neglect. The New Jersey Republicans are now beginning to hustle, to offset the still hunt of their opponents, and adjurations to be up and doing abound in the Republican papers of the state. There must be local causes for this Republican uneasiness, not to be made out clearly at this distance, for New Jersey, last year, gave President McKinley almost 57,000 plurality.

The Democratic campaign in Ohio appears to have been overcome by a lethargy.

In New York only a few judicial candidates and an assembly are to be elected, and the popular interest in the campaign is languid, to judge from appearances.

Pennsylvania chooses a state treasurer and a supreme court judge, and Quayism and the revolt against it may be reflected in the voting.

The Virginia Republicans, taking advantage of the dissentions in the Democracy due to the constitutional amendment question, are showing a good deal of activity, but the chances favor the election of Montague, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Nebraska will elect two regents of the state university and a judge of the supreme court.

In Massachusetts Governor Crane and a Republican council and legislature are almost certain to be elected.

ROOSEVELT IS HONEST

Will Make No Unworthy Appointments to Office, Says Tillman

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 19.—Senator Tillman of South Carolina was in this city yesterday, and in an interview he expressed his great admiration and respect for President Roosevelt.

"But," said he, "President Roosevelt will surely quarrel with the leaders of his party. He will brook no intererence from the coterie of politicians in Washington, who imagine they are the power behind the throne. Of course, it will be very unfortunate for the Republican party when the president and these leaders fall out.

"I believe the president was sincere when he made the statement that he would follow the policies of his predecessor, but one thing you may be sure of, and that is no clique will dominate him. I had considerable dealings with Mr. Roosevelt when he was assistant secretary of the navy, and I was on the senate committee on naval affairs. Mr. Roosevelt is a man of very positive opinions, and it is entirely contrary to his nature to be dictated to.

"He will make an honest president. I don't believe President Roosevelt will appoint an unworthy man to office. His action in making ex-Governor Jones of Alabama a federal judge shows he is ready to appoint a clean Democrat in preference to an unworthy Republican."

RODGERS FINED $3500

For Engaging In Occupation of Illegal Landing Immigrants

Boston, Oct. 19.—Antonio Rodgers of New Bedford, agent for the schooner Hattie and Lottie, was yesterday fined $3500 on the plea of guilty upon an indictment charging him with permitting 110 alien immigrants to land at New Bedford on the night of May 12 last. The fine was imposed under a statute which provides that alien immigrants shall not be permitted to land in the United States at places and times other than those designated by the inspection officers. In this case 110 alien immigrants from Fayal, in the Azores, were landed in the night, in direct violation of the provisions of the act.

Coins Correctly Imitated

Boston, Oct. 19.—Chocolate drops wrapped up in tin and gold foil, and looking like silver dollars and $5 gold pieces of the United States mint, as well as the more valuable coins of foreign countries, arrived at the Boston custom house and gave the custom inspectors a start. The imprints of the various alleged coins were perfect, and according to United States law each of the many pieces was a counterfeit of United States currency. The whole lot of 20 pounds was seized and the consignee was asked for an explanation.

Two Years For Kidnapping

Boston, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Sadie Earnshaw, who was convicted of kidnapping and secreting Susan May Addison, 3 years old, in her house several days, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Bell to the prison for women at Sherborn for two years. Mrs. Earnshaw received her sentence with comparative calmness. A motion for a new trial was overruled.

Shooting Was Accidental

Monson, Me., Oct. 19.—County Attorney Durgin and Coroner Martin have been here inquiring into the accidental shooting of Henry McPeters by his cousin, Leslie McPeters, the latter having taken Henry McPeters for a deer. It was decided that an inquest was unnecessary, as all the conditions pointed to an accident.

City Funds Unaccounted For

Nashau, N. H., Oct. 19.—Mayor Taylor and City Treasurer Spaulding, in their examination of the books of the missing city clerk, Alfred A. Hall, discovered that a sum of $1600 had not yet been turned over to the city. No information as to Hall's whereabouts has been learned.

Resigns Boston Pastorate

Boston, Oct. 19.—Rev. Dr. George C. Lorimer, D. D., has definitely resigned his pastorate of Tremont Temple, to accept that of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York City, and the resignation has been accepted with great regret.

Want Hide Duty Removed

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—An association to be known as "The Free Hide League of the United States," embracing the shoe, harness and leather interests of the country, was organized here yesterday. The officers elected compose the executive committee of the league, and to this body was referred the question of whether the organization shall direct its efforts toward having the hide duty clause in the Dingley tariff law repealed by the next congress or seeking to gain its object by means of reciprocity.

means of reciprocity.

Mind Probably Unbalanced

St. Johns, Oct. 19.—Rev. Henry Black, chaplain of the British second class cruiser Charybdis, disappeared from St. Johns Wednesday, and has been missing ever since. It is feared that he has committed suicide, the supposition being that his excitement over the forthcoming visit of the Duke of Cornwall and York caused him to be mentally deranged.

Pilot Made Miscalculation

Halifax, Oct. 19.—On Petries ledges, a mile and a half from Low point, on the shores of the east coast of Cape Breton, lies the big steamer Manchester Shipper. The steamer left Havre on Oct. 5 for Montreal with 213 steerage passengers and nine saloon passengers, who are all safely landed. The pilot is said to have made a miscalculation.

Lake Steamer Sunk

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 19.—Steamer State of Michigan sank yesterday about four miles northwest of White lake harbor, where she now lies in 60 feet of water. All the officers and crew reached shore in safety. The accident was caused by the breaking of a piston rod of the engine, which drove a hole through the bottom of the steamer.

Details Should Be Suppressed

London, Oct. 19.—The Daily Mail announces that it will discontinue publishing reports of the Jackson case and expresses regret that the law does not empower a magistrate to exclude the public and reporters from such unsavory trials.

The National Period of American Literature

BY LORENZO SEARS, LIT. D.,
Professor of American Literature in Brown University.

III.—Early Fiction.

FICTION followed the drama in America, as elsewhere; also, as in the case of the drama, its beginnings were feeble.

Susannah Haswell came to Nantasket, Mass., as a child with her father, a British naval officer, in 1766. Inclined to literary pursuits, she was encouraged by James Otis and others and in 1786 wrote "Victoria," a two volume story from real life, marrying the same year William Rowson of London, trumpeter in the Horse guards. Two years after she published "The Inquisitor," a three decker in the manner of Laurence Sterne, and returned to England. There in 1790 she issued "Charlotte Temple; a Tale of Truth," and came back to the United States three years afterward. It is the last story, reissued here in 1794, and somtimes called the first American novel, that has survived the earlier. It was as little a creation of the imagination as were the names of the principal characters, Charlotte Temple being Charlotte Stanley and John Montraville being John Montressor. But the book was a great success in its day. Twenty-five hundred copies were sold within a few years. Its popularity was long lived, and as late as 1892 it was republished. The plot is simple and the story as old as the captivating fascination of brass buttons and epaulets. A British officer bound for the American war entices a schoolgirl to share his fortunes. She trusts in the usual vows of fidelity. Both belonged to the nobility. That was the English side of the story. The American was the customary sequence of desertion, disgrace and death, all of it told in a style that never was on land or sea, except in an eighteenth century novel.

"Where is Charlotte?" said he. "Why does not my child come to welcome her doting parent?"

"Be composed, my dear sir," said Mme. Du Pont. "Do not frighten yourself unnecessarily. She is not in the house at present, but, as mademoiselle is undoubtedly with her, she will speedily return in safety, and I hope they will both be able to account for this unseasonable absence in such a manner as shall remove our present uneasiness." And so on through 35 chapters, each interlocutor waiting his turn and adjusting himself, his pose, vocabulary and punctuation to stage effects of melodramatic intensity. It was the theatrical age of fiction. People who were at home reading a novel instead of going to the play demanded that it be illumined by footlights and be enlivened by something of the rant they had lately heard on the boards; hence much of ceremonious and unnatural orotundity and chapters headed, "Which people void of feeling need not read," meaning, "If ye have tears to shed, prepare to shed them now." This was taken as a stage direction by readers and complied with to the letter. They sighed and wept to order.

Mrs. Rowson continued to write until her demise in Boston in 1824.

Two men took up the new literary trade almost simultaneously, Henry Hugh Brackenridge getting the start of Charles Brockden Brown by a year only in his "Modern Chivalry." A graduate of Princeton in the class with James Madison and Philip Freneau, it is not strange that the young lawyer entered into the arena of politics early and took his literary capability with him as an assistant. The experiences he passed through in the whisky insurrection of 1794 furnished material for the above story, with the subtitle of the "Adventures of Captain Farago and Teague O'Regan, His Servant," the first part being published at Pittsburg in 1796 and the second ten years later. The story smacked of border life, if it did not have the odor of a tavern tumbler about it, since the writer did not have so utter an abhorrence of moonshiners as the exciseman did. Altogether it conveyed a useful lesson to a rough and raw population who had just acquired the new and dangerous possession of freedom and were handling it carelessly, not knowing that it was loaded. Teague O'Regan, the Sancho Panza to Captain Farago, has as great difficulty to keep out of office as his illustrious prototype had to get in. At any moment he might find himself a member of a philosophical society, of the legislature or an association of clergymen. Societies of colonial and other wars had not then been established or he might have fared still worse. At length he has greatness thrust upon him as collector of the excise among the whisky stills of the Alleghanies and eventually tar and feathers, by all of which it may be observed that politics was not in pulpits alone, but in literature as well in the early days of the republic.

Brockden Brown's novels were a nearer approach to a purely literary performance. A Philadelphia youth of studious ways, having a mind divided between practical views and an eccentric fancy, he abandoned law for literature and became the first in this country to pursue letters as a profession. Recovering speedily from an attack of the epic epidemic then prevailing, he began to cultivate fiction—pure, but not simple.

It was his misfortune to be caught in New York in the plague year of 1798, when the yellow fever was desolating the city. His nearest friend was taken, but he was left to describe the horrors of the pestilence in books which are yellow with fever and black with death. Besides, there is in them a large accompaniment of the preternatural—ventriloquism, somnambulism and spiritism—uncanny agencies to have in the house, but convenient in a novel, especially when plots get so complicated that the author cannot recall every knot that he has tied, as was sometimes the case with this one. However, a writer who produced so much in so short a time ought not to be taken to task for not keeping all his threads straight and well in hand. Six novels in three years and three of them in one year is a feat to justify the employment of the supernatural. "Wieland" in 1798, "Ormond" in 1799, "Arthur Mervyn" in 1800, "Edgar Huntley," "Clara Howard" and "Jane Talbot" in 1801 formed a pyrotechnic display of romance worthy to celebrate the going out of the eighteenth century and the coming in of the nineteenth. Moreover, there was no lack of unearthly colors in this flaming apotheosis of life and death or of visible and invisible hands to manage the catastrophe. Note this high light for example:

"Death seemed to hover over this scene, and I dreaded that the floating pestilence had already lighted on my frame. I approached a house before which stood a hearse. Presently a coffin borne by two men issued from the house. One of them as he assisted in thrusting the coffin into the cavity provided for it said: 'I'll be d——d if I think the poor dog was quite dead. It wasn't the fever that ailed him, but the sight of the girl and her mother on the floor. It wasn't quite right to put him in his coffin before his breath was fairly gone. I thought the last look he gave me told me to stay a few minutes.'

"'Pshaw! He could not live,' said the other. 'The sooner dead the better for him as well as for us. Did you mark how he eyed us when we carried away his wife and daughter?'"

Here is another: "Welbeck put his hands to his head and exclaimed: 'Curses on thy lips, infernal messenger! Chant elsewhere thy rueful ditty! Vanish if thou wouldst not feel in thy heart fangs red with blood less guilty than thine!'"

And one more: "Shuddering, I dashed myself against the wall and turned myself backward to examine the mysterious monitor. The moonlight streamed into each window, and every corner of the room was conspicuous, and yet I beheld nothing. If a human being had been there, could he fail to have been visible?"

Brown's pages are not all filled with such passages as these, but they occur often enough to keep the reader awake with their crawling shivers. It is the riot of the improbable and the impossible in action, based upon the fact of a pestilence or the red Indian. The last was an element which our early and later writers found too useful to leave out of the new American fiction. But in his yellow literature Brown had a good purpose to accomplish in enforcing lessons of justice and humanity and in attempting incidentally to have something done to head off the ravages of the plague. He was a voice crying in the wilderness of New York and Philadelphia for sanitary reform. He would not find himself out of date in this respect if he were still living. Adapted to the present style of fiction he might still do good service. As it was, he hit the taste of his own time, not overnice, and the temper of an age of restless and daring speculation, with its new fledged theories in medicine, philosophy and social science. His ghastly and ghoulish treatment of his theme was not altogether inappropriate to its horrors or out of harmony with the demands of readers who were familiar with them. After all, these weird productions were an advance upon the plaintive and melancholic wail that was started by Susannah Rowson. They were at least a howling wilderness of misery, with an incidental inculcation of constancy in friendship and fortitude in suffering. These and other virtues were bravely held up for admiration and imitation with shrieks and fainting, floods of tears and tearing rant and the crippling paralysis of nightmare. Possibly this generation needed this heroic treatment. At any rate, they took his medicine greedily and called him the first great American novelist—after England had approved.

He wrote political papers also of considerable value, advocating the Louisiana purchase and the territorial extension of the United States, and an address to congress upon foreign trade, exhibiting in these the practical side of his nature. In addition, his contributions to the periodical press were numerous. He was an incessant and rapid writer, with premonitions that his life work must be done early. He died at the age of 39.

His novels, recently republished, may be regarded as the climax of American fiction in the eighteenth century in its late movement. They stand on the dividing line between two centuries, gathering up the romanticism of one into a focus and foreshadowing the realism of the next in a baleful glare shed over uncommon experiences.

There is little else to mark the passing of the second century of literary performance in America. In some directions there was much to be attained, but at the same time much had been accomplished in the eighteen decades since Bradford began his diary.

A great advance had been made in spirit and expression; the new nation was beginning to create a new literature.

INQUIRY NEAR AN END

Schley's Testimony May Be Finished Next Week

THE STORY OF SANTIAGO

Told by an Officer Who Witnessed the Battle From the Deck of the Oregon—Viscaya Pulled Out of the Line of Spanish Fleet

Washington, Oct. 19.—Just before the Schley court of inquiry adjourned yesterday Attorney Rayner, counsel for Admiral Schey, informed the court that he hoped to be able to conclude the presentation of testimony for the applicant by the close of next week. He added that he thus far had not had an opportunity to consult with witnesses who are still to be heard. He therefore asked that an adjournment be taken until Monday. Admiral Dewey granted the request. Accordingly the court adjourned until 11 o'clock Monday.

The list of witnesses examined yesterday included eight names, but the interrogation of the last of the witnesses called had not been concluded when the day came to a close. This last witness was Lieutenant Wells, who served during the war with Spain as Admiral Schley's flag lieutenant or private secretary. The other seven persons heard during the day were in the order in which they were called. Lieutenant Commander Nicholson, who was the navigator of the Oregon; Medical Director Devalin, a surgeon; Captain Hannum, retired, engineer; Lieutenant Carter, Ensign Cronan, Carpenter Warford, all of whom served on the Brooklyn, and J. L. Hanley, who was chief machinist on board the Texas.

Lieutenant Commander Nicholson told the story of the battle of July 3 as he saw it from the deck of the Oregon. He said the movements of the Oregon were not controlled by signals from the Brooklyn, and he expressed the opinion that the Oregon was nearer the Colon than the Brooklyn was. Mr. Hanley said that the port engines of the Texas were not stopped during the battle of July 3.

From the line of examination relating to the fight of July 3 already pursued it is evident that it is the intention of Mr. Rayner to have Lieutenant Wells give a complete history of Admiral Schley's actions during the Spanish war.

Commander Nicholson, in his recital of the story of the battle of July 3, which he had observed as navigator of the Oregon, said he was on the deck of his vessel, and added: "Occupying the position I did during the day of the engagement, I necessarily saw considerable of it. The incidents of that day commenced about 9:30, or five minutes before, when the first call to quarters had been sounded. Then the Spanish ships were seen coming out of the harbor, were seen, in fact, by practically the whole crew at the same time. The signal had been sounded to general quarters and by this time steam was coming up, all the boilers and blowers were going full ilt, and a few minutes afterward Captain Clark came up. We turned the ship, going slowly at first, the speed increasing all the time. Turned ship with starboard helm and started in toward the enemy.

"They came out at full speed, apparently much faster than we were making at this time. By the time we were straightened out well to the westward they were all ahead of us. The Iowa started in, she being to the westward of us; apparently got in closer to the enemy than we did because we passed under the stern of the Texas, apparently still in the water. I called Captain Clark's attention to this. Of course, firing commenced on both sides at the time the first ship cleared the mouth of the harbor. We returned the fire at long range, probably 3½ to 4 miles off at that point. After the action commenced we passed the Texas and the Iowa. The only ship then ahead of us was the Brooklyn. She was well off her accustomed position—well off to the westward. All the Spanish ships had gotten out by this time, and we were pursuing them, heading for the leading ships.

"We noticed the Marie Teresa drop astern at less speed than at first, saw flames leaping up and out from her which convinced us she was on fire. A few minutes after that the Oquendo appeared to be covered with smoke and we concluded that she also was on fire, which proved to be a fact. Just about this time the Viscaya seemed to head off to the southward and west toward the Brooklyn and fell out of line. It then became evident that the Colon was pulling out of battle and running along the shore, but it was developed that she was running away and had more speed than all the other ships. The Viscaya headed toward the Brooklyn. She ran that course for some time and then straightened out again; then turned in shore and a few minutes after that ran ashore also. There is no question about the Viscaya pulling out the general Spanish line to the southward." Commander Nicholson then detailed the case of the Colon, her subsequent going ashore and surrender.

Commander Nicholson said that he recalled some signals from the Brooklyn on the day of the battle, among others one at the beginning of the battle to close up and another at the close of the engagement saying "Well done, Oregon."

"As for the first signal," he said, "we were already closing in and it did not inform us." In reply to questions from Mr. Rayner the witness said he could not say positively that he had seen the Brooklyn make her last turn, but that he had seen her change her position. He had never seen the Brooklyn and the Texas when they were closer together than a mile or a mile and a half.

In response to questions by Captain Lemly, Commander Nicholson said: "I thought the Oregon was nearer the enemy during the chase than the Brooklyn, but the distances varied somewhat. At one time the Brooklyn had apparently turned to head off a turn of the Colon toward Cape Cruz."

In reply to Mr. Hanna, the witness said he had observed the Spanish fleet as as it came out of the harbor at Santiago; that they were in column and in order three or four ships' lengths apart; that all ported their helms and turned to the westward, apparently with the intention of going ashore if necessary. During the early part of the engagement he had seen none of the Spanish vessels turning toward any of the American ships, and he was sure that there was no well developed movement in that direction. Yet the smoke was dense and he could not be certain of all details.

"What was the relative position of the American ships when the Spanish vessels came out?" "The Iowa was due south, the Texas on her port hand and the Brooklyn farther off to the westward. The Oregon was to the right of the Iowa and the Indiana inshore to the eastward, with the New York in the distance. I remember immediately looking for the flagship and saw her off seven or eight miles toward Siboney."

"What was the position of the Oregon when she turned with starboard helm during the battle off Santiago?" "She was lying still in the water, and we turned to head off the Spanish fleet. We overtook all but the Colon very quickly."

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Year Promises to Excel All Others In Its Remarkable Prosperity

New York, Oct. 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Unfavorable signs are rare in the business outlook. Manufacturing industries enjoy exceptional activity and most jobbers and retailers find no occasion for complaint. Mild weather is the one influence that may be charged with retarding retail merchandise distribution, yet there is general confidence that any sales thus postponed will be made up later. The same influence is invaluable in facilitating the handling of crops, erecting buildings and other outdoor work. Although a fifth of the year is stil to be heard from, including the usual interruption of elections and possible disturbance of legislation, there is ample evidence that the volume of legitimate business will largely exceed all previous records.

Footwear factories still have many weeks full employment on heavy weight goods for winter and there will be little time between seasons this year for overhauling machinery before commencing work on the large amount of spring contracts already accepted.

Cottons move freely, with prices well sustained for all lines and definite advances in bleached goods. At New England mills there is a steady demand for all standard staples, preventing any accumulation of stocks. Woolen goods are more quiet, yet shipments of over five million pounds of wool weekly from Boston indicate no decrease in activity at the mills.

Weak Point In the Navy

Washington, Oct. 19.—That there has been retrogression rather than an advance along engineering lines in the navy during the past two years is the most significant statement contained in the annual report of Admiral Melville, engineer-in-chief of the navy. He points to the disablement of torpedo boats as a striking result of the lack of engineers, for those boats have no commissioned engineers. On the other hand, he proudly calls attention to the overtaking of the 20-knot Colon by the 16-knot Oregon as an example of what can be achieved by trained and educated engineer officers.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Sydney R. Tabor of Lake Forest, Ill., was elected president of the American Humane association to succeed Francis H. Rowley of Brookline, Mass., resigned.

Parker, Holmes & Co., boot and shoe dealers of Boston, were heavy losers by a fire that burned the third floor of a five-story brick buiding. Other firms suffered considerably from smoke and water.

Charles Rowell, for many years identified with the carriage business, and founder of the firm of Charles Rowell & Son, Amesbury, Mass., died in that city in his 83d year.

THE SOCIAL REALM.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald McDonald have returned from their wedding tour to their home on Lowell street, Braintree.

* * *

Rev. Frederick R. Griffin pastor of All Souls' church Braintree, was united in marriage on Wednesday, October ninth to Miss Edith J. Bell of Southampton. Congratulation are being extended by parishioners and friends.

* * *

The marriage of Mr. Timothy L. Murphy and Miss Elizabeth Crehan of Hingham will take place at the St. Paul church, on Tuesday, Oct. 29.

* * *

Mrs. George C. Fuller of Braintree, with a party of friends from Quincy, left Tuesday evening for a ten days' trip to the exposition at Buffalo, going via Philadelphia and Lancaster, Penn. They will call on Rev. W. R. Breed, their former pastor, returning via. Albany, the Hudson River and New York city

Neilson--Howie.

On Wednesday afternoon, at the pretty new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Neilson, on Thistle avenue, East Milton, their daughter, Bessie, was united in marriage to Alexander Howie, Jr., of South Quincy. The bridal couple, with Miss Margaret Neilson a sister of the bride, as bridemaid, and William Neilson, her brother, as best man, stood amid many potted plants surrounded by the relatives of both families while Rev. William H. Rogers of the Baptist church of East Milton performed the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father. She looked very dainty in her gown of white Swiss muslin trimmed with lace and ribbon and long white veil of Brussels net caught up with white roses. She carried a bouquet of the same. The bridesmaid wore white muslin over blue silk and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

After receiving congratulations a wedding supper was served after which the party went to their new home on Federal avenue, South Quincy. Here they were met with showers of rice and a huge bonfire. A reception was held from eight to ten.

The happy couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Neilson and Mrs. Howie, parents of the bride and groom.

The ushers were Mr. Winfield Geddis and Mr. Charles Long. Many useful and beautiful presents were received.

We are sorry to report the mysterious disappearance of a mattress from one of the bedrooms, also the stove pipe which seemed to have taken wings, so completely had it disappeared. The new broom, which was supposed to be there to sweep with all the new broom's proverbial cleanliness, was accidentally (?) burned in the bonfire.

It must be some slight satisfaction to Mr. and Mrs. Howie to know that the perpetrators of the outrages didn't get away with whole trousers. Every one of the half dozen concerned receiving rents in the above named garments, which will necessitate a visit to the tailor before they can attend any more weddings. Following is a list of those present:

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers; Mr. and Mrs. Robertson; Mr. and Mrs. Harris; Mr. and Mrs. E. Hobart; Mr. and Mrs. Williams; Mr. and Mrs. Howie; Mr. and Mrs Long; Mr. and Mrs. Geddes; Mr. and Mrs. Douglass; Mr. and Mrs. Cook; Mr. and Mrs. J. Biglow; Mr. and Mrs. W. Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Drummond; Mr. and Mrs. Neilson.

Misses A. Hobart, B. Reith, E. MacDonald, A. Landstrone, L. Bryden, B. Dennen, M. Dennen, S. Johnson, M. Oran, L. Clark, H. Barnie, J. Hope, L. Roberts, G. Manhire, Misses Crowell, B. Michael, L. Bissett, Mr. and Mrs. T. Gould, Misses L. Rothwell, M. Newcomb, Mr. C. Hobart, Mr. W. Hobart, Mr. P. Geddes, Mr. W. Ross, Mr. W. Wilson, Messrs. Charlie and George Everett Howie, Misses Agnes, Marie and Euphemia Neilson, Mr. W. Brooks, Miss K. Crowley, Messrs. George and Henry Hope.

BRAINTREE.

Plans are being made for buildings to be erected on Dr. Simond's land where the fire was last Saturday.

Rev. M. S. Nash has gone to Baffalo, N. Y., to attend the National Convention of Universalists, as a delegate from Massachusetts.

President Roosevelt appointed and promoted Captain G. F. F. Wildes as Rear Admiral of the United States Navy on Monday last.

The bowling, whist, billiard and pool teams of the Braintree club play the Commonwealth club of Weymouth at Weymouth, Tuesday evening next.

Mrs. A. R. French attended Thursday the Billings family reunion at the American house, Boston, and was elected to serve for the ensuing year on the executive committee.

Josephus Sampson started Monday evening to visit near the Holbrook line. He left about seven o'clock with horse and buggy. When nearly in front of Thayer Academy he met with an accident. The visit was postponed.

The cantata "Ruth" will be given early in December. There will be a large chorus of about 100 voices. The first rehearsal was held Tuesday evening at the home of Robert H. Ellis, and the second will be held next Tuesday evening at Miss Pray's.

William W. Gallagher, Harvard 1904, won the mile run, at the Harvard fall handicap games. He was scratch man in a field of sixteen and won out by thirty-five yards over Hall 1903, who had twenty yards and Frothingham 1902 with thirty yards. A fine race and fast time.

The Jonas Parkins School association held their first meeting of the season with Mr. and Mrs. Doane Tuesday evening. The report of the treasurer was read, showing the finances of the association to be in excellent condition. Two new members were added to the roll. Miss Kathryn Hann was elected secretary in place of Miss Ellen Hann, who tendered her resignation.

Captain John Whitmarsh, the oldest resident in the town, was 98 years old yesterday. The captain has been ill for sometime, but is now much improved. Quite a number of friends called on him during the day and extended their congratulations. Mr. Whitmarsh was born in Weymouth, but has lived in this town for more than half a century. He has been a member of the First Baptist church, Weymouth, for more than forty years,.

A surprise party was given to Otis Herbert French by his young friends, Wednesday evening, at his home on Washington street. During the evening they played games, and refreshments were served. Miss Bertha Hobart presented Master French with a handsome chased ring, after which they were entertained by a phonograph. Among those present were: Misses Bertha Hobart, Elva Bates, Nellie Belyea, Bessie Fisher, Florence Hill; Masters Otis French, Milton Fisher, Alton Wood, Charlie Wood, Warren Bates, John Atkinson, John Hill, George Hill, Fred Belyea.

Wednesday evening in the South Congregational church, a large audience gathered at a grand organ recital and concert. The entertainment differed greatly from the program, on account of the railroad accident that evening at Harrison Square, for Mr. C. A. Phinney of Boston was unable to arrive before 9.15 P. M., just as the congregation went away. Mr. Phinney was to render a tenor solo, and sing first tenor in the Perkins quartet. Prof. George E. Whiting, organist in Boston at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, gave a delightful recital. He played with feeling, and the organ proved surprisingly fine in the richness of tone.

Robbers Resorted to Extremes

New Lexington, O., Oct. 19.—Six masked men entered the residence of Charles Tague, a merchant at McLuney, and bound and gagged the whole family. Tague's gold watch and a considerable sum of money were taken. The robbers then demanded the keys to his store, but Tague refused to reveal where they were. His feet were roasted with matches and hot irons until he gave up the keys. The robbers thoroughly looted the store and escaped.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

—The largest floating dry dock in the world started this week from Baltimore on a rather hazardous trip on the Atlantic and around through the gulf, and up the Mississippi river to its new station at Algiers, La. The dock has a lifting capacity of 17,500 tons, and when placed at Algiers will afford the navy a fine fresh water docking station.

HYGIENE

It is perhaps one of the signs of the times to those alert for indications that the art of breathing has become more and more a subject of attention, says the New York Journal. Oculists as well as physiologists go deeply into its study in a way hardly to be touched upon in a limited space. Physicians have cured aggravated cases of insomnia by long drawn, regular breaths, fever stricken patients have been quieted, stubborn forms of indigestion made to disappear.

A tendency to consumption may be overcome, as some authority has within the past few years clearly demonstrated, by exercise in breathing. Seasickness, too, may be surmounted and the victim of hypnotic influence taught to withstand the force of an energy directed against him.

There is a famous physician of Munich who has written an extensive work upon the subject of breathing. He has, besides, formulated a system by which asthmatic patients are made to walk without losing breath, while sufferers from weaknesses of the heart are cured. At Meran, in the Austrian Tyrol, his patients are put through a certain system of breathing and walking. The mountain paths are all marked off with stakes of different colors, indicating the number of minutes in which a patient must walk the given distance, the breathing and walking being in time together. As the cure progresses the ascents are made steeper and steeper.

Learn How to Exercise.

Exercise, we are now taught, should be adjusted to temperament. From his Yale studies Mr. W. W. Davis concludes that the phlegmatic type of temperament is characterized by the presence of much reserve energy of muscle and nerve cell, while the nervous type has less reserve energy, but a greater ability to use the energy at hand; hence the nervous persons require light practice for developing strength and the phlegmatic vigorous practice.

Private Roof Gardens.

A writer in The Hospital calls attention to the desirability in the interest of the health of city bred children of providing some place of exercise where they can get air and sunlight free from the objections that are connected with the streets and suggests for the purpose roof gardens on private houses. He says, "Infinitely better would it be for a child to play about in its roof conservatory, as it could do for hours every day, than to take its perfunctory walk or be wheeled through the city streets at a level of only about thirty inches from the ground," and then, that his idea "is not merely to build a playroom on the roof, but to make this glass covered room itself form the roof of the building, much as a weaving shed is made to form the roof of a mill in the textile factories in the north of England."

A Substitute For Leather.

It is reported from Coburg by Consul General Hughes that a Frenchman has invented a process by which refuse skins and hides are converted into an artificial leather called "fibroleum." He takes the waste scraps from all sources and cuts them into very small pieces. These are put into a vat containing an intensely alkaline solution. After the mass has become pulpy it is taken out and passed through a specially constructed machine.

A Smokeless Flashlight.

A French scientific investigator believes he has discovered a flashlight powder compound which is practically smokeless. The principle is to keep the magnesia that is formed when magnesium powder is exploded as much as possible attached to a heavy substance that will not easily fly about and which soon falls of its own weight. A substance suitable for this purpose is found in the binoxide of barium.

Substitute For Oil Paint.

Cerusine is a new product of M. Lepine intended as a substitute of oil paint. It is a mixture of animal glue and white lead, with the addition of a varying proportion of borax and a small quantity of potash or nitric acid. The usual pigments are added for the various colors.

Chimes Rung by Air.

The chimes of St. Patrick's cathedral, New York city, are now rung by compressed air, the bells being actuated through the medium of electrical devices.

A new method of heating cars has been adopted in Christiania and Stockholm. The apparatus consists of long perforated boxes, one under each length of seats. The boxes are filled with red-hot briquettes of compressed coal prepared so that no smoke or smell results from their consumption. Iron sheeting is arranged under the seats, which allows the fumes to escape to the open air.

On fresh air passing through a ventilator placed under the coalbox at the bottom of the car the hot, combustible gases pass through this iron sheeting throughout its entire length, diffusing a steady heat into the car through a set of perforated iron plates placed between the legs of the seats. The speed of the car develops sufficient draft to completely consume the briquettes.

It is asserted the system has been found entirely satisfactory, even on the score of economy.

Showed No Mercy to Cripple

Syracuse, Oct 19.—Spencer G. Prime of Syracuse university is confined to his room as a result of a severe initiation. He suffers from a severe nervous shock and injuries to right arm and leg. It is said that Prime, who is slightly crippled, did not show the proper degree of stamina as the initiation progressed, and the members made it a little harder.

Won't Dally With Turkey

Paris, Oct. 19.—The French government, while still confident that the Lorando claim against the Turkish government will be settled amicably, is determinate not to grant the porte much more time to fulfil its obligations, having decided to resort, in case of necessity, to all the measures of coercion warranted by the circumstances.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Park Theatre.

"Lovers' Lane," after a five months' run of remarkable success in New York, with a summer run of three months in Chicago, comes to the Park Theatre, Boston, with the importance of cast and beauty of scenic production for which all of William A. Brady's offerings are notable. This play is in Clyde Fitch's merriest and most satirical vein, and he has worked upon unconventional lines in his play of small town life in New England, and has peopled it with many new and diverting characters, such as the liberal minded minister, who antagonizes his flock by his non-orthodox views; the girl with whom he falls in love, a pupil of the New York Art League; a rural opera house manager, who leads his own orchestra, posts his own bills, and who, as an actor, has attempted everything from grand opera to vaudeville; the love-lorn school marm and her flock of school children, playing their childish games and singing songs at recess time; the mischievous little waif from the Orphanage, who is perpetually climbing apple trees and tearing her frock; the band of bickering choir singers and extreme social purists, who try to regulate the morals of the community; together with others that are quite as pronounced types.

Columbia Theatre.

One of the most important engagements of the present theatrical season in Boston will be that of "The King's Carnival," which begins at the Columbia Theatre, Boston, Monday night. For over eight months this superb spectacular extravaganza (or review) has crowded the mammoth New York Theatre, New York, to the doors, and it comes to Boston direct from that city with the entire cast, and with all the scenery, ballets and choruses witnessed there. "The King's Carnival" is the creation of Sydney Rosenfeld, of "Passing Show" fame, with music by A. Baldwin Sloane. It is pronounced one of the most superb burlesque reviews of modern times—full of mirth, merriment, striking situations, excellent music, and gorgeous electrical effects, with songs which are whistled on the streets after a first hearing. The characters in "The Climbers," "When Knighthood was in Flower," "In the Palace of the King," and "Under Two Flags" are set in opposition to each other, and the most humorous situations follow. Among the two hundred people in "The King's Carnival," some of the principals are: Misses Maybelle Gilman, Marie Dressler, Eleanor Campbell, Gertrude Lewis, and Messrs. Frank Doane and John Ford. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given.

Keith's Theatre.

The "Iold-over" attraction at Keith's Boston theatre for the week commencing Monday, Oct. 21, will be the spectacular production and the Eight English Roses, the latter the big dancing specialty that has scored such an emphatic hit during the present week. Among the entertainers scheduled to appear are: Emile Salvio, a celebrated Hungarian violinist, who was the first prize winner at the famous conservatory at Brussels last year, this being his first American appearance; Lew Simmons and Frank White, in their great blackface specialty, "Get in de Band Wagon;" Al Leach and the Three Rosebuds, in the comedy, singing and dancing sketch, "Fun in the Schoolroom;" the Todd-Judge family of acrobats, one of the best organizations of the kind in the country; Hall and Staley, in their burlesque character comedy, "The Twentieth Century Burglars"; The Yale Duo, expert club jugglers, and Warner and Reider, Tyrolean singers. There will be the customary changes of biograph pictures, and pleasing selections by the regular house orchestra, under direction of Louis Baer.

Castle Square Theatre.

A revival of Bronson Howard's famous war play "Shenandoah" is announced as the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week. This great reproduction of some stirring scenes of the civil war made one of the notable successes of the Castle Square stock company during its first season, four years ago, and the coming revival is made in response to many requests from the patrons of this play house. Unusual care has been taken in the reproduction of scenes of the action of the play, and the view of the Shenandoah Valley shown in the second act promises to be a remarkably realistic picture of the locality of Sheridan's famous ride. The regular company will be largely augmented for this production and the stage pictures and groupings have been carefully arranged under the direction of Mr. J. R. Pitman. The cast of leading characters has been arranged as follows: General Phillip Sheridan, G. Corliss Giles; Gen. Haverhill, Edmund Breese; Col. Kerchival West, John Craig; Capt. Heartsease, Lindsay Morison; Lieut. Frank Bedloe, James A. Keane; Maj. Gen. Irenaeus Buckthorn, J. L. Seeley; Mrs. Constance Haverhill, Maye Louise Aigen; Gertrude Ellingham, Eva Taylor; Jenny Buckthorn, Mary Sanders; Mrs. Edith Haverhill, Marian A. Chapman; Old Margery Leonora Bradley.

How Is Your Roof?

Whether you are roofless—and ambitious—or sodden with a wealth of roofs—or if you rent a house and are exposed to the terrible alternative of paying for the mending or going about bedraggled, you need the new roof book the American Tin Plate Company is giving away.

It is the only book of its kind ever printed for free distribution. It is possible to buy its several features, but they are scattered through a number of standard books and would cost a pretty penny, as the saying goes.

The book is entitled "Under an M F Roof." It traces the history of roof making, suggests the name and use of the best of all roofing, tells how and why American makers produce most of the roof coverings of this old globe, and scores of things every house owner or prospective builder should know. Chief among these features are simple but exact directions for constructing a tin roof that will last half a century, directions for painting, and several tables showing how many sheets of tin it will take to cover any roof.

The cover of the book is in colors and shows a view of an angle roof on a brick house on one side, and a flat roof on a frame house on the reverse. It is a very handsome and very useful book. A copy will be sent any one that writes to W. C. Cronemeyer, agent American Tin Plate Company, Carnegie Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

LAWYERS ARE ENGAGED

In Behalf of Missing Teller and Bookkeeper

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

May Have Been Submitted to the Directors, Whose Silence as to Bank's Loss Leads to Belief That It May Be More Than $90,000

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 21.—There is absolutely nothing new in the bank defalcation here. The whereabouts of Smith and Swift, the missing teller and bookkeeper, is unknown, at least to the public. The bank authorities will have nothing more to say until the actual amount of the peculations, if any, has been established.

Accountants have been hard at work on the books of the bank since the time that the shortage was discovered. President Pollard was at the bank nearly all day and until a late hour last night. He refused to make any statement.

The Merchant's National bank opened and closed its doors at the usual hours Saturday, and nothing out of the ordinary developed to interfere with its business, despite the surprising absence of the two employes. It is true that a slight depression in business was noticed, and inquiries respecting balances were very numerous; but the "run" for which the directors had prepared did not materialize. The bank held money enough to square accounts with all depositors.

The most interesting development is the engaging of counsel to represent the interests of the missing men. John C. Burke of this city and Charles Bartlett of Boston have been secured by the relatives of Swift as counsel, while the firm of McIntyre & Wilson has been retained by Mrs. Smith to look after her husband's interests.

This information, together with rumors that the missing men have been heard from, leads to the conclusion that terms in the direction of a settlement are soon to be submitted to the directors. The attitude of the latter in the event of such a development cannot be learned, as the directors positively decline to discuss the situation in any of its phases. They are guarding the bank's affairs as closely as upon the day when their attention was called to the absence of Smith and Swift. They will not make a statement of their loss.

The loss is thought to be even greater than $90,000, however, the continued silence of the directors being construed as an unfavorable indication.

That the books of the bank are clear as far as accounts of depositors are concerned is known to at least a dozen depositors who called at the bank to make inquiries as to their accounts. The information asked for was in each case accurately given without any hesitation.

The whereabouts of Smith and Swift may be known to their wives, their lawyers and the directors of the bank, but all efforts upon the part of others to trace them have proved unavailing. The cities of Boston and Montreal are the places most mentioned in this connection, but nothing of a definite character has been found.

The houses of the two men in Lowell are under constant surveillance by the police.

At a meeting of the bank directors that began early Saturday night and lasted until late in the evening, the affair was discussed from beginning to end, but at the close of the meeting the directors were unwilling to make any statement.

That copper stocks caught the fancy of the two bank clerks has been practically proven. There are brokers who have admitted to friends that they have had dealings from time to time with the men. They say that the greater part of their transactions were in the nature of outright purchases of speculative stocks, and that but little was done on margins.

Mrs. Smith accepts her position philosophically; she neither weeps nor raves, but patiently waits for developments, doing all in her power to make them of a nature favorable to her missing husband. To all, whether policeman, bank official, or reporter, she turns a smiling face and gives a ready reply. Self-possessed and never losing her head under even the most trying circumstances, she may prove to be one of the most valuable allies her husband could hope for.

On the other hand, Mrs. Swift is bowed down with grief. Unlike Mrs. Smith, she has always been used to all that wealth could buy and is a society woman. Her father, Solon W. Stevens, is one of the best known and wealthiest lawyers in Middlesex county.

Since the disappearence of her husband, Mrs. Swift has spent most of her time in her father's home. She has made a statement to the bank officials telling them all she knows about her husband's affairs.

Today may bring a statement from the directors and the news that the matter has been satisfactorily adjusted, or it may not. The public would not be suprised either way.

A RECORD BREAKER

New Russian Battleship Shows Mos Remarkable Speed

Boston, Oct. 21.—The Retvizan, the new Russian battleship, built by the Cramps, is making its official trial trip today off the Maine shore.

In her trip from New York to Boston, the Retvizan broke the record for speed of first-class battleships. At no time during the 12 hours did she drop below 18 knots, and for one whole hour she kept up a speed of 19 knots. Her average was 18.8 knots, and when she steamed past Hull she bore proud record of the fact in big figures on her funnel.

The Retvizan was launched a year ago. She is 384 feet on the waterline, is 72 feet 2½ inches beam and from main deck to keel is 43 feet 10 inches. Her displacement at 25 feet draught is 12,800 tons, or about the same as the new battleships Maine, Missouri and Ohio. Her guaranteed speed is 18 knots. Her motive power is in two triple-expansion, vertical, direct-acting engines. The engines are placed in separate water-tight compartments, and are supplied with steam by 24 water tube boilers of the Niclausse type, built in this country. The pressure is 256 pounds, and she has a bunker capacity of 2000 tons of coal.

A whaleboat of the Retvizan was capsized and sunk during the heavy gale Saturday, carrying down with her a valuable rapid-fire gun. The boat was hoisted overboard for a trial in the heavy seas which were sweeping down Boston harbor, but after getting from under the lee of the ship a big wave came aboard and sent her to the bottom. Those on board reached the Retvizan in safety.

Death of Rear Admiral Bunce

Hartford, Oct. 21.—Rear Admiral Francis M. Bunce, U. S. N., (retired), died here Saturday. He was a native of Connecticut, and entered the naval academy May 28, 1852, graduating in REAR ADMIRAL BUNCE.

1857. In February, 1898, he was made rear admiral and in December of the same year was placed on the retired list. The late admiral suffered for many years with cancer. In September the disease attacked the throat, and the patient grew weaker from that time, fighting a hopeless battle with the courage that had always characterized the man.

Sixty Buildings Burned

Halifax, Oct. 21,—The prosperous and thriving town of Sydney was almost swept out of existence Saturday by a fierce conflagration. The flames swept through the principal business portion of the town. About 60 buildings are in ashes, and many more are badly scorched. The fire is supposed to have been started by the bursting of an oil stove. The loss is roughly placed at between $400,000 and $500,000.

A Dastardly Deed

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 21.—Reese Morgan, superintendent of the Murray mine, attended church with his family last evening. He returned with a neighbor shortly after 9 o'clock and had just opened the gate when there was a terrific explosion. The whole rear portion of the house was torn away by the explosion. The police could obtain no clue as to the parties who committed the deed.

Excitement and Suicide

St. Johns, Oct. 21.—The body of Rev. Henry Black, chaplain of the British cruiser Charybdis, who mysteriously disappeared from St. Johns last Wednesday, was found yesterday near St. Johns. He had evidently committed suicide in consequence of dementia attributed to the excitement growing out of the forthcoming visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York.

The Russian Famine

St. Petersburg, Oct. 21.—Acting upon additional information from the governor of the province of Samara, the minister of the interior has officially proclaimed famine conditions in five more districts in that province. This means that the bad harvest has already made itself so keenly felt that a special medical and relief organization is deemed necessary for these districts.

Yale's Second Century

New Haven, Oct. 21.—Yale university began yesterday the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Yale college. The exercises were simple and yet imposing, being ushered in with ceremonies essentially religious.

Carpets will be sold at the Jones' Auction, Thursday.

ABDUCTORS ARE WARY

All Efforts to Reach Them Have Failed Thus Far

SECRETARY HAY'S ORDER

To Pay Ransom at Once Will Be Followed by a Reckoning With Bulgaria and Turkey—Suspicion of an American Agent of Bandits

Constantinople, Oct. 21.—The United States legation here is still without definite news from either Rev. Dr. Haskell or Rev. Mr. Baird of the Congregational mission at Samakov, Bulgaria, who have been endeavoring to get in touch with the abductors of Miss Stone and Mme. Tsika, her companion, with a view of arranging as to the ransom commanded by the brigands.

Mr. Baird, who was at Djumabala, has returned to Samakov, indicating his failure to get in touch with the brigands from the Turkish side. All efforts will now be concentrated on the Bulgarian side.

Secretary Hay Acts

Washington, Oct. 20.—Believing that the only way in which Miss Stone, the missionary, will be rescued is by the payment of a ransom, and that any delay may prove disastrous, Secretary Hay has instructed Consul-General Dickinson to pay the ransom for the release of Miss Stone without delay at the opportune time.

Secretary Hay believes that the first consideration is the life of Miss Stone. When she has been released it will be time to deal with Bulgaria and Turkey. It is certain that both countries will be made to render an account in the matter, and if there is sufficient evidence to implicate both or either of them in the abduction, prompt and decisive measures will be taken in the premises.

Refusal of the brigands who abducted Miss Stone to accept a smaller ransom than they originally fixed has led the administration to suspect that they have a representative in this country who is advising them by cable of the progress in raising the amount demanded.

Confident, as a result of the representations of the United States, that they will not be attacked by either Turkish or Bulgarian troops, the brigands can quietly wait until the ransom has been collected and is in the hands of Mr. Eddy, the secretary of the American legation in Constantinople, ready for transfer upon the production of the captive. Ordinarily, a demand for the ransom is made with the expectation that a smaller sum will be offered which will be acceptable.

Steamer Struck a Rock

Detroit, Oct. 21.—The passenger steamer City of Cleveland ran on a rock about 6 o'clock Sunday morning, during a heavy fog, and stove a large hole in her bottom amidship. The steamer gradually filled until she rested on bottom, with, however, her maindeck still above water. The shock was so slight that none of the 40 passengers who were asleep were awakened. Steamer Newsboy landed them at Detroit.

Young Nelson Is Swift

New York, Oct. 21.—Joe Nelson made a remarkable showing for a boy at the Vailsburg cycle track yesterday. He not only defeated his opponent easily in a 15-mile motor-paced race, but created new world's amateur records for every one of the miles except the fourth and fifth. His time for the distance was 24:55 2-5.

Suspicion of Foul Play

Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 21.—The sudden death of John Whalen, who expired at the supper table in his boarding house last evening, led the police to arrest his companion, whose name they do not disclose, pending an investigation. Whalen was with the man in his room some little time before his supper.

Holds All Records but One

New York, Oct. 21.—John Flanagan made a new world's record yesterday by throwing the 56-pound weight a distance of 36 feet, 9½ inches. By winning this event Flanagan now holds all heavyweight athletic records with the exception of throwing the 56-pound weight for height, held by J. S. Mitchell.

Manchester Shipper Floated

Halifax, Oct. 21.—Steamer Manchester Shipper, which was ashore on Petries ledge, Low Point, C. B., was successfully floated without the aid of tugs. She steamed up to North Sydney yesterday. A diver will ascertain the extent of the damage.

No Flies on Horsefly

Ashcroft, B. C., Oct. 21.—Rich placer ground has been struck near the headwaters of Horsefly, in a section which no white man has ever explored. The news was sent down by a thoroughly reliable man in Horsefly.

Offended the Government

Kiel, Oct. 21.—Eleven residents of the village of Kiobenhand, near the Danish frontier, have been expelled for publicly advocating the reunion of Schleswig with Denmark.

When you have no appetite, do not relish your food and feel dull after eating you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Price, 25 cents. At all druggists.

ADMITS TWO ROBBERIES

But Nellie Reagan Is Suspected of Many Other Misdeeds

Newton, Mass., Oct. 21.—Nellie M. Reagen is locked up and a quantity of property, perhaps $1500 worth, is in keeping at police headquarters awaiting indentification by the rightful owners. The girl has been a domestic for Edward Van Tassel, and judging from the evidence obtained the police say she is responsible for two of many robberies in Newton houses.

The property recovered includes jewelry, silverware, clothing of every description, bric-a brac, shawls, pocket books and other articles too numerous to mention. Among them is a camel's hair shawl valued at $300, already identified as stolen from the residence of C. B. Fillebrown last July. Several hundred dollars' worth of silverware and a bicycle are also claimed by him.

Since the robbery of Mr. Fillebrown's house the police have kept up the search. Several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry and silverware were taken, and the pawnshops of all the larger Massachusetts cities have been visited, but without success. Several promising clues were found, but nothing came of them.

Yesterday afternoon when Officers Soule and Fletcher went to make the arrest the girl saw them from the window of her room and started to empty her trunks and the drawers of her bureau by throwing a motley collection under the eaves of the house. The officers interrupted her. From her room a wagon load of goods was removed to headquarters.

The woman was put through a searching examination. While admitting it is said, two breaks, she persistently denied having been concerned in other similar affairs. When examined her familiarity with police methods strengthened the belief that she may have a police record.

Little is known about her. She gives her age as 28, a native of Ireland, but living in this country since childhood.

May Not Go to Philippines

Boston, Oct. 21.—Rev. Charles H. Brent of St. Stephen's church, chosen missionary bishop to the Philippines by the Episcopal convocation which has just closed, did not mention his probable action on the appointment yesterday. On the contrary, speaking to his congregation, he told of the necessity of sticking by the parish and carrying out the work which had been organized there during the past 10 years.

Accidentally Killed Brother

Newport, R. I., Oct. 21.—A small Flobert rifle in the hands of John O'Connell, aged 12, was accidently discharged yesterday and the small bullet killed Connell's brother Robert almost instantly. James was examining the gun when it went off just as Robert entered the room, and the bullet lodged in his breast, near his heart. James told the police that he did not know the gun was loaded.

Alix' Inglorious End

Providence, Oct. 21.—Alix, the famous trotting mare, whose record of 2:03 3-4, made in 1894, was not equalled until last year, was cholorformed at the farm of her owner, Mr. Sayles. The mare was stricken with paralysis about a month ago and to save her from a lingering death she was humanely killed. Alix still held the mile trotting record for a mare at her death.

Advance Refused

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 21.—A conference between representatives of the cotton mill operatives of this city and the executive committee of the Manufacturer's association was held Saturday afternoon. The demand for 5 per cent advance in wages was renewed by the operatives and again declined by the manufacturers, leaving the situation practically unchanged.

Would-Be Peacemaker Hurt

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 21.—A brutal assault was inflicted on Mrs. Fanny Anglin in her sister's yard yesterday, and the police say that Martin Brennan, 28 years old, was the assailant. Brennan had been drinking and the Anglin woman interfered in a quarrel between Brennan and his brother. Brennan is held to await the outcome of the woman's injuries.

Said Nothing About Call

Boston, Oct. 21.—Although two great congregation went to Tremont temple yesterday to hear Rev. George C. Lorimer, he made no mention in his sermon of his call to New York. Nothing has been done towards selecting a successor to Dr. Lorimer, although he begins his work at the Madison Aveune church on the first Sunday in November.

Head Troubled Him

Boston, Oct. 21.—Rev. Dr. Perin, best known in the Universalist denomination as the pastor of the Every Day Church, and who for a year has been attempting to raise a fund of $100,000 for the Universalist convention, was operated upon at the city hospital for head trouble. His condition is serious.

Malden Man Decapitated

Malden, Mass., Oct. 21.—Johnson Storey of this city, about to leave a car of an outward bound train from the wrong side at Linden station here, drew back suddenly and fell beneath the car on which he was riding and had his head severed by the wheels.

Yale Man Hurt

New Haven, Oct. 21.—Edward T. Corrigan, aged 20, a middle class law student at Yale, stumbled from a platform of an all-night lunch wagon near the campus about 2:30 o'clock this morning and fractured his skull. His condition is serious.

Good Afternoon

Another great advance has been made in the telephone. In Boston, now, it is no longer necessary to ring the bell, the removal of the receiver from the hook lighting a lamp in the exchange and notifying the operator a connection is desired. The hanging up of receiver afterward extinguishes the light and signals the operator the subscriber wishes to be disconnected.

Drift of Opinion.

☞With reference to Miss Stone a great many good people don't know what is best to do. Evidently they know how to do it.—Beverly Times.

☞ The professional tramp is an almost unknown quantity in Massachusetts. A law that makes it a crime to beg except of the authorities, who usually require labor in return for food, is a greater discourager of idle living. But the occasional foodless, bedless, homeless person still exists, and always will exist. The man who has no steady "job" and who has no faculty or inclination to look out for his earnings when he has one, is quite apt at some period of his existence to find himself little better than a tramp.—New Bedford Standard.

☞It is pleasant to have the assurance that President Roosevelt is stoutly opposed to all schemes for making over the White House. No project for changing the edifice could ever make the slightest headway if it were fought by the incumbent, and it may therefore be taken for granted that the scheme which has been sedulously promoted for making the historic structure look like a gingerbread palace has received its quietus. Mr. Roosevelt shows good sense, also, in adopting the popular name for the building as its official designation, rather than the more elaborate title of the Executive Mansion. The people call the place where the president lives the White House, and he might as well do the same.—New York Evening Post.

It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

RE-DEDICATION

Of the Swedish Congregational Church.

Mayor Hall and the Clergy Assist.

Edifice Now Well Appointed and Very Attractive.

The Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street, which has recently undergone extensive alterations, a description of which was published in a recent edition of the Ledger, was re-dedicated Sunday afternoon.

The regular service was held at 10 o'clock in the morning, and was very largely attended, many visiting clergymen being present.

The re-dedication exercises were held in the afternoon at three o'clock, and the church proved too small to accommodate those who desired to attend. The decorations were confined to the platform which was beautiful with flowers.

The exercises were held partly in the English and partly in the Swedish languages. They were opened by prayers led by Rev. John Bjork and Rev. H. Hanson.

Rev. G. Wald Leufstedt, the pastor, made an address of welcome, and gave a brief history of the church. Addresses were then made by Mayor John O. Hall, Hon. Russell A. Sears, Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Rev. August Pohl, Rev. Edward A. Chase and Rev Dr Hogenun. Music was furnished by the regular church choir assisted by a male quartette, and Miss Hannah Pohl of Campello gave a solo.

Wollaston Golf Championship.

G. A. Atherton won the championship honors of the Wollaston Golf club on Saturday in a very close match with F. F. H. Smith, by 1 up, 36 holes.

The club held a members' handicap vs. bogey in classes A and B, as follows:

Class A (all "down")—E. C. Tarbell 3, H. W. Vinton 6, R. R. Freeman 9, A. L. Pope 9. T. A. Burdette 11, G. A. Tyler 12.

Class B (all "down")—F. L. Richardson 6, W. Wallace 12.

Council Business.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight, but owing to the failure of several committees to get a quorum there will be but few committee reports.

The Committee on State Aid will report upon several petitions.

Reports may also be expected from the Finance Committee who have a number of matters before them.

The only order in the calendar is that granting the Old Colony street railway a location for a turnout on Washington street near Cherry avenue.

King's Daughters.

The annual union meeting of the Quincy circle of King's Daughters will be held in the Congregational church, Saturday, Oct. 26. There will be a business meeting from 4 to 6. Between the hours of 6 and 7 a light lunch will be served. At 7 o'clock Mrs. Mary M. Sawtelle will address the meeting in the interest of the Pond Home for the Aged of Norfolk county. This home the King's Daughters and Sons are fitting to use. All are cordially invited to be present.

Harvest Concert.

The annual harvest concert of the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school was held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the vestry of the church. The offerings of the Sunday school were bountiful. A very instructive and interesting table was given the children by the pastor, Rev. Frank W. Fratt. Olive Fay and Gladys Parker contributed recitations, and a pleasing number was by the members of the kindergarten. There were also songs by the Sunday school.

A Large Variety of Pictures will be sold at the Jones' Auction. Thursday.

Stamps for Voters.

Rubber stamps will be used instead of pencils to mark ballots at the Boston city election, thus preventing fraud by those who count the ballots.

TRADES AND DEALS.

A Signed Editorial in Favor of Direct Nominations.

What is true in Essex county, told by Editor Gauss of the Salem Observer, applies with equal force to Norfolk county. If nominations were made direct, Watts H. Bowker of Hyde Park would not today be the candidate of the Republicans of Norfolk county for County Commissioner. Editor Gauss advocates direct nominations in an able manner, as follows:

"When trades and deals, rather than the strength and personality of the candidates, when personal results rather than the effective filling of the offices are made paramount, as they easily may be under the convention system, the way is easy, step by step to a decidely disagreeable condition of things.

"The situation is possible and may be only a short distance in the future when efficient public service will count for absolutely nothing and the office holder who desires a renomination will be careful only to cater to the men in each town or city who can control the delegations.

"With the present ascendency of the Republican party in the county and the fact of nomination by the Republicans being equivalent to an election the actual choice of officers and representatives takes place at the Republican caucuses. Whether the rank and file of the membership of the party has any hand in making up the list of candidates will be readily answered by any one, even by those who take the trouble to attend the primaries.

"Under the present practice a man who aspires to a particular office looks up certain men in each place and endeavors to have them influence the town or city committee to make up a delegation in his interest. He very often gets a promise, but he is never sure that he will get the delegation. Personal and local interest pull and haul at the town or city committee or the dominant faction therein, and finally determine the complexion of the delegation while contestants have to run the risk of antagonism of the regularly constituted organization of the party.

"In the absence of any particular local interest in a candidate, he is not sure of his delegation even after it has been made up more or less lukewarmly in his interest, other and stronger interests are likely to come in, and there is the temptation to the use of money to induce one or more men to "deliver the delegation."

"The tendency of the delegate system is toward reprisal and recompense and its possibilites for evil is so widespread that it is a matter for congratulation that matters are no worse, and that a halt may be made before Essex County politics show serious corruption and laxity of moral fibre.

"And the alternative is a very simple and at the same time a very effective remedy for the evils which has been proudly complained of and for those other evils which are to be anticipated.

"Instead of having the city and town committees make up lists of delegates, let them receive the names of candidates up to a certain hour. Let these names be printed on Australian ballot, the candidates for every office except the state office and the candidates for delegates to the state convention, with instructions if thought best, to appear on the one ballot and then let the members of the Republican party come out and vote for the men of their choice, the sum of the votes in a given district to determine the nomination.

"The votes could be certified by the caucus officers to the town or city committee and by it to the district committee which would be elected for the ensuing year at the same caucus and the party machinery would be what was intended, a means to the expression of the will of the members of the party, and not a machine for the direction of that expression.

"The objection may be made to the direct system that it gives the larger municipalities a predominating vote But it makes it impossible for one city to control the vote of the whole county as under the present system and in practice it will probably be found that the difference will be equalized in the fact that the cities or towns having a candidate will turn out a larger proportionate number at the caucuses than the municipalities which have no special interests in the choice.

"All that can be urged of the convention system as to facility in the rotation of elective offices which within limits is a good thing and especially as regards successive representations of the towns composing a district, is equally true with regard to direct nomination.

"It is reasonably certain that if those who object to the convention system, who see grave evils at present and grave dangers to come, want the direct nomination system adopted a bill can be passed in the coming legislature to enable Essex county to adopt the system, which is already working well in Boston. The mass of the members of the party are heartily in favor of direct nomination and the members of the various town and city committees ought to be in favor of it since it takes the responsibility from their shoulders and lessens the number of disagreeable duties which a committeeman is sometimes called on to perform.

"It is possible that a few men who offer to get a living by the manipulation of party caucuses may object to the new method but even they are getting tired of the uncertainty which attends the convention system and admit the advantages and virtues of the system of direct nomination."

Russian Visitors.

The Fore River shipyard had some notable visitors on Saturday including Baron Ferson the Russian naval attache at Washington; Mr. Dobson, secretary to E. S. Cramp, Capt. Edoward Sethenovitch and a number of lieutenants of the Russian battleship Retvizan.

The torpedo boat destroyer McDonough was put into commission to carry the visitors back to their ship. She shot along at a 24-knot gait, and the visitors were surprised that the machinery worked with so little vibration. A run was made to Boston light in a rough sea but the Macdonough proved to be a good sea boat, although she had been tried out only four times before.

Veteran Firemen.

The Hingham Veterans Firemen's Association had its annual field day on Saturday and entertained the East Weymouth association. Following the parade was a choot stew served to 250 at Agricultural hall.

Turkish Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

PROSPEROUS SCHOOL

Quincy Mansion School Dedicate a New Building.

The dedication of The Canterbury building at Quincy Mansion school took place Saturday at 3 P. M. The exercises opened with a piano duet (March by Schubert) by Messrs. Carl Faelten and Cressman.

Next followed the reading of Scriptures by Miss Mary A. Currier, an old friend of Dr. and Mrs. Willard; prayer by Rev. E. P. Farnham of Salem; chorus by the school—"Praise ye the Father," Gounod.

Mr. Willard spoke of the cramped condition of the school, and that he had long felt the need of a building suitable for gymnastics, music and other purposes. It was impossible, he said, to carry out the usual program at dedications. As this was a girl's school he had called upon Mrs. Mary A. Livermore to address the pupils. In closing his remarks Mr. Willard gave an original and interesting poem, appropriate to the occasion which called forth much applause.

A song, 'The Lord in my Light" was sung with unusual expression by Mr. Marceau.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, who needed no introduction to the audience, began her address by saying that her presence at the occasion was due to the long friendship which had existed between herself and Mr. and Mrs. Willard—that Mr. Willard's grandfather had baptised her grandfather. She enjoined upon the pupils the importance of good sound body, that it was better not to have the higher education if it meant the sacrifice of health. She rejoiced in her own good health, and advised the pupils not to talk of their ailments. She felt the work of education was the highest and grandest in the world; that the teacher's mission was next to that of the minister, that the work of education was not inferior to religion; that it carried the best of the spirit of Martin Luther. She also believed that environment could always overcome bad heredity. In closing Mrs. Livermore said: "Lead a life of cheerfulness and don't put yourself anywhere where you can be called a superfluous woman."

Messrs. Carl Faelten and Cressman delighted the audience with Beethoven's Fifth Conarto.

Brief addresses followed by Mayor Hall, Prof. Niles of Technology and Dr. Gordon.

The naming of the hall, by Mrs. H. M. Willard, was delivered in a most feeling manner. While she was paying the most noble tribute to her friend, the veil was slowly lifted and disclosed to view the life-like bust of Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, from whom the hall derived its name, Livermore hall. A burst of applause issued from the audience.

The exercises closed with the singing of "America."

The Canterbury is a commodious frame building with Colonial treatment, and with all the latest improvements for heating, ventilation and lighting. The floors are all finished with hard wood. In the main hall the ceiling beams are molded. The hall is also well lighted with ornamental transom windows. The entrance is by a spacious porch. A most harmonious effect is produced by the treatment of the materials. In the basement is located the gymnasium. The ground floor is mainly taken up by the hall.

In the second story are the music rooms, and the private room of Mr. Willard, which are fitted up with antique furnishings. Leading from the second story, are spacious open balconies front and rear.

The third or contains the art rooms and chemical laboratory. Fire escape is provided in the rear for every story.

The architect of the building was Mr. Richardson, while great credit is due the builder, George H. Thomas.

Crawford Grand Range No. 7 will be sold at the Jones' Auction, Thursday.

Fire at Greenleaf.

The alarm from Box 26 at 9 o'clock Sunday night was for a slight fire at Hotel Greenleaf. The fire started in a store closet on the third floor and was discovered by a servant who notified the clerk. The fire was extinguished before it had an opportunity to make much headway by employes of the hotel. The fire is supposed to have been caused by someone dropping a lighted match. The loss will not exceed $5.

Edward Capen.

Edward Capen, librarian emeritus of the Haverhill Public Library, died Sunday evening at his home on Highland avenue. He was at the library as usual Saturday. Sunday was his 80th birthday, and he had received several tokens of friendship. He was married in 1859 to Ann Augusta, daughter of John and Mary Saville of Quincy, who survives him, with one daughter, Miss Annie Capen.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bounteous response?

(Signed) Timothy Reed,
Secretary Board of Trustees.

Ward Three Appeal.

To the people of Ward Three:

Our City Hospital is about $8000 in debt, and is in need of $3000 to carry on its good work for this year.

Committees are appointed from each ward to canvass and collect for this purpose, and we feel assured that Ward Three will liberally respond to this worthy object. It is the intention of your committee to call on every person in the ward, and if each man and woman will contribute a little, with the assurance that no other collection will be made for one year, the desired results will be secured.

The collectors will receive and credit to you whatever you wish to contribute during the week commencing October 21, 1901.

HENRY McGRATH,
Chairman Committee Ward 3.

Get-Rich-Quick Scheme.

Dr. George H. Whittemore, dentist, is again in custody on a charge of larceny of $4,000. An indictment was found against him by a jury in New York, and Saturday a New York officer came to Boston with a requisition. A warrant was issued by a municipal court judge and Whittemore was placed under arrest. He was bailed later.

☞Mrs. Joanna Falvey, 79 West st., Quincy, Mass., won last week's Oatnuts prize of $10. She sent in 13 porridge directions, or in other words invested $1.30 and received a check for $10.

The Liberty Pure Food Co. of Boston, Mass., are giving a $10 weekly prize to those sending in the most OATNUTS porridge directions cut from the side of the packages. 16-18-20

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

CITY BREVITIES.

City Council tonight.

Paul Revere W. R. C. will be inspected tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Alexander Hill of Henry street has gone out of town for a few days.

The Hospital colletions startted in today, and are meeting with encourgement.

Johnson Bros. have just received a full line of the reliable preferred stock of canned goods.

Owing to the few entries at the Merrymount Golf club there is no tournament Saturday.

The noon temperature of Sunday was the lowest this season, but not as low as Oct. 20 last year.

The furniture sale at Mrs. Bigelow's on South street on Friday is sure to attract many people.

Dr. Kendall of Atlantic street has returned from a hunting trip to Montana, where he was very successful with his gun.

The Quincy A. C. foot ball team was clearly outclassed Saturday in its match with Everett A. A. at Everett. The home eleven scored 39 to 0.

A new timetable of the Quincy routes of the Old Colony street railway is advertised today. As it is many months since the timetable was published it will be appreciated.

The Wollaston hook and ladder truck made a very quick run to City Square, Sunday evening, within six minutes from the first round of the alarm. Hose 2 was about a half minute behind and Hose 4 within eight minutes.

The Edward Hewitson Associates will meet for the first time this fall in the vestry of the Congregational church, Wollaston, tomorrow evening. As usual the music will be conducted by Mr. H. V. Follett. It is hoped that all members will make a special effort to be present, and bring their friends.

It was an amusing sight Saturday afternoon to see the children coasting down Sagamore street in a little express wagon. Some "kind friend" would start the wagon down the hill, and by the aid of two ropes fastened to the front wheels, it was able to be steered in safety very nearly down to the postoffice. There was one drawback. The youths used the sidewalk instead of the street.

Some Fine China and Glass Ware will be sold at the Jones' Auction Thursday.

Surprise Party.

Saturday evening a large number of friends assembled at the residence of W. Norrie, 100 Centre street, for a surprise party. They presented Mrs. Norrie with a valuable dinner set consisting of 130 pieces, and enjoyed themselves till the hour of twelve.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. K. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. J. McLellan, Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. E. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. A. Perrie, Mr. and Mrs. A. Berman, Mrs. Stronach, Mrs. Kirkland, Miss Mary McLeod, Mr. W. Kelly, Mr. D. Smith, Mr. R. Whitney, Mr. A. McDonald, Mr. H. Gillis, Mr. Miles.

Penn's Hill, 5; Dublin A. A., 0.

There was quite a close game of foot ball played at Faxon Park on Saturday between Penn Hill and Dublin A. A. The former won 5 to 0. Although the former were greatly outweighed by their opponents they played a better team game, which accounts for their their victory. The rushing by the backs of the Penn Hills was errorless, and they repeatly bored the Dublins line for long gains. Field, McGregor, Miller, Curtis and Prarrio played the best game for the Penn's Hills, while Ford, Harkins, Tate and Costello put up a fast game for the visitors.

New Frogs.

New tracks were laid by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. at the Water street crossing on Sunday, and the work was watched with interest by a large number. New frogs were also put in for the street railway, so that the electric cars will now pass over the railroad without so much jostling.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

All sizes; all prices; one kind—the best.

Religion and Law

Boston, Oct. 21.—Because he became a citizen of the United States and swore to uphold the constitution of his adopted country, James Jackson of Cambridge has been suspended from membership in the Second Reformed church of Boston by Rev. J. M. Foster, and the presbytery confirmed the sentence. Jackson was given the opportunity by the church of renouncing his act, but refused. Foster explained that the denomination looks upon the constitution of the United States as an immoral document and an insult to the Almighty.

Cutting Into National League

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

SLAUGHTER IS AVERTED

By the Vigilance of a Lieutenant of Infantry

ATTACK UPON A GARRISON

Planned by a Priest and a Presidente, Who, With Others Implicated, Are Arrested—Hard Work Ahead For American Troops In Samar

Manila, Oct. 21.—Owing to the vigilance of Lieutenant Bains of the Ninth United States infantry, another slaughter of American troops by insurgents has been averted.

It seems that Lieutenant Bains discovered a prisoner re-entering a cell at Carbiga, Island of Samar, where several prisoners were confined, through a hole that had been let in the wall. An investigation showed a plan to fill the jail with bolomen and to call the guard, which would be necessary to get the door open, and then to attack the garrison. It also developed that the instigators were a priest and the presidente, both of whom have been arrested, together with several other prominent persons.

Other attempts have been discovered but, fortunately, frustrated at Pambujan and other points in Samar. Several persons have been arrested in connection with these.

Reinforcements are being rushed to Samar. Three hundred and thirty marines, under Lieutenant Colonel Goodrell, have gone there on board the United States cruiser New York, and two battalions of the Twelfth infantry will start immediately for the same destination.

United States officers from other provinces that were supposed to be pacified have recently arrived in Manila, and they say that the news of American disasters spreads like wildfire among the natives, who scarcely attempt to conceal their delight.

The Manila constabulary discovered a large quantity of steel wagon springs, which were being shipped in various districts. Investigation showed that these were to be used in manufacturing bolos.

The troops in Samar anticipate hard fighting. Brigadier General Smith, who is in command, has visited most of the posts and instructed the commanders that the insurrection must be hammered out and General Lukban, the insurgent leader, captured. Already the movement of troops has begun.

General Lacuna, who surrendered last May, has complained to [illegible] Chaffee that the terms upon which he and his force surrendered have not been respected by the Americans. He exhibits a document signed by himself and General Funston, in which he and his force are granted immunity in respect of all acts committed contrary to the laws of the war.

Since this document was executed several of Lacuna's officers and men have been tried, condemned and sentenced to die for killing American prisoners. General Funston says that when it was signed he gave Lacuna orally to understand that the killing of American prisoners was excepted. Lacuna admits that something was said on this subject, but says no thorough understanding was reached, and he considers the written agreement binding.

Would Brush Aside Formality

Boston, Oct. 21.—President Pritchett of the Institute of Technology gave 150 schoolmasters of Massachusetts a lesson in good fellowship when he told them of the delicate touch of that democracy of sociability which the German professor would impart to the pupil over a mug of excellent beer, in a dingy room crowded with students and clouded with tobacco smoke. President Pritchett said he tried to inaugurate this system in Boston and will try again with the Harvard and Tech boys this winter.

Killed in Odd Manner

Plattsburg, N. Y., Oct. 21.—John Touhey, employed by a farmer living near here, was sent to a field yesterday to bring in a colt. Instead of leading it by the halter he tied the rope around his own body. The colt ran away, dragging the boy over a field and a stone wall. The lad's body was found still tied to the colt.

Big Bill Remains Unsettled

Paris, Oct. 21.—A despatch from Constantinople confirms previous despatches to the effect that the Lorando claim of over $100,000 (Turkish) for money loaned some years ago to the porte is still unsettled and says that the rumor that the government of Turkey had agreed to the French demand is untrue.

Sequel to Domestic Quarrel

Buffalo, Oct. 21.—Gustave Beck, 52 years old, quarreled with his wife last night because she had not hung curtains on the kitchen windows. He became violent and attacked the woman. She succeeded in breaking away from him. Beck then drank carbolic acid, dying in great agony.

Tug Cut In Two

Detroit, Oct. 21.—Tug Samuel J. Christian was struck by the big freighter John J. Albright in the Detroit river and cut in two. She sank immediately. Captain Harlow, the cook and fireman were drowned. The accident was the result of cross signals.

England's Latest Acquisition

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 21.—The British cruiser Pylades reports that she has anexed Ocean island, west of the Gilbert islands. The island, which has hitherto been a British protectorate, is rich in phosphates.

THE DEMISE OF DEWET

Reported and Denied From Different Sections of South Africa

Durban, Oct. 21.—General Dewet's recent inactivity has produced the impression among military men that he is either dead or incapacitated through illness or wounds.

According to a letter from Pretoria, a prominent Boer recently wrote to a friend there, relating the terrible hardships suffered by the Boers in the field, especially from the lack of surgeons.

"Dewet, for example," wrote this Boer, "suffered the most terrible agony before he died. He was wounded in the shoulder by a splinter from a shell, and the wound gangrened, owing to its being dressed with dirty rags."

Five Boers captured at different places recently said Dewet was dead, but each gave a different version of his death.

Against these reports is the statement of Piet DeVilliers, the field cornet, recently taken prisoner in the northeastern part of the Orange River colony, who said that on the morning of his capture he took breakfast with General Dewet.

A force of Canadian scouts surprised a Boer laager near Balmoral Saturday. The Boers fled after a short fight. The Canadians had two men killed and an officer and two men wounded.

Good News For Kruger

Brussels, Oct. 21.—Mr. Kruger has received a report from Mr. Schalk-Burger that the greater part of Cape Colony is in open rebellion and that the Boers have armed 15,000 Afrikanders within the last three months.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The trustees of the Revere, Mass., public library discussed the proposition of Andrew Carnegie to present the town $20,000 for a new library. At a special town meeting they will recommend the acceptance of the gift.

Edward Capen, the first librarian of the Boston Public library, died at Haverhill, Mass., on the 80th anniversary of his birth. The death summons came in the form of an attack of heart trouble.

The Knights of Pythias dedicated their new monument at Edson cemetery, Lowell, Mass., with appropriate ceremonies.

Charged with drunkenness, Peter Grady was arrested at North Adams, Mass., and locked up in jail. Later he was found by the keeper lying on the floor dead.

That section of Gardiner, Mass., near the railroad station narrowly escaped being blown sky-high when a freight train struck a car loaded with gunpowder and derailed it. The car was badly damaged, as well as two cars containing barrels of apples. [illegible] he is a delegate to the [illegible] Republican convention.

Rev. E. C. S. Cobb, for 35 years pastor of the Congregational church at Florence, Mass., read a letter of resignation to his people, to take effect Dec. 1.

On the flats of the Kingston, Mass., shore at low tide was found the body of Captain J. F. Burgess, who was drowned from his fishing dory.

The national bank of Boyertown, Pa., is closed, and a notice on the bank's door states that it was done because of the disappearance of the cashier, Milton A. Mory.

D. J. McCarthy killed a large bull moose only six miles from Bangor, Me. Deer have frequently been seen in the outskirts of that city.

A number of Lexington, Mass., men are suffering from what is believed to be ptomaine poisoning, caused by eating lobster salad at a recent meeting of a lodge of Masons. While none of the cases has resulted fatally, some of those afflicted have been seriously sick.

The C. D. B. Biscuit company, manufacturers of fancy crackers, had its bakeshop at Worcester, Mass., completely gutted by fire. The entire loss is estimated at $35,000.

Rudolph Leibich, arrested on the allegation of bigamy, was called into court at Burlington, Vt., for a hearing, but this incident was delayed until Nov. 1, in order that the claim that he was first married in England might be inquired into.

A new independent steel corporation that is shortly to enter the market in competition with the United States Steel corporation has been formed in Pittsburg. The new concern is known as the Everson Steel corporation.

FOR A CHILD

who is "not doing well"—the condition occurs now and then with all children.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is a food that begins to build you up at once—of course, it don't show at once.

"Not doing well" means that the child is not getting the good of his food. Not today, or this week; it may have been going on for a month; before it begins to show in the child's condition.

You want him to get back to turning his usual food into strength.

You want the food that begins to build, up at once.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

Don't Be Afraid of Work.

One thing that keeps young men down is their fear of work. They aim to find genteel occupations, so they can dress well, not soil their clothes and handle things with the tips of their fingers. They do not like to get their shoulders under the wheel, and they prefer to give orders to others or figure as masters and let some one else do the drudgery. There is no doubt that indolence and laziness are the chief obstacles to success.

When we see a boy who has just secured a position take hold of everything with both hands and "jump right into his work" as if he meant to succeed, we have confidence that he will prosper. But if he stands around and asks questions when told to do anything; if he tells you that this or that belongs to some other boy to do, for it is not his work; if he does not try to carry out his orders in the correct way; if he wants a thousand explanations when asked to run an errand and makes his employer think that he could have done the whole thing himself, one feels like discharging such a boy on the spot, for he is convinced that he was not cut out for success. That boy will be cursed with mediocrity or will be a failure. There is no place in this century for the lazy man. He will be pushed to the wall.—Success.

Shoulder Protection.

In the steel curb shoulder protection which now forms a part of the equipment of almost all cavalry the troops have a permanent reminder of one of the most exciting adventures which befell Sir George Luck, the lieutenant general commanding the Bengal forces.

During the Afghan operations of 1878 to 1880 he took his regiment, the Fifteenth hussars, up to Kandahar and encountered at Takht-i-Pul a strong body of hillmen led by Afghan sowars, who made things pretty warm for him for a few minutes. In the hand to hand fighting he became engaged with a gigantic Pathan, who broke down his guard and would have cloven him from shoulder to belt but that his wife had sewed on his shoulders in the lining of his tunic a couple of steel curb chains, one of which broke the force of the slash.

The incident so impressed the military authorities in India that what is now known as the Luck or "lucky" shoulder curb was soon afterward introduced.—Military Mail.

A Last Joke.

John D. Long, in the Massachusetts campaign of 1878, was making his first run for governor against General Ben Butler, who had captured the Democratic nomination, and Judge Josiah G. Abbott, who was the candidate of the [illegible] old line Democrats.

The late Judge Thompson was making a speech for Abbott before a big Democratic audience and, after praising the candidate as a jurist and a statesman, asked sarcastically, "And now, who is this John L-L-Long?" No one answering, he proceeded: "They say he has made a translation of Homer's 'Iliad!' What g-g-good is that to us? All Democrats read Homer in the original."

At this the person to whom the judge was telling the story laughed, but the judge continued: "Th-th-that's not the real joke at all! The real joke is that not a m-m-man in the audience so much as smiled!"

Where She Differed From Paul.

A Scotch clergyman called upon a parishioner not long since, an old woman who was not blessed with many virtues, but who possessed a very varied assortment of vices. He took the latter as a text for a sermon and spoke to her at considerable length upon the subject, concluding with some extracts from one of St. Paul's epistles which he felt to be apropos.

She didn't speak for several minutes after he had finished, and he thought that he had made an impression upon her at last. He was mistaken, however, for she suddenly turned round with the remark: "Humph! That's just where Paul and I have differed these ten years."

Her Prayer.

The Buffalo News tells a story of a four-year-old girl who was spending a night away from home. At bedtime she knelt at her hostess' knees to say her prayers, expecting the usual prompting. Finding Mrs. B. unable to help her out, she concluded thus: "Please, God, 'scuse me; I can't remember my prayers, and I'm staying with a lady that don't know any."

Pushing the Perambulator.

Mrs. Haskins—I saw your husband today in a bicycle suit. I didn't think you'd let him ride.

Mrs. Strongmind—My dear, that was not a bicycle suit, although it might properly be called a "wheeling suit." You see, I want him to be appropriately garbed when he takes baby for an airing.—Philadelphia Press.

After the Ball.

She—How nice to be at home again! What a crowd there was! I don't suppose Mr. Bankier knew one-half of his guests.

He—Didn't he, though! Why, he had four detectives in evening clothes there.—Life.

His Unlucky Day.

Harduppe—Wigwag is rather superstitious, isn't he?

Borrowell—Well, he refused to accommodate me with a loan this morning because it was Friday.—Philadelphia Record.

Willing Worker.

Lady—Why don't you quit begging and become one of the working people?

Tramp—Well, mum, if I ain't workin' people, den I dunno who is.—Chicago News.

RETURN OF $800,000

Gladdens Directors of Merchants' National Bank

A BALANCE OF $115,000

Still In the Hands of Absconders Looked Upon as a Trifle as Compared With Original Loss—Detectives After Missing Men

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 22.—Through John C. Burke, counsel for Louis H. Swift, the absconding bookkeeper, the Merchants' National bank has had returned to it securities and money believed to have a total value of $800,000, the loot of Swift and the absconding teller, Smith.

The money and papers were returned early yesterday morning. Mr. Burke arrived on a late train from Boston carrying two grips containing the securities. The bank is the loser by $115,000, but this is considered a mere bagatelle compared with the original loss. Smith and Swift are said to have got away with over $900,000, and the negotiations which brought back the greater part of the sum may have saved the Merchants' National bank from a possible financial crisis, the extent of which it is hard to predict.

Swift is believed to have been in the office of Charles W. Bartlett in Boston, on Sunday forenoon, and for two hours had a conference with Burke and Bartlett. It was at this office that Swift delivered to Burke the securities that purchased his liberty and the liberty of his brother in crime.

Swift, at first, was not disposed to turn over the securities unless a written statement guaranteeing non-prosecution and signed by the bank officers was presented, but that was refused.

Mr. Bartlett reached Lowell with Mr. Burke and at the St. Charles hotel the bank directors were met. The securities were then transferred, and an hour later they were locked up in the bank, and the directors were in an easier frame of mind than for three days.

Regarding any possible agreement to shield Swift and Smith from future legal proceedings, Mr. Burke said: "Certainly not; no negotiations; there could not be any legally."

A bank officer in reply to a similar question, said: "Promise not to prosecute? No, we could not do that. It would be illegal."

It is reported that the United States officers are on the trail of Smith and Swift and that they have found the hiding place of both. Mr. Burke, in reference to this, says that the men are not within an hour's ride of Boston, and that search for them would be useless. It is understood that Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Swift have been in communication with their husbands since the securities were returned.

The bank examiner is at work on the books. It is pointed out that a probability of federal prosecution of Swift and Smith is remote, for the reason that the bank's losses will undoubtedly be charged off the profit account and the bank theoretically has not suffered at the hands of its dishonest employes. The bank examiner, accordingly, might not be able to find any ground for recommending criminal prosecution.

The developments are not to the credit of the absconding bank men. Both have speculated in stocks heavily, and beyond doubt. There is proof that several months ago, Smith received a letter from a Boston broker to this effect: "The margin on your 500 shares of Butte is short from $8000 to $10,000. Please give the matter your attention at once."

Smith has mixed up accounts of the Lowell Boy's club, of which he was treasurer, and there is a small shortage there.

A meeting of the board of directors of the bank was held yesterday. Director William H. Anderson gave the following statement to the press:

"The time has arrived when the president and directors of the Merchants' National bank feel that a statement is due the public. Certain securities belonging to the bank were taken from its vaults by two of its employes, but have been returned. The capital stock of the bank is $400,000 and its surplus and undivided profits $294,000. Both are intact except a deficiency of $115,000, which reduced the surplus and undivided profits to $179,600. We should have been very glad to have made a statement earlier, but were unable to do so."

This was signed by President Pollard and seven directors.

Given a Hearty Send-Off

Halifax, Oct. 22.—The departure of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York from Halifax yesterday was made the occasion of a hearty demonstration. It is estimated that 50,000 visitors to the city lined the wharves and water front. The crowd cheered lustily as the royal yacht passed slowly down the harbor, beginning her long voyage back to England.

MASCULINE HABITS

Have Been Acquired by Nellie Reagan the Self-Confessed Burglar

Newton, Mass., Oct. 22.—Nellie M. Reagan, a burglar by confession, is fully six feet tall, broad shouldered and muscular. She drinks, smokes and shaves.

The police are doing their best to unravel the tangled ends of a mystery, which begins with doubts of the sex of the prisoner, and ends, it is supposed, in a solution of the long list of robberies with which the city of Newton has been afflicted during the last few years.

In court yesterday the young woman pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the house of C. B. Fillebrown on the night of July 2, and that of John C. Cornish on Oct. 2. The case was continued until Saturday, which will permit of the case going before the grand jury next week.

The confession to the breaks leads the police to fear that there must be something more than those robberies of the Fillebrown and Cornish houses.

The Retvizan's Performance

Boston, Oct. 22.—Russia's latest American built battleship, Retvizan, was put through her paces yesterday over a course off the Isles of Shoales and under natural draught attained a speed of 18.01 knots per hour, .01 knot over her contract speed. The usual tidal correction probably will slightly increase this, but without it the Russian officers who were on board expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with this new acquisition to their navy.

Merchants Raise Objections

Boston, Oct. 22.—At a meeting of the board of aldermen last night it was made apparent that the proposed change in the name of Postoffice square to McKinley square does not meet the favor of the merchants whose offices are in or near by the territory in question. A petition remonstrating to the change is based upon the assumption that the change would injure the business of the district.

Abandoned Their Vessel

Boston, Oct. 22.—Captain Kelley and his crew of the schooner Alfred W. Fiske, abandoned at Vineyard sound, Saturday, arrived here yesterday. Captain Kelley saved only what he stood in. The mate and steward also lost their effects, but the others of the crew saved their belongings. The lost schooner was valued at about $5500. The cargo of paving stone was valued at about $1680.

Double Accident on Stage

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 22.—During a performance at the Academy of Music last night, John Silk was at work in the flies fixing a drop when he lost his balance and fell to the stage, a distance of about 40 feet. Joseph Wood was standing directly beneath him and Silk fell upon Wood with terrific force. Both have bones either broken or displaced and fatal results are feared.

Murder Charge Changed

New Haven, Oct. 22.—Henry Sedley, a freshman, was arrested yesterday, charged with the murder of Edward Corrigan, a student, but Coroner Mix ordered the charge changed to breach of peace and Sedley was released on a $2000 bond. Corrigan died yesterday from injuries which he received by being thrown the steps of a lunch wagon by Sedley.

Six Thousand Yale Men Marched

New Haven, Oct. 22.—Six thousand graduates and students of Yale marched in gay parade last night in celebration of the university's bicentennial. It was the popular manifestation of the exuberant spirit which has marked the observance of this festival, though previous demonstrations of the spirit have been of more sedate and dignified character.

One Was Instantly Killed

Boston, Oct. 22.—Alfred Christianson, aged 40, was instantly killed, and Eugene Talbot, aged 40, was seriously injured yesterday at Grand Junction docks. The men were working on a building in process of erection. The staging upon which they were standing gave way and allowed both to fall a distance of 60 feet to the ground.

Thieves Got Valuable Jewels

Boston, Oct. 22.—A mysterious jewel robbery in Brookline has just been announced. The losers are J. H. McCarty and family, who have apartments in the Hotel Metropole. The jewels were valued at $2500. The police think that some one in the house was in league with thieves who remained outside to take the valuables.

Swallow Not a Candidate

Boston, Oct. 22.—George N. Swallow, who has been mentioned in connection with the Republican mayoralty nomination against Mayor Hart, definitely states that he will not be a candidate for mayor. His withdrawal means that Mayor Hart will be re-nominated by acclamation.

Frightfully Lacerated

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 22.—While Joseph Verona was at work in the Troy Cotton and Woolen mill yesterday he fell against a card-stripper and his hair caught in the machinery, tearing off part of his scalp, one ear, and part of an eye. He also had an arm and shoulder blade broken and will probably die.

Victims of Freight Trains

Fitchburg, Mass., Oct. 22.—Patrick Marshall, a section hand, was run over by a freight train here yesterday and died at the hospital. Abraham Boucher, a mute, lost his life yesterday while trying to board a moving freight train. He was 21 years old.

FIGHT HAS JUST BEGUN

Lipton Does Not Despair of Lifting the Cup

WILL NEVER GET MARRIED

Until He Has Built a Boat That Will Outdo the Yankee Product—Shamrock II to Have an American Crew Next Summer

New York, Oct. 22.—Sir Thomas Lipton will not be a challenger for the America's cup next year. In an interview late last night he also absolutely denied that he had any intention of building a new boat to compete for the cup next fall.

In an alleged interview published in several New York afternoon papers yesterday Sir Thomas is quoted with having said that he would consult Messrs. Fife and Watson as soon as he arrived home, relative to the building of a new challenger to compete for the cup in 1902. When seen last night he said:

"What I do intend to do is this. I will leave the Shamrock II on this side. She will remain here all next summer and will race with any and all boats that care to meet her. As to the crew that will be on the Shamrock II next year I think I will have an American one, perhaps with a British captain. I may possibly send over some British sailors, but the great majority of the crew will be American."

While Sir Thomas denied that he intended building a new challenger for next year, he would not deny that he would ultimately build a new boat. On this subject he said: "I was beaten by a better boat than the Shamrock II. Under these circumstances I do not see how I can ever expect to lift the cup with my boat. Nobody ever saw Sir Thomas Lipton put on his coat in the middle of the fight, and the fight for that cup has only begun. I certainly mean to have another try for it, mabye several.

"The whole trouble is that you Yankees have a designer that is entirely too clever for the British. The only way I can see is to go up to Bristol and see Nat Herreshoff and buy him off," he jokingly declared.

"I think there are no girls like American girls, but you may say for me that I will never get married until I lift the cup."

Sir Thomas is highly pleased with his reception in America this year. "I thought I had a royal time when I was here before," he said, "but I really did not know what a good time was until the present trip. I am deeply grateful to those who have made my poor efforts to lift the cup so pleasant."

Sir Thomas left for England today on the Celtic. He originally planned to leave tomorrow on the Teutonic, but changed his plans and went today. He is accompanied by his two secretaries, Messrs. Duncan and Westwood.

Didn't Enjoy His Good Fortune

Lawton, O. T., Oct. 22.—James D. Wood, who drew the capital prize in the Lawton land district at the El Reno lottery last August and settled a claim valued at nearly $50,000, is dead of typhoid fever, after a brief illness. All the contests against his quarter section claim have been disposed of, and his widow will come into undisputed possession of the property.

French Deputies Meet

Paris, Oct. 22.—The chamber of deputies resumed its sitting today in the last session but one before dissolution. Premier Waldeck-Rousseau met it at the head of the longest-lived ministry of the present republic. The heaviest work before the chamber will be the adoption of the budget for 1902, which will lead to big debates.

Family of Remarkable Physique

Bath, Pa., Oct. 22.—J. D. Reinhard died suddenly of heart disease yesterday at his home here, aged 70 years. Reinhard weighed 493 pounds. He was a stone cutter. He was the father of 17 children, 11 of whom are living. Eight of his sons are marble cutters, none weighing less than 300 pounds.

Won't Press Investigation

New York, Oct. 22.—At a meeting of the Merchants' association yesterday it was decided to drop until after election the matter of the dismissal by Mayor VanWyck of the charges preferred against Police Commissioner Murphy for refusing to take action against Deputy Commissioner Devery.

Steamer Withstood Shock

Halifax, Oct. 22.—The survey of the steamer Manchester Shipper was completed at North Sydney late yesterday. The diver reports her in a seaworthy condition and she will proceed at once with her steerage passengers to Montreal.

Hurts American Shoemen

Washington, Oct. 22.—The state department has been informed that new duties on boots and shoes imported into Costa Rica have been imposed, which are much in excess of any heretofore in force and are practically prohibitive.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

A WASTE OF MONEY

China Expends Enough For "Frills" to Pay Instalment of Indemnity

Pekin, Oct. 22.—The question of the recognition to be accorded to the court on its return to Pekin will not be decided until the imperial party leaves Kiafeng. The Chinese desire that the entire diplomatic body meet the emperor and empress dowager outside the city walls and welcome them there, but it is not likely that this will be done unless the speech to be made by the emperor is first submitted to the ministers and approved by them. There is strong opposition, however, to any diplomatic reception of their majesties, though some of the ministers are disposed to extend an official welcome to them.

The native press is criticising the court for its lavish expenditure of money on its return journey and for its meanness and fault-finding with the provisions made for it. The edict issued some time ago declaring that the return would be modest and unostentatious was only for effect. Almost enough money has already been spent on the court's journey to pay the first instalment of the indemnity. The court reached Lingo-Hsien, province of Honon, four days late.

Whole Family Burned

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 22.—Mrs. Caroline Gould, aged 68, was burned to death last night and her two sons and housekeeper were seriously burned at their home on Prospect street. The fire started from some unknown cause, and immediately there was an explosion in the basement which cut off the escape of all the inmates of the house. The body of Mrs. Gould was burned to a crisp. Edward E. and Augustus D. Gould were rescued by the firemen, as was also Miss Carrie Clark, the housekeeper. Augustus Gould will probably die, and the others are not out of danger.

Plant Crippled by Strikers

New York, Oct. 22.—The effects of the strike at the Singer Sewing Machine works, Elizabethport, N. J., are becoming apparent. The strikers number 400, but there are three times that number idle because there are no machines for them to work on. Over 300 additional young women have just been laid off on this account. The Singer company has served a notice on the strikers that unless they appear individually at once and ask to be taken back, they will never be allowed to return to work at the factory.

Critical Period in Panama

Colon, Oct. 22.—The anxiety and prolonged uncertainty regarding the date which the insurgents will probably attack the city of Panama still exists, resulting in a wearisome tension productive of disastrous results to the commerce of the isthmus. The United States battleship Iowa, the British sloop of war Icarus and the French second-class cruiser Protet at Panama and the United States gunboat Machias and the French cruiser Suchet at Colon, continue to await the development of events.

Insane Man Was Armed

Willimantic, Conn., Oct. 22.—J. L. Egbert, an insane patient at a private sanitarium in South Windham, while out walking with an attendant yesterday refused to return to the institution. When Superintendent Donohue tried to persuade him he drew a revolver and shot him. Donohue's face was badly burned by powder, but otherwies he will suffer no ill effects.

Harrises Were Poor Shots

Waco, Tex., Oct. 22.—A street duel with revolvers was enacted in the main thoroughfare of the city yesterday between ex-Sheriff Harris and his son on one side and Dr. Lovelace and his son on the other. As a result both of the Harrises are dead and Lovelace and his son are under arrest. The trouble is supposed to have originated from domestic difficulties.

Campaign For Annexation

Havana, Oct. 22.—A petition asking that Cuba be annexed to the United States is being circulated among Cuban business men, and every effort is being centered upon annexation, as business men generally, it is alleged, believe that the reciprocity movement will amount to nothing.

Insurance Policy For $20,000,000

Duluth, Oct. 22.—The writing of an insurance policy for $20,000,000, perhaps the greatest single item of insurance ever massed in the west, and covering all the property of the Northern Pacific railroad, subject to fire, has been secured by a local agency.

Evidence Against Macedonians

Vienna, Oct. 22.—The idea that the capture of Miss Stone originated with the Macedonian committee is corroborated by the fact that numerous Macedonians in Sofia have offered to mediate with the brigands.

Wisconsin Bank Robbed

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—The bank at Dane was robbed by a trio of safe crackers, who took the money and notes in the vault. No trace of them has been found. The amount taken is not stated.

Carpets will be sold at the Jones' Auction, Thursday.

Answered Rollcall and Died

Salem, Mass., Oct. 22.—An alarm was turned in from box 64 last night and upon returning from it Captain Krough of truck 2 called the roll. Jacob Sneden, a fireman, answered "here" and then fell to the floor dead.

Good Afternoon

The Mayor's recommendation to include the "Murphy lot" at the foot of Greenleaf street in the cemetery enlargement is a good one. This will allow the city to close that portion of Greenleaf street east of Valley street.

Wherever the hospital has needed funds it has always found good friends willing to put their hands in their pockets and help it out. A person who absolutely declines to aid so worthy an object is rare indeed. But in past years when the canvass was all over, the statement has been heard frequently that "so and so was not asked. If you had asked him he would have given you $25." The trustees have wisely taken all precautions to avoid such oversights this year. Each ward has been so divided up and covered by collectors that every house will be visited and every person living there given an opportunity to subscribe. If any person should by some mistake be overlooked their contribution can be made on Hospital Sunday, Oct. 27th.

The placing of the Fire department under the civil service rules will have a tendency to take this important service out of politics. The civil service rules apply only to the permanent men of the department who cannot be removed except for cause. That is, they are upon the same footing as the members of the Police department. The chief may prefer charges against any member of the permanent force and suspend him from duty while those charges are pending, but he cannot remove any man except for cause and even then the party must be given a hearing, and if not satisfied with the outcome can appeal to and will be given a hearing by the Civil Service Commission. Should a change of administration bring a change in the chief of the fire department, the new chief would not be able to chop off any of the heads of permanent men to pay political debts, for every man thus removed would be entitled to an impartial hearing.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The use of criticism, even when action has been taken, is to discourage certain kinds of action in the future. Silent acquiescence after the event is only one remove from acquiescence in advance. The law recognizes the accessory after the fact as well as the accessory before the fact. — Hartford Times.

☞ Those phlegmatic individuals whose philosophy of life is exemplified in the ancient admonition to "never run after your hat, when it is blown off on the street, for a dozen fools will chase it for you," are born with a peculiar charm that makes other people render them all sorts of services without thinking it unusual. These people are usually fat and good natured, and have little to say, and are always looked up to, not on account of any intellectual gift, but because of their physical solidity and repose which inspires confidence. If a man of the thin, nervous type, be he ever so brilliant in mentality, tries to get through the world on this fat man's philosopy, he will starve to death. The nervous man achieves greatness, if he becomes great, but the fat man has greatness thrust upon him. It is better to have avoirdupois any time than brains, but a combination of the two is irresistible.— St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ELECTION ORDERS

Numerous at Meeting of the City Council.

To Settle Coddington Street Claims.

Order for Two More Permanent Firemen Introduced.

Councilman Adams was the only absent member at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

CEMETERY ENLARGEMENT.

A communication was received from the Mayor, notifying the Council that he had reached an agreement with the Greenleaf Land Associates to purchase the land for Mt. Wollaston cemetery for $25,000. Later an order was offered for this amount and read once.

TO SETTLE CLAIMS.

A communication of the Mayor recommended that it would be better to settle the claims of the Insurance Co. and N. B. Furnald for damages by widening Coddington street outside of court and recommending that authority be given to settle them for a sum not exceeding $3,500. Laid on the table until later when an order was offered, and read once.

MORE LAND FOR CEMETERY.

The Mayor in a communication recommended that it would be advisable to add the two and one-half acres belonging to the Woodward estate adjoining the new land purchased for Mt. Wollaston cemetery, to the cemetery. To joint Committee on Finance and Public Grounds.

STREET LIGHT.

The Mayor forwarded a petition for a street light on Squantum street at the intersection of Huckins avenue. To Committee on Streets.

HARBOR HEARING.

The Mayor gave notice that the Harbor and Land Commissioners would visit Quincy next Tuesday to inspect the premises at the Fore River Ship & Engine Co. where it is proposed to build a wharf, and suggested that the Committee on Legislative Matters should be present that day, and also at the hearing Oct. 23. Referred to Committee on Legislative Matters.

UNDER CIVIL SERVICE.

The Mayor gave notice that the Fire Department had been placed under civil service rules.

PETITIONS.

The Mayor forwarded petitions from John Kilmartin, Jane McIntosh and John Smith for damages. Referred.

POLLING PLACES.

Polling places for caucuses were requested by the Republicans for Nov. 6, and the Social Democrats for Nov. 7. Later orders were offered providing the same.

PETITIONS.

A petition for lights on Elm avenue was referred to the Committee on Streets.

WOODWARD AVENUE.

Councilman Sherman presented a petition that Woodward avenue between Whitney road and Greenleaf street be repaired in accordance with the original order. To Committee on Streets.

A petition was received that the northerly end of Buckley street and a portion of Morton street be accepted as public ways. To Committee on Streets.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

Boston Food Fair.

The Food Fair in Mechanics building, Boston, this month is attracting thousands. The ladies from any part of this city can ride to the very door of the fair for ten cents, on the street cars, making a very delightful trip at little expense.

MISS NELLIE DOT RANCHE.

The women visitors to the fair are greatly interested in the Domestic Science Department, in which Miss Nellie Dot Ranche gives free lessons every afternoon, at 2.30, in the art of cooking and serving. Miss Ranche is very practical in her methods; her lectures are largely attended.

An immense number of samples are being distributed this year, and the first 1000 women who enter the building in the morning all receive a present of some kind. At the Old Grist Mill exhibit in Grand Hall, 20 quarter barrels of Pennock's New Process flour are distributed free every morning.

There are fine band concerts going on every afternoon and evening, and the Royal Marine Band of Italy, one of the greatest bands in the world, appears every day this week.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harry A Libby was arraigned for larceny from Quong Wing at Quincy. Case continued until Oct. 24.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Merrill of Crescent street have returned from a two weeks' visit to New Hampshire.

St. Francis court of Foresters will commence a series of whist parties Thursday evening at Foresters' hall.

Ex-Mayor Quincy and other prominent Democrats will probably address the voters of Quincy one evening next week.

The council chamber at City Hall should have more lights, the present number do not make it as light as it should be.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hearn and son have returned from an extended trip to the Pan-American and New York city.

The delay in the arrival of the steel cells for the new police station will prevent its being occupied as soon as was expected.

Encouraging reports continue to be received from Michael J. Burns who was injured some weeks ago by being thrown from the cars at the Terminal station.

It will be a pleasure to attendants at the Quincy Point church to have with them tomorrow at the ordination two former pastors, Rev. W. Sherman Thompson and Rev. Edward Anderson.

The Hospital canvassers were out in force Monday, day and evening. If they have not called on you yet, they will do so soon. Be ready to give them a cordial welcome and a generous contribution.

The visiting Russians said the Quincy shipyard was as well equipped and finely appointed a plant as they had ever seen, and that the machinery of the MacDonough was the best they had ever inspected.

The delay in the building of the foot bridge over the railroad at Warren avenue is caused by the steel strike in the west, which prevented the contractors receiving certain parts of the structure as soon as was expected.

The case of the Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Co. vs. the defunct Quincy Cycle Co. was heard in the third session of the Suffolk Superior court on Monday. It is an action of contract to recover $1784 for bicycle tires. Defence a general denial and payment.

Quincy people who have heard Miss Louise Holbrook, the contralto, sing will be glad of the chance afforded by the entertainment to be given on Wednesday evening at Bethany Chapel to hear her again. Mrs. Moore's singing in the quartette on Sundays has proved very pleasing and her friends will be glad to hear her in concert pieces. The entire list of entertainers is given in the notice in another column.

Crawford Grand Range No. 7 will be sold at the Jones' Auction, Thursday.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

Turkish Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

POLITICAL APATHY

Small Vote Will Reduce Representation.

Votes of The City For Governor.

One of Mayoralty Candidates May Withdraw.

The Municipal election of Dec. 3 seems to completely overshadow the State election of Nov. 5, although we are within two weeks of the later. Although the Republicans have roomy, pleasant and central headquarters in City Square, they are visited by only a few persons, seldom more than a half dozen at a time, but usually vacant. This lack of interest seems to foretell a light vote at the State election. In 1897 the year following the Presidential election of 1896, the Quincy vote fell off over one-third and both parties lost about the same percentage as will be seen by the figures below, which afford an interesting study:

Year.	Total Vote.	Governor Vote. Rep.	Dem.
1893	3 64	1544	1428
1894	3146	1779	1161
1895	3029	1822	1030
1896	3570	2279	925
1897	2244	1444	693
1898	3187	1976	95
1899	3153	1628	948
1900	4187	2249	1153

With such excellent candidates as are presented on the Republican State ticket, there should be no apathy, but a hearty support. Perhaps there will be a large vote without any urging. Upon the vote for Governor this year will depend the representation to the conventions next year.

When it comes to city affairs there is more interest. It has been generally considered there are four candidates for the Republican nomination: Elisha Packard of Ward One, Charles M. Bryant and Edward E. Jameson of Ward Five, and Frederick L. Jones of Ward Three. There has been considerable doubt as to the attitude of Mr. Bryant, as there has been no formal declaration of his candidacy It has been reported that his friends would file delegations in all wards of the city. However, a vigorous opposition has sprung up against Mr. Bryant in the Wollaston ward and the friends of Mr. Jameson are confident of success there. There is also a strong anti feeling in other parts of the city. The latest report is that Mr. Bryant will not be a candidate, but it has not been confirmed. So confident are the friends of Mr. Jameson of victory that they hope the report is not true. One of the most sanguine candidates is Mr. Packard, who expects to carry Wards One and Two, and possibly Wards Three and Four. The fact that Mr. Jones is out of town has weakened his canvass.

Smart Set Whist Party.

The meeting of the Smart Set whist club of Atlantic was held at the home of Miss Ruth Bassett of Walker street on Monday evening. Twelve members were enrolled, but owing to illness, only eight were able to be present. The following rules were made: Meetings should be held once in two weeks; whist should continue from eight to ten; lateness should be punished by the tardy member being obliged to pay one cent a minute for all time after eight o'clock. The highest scores Monday evening were made by Miss Emma Curtin and Miss Gertrude Hall, each having 54 points. By cutting, fortune favored Miss Hall. After light refreshments, the club adjourned for the evening. The next meeting will be with Miss Wilde of Billings street.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bouteous response?

PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOLS.

Number Increased From 2,526 In 1890 to 6,005 In 1900.

One of the most noticeable features in the statistics of schools contained in the annual report of the federal commissioner of education is the great increase in the number of public high schools throughout the United States. These institutions in 1890 numbered 2,526, while in 1900 the number had risen to 6,005, the increase being distributed through all parts of the country. The increase in high school pupils has more than kept pace with the increase in buildings, the average attendance being larger in 1900 than ten years before, the number enrolled at the date last named being in round numbers about 520,000. Private schools of similar rank, academies, colleges and manual training, preparatory and normal schools also report proportionate increases, the statistics for 1900 showing that 12,588 pupils for each million of inhabitants attended schools beyond the elementary against an average of 8,053 in 1890.

These figures, says the commissioner, show a uniform consensus of public opinion throughout the nation in favor of providing secondary education at public cost. He also shows from the statistics that the study of the French and German languages has increased 30 per cent in the past ten years; that the study of general history has increased in that period from 27 to 38 per cent of the entire number; that the number of Latin scholars has also increased and the number of students taking physics has decreased.

The report shows that the grand total of pupils in all schools, elementary, secondary and higher, public and private, for the year ended July 1, 1900, was 17,020,710, being an increase of 282,348 pupils over the previous year. Of this number the enrollment in public institutions supported by general and local taxes was 15,433,462. Counting in special institutions, such as evening schools, Indian schools, schools connected with asylums, reform schools and other institutions more or less educational in their character, increases the total number by half a million pupils.

About 21 per cent of the population of the United States attends some public school supported by the taxes of the state or municipality. Besides this attendance on public schools, there is an attendance on private schools of 2 per cent of the entire population.

Concerning education in the new insular possessions the commissioner says that provisions should be made for the establishment of schools in all places under the United States flag. He recommends that schools be provided for Samoa and Guam and appropriations of $5,000 each be made for that purpose.

MUST PAY THE DUTY.

Gift to Government of Lafayette Souvenirs Not Exempt.

Under the direction of H. A. Taylor, one of the assistant secretaries of the treasury department temporarily in charge of customs affairs, Levi P. Morton and J. Pierpont Morgan have been informed in response to a letter of inquiry that the exhibit of Lafayette souvenirs which they recently authorized the French embassador to purchase at a sale in Paris could not be admitted free of duty to this country under existing statutes as a present to the United States government, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. The collection of relics was to be contributed to the Congressional library in commemoration of the French general. The appraised value of the articles is said to be about $40,000.

That patriotic philanthropists should be assessed at the rate of 25 per cent for the privilege of depositing a valuable historic exhibit in a public gallery is regarded here as peculiar. Few officials are inclined to believe that the law intended to work such a hardship as to force contributors to science and history to pay nearly $10,000 in customs duties to get the interesting relics into the United States. Not a few enthusiastic students believe that a more liberal construction could have been applied to the tariff laws, exempting the Morton-Morgan collection from taxation.

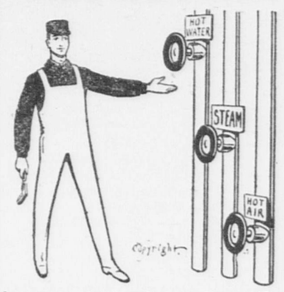

Runaway Train With Dynamite.

A freight train ran away on the Central Railroad of New Jersey on the mountain near Wilkesbarre, Pa. The train consisted of forty-three cars of pig iron and two cars of dynamite and got beyond control some distance above Mountain Park. When the engineer realized what had happened, he reversed his engine and tied down the whistle. The warning shriek told the operator at Mountain Park what had happened, and he sent word to Ashley. There was little time, but the yards were cleared as quickly as possible and the runaway given a straight track. She whizzed down the mountain with all her oil boxes blazing and her wheels grinding flat. When the train reached the level, however, it was brought to a standstill after dashing through the Ashley yards.

Sewing Machine In Philippines.

The headquarters of the Thirty-first regiment, which was organized at Fort Thomas, Ky., is on the island of Mindanao, the far southwest of the Philippines, where no American before set foot, and, as the history of the islands will show, the inhabitants are mostly savages, says a writer in Ainslee's Magazine. Yet, to my surprise, on landing, the first and only thing that met our eyes that showed any civilization was in one of the native shacks, a hand sewing machine, and now the owner of it is busy making khaki suits for the soldiers, and it would surprise you to see the number turned out in a day.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Quincy A. Woodward, a former chief of the Nashau, N. H., fire department, died at that city, aged 74. For 40 years he was a member of the Nashau fire department.

Jeremie Paris, aged 9, while at recess in a Manchester, N. H., school, had his feet pulled out from under him by a playmate. Paris fell on the concrete. The boy sustained a crushed breastbone and two broken ribs, causing his death.

The postoffice department has ordered the establishment of the free delivery postal service at Great Barrington, Mass., beginning Nov. 1.

The city council of Nashau, N. H., elected Deputy Sheriff Bowler deputy city clerk to take the place of the missing clerk, Alfred Hall. A committee was appointed to investigate Hall's financial affairs.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

SAMPSON'S DISPATCHES

Counsel For Schley Admits Receipt of Them

CHASE FOR THE COLON

And Coming to Close Quarters Was Anticipated, Orders Being Given to Prepare For Rapid Fire—Schley Seemed Always Fearless and Brave

Washington, Oct. 22.—Lieutenant Wells, who was the flag lieutenant of Admiral Schley while the latter was in command of the flying squadron, occupied practically the entire time of the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. On his direct examination he continued his narrative of the Cuban campaign.

Lieutenant Wells was under cross-examination for about 2½ hours, largely at the hands of Mr. Hanna, whose questions were directed mainly to the dispatches received and sent by Admiral (then commodore) Schley. While this line of investigation was being exploited Mr. Rayner, speaking for Admiral Schley, said that the admiral was willing to admit that he had received the "Dear Schley" letter on the Dupont, which arrived at Cienfuegos on May 22, but he added that no duplicate of this despatch had ever been received by Schley. He said also that Schley admitted the receipt of two copies of No. 8, Sampson's dispatch saying that the Spanish fleet was probably at Santiago and telling Schley "if satisfied that it (the Spanish fleet) is not at Cienfuegos, to proceed with all despatch to Santiago," one of these being received by the Hawk May 23 and the other by the Marble head May 24. Lieutenant Wells was still on the stand when the court adjourned for the day.

Lieutenant Wells testified regarding the battle of July 3. He said he did not remember the ranges at which the Brooklyn fired, but thought 1100 was the shortest. He described the turn of the Brooklyn and the chase after the Spanish ships. He said that he had received orders to get up a quantity of rapid-fire ammunition. Owing to the character of the coast it was expected that the Brooklyn and the Colon would come to close quarters. He was ordered to have this ammunition ready to close with the Colon and give her a rapid fire when they got close together. He then described the rest of the chase and the final surrender of the Colon.

Mr. Rayner: "Did any vessels pass the blockade either at Cienfuegos or Santiago without the authority of the Commodore?"

"No, sir, none without his authority. The Adula passed with his permission at Cienfuegos, and at Santiago the British cruiser Indefatigable came to the blockade and asked permission to go in, which was granted, but she did not avail herself of the opportunity. She then withdrew."

Mr. Rayner exhibited a chart upon which there were notations regarding the soundings taken in the vicinity of Santiago harbor and the strength of the batteries there, this information being given as of date of April 5, 1898.

Mr. Rayner asked the witness if he had any other information in reference to the batteries at Santiago except that given on the map referred to. He stated the commodore had received a memorandum of information from the bureau of naval intelligence, embodying about the same facts as contained on the chart.

In response to questions by Mr. Rayner as to Commodore Schley's general bearing, conduct and manner on any day in which there was a battle or at any other time, Lieutenant Wells said:

"So far as my observation went he was thoroughly fearless and self-possessed on all occasions."

"Was he at any time within your knowledge laboring under any mental excitement?" "No, sir."

Mr. Hanna cross-examined the witness. Respecting the correspondence while the flying spadron was at Cienfuegos, the witness stated they kept no special book of letters received. He said the letters, as received, were briefed, stamped and filed. He never had any trouble under this system in finding any letter the commodore wanted. The witness also stated that never to his knowledge was a single paper lost.

Captain Cook, who commanded the Brooklyn during the Spanish war, was recalled at his own request and made the following statement: 'In my testimony I stated that the Oregon on the morning of July 3 was under all boilers, having shifted her boilers from forward to aft. I stated this from hearsay and presumed it to be correct as accounting for her extraordinary speed. I find that she had not shifted boilers that morning, but that she had steam on all her boilers at all times while in the Santiago blockade." Captain Cook then was excused and former witnesses were called to correct their testimony.

MORTGAGE FOR $900,000

May Be Placed Upon Two Big Plants at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 22.—At the annual meeting of the Parker and Hargraves mills, to be held Oct. 31, the stockholders will be asked to vote on propositions to issue $600,000 in mortgage bonds, secured by mortgages on the plants. The capital stock of each concern is $800,000, and the mortgages of $600,000 on each are designed to take care of the bills payable accounts, and give to the stockholders the opportunity to draw a steady income from the plant.

At the same meeting notice will be given that it has been found impossible to consolidate the two properties on the lines laid down a year ago. While a very large majority of the stockholders in the two corporations are the same persons, there is some difference, and law suits were begun to prevent the consolidation on the basis of valuation agreed on. The objectors were willing to sell their holdings, but as the directors were not attempting the consolidation for their own benefit they did not care to proceed while any stockholders objected. To pay one set of stockholders more for their shares than another would be unfair as well as a certain means of bringing on more suits.

The experience of these two corporations in trying to bring about a consolidation on a basis to which more than 95 percent of the stockholders willingly agreed has convinced financiers here that no plan of local consolidation can be evolved to take in all the mills except under a pressure of impending ruin, and if consolidation is to come it must be through outside sources acting on a basis that is good as cash. It is not thought that the bonding of the mills will provoke antagonism among those who prevented the consolidation, as the plans usually presented have been adopted here.

Fat Job For Gold Democrat

Washington, Oct. 22.—The president yesterday appointed George E. Koester collector of internal revenue for the district of South Carolina, to succeed W. L. Webster, deceased. Koester is a prominent gold Democrat. The appointment terminates a question began upon Mr. Roosevelt's accession to the presidency. It was in connection with this appointment and that of ex-Governor Jones to a federal judgeship in Alabama that the president announced that his policy in regard to southern appointments would be to name suitable Republicans if they could be found, and, if not, Democrats.

A Peculiar Suicide

Vienna, Oct. 22.—The Boden Credit bank at Oedenburg, Hungary, has failed. Manager Schlader, whose defalcation caused the failure, made a confession to his wife, who handed him a pistol and advised him to kill himself, which he did. His wife will be arrested as an accessory to the act.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Oct. 23.
Sun rises—6:06; sets—4:51.
Moon sets—1:14 a. m.
High water—7 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.

The barometric conditions have changed very little. No rain has fallen except in the extreme southwest. The temperature will rise in New England and the weather will be fair. Light variable winds will continue along the coast.

The general health of a woman is inseparably related to the local womanly health. When the delicate womanly organism is diseased, the body loses plumpness, the cheeks lose their roses, and a nervous and fretful condition becomes habitual.

Thousands of sick women who have been cured of diseases peculiar to the sex by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription have testified to the restoration of the general health when the local disease was cured.

"Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I used four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. Elmer D. Shearer, of Mounthope, Lancaster Co., Pa., "and can say that I am cured of that dreaded disease, uterine trouble. Am in better health than ever before. Everyone who knows me is surprised to see me look so well. In June, when I wrote to you, I was so poor in health that at times I could not walk. You answered my letter and told me what to do. I followed your advice, and to-day am cured. I tell everybody that with God's help Dr. Pierce's medicines cured me. If these few words are of any use to you, you are welcome to use them. They might help some other poor suffering woman."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TO DISTRIBUTE FERTILIZER.

New Device the Invention of a Louisiana Man.

A fertilizer distributer which can be fitted to an ordinary wagon and which is of such construction that it can deliver material within a wide range is the subject of an invention patented by Harris McVea of Vanceville, La.

The frame of the distributer consists of a backboard and a downwardly and inwardly inclined front section. When the device is to be used, the tailboard of the wagon is taken out and the backboard of the distributer substituted.

Within the frame two hoppers are located, through both of which an agitator shaft passes, serving to break up the lumps in the material. Beneath the agitator shaft a feed wheel is mounted, the feed wheels being arranged so that they turn in the discharge openings of the hoppers. This feed wheel shaft is driven from one of the rear supporting wheels of the wagon by a sprocket and chain gear, a lever operated clutch mechanism being provided to throw the feed wheel shaft into and out of gear with the supporting wheel of the wagon. Slides are provided for closing the discharge openings of the hoppers.

IMPROVED FERTILIZER DISTRIBUTER.

The fertilizer, fed by the wheels, passes through two spouts to the ground. The spouts are pivotally mounted and are swung to or from the ground by means of two links pivoted to the spouts and operated by a vertical handle bar provided with means whereby it can be held in any adjusted position. By thus pivotally mounting the spouts and adjusting them for any width between rows the fertilizer can be delivered within a wide range.

A new process of preparing wood for building is in use in Austria. Green wood is placed in a large wooden trough whose bottom is covered with a lead plate. This is connected with the positive pole of a battery. Covering the wood is a second lead plate, which forms the negative pole.

The wood is then subjected to a bath in a solution composed of 10 per cent resin and 75 per cent soda. Under the influence of the electric current the sap is drawn out of the wood and rises to the surface, the solution being absorbed by the wood.

The operation requires from five to eight hours. The treated wood is allowed to dry for about two weeks, when it is ready for use.

A New German Veneer.

Through Consul Hughes of Coburg there is reported a new veneer which a Dresden firm has just placed on the market. It is made of very thin wood backed with a thick, impregnated paper and is known as "Kolumbusholy." It comes in rolls 66.6 feet long and about 4.92 feet wide. When dry, it is very strong and hard and is nailed on wooden strips on the walls of dwellings and offices, where it has the appearance of handsomely finished wainscoting. It is also used mounted on very heavy paper and pressed into different shapes as molding for doors and windows. The prices for it range from 30 to 50 per cent lower than those of all wood articles in use at present for the same purposes.

Bacteria In Modeling Clay.

M. O. Leighton, health inspector of Montclair, N. J., declares that he has found bacteria to be quite abundant in clay that has been used and reused for modeling in schools. An attempt to sterilize the clay showed that the only efficient way of accomplishing this was by the use of superheated steam under a pressure of fifteen to twenty pounds for forty-five minutes. The species of bacteria identified were those which occur in pus formations.

Nature of the X Rays.

The researches of M. Jules Semenow on the nature of the X rays indicate that these rays represent the direction of the transmission, through the intermediation of the ether, of electric vibrations. The vibrations are communicated to all bodies met along their path. When the bodies are charged with electricity and protected against discharge by convection, they lose their charges by radiation.

To Build Asbestus Barracks.

It is reported that the Prussian army intends making an experiment with barracks made of asbestus. Field Marshal Count von Waldersee, it is said, travels with a portable asbestus house among his baggage.

New German Fuel.

Consul Hughes reports that a new fuel, "masut," which is an oily product of German brown coal tar, is coming into very general use in Germany for heating and steam producing purposes.

WORK FOR OUR TROOPS

Disturbances In Philippines Appear to Be Spreading

HUNT FOR THE INSURGENTS

Will Be Prosecuted by Reinforcements —Situation In Leyte and Samar Very Serious—Bolomen Are Stirring Up Strife In Tarlac

Manila, Oct. 23.—General Chaffee does not expect to hear of any extensive engagement in the island of Samar. He believes the operations there will not result in an open fight. It is hard to find armed Filipinos, but every man without occupation will be compelled to go into town.

It is reported that all the rifles captured by the Filipinos at Balangiga are now on the island of Leyte, where many bolomen are known to have gone from the island of Samar. In fact, Leyte is as disturbed as Samar.

The object of the reinforcements of American troops now being pushed forward is to increase all the garrisons to 38 men. Some of them have until recently numbered only eight men. The reinforcements will also allow the detailing of a working force to operate in the field, hunting for insurgents.

General Wheaton reports that a band of bolomen has entered Tarlac province, island of Luzon, through Bulangan province, and that the men composing it are distributing inflammatory bulletins, which are also posted on the church doors, warning the people to prepare to take the field in January. Some of the friendly natives were informed by many of the bolomen that various bands of armed natives would shortly concentrate in the vicinity of Rossles.

To Increase Military Force

Washington, Oct. 23.—The navy department has received the following cablegram from Rear Admiral Rodgers:

Cavite, Oct. 22.—Secretary navy, Washington: Active insurrection in Samar. New York leaves today for Catbalogan with 300 marines, to return to Basey and Balangiga, to co-operate with army. Nearly all naval force concentrated on Samar patrol. Services Arethusa and Zafiro, two colliers, needed and being utilized. Rodgers.

Naval officers construe the dispatch to mean that the New York will go first to Catbalogan and then to Basey and Balangiga, landing detachments of marines at each point.

Secretary Root, it is expected, will take up at once the important question of the situation in the Philippines. It is not admitted at the war department that the officials in Manila have had a too sanguine view of the general situation, and it is very probable that arrangements will be made for the sending to the Philippines within the next few months of about 10,000 troops now serving in this country. At least this number will be ordered from the United States to replace the short-term men who will have to be brought home this winter. In addition to plans for filling these vacancies it is now almost certain that Secretary Root will consider plans for increasing the military force in the Philippines.

Change In Mail Privileges

Washington, Oct. 23.—The postoffice department issued notice yesterday to all postmasters announcing a second list of serial publications barred from the second-class mail privileges because they do not come within the requirements of the amended regulations. Such publications hereafter must pay the third-class rate of 1 cent for each two ounces or fraction. There are 40 in all of these. Six are published in Boston and two in Augusta, Me.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Oct. 24.
Sun rises—6:07; sets—4:50.
Moon sets—2:24 a. m.
High water—8 a. m.; 8:15 p. m.

The temperature rose during Tuesday in New England. It is now considerably above seasonal normal in all parts of the country. Generally fair weather is indicated for New England. The temperature changes will be unimportant. On the coast fresh westerly winds will prevail.

Gold Galore In Colorado

Pueblo, Col., Oct. 23.—A special to the Star-Journal brings news of excitement of a gold discovery at Buela, 30 miles west of this city. Five hundred claims have been located in the past 24 hours. A ledge of free milling gold returns nearly $2000 a ton.

"At Instigation of Sultan"

Vienna, Oct. 23.—"Miss Stone was captured," says the Sofia correspondent of The Neues Weiner Journal, "not by brigands, but by a detachment of Turkish cavalry at the instigation of the sultan."

THEY TOOK A MILLION

Smith and Swift Cleaned Out the Safe of the Merchants' National

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 23.—The money and securities returned to the Merchants' bank by Albert G. Smith and Lewis H. Swift, through the latter's counsel, touched the million mark.

No cleaner sweep was ever made by defaulters. Stories about how the shortage was discovered are mere figment of overworked imagination. The emptiness of an unlocked vault was a sad tale without words to the board of directors and to Cashier Johnson on Friday morning.

It is now supposed that the men have left the state. Negotiation or no negotiation, compromise or no compromise, if the men are found they will be put behind the bars and prosecuted.

The case is in the hands of the United States authorities and a private detective agency has men in the city acting for the surety company. They will arrest Smith on sight.

It is now said that Smith has been under suspicion for some time, and was on Thursday confronted by one of the officials of the bank. Smith is said to have expressed the intention of giving the matter his careful consideration with a view of squaring himself later. Smith and Swift doubtless discussed the situation and decided that the time had come to act. On Thursday night they entered the bank and took everything of value that was portable.

Today the belief is that both men have jumped from wherever they were in hiding. Fear of a prosecution by the United States authorities has brought about a change in their plans.

The local police yesterday afternoon turned over to the United States district attorney's office in Boston all the information it had regarding both Smith and Swift. The police had been passive throughout the great excitement here, because the bank directors apparently had not urged a vigorous search.

Decision In Big Land Case

Plattsburg, N. Y., Oct. 23.—A decision indirectly affecting the title to about 56,000 acres of forest land in the Adirondacks, and the borders of several counties, has just been handed down by H. T. Kellogg, as referee. The case is that of Litchfield vs. Sisson and Liston, and Mr. Kellog's decision is in favor of the defendants. The suit was an action to recover $50,000 for trespass upon lands. The case also indirectly involved a strip of land 50 miles long and averaging a mile in width, the ownership being dependent on the result of the case in question.

Papa Zimmerman Settles Bills

London, Oct. 23.—According to the Daily Express, at a family conference held yesterday, which was attended by Eugene Zimmerman, it was arranged that he should pay £5000, and Consuelo Duchess of Manchester, £2000, to liquidate the Duke of Manchester's debts. The present tenant of Kimbolton castle, the principal country seat of the Duke of Manchester, has consented to vacate in order to gratify the wish of the young duchess that her accouchement might occur there.

Admiral O'Neil's Recommendation

Washington, Oct. 23.—Increased efficiency in our big naval guns must be looked for from the use of heavier projectiles and the production of powder possessing high ballistic qualities, rather than from an increased weight and dimensions of the guns themselves, says Rear Admiral O'Neil, chief of the naval bureau of ordnance, in his annual report.

Exposition Nearing the End

Buffalo, Oct. 23.—The board of directors of the Pan-American exposition yesterday adopted a resolution that Saturday, Nov. 2, at midnight, be fixed as the time of the final closing of the exposition. The lights of the electric tower and other lights used in the grand illumination will then be finally turned off, and the exposition closed.

Brigands Still Under Cover

Constantinople, Oct. 23.—Should no news be received during the next 48 hours from the missionaries who are seeking the captors of Miss Stone and her companion, Madame Tsilka, more missionaries will be sent to assist in locating the brigands. It is proposed now that a search party shall be organized to penetrate to the brigands' retreat.

Death of Seth Abbott

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Seth Abbott, father of Emma Abbott, the famous prima donna, died here last night at the age of 84 years. Mr. Abbott was a musician and until a few years ago, when his health failed, he gave most of his time to the teaching of music. When Emma Abbott died in 1891 she left her father an annuity of $400 a month.

Hasn't Heard of Intrigue

New York, Oct. 23.—Marquis Ito, former premier of Japan, yesterday reiterated, through a member of his suite, the declaration that he knows nothing of the reported movements begun against the ministry of Japan by the party of which the marquis is leader.

Russia and Japan at Peace

London, Oct. 23.—On the authority of Count Lamsdorff it is declared the relations between Russia and Japan are quite amicable and that the rumors of a likelihood of war are quite unfounded.

When you have no appetite, do not relish your food and feel dull after eating you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Price, 25 cents. At all druggists.

A VOLUNTARY ADVANCE

Of Five Percent For Borden's Mill Operatives

MANUFACTURERS ANGRY

Textile Council Will Now Ask For a Ten Percent Advance, and Will Probably Make a Strong Fight For It—Prospect of a Strike

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 23.—M. C. D. Borden posted a notice in the Iron works mills at 11 o'clock yesterday of a further advance of 5 percent in the wages of his operatives, to go into effect Nov. 4.

Manufacturers have been fearing some such action on the part of Mr. Borden since a peaceable settlement of the wage question became apparent. He has plunging on print cloths in this market until now he has stock enough in sight to keep his works in full operation until August of next year. He has everything to gain in the money way, by his advance. If the help strike his contracts will be of no value, as the mills cannot deliver them. His printed goods will be advanced in value because of the scarcity of gray goods. If the manufacturers grant an advance they will be compelled to keep the price where it now is, or shut down the mills. They cannot manufacture below 3 cents at present wages and cotton prices, and they say there is but little profit at that figure.

When they were told of the second advance ordered yesterday most of them expressed anger. Others of them were philosophic and hopeful that the operatives would appreciate the situation as it effects a great majority of the mills rather than the Iron Works mills. None of them would venture to say what the future course would be, but several of them were immediately convinced that a stand-up fight was what Mr. Borden was seeking, and they were disposed to give it to him as far as they were able. But in this conclusion they recognized the fact that they had sold their production to the man who was endeavoring indirectly to take their profit from them, and they said they could not really tell what course to pursue until the operatives have been heard from.

The desire of Mr. Borden to give his 3000 operatives another 5 percent raise in wages may bring about a strike in the other mills such as has been threatening since the earlier raise of a similar amount. The Textile Council last night decided to ask the Manufacturers association for an increase of 10 percent. The association has refused to increase wages 5 percent, and the Textile Council accordingly does not expect to see twice that sum.

Mr. Borden's action is expected to bring into line those members of the unions who at recent meetings were numerous enough to compel a vote that the Textile Council shall not declare a strike unless by vote of the five unions composing that body.

The manufacturers, on the other hand, firmly declare that an increase in wages will not be given. They contend that they have been governed by Mr. Borden long enough and will not act under his dictation any longer. The meeting of the Textile Council last night was not called for the purpose of asking for an advance, but to talk over the refusal of the manufacturers at the conference last Saturday afternoon. Secretary Whitehead said that the general feeling among the members of the unions represented in the Textile Council is very strongly in favor of a strike and he did not see how one could be averted if the manufacturers persist in the stand they have taken.

Crawford Grand Range No. 7 will be sold at the Jones' Auction, Thursday.

Walters Enter a Protest

Washington, Oct. 23.—The treasury department has ordered a hearing in the case of the 13 waiters detained on their arrival last week at New York and ordered deported on the ground that they were under contract for service at a New York hotel. Lawyers representing the waiters claim that the men are not under contract.

Crowe's Ultimatum

Omaha, Oct. 23.—Pat Crowe has just written another letter to Chief of Police Donahue. This latest communication was mailed here, and states that Crowe is secluded within 25 miles of this city. The writer insists that unless he shall be given assurance from the court that his bond will not exceed $500 he will not give himself up.

Carnegie Accepts Rectorship

London, Oct. 23.—Andrew Carnegie, replying to the request of the students that he will allow himself to be nominated to the lord rectorship of the St. Andrews university in succession to Professor Stuart, whose term expires in November, has accepted the nomination.

Given a Chance to Do Better

Boston, Oct. 23.—James J. Callanan, the Springfield postoffice clerk charged with stealing letters, was probated yesterday in the United States court, the indictment being placed on file. The indictment was filed on suggestion of Assistant District Attorney Easey.

PERFECT BANK NOTES

In Wide Circulation, Though They Have No Commercial Value

Boston, Oct. 23.—It is reported that Secret Service Agent Barker, who has charge of the New England district, has seized several thousand dollars worth of Old New Brunswick, N. J., state bank notes from a dealer in coins, notes and stamps in this city. No arrest has been made in connection with the seizure, which, however, may be due to an uncertainty as to whether or not the printing of these notes was an act of counterfeiting and if a charge can be preferred against those who may have them in their possession.

The bank which the notes represent went out of existence a number of years ago, and it is generally understood that its plates were sold to a junk dealer somewhere in New Jersey. Late developments show beyond any doubt that these plates were preserved and that notes have been printed from them since the bank ceased to do business. Of course the notes have no commercial value on the money market, but being printed from genuine plates they are perfect in every detail and no doubt could be passed as good currency among people who are not perfectly familiar with the appearance of bills, and it is known that they have gained some circulation in other states.

Judge Ross on Suffrage

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 23.—Former United States Senator Ross, whose speech in the senate two years ago proved the keynote to the Republican party on the question of the constitution following the flag, addressed the Vermont Law association last night. Judge Ross said that a person convicted of a state prison offense should be deprived of the right of suffrage. He also said that a person who has not voted for two years should have his name stricken from the check list. He spoke against the use of money in politics and believed that a person who steals or purchases votes should be deprived of the right to vote.

To Have $25,000,000 Capital

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 23.—The White Mountain Paper company, a $25,000,000 corporation, is being formed by western Massachusetts parties and will soon be incorporated under New Jersey laws. William B. Plunkett of Adams is to be the president of the company. The company has acquired about 625 square miles of spruce and poplar timber land in New Hampshire and Maine. At Portsmouth, N. H., will be built the largest paper mill in the world, with an output of 500 tons of book and print paper a day.

Woman Stabbed to Death

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Lizzie Serioli, an Italian woman, was horribly murdered last evening, her body being found in the road by a gunner. A stiletto was evidently used in inflicting the wounds that caused her death. Mrs. Serioli lived with her husband and one child in Berg's block. Mr. Serioli is an old man, while the murdered woman was 49 years of age. The police have been unable to connect anyone with the crime.

Alleged Fraud In School Board

Boston, Oct. 23.—Fraud and irregularity in the election of a first assistant in the Weston street primary school were charged by Mr. Ernst of the Public School association at the meeting of the school committee last night. The school board unanimously voted to investigate the charges, and President Gallivan has been empowered to appoint a special committee of five to conduct the inquiry.

Alleged Interviews Are Fakes

New Haven, Oct. 23.—Booker Washington, who is here attending the Yale bi-centenial celebration, made the following statement last night: "Some papers, are printing alleged interviews with me. I want to state as emphatically as I can that I have given no interview and have refrained from any discussion of what occurred at Washington."

Veterans Outplayed Youngsters

New Haven, Oct. 23.—Football of an extraordinary character was witnessed here yesterday when a team composed of the most famous stars among Yale's former players lined up against the substitute university eleven in two halves of 10 minutes each. The veterans outplayed their younger rivals from start to finish, beating them 12 to 0.

Alberto Convicted of Murder

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 23.—The jury in the case of Charles Alberto, charged with the murder of his wife in Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 1, 1900, returned a verdict of guilty in the second degree last evening. The killing of Mrs. Alberto by her husband was admitted by the defense, but its contention had been that the act was unpremeditated.

Old and Despondent

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 23.—John A. McGloin, aged 81, a laster, who has been out of work for some time, died last night following the excitement of an attempt to commit suicide. McGloin had become despondent because he was unable to receive employment, and within a few days had been ejected from his tenement.

No Farewell Reception

Boston, Oct. 23.—There will be no farewell reception to Rev. George C. Lorimer, D. D., of Tremont Temple church, because he wants none. He thinks it would be likely to become too lugubrious and too much of an emotional strain on him.

Good Afternoon.

It seems to be generally concluded that the City Council will pass the order for a police signal system and patrol wagon. With the police station on School street it is very necessary that such a system should be established to bring the department up to date.

A gentleman who took part in the canvass for the City Hospital some years ago states that, at that time, some who wished to contribute were unable to give a large amount, and rather than see their names against a small sum, concluded to give nothing at all. While this may be a natural feeling, we hope there will not be many of these cases this year. What might be a small amount from one would be generous from another, and if everyone subscribes according to his or her ability it will not take long to extinguish the debt.

The most talked of event of the past week at Washington and elsewhere was the presence of Booker T. Washington, the Southern negro educator at a family dinner with the President at the White House. Southern comment upon the incident has been promptly condemnatory of President Roosevelt for what is considered a significant instance of "social equality." More conservative people are inclined to the view that the President, as any other man, has the right to choose private guests at his pleasure. But few who know the President really believe that in honoring Washington as he did he meant to become the exemplar and champion of indiscriminate social equality.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It cost the State $250,000 to try the Molineux case in New York. Now the whole thing, practically, will have to be gone over again, it appears. Judging from numerous new trials granted lately in New York, we should say that a new brand of lower court judges would be a good investment for the people of the Empire State and would save money for the inhabitants thereof. According to the highest court, they don't know how to try cases there at all. Meantime the man outside the gates looks and listens for a sign that some poor devil without good lawyers and political and other influence has had a new trial granted; but he looks and listens in vain.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Anarchists are not the only people who are opposed to the institutions of our country. The Reformed Presbyterian church takes that attitude, and when a Boston church of the denomination learned that one of its members had been guilty of the atrocious crime of taking the oath of allegiance in order to become a naturalized American citizen, the session promptly excommunicated him. Another church of the order in Cambridge received the offending brother, whereupon the Boston church appealed to the Presbytery, and its action was sustained. It is very evident that the Reformed Presbyterians have not fully completed their much needed reformation.—Lynn Item.

BOWLING LEAGUE.

North Quincys Have a Picnic With the Merrymounts.

The North Quincy and Merrymount teams met Tuesday evening in the Norfolk county league, and honors were divided equally. North Quincy is elated over its victory at bowling—1,189 to 1,145. In the first string they led by 68 pins and in the second by 14 pins. Then they let up and Merrymount improved a little, winning the string by 38 pins.

Another Victory.

The Consolidated Basket Ball team of Boston defeated the Hartfords Tuesday night by a score of 10 to 4. This is the fourth game of the Boston team and makes their fourth victory. The team this year is very strong and next Saturday night expect to run up quite a score on the 17th Separate Co.

Evening Schools.

The evening schools opened Monday night; at the Adams and Willard building for the common branches and at the Old High school building for drawing. The attendance at the Adams and Willard buildings was a little larger than last year the Willard opening with 59 and the Adams with 63. These numbers will probably be increased before the end of the month.

The attendance at the evening free hand drawing school was 25 which was fully as many as last year. The evening school for mechanical drawing opened in the old High school building Tuesday evening with 57, which is also larger than in other years.

TODAY'S COURT.

James F. Devine was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

The continued cases of Charles F. Razoux, William F. Crowell, William J. Gibson, Wallace D. Eaton and Edward Norris, for the larceny of parts of an automobile at Milton, were heard. Razoux was fined $50 and Eaton $25. The others were discharged.

WAIVE THE BRIDGE.

So That Objection to Shipyard Petition is Off.

A hearing is being given today before the Harbor Board on the application of the Fore River Engine Co. to put a bridge over Bent's creek. The opponents have retained council to look after their interests. The proposed bridge we understand, will be fifteen feet wide and only six feet above high water mark, and no draw is provided, but the piles will be 15 feet apart to allow passage for a row boat.

LATER.

At the hearing much of the objection was eliminated, from the fact that the petitioners, the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., waived that part of the petition relative to a bridge, and agreed to keep open a fifty-foot water way.

The petition asks for the privilege of filling, and also the construction of a large basin which will have 30 feet of water at low tide.

Political Potpourri.

Nominations for the Republican caucuses are all ready to be filed next Monday evening.

Dexter E. Wadsworth is secretary of the Citizens' movement in Norfolk county to elect Marshall P. Wright as County Commissioner for the one year term.

Registration for the State election will close in the towns of the Commonwealth next Monday.

Election a week from next Tuesday.

The Ward One Councilmen should be renominated and reelected without opposition.

The indications are that the coming Municipal caucuses will be the liveliest the city has ever had and it is generally concluded that it will be anybody's fight until after the convention is held.

The report that C. M. Bryant has declined to run as a Mayoralty candidate should probably be put in the same bag as the report that Edward E. Jameson has resigned from the chairmanship of the Republican City Committee.

Not a Norfolk county man nominated for offices to be filled Nov. 5 resigned within the time limit which has now expired.

Twenty-six votes will be necessary at the Republican municipal convention to nominate the candidate for Mayor. Wards One, Two and Three have 28, and Wards Four, Five and Six but 23.

King's Daughters.

The annual union meeting of the Quincy circles of King's Daughters will be held in the Congregational church, Wollaston, Saturday, Oct. 26. Business meeting from 4 to 6. Between the hours of 6 and 7 a light lunch will be served. At 7 o'clock Mrs. Mary M. Sawtelle will address the meeting in the interest of the Pond Home for the Aged of Norfolk county. This home the King's Daughters and Sons are fitting to use. All are cordially invited to be present.

Spear—Low.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized Tuesday evening, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Low Washington street, their daughter, Miss Daisy Maude Low being united in marriage to Mr. Howard Dudley Spear. On their return from a short tour Mr. and Mrs. Spear will reside at 44 Granite street, Quincy.

Turkish Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

A PORTERHOUSE STEAK

that's a "porterhouse" in reality, as well as in name—tender, juicy, fine flavored—can always be had at Hancock Meat Market, first because it will be cut from a prime grade of beef, second because great care is taken in handing the meat, third because it's cut just exactly as a porterhouse should be cut. We take special pride in our steaks, but equal care is taken with everything in the meat line.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bounteous response?

(Signed) Timothy Reed,

REPUBLICAN INDEPENDENT.

Marshall P. Wright the One Year Candidate for County Commissioner.

Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, the Democratic and Republican Independent candidate for Norfolk County Commissioner is all that ex-City Treasurer Burke claimed in his speech of nomination, and more:—clean, honest, trustworthy, and conscientious; a gentleman above politics; modest and faithful: in fact a gentleman after the same pattern as the late Edwin D. Wadsworth of Milton, who died in office. Mr. Wright as a former water commissioner of Quincy; as a granite quarryman and contractor; as a foreman of granite cutters and quarry workers; as a quiet thinking citizen and taxpayer, has the qualifications necessary for the important office of County Commissioner. Having retired from business he could also give the duties attention.

Marshall P. Wright has always stood high for character and business qualifications among the people of Quincy, where he was born in 1847. His father was one of the pioneer granite manufacturers, and young Wright learned the trade. During the construction of the Boston post office he was foreman of the Cape Ann Granite Co., which furnished the granite. In 1880 he took charge of the well known O. T. Rogers Granite Co. at Quincy, and until purchased by the syndicate last year was the principal owner and general manager. For business ability and integrity, Mr. Wright is an ideal candidate.

THE COUNTY VOTE.

Twice in Thirteen Years Has Gone Democratic for Governor.

The Norfolk county vote for President and Governor will be of interest at this time. The summary below includes six votes for President all of which have been Republican, and the votes for Governor every year since 1887, two of which were Democratic:

year.		Rep.	Dem.
1884	President	8,351	7,321
1888	President	10,770	8,729
1888	Governor	10,556	8,751
1889	Governor	7,405	6,981
1890	Governor	7,919	8,324
1891	Governor	9,112	9,340
1892	President	11,862	10,327
1892	Governor	10,952	10,637
1893	Governor	11,394	8,925
1894	Governor	11,463	6,314
1895	Governor	11,848	6,435
1896	President	16,897	5,908
1896	Governor	16,070	6,013
1897	Governor	10,001	4,676
1898	Governor	12,407	5,443
1899	Governor	10,127	5,260
1900	President	15,144	7,922
1900	Governor	14,659	6,518

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

Glee Club.

The Edward Hewitson Glee club met Tuesday evening with Mr. H. Y. Follet in the vestry of the Congregational church, for their regular fortnightly meeting. The prospects for this year are very encouraging, as many new young men have already joined, the club is growing larger but there is still room for many others who have not yet signed. If the boys turn out in large numbers, Mr. Follett has agreed to give lessons more frequently than in the past year. The club will meet again Tuesday evening, October 29.

A Large Variety of Pictures will be sold at the Jones' Auction, Thursday.

☞There is a singular companionship or parallelism between June and October, in seasons when mild weather sustains the slender manifest lives of plans. It is in such a year that apples and cherries, raspberries, and other fruits blossom again; and so one need not be surprised at a pasture sunny with hundreds of dandelions; and the muleins and evening primroses send out new blossom stems from the very end of the already dry and seeded pods of the summer bloom. Many things of June and July are now vigorously blossoming, —the oxeye daisy, the tall daisy, the tall daisy fleabane, mayweed; then there is the queer white green-ribbed Grass of Parnassus and many violets appear. These with the most beautiful of the asters, and the wreath goldenrod, the black-eyed Susans, the tansy and the Queen Anne's lace make fine bouquets. Besides, one finds the fringed gentians and the closed gentians, equally attractive, though so apart. "There are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit."—Springfield Republican.

Depth of Earth's Atmosphere.

The Belgian royal meteorological observatory has published the estimates made by various mathematicians and physicists regarding the depth of the atmosphere surrounding the earth. The calculations of the various savants upon this subject are widely divergent. Biot estimated that the depth was only about 40 miles, Bavais 70 miles, Mann 81 miles, Callandrau 100 miles, Schiaparelli 125 miles, Marie Davy 187 miles, while Ritter stated that it reached to a height of 216 miles. Sir Robert Ball states that meteors have been observed at an altitude of more than 200 miles, and since they only become incandescent when they come into contact with the air the calculation of Ritter appears to be the most correct.

Cause of Aurora Borealis.

Professor Birkeland of the University of Christiania is convinced that the aurora borealis is the result of cathode rays, which issue from the sun and which have been caught up from the upper air of the earth. The truth of this theory, he says, has been clearly demonstrated by many experiments which he has made. He even succeeded in making an artificial aurora borealis which could not be distinguished from a genuine one.

The Latest In Butter.

Vegetaline is a new product prepared from the cocoanut that is being manufactured by a Marseilles firm. It is a kind of butter, which, it is stated, is especially adapted to the uses of bakers and confectioners. The article is harder and whiter than butter, which it only resembles in its fatty nature. It is obtained by refining the oil extract of the dried cocoanut.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

SPANIARDS AT SANTIAGO

Sigsbee Told Schley They Were Not In Harbor

A REPORTER'S TESTIMONY

As to Conversations With Commanding Officer, With Whom He Was Closely Associated Throughout the Campaign—Potts Testimony Refuted

Washington, Oct. 23.—The Schley court of inquiry opened yesterday with Lieutenant Wells, who was Commodore Schley's flag lieutenant during the Spanish war, still on the stand.

He was soon displaced, however, to allow Yeoman Mason, who had written the Brooklyn's log for the period covering the Santiago campaign, to testify Mr. Mason explained the erasures in the log entry referring to the Brooklyn's turn on the day of the battle of Santiago.

He was followed by George E. Graham, who, as an Associated Press correspondent, was with Commodore Schley during the entire campaign. Mr. Graham's testimony covered all the principal events of the campaign and discussed especially the bombardment of the Spanish ship Colon on May 31, and the battle of Santiago on July 3. Mr. Graham testified to hearing a conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Sigsbee when the latter came aboard the flagship Brooklyn off Santiago, May 26. He said that he had distinctly heard Captain Sigsbee tell the commodore that the Spanish fleet was not inside the harbor at Santiago.

Mr. Graham also stated that Admiral Schley had told him that the object of the bombardment of May 31 was to develop the Spanish land batteries, and he said that the range was fixed at 7000 or 7500 yards in order to draw their fire. He further said, with reference to the events of this engagement, that he had heard no conversation in which Commodore Schley said that the officers in their white uniforms were conspicuous objects. Mr. Graham detailed a conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Evans, which took place after the Santiago engagement.

The witnesses for the afternoon were Dennis J. Cronin, who was Admiral Schley's first orderly and who testified along the same lines as Mr. Graham as to the conversation with Captain Sigsbee; Lieutenant Commander Rush, who said he thought the Viscaya had planned to ram the Brooklyn; Lieutenant Simpson, who gave a picture of the battle of July 3; and Lieutenant Fitzgerald, an assistant engineer who was on duty in the fireroom on July 3, and who testified that an order had been given early in the action to stand by for any possible attempt at ramming by the Spaniards.

Mr. Graham was questioned by Mr. Rayner and said he had been on the Brooklyn from March 29 to Aug. 20, 1898. He was questioned concerning the conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Sigsbee on the occasion of the captain's visit to the Brooklyn on May 26, as follows: "Did you see Captain Sigsbee on board the Brooklyn on May 26?" "Yes, sir. After he had reached the quarterdeck gangway he stopped, and Commodore Schley said to him: 'Have we got 'em Sigsbee?' Captain Sigsbee said: 'No; they are not here. I have been here for a week, and they are not here.'

"We went aft and he continued the conversation. Commodore Schley said: 'Are you sure they are not in there?' He said: 'I have been very close to the harbor entrance two or three times Captain Cotton has been in and cut a cable and they are not there.' "

"Did you record that conversation, and did Captain Sigsbee know you recorded it?" "Captain Sigsbee knew I was a newspaper man and was there looking for information, and Captain Sigsbee later took a dispatch written by me and vised by Commodore Schley. He took it aboard his ship and was to deliver it to one of the small boats or else take it over himself."

"And Captain Sigsbee took that dispatch?" "Yes, sir. It was open. It detailed the fact that the fleet was not there."

"Do you remember the reconnoissance of May 31?" "Yes, sir. I was aboard the Massachusetts."

"Were you present at any conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Higginson in the pilot house of the Massachusetts?" "On the Brooklyn I had heard that they were going in to bombard, and that the flag would be transferred to the Massachusetts. I asked permission to go aboard the Massachusetts with the commodore, and he consented."

"Now tell me regarding the conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Higginson?" "There was some discussion about what the Spanish fleet had brought with them. The two officers smoked their cigars and chatted over it. Commodore Schley said that his idea was to go in about 7000 or 7500 yards and fire, simply to draw their fire. So far as I remember Captain Higginson acquiesced in that. Later Mr. Potts came in."

"Were you in the presence of Commodore Schley during the whole of this reconnoissance on the Massachusetts?"

"Only part of the time. At times I was behind the conning tower and he was on the other side of it."

"Did you see Lieutenant Potts on board the Massachusetts?" "He came into the pilot house during the conversation and took some part in it."

"Were you present at any conversation at all between Commodore Schley and Lieutenant Potts, or were you present at any time when Commodore Schley made any remarks during each time Potts was present?" "No, sir. I followed them right out of the pilothouse and down to the conning tower. I did not hear any conversation of that kind."

"Then you did not know anything about the conversation about which Potts has testified that the commodore said: 'Gentlemen, we are very conspicuous objects here; let's get out of it?' " "I never heard such conversation. I stood on top of the forward 13-inch turret. The commodore called to me: 'Boy, that's a bad place for you. Step in here.' I afterward asked why, and he said that the concussion would hurt me. I had no serious intention of remaining there."

"Was Potts present at that time?" "I think he was giving the ranges at the time." The witness said he was with the commodore during the whole of the reconnoissance, and did not hear the alleged conversation.

Mr. Graham also said that he had not heard Commodore Schley say anything about "potting the Colon" when the commodore went aboard the Massachusetts May 31, and that he was with the commodore at the time. "Then you heard none of these reported conversations?" asked Mr. Rayner. "None," was the reply.

"And you were with him all the time?" "I was with him all the time," the witness replied, "except when he was taken in hand by Captain Higginson and taken to his cabin."

Cromer's Second Bride

London, Oct. 23.—Lord Cromer (Evelyn Baring), the British diplomatic agent and consul-general in Egypt, was married here yesterday to Lady Katherine Thynne. The announcement of the betrothal of Lord Cromer and Lady Katherine Thynne was a decided surprise to society, and it was at first doubted, in view of the devotion of Lord Cromer to his first wife, who has been dead a little more than two years. The bride is a handsome woman of 35, and her ancestors for three centuries or more have been conspicuous in English history. Lord Cromer has been the virtual ruler of Egypt for a quarter of a century. He is 61 years old.

Stockholders Let Down Easy

Kansas City, Oct. 23.—Judge Hook of the United States District court yesterday decided that the stockholders of the Lombard Investment company, which failed in 1893 with the liabilities above $30,000,000, are not liable to the creditors of the company. The decision sets at rest a liability of nearly $2,000,000 against many eastern banks, trust companies and individual stockholders of the defunct concern.

Cleveland Should Keep Out

New York, Oct. 23.—Edward M. Shepard, Democratic candidate for mayor of New York, was asked yesterday if it was true as reported that ex-President Cleveland had written a letter in support of his canvass. He replied that ex-President Cleveland "should not, in his honored retirement, be asked to enter, either directly or indirectly, into this or any other strictly municipal contest."

Trusted to Others' Honesty

Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—No will was left by the late John S. Pillsbury, former Governor of Minnesota. He was content to give to any institution or movement which he deemed worthy of aid and was also content to let the laws of Minnesota determine the final disposition of his estate. He said so in as many words. His estate is estimated to be worth $5,000,000.

Air Apparatus Worked Well

London, Oct. 23.—Six men, who had been sealed up in a submarine boat ready for launching at Barrow-in-Furness for 12 hours, were released last evening. They suffered no ill effects from their confinement, the vitiated air being absorbed by an apparatus for that purpose and fresh air having been supplied from the compressors.

Beloved by Berliners

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Yesterday was the birthday of Empress Augusta Victoria and flags were displayed on all the public and many private buildings. A congratulatory address, beautifully bound and bearing 18,000 signatures, was presented by the citizens of Berlin, and many patriotic societies celebrated the anniversary.

A PALE-FACE GIRL

may be almost safely set down as wanting red in her blood. If subject to dizziness, fainting, shortness of breath on slight exertion, no doubt remains.

To want red in the blood is to fail of the good of one's food. Her food is not nourishing her. She needs a change.

The easiest change she can get, and one of the best, is Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It gives her the upper hand in the contest—her food has the upper hand now—she is pale no more.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

Silence You Can See.

There is no such thing as silence in this world. It is an impossibility. That is partly the reason why science has enabled us to see it.

The explanation of the paradox is this: Silence, as we understand it, simply means that there are sounds too delicate or too loud for the ear to register. In other words, when we can't hear anything we call that condition "silence." But wherever you are there are sounds around you. Even in the deepest mine the air vibrates and makes a sound. An instrument has been invented that will catch these sounds and permit of the vibrations being represented pictorially on a screen, and in that way you may see silence and properly understand what it means.

By comparing the pictures of noises with those of that condition of things known as silence we gain an idea of the difference between a noisy night, for instance, and one when "absolute silence reigns," as the novelist puts it. It is rather surprising to find so much disturbance at the time when everything appears to be perfectly quiet.—Pearson's Weekly.

Diplomatic.

The late Lord Savile used to say, according to The Candid Friend, "that high diplomatists had always to be on their guard against intriguing women, mainly Russian agents, who would use any wile to extract information. During the Russo-Turkish war, when Europe was always on the verge of a crisis and Russian statesmen were most anxious to know what England would do under given circumstances, a lady came up to him suddenly at a ball and said:

"I hear that the Russians have made a forced march and entered Constantinople," hoping no doubt that he would be surprised into some indiscreet expression.

He merely replied:

"Ineed! And I suppose the sultan has conferred on them the order of the Turkish Bath!"

The lady continued gravely:

"And they say in Paris that if England does not interfere the eastern question is settled in favor of Russia."

"And that," replied his excellency, "is, I suppose, the new judgment of Paris."

Wood Too Hard to Burn.

There are certain kinds of wood that are too hard to burn, or refuse to ignite for some other reason, such as ironwood and the good brier root, but it is a curiosity to come across a piece of common deal—the soft, light wood of which so many boxes are made—that cannot be set fire to.

The piece of wood in question was common white deal from Sweden, but was remarkable for its comparative weight. It had formed part of a boat belonging to a whaler and had been dragged below the surface of the water to the depth of more than half a mile by a harpooned whale. The length of line and the short distance from the point of descent after being struck at which the whale rose to the surface was a proof of the depth to which it had dragged the boat.

Only part of the boat came up again at the end of the line, and it was taken on board when the whale had been killed. That piece of wood was so hard that it would not burn in a gas jet. The weight of water had compressed it.—London Standard.

Birds' Songs.

A French writer, Henri Coupon, says that, notwithstanding the fact of their simplicity, the songs of birds cannot be imitated with musical instruments because of the impossibility of reproducing their peculiar timbre. The notes of birds, while corresponding with our musical scale, also include vibrations occupying the intervals between our notes. The duration of birds' songs is usually very short, two or three seconds for thrushes and chaffinches, four or five seconds for blackbirds, but from two to five minutes for the lark.

A Salmon's Leap.

One of the directors of the Norwegian fisheries has been endeavoring to discover the height a salmon will leap when clearing a waterfall which obstructs its passage up stream. Masts were placed below the fall to insure accurate measurements. It is stated that a fish can leap to the height of twenty feet. When a fish failed to clear the fall at one bound, it remained in the falling water and then, with a rapid twist of the body, gave a spring and was successful.

About the Limit.

"Bilkins, what is the most mortifying thing you can conceive of?"

Bilkins—I guess it's when a woman's sons having grown over the head of their father, who is of small stature, the thrifty mother has the outgrown clothes of her sons revamped for the old gentleman's use.—New York Times.

His First Impression.

Civil Service Examiner—What do you know about Budapest?

Applicant For Position on Police Force—Budapest is the name of a cattle disease. It is usually fatal!—Chicago Tribune.

Her Age.

Judge—How old are you, madam?

Witness (hesitatingly)—I am—that is, I—

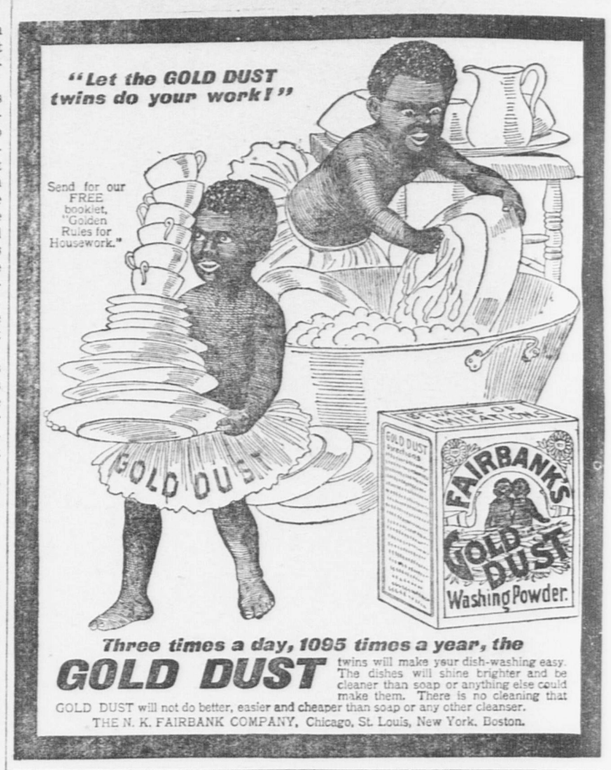

Judge—Out with it! The longer you wait the older you will grow.

Two of a Kind.

Guest—What a splendid dinner! I don't often get as good a meal as this.

Little Willie (son of the host)—We don't either.

The word "mile" comes from the Latin "mille," a thousand. A thousand paces of a marching soldier made the Roman mile.

Three times a day, 1095 times a year, the GOLD DUST twins will make your dish-washing easy. The dishes will shine brighter and be cleaner than soap or anything else could make them. There is no cleaning that GOLD DUST will not do better, easier and cheaper than soap or any other cleanser.

Turkish
Bed Couches.
We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

BENCH WARRANTS OUT

For the Arrest of Absconders Swift and Smith

GRAND JURY TAKES ACTION

Return of Indictments Against Them Will Make Matter of Extradition Much Easier Should They Be Found In Another Country

Boston, Oct. 24.—At an adjourned session of the United States grand jury, held in the Federal building, this morning, District Attorney Moulton and his first assistant, Mr. Casey, submitted evidence in the cases of the defaulting bookkeeper and teller of the Merchants' National bank of Lowell and indictment warrants were asked for against Lewis H. Swift and Albert G. Smith, the defaulters.

Mr. Moulton and his assistants do not intend to lose any time, now that the matter has been called to their attention, and every effort possible will be exerted to apprehend the fugitives. Pending the issuance of indictment warrants United States Marshal Darling and a corps of experienced assistants are hard at work trying to get some trace of the men. The United States authorities have asked for assistance from the Boston police.

It is by chance that the jury met this morning. The jurors met last week, and after business was completed, adjourned until Oct. 24.

It is quite probable, however, that if the jury had not been coming in at this time, the jurors would have been called together for this especial purpose, because the authorities believe that when the fugitive bank men are found it will be in another country. The matter of extradition will then have to be considered, and it will be a much easier task to have the men brought back to the United States when it is shown that indictments have been returned against them, than if it were simply shown that there was only a complaint out.

Another reason for the calling together of the jurors at this time is to obviate the difficulty which might have to be met in getting the officers of the bank to testify. It is true that Bank Examiner Ewer has been through the bank's affairs and obtained much evidence against the missing men, but this was of slight consequence compared with what the officers themselves knew. The difficulty will be done away with to a great extent, since the officers of the bank will be obliged to come before the grand jury and tell all they know.

Bench warrants have been issued for the arrest of both men. Swift is wanted, it is alleged, on a warrant charging him with making false entries on the books of the bank and of abstracting funds amounting to $500,000. Smith, it is alleged, is charged with the embezzlement of $115,000 and also with abstracting $500,000.

Bought Up Gas Plant

Leominister, N. H., Oct. 24.—Representatives of a syndicate of Keene, N. H., capitalists yesterday completed arrangements whereby the Leominister Gas Light company passes into the hands of the New Hampshire investors. The new company has a capital of $50,000. The syndicate also has purchased several plants in the northern part of Worcester county, and are said to be endeavoring to buy up all the smaller plants with a view to consolidation.

Druggists Want Licenses

Salem, Mass., Oct. 24.—Thirteen local druggists filed with the clerk of the supreme court here yesterday an application for a writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Hurley to sign their liquor licenses. The applicants claim that on Aug. 14 the licenses were granted by the board of aldermen, but from that time Mayor Hurley has refused to sign them.

Woman Found Dead In Road

Salisbury, N. H., Oct. 24.—The body of Mrs. Charles Folsom, the wife of a well known and prosperous farmer in this town, was found in the road about seven miles from her house at about 11 o'clock at night. The woman's head was terribly bruised and cut, and her husband is of the opinion that her death is the result of foul play.

Burglary Mystery Solved

Boston, Oct. 24.—The mystery surrounding the robbery of Bradford E. Glines' house in Charlestown was solved when James H. Bryan, 23, and Herbert Pike, 25, were arrested for the burglary. Silverware, a gold watch and jewelry, valued at nearly $1000, were stolen and a portion of the property has been recovered.

Aged Merchant Badly Hurt

Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 24.—John Graham, aged 76, a prominent merchant of this city, fell beneath the cars while alighting at the station here last night, and sustained injuries that are likely to prove fatal. Both legs were crushed to such an extent that an amputation was necessary.

FEELING OF ANIMOSITY

What Manufacturers Think Prompted Borden to Raise Wages

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 24.—The attitude of manufacturers toward the wage question is not changed by the demand of the operatives' leaders for a 10 percent increase to meet the advance made by M. C. D. Borden. They say today that the margin on which they rely is not any greater than it was when the last demand was made. They cannot afford to pay 21.8 cents for weaving print cloth cuts when the goods are selling at 21 cents a pound, and they claim that they cannot afford to pay 19.8 cents, the present price, and make a fair allowance for the depreciation of their plants.

Manufacturers fully expected the leaders to demand the full 10 percent increase and they look to see them recommend a strike when the demand is formally refused, as it will be. But they now hope more strongly than ever that the operatives themselves will see that Mr. Borden alone will be the gainer if they go on the street. The losers will be all the Fall River mills except the Iron works and all the operatives who leave steady employment for idleness. Nearly every manufacturer here says that Mr. Borden has a feeling of animosity against them.

The few who do not think so, believe that he is playing a very much deeper game than is commonly supposed, and all sorts of fantastic schemes are being conjectured. One well-known financier believes that Mr. Borden is trying to see a way to get rid of his manufacturing property here, the reasons assigned for it being domestic cares, which take a great portion of his time and knowledge of the fact that he has made a competence and can retire.

PARTICLES OF METAL

Dropping From Elevated Railway Are a Menace to Eyesight

Boston, Oct. 24.—As a result of the investigation by the board of railroad commissioners regarding the assertions that small particles of steel dropping from the elevated railway tracks have been a great menace to eyesight, a report has just been made by the board which finds that there are grounds for the complaints which people have made. The commissioners make the following statement:

"We have received from E. K. Turner, the expert engineer, who has been employed by the board in connection with the investigation into the complaint about what has been called the 'third rail eye,' a report which shows that minute particles of metal have fallen and do not fall from this railway and he classifies the cause thus:

"Wear of rails and wheels from contact between them.

"Wear of rail and brake shoes from contact between them.

"Wear of third, or conductor, rail.

"Wear of slide shoe upon conductor rail.

"Wear of other parts of iron work."

"Mr. Turner estimates that 96 percent of the falling particles come from the wear of rails, wheels and brake shoes, and that remaining small percentage only can be attributed to the third or conductor rail and other causes."

"With regard to such particles as may fall from the third rail it appears that they are of a different character and readily distinguishable in appearance and in effect from the others.

"The extent to which existing conditions can be changed is a subject of further investigation by the board. The falling of more or less of such particles from elevated railways has always been an accompaniment of their operation."

This report on the part of Engineer Turner shows that the trouble arising from the operation of the elevated cars properly cannot now be called the "third rail eye," since the third rail is shown to be responsible for so small a percentage of the shower of steel particles.

Boy Disappeared With Jewelry

New York, Oct. 24.—George E. Nasson, a messenger boy employed by a telegraph company, has disappeared as well as more than $1000 worth of jewelry which had been given to him to deliver for a local jeweler. Detectives have searched since Saturday last for Nasson, but no trace of him has been found.

Successful Break For Freedom

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 24.—Five men escaped from the industrial school last night by squeezing through a fence under cover of darkness. They were all thieves and were considered among the most vicious lot in the institution.

Fatally Hurt at Football

New York, Oct. 24.—Linden Bridgeman is dying as a result of injuries received in a football game when a player wearing solid shoes stepped on his head as Bridgeman lay prostrate on the field.

Passenger Steamer Missing

Melbourne, Oct. 23.—The steamer Monowai is now a week overdue from New Zealand, and nothing has been heard of her. She left Auckland with 135 passengers and a crew of 79.

Tolstoi Has a Relapse

Paris, Oct. 24.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to The Echo de Paris says Count Tolstoi has had a sudden relapse and that his condition is considered very serious.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

OUTBURST OF APPLAUSE

At Dramatic Outburst of Incident at Santiago

MANY HEADS WERE DUCKED

When the Shells of Spanish Warships Were Flying Over the Brooklyn, but Admiral Schley Showed Not the Slightest Fear

Washington, Oct. 24.—The first of yesterday's new witnesses in the Schley court of inquiry, James Hare, photographer on the press boat, stated that Captain Sigsbee of the St. Paul had told the correspondents aboard the Smith on May 26 or 27 that Cervera's fleet was not inside the harbor at Santiago.

Other witnesses in addition to Mr. Hare who testified were Chief Boatswain W. I. Hill, Gunner Applegate and Major Murphy of the marines, all of whom were aboard the Brooklyn during the Cuban campaign; Lieutenant Commander Harlowe, who, as executive officer of the Vixen, made notes of the battle of July 3, and three officers of the Oregon, Lieutenant Ackerman, Lieutenant Eberle and Lieutenant Johnstone.

In the course of his description of the battle of July 3, Mr. Hill said: "Probably 15 minutes after we started the Spanish ships had nearly all gone out. There were three of them. I stood near enough to touch Commodore Schley at that time, and I saw that we were going into a pocket. The Spanish ships had got out, and the Viscaya, the second ship, had turned toward us and we were about to cross the line of fire of our own ships.

"That time the order was given to port the helm I heard Commodore Schley say: 'Port,' and the ship started to swing to starboard. The helm was put over hard-aport, and she swung around on her heel. The fire from our batteries never ceased from the time we started to turn until the end of the battle, when the Colon went ashore. The guns were constantly being fired. The Texas was on our starboard hand, and she was fully a third of a mile from us. There was never any question in my mind about striking her. We were slightly ahead of her and turned in that way entirely clear of her.

"After swinging round we lined up parallel with the Spanish fleet. In a few minutes the Teresa went ashore, on fire. Soon after the Oquendo followed, and then we sided up with the Viscaya and kept with her for 10 or 12 miles. At this time there was no ship to be seen astern except the Oregon, which was about half a mile from us. On this run with the Viscaya, Ellis was killed. There were 14 or 15 of us standing together. The commodore asked in a matter of fact tone: 'What is the range?' Ellis raised the stadimetre to his eye, and as he did so a shell took his head off. As he fell to the deck, dead, young McCauley said 'Let's throw it overboard.'

"The commodore said: 'No, don't throw that body overboard. He died like a brave man and I am going to bury him like one.' He directed me to look out for the body.

"The Viscaya was putting up the best fight of any ship there. She fought well and the big shells were going over us and a great many of us ducked. These shells sounded like half a dozen railroad trains under way."

"As they were heard going through the air, down would go a head, but Commodore Schley's head never bent."

There was a great outburst of applause in the court room as in a dramatic way the witness recited this incident. Admiral Dewey for the first time during the sessions of the court found it necessary to pound his gavel on the table and admonished the audience against such demonstrations. Continuing his story the witness said:

"He was as calm, cool and collected as he is at this moment. His only thought was for his men. He called constantly as the different events occurred, saying: 'Do the bullies below know this; do they know that; that this ship has gone ashore and that ship has gone ashore?' His whole idea seemed to be that he wanted the people below to know as much about it as those of us on deck."

Continuing his account of the battle, Mr. Hill said before the Viscaya went ashore she had made a turn to ram the Brooklyn. He proceeded to say that he knew this to be the case because an officer of the Spanish ships had told him so, but this testimony was ruled out.

Later in the chase of the Colon he said that Captain Cook had put his head out of the conning tower and said to the commodore: "Don't you think we had better close in a little?" said the witness parenthetically, "I thought so myself." But he went on, "The commodore replied, no; don't you see that point ahead? Just as soon as that fellow starts to come out I'm going to head him off. I'll get him yet, D—— him. I'll follow him to Spain if I have to."

This testimony was given in clear and distinct tones and was distinctly heard throughout the large court room. Like a previous statement it was received with a burst of applause, but the demonstration was quickly suppressed by Admiral Dewey, whose words of reprobation to the audience were followed by a word of admonition from Mr. Rayner to the witness.

LACK OF EXERCISE

One of the Principle Causes of Our Statesmen "Going Stale"

Washington, Oct. 20.—The physicians and surgeons who attended President McKinley in their report to the New York Medical society enumerate among the "contributory causes" of his death lack of exercise. This may well have been the case without the president having been naturally indisposed to exercise.

Once president, he, like other public men in Washington, found it difficult to obtain time for exercise. The president was a very hard worker. He was up early and went to bed very late. His working day, with simply the intervals for luncheon and dinner, often was from 9 o'clock in the morning until midnight. What exercise the president could obtain was very limited. He was a most conscientious worker, who between himself and his work, never favored himself.

One of the president's expedients for getting a little exercise was to take a walk in the corridors of the White House just before retiring for the night. He would then light a cigar and march up and down until he had smoked it out. Then, going to the door of his apartments he faced about, and with a courteous "I wish you good night, gentlemen," dismissed those members of the White House staff who have "no hours," but are on duty as long as the president's lamp burns.

Public men in Washington have to live under conditions that expose the strongest of them to the risks of physically "going stale." The public buildings, after the weather justifies any fires whatever, are intolerably hot. Even the corridors of the great department buildings are fairly stifling, and the offices seem like ovens. Our cabinet officers lead very different official lives from those of European ministers. The heads of the great cabinet departments work hard, get little exercise, are overrun with visitors and obtain little rest, between official duties and social exactions.

President Roosevelt demonstrates a disposition to get plenty of exercise. His friends express the hope that he will persevere in this determination even if it compels the "delegations" to wait hours until he has finished a brisk walk or considerable rough riding.

SHIP BUILDING PROGRESS

Exemplified In the Launching of the Siberia at Newport News

Washington, Oct. 24.—The launching of the Pacific Mail liner, Siberia, at Newport News is considered an epoch-marking event in our ship building annals. The Siberia has 18,600 tons displacement, as has her sister ship the Korea, put into the water some months ago. Each has a contract speed of 19 knots. They are by far the largest vessels ever launched in the United States, being bigger than any of our battleships, or any of the "American liners." Their proportions indicate the expansion actual and forecast of our Pacific commerce, which demands vessels of greater capacity and speed than have hitherto been known on that sea.

Big as they are, they are of only half the displacement of the two monster steamers being built at New London, Conn., for James J. Hill's Pacific service. Each of these vessels will ply between Seattle and the Orient, will be of 21,000 tons register and of 38,000 tons load displacement to the deep load line. These ships, like the Siberia and Korea, are twins, being identical in measurements.

Their principal dimensions are: Length, 630 feet, beam 73, and depth 56. Great cargo carrying capacity rather than high speed has been the object sought in the construction of these leviathans, though they will be fitted for passenger business as well. Their average speed will be about 14 knots an hour.

While our merchant marine is growing on both coasts, on the Pacific its most striking development in the near future promises to be attained, for steamers of great carrying capacity have recently been added to both the Hawaiian and the Australian service.

The Downfall of Buller

London, Oct. 24.—The storm of comment and discussion regarding the dismissal of General Buller shows no diminution. It is asserted that there has been a very strong feeling of animosity between Lord Roberts and General Buller ever since the capture of Pretoria, but that for a week the former had vainly endeavored to persuade the latter of the advisability of resigning. The matter has unusually excited military men, the rank and file having very strong sympathy with the disinissed commander.

May Live to Enjoy Good Luck

Oklahoma City, Oct. 24.—James R. Wood, who drew the famous claim No. 1, valued at $50,000, in the Lawson district at the recent government opening of land in the Indian territory, is not dead as reported. He is slowly recovering from a serious illness.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The sad news comes from England that Sousa's marches are not making a hit over there. It must be a blow to the bandmaster to realize that there can be so much stupidity in the world.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞In Boston and New York a newspaper office that could not issue a "5 o'clock" afternoon extra before 9 A.M. would be slow, indeeed, and one is led to suspect by the above paragraph that the Chicago pace is comparatively moderate. A recent squib regarding "corrected time" in yachting suggests an explanation of the way of dating metropolitan journals. The young man was asked by his best girl what "corrected time" meant, and he explained that the English boat used Greenwich time which was seven hours fast of our standard. It just occurred to us that the Boston evening papers mean Greenwich time when they put that black letter "5 o'clock" fake on their midday editions.—Woonsocket Reporter.

ORDINATION.

Of Rev. Leon H. Austin at Quincy Point.

Important Event in Annals of Church.

Paper on Belief and Examination Very Satisfactory.

In the presence of a large gathering, Rev. Leon H. Austin was on Wednesday evening ordained as pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church at Quincy. It is a great many years since the church had a regularly installed pastor and a longer time since a pastor has been ordained, so that it was an important event in the annals of the church. An ecclesiastical council was held in the afternoon to which 20 churches were invited to participate, and 16 were represented. Rev. A. A. Ellsworth of Quincy was moderator and Rev. T. H. Vincent of Weymouth the clerk.

Mr. Austin read a paper setting forth his belief, and after some questioning, the council voted unanimously that he was worthy to be ordained. The examination proved the candidate to be a broad thinker and was very favorable.

The Ladies' Aid society provided a bountiful supper previous to the service of the evening.

The program for the ordination and installing service at 7.30 was as follows:

Report of the Council.
Gloria, Choir.
Invocation and Scripture,
Rev. Frank E. Butler, South Weymouth.
Solo,—Selected, Mrs. George Carter.
Sermon, Prof. C. S. Beardslee, D. D., Hartford Theological Seminary.
Ordination and Installing Prayer,
Rev Edward Norton, Quincy.
Anthem.—"Praise the Lord," Choir.
Right Hand of Fellowship,
Rev. Edward Anderson, Quincy.
Charge to the Pastor,
Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Quincy.
Charge to the People,
Rev. W. Sherman Thompson, Somerville.
Anthem,—"I will Sing" Choir
Benediction, Rev. Leon H. Austin
Miss Sara Kelley, Organist.

As above noted the report of the Council was very favorable. The anthems by the choir and solos by Mrs. George Carter were much appreciated. Plants and flowers also added their beauty to the occasion.

Rev. Mr. Butler's part was appropriate. Prof. Beardslee took "prayer" for his text, and encouraged its observance. Where one believed in God they could come unto Him and be rewarded. Prayer he said, was the key to church success. Want of prayer was the chief reason for church decline. He asked his hearers to pray, and to demonstrate that prayer is valid.

It was a pleasure to have Rev. Mr. Norton offer the prayer. It was fervent and in spirit with the occasion. The ceremony of the laying on of hands by three clergymen was used.

Rev. Mr. Anderson spoke of the fellowship with God and with those on a level. First there was the conference with the churches; second, the association with ministers at their weekly meetings; third, fellowship with your own church; and fourth, fellowship of the individuals. The new pastor had a great opportunity because of the large plants building up.

Rev. Mr. Hardy charged the new pastor to preach the truth. The Bible should be the key; its teachings were wide, deep and exalted enough. Be a witness, be a shepherd, be a preacher, be a man. He extended congratulations and wished God speed in the ministry.

Rev. Mr. Thompson, a former pastor, thought he was called because the people wanted flattery. He emphasized the fact that Rev. Leon H. Austin was the first pastor in many years, in the real sense. The mission of the church was the mission of Jesus Christ. The church must have a master. Let the minister preach as he sincerely thinks; out of his own deep conviction. We want the truths which are fresh and new.

The benediction was by the new pastor, Rev. Leon H. Austin.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

NOW IN CANADA.

Quincy Young Man Physical Director at Montreal.

Montreal papers are enthusiastic over the new physical director of their Y. M. C. A. association, a Quincy young man.

One daily says: Mr. Merritt is tall, straight and well developed, and apparently understands his business thoroughly. He is a young man and married. He was born at Duxbury, Mass., but when he was six months old, his parents moved to Quincy, and that is the place he always calls home. It was there he went to school. In due time he was attracted to the Y. M. C. A. It was not long before he showed special aptitude for sports, and such efficiency in physical exercise as to mark him as a coming athlete. He was appointed assistant physical director and then selected as chief physical director of the Y. M. C. A. at Quincy. He decided, finally, to qualify as a professional athlete and physical director for Y. M. C. A. work. With this object in view he spent a term or two at Harvard college, and followed this up with a three years' course at the Y. M. C. A. Physical Training School at Springfield. Here he studied anatomy and physiology, and graduated as a physical director 1899. Before getting their diplomas it is necessary for graduates from this school to write a thesis on some subject bearing on the profession. Mr. Merritt wrote a lengthy essay on "The physiological effect of maximum effort on the circulation, as manifested in exercises of strength," and his diploma classes him amongst the graduates who were accounted "worthy of high praise," being the third of four degrees of excellence.

During his first year at the training school Mr. Merritt made such progress that at its close he was asked to take a special examination, which he passed and he was appointed assistant teacher for the other two years in which he continued his studies there.

Upon graduating Mr. Merritt secured the position of physical director at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The officials of the Montreal association are congratulating themselves upon having secured the services of such a a competent man as successor to Mr. Ball. Mr. Merritt knows his predecessor well, and speaks in the highest terms of his abilities and work.

Asked regarding the course he intended to pursue here, Mr. Merritt said that he would start in on the old lines established by Mr. Ball, and only make changes where he found he could introduce a decided improvement.

Mr. Arthur B. Dawson, who has been acting as assistant to Mr. Ball, will continue in the same relationship to Mr. Merritt.

AGAINST BOWKER.

An Organization Covering Whole County Has Been Perfected.

Representative men from all parts of the county gathered at 92 Water street, Boston, Wednesday afternoon and organized the Norfolk County Citizens Committee, which will work for the defeat of Watts H. Bowker of Brookline for County Commissioner. James M. Codman of Brookline was chairman, and Dexter E. Wadsworth of Quincy was secretary. Dr. Gordon of Quincy is one of the vice presidents and the following Quincy gentlemen will sign a letter to be issued: Theophilus King, E. W. Sheppard, C. F. Pettengill, L. S. Anderson, Benjamin Johnson, Jr., and Dr. Gordon.

Various letters were read endorsing Marshall P. Wright for County Commissioner.

Unity Club Program.

The Unity club will meet in the vestry of the Unitarian church tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The director of the meeting will be Mrs. S. Washburn and the subject is "Cities of the Past."

Rev. Edward A. Chase will speak on Babylon, Mr. E. L. Robbins on Tyre, and Dr. William Gallagher on Thebes. Music as usual will form a prominent feature of the programme.

Mr. Herbert Y. Follett will sing Yeomen'sWedding Song and Kipling's and Vanny Deezer. An interesting evening is promised and it is hoped all members with friends will be present.

Good Smelting.

Tom Davenport was after smelts Wednesday and brought home seventeen dozen which he caught off Veazie' rocks, Squantum. C. F. Pettingill calls that a small catch, and he has gone today to see what he can do. The shores of Black's creek are lined with fishermen every night and while not as good catches are made as outside, quite a number are being caught.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harriet F. Leavitt of Braintree was sent to the house of correction for three months for being a vagrant at Weymouth.

Several continued cases were called and disposed of.

Roger Kenney and Thomas Turner were arraigned for assault on Moses Sorgman at Quincy. Cases continued until next Thursday.

CITY BREVITIES.

Francis Beattie, who formerly resided in Quincy, but who has not been here for several years, is in town visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Lewis of Bass street, Wollaston Park, mourn the loss of a little daughter who passed away Tuesday.

Prizes at the Granite City club whist tournament Wednesday night were taken by W. Walter Ewell and J. W. Nightingale.

The cool wind today can be taken as a reminder that winter is at hand and it is time to be looking up heavier undergarments.

Mrs. Robert McNish and Messrs. William and James McNish, with their families, of Emden, Ill., are visiting relatives at West Quincy.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Rev. Frank W. Pratt were elected directors at the Norfolk conference of Unitarian churches at Hyde Park on Wednesday.

The entertainment to have been given by the ladies social union of the West Quincy Methodist church Wednesday evening was postponed until next week.

A Neponset bound car ran into a herd of cattle near the Neponset bridge Wednesday evening about 6 o'clock, and injured two so badly that they had to be killed.

The central fire station apparatus was called out on a still alarm Wednesday for a fire on the roof of building used by C. Bedlin & Co., the sewer contractors, on Palmer street. The fire was extinguished before the department arrived. Loss about $50.

A savage cow caused considerable excitement at Loring's corner Wednesday evening. He became alarmed and ran madly about the square. There was one young man who narrowly escaped a goring from the savage beast.

The Wollaston team came out victorious in the match in the Woman's Golf club association at Concord on Wednesday, by a score of seven up. The Wollaston team was composed of Miss Adams, Miss Barker and Mrs. Child.

A most convenient voting list has just been issued for Milton by H. B. Martin, the efficient Town clerk. It is in pamphlet form, 4 by 5 1-2 inches, and is neatly printed on heavy paper. As a pocket edition it is sure to be appreciated.

Miss Margaret McLaughlin of Quincy has returned from a visit to New York City. While there she went to Bedlous island, climbed fifty-five flights of stairs and stood in the hand of the Statue of Liberty, which some men refused to do.

BY ACTUAL COUNT

Quincy Has 4,407 Voters, 117 Less Than Last Year.

An actual count of the names on the revised voting lists for the state election, just issued, shows the total number of registered voters to be 4,407. This is 117 less than last year at the same time, which is not surprising as there is always an increased number in a Presidential year. Ward Five now has 723 names on the list and it would seem that the time is not far distant when this ward must be divided into precincts.

The totals for four years at the State elections are given below, and they are today 409 larger than three years ago:

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bouteous response?

"Beautiful Jim Key."

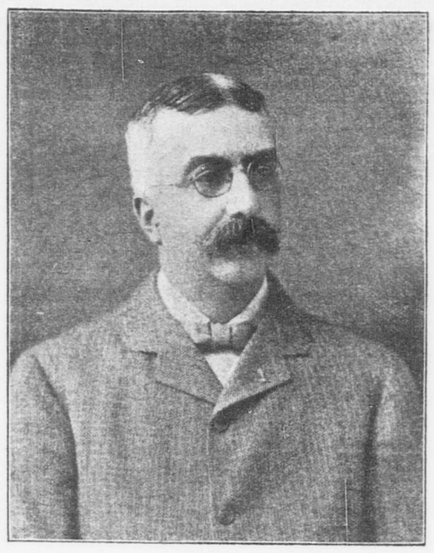

Among the immense number of special attractions at the Boston Food Fair, now nearing its close, no feature draws bigger crowds than Beautiful Jim Key, the educated horse. This horse actually spells a large number of words, the spelling being done by the use of letters which the horse takes out of a rack. He has been taught to spell thousands of ordinary words and some long ones. He even spells Constantinople. He adds, subtracts and multiplies figures up to thirty. The figuring is done with the aid of figures on pieces of card board placed on a rack. The horse places letters in a letter file, putting a letter in the particular drawer he is told to. He detects coins as readily as a human being. He knows a nickel from a half-dollar and a half-dollar from a dollar as well as anybody, and he opens a cash register with his mouth taking out the particular coin called for.

Excellent Concert.

The Music Committee of Bethany church furnished an excellent concert on Wednesday evening, and the public would be pleased to have more such enjoyable entertainments this season. It was all good, but the audience was most enthusiastic over Miss Bertha C. Smith who gave zither solos; Miss Vora Burpee, the reader; and Miss Louise Holbrook, the soloist. Mrs. Emma Shufeldt-Moore and Mr. Shufeldt sang as a duet, "Calm as the night," and each gave a solo. Mr. F. Stuart Mason rendered two violin solos. The platform decorations of draperies and plants were artistic and pretty.

THE BEST MAN IS INDEPENDENT.

Judge Bumpus Tells Why President Charles M. Bryant Should Be Nominated for Mayor.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

We have about five thousand voters in Quincy and perhaps one hundred of the "ins' and "outs" of office holders, so that forty-nine fiftieths of us have no personal concern other than as citizens and taxpayers. It seems to me that a statement of that proposition is sufficient to convince all of us that are not in either the "ins" and "outs" that in the interest of good government, fair taxation and proper improvements in our city, we will vote for the man, regardless of personal or political affiliations, who will do the best work.

About this time of the year however, the noisy ones start up and proclaim the necessity of electing either a Democrat or a Republican for Mayor as if it made a bit of difference, getting the right man in the place, what his politics or religion are, where he lives, or anything else of that kind.

I am not one of those men who believe that Quincy, after all has been so badly governed. I think, considering the means and the experience of the men whom we have taken, that as much progress has been made in the direction of building up the right kind of a city to live in as could be expected. But as we grow older as a city we have a right to be more exacting in the men whom we chose because of the fact that we can find men of more experience and better fitted to do the work, I have an acquaintance with Mr. Bryant whom I understand is a candidate for the office of Mayor. I am not under any obligations to him and he is not to me. I should not ask him for a single favor if he was elected Mayor and I should certainly advise him not to grant me one because I do not know of any that I ought to have.

But this I know, and we all know, that Mr. Bryant is a man who has taken more interest in the public affairs of the city of Quincy than any man today who has not been its Mayor. If you should stop a man on the street and ask him who was the best fitted man from his services in the City Council, from the study that he has made of the necessities of our community and from the interest he has taken in it, every man who has considered the subject at all, and who can rise above personal prejudice or political desire, would say, "Mr. Bryant."

Now why should we not make him Mayor. Forty-nine fiftieths of us, as I say are only interested in getting the best man. That best man is independent, makes enemies because he is sincere and direct, and if his integrity does not propose to be controlled by any little body of men, who, under the pretence of morals or something else claim political pulls, then I honor him all the more for it because I see in this that he is a man not to be flattered nor flatter, but simply one who, knowing his duty, will do it without fear or favor.

Of all the contemptible creatures that I know of in this world, it is the man who grows up in a litte community and joins some society based on morals for the purpose of bettering himself. Whenever you see that type of man asking or expecting anything in the way of political reward, you may be sure of the intensity of his meanness and the contempt that he deserves from the independent people of his community. Let us then put our heads together and our votes in the ballot box and elect a head of our city government that has something in it besides an empty and dreary waste of mentality that is buzzing about only for the purpose of finding office for some favorite.

Yours very truly,
E. C. Bumpus.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY Virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Thomas M. Chisholm, now or formerly of Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to John Reed of Boston, in said Commonwealth, dated June 11th, 1898, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book 817, page 513, will be sold at public auction upon or near the granted premises on FRIDAY, the 1st day of November, 1901, at 9.30 o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, to wit:

A certain parcel of land situated in Quincy, in the said County of Norfolk, and being lot No. 104 on a plan of house-lots on Cranch Hill, drawn by H. T. Whitman, surveyor, dated August, 1897, and recorded with Norfolk County plans; said lot is bounded and described as follows, viz: Beginning at a point on the northerly side of Whitwell street at the southwesterly corner of lot No. 105 on said plan, and running in a northwesterly direction along said Whitwell street, sixty (60) feet to a stake; thence turning at a right angle and running in a northeasterly direction along lot No. 103 on said plan, one hundred five (105) feet to a stake; thence turning and running in a southeasterly direction along lot No. 125 on said plan, sixty (60) feet to a stake; thence turning and running in a southwesterly direction along lot No. 105 on said plan, one hundred five (105) feet to the point of beginning, containing six thousand three hundred (6,300) square feet, and being the same premises conveyed to said Chisholm by Swithin et al, by deed dated June 2, 1898.

The premises are sold subject to the restrictions which shall remain in full force and effect until January first, 1908, that no building shall be erected on said premises within twenty-five feet of said Whitwell street, and also subject to any taxes that may be due thereon.

$300 will be required to be paid in cash at the time and place of sale.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac. Friday, Oct. 25.
Sun rises—6:08; sets—4:48.
Moon sets—3:35 a. m.
High water—8:45 a. m.; 9:15 p. m.

Dry weather continues throughout the United States. Temperatures over the eastern part of the country are 10 to 25 degrees above the seasonal average. Fair weather is likely to continue in New England. On the New England coast high west to northwest winds will slowly diminish. Storm warnings are displayed on the New England coast.

Shamrock on the Market

New York, Oct. 24.—Sir Thomas Lipton has determined to sell Shamrock II and she is now on the American market. Before Sir Thomas left New York for Chicago the defeated challenger was placed in the hands of Messrs. Tams, Lemoine & Crane of this city, with orders to sell her. What Sir Thomas asks for the yacht is, of course, not known outside of those interested, but the price, it is said, is not of a prohibitory character, if some wealthy American yachtsman should want such a racing craft.

Shepard Endorsed by Whitney

New York, Oct. 24.—William C. Whitney, ex-secretary of the navy, last night announced himself in an interview as in favor of the election of Edward M. Shepard, the Democratic candidate for mayor.

Spanish Officers Growling

Madrid, Oct. 24.—An admiral of the fleet has handed to the Queen Regent a memorandum setting forth the grievances of officers of the Spanish navy. The matter has aroused much comment.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The New Bedford Textile school will have the first textile scholorship established in America. William Firth of Boston has given $3000 for the purpose of founding a free scholarship at the school.

A bronze statue of General Albert Pike, for many years the grand commander of the Ancient and Accepted Order of Scottish Rite masons for the southern jurisdiction, was unveiled at Washington.

The trustees of Thornton academy, Saco, Me., voted to accept the gift of a $12,000 memorial library building from Mrs. Charles C. G. Thornton and her daughter, Mary C. Thornton, of Magnolia, Mass. The building is given in memory of Mrs. Thornton's husband.

The government of Korea has raised a loan for a year from the Japanese bank of £7,000,000 at 10 percent. One of the conditions is that a portion of the loan shall be spent on rifles and guns purchased in Japan.

W. W. Rockhill, who represented the United States government in the Chinese negotiations, returned to Washington last night. He left China early in September. Because of his absence of over a month from the Orient he asked to be excused from any interview regarding affairs there.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Robbers Got Mail Pouch

Portand, Or., Oct. 24.—The northbound overland express train on the Southern Pacific was held up by two masked men 15 miles from Eugene at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The robbers blew open the express car with dynamite, but were driven off by the express messenger. The only booty secured was one registered mail pouch.

Sympathy For Meat Handlers

Boston, Oct. 24.—The longshoremen of this city, who are members of the knights of labor, voted last night to support the meat handlers who have been on strike for some weeks, and refuse on Monday to transfer beef from refrigerator cars to ocean steamers.

Drowned In a Well

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 24.—William R. Jones, aged 70, fell into a well 40 feet deep on the farm of Isaac Parker, last evening. The medical examiner gave his opinion that Mr. Jones, in attempting to draw water, lost his balance and fell in and was drowned.

THE SAMAR OUTBREAK

Not Considered Serious by the War Department

CHAFFEE HAS AMPLE FORCE

To Handle Insurgents Under Existing Circumstances—Fresh Troops to Take Place of Men Whose Enlistments Have Expired

Washington, Oct. 24.—Secretary Root resumed his official duties at the war department yesterday after an absence of several weeks. His vacation was interrupted by the assassination of President McKinley, and the sorrow and excitement incident to that tragic affair so affected his health that he was compelled to seek several weeks' in the mountains.

There is an enormous amount of work awaiting his immediate consideration. One of the questions requiring his earliest attention relates to the army in the Philippines. It is for him to determine whether existing conditions require that reinforcements shall be sent to General Chaffee or whether the army may be reduced without impairing its efficiency.

While the officials of the war department are watching with keen interest the developments in Samar, they do not anticipate the outbreak will reach any serious stage.

It is believed at the department that General Chaffee has ample force to handle the insurgents there. There is no present intention of increasing the force in the Philippines. The troops to be sent to the Philippines in the next month or two will take the places of those whose terms of enlistment have expired.

By the expiration of enlistment within the next few months the army in the Philippines will be reduced by about 10,000 men. The officials of the war department are making preparations to meet this difficulty by the transfer of troops from the United States.

Final action in that regard awaits only the approval of the secretary of war. Troops and transports are ready to start for the Philippines as soon as he gives the word.

It is expected that the first expedition will start from San Francisco early next month on the transports Grant and Meade, and that more troops will be forwarded later from New York by way of the Suez canal on the transport Crook.

The reductions will be gradual and will be met from time to time by fresh troops as required. These arrangements are predicted on the belief that it will be necessary to maintain the Philippine army at a strength of about 40,000 men for some time to come.

They Share Advantages

Montreal, Oct. 21.—An international library in every sense of the word is in process of construction at Rock Island in the province of Quebec and at the Derby line in the state of Vermont. That it is possible for it to be in two places at the same time is explainable when it is stated that it is built exactly on the international boundary line and is intended for the joint use of these two places. Mrs. M. M. Haskell of Rock Island donated funds for the erection of the library, and specified that each of these places should enjoy equal advantages in it. As they are practically one, only an iron pillar marking the border, the building was erected on that line.

Royalty in Newfoundland

St. Johns, Oct. 24.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall arrived here yesterday. The city was profusely decorated, and over 600 fishing vessels had assembled in these waters, all decorated with bunting. A heavy rainfall prevented the royal party from even taking a drive and spoiled the decorations and practically suspended all the festivities. The duke last evening gave a dinner to Governor Boyle and the state dignitaries, on board the Ophir.

Packing Plant Burned

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Half a million dollars worth of buildings and slaughtered cattle were destroyed by fire which broke out in the plant of the G. H. Hammond packing company at Hammond, Ind., last night. At midnight four buildings had toppled over in ruins and the flames were roaring high above the dismantled walls. Hammond's fire department was utterly unable to handle the fire and aid was sent from here and South Chicago.

Earl Li May Be Recalled

Pekin, Oct. 24.—There is a strong opposition among conservative Chinese officials to Wu Ting Fang, minister at Washington. They consider that his popularity abroad is a proof that he is not sufficiently loyal to the interests of China. It is probable that he will be recalled and given a position on a new board of foreign affairs.

Below Required Standard

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 24.—The torpedo boat Thornton, built by William R. Trigg & Co. of Richmond, made another run yesterday to complete her official speed trial. The Thornton ran along very smoothly, but failed to develop the average speed, making only about 25 knots, a knot below contract requirements.

In the Killing District

Selma, Aa., Oct. 24.—Homicidal mania seems to have broken out among the negroes who live in the immediate counties surrounding Selma, and in the last two weeks there have been not fewer than 20 negroes killed by other blacks.

THE TREASURY SURPLUS

Has Been Steadily Reduced Despite the Obstacles Raised by War

Washington, Oct. 21.—Probably that part of Secretary Gage's Milwaukee address which will most impress the general public, made up of men who are unacquainted with the details of banking, is that in which he deals with the public debt. The average reader has neither time nor the opportunity for following the Treasury operations from week to week and month to month. In a general way he knows that the country's credit is "gilt edged," and that the Spanish war and "expansion" have not strained our resources or strength; but it is doubtful if he realizes that the interest-bearing debt of the United States was reduced from $1,046,049,000 to $985,476,000, a reduction of $60,000,000 between Nov. 1, 1899, and Aug. 1, 1901. The financial management of our war with Spain was indeed wonderfully successful. We raised great armies, enlarged our navy, conquered an empire, and within less than two years of the signing of the treaty of peace, reduced the taxation that the struggle had rendered necessary, and are now cutting down our debt.

Secretary Gage's solution of the treasury surplus is simple. It is to reform our financial legislation in such a way that the government may deposit funds it does not need with the banks on conditions which secure it and at the same time yield it a return without maintaining requirements which are like those at present in use are onerous. In general the other recommendations of the secretary tend to take the government out of the banking business save in its supervisory capacity, and to free banking from the requirements which limit or hamper its responsiveness to the business of the country.

Many secretaries have been embarrassed with the question of what to do with the surplus, an embarrassment which becomes all the more pressing as the country becomes the more prosperous. When prosperity is general and pronounced, as it is today, there is the more demand for money with which to capitalize enterprises at the very time when the increased consumption of taxable articles is sending increased volumes of revenue into the treasury.

POWER OF MANKIND

Will Be Greatly Enhanced by Twentieth Century Inventions

London, Oct. 24.—The dispute whether M. Santos-Dumont won the prize for sailing around the Eiffel tower or lost it by 40 seconds has nothing to do with the merit of his achievement. What he appears to have done, without dispute, is to have sailed his airship a distance of 3½ miles with the wind in a little more than 9 minutes, or at the rate of 23 miles an hour; then to have turned and driven his machine back to the starting point against the wind in 20½ minutes, or at the rate of about 13½ miles an hour. More than this, he landed without smashing things.

There is nothing in all this that establishes practical navigation of the air. M. Santos-Dumont's machine is a fragile affair, as big as a house, carrying only one man, the navigator himself, and unmanageable in a strong wind. But its performance is a decided advance on anything that has been done before.

As the opening year of the 20th century draws to its close we have other instances of notable progress in inventions looking to greater power for mankind. During the past few days a new system of wireless telegrephy has been exhibited in England, the invention of a Swede, following the suggestions of Tesla and Marconi, but using the earth for transmission instead of the upper ether. The reports tell of the conveyance not only of telegraphic signals but of telephonic conversation and even of motive power by this means. There, too, is Edison's new storage battery, of which little has been heard since its first announcement, but which, if it turns out as described, will work a revolution. And the century has just begun.

That Lame Back

You can hardly straighten up, the back feels so sore. There's a chance that it is kidney "trouble," and that is something which it is dangerous to neglect. The best medicine for disease of the kidneys is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The use of this medicine has resulted in some remarkable cures. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands, purifies the blood and relieves the kidneys from clogging impurities.

"I feel it my duty to let you know that I have recently advised a young gentleman who was suffering badly with kidney and bladder disease to try your 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Frank Startz, M. D., of Flatonia, Fayette Co., Texas. "He bought four bottles from our druggist here, and after he had used the first bottle he began to improve. Sometimes he was unable to walk ten steps; now he can ride any horse without any pain in his back and he looks as well and sound as a young boy. His age is only 28. He has suffered for nearly three years, and several other doctors called the case incurable, but I had confidence in Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I have been offered one hundred dollars several times already for my kind advice, but I would not accept it because I want everybody to know what Dr. Pierce's famous medicine can do.

"This testimony is absolutely true, and the reason I haven't mentioned the young gentleman's name is because he don't want to have his name published."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." The sole motive for substitution is to enable the dealer to make the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious preparations.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets stimulate the action of the sluggish liver. They should always be used with "Discovery" when there is need of a laxative.

FIRST "AMERICA" MAP.

Discovery of a Copy of Waldseemuller's Chart of 1507.

Father Joseph Fischer, S. J., professor of geography and history in the Stella Matutina school at Feldkirch in the Vorarlberg, says the New York Staats Zeitung, discovered last July two large maps by Waldseemuller in the library of Prince Waldburg-Wolfegg at Wolfegg castle. Each map is in twenty-four large folio sheets. One is entitled, "Universalis Cosmographia secundum Ptolemæi traditionem et Americi Vespucii aliorumque lustrationes" (Universal cosmography according to Ptolemy's traditions and the journeys of Americus Vespucius and others). The other is described as "Carta marina navigatoria, Portugallenses navigationes atque tocius cogniti orbisterre marisque formam naturamque, situs et terminos nostris temporibus recognitos et ab antiquorum traditione differentes, eciam quorum vetusti non meminerunt autores, hec generaliter indicat" (This marine navigating chart indicates generally the navigations of the Portuguese, and the form and nature of the whole known globe of land and of sea, the places and boundaries discovered in our times and differing from the tradition of the ancients, likewise those which old authors forgot).

In the "Cosmographia Universalis" we have luckily rediscovered Waldseemuller's map of the world of 1507, the existence of which at any time Nordenskjold, even in his "Periplus" denied emphatically. As it has, clearly marked, close to the tropic of Capricorn, the name America, which Waldseemuller, as is well known, first proposed in honor of Americus Vespucius in 1507, this is evidently the oldest map that bears the name America.

The "Marine Chart" was published first in 1516 by Martinus Waldseemuller and is of general interest, as it shows how Waldseemuller tried to do the injustice he had done to Columbus. For instance, on this map for "America" is substituted the name "Brasilia sive Terra Papagalli" (the land of parrots).

NEW BURLINGTON COMPANY

Thought to Be Part of the Hill-Morgan Plan.

Articles of incorporation of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway company have been filed in the county auditor's office in Burlington, Ia., says a dispatch to the New York Tribune. The capital stock of the new company is $100,000,000, and its object, as set forth in the articles of incorporation, is to acquire the Burlington system and other roads and to maintain a railroad in the states of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Montana, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The rumor is that the new corporation is merely the first step to put matters in shape for the transfer of the property to the Morgan-Hill syndicate.

According to the rumors that are floating around Burlington, but which cannot be verified, this corporation will take charge of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company and the many lines leased and controlled by the company and then transfer them altogether to the Morgan-Hill syndicate. This new corporation is legally entirely separated from the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company. The old company is incorporated under the laws of the state of Illinois, while the new one is controlled by the laws of the state of Iowa.

There is only one change in the name of the company—the old is a "railroad" company, the new a "railway" company.

Dr. Rixey's Advice to a Dyspeptic.

A Philadelphian who knew Dr. Rixey, Mrs. McKinley's physician, when he was a student in that city called on him in Washington and was invited to luncheon. The Philadelphian asked to be excused because of chronic indigestion, which prevented his eating luncheon. "Nonsense!" said Dr. Rixey. "I have asked you to luncheon because I want to give you a good lecture. You are suffering from restlessness, not dyspepsia. In the five minutes you have been sitting opposite to me you have looked at your watch four times, fumbled with the seal on your watch chain, twirled the handle of your umbrella when you didn't stop to run your fingers through your hair and have talked incessantly without having anything particular to say. You simply waste your nervous force. Learn to keep still when you can and not to bother yourself about trifles that do not concern you. If patients knew how to do nothing at the proper time, half the nerve doctors' occupation would be gone."

Wife Refused to Greet Him.

Can a wife rifle her husband's pockets and go on a pleasure trip with the money? Can she refuse to kiss her husband and still retain all wifely rights in the eye of the law? The Chicago courts must decide. Nathan Cahn of that city petitions for divorce from his wife, Lillian, on these grounds. When he was about to leave on a business trip last June, he offered to kiss her goodby. She said, "Cut that out; I can't forget you." When he returned, he tried to shake hands with her. "Oh, I'll take your word for that," she said.

Grandmother at Twenty-nine.

A grandmother at twenty-nine is the record of Mrs. James P. Carleton, the young wife of the ex-postmaster of Iowa Falls, Ia. She thinks she is the youngest grandmother in the northwest. Mrs. Carleton was married when eleven years old. A daughter was born, and this daughter in turn was married in her sixteenth year, and is now a mother.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

All sizes; all prices; one kind—the best.

AN OLD DEFALCATION

What Bank Examiner Found In Lowell Bank

MISSING $115,000 IN CASH

Was Taken "During the Past Two Years"—Lawyers Generally Think Bartlett Did Right In Acting as He Did For His Clients

Boston, Oct. 25.—The United States grand jury yesterday afternoon listened to evidence in connection with the cases of Louis H. Swift and Albert G. Smith, defaulting bookkeeper and teller respectively of the Merchants' National bank of Lowell. It is expected that the outcome of the testimony will be the issuance of an indictment warrant against the men, charging them with embezzlement and the abstracting of funds from the bank.

Judge Lilley, a director of the bank, was one of the witnesses. Subsequently he said to a reporter:

"All I can say is that when the doors of the bank were locked on Thursday last, everything was in perfect order, but when the vaults were opened Friday morning everything was in confusion. How the securities were stolen and then returned is now public property."

Mr. Lilley reiterated that the securities and cash amounting to nearly $1,000,000 were returned, and he emphasized the statement that a good portion of it was cash. Judge Lilley admitted that the bank received practically everything except about $115,000. "But," added the director, "that was the proceeds of an old defalcation."

"When was that committed?" queried the reporter.

"Bank Examiner Ewer says it took place during the past two years," responded Judge Lilley.

Many people have been criticising Charles W. Bartlett, the Boston lawyer, who, with a Lowell attorney, returned the funds to the bank in the interests of Swift and Smith. They are inclined to believe that it was Mr. Bartlett's duty instead of trying to settle up the affairs satisfactory to the defaulters and the bank officials to turn the men over to the police. Lawyers everywhere are interestd in the case and those in Boston think Mr. Bartlett did perfectly right acting as he did for his clients. One thing in connection with the return of the property that is not quite understood, however, is why the bank should have paid Mr. Bartlett's fee, as rumor has it the directors did.

Former Judge James R. Dunbar, who is counsel for the bank, believes Mr. Bartlett did exactly what he should have done under the circumstances. By so doing, Judge Dunbar says Mr. Bartlett prevented a terrible calamity to Lowell, for if the doors of the Merchants' National bank had not been opened on Monday morning, other financial institutions would have been seriously affected and might have had to close their doors.

Judge Dunbar in an interview further says:

"I think that the prevalent disposition of public opinion toward the directors of the bank is unfair. If they had failed to do what they did do, they would have been derelict in their duty. It was their bounden duty to get back those securities."

Stole Over a Million

Washington, Oct. 25.—The comptroller of the currency has received from Examiner Ewer a full report of the recent robbery of the Merchants' National bank of Lowell, Mass., by the late Teller Smith and Bookkeeper Swift, but declines to make the report public on the ground that reports of national bank examiners are confidential communications to the comptroller's office. The comptroller says, however, that the report shows that the teller and bookkeeper entered the bank during the night and abstracted $95,810 in cash, $808,239 of securities and $400,000 of collaterals. All of these securities and $92,000 of the cash were recovered through the counsel for Smith and Swift, and the only loss the bank appears to have sustained was about $115,000, which has been made good out of its surplus and undivided profits.

The examiner stated that no promise of immunity from punishment as a condition to the return of the cash and securities were made by the directors, and the facts have all been placed before the United States district attorney.

Bond May Be Void

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 25.—One of the latest phases of the Merchants' bank looting case is a report that a bond of $10,000 for Smith with a surety company has a clause providing against any negotiation with culprits in case of a robbery without the co-operation of the surety company. The point, if true, is important, as the penalty for such independent action is claimed to be the forfeiture of the bond.

TAX-DODGING STOPPED

Illinois Supreme Court Gives a Decision Against Big Corporations

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—The supreme court affirmed yesterday the decision of the lower court in the Chicago teachers' tax case, in which they insisted that the capital stock of corporations should be assessed. This ruling will add over $100,600,000 to the taxable property in Chicago.

The decision in effect awards a writ of mandamus against the state board of equalization to compel it to assess the capital stock, including franchises, of 20 Chicago corporations, the fair cash value of whose capital stock, including franchises over and above the value of their tangible property, is alleged to aggregate $235,000,000. The corporations directly effected include the street railway, telephone, and gas and electric light companies. This case was instituted by the state attorney of Sangamon county, at the instance of the Chicago Teachers' Federation. It was for a writ of mandamus to compel the state board of equalization to assess the foregoing corporations, which, it is alleged, have hitherto escaped taxation by the board. The court holds that the board, in assessing corporations, does not act as a board of review, but as an original assessor, and that the performance of its duty to assess the fair cash value of capital stock, including franchises to and above the value of tangible property, may be enforced by mandamus.

Survived Foolhardy Experiment

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Annie A. Taylor, 50 years old, went over Niagara Falls yesterday and survived, a feat never before accomplished. She made the trip in a barrel. She escaped without a broken bone, her only apparent injuries being a scalp wound, a slight concussion of the brain, slight shock to her nervous system and bruises about the body. Doctors say that though she is somewhat hysterical, her condition is not at all serious.

Difficulties Smoothed Over

New York, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Dan Hanna of Cleveland, who, with her three boys, went to Europe last summer, to prevent the serving of a writ requiring her to produce her children in court, returned yesterday with her children on the Deutschland. "I don't wish to talk about my personal affairs," said she, "beyond saying that I no longer fear for the safety and comfort of my three boys, who are to remain with me."

Missionaries Reach Brigands

Constantinople, Oct. 25.—The missionaries who are operating from Samakov, Bugaria, are at last in touch with the brigands who abducted Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka, according to dispatches received here, though, whether negotiations for the ransom have actually been opened is not disclosed. The missionaries on the spot are expected to conclude the business with the utmost despatch.

Monarch's Life In Danger

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—News has been received here from Teheran of the discovery of a serious plot against the life of the shah. The leaders of the conspiracy were the shah's two brothers, the grand vizier and the shah's son-in-law. The two brothers have been banished for life to Ardebil.

Panama Situation Unchanged

Washington, Oct. 25.—The navy department has received a mail report from Captain Perry, commander of the battleship Iowa, which is now watching over American interests in Panama, stating that affairs on the isthmus continue quiet and that there has been no material change in the situation.

Steward Was Drowned

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—Schooner Lida Fowler ran into the wreck of the sunken schooner Lavina Campbell in the Delaware bay yesterday and sank. All the crew except Steward Evans were taken off safely. Evans went below to get his clothing and the schooner capsized, drowning him.

Hammond Plant's Heavy Loss

Chicago, Oct. 25.—J. Standish, treasurer of the Hammond Packing company, whose plant was practically destroyed by fire at Hammond, Ind., puts the loss at $600,000 and declares that inability to fill orders for a few weeks will bring the total loss up to $1,000,000.

Deadlock Likely to Continue

Washington, Oct. 25.—Representative Bell of Delaware saw the president yesterday regarding the situation in his state. He is of the opinion that the deadlock in Delaware will continue and that the state will be unrepresented in the senate for the next two years.

Executions by Strangulation

Havana, Oct. 25.—Andres Rodriguez and Aniceto O'Farrill, negro murderers, were executed yesterday by the garrote. A fellow prisoner acted as executioner, receiving an ounce of gold for each execution, together with a reduction of six years in the term for which he was imprisoned. Death was apparently instantaneous.

Disastrous Prairie Fires

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 25.—Prairie fires have been raging in this state for the past few days and thousands of dollars worth of range hay has been destroyed, together with many ranch buildings.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

AS TANGLED AS EVER

Period of Anxiety For Fall River Operatives

REFUSAL OF AN INCREASE

Certain to Be Decided Upon by Manufacturers—Labor Leaders Say That Strike Will Follow—Conference Might Straighten Out the Matter

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 25.—A meeting of the executive committee of the Manufacturers' association will probably be held very soon, when the recent letter of the Textile Council asking for 10 per cent increase in wages will come up for discussion.

The only action that can be taken will be the refusal to grant the increase, and this will be embodied in a letter to the Textile Council. The executive committee has not the power to take any other action, in view of the fact that the manufacturers have signed an agreement not to advance at all in the present circumstances. Within the past few days all the manufacturers have repeated their statements that they cannot afford to grant the increase under existing conditions. The manufacturers are manifestly discouraged at the outlook and talk as if they believe the only hope lies with the operatives.

Labor leaders say that the whole matter of a strike is in the hands of the unions. They say they know the operatives will strike if the advance is not granted by Nov. 4. There is some talk of the state board of arbitration being called into the matter, but this board is not regarded with confidence by the unions of this city and there is considerable doubt expressed as to whether the operatives would accept a report from it favorable to the manufacturers.

If a strike is finally decided upon, both sides will lose more than they can gain in years if it lasts but a few weeks. The secretaries of the various unions refuse to talk on the matter at all. There is a strong disposition on their part to remain silent on the matter and allow the operatives to take whatever action they may see fit.

Some of the operatives who have studied the situation carefully are inclined to believe that the manufacturers are not wholly wrong. The margin between cotton and cloth at the present time is not looked upon as assured, and the reports of many of the mills at the annual meetings have shown what a poor year it has been. There is also a certain element among the operatives who believe that the advances which have been made will prove but temporary, in order to accomplish a certain definite purpose.

Labor leaders declare that the operatives will fight for the extra wage and in the opinion of many a labor struggle is imminent. As to whether there will be another conference is not known. It is very likely that both sides are willing to talk matters over and that some satisfactory conclusion might be arrived at in view of the present condition of affairs.

Calmly Stood Torture

Columbia, Miss., Oct. 25.—Bill Morris, a negro, who assaulted Mrs. John Ball, at Balltown, La., was burned at the stake yesterday. The negro made no outcry when the flames first reached him and only when he was partly consumed did the spectators notice any movement on the part of the wretch. He made no resistance when being bound to the stake and said that he deserved his fate.

Many Victims of Train Wreck

Ottumwa, Ia., Oct. 25.—Two people were probably fatally hurt, five were seriously and a number of others slightly injured yesterday in the wreck of a Chicago, Burlington and Kansas City passenger train near Exline. The train left the rails and plunged down a 40-foot embankment.

Anarchist Propaganda

Barcelona, Oct. 25.—Leading anarchists assert that committees throughout the world, representing 8,000,000 workers, are only waiting the signal to inaugurate the universal strike proposed by German workmen and approved by American and European committees.

Royalty's Visit Ended

St. Johns, Oct. 25.—At 11 o'clock last night the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall returned to the Ophir, where they expressed their extreme pleasure at the spontaneity and thoroughness of the reception given them here. The Ophir sailed for England at daylight today.

Goverment Interested In Labor

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The Prussian cabinet has resolved to investigate regarding the number of persons out of employment, the causes of recent industrial embarrassment and the measures necessary to improve conditions.

Good For Deer Hunters

Malone, N. Y., Oct. 25.—A heavy snow storm prevailed yesterday on the northern slope of the Adirondacks. This will afford an excellent opportunity for deer hunters who are on the ground.

Day of Execution Set

Albany, Oct. 25.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley, will be electrocuted at 7 a. m. on Tuesday, Oct. 29, at Auburn prison.

TASTES OF PORTO RICANS

Should Be Respected by Producers of American Goods

Boston, Oct. 25.—The Porto Rican delegates now visiting the United States in the interests of trade devoted yesterday to a visit to Lawrence. There they were received by the mayor and a delegation from the board of trade, and made an inspection of the Pacific mills—great plant, employing 5000 hands, with a weekly output of a million yards of cotton prints. Their delight and wonder at this great manufactory are best expressed by the words of Senor Wolff, who, after passing between measureless lines of noisy looms, exclaimed: "Why, that is life itself!—the impulse of the country—pushing along."

Among the visitors was one who represented especially the drygoods trade on the island—a trade hitherto supplied almost entirely from the European markets. This was Senor Rafael Fabian, of Fabian & Co., San Juan. To him the great mills were of marked interest, for from such as they he and others of his trade will now procure their goods.

But he begged—and the other delegates joined with him—for co-operation from the manufacturers of the United States. "You do not realize," said they, "what Porto Rica means to you. We do not come to you as beggars. You know that our market is yours, but you must not disrespect the peculiar fashions and tastes of the people. They will not take anything that is sent. If only you, with the merchants of Porto Rico, make a study of the market, you have it secure."

Old Inventor Dead

Boston, Oct. 25.—Edwin Brown, a famous piano maker, whose residence in Boston covered more than 80 years, died yesterday. He invented the pianoforte action used in grand pianos, and perfected a great many devices. Mr. Brown's death was hastened by a recent fall, although at 96 he had been vigorous. Two years ago he enjoyed bicycling, but of late walking was his liveliest exercise.

Threw Lighted Lamp at Mother

Chelsea, Mass., Oct. 25.—Joseph H. Crowley, aged 17, who threw a lighted lamp at his mother, Mrs. Annie Crowley, while intoxicated, was yesterday held for the grand jury under $2500 bonds. City Physician Guild testified that while Mrs. Crowley is improving physically, her mind has been so badly affected that she is now under treatment at an institution for the insane.

Murder Suspect In Court

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 25.—Demetrio Bagni, suspected of having murdered Mrs. Lizzie Ferroli, was before Judge Davis yesterday. The case was continued for two weeks. Bagni pleaded not guilty. It is understood that the postponement was asked for in view of evidence involving Ventura Guilaniello in the affair. Guilaniello is being searched for.

Rescued by Government Boat

Portland, Me., Oct. 25.—The U. S. S. Woodbury, while cruising to the eastward yesterday, fell in with the disabled schooner Centennial of St. John, from Parrsboro for Boston, loaded with spiles. The Centennial would doubtless have blown to sea but for the timely assistance rendered by the Woodbury, which brought her to this port.

Finding In Corrigan Case

New Haven, Oct. 25.—Coroner Mix has returned his finding in the case of the death of Edward F. Corrigan, the Yale law school student, for which Henry Sedley, a Sheffield scientific school freshman, has been held. The finding of the coroner is that Corrigan came to his death by the careless action of Sedley.

Hundred Counts Against Him

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 25.—An indictment charging embezzlement was returned yesterday by the grand jury against William H. Moore, formerly city clerk of Portsmouth. It is alleged that Moore took $1700 of the city's money. There are 100 counts in the indictment against him.

Despondent Man Used Razor

Lakeport, N. H., Oct. 25.—Charles Clark of Woodsville, while despondent for various reasons, cut his throat with a razor while visiting a relative, George Poore, last night. He was 65 years old, served in the Civil war, and came here from the Soldiers' home at Tilton yesterday.

Engineer Holt Bound Over

Trumbull, Conn., Oct. 25.—G. W. Holt, engineer of one of the freight trains in a recent disastrous collision, was arraigned here yesterday on the charge of manslaughter. He was bound over to the December term of the superior court in bonds of $1500.

Met With Foul Play

Concord, N. H., Oct. 25.—It has been determined that the death of Mrs. Charles Folsom, whose body was found beside the road with the skull crushed, in Boscawen, was due to murder and not accident, as was thought it might possibly have been.

No Evidence of Insanity

Boston, Oct. 25.—Dr. Jelly, the insanity expert, who recently made an examination of Benjamin Brown, the colored waiter who is charged with having murdered Mrs. Alice Crowell in July, reports the prisoner to be sane.

Good Afternoon.

Norfolk county has on several occasions shown its independence in voting. It is always in the Republican column at Presidential elections, and with two exceptions in the past twenty years it has given the Republican candidates for Governor handsome pluralities. During this period, however, the county has elected Democrats to office, and on two occasions at least has refused to replace a Democratic sheriff by regular Republican nominees in good standing. In 1889 the Republicans nominated J. Walter Bradlee of Milton to run against Augustus B. Endicott, but Sheriff Endicott was reelected by a plurality of 3,616. Again in 1895 the Republicans attempted to oust Mr. Endicott by nominating Abram C. Paul, but the former had a majority of over 3,500.

It may be that Norfolk County is more strongly Republican now than in 1889 or 1895, but no one expects that it will give 7,000 plurality as it did last year at the Presidential election. This year, like 1889, is the year following a Presidential election. In 1889 the Republican vote was 3,365 less than at the Presidential election of 1888; in 1897 it was 6,896 less than at the Presidential election of 1896. In 1900 the Republican vote was smaller than in 1896, and this year may fall short of the 10,001 in 1897.

On the other hand, the Democrats cast 7,922 for Bryan and 6,518 for Paine last year, and in 1892 rolled up 10,000 both for President and Governor. It is not improbable that the Democratic vote will gain rather than lose, and their total for Candidate Quincy for Governor may reach 7,000 or 8,000. With a plurality of but 2,003 to 3,000 Republican, it is apparent that a change of 1,000 to 1,500 Republican votes from Bowker to Wright, will defeat the former and elect Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, the Democratic and Independent candidate.

Henry H. Faxon, with over 100 tenements in this city, has only three houses to let. Up to recent date he deplored the fact that houses would not let, and was more or less discouraged with real estate, but since affairs have taken a turn, he is more bouyant. It speaks well for Quincy that there are so few vacant houses. The demand for houses with improvements, for moderate rents, is greater than the supply, and many new houses are really necessary.

Czolgosz will be electrocuted next Tuesday. This is prompt justice which meets with general approval.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ In spite of the fact that the new Russian fighting machine which has come from the Cramps' yard is a record breaker for speed and is supposed to be one of the best of her kind, the American navy has one or two that will be able to do battle with her if occasion should arise. — Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The bookkeeper and teller of a Lowell, Mass., bank, are missing, so, also, according to estimates, is about $90,000 of the bank's money. Probably the bank can afford to lose the money better than these men can afford to lose their reputations; a well conditioned bank, nowadays, has a surplus of funds; but who ever heard of a man who has a surplus of character?—Providence Telegram.

CONCERT AND DANCE

Annual Event of English Ivy Lodge a Good Success.

Hancock hall was well filled Thursday evening at the third annual concert and dance given under the auspices of English Ivy lodge, Daughters of St. George.

The society, as its name implies, is an English one, composed of those ladies who themselves or whose parents have left their native soil and made their home in America, whose doors are always open to welcome those who desire to become law abiding citizens. The organization therefore, keeps alive pleasant memories of childhood days, and gatherings like that of Thursday evening only tend to quicken that memory.

The concert which preceded the dancing was of a pleasing and entertaining nature. It opened with a selection by the Merrymount orchestra. Following this came solos by Fred Prout, J. Edward Green, Miss Mabel Hunter and Miss Lottie Barnicoat.

There was also fancy dancing by Miss Ethel Waite, Bessie Powers, Ida Wood and other pupils of Prof. Kaplin from Brockton and Quincy. The dance of the little tots was a rare treat and was greatly enjoyed.

It was 9.45 before the floor was made ready for dancing, and from then until 3 o'clock in the morning the merry dance held sway.

The ladies who composed the committees in charge were as follows:

Floor director, Mrs. Jeannie Spargo.

Assistant floor director, Mrs. Blanche Black.

Aids, Mrs. Elizabeth Spargo, Miss Lauretta Williams, Mrs. Russell Medlin, Mrs. Emma McEacherin.

Committee of arrangements, Mrs. Emma Newcombe, Mrs. Emily Higgs, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Ellen Prout, Mrs. Bessie Oswald, Mrs. Lizzie Johnson, Sec'y. of committee, Mrs. Elizabeth Lawry, President.

Reception committee, Mrs. Elizabeth Lawry, Mrs. Emma Lark.

Concert at Atlantic.

The people of Atlantic had an opportunity Thursday evening to enjoy a fine entertainment. It was a complimentary testimonial to Miss Edith W. Hatch, and her charming solos were enthusiastically received. Messrs. Hollis and Howard gave illustrated songs, and the former a solo, Fred D. Meloy was the accompaniest of the evening. The talk of Lieut. Reynolds on the Philippines was entertaining and instructive as it was richly illustrated. A few views of Japan and America were also presented.

Valley Forge Monument.

The monument erected at Valley Forge in memory of the soldiers who died there in the winter of 1777-78, and which was unveiled and dedicated by the Daughters of the Revolution, was designed and cut by Frederick Barnicoat of this city.

It is a handsome obelisk with a base ten feet square, and standing fifty feet high. On its base are two bronze panels, one representing a scene of camp life at Valley Forge, and the other the seal of the society. Above these are the original colonial flag with the thirteen stars which has been carved in the shaft.

The inscription reads "To the Soldiers of Washington's Army who sleep in Valley Forge 1777-78."

Hardy 55, fruit dish; Mrs. W. L. Jefferson 46, jardiniere; Mrs. R. M. Taylor 46, silver tray; L. M. Hardy 65, candelabra; G. R. Starky 47, tobacco jar; F. F. Grignon 45, match box. The parties are to be held every second, fourth and fifth Thursday during the winter.

BURGLARS ABOUT.

Man Discovered at Residence of Geo. H. Brown.

Escaped Hurriedly on a Bicycle.

Electric Light and Telephone Wires Disabled.

The residence of George H. Brown on Elm street was entered by burglars at an early hour this morning. It was between 3.30 and 4 o'clock that Mrs. Brown was aroused by the creaking of a board. She got up and stepped into the hall to ascertain the cause, and was surprised to see a man standing there in the act of turning off the gas which had been left burning. She shouted to Mr. Brown that there was a man in the house, but the fellow did not wait, but rushed out of the house.

Investigation showed that the fellow had evidently gained entrance through a cellar window which had been forced in, although an examination showed that an attempt had been made to force one of the windows on the street floor, and to turn the key in the door with a pair of nippers. It was also found that the fellow had evidently brought a bicycle up from the cellar and left it near the back door and that he had fastened this door open so that if discovered he would have an unobstructed line of escape. This precaution enabled him to make good his escape on the bicycle. Aside from the bicycle the only article taken was a new overcoat.

The floor of the cellar was covered with burned matches and the electric wire had been twisted off so as to prevent the lights from being turned on or the telephone being used. As nothing had been disturbed in the house it was apparent that the fellow had not had an opportunity to rummage around any before he was discovered. The precautions he took to make his avenue of escape clear lead the police to believe that he was no novice.

Held for Grand Jury.

Kenneth McLean, Herbert S. Dudley and Frank B. Gordon, the three young burglars arrested on Boylston place, Boston, a few days ago, and who have confessed to forty or more breaks, were brought to Quincy from Cambridge this morning and arraigned before Judge Avery upon two complaints, namely, breaking and entering in the night time the residence of Henry I. Hall at Quincy, and Robert L. Pond at Milton. They waived examination and were held in $1000 each upon each complaint for the grand jury.

The police also have warrants against them for breaking and entering the residences of Mary S. Taylor, John A. Duggan, Clara Howes, Adah F. Kendall and Henry O. Rideout, all in Quincy, but it was decided not to serve these warrants until they come before the grand jury.

School Attendance.

The average daily attendance at the public schools of Quincy for the four weeks ending Sept. 27 was 487 an average per cent. of 96 plus. The High led with 97.6 per cent. while the Coddington, John Hancock and Lincoln also had over 97 per cent. The Gridley Bryant had the fewest tardinesses, the High the least dismissals and eight schools no truants. The Superintendent's report:

Good Hunting.

Messrs. Merrill, Glidden and Batson, who went on a hunting expedition to Maine a little over a week ago, in a letter dated Oct. 21, say: "We are now about half way between Newportland and Kingfield, 120 miles from Portland. It took us two days to drive here, but we are being well rewarded for our trouble, as game of all kinds is plentiful. Yesterday we shot 7 rabbits, 10 partridges and one deer. Tomorrow we will confine our efforts to hunting deer. We are enjoying ourselves immensely. The nights are somewhat chilly, but we make a good fire outdoors and heat big stones on it, which we then put in the tent, and that makes the tents warm the remainder of the night. You may expect another letter soon."

—The state bath house at Revere Beach was patronized during the season just closed by 170,993 bathers, 62,720 of whom were females. The record shows an increase of 11.59 per cent. in the use of the bathing facilities over those of the preceding year.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcoming for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bounteous response?

(Signed) Timothy Reed,
Secretary Board of Trustees.

In Memoriam.

Headquarters John A. Boyd Camp, No. 2, L. S. W. V.

Comrades and fellow citizens:

We find it our sorrowful duty at this time to take cognizance of the tragic and premature fate which has befallen our late-brothers-in-arms, Capt. Connell, Maj. Griscom, the rank and file of Co. C, 9th U. S. Infantry, and in particular that of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpas, our fellow-townsman.

To show our appreciation of their heroic actions in the unfortunate engagement against overwhelming numbers at Balanbriga, island of Samar, Philippine Islands, we express our unbounded admiration of these same comrades; and although many homes will be left in gloom by reason of this fiendish massacre, we find consolation in the fact that they died, as they, the noble lived—always at their posts of danger and doing as is expected of every American soldier, his entire and individual duty.

This camp has placed the name of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus on its Roll of Honor, with the names of other dead comrades from this same vicinity. There it shall remain for all time as a shining example to all who may follow; and as a source of pride and glory, in the names and heroic deeds of those who sacrificed their lives in the support of their country and flag.

Ordered, that a copy of this memorial be forwarded to the family of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus and that one copy be also inserted in the daily newspaper.

Per order,
William E. Morrissey, Commander.
William J. Collagan, Adjutant.

JAMESON VS. BRYANT.

The Latter Opposed to All Recent Republican Administrations.—Questionable Appropriations.

Surely Mr. Bumpus is not the man to select a candiate for Mayor of the city. He can hardly claim to be a Quincy man, as he is abroad or in Boston much of the time and not in touch with the people of the city when here. Before his letter of Thursday appeared in print he had departed again for England and he will not be here to vote either in the caucuses or on election day. Mr. Bumpus makes a mistake when he states that Mr. Bryant is "a candidate for the office of Mayor." He is not. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination, and Republicans have a right to decide who shall be their candidate. Exceptions will be taken to the claims that Mr. Bryant is best fitted for the office.

Judge Bumpus was one of those Republicans we believe who bolted with Mr. Bryant the nomination of Charles L. Hammond for Mayor. Perhaps that canvass is the most important thing he remembers relative to Mr. Bryant. But the latter repented later and endorsed Mr. Hammond for postmaster and his first lieutenant Tobias H. Burke for assistant.

But the opposition of Mr. Bryant to Republicans candidates for Mayor and Republican Mayors begun in the fall of 1895 has continued since. He not only opposed Mr. Hammond in 1895 and 1896 but Russell A. Sears in 1897 and 1898 and Mayor Hall since. He has gone further than that, Mr. Bryant has championed the schemes of the administration of Mr. Keith, the Democratic Mayor, and it is reported that he would appoint to office if elected partisan Democrats.

Some one has said "Mr. Jameson has no claim to the nomination." We will touch upon that later, but the Democratic course of Mr. Bryant for the past six or seven years certainly does not give him any claim on the Republican nomination. He has a right to aspire to be Mayor and so has Mr. Jameson. The latter is a consistent, straightforwad Republican and therefore has a right to aspire for the Republican nomination. He has served two years in the City Council, several years on the Republican Ward and City Committee, and is today president of the City Committee. We have not heard that he makes any claim that the Mayoralty nomination belongs exclusively to him.

The claim has been made that the experience of Mr. Bryant has saved the city money, but when the City Council under his guidance appropriates every cent it can in the annual appropriation order; votes to go to the debt limit to make questionable appropriations, in many cases over the Mayor's vetoes; one is at a loss to understand the justice of the claim. On more than one occasion President Bryant cast the deciding vote for these appropriations and rendered questionable rulings. He favored the expensive Copeland street widening, and the loan was spread over 24 years so that the interest item alone amounts to about $12,000. He favored squandering $3,000 on Grove street. Instead of saving the city, the trades which he has favored have cost Quincy thousands of dollars.

Relative to the erection of the new schoolhouse at Quincy Point, where does the saving come in by going it blind? No careful estimate of the cost of a building can be made until plans are prepared, and no appropriation can legally be made until plans are approved. No money was lost on the Lincoln school plans, whatever may be said of the architecture or contract work. Where a city owns plans it can erect as many buildings from them as it wishes or make changes to suit the locality.

Mr. Bryant was also opposed to a reasonable appropriation last year for the maintenance of our public schools and favored a curtailment of the carefully prepared estimate of the School Committee, but not to effect a saving as additional items were inserted in the annual appropriation order to the full limit. By apparent collusion with the Finance Committee, questionable rulings and manœuvre, the Council was hoodwinked, and the estimate of the School Committee cut down, though later events proved that the estimate was warrantable and an aditional appropriation was necessary.

Those who think it singular that Ward Five has two candidates for Mayor, did not think it singular that Ward One had two candidates for the legislature, both last year and this year. Those who asked Mr. Jameson to resign as president of the Republican City Committee, have not asked Candidate McKnight to resign the secretaryship.

Mr. Jameson is honest and capable, and he would be a safe man at the helm of our city. His canvass has been honorable and clean. If he carries Ward Five as now seems probable, it will be a strong endorsement by his neighbors which will win support from other wards.

Republican.

Mayoralty Votes.

The total votes of the Republican and Democratic candidates for Mayor of the city, during the last seven years, have been as follows:

Year	Dem.	Vote	Rep.	Vote
1894	Hodges	1576	Moxom	1548
1895	Adams	1722	Hammond	1543
1895	Adams	1888	Hammond	1643
1897	Hodges	1526	Sears	1826
1898	Keith	1687	Sears	1741
1899	Keith	1636	Hall	1895
1900	Keith	1634	Hall	2036

Political Potpourri.

Ward One is now the largest ward of the city in voting strength, having passed Ward Three last year and Ward Four this year.

Any five Republicans can file nominations on Monday evening next for the Republican caucuses.

The nomination of John Everett of Canton for associate County Commissioner is above criticism and meets with the highest approval everywhere.

It may not be generally known that Paul R. Blackmur, the intimate friend of President Bryant, is associated with Judge Bumpus in his law office. This may have had something to do with the appearance of the Bumpus letter at this time.

This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

SCHLEY ON THE STAND

Tells of General Plan of Cuban Campaign

HE AGREED WITH SAMPSON

When Studying Military Situation of the Island—Says "Disobedience of Orders" Charge Can Be Easily Wiped Out

Washington, Oct. 25.—Admiral Schley yesterday took the stand in his own behalf at the court of inquiry which is investigating his conduct as commander-in-chief of the flying squadron during the Santiago campaign.

Admiral Schley began his testimony by relating the particulars of his taking command of the flying squadron at Hampton Roads, where, he said, "the general plan of campaign was thrashed out." He said that the captains of his squadron had diversified views and he resolved to take the helm himself. The question of torpedoes in the fleet was early discussed, and he decided the manner in which they should be cared for. Continuing, he said:

"I put the squadron immediately upon a war footing, established the matter of pickets and patrols and also the masking of lights which were under inspection on several occasions to ascertain how effective and complete it was. At first there was some fault found, later, the masking was absolutely complete so that it was impossible, when the ships were under way, in the column or line of battle, to distinguish any one at more than ordinary distance from it."

He had, he said, explained that it would be impossible to arrange a general plan of battle, but he had explained to his commanders that in a general way it was his idea "to attack the head and leading ship of the enemy attacking us and concentrate the fire upon her. "My reasons for this," he continued, "were twofold, the first being the moral effect upon the enemy and the second the confusion it would create. The older plans for naval attack were to attack the centre or rear of an enemy's fleet, which would result in the escape of some of the enemy's vessels. I felt that if we got the head we would get the whole. I think this plan was vindicated by the result of the battle some six weeks of two months later," he said, concluding this point.

He then related the details of the cruise to Key West, and his meeting there with Admiral Sampson. "The admiral was very much worn," he said, "and necessarily so because his responsibility had been great. He showed me a number of orders, one of which was for a division of the two squadrons, one to take the north and the other the south coast of Cuba, and he to have the preference.

"I asked which he preferred, and he expressed a preference for the Havana command. He told me confidentially that whichever command I should take, I must remember not to attack heavily fortified places on the shore until the Spanish ships were disposed, or that we must not risk our ships until the Spanish fleet was put out of the way.

"We discussed Cervera's probable destination. He said that his information was that the orders of the Spanish squadron to reach Havana or some other point within reach were imperative, and believed that Cienfuegos would be the point, as that came under acceptation of the order more directly. We looked over maps, and I agreed with him. I could not imagine that anyone who had studied the military situation of the island at all could have supposed that Santiago would have fulfilled any of the conditions of his instructions."

The admiral entered upon defense of his course by saying: "I was on the south side of Cuba, of course, invested, I thought, with entire responsibility. I was not in communication by teegraph. I did not know that we had secret agents in Havana. I did not know that there were any means of communicating with the insurgents. If that were known I should have known it also because I was acting in an entirely independent capacity, I may almost say. I could not be reached by telegrams and a good deal I did had to be left to guessing. Some times I guessed right, and sometimes I guessed wrong and I suppose, in the light of recent events, we are all liable to do that."

He related the incident of Captain Sigsbee's coming aboard the Brooklyn from the St. Paul, saying that the visit had impressed itself vividly upon his mind.

"I recollect distinctly," he said, "that he had on rubber boots and an old blockading cap, which we all wore more or less, and an ordinary blouse suit."

The admiral then proceeded to give the information which Captain Sigsbee had brought, prefacing what he had to say with the statement that he did not believe Captain Sigsbee would misstate anything for his commision.

"I do not believe," the admiral said, "that he is capable of stating what is not true. In this instance I think his recollection is at fault and not his veracity. I said to him: 'Captain, have you got the Dons here?' He said to me, 'No, they are not in here. I have been in very close.' He certainly said 'they are not here, they are only reported here.' I said to him: 'Have any of the other vessels seen them, the Yale or the Minneapolis?' He said, 'No, they have not. They have assured me so.' That was the assurance of such men as Wise and Jewell and Sigsbee."

Relating his interview with Pilot Nunez, Admiral Schley said that Nunez had expressed the ouinion that it would have almost been impossible for ships of the size of those of the Spanish fleet to enter the Santiago harbor, the pilot saying that the entrance was not only shallow, but tortuous.

Referring in a general way to Captain Sigsbee's visit Admiral Schley said: "My habit in life, not only in principal command of a squadron, but also in command of a ship, was to assume the responsibility and to venture the censure of any movement that might justify that, but that I was never willing under any circumstances to be a participant in glories I would not divide. That was the general principle upon which I acted in this matter. I did not call any council of war. The information which these people gave led me to infer that telegraphic information was a ruse precisely similar to that which was telegraphed from Cadiz that the squadron had returned from the Verde islands. That would have been my policy if I had not been in control and if any of us at any time made any mistakes during the campaign of Santiago or elsewhere it was in supposing that the Spaniards would ever do right at the right time. That probably was the only reason we made any mistakes that we did make. It would not have been wise for me to have uncovered Santiago. The military importance of that movement would have been to guard the westward, as that would have been the only place they could have gotten in behind. As those in the interior had an absolute control of the entire lines our movements every minute of the day were known in Havana."

Admiral Schley explained his retrograde movement, so called, to the westward, saying that he had not considered the economical aspect of this step, as the economical features could never be taken into consideration in military movements. He had, he said, made careful inquiry as to the coal supply of the various ships and had turned over in his mind the question of their endurance in battle.

Referring to the arrival of the Harvard, the witness spoke of the discrepancy in the report as to the information which Captain (now rear admiral) Cotton of that vessel had brought aboard the Brooklyn. He said that the dispatch which Cotton had brought aboard said that the department's advices indicated that the Spanish fleet was at Santiago.

Continuing, he said: "Captain Cotton said he delivered a dispatch to me from Admiral Sampson stating that they were there. That dispatch never reached me. Neither my first lieutenant, neither my flag lieutenant nor my secretary ever saw it or can remember it, and it is a little strange that three persons who had access to my papers at all times should have failed to remember a dispatch of that importance. So it is a mistake. I never saw it. I don't remember it. I have no recollection of it, nor of a good many things which I have heard during the investigation."

Discussing again his dispatch to the department, concerning the department orders, the admiral said: "If my reply to the telegram of the secretary of the navy is not on record, I would like to put it there in the terms I sent it, because I wrote it in English, gave it to Captain Cotton and asked him to turn it into cipher and confirmed it afterwards in a letter to the department, which was received. The dispatch is here and has been in the department for nearly three years. I don't believe for one moment that in the translation of it there was any intention to mutilate it, but I think, in the choice of words which were not exactly of the same meaning, the dispatch did not get to the department entirely as I intended it should. Upon this dispatch is based the charge of disobedience of orders, and I think that this dispatch, read and interpreted as sent, will relieve that charge."

In response to a request from Mr. Rayner for the exact wording of the sentence in the dispatch in dispute, Admiral Schley gave it as follows: "It is to be regretted that the department's orders cannot be obeyed, earnestly as we have all strived to that end." This he said, was the authentic version of the sentence and was as he sent it.

The admiral was in the midst of his discussion of "disobedience of orders" dispatch when the old clock in the court room struck 4 and Admiral Dewey announced the adjournment for the day.

The admiral was calm and collected throughout the time that he sat in the witness chair, and he spoke in tones which, while not loud, were so distinct that his words were easily heard.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

of cod-liver oil is the means of life, and enjoyment of life to thousands: men women and children.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food, when you hate it, and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample. Its agreeable taste will surprise you.

NEW GERM IS FOUND.

Discovery May Explain Cause of McKinley's Death.

IT IS A GAS FORMING BACILLUS.

Such Was Noted In the Culture Taken From the Late President's Wound—The Discovery of the New Germ Was Made by a Vienna Bacteriologist.

Professor Gussenbauer, a prominent surgeon at the Vienna university, says the Vienna correspondent of the New York Sun, has announced the discovery of a new bacillus. In a lecture recently he said he had noticed that several operations during which asepsis and antisepsis were carefully watched had not resulted as favorably as anticipated, the process of healing being hindered by so called gas abscesses in the wound.

Bacteriological investigation showed that a new bacillus was the cause. The peculiarities of this organism are that it develops only when oxygen is excluded and generates gases during its growth. The same bacillus was then found on the ceiling and walls of the operating room.

In this connection it is interesting to note that in one of the cultures taken from President McKinley's wound a "gas forming germ of unknown identity" was found.

The Medical Journal of New York publishes in detail the report of the surgeons who attended the late President McKinley, but with its main features the public has already been acquainted through printed summaries of addresses of Drs. Mann and Mynter.

The official reports of the autopsy and the bacteriological examination are, however, of timely interest. The autopsy report is signed by Dr. Harvey R. Gaylord, pathologist to the State Pathological laboratory. Dr. Gaylord says that the search for the bullet was most thorough and painstaking, but in spite of all efforts it could not be found. The autopsy had to be discontinued because the time allotted to it by the family of the late president had already been exceeded. Dr. Gaylord adds:

"As we were satisfied that nothing could be gained by locating the bullet, which had set up no reaction, search for it was discontinued."

Examination of the heart muscle showed that it was affected with well marked fatty degeneration and in some places the muscle fibers showed groups of dark brown granules, demonstrating a diseased condition of the cardiac muscle.

Dr. Gaylord believes that the repair to the stomach wounds had been effective and that the gangrene around these wounds does not seem to have been the result of any well defined cause. He attributes the gangrenous condition of the tissues solely to lowered vitality in the parts. The appearance of the gangrenous tissues, he says, shows that the gangrene took place shortly before death.

There was no leakage of pancreatic fluid into the surrounding tissues. The extensive gangrene of the pancreas seems to have been an important factor in the case, however, Dr. Gaylord says, though it has never been shown how much of this organ must be destroyed to cause death. The diseased condition of the heart muscles shows why the pulse was so frequent and why it did not respond to stimulation at the critical time.

The report of Dr. Matzinger, the bacteriologist, says that a culture taken from the wound during life showed several varieties of germs, but such a showing is rather expected in such cases. There were present two of the ordinary germs of suppuration and one gas forming germ of unknown identity. As the result of an examination of various tissues and fluids removed postmortem in very small samples, Dr. Matzinger concludes that "the absence of known pathogenic bacteria, particularly in the gangrenous cavity, warrants the conclusion that bacterial infection was not a factor in the production of the condition found at the autopsy."

A chemical analysis by Dr. Hill of the remaining bullets and of the contents of the cartridge chambers in the assassin's pistol shows no poisonous material, thus disposing of the theory of a poisoned bullet.

Duties of Secretary of State.

The secretary of state's duties are more ceremonious than those of any other cabinet member, says a writer in The Ladies' Home Journal. At the New Year's reception he presents the entire diplomatic corps to the president. He then returns to his own home and entertains the corps—with its dukes, marquises, counts, viscounts, barons and other nobles—at a magnificent luncheon. With great ceremony he will from time to time personally introduce to the president all new diplomats accredited to this country. He reserves one forenoon in each week for the reception at his office of ministers and charges d'affaires. He also attends to the correspondence between the president and the emperors, kings, sultans and other rulers of foreign states. When a royal child is born, he frames a letter of congratulation to the parent. When a royal personage dies, it is he who dispatches this nation's formal message of condolence. A clerk in the state department copies these polite missives upon large sheets of gilt edge paper in a faultless copperplate hand. A messenger takes them to the White House for the president's signature. They are then returned to the secretary of state, who seals them with the great seal of the United States.

The Social Realm.

To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable and wealthy not rich; to listen to stars and birds, babes and sages with open hearts; to study hard; to think quietly, act frankly, talk gently, await occasions, hurry never; in a word to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common — this is my symphony.

END OF THE YACHTING SEASON.

Boats Hauled Out at Wollaston Beach

By the Assistance of Volunteers.

A Summer Experience of Skipper in Hull Bay.

Many of the boats at Wollaston were hauled out this week.

On Monday evening, Mr. Newman, the popular janitor of the Wollaston Yacht Club, had a volunteer crowd of twenty-three take his 17 footer out and put her safely in his back yard. Refreshments followed.

The Hayden boys also put their 32 foot sloop on her cradle Monday night. They did not have to beg for help.

Tuesday evening the regulars put the Ziska (owned by Mr. Teel,) onto "Jim" Smith's "old" truck and hauled her up Beach and Hamilton streets to Mr. Teel's back yard. Hot coffee and doughnuts.

Wednesday night, "Al." Shay used the same truck to put his Sea Gull where he wanted to work overtime. "Al." didn't have to go gunning to find help. The usual treat followed.

It might be said here that when "Al" plays pool at the club house his audience are always kept in good spirits with his brilliant shots, and are sent home with pains in their sides from laughing at his witty sayings and the jollying he gives his opponents while playing, all of which is taken in good part by the latter.

It is a fact that "Al" plays a good game of pool, tells a good story, wipes a good joint, and does many other things up to date, but it was reported lately that when it comes to letting his sails down on the run and throwing his anchor overboard alone in a gale of wind, that he is only human.

The scene was in Hull bay. "Al" was alone, the wind was blowing "great guns," he wanted to stop, but she would not do so by him saying whoa! So "Al" started to haul down the jib. That piece of canvas rebelled and stuck half way down. By that time the main sheet had moved and the boom ran out almost paralell with the bowsprit. "Al" was struggling with the anchor, and when about to cast it, to save himself from falling, he essayed to grasp a shroud, but missed it, and the result was he with the anchor went overboard. He went to the bottom with it. He thought, now this anchor cost me $1.50 and I can't afford to loose it and my rubber boots cost $3.50 and I can't get to the surface with the boots and anchor, so he sat down on the anchor and thought the matter over and and concluded to make two trips of it. He came to the surface and found the boat had blown off about 50 feet, he pulled on the rope line but was getting no nearer to the Sea Gull.

It suddenly came to his mind that the other end was at the bottom of the coil and not made fast to anything. Horrors! He was getting weak, his boots were full of water, his strength was fast failing him. He however pulled on the line hoping against fate that it would catch on something.

He pulled on; the line yielding to every pull; the little islands in the bay began to dance up and down, the sea turned black. His boots grew heavier no one in sight to render aid, should he swim back and sit on the anchor and die, and entwine his arms about the sailor's emblem to mark his last resting place on earth?

No, he would make one more grand effort. He did, and to his half dimmed senses he felt the line pull taut, his vision grew brighter, the water seemed to run out of his boots. the last foot of the line had caught on a cleat. What joy! He pulled himself on board and faintly murmured, I have saved my anchor and my boots. Then he fainted.

When he came to, the first words he spoke was not, "where am I," but "I don't care if I do take a little more."

He found himself on board of a small naptha launch and among hospitable people. After a rub down and a change of clothing, he was put ashore and took the train for home.

The next day he went down and got his anchor, O yes, and he brought his boat back too.

Steamers in Winter Quarters at Hanley's.

Including Cape Cod and the Electra.

Topedo Boat Destroyer Lawrence on Marine Railway.

The yachting season for this year is about at an end. Some skippers keep their yachts in the water as long as possible as they find them very convenient for smelting. The great majority of them however have given up yachting until next year, and already have their boats in winter quarters.

The best place for winter quarters is undoubtedely at Hanley's, where there is an enclosed basin capable of holding many boats. He also has unsurpassed facilities for hauling boats out of the water, and it is therefore no wonder that many seek him out. A visit to his works will furnish ample proof for already a large number of steamers and smaller boats have been put into winter quarters in his basin. Among these are the steamers Cape Cod, of the Plymouth line; the steamer Electra, of the Houghs Neck line; the Eleanor May, which was to run to Quincy Point; and the steam yachts Uvira, Idala, Viola, Kasagi, Valthra and Ella.

Of the sailing craft there is the Calypso, the champion twenty-five footer; Addie the old Cape champion; Eleanor, Areyto, Alykris, Askbinquid, Viking III, Non, Little Admiral, Palmeto, Bohemian, Chieftian, Redskin, Nacketa, Princess, Magnolia, Signorina and Wizard.

The torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence is also hauled up on the marine railway being made ready for another trial. Nearby there has been erected a new building for the storage of small boats.

As far as new work is concerned, the only thing underway is a 50-foot oyster boat, he keel of which was laid yesterday.

A number of the smaller craft are also hauled up at Lelois' yard and among them are the Alpha, Gypsie, Eryx, Canacum, Wildfire, Dolphin, Sphinx, Brant, Eric C., Edith, Fleet Wing, Winnetka, Claytonia, Autocrat, Laona and Sea Pearl.

Rev. D. M. Wilson.

The Quincy friends of Rev. D. M. Wilson, former pastor of First church, and now of Brooklyn, N. Y., may be interested to know about his illness, rumors of which have reached Quincy.

He was taken ill about five weeks ago and after two weeks of illness at home, was taken to Seney hospital for an operation.

The operation revealed a large abscess on the liver. The case was complicated by some other disturbances, which has made it more serious and of longer duration than it would otherwise have been. The physicians are all delighted with the strong constitution and recuperative powers and the fine and strong heart action which Mr. Wilson has displayed through the entire illness, and which are standing him in good stead at this critical time. He is still at the hospital, and it is hoped that the improvement upon which he has now seemed to start is going to prove a permanent one.

THE LENGTH OF TIME.

Sixty questions make an hour,
One for every minute,
And Neddy tries, with all his might,
To get more questions in it.

Sixty questions make an hour,
And as for a reply
The wisest sage would stand aghast
At Neddy's searching "Why?"

Sixty questions make an hour,
And childhood hours are brief,
So Neddy has no time to waste,
No pauses for relief.

Sixty questions make an hour.
Presto! Why, where is Ned?
Alas, he's gone and in his place
A question point instead!
—Priscilla Leonard in Churchman.

LIGHTSHIP No. 4

By M. Quad.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

One day 30 years ago it was reported to the Trinity board, which has charge of all the lights on the coast of Great Britain, that a shoal had made in the English channel about nine miles due east of the Lizard. At the spot indicated there had been 30 fathoms of water ever since a British ship went to sea, and the board of course argued that there had been a mistake. It was a fishing craft which reported the shoal and found only 14 feet of water over it, and a craft was sent out at once to make an official investigation. What had happened was this: It was a bowlder strewn bottom, and two or three old wrecks had drifted together and piled up on each other until a dangerous obstruction had been formed. It was as if a great rock had suddenly been heaved up from the bottom, and the board must guard against the danger without delay.

Thirty years ago the diver's dress was not what it is now, nor could men handle explosives under water as today. After two or three vain attempts to clear away the wrecks the work was left for a storm to accomplish, and meanwhile lightship No. 4 was moved around from Mount's bay and anchored near the spot and notice given to mariners. Captain Crox had been in command of No. 4 for two years, having three men under him, and no change was made in the crew. He was called a reliable, steady going man, and his men were steady, sensible fellows. The change was not one to rejoice over. No. 4 was a stout hulk of about 800 tons burden, with a comfortable berth for a crew, but out there the water was in constant motion, and the danger of collision at night or during a fog was something to harass the mind. It happened to be fairish weather for the first three days, but on the fourth a gale sprang up, and the hulk was set bouncing in a terrible way. It wasn't that the sea was so heavy, but that the waves swirled around the old wrecks in such a way as to produce a cross sea and a terrific jumble, and the groaning, straining hulk seemed to be bobbing about on a bed of yeast.

The watches were divided so that two men were on duty for four hours while the other two slept. That night it was the captain's watch from 8 till midnight. There was but little to be done after the lights were displayed. A lookout was kept, and port fires and rockets were at hand to warn vessels away and signal the shore. The gale had piped up strong, with a drizzle of rain and a dark night, and one could not have been more uncomfortable off the cape in a winter's gale. It had come 10 o'clock when a sudden hail reached the lightship. The captain was aft and his mate forward, but he knew at once that the hail came from seaward. It was not so dark but that one could have seen a ship 300 feet away, even though she had no lights aboard.

As soon as port fire was ignited the sea lighted up for hundreds of feet around in a ghastly way, and both men looked for the craft they supposed to be near by. They looked in vain until the signal was nearly finished. Then a ship's yawl, driving right up in the teeth of the gale, hove into view. She was without mast or sail or oars, and the only figure in her sat in the stern sheets, and his arms and legs were bound around with ropes. The man was bareheaded and dressed as a landsman, and as he drove past within 20 feet of the rail they had a look square into his eyes, and the agony on his face made them shudder. They started to throw him a rope, but as the coil swung in the air they remembered that, being bound, he could make no use of it. The yawl and the man went straight to windward and in a couple of minutes were out of sight, and the men found themselves all a-tremble. Captain Crox was full of indignation over the crime of sending a man afloat in that manner and of pity for the victim when his mate touched him on the arm and shouted in his ear:

"If I was ashore, captain, all the money in England would not bribe me to set foot on this deck again."

"What's the matter with you?" was called in reply. "It's only a bit of shore villainy that we must report to the tender."

"It's nothing that's happened ashore, sir. Did you take notice that the craft was driving right in the teeth of the gale? It wasn't a live man in that boat. She was going to windward with a ghost, and I'd give the bit I have in the bank if I'd not seen her."

The captain would have given the man a good dressing down for his silly notions only that the boat had actually been heading to windward in the teeth of a gale which no ship could have made an inch of way against. Being positive of this and not being able to explain it, he could say little or nothing. It was agreed between them, however, that nothing should be said to the other watch when it turned out, and they went on duty without knowing that anything out of the way had happened. While carrying the affair out with pretended indifference, Captain Crox was, as a matter of fact, pretty thoroughly upset over it, and on turning in he found that he could not go to sleep. He had been lying in his bunk and turning the matter over in his mind for an hour or so and the gale was still howling and the lightship bouncing about when he realized from the movements of the watch that they had been hailed. He was out of bed and on deck just as one of them had lighted a port fire, and you can judge of his feelings when he saw the former scene reacted. There were the yawl and the man, and the boat slowly forged past and disappeared to windward. Three pairs of eyes saw her this time, saw the bound victim and the terror and despair on his face, and it was absurd to think it a delusion. The lightship had been hailed, as before, and one of the watch had thrown a rope which landed fairly across the yawl.

There was no more sleep for any one aboard No. 4 that night, and next day when the gale broke and the tender came alongside all demanded to be put ashore at once. The captain was as badly rattled as any of the others. They were guyed and ridiculed, of course, but they stood so firm that the tender brought off another crew, and they were relieved from duty. They were no sooner ashore than they got the bounce. Trinity board wanted no old women or children in its service. The story got into the papers, and the men were a laughing stock for a week. At the end of that time there was another gale, and the man and the boat appeared to the new crew twice in the same night and drove them ashore, as they had the old.

A third crew went out, and for two weeks the weather was fine, and the board began to prepare to remove the wrecks. Some progress had been made when a three days' gale set in from the north, and there were more wrecks than had been known for ten years before. For two days the lightship hung to her anchors, though having a signal of distress out after the first day, but when the gale abated she had disappeared. She had been swept down channel and out to sea and a week later was passed bottom up more than 300 miles away. The same storm broke up and removed the wrecks, and there was no longer need of a light at the spot. Trinity board would have none of the men back, though there were eight of them to tell the same grewsome story, but none of them repined overmuch. They had been driven ashore by a specter, but it had been a warning to save them from the fate that took the last quartet.

A Sailor's Premonition.

In his autobiography, "A Sailor's Log," Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans relates a strange instance of premonition which a fellow sailor had the night before the attack on Fort Fisher, in January, 1865. He says:

"We had on board the Powhatan a fine young seaman named Flannigan, who came from Philadelphia. On the night of the 14th of January he came to my room with a small box in his hand and said to me, 'Mr. Evans, will you be kind enough to take charge of this box for me—it has some little trinkets in it—and give it to my sister in Philadelphia?' I asked him why he did not deliver it himself, to which he replied, 'I am going ashore with you tomorrow and will be killed.' I told him how many bullets it required to kill a man in action and in other ways tried to shake his convictions, but it was no use—he stuck to it. He showed no nervousness over it, but seemed to regard it as a matter of course. I took the box and, after making a proper memorandum, put it away among my things.

"On the afternoon of the next day when we were charging the fort and just as we came under fire at about 800 yards I saw Flannigan reel out to one side and drop, the first man hit, with a bullet through his heart. I stepped quickly to his side and asked if he were badly hurt. The only reply was a smile as he looked up into my face and rolled over dead. The box was delivered as he requested."

Tart Honey.

A small stingless bee is found in the state of Sinaloa and in Tepic. The honey of these bees is not great in quantity, is dark colored, very liquid and is said not to crystallize. Another peculiarity of the honey is that it has a decidedly sour or tart taste, and on this account it is much sought after as being a greater delicacy than the sweet honey of the tame bee. The reason these bees are small producers is that, as they are stingless, they are constantly robbed by the larger varieties, the tame bee being one of the robbers.

THE BISHOPS' APPEAL.

Episcopal Pastoral Letter Urges Political Awakening.

TOUCHES ON M'KINLEY'S DEATH.

Declares That President Was Slain by "the Spirit of Our Age"—Danger of Political Indifference and Lawlessness—Sunday Sports, Notably Golf, Strongly Condemned.

The pastoral letter of the bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church, issued at the close of the triennial convention just held at San Francisco, touches at length upon social and political conditions and says in part:

Perhaps we may describe the chief hindrance in the way of the kingdom's advancement in our time, as indeed it has been in every period of the church's history, as the zeitgeist, the spirit of the age, the very atmosphere in which we must have our life.

Because that spirit changes, because that enfolding atmosphere is different now from any that before did encompass Christian warriors, therefore it is that the new dangers are apparent and new methods of warfare must be employed.

But we must bid you note and strive against the last and most evil result of our age—tendency in the reckless spirit of individual license, the caricature and contradiction of that ideal of personal liberty which the church has created and perpetuated among men.

The man who derides the revealed foundation of all ethical obligation is the easy victim of the devil's delusion that self interest is the sole motive of human action and self advancement the only test of moral conduct.

And, finally, the defiant denial of the God who ordaineth finds culmination in the assertion that there shall be no longer powers of human government to whom in superstitious faith obedience has been rendered, and anarchy is here as the legitimate offspring of unbelief.

The crime at Buffalo a month ago, by which the head of our nation was taken away, was but the natural fruit of this tree of God defying denial. The great and good president was slain by the spirit of our age.

We must recognize that this awful crime, thrice repeated within forty years, is the offspring of the spirit of lawlessness, full grown to maturity and of malevolence, and that other children of this same evil spirit are close about us on either hand, themselves the strength of the family of lawlessness, who make possible and certain these giant monsters whose deeds of violence have shocked our souls. The failure of the citizen of a republican government to do his duty in the endeavor to elect honest and true men to the offices of that government is the earliest political manifestation of this pernicious life.

The citizen who first selfishly refuses his civic duty and then in natural descent along the easy path becomes the giver of bribes and the corrupter of his fellows is himself degraded more and more in the process, and the bottom is found when civic rights and civic righteousness are alike forgotten, when duty to his neighbor demands performance, when protection to weakness, the equality of free men, the conservation of honesty, are no longer the ends of government, but only the securing of peculiar privileges for a class, the comfortable enjoyment of a protected license, when duty to man is forgotten because duty to God is denied.

One other matter your bishops feel called upon to mention in this connection, and that is the growing disregard of the sanctity of the Lord's day. That such disregard is increasing among confessed disciples of the Lord cannot be denied.

The luxurious Sunday evening banquet of the rich and the pleasure loving is a dishonor to the risen Lord in whose honor the church has set the day apart, and the appropriation of its sacred hours for the accomplishment of a long journey by the busy traveler because the week's hours are all too few for his many engagements is a robbery of God, who from Sinai demanded consecration of our time to his remembrance and worship and placed the law of the Sabbath in the midst of the moral commandments of perpetual obligation.

Far less worthy of condemnation in the eyes of the All Wise and All Merciful, we can but believe, is the Sunday outing of the perhaps overworked artisan, who from Monday morning till Saturday night never sees his children save when they are asleep, and yet we are persuaded that he may be taught that fuller happiness shall be his if he shall have led his children to God's house and worship before he carries them to green fields and romping holiday.

But it is a shame, and only a shame, because no excuse can be found for it in the condition of our life, that golf grounds shall be crowded on Sunday afternoons; that servants shall be denied their due and well earned rest day; that the beasts in our stables shall know no Sabbath because the athletes, men and women, must be driven in cushioned comfort to the scene of their Sunday sports and, returning, have their wearied frames refreshed and feasted.

Child Held For Board Bill.

Vice Chancellor Pitney at Jersey City has granted a writ of habeas corpus ordering Margaret Dwyer and her husband, Philip Dwyer, to produce in court Mary Rolker, the four-year-old daughter of Frederick Rolker. Counsel for Rolker said Mrs. Dwyer was holding the child as security for a board bill of $99 for the child's maintenance.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 27—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Bible reading. "I will make it the rule of my life to read the Bible every day."—II Tim. iii, 1-17.

The Christian Endeavor movement has done nothing more worthy of lasting praise than its work in reference to the Bible. It has revolutionized Bible reading with many who were Christions before they became Christian Endeavorers. It has caused the Bible to become most precious to many who scarcely ever looked at it before they pledged themselves to read it every day. This clause of the pledge has resulted in no end of good, and even after 20 years too much emphasis cannot be placed upon it. It has resulted in a tremendous impetus being given to daily Bible reading, and this was and is much to be desired.

The importance and necessity of daily Bible reading should scarcely need to be impressed upon Christian people, and yet, sad to say, it does need to be. The Bible is not read daily as it ought to be. Daily Bible reading is even more neglected than daily prayer. In infancy and childhood we are taught to pray unto God daily, and that habit is seldom ever given up, even though we may wander far away from God. But how few children are taught to read the Bible daily! Alas, how few Christian parents read the Bible daily themselves! Yet what better inheritance could we give our children than the habit of daily communion with God through His word? Timothy had been trained in the word of God from childhood, and when he became a man he continued in the things which he had heard, which made him wise unto salvation. So should all God's children be taught, and so should they continue when they have come to manhood and womanhood.

Daily Bible reading is commended in the Scriptures and the blessings of it emphasized. In Num. vi, 6-9, the people of God are practically enjoined to constantly be in touch with His word, to teach it diligently, to make it the subject of conversation and of thought at home and abroad, in lying down and in rising up. Everywhere and always necessarily include each day. The psalmist says of the blessed man that "his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in His law doth he meditate day and night." Paul declares that the Bereans were more noble than the Thessalonians "in that they received the word with all readiness of mind and searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so."

How can we neglect daily Bible reading? The Bible is the inspired, infallible word of God. It presents to us Jesus Christ, the bread and water of our spiritual lives. It is "the sword of the Spirit," by which alone we can overcome the temptations that daily and hourly come to us. We need it every day. It will help us every day. It makes us "wise unto salvation through faith, which is in Christ Jesus." It "is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a testimony meeting in which each one testifies as to the helpfulness of daily Bible reading.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. vi, 6-9; Ps. i, 1, 2; xix, 7, 8; cxix, 97-112; Isa. xxxiv, 16; Luke iv, 16-21; xxiv, 13-27; John v, 39; Acts, xvii, 10, 11; Eph. vi, 17; Heb. iv, 12.

Do Not Despond.

Do not despond. However rough and uneven the crossings of your earth life may seem, you must look forward to a pleasant harbor at the termination of your journey. You will then be repaid for all obstructions. We are walking in darkness now, but then we shall see clearly. We can take a glance in the mirror of the past and notice that we have often taken the wrong path. The present is hastily glanced at, but the mirror of the future no eye can gaze in, no hand can grasp, but the hand of time. He alone holds the key that will unlock the door. Meanwhile you must cultivate faith, trusting that your darkness will be made light in the day of His appearing.—Religious Telescope.

Christian Contentment.

Christian contentment creates cheerfulness of mind and brightens every condition in life. It secures the divine favor, love and blessing. It fosters conscientiousness, conserves morals and delivers from numerous temptations and ills. Thus viewed it is a prize worthy of every honest effort, a golden crown which should circle every brow, a glory which should adorn every character and a treasure which should enrich every life.—Presbyterian.

God and Daily Life.

He who never connects God with his daily life knows nothing of the spiritual meaning and uses of life—nothing of the calm, strong patience with which ills may be endured; of the gentle, tender comfort which the Father's love can minister; of the blessed rest to be realized in His forgiving love, His tender fatherhood; of the deep, peaceful sense of the Infinite One ever near, a refuge and a strength.—Dean Farrar.

Life and Death.

Life is a lute. The many strings thereof
Are tuned by sorrow and by happiness,
On which the fingers of the Spirit press
And wake their muted music. It is love
And memory that broodeth like a dove,
That sing their fond accompaniments the while—
One with a tear, the other with a smile;
One born on earth, the other born above.
And when our hearts to love's melodious breath
Beat time no more shall all to death belong
And faith and hope be theme for scorn and laughter?
Nay, nay. Life only lieth mute, and death
Is but a bar of rest betwixt the song
We have sung here and we shall sing hereafter.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

Turkish Bed Couches.

We all remember the old style Bed Lounge, hard, uncomfortable, not pleasant to sleep on and difficult to keep in a sanitary condition. For years it has fulfilled its mission, but now gives way to the modern bed couch. Contrast if you will the difference. The new couch, all iron frame with luxurious spring and comfortable mattress. In the day time, a handsome couch with loose Turkish cover draped on. At night, a full sized bed, that invites rest and insures sleep. Bed clothing may be kept on the couch beneath the Turkish cover in the day absolutely obscure. It takes just two seconds to transform your couch into a bed. The price is within the reach of everyone.

PURSES AND CHATELAINES.

PRETTY GIFTS WHICH ARE NEARLY ALWAYS ACCEPTABLE TO WOMEN.

How to Make Handsome Holiday Souvenirs Which Would Cost In the Shops Many Times the Value of the Materials.

Handsome purses, shopping bags and chatelaine bags are always acceptable gifts for women. If one's circle of acquaintances is large enough to admit it, a dozen handsome purses, pocketbooks, chatelaine or shopping bags may be bought at wholesale. The cost will thus be at least a quarter less than it would have been if the articles had been bought at retail. A half dozen clasps and chains for homemade bags and purses can also be bought at wholesale.

Beaded and crocheted purses are constructed of silk, on whose strands beads are strung. A bead is slipped into the stitch wherever the pattern requires it.

A BEADED CHATELAINE BAG.

For a crocheted dark green silk purse a gold purse top and gold beads are handsome decorations. A pattern purse of this sort was begun at the lower end and decorated at the tip with a tassel made of beads. The mesh was a closely crocheted one.

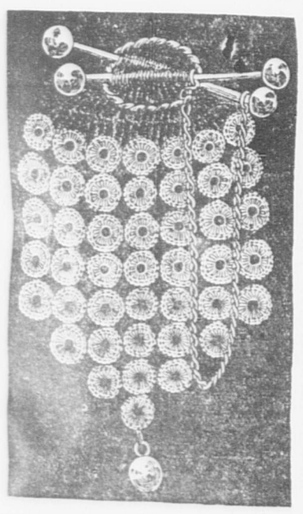

A purse made of black silk and decorated with emerald green beads may be made at home and will look handsome if finished with an oxidized silver top in the center of which is an artificial emerald. This purse should terminate in angles, the surface of the purse being decorated with a simple beaded pattern, such as an iris or conventionalized foliage. A fringe of beading will impart a handsome finish to the wide end of the purse.

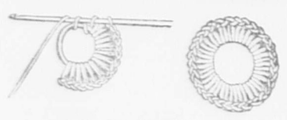

Instead of a purse a chatelaine bag may be knitted with the silk and beads. An oxidized silver clasp top with ring and chain may be bought for the bag and affixed to it by the home worker. Just now the crocheted and beaded silk purses and bags are very popular. A convenient size for the chatelaines is eight and a half inches from the ring in the chain to the extremity of the fringe. The length of the purses from one extremity to the other ought to be about six and a half inches.

To make the elegant chatelaine bag shown in the illustration requires six large and six small metal rings and one spool of heavy saddler silk, one round jet cabuchon, a handsome clasp and chain of oxidized silver and twelve strings of jet beads, No. 6. First make the bag of good black silk or satin and see that the clasp fits it. Then crochet the rings and beads and silk in ordinary stitch with one bead in each. The rings are framed in beads in the well known way. Two rings, one large and one small, are used in each circle. The cabuchon is put in the center of five rows of beads wrought in the crochet. This forms the centerpiece of the bag and has the six beaded and crocheted circles around it. The fringe consists of simple twisted beaded loops and follows the formation of the circles, which give it a scalloped outline. The back is left plain.

A Silk Chatelaine Bag.

To make the chatelaine bag of silk crochet depicted in the sketch, buy a ball of any preferred color of purse silk, a fine steel needle, eighty-eight brass rings, each three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, and a pair of gilt bars two inches long, inclusive of knobs. Forty-four rings are needed for each side of the purse. The rough side of the crochet ring work is the right side of the purse when it is done. The purse is closed by means of the bars passing through the ring. A gate clasp can be used instead of the bars if preferred. The rings are first crocheted and then sewed together, but the thread which sews them is not to be broken or cut until all are united. Both sides of the purse have the same number of rings. At the top of the rings seven rows of double crochet end with a row done over the bars. To start the seven rows the needle is passed through the edges of the upper row of rings. By studying the illustration any one can understand how to make the bag. It is an exceedingly simple yet pretty and useful gift.

Shopping Bag.

All women go shopping, and anything that adds to their convenience on such excursions will be found to be an appreciated holiday souvenir. The lace decorated bag which is shown in the illustration is covered with Irish point, which is very fashionable just now. One can purchase a clasp for from 25 to 50 cents. The bag lining may be of any kind of color, covered with the lace and fastened with the clasp. A bow and loops of ribbon are more suitable for this bag than the usual chain. The making of Irish point lace is so well understood by amateurs that it is not necessary to describe it. This bag is more elegant than anything one could buy for the same outlay.

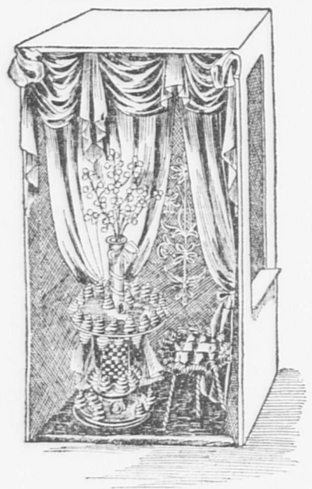

SHOPPING BAG.

A SHELL CABINET.

Makes a Useful Holder For Spools of Thread and Thimbles.

Many pretty things can be made of shells, and when one has had the foresight to gather some while at the seashore the question of what to make for Christmas is less than usually vexatious. Any empty box will serve as the foundation for a shell cabinet. The more shells at hand the larger the box may be. The sketch shows a small cabinet such as a little girl could make out of a cigar box. Three apertures are cut to represent windows, and some white net is draped over them to represent curtains. Then some dull colored silk is draped in the corners. A large spool, such as manufacturers use on sewing machines, is obtained. The spool is painted or gilded and is then covered with pretty shells. Shells are applied around the edges of the box wherever ornamental. The tiny toy stool should also be bordered with the shells. Spools of thread, thimbles and similar odds and ends may be kept in the cabinet.

A UNIQUE HOLIDAY GIFT.

Costs Little to Make and Can Be Made From an Ear of Corn.

Fancy thermometers are displayed in such quantities in the shops and are of so many different designs that it is difficult to hit upon something which will be really novel. A corn ear thermometer, however, answers the description.

RUSTIC THERMOMETER.

To make one take the finest and most regular ear of corn that can be found and cut out a place in which to fit a small bulb. It should be glued fast. Braid up one sheaf of the husk for a handle and tie the others with some bright ribbon. Gild the whole.

A thermometer may be made in much the same way with a pine cone, a piece of decorated birch bark or a shell.

In selecting the bulbs only those of the best quality should be accepted. Cheap bulbs get out of order in a short time.

A handsome bow of ribbon is a smart finishing touch for almost any piece of fancywork.

What to Give a Man For Christmas.

If a man has a den in which he takes any pride, there are many things from which to choose. A gayly embroidered sofa cushion or an Italian blanket in picturesque stripes will be an appropriate and welcome addition to his couch.

Tobacco jars come in many materials. Those of pottery in a dull finish, with touches of silver, are especially handsome. A small tabouret on which to stand the jar is a good idea too.

Ash trays come in glass, china, lacquer and several metals. The combination matchbox and ash tray for a man's desk or table is convenient.

Indictment Warrants Out For Smith and Swift

HAVE COVERED THEIR TRAIL

Brother of One of the Fugitive Defaulters Thinks They Sailed on a Shooner From Providence—Will Not Give Themselves Up

Botson, Oct. 26.—Indictment warrants against Albert G. Smith and Louis H. Swift, the defaulting teller and bookkeeper respectively of the Merchants' National bank of Lowell have been returned in the United States court before Judge Lowell. Their contents are of a secret nature and in the usual course of events will not become known until the defaulters are in custody. It is generally supposed, however,, that the indictments contain charges against the men similar to those which are found in the bench warrants which were issued a few days ago. In the latter Swift was accused of making false entries on the books and also with abstracting $500,000 of the bank's funds. Smith, so it is alleged, was charged with embezzlement and also with abstracting $500,000.

United States Marshal Darling and Deputy Marshal Waters are still hard at work trying to get some trace of the defaulters, and now that the indictments are out against the men they will follow them with renewed activity. Colonel Darling has thought from the first that the men were not far distant from Boston and that their arrest would be an easy matter, but yesterday it was admitted that at the present time there is absolutely no clew to the whereabouts of the missing men.

William F. Smith of Lowell, a brother of the missing bank teller, says he is sure that his brother and Swift made their escape by sailing from Providence on a vessel. Asked if his belief was the result of conjecture or was based on actual knowledge, Mr. Smith said he formed his opinion from what he had been told by persons who ought to know what has become of the two men. Speaking further on the subject he said:

"In my opinion there is no truth in the story that my brother's friends expect that he and Swift will return and surrender to the authorities. I am satisfied that they are sailing away from the United States as fast as a vessel can carry them, and I do not believe that they will be seen here again of their own free will."

"Do you think they went to New York?" Mr. Smith was asked.

"No," said he, "Providence was the port from which they sailed; they caught a schooner there."

Mr. Smith continued: "I did not find out to what port they probably were going, but I imagined it was to the Bermudas or some West Indian place, if there did not happen to be a vessel sailing for a South American port. When my brother and Louis left Lowell I am satisfied that they went to Boston, and then to Providence as soon as they could get a train. I have no doubt that they were there on Saturday night."

"Then you do not think they had any idea of giving themselves up?"

"They might have when they started, but I am very sure that by the time they got to Providence they changed their minds."

Mr. Smith was asked if he knew anything about the transactions that the clerks had with counsel in arranging for the return of the securities to the bank. He said he had not heard any of the circumstances which attended the meeting of the men and their counsel. He assumed, from what he had been told, that the general consultation over the deal was in Providence.

Philadelphia's Awful Holocaust

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Eighteen Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Eigheen known dead and property loss amounting to upwards of $500,000 is the awful result of a fire which occurred yesterday in the business section of the city. The number of injured is not known, but fully a score of victims were treated at various hospitals. Police and firemen are delving into the ruins in search of bodies supposed to be buried beneath the debris, for it is feared that others besides the known dead may have lost their lives in the flames. The buildings destroyed were an eight-story structure and three-story buildings occupied by small merchantmen.

A Hotbed of Insurrection

Manila, Oct. 26.—Francisco DeJesus, Lukban's chief commissary, has been captured. Papers which he had in his possession have resulted in the arrest of many of the best known civil officials of the island of Leyte. It develops that Biliran island has been a hotbed of the insurrection. Every civil official there has been aiding the insurgents of Samar in every way.

Pacing Record Broken

Memphis, Oct. 26.—Little Boy broke the world's pacing to wagon record yesterday at Billings park, making the circuit in 2:01½. The former record was 2:01 3-4, held by Little Boy.

NEWS IN BRIEF

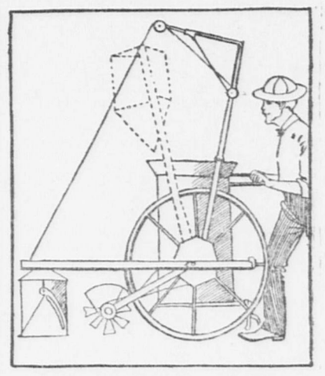

Rev. George D. Lindsay, D. D., died suddenly at his home at Waterville, Me., from convulsions brought about by uraemic poison. He was born in Ireland 57 years ago. His ministerial labors were confined to Methodist churches in Maine.

Luther Turner, driver of a baker's wagon, was struck by a train at Westfield, Mass., and received fracture of the skull from which he died.

A NEW STREET SWEEPER.

Device Intended to Lessen Cost of Keeping a Town Clean.

The adoption by cities of the asphalt pavement has necessitated the employment of an army of men to keep it clean, and this has attracted attention to the advisability of devising a mechanical apparatus for performing some part of the work, so as to reduce the expense, says the Philadelphia Times. Jesse M. Harr of Washington has invented a machine for the purpose. In operation it is pushed along by a man, while its movement actuates through a gear wheel attachment a long brush, which pushes the dirt in front of it until a bucket, open toward the brush, standing on the pavement, is reached, into which it sweeps the dirt.

STREET SWEEPER IN OPERATION.

At the same time the forwardly projecting shaft engages the bucket and by a suitable ratchet device on the large wheel pulls it up and automatically dumps its contents into a large can. After this the bucket is lowered to the pavement and thrust some distance in advance of the brush, where it rests until it is again reached.

The new Hungarian system of telegraphy has proved a marvelous success. The system has been installed between Budapest and Fiume, a distance of 375 miles, and is in practical working order at a speed of 40,000 words an hour. The messages are written in Roman characters and require no transcription. Negotiations are in progress for establishing the system in France and Germany.

The latter government will give it a trial between Berlin and Cologne, and the installation will be complete in a short time. The system is an ingenious combination of the telegraph, the telephone and photography, the messages being written on sensitized paper by ray light and developed and fixed by an automatic process.

Cervera's Wireless Telegraphy.

In wireless telegraphy the Spanish major, Cervera, is even certain that he will be able to telegraph from Spain to America. His system is said to have a great advantage over Marconi's in that it does not permit of the dispatches being intercepted. Near Alicante the major has fired mines at a distance without wires. He hopes to be able to effect the explosion of the magazines of warships at a distance.

New Style of Telegraph Key.

A new style of telegraph key which promises to revolutionize present methods of Morse transmission by hand has been invented by a New York operator. This key is a most radical departure from the principles embodied in the old style "steel lever" key now in use and, it is claimed, brings into play an entirely new set of muscles which, according to the inventor, have never before been brought into play and are much stronger than those now used in telegraphic transmission.

Nitrate of Soda In Nevada.

The reported discovery of beds of nitrate of soda in Nevada, says The Engineering and Mining Journal, may prove of considerable importance. They are near Lovelock, in Humboldt county, and a company has already been formed to prospect and develop them. Chili at present furnishes the world's supply, and the use of the mineral for agricultural purposes is increasing. A large deposit which could be worked and put on the market at a reasonable cost ought to be a valuable property.

Scientists Denounce the Oyster.

The oyster, which was once compared to the violet named by the botanists adorata, is now classed as the filthiest of foods, indeed no food at all, sometimes a poison, always a teeming home for typhoid and cholera bacilli, difficult of digestion, and of increasing criminality against the human system as it appears succulent and thick.

X Rays From Aluminium Plate.

M. Nodon has described a new and highly interesting method of obtaining the X rays. It appears that if ordinary light falls upon an electrified aluminium plate, preferably upon one electrified negatively, the light penetrates the plate (the thickness of which is not stated) and issues from the other side in the form of X rays.

The North Star a Triple Star.

The latest bulletin of the Lick observatory confirms an earlier announcement that Polaris is a triple star. The bright star—the north star—moves about the center of mass of itself and a dark companion star in 3 days, 23 hours and 14 minutes. These two stars also move slowly around another dark star in a long period.

Good Afternoon.

Salem has by ordinance voted to reduce its number of firemen by eighteen. Quincy, on the other hand, adds a few each year.

Thomas Blanchard, the chairman of the Norfolk County Commissioners, has written a letter endorsing ex-Commissioner Bowker. We wonder if he would not also endorse ex-Commissioner Morrell of Hyde Park?

Although Representative Frank E. Badger has been much in public life for several years, as councilman, sewer commissioner and as a member of the Legislature, not until today have we been able to present his photo to readers of the Daily Ledger. It appears at the top of this page with those of Senator Sprague and John McKnight, the other Republican candidate for repesentative, and all three are pretty sure to be elected at the State election of Nov. 5. The chances of the Republican candidates seems to be improving each day since the convention. All that is needed is to get the Republican vote out.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Everything we eat and drink and wear runs the gauntlet of germs to an extent which nervous people had better not contemplate. Far too much fuss is made of them. If we listened to all these scares there would be nothing left to do but to get into a bath of carbolic acid and stop there until starvation freed us from the dangers of life.—London Times.

☞ There is no doubt that the time will come when the great corporations that supply public service will pass into the control of the government to be run in the interest of the public only. Be that as it may, we do not believe that as a municipality the city of Lawrence is in proper shape to assume any new responsibilities. The municipal problems are quite intricate enough at present to be successfully handled by the men who usually make up the legislative branches of the city government.—Lawrence Telegram.

☞ The governor of North Carolina has notified the people of the state that all petitions for pardon for any convicts in that state must be advertised for some length of time in the newspapers of the locality where the offender lived or where the crime was committed. On the whole, this is not a bad idea. In many states, pardons are granted with no previous publicity, and often in total defiance of a public sentiment which would have vigorously protested had there been opportunity. The whole business of pardoning ought to be attended with all the publicity which goes with the courts. In this state, there have been very few abuses of the pardoning power, but in some states there is great need of more careful methods.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The betters are betting on the result of the New York mayoralty election. But there's one electoral force that the political speculators are apt to overlook. It is not on exhibition at the clubs very much. It isn't heard on the street corners. It cuts no figure in the saloons. It doesn't exploit its opinion in the hotel lobbies. We allude to what might broadly be called the prayer-meeting vote. The man who quietly attends to his work during the day, stays at home with his family in the evening and gets down on his hands and knees before going to bed, isn't, apt to be included in the computations of the betting brotherhood. He's the forgotten man of the forecasters. And yet he's a real force and his influence is frequently large on election day.—Beverly Times.

The Visitors Won.

Thursday evening the Cochato club candle pin team entertained the Commercials of Brockton and sent them home happy. Tower of Brockton made a great total of 604, causing the Commercials to win the three strings. Reed of the Cochato is an excellent bowler but it was his off night surely. BRYANT vs. JONES

President of The Council Wants Ward Three Delegates.

Ward Three is becoming thoroughly aroused over politics and it is now certain that there will be two lists of Mayoralty delegates. The greatest fight, however, is coming over the selection of a ward committee, and it is said that some of those present members of the Republican committee may get left this year. At the love feast two weeks ago, practically the old list was renominated, but while it may have been satisfactory to those placed in nomination it was not to some others, and as a result two lists will be filed.

There are also rumors that the present Councilmen are not entirely satisfactory to the people of that ward and it would not be at all surprising if some of this year's members failed to receive the number of votes necessary at the caucus to give them a place on the official ballot.

There is a great deal of quiet work being done in the ward and some surprises may be looked for at the caucus.

Just the Man.

The Randolph Register endorses the Quincy man for Senator as follows:

"For the Massachusetts Senate from the 1st Norfolk District, Hon. Eugene Hale Sprague of Wollaston is a worthy aspirant. He has served in the City government of Quincy, sat in the House of Representatives, performed his duties faithfully as Senator during the past session, and now asks a re-election. Senator Sprague is a wholesale grocer in Boston and lives in Wollaston. To whatever office he has been elected, those business qualities which he possesses were exercised for the good of the City and the State. There is no blast of trumpets about the Senator. Quiet, unassuming, full of business, he shows that he has influence and standing, characteristics so much needed in these days when it is charged that politics are not what they ought to be. The State's business demand just such men as Senator Sprague.

Not in Politics.

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

In view of the fact that a report has been circulated in political quarters to the effect that the Sons of St. George are affiliated with, and in fact, as the report goes, are controlled by a political organization known as the Rock Island Gun Club, be it known that at the last regular meeting of the Sons of St. George a motion was unanimously passed that a committee be appointed to refute through the columns of your valuable paper, all the reports of the above nature. We postively state that the Sons of St. Goerge are neither part nor party to any political organization of whatever name it may assume. We are purely a fraternal organization.

Thanking you for your valuable space we are very respectfully yours,

William M. Frime,
Daniel F. Tinney, } Committee.

An Independent Candidate.

The Franklin Sentinel says: "A paper is in circulation in town requesting Marshall P. Wright of Quincy to stand as Independent candidate for county commissioner against Mr. Bowker. It is meeting with ready signers, most of our leading citizens thus desiring to rebuke both the man and the method by which the nomination was secured. It is understood that a similar paper is in circulation in other towns in the county, and it now looks as if the disaffection in regard to Mr. Bowker would grow materially from now on till the election, if it does not result in his defeat. The press of the county are united in condemning the wisdom of his nomination, and this would appear to be a time when good government should be placed above partisanship, and a man with a clean record be given the coveted honor. The course of the convention in nominating him, in view of the facts looks like an affront to the honest voters of the county, and Mr. Bowker's frantic efforts to secure a vindication as a piece of audacity which has no equal in the annals of Norfolk County history."

Political Potpourri.

The Brookline Chronicle has no editorial comment this week on the Wright-Bowker contest for County Commissioner.

The City Clerk after an unsuccessful attempt to fill up a delegation for the Republican caucus in Ward One has turned the paper over to another. He is said to have got quite indignant because one of the Councilmen would not go on, and threatened him with personal defeat.

The Daily Ledger endorsement of Marshall P. Wright for County Commissioner appears in most of the weekly newspapers of Norfolk County today.

Is the state of Massachusetts in the political business? The letter of the Norfolk County Republican Committee appears in the Dedham Transcript under the caption "Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

It is about time for Candidates Packard and Jones to have a letter in the papers. Both promise to make it interesting at the municipal caucuses.

If the republican nomination for mayor does not go to Mr. Bryant what a hustle there will be by some parties to get under cover.

Marshall P. Wright's picture appears everywhere: in the newspapers, the store windows, the electric cars and elsewhere. Those few words beneath his picture on the cards are an appropriate slogan: "His business ability will assure Norfolk county of efficient service, and no discredit will attach to anything he may do while in office."

Rich of Hyde Park was a good man, but not quite showy or rich enough to land all his delegates in a lump,—Stoughton Sentinel. This innocent litile comment from our contemporary refers to the county convention proceedings, and reminds us that our townsman, as the candidate for commissioner, led the procession in the balloting until the "lump" of "dough" made its appearance.—Hyde Park Gazette.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of

of Milton, in said County.

Whereas, Emma P. Pierce, wife of said W. L. Pierce, has presented to said Court her petition, representing that she is desirous of conveying certain real estate, described in said petition, in which her husband is an insane person and is therefore incompetent to release his right of courtesy and statutory rights in said real estate, and praying that Alma G. Pierce, guardian of said William L. Pierce may be authorized to release his said rights in said real estate.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the sixth day of November, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each of the next of kin at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty fifth day of October, in the year one thousand nine hundred and one.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

House Collection October 21 to 26 —Hospital Sunday Oct. 27.

The City Hospital of Quincy was founded in 1890 and has during its 12 years of usefulness cared for 2,077 patients.

It has depended for necessary funds, to a considerable extent, on the contribution of our people. These have been sufficient to meet expenses except during the business depression from 1896 to 1899 when a debt of $8000 was accumulated. In order to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly growing population, the hospital should be enlarged by another wing for a general ward. A contagious ward is also much needed. These additions will require an increased number of nurses. Those already employed are now huddled into insufficient accommodations and a separate building for nurses home must be supplied. The trustees are assured that when money is raised to meet this year's expenses and pay the debt, funds will be forthcomng for the immediate construction of a general ward. They therefore, ask the people of Quincy to be generous in their offerings during Hospital week from October 21 to 26 and on Hospital Sunday, October 27th. A large committee in each ward will make a thorough canvass with the belief that every individual will be ready and willing to contribute something for this most necessary work.

This is the only call for funds that the Trustees will make during the current year. Will the people make a bouteous response?

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism sprains and bruises. Sold by all ruggists.

THE UNITY CLUB.

Interesting Papers on Three Ancient Cities.

A large audience was present at the Unity club last evening. President Charles F. Harper called the meeting to order promptly at 8 o'clock. In absence of secretary, Mrs. George Bennett acted as secretary pro tem. The record were read and approved.

After a few introductory remarks, Mr. Harper gave meeting in charge of Mrs. William Washburn. The subject for the evening was "Cities of the Past," Thebes, Tyre and Babylon.

Dr. William Gallagher's talk on Thebes was rendered more interesting from the fact that he had visited that famous old city and could relate his own personal experiences. Thebes is better known to us through its ancient ruins rather than its history. He gave us a vivid picture of the magnificence of its temples, especially that of Karnack the largest and most beautiful of all. He clearly described the massiveness and beauty of the colums. He spoke of the sculpture of the oblisks and the hieroglyphics which were as clearly defined on them as if they had been of recent date. The preservation of this beautiful art is due to the fertility and lack of rain or frosts. He also touched upon the religion of the Thebans and their great ambition for conquest, as it is pictured to us on the frieze.

Dr. Gallagher called attention to the dining room in Essex hotel, Boston, as a good illustration of Eyptian decoration.

Mr. Robbins followed with an essay on Tyre. He spoke of the predominent power of this city over the ancient world, as being the oldest and most important of Phoenicia. Tyre was the seat of all ancient learning. It sent out mercantile fleets to Britt'ny, Africa, India, and disseminated its learning through the Mediterranian sea. Tyre reached its prosperity and splendor under the reign of Hiram. It has been the scene of many Persian attacks and withstood them bravely until it was at last overcome by Alexander the Great. Mr. Robbins read from Ezekiel description of its magnificence and luxury.

After intermission Mr. H. V. Follett sang with fine effect the "Yeoman's Wedding song" and Kipling's "Dany Deever" accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Follett.

The last paper, Babylon, was given by Rev. Edward A. Chase. A brief description of the great capital and chief city ruled by Nebuchadnezzar was outlined. He showed us the great prosperity and downfall of the once famous city. One of the great seven wonders of the world the "Hanging Gardens of Babylon" was mentioned. The Greek historians and philosophers were indebted to Babylon for many valuable inventions and learning. The covetous spirit ruled Babylon. The prime motive was the passion for luxurious living. It was the paradise of gluttony and riot. Religion did little toward softening the character of the people and in no other country was the ceremonial of religion more costly. The Epic poems were alluded to and the speaker quoted some lines from the "Songs of Lament" and drew a comparison between those and the beautiful songs of David. He lead us to see with all the glory and power that the beauty of Babylon finally faded from the great canvas of history and hid itself in dust and ruins.

This closed a most instructive and delightful evening, about one hundred being present.

TODAY'S COURT.

The following continued cases were disposed of: W. H. Sullivan placed on file; John E. Cross and Robert W. Curtis were continued until Dec. 31, and Joseph DeCost was defaulted.

George Smith was arraigned for assault on Russell Park at Cohasset. His plea of nolo contendere was accepted and he was fined $11.54, the amount of costs.

Edward Hewitson Associates.

The energy and enterprise which characterized this club of young men during last winter and spring is again asserting itself in renewed activity.

Among other good things they offer a course of entertainments, similar to those given a year ago by the Sunday School classmates of Edward Hewitson.

The large number of young men in the club at the present time precludes the use of parlors for those entertainments. They will be held on Saturday evenings begining Nov. 9, in the Baptist vestry, Wollaston, and the committee in charge will try to arrange for informal gatherings, promising each evening beside the principal address music, readings and light refreshments.

The young men are very fortunate in having secured excellent talent and feel justified in promising full compensation for the patronage which they solicit and which it is hoped will be generous.

A very limited number of single tickets only will be sold, it being necessary to know before hand for how many to provide.

The principal speakers are as follows: Mr. Harry E. Stiles of Lynn. As band master of the 8th regiment he served during the campaign in Cuba. Later he saw service for two years in the Philippines, during which time his newspaper articles were read with great interest. He has very kindly consented o give an informal talk on the "Characteristics and Customs of the Filipinos.

Mr. Henry T. Bailey, State Supervisor of Art Education, will need no introduction to Wollaston friends. He will find a warm welcome. His subject will be "The Acorpolis of Athens."

Recent events have again made prominent the question of race prejudice and will render very pertinent the address of Mrs. Ida Vose Woodbury, who has lived long among the colored people in their Southern homes and whose talk will be replete with anecdotes from her own experience.

Mr. C. F. Whitney, whose helpful talk and ready use of the crayon gave so much pleasure last year, has, at the urgent request of the young men, consented to assist them again this year. His subject will be "Historic Art." The blackboard will be freely used.

Knocked Into Trench.

Crosby, son of Eugene Tappan, Asst. Register of the Suffolk Probate Court, met with a serious fall Monday. He is employed by the Sewer Comminnion as a civil engineer. He was at work taking the depth of a trench which the workmen were digging at Houghs Neck, and while standing upon a plank across the trench, a bucket of material which was being raised hit the measuring pole in his hand, and he fell 20 feet. He was taken to his home in Sharon, and is at present in a comfortable condition.—Dedham Transcript.

Portrayal of Events at Santiago by Schley

Results Showed That His Judgment Was Correct

The Loop, Battle and Surrender of Spanish Vividly Described

Washington, Oct. 26.—When the Schley court of inquiry adjourned yesterday Admiral Schley had not completed his testimony in chief. He took the stand about 11:30 after former witnesses had been recalled for the purpose of making corrections and additions to their testimony and continued his statement until the court adjourned at 3:40 p. m. This adjournment 20 minutes in advance of the usual time was due to the fact that the admiral's throat had become somewhat sensitive as a result of his continuous talking.

During the forenoon Admiral Schley brought his narrative up to Santiago and he said in that connection that he had regarded the orders of the department concerning the probable presence of the Spanish fleet at Santiago as more of a suggestion than a mandatory order.

In concluding his discription of the blockade that had been maintained, the admiral said: "That this was sufficient is shown by the fact that during its existence no vessel entered or escaped from the harbor."

Coming to reconnoissance on May 31, Admiral Schley said: "On the 31st, while the Brooklyn and the Marblehead and the Texas were coaling, I transferred my flag to the Massachusetts. Feeling that I ought to know something about the fortifications which defended that place, I determined to go in and take advantage of what I believed to be the longer range of our guns and develop fully what these defenses were, and incidentally if we could, get a shot into the Colon that was lying exposed somewhat to do it. I think we were lying in a position perhaps four or five miles to the westward. The steaming in was at slow speed. I transferred my flag, named 7000 yards, and went on board the Massachusetts. When I boaded her it was near the dinner hour, and Captain Higginson suggested that we postpone until 1 o'clock the going in to deveop these batteries. I assented to that. After the meal we went to quarters and steamed in pretty nearly head on. There was not much opportunity for anybody to seek cover behind a turret unless he got behind the protecting plate. Some weight has been laid upon the fact that we were in white clothes. That was a matter I controlled entirely for my squadron, and it was about the only suitable dress for that region."

Admiral Schley had brought his narrative down to the arrival of Admiral Sampson and told of his having turned the command over to the latter. He referred to the cordial relations between himself and Admiral Sampson, and was approaching the subject of the battle of July 3, when the court took a recess until 2 o'clock.

Admiral Schley began his description of the battle of July 3 at 2:30 o'clock. "On the morning of July 3," he said, "the day broke beautifully. The skies were fleeced with white clouds and the breeze continued a little bit longer off the land that morning than usual. After I had eaten breakfast I came up to take a survey of the situation with glasses. We were lying at that time possibly three miles or a little bit over from the land, and I wondered why they had permitted us to remain so close. At 8:45 my orderly reported to me that signal had been made from the flagship to disregard her movements and that she had gone eastward. I did not know where she had gone. Whilst I was sitting abaft on the hatchway, I heard a call from the forward bridge 'Tell the commodore that the fleet is coming out.' That was some time after the men had been called to quarters, about 9:35 o'clock. The ship at that moment was lying with her head in toward the land in the direction of Cabanas, which was a litte cove to the westward. I looked over the starboard side and saw the enemy coming out of the entrance of the harbor. I then looked eastward to see the order of the ships and I saw the Texas apparently a point or more abaft the starboard beam. My own recollection now, as near as I can state it, is that the ship's head was near nor-nor'west. The Texas appeared to me to be heading on some one of the easterly courses. To the left of her was the Iowa. She was eastward of the Texas. The Oregon was to the eastward of the Iowa. The Indiana was eastward of that position and the Gloucester was ying in under the land.

"Go Right For Them"

"The New York was out of sight and out of signal distance with glasses. I looked at that in order to determine what my position in the action was to be. If the vessel had not been out of sight, I should not have made a signal. The moment I saw that I went forward on to a little platform I had constructed on the battle tower as my position in the battle in order to be very close to Captain Cook. I had only been there a moment or two when Captain Cook joined me, and he said to me, 'Commodore, they are coming at us.' 'Well,' I said, 'go right after them.'

"The helm was put aport. The ship was started ahead, first at perhaps half speed; I do not recollect. She took her way very quickly and when we headed around I said to Captain Cook, 'go ahead, full speed,' and hoist signal to clear ship for action. That signal was followed by 'close up for close action.' The Brooklyn, as well as the other vessels of the squadron, charged immediately into the entrance, in accordance with the original plan of seeking the enemy's ships in the entrance or driving them ashore. We continued directly for the head of the enemy's column, the idea uppermost in my mind being that if we could arrest them long enough for the battleships to close in and knock them to pieces that would be our best point of attack. I suppose from the time we started we were 10 to 12 minutes in advancing direct to the enemy.

"The first gun, I think, was fired by Lieutenant Simpson almost directly over the forecastle of the ship. I saw the leading ship, which apparently had started with the intention of ramming, take a turn ahead to the westward, leaving a gap between her and the ship following, which proved to be the Viscaya. We were advancing in the direction of the Viscaya when she also seemed to have given up the intention to ram and turned to the westward, following the direction of the leading ship.

Did Not Cross Texas' Bow

"It then became apparent, as we were steering on diametrically opposite courses, that the original plan had failed and that the Spanish fleet in order, and apparently at distance, had succeeded in passing the battleship line. A new feature of the fight became immediately apparent. Captain Cook gave the order to port helm. I did not. I should have done so in a second. I saw the ship's head swinging very rapidly and I asked him whether his helm was hard-aport and he replied that it was. I never saw the ship turn more rapidly than she did at this time. Her turn was absolutely continuous. There was no easing of her helm. I never saw the starboard side of the Texas at all. We were never across her bow. I never was at her port side and she never approached any position that was within 600 yards of the Brooklyn. She never entered into my head at all as a menace or danger. We passed completely arond the circle.

"During the turn Mr. Hodgson very properly made some allusion to the look-out, perhaps for the Texas. I did not recall what it was, but there was never colloquy of any character between Mr. Hodgson and myself. That is fiction; there was no colloquy.

A Furious Onslaught

"Before we turned the leading ship was abeam or a little abaft the beam, and when we turned about she was ahead of us; that is, on the starboard bow, and all four ships and the forts were firing at the same time, and from that moment the following 10 or 15 minutes were the most furious part of the combat. I remember very distinctly seeing, from time to time, the jets of water ahead and astern and over and short. The roar of the projectiles was one of the things that can be heard only once in a lifetime and then never forgotten. It appeared at that moment that all four of those ships were at work upon the Brooklyn and up to the moment of turning, so far as we could perceive, there was not the slightest evidence they had even been injured.

"When we had completely turned around on a westerly course I saw the Oregon breaking through this cloud envelop. I had hoisted he signal to 'close up' and then 'follow the flag,' feeling that a new disposition was necessary. That signal was replied to and I saw it repeated. Captain Clarke repeated it to the other ships. In a very few moments after the Oregon broke through the cloud of smoke she was perhaps 400 or 500 yards distant. These two ships, the Brooklyn and the Oregon, were firing in a manner I had never seen before. I never before realized what rapid gun fire meant. Both ships were at that time a sheet of flame.

Didn't Forget Boys Below

"Soon after I saw that the leading ship was evidently battered hard. She lagged astern. I saw smoke coming out of her ports and out of her hatches and the fact impressed itself upon me that the columns were going straight up in the air. I said to Captain Cook, 'We have got one, keep the boys below informed of all the movements. They cannot see and they ought to know' and he did so throughout the action. Every few moments messages were sent below to the men that were answered oftentimes with cheers which we could hear through the ventilators.

"It appeared to be a very short interval of time after that that I saw a second ship on fire, which proved to be the Oquendo. She evidently had suffered very severely, and started immediately inshore, leaving the Viscaya and the Colon. The Viscaya immediately took a leading position on the bow and I thought for a little while that she would perhaps outfoot us. The Colon worked inshore and the time between the dropping out of action of those two ships until the Viscaya turned inshore was a period of perhaps 30 minutes during which she was abreast of the Brooklyn and the Oregon.

Abou 30 minutes was the length of the time from the turning in or the wounding of these first two vessels until the Viscaya went ashore. She was a little forward of the beam of the Brooklyn and I do not think at any time over 2300 or 2400 yards away. She was in most excellent target range and I remember that a marine stationed in the top reported that he did not see any of the shots of the two ships, the Brooklyn and the Oregon, hitting the water. So I imagine from that they were striking the ship. It was on the trip outward after the turn. I was very anxious about the ranges because I did not want the Viscaya and the Colon to get out of good fighting range.

"Ellis, who was an expert with the stadimetre, constantly kept the instrument on those vessels. In performing this magnificient duty he lost his life. He was struck about 10 feet from where I was standing. His brains and blood were thrown over a good many people and some of it reached me.

"Just before the Viscaya turned to run ashore she put the helm astarboard, apparently starting out for the Brooklyn or the Oregon, I don't remember which, and evidently at that moment got a very severe wound, for I saw quite an explosion under her bow and in a moment afterward she put helm hard-aport, turning inshore, smoke coming from all of her hatches.

End of the Viscaya

"I thought she was going to capsize, she had such a tremendous list to port. Just then I saw a shell strike her that appeared to me to rake her fore and aft and I thought to myself she would sink in deep water, so I told the signal officer to signal to the Texas to look out for her men and to save, but the Texas was too far astern to receive the message.

"After the Viscaya had turned in afire, her colors down, the Colon edged inshore and appeared to be following the contour of the coast, and I thought at that time that she was seeking the best place she could find in order to end the matter at once. From Assaderos, which, behind some 16 miles west of the harbor of Santiago, to the point Rio Tarquino, is perhaps about 30 miles, so I said to Captain Cook, 'Cease fire' and to make the signal. I also told Captain Cook to let his men come out of the turrets into the cooler air and get something to eat and to hurry up his men below. We were pointing at that time for Tarquino point, under Cape Cruz, at the point extending to the southward. My idea was that in steering that course, if the Colon kept up her course, she would be obliged to come out. I then said I would get up a lot of extra ammunition so that when she came out into close quarters it would be a question of but a few minutes before we knocked her out. We continued to advance—the Oregon and the Brooklyn. I don't think the Oregon was further astern than 800 yards. We were practically and relatively at the same distances. We continued in this position until about 12:50, when we realized that we were within range of this vessel and we tried the 13-inch and 8-inch guns on her. Several of them fell short, but I remember that one of the Oregon's 12-inch shots passed entirely over the Colon and that one of the 8-inch shots of the Brooklyn passed over her also. The position of the Colon being directly under the fire of the two ships, there was no question in the mind of the captain of the Colon that it would be fatal. I think he did exactly right. A sacrifice of life would have been unnecessary, so he fired a gun to the leeward and hauled his flag down and ran in on to the bar at the mouth of Rio Tarquino.

"I signalled at once to cease firing, that the enemy had surrendered. We hauled up and imediately passed into position. We were all in fighting rig. We arrived in the vicinity of the Colon certainly at 1:30. When this surrender took place I naturally felt interested in the vessels that were following. I was then on the bridge and with glasses I saw three vessels astern. I could see the masts of two. I could see only the smoke of the third one.

Arrival of Sampson

"We lowered the boat and Captain Cook went aboard. He said to me: 'Commodore, what are your terms of surrender?' I said to him: 'Unconditional. Those are matters that the commander-in-chief must arrange. We can only receive an unconditional surrender.' At 2:23 the New York came up. I made a signal to her that it was a glorious day for our country, and as soon as I could I went on board to pay my respects. In the meantime Captain Cook started off to make his report and went on board the flagship. When he returned I took the boat and went on board myself. There I reported substantially what had occurred, the incidents and events of the battle, in a hurried way."

After this story of the battle, told by the senior officer who had participated in it, he told of the pursuit of the strange vessel, of how he met the Vixen and was informed that she was the battleship Pelayo and of how, when she was ultimately run down, she proved to be the Austrian cruiser Maria Teresa, which was bound for Santiago to carry away neutrals before the city was attacked by the American forces.

Returning from this chase Admiral Schley told of passing the Iowa, when he was hailed by Captain Evans, who informed his that Admiral Cervera was on board and would like very much to see him. Admiral Schley said that he then went on board the Iowa, having in the meantime directed his men not to cheer, because he did not think it would be proper to exult over a foe who had fought and behaved so gallantly.

"I found the Spanish admiral greatly dejected," said the witness. "I said to him I knew he had lost everything, clothing as well as money, and informed him that my wardrobe as well as my purse, as far as that would go, were at his service."

Admiral Cervera, the witness said, thanked him for his courtesy, saying he had never met a sailor who was not a gentlemen, but declined the proffer, only asking to be allowed to send a dispatch to his government announcing the fate of his squadron. "I told him there would be no objection to that whatever," said the witness.

"And that," the admiral said, closing his narrative impressively, "ended the battle of the 3rd of July, 1898."

The Cabinet Meeting

Washington, Oct. 26.—All members were present at the meeting of the cabinet yesterday. The president discussed various features of his forthcoming message to congress and also appointments that are to be made within a short time.

STRIKE ALMOST CERTAIN

Mill Affairs at Fall River Reaching a Crisis.

AN ADVANCE IS REFUSED

By Manufacturers, Who Charge Borden With Animosity—Latter Declares That Advance Was Justified by Cond t ons of Trade

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 26.—A meeting of the executive committee of the Manufacturers' association was held yesterday afternoon to discuss the request of the mill operatives for a 10 percent advance in wages, the session lasting nearly four hours. As a result a positive refusal to make any advance at this time was decided upon, and the secretary of the Textile Council was formally notified to that effect.

Later it was announced that a meeting of the Textile Council would be held tonight. At the meeting the letter will be discussed, but the council will probably make no recommendation, thus following out its determiantion to leave the matter entirely in the hands of the unions. Following the meeting of the Textile Council a special general meeting of the unions will be called for the coming week to decide what action shall be taken.

Judging by present indications nothing can avert a strike tat Fall River except the action of the operatives at their meeting next week. It is not expected that they will take any action other than that of voting to strike, and manufacturers and operatives alike expect one of the most important labor struggles in the history of the textile industry.

Says Advance Was Justified

New York, Oct. 26.—Mr. M. C. D Borden is said to be inviting a strike of some 25,000 mill hands at Fall River, Mass., but when seen regarding the charge he emphatically denied harboring any such intention.

"This business," said he, "is not a secret known only to a few. The avenues of success in it are open to all. If my competitors cannot grant their men their 10 percent increase in salary which I have given to mine, it merely means one of two things—either they are to selfish to share their profits with their employes, or they don't know their business and have not succeeded in making it pay. The increases announced in my mills are warranted by the conditions which exist in the trade—or in my trade if you prefer. I did not raise wages with any object such as my competitors ascribe to me. If there is a strike the responsibility will be theirs, not mine."

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 26.—The New York interview with Mr. Borden is the topic of discussion among mill men here. That he is campaigning against them alone has been proved directly within the past 24 hours. Boston parties have been trying to sell 25,000 pieces of print cloths for four days at 3 cents. They have been offered to every printer in the country and have not been accepted at the price. Although Mr. Borden is supposed to be eager to buy all the print cloths in sight, this lot of high grade goods has not been bought by him even at a 16th of a cent below the price he made for goods in this city Thursday. The treasurer of a Connecticut mill offered Mr. Borden a lot of regulars at 3 cents and was told: "Oh, we don't care for your goods, we want Fall River goods now." The quality of the goods is above question, being made by one of the best manufacturers in New England.

No Feeling Against Washington

New York, Oct. 26.—The Herald has questioned President Hadley of Yale regarding the report that the university had intended to confer a degree at its bi-centennial celebration on Booker T. Washington, but had abandoned its purpose in view of southern indignation over the entertaining of Mr. Washington by President Roosevelt. Mr. Hadley replied: "The degree of LL. D. was given to Hollis Burke Frissell, the principal of Hampton institute, which is considered the best college for the education of the negro race in the United States. We hold Mr. Washington in high regard and have the fullest admiration for the work he is accomplishing, but the number of degrees which we could give was limited, and we therefore gave the degree to the head of the Hampton institute."

Druggists' Agreement Expires

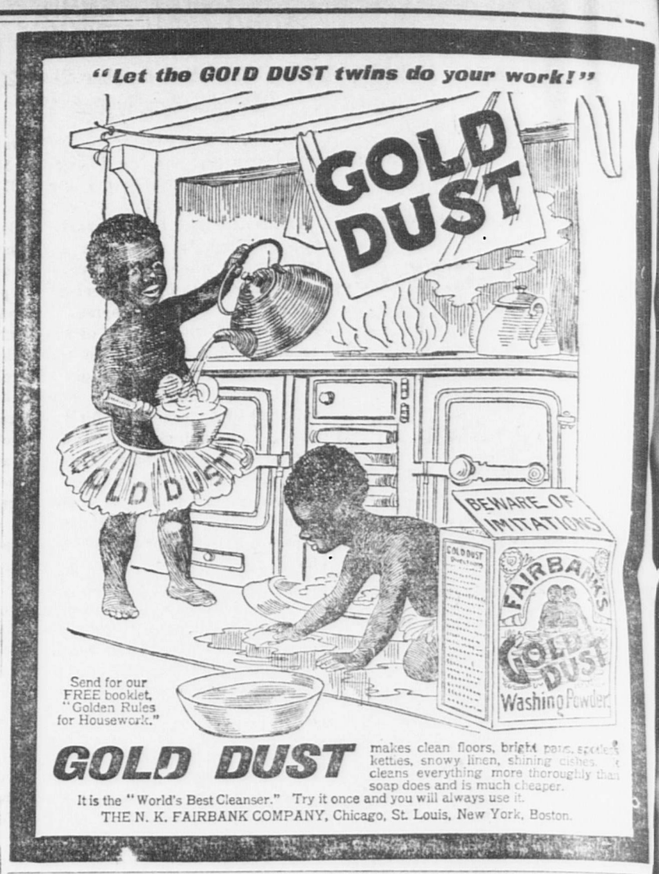

New York, Oct. 26.—The tripartite agreement signed some months ago by manufacturing, wholesae and retail druggists to maintain a schedule of prices, is no longer in effect. In view of this the agressive cutters in the drug trade, who are said to sell below cost price to stimulate business, and who do not care to be bound to one scale of prices, are consequently pleased. Outside this city, the warfare against the agressive "cutters" is still being carried on in a vigorous manner.

Twelve Years For Attempted Murder

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 26.—The trial of Peter Tamoreaux for the attempted murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Kate Franetta, at whom he fired five shots last June, ended yesterday. The jury found the prisoner guilty. Judge Wheeler sentenced him to state prison for 12 years.

Boston and Maine's Request

Boston, Oct. 26.—The board of railroad commissioners have given a hearing on the petition of the Boston & Maine railroad for authority to issue bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 for permanent improvements on its leased lines.

SOME YALE OUTGIVINGS

Productions In Connection With Late Celebration.

NOTABLE ORATION AND POEM.

Justice Brewer Discusses the Problem of Popular Government, Touching Upon the Prevailing Tendency Toward Consolidation and Concentration—Stedman's Commemorative Ode to Yale.

Among the most notable productions at the recent bicentennial celebration of Yale university were the commemarative address by Justice Brewer of the supreme court of the United States and the poem by Edmund Clarence Stedman entitled "Mater Coronata."

Touching upon the problem of popular government, Justice Brewer said:

"The structure of popular government in this republic towers above the horizon of the world great and strong, and yet the question of its permanence is not settled. Its possibilities of good are greater than ever before; yet it lives under new conditions and faces new dangers.

"These various causes are operating in our midst to produce wealth, consolidation, centralization. The rapidity and multitude of mercantile transactions are seen in colossal fortunes, in gigantic undertakings, in enormous financial consolidations and corresponding organizations of labor. Local self control is giving way before the pressure for centralized power. The town meeting is supplanted by the state legislature, while the latter in its turn is yielding to the expanding power of congress. Political parties are largely under the management of bosses, and the whole great forces of industry, business and politics seem passing under the dominance of single central control.

"Is this centralizing tendency antagonistic or helpful to the republic? Is it consistent with popular government? Apparently it is antagonistic against the republican thought of equality of right; each man a ruler and equally sharing the responsibilities and powers of government. Forms may not be changed. Power seldom cares about forms; it seeks the substance of control. Many and insidious are the temptations which attend the efforts of power to centralize and establish itself; wealth and its offer of luxuries, sweetness of officeholding, popular applause, even though manufactured and purchased. He who stands in the center has these and a thousand other strings reaching to every side of the surrounding circle.

"You cannot stay this movement toward consolidation and centralization. It is a natural evolution. The commercial spirit is taking advantage of the wonderful facilities given by steam and electricity. Injunction against strikers will not stop it; legislation against trusts will not. Attempting to stay the movement of its chariot wheels by injunction or statute is lunacy compared with which Dame Partington's effort to stop the Atlantic with a mop was supreme wisdom. Appeal must be taken to the great court of public opinion, whose decrees are irresistible. In that court every man is counsel and every man is judge. That court may not stay the movement, but will control it. It can make the movement with all the wonderful things attending it subserve the higher thought of ennobling the individual.

"Who shall lead and guide in that court? Not the demagogue, appealing for selfish purposes to ignorance and prejudice. In the opening hours of the French revolution Mirabeau roused the rabble in Paris, and the roused rabble whirled social order into chaos, provoking Mme. Roland's dying words, "O Liberty, what crimes are done in thy name!" We want no Mirabeau here. We turn to the educated lover of his country, the one who believes in her institutions; who would not destroy, but keep pure and is filled evermore with the thought that true service of the public is the greatest glory of man. We look to him in that court for the preservation of the liberty of the individual against the threatened dominance of wealth and organization, to invigorate the so called generalities of the Declaration of Independence and to fill the land with such a spirit of independence and liberty as shall give new emphasis to the grand old song, 'America, the Land of the Free.' We look to him in that court to exterminate the assassin and to put an end to anarchism, so that nevermore in the history of this republic shall the sad story be told that during forty years out of seven men elected to its highest office three perished by the hand of the assassin.

"Here, then, is my answer to the leader of the organization. The organization may need only one trained in its workings—an always reliable cog in the machine—but the republic needs something larger, stronger, grander; something more than a cog. It needs the educated man and that educated man to whom organizations and individuals are simply instruments to subserve the higher interests and glory of the republic. So it is that in these days of tremendous material activities there is as never before the need for educational institutions filled with the spirit of devotion to the public service."

Edmund Clarence Stedman's Poem.

The following is the text of Mr. Stedman's poem:

All things on earth that are accounted great
Are dedicated to conflict at first breath.
Nature herself knows grandly to await
The masterful estate
Which for her secret germ Time conjureth.

The elements that buffet man decree
His lustihood prevailing to the end;
The fate all foreordains him to be free;
Their stern persistency
The ages to his resolute spirit lend.

So rose our academe since that far day
When reverently the grave forefathers came
In council by the shoal ancestral bay,
To speak the word, to pray,
To found the enduring shrine without a name.

Ye, at the witchery of whose golden wand
New cloisters rise to splendor in a night,
Find here your model! Here the barriers stand
That were not made to hand,
That have the puissance Time confers aright.

Born with the exit of that iron age
When Nova Anglia to New England grew,
Learning's new child put up a hermitage,
Whereof no godly mage
As from a mount the boundaries foreknew;

No oracle betokened the obscure
Grim years encountering which the elders bowed,
Yet knew not faintness nor discomfiture,
But set the buttress sure
That should upstay these tabernacles proud.

These fanes that bred their patriot to vie
In steadfastness, erect of thought to live,
Or when the country bade undauntedly
Without lament to die
Save that he had but one young life to give.

Twice, thrice, and yet again that sovereign call
Rang not in vain, nor from this ancient grove
Hath ceased to broaden, as the days befall,
The famed processional
Of the mind's workmen who to greatness move

No feebling she that reared them, no forlorn
And wrinkled mother lingering in the gray;
Fadeless she smiles to see her shield upborne;
It is her morn, her morn!
The past, but twilight ushering in her day.

Strong mother, thou who from the doorways old
Or housed anew in beauty renovate,
Hast spread thine heritage a hundredfold,
Hast wrought us to thy mold
Whether the bread of ease or toil we ate;

Thou who hast made thy sons coequal all,
The least one of thy progeny a peer
Weering for worth, not birth, his coronal;
The watchman on thy wall
Wax proud this sundawn of thy cyclic year!

The lusters of a new won firmament,
Spanned from the height thine upmost turrets crown,
Relume the course whereon thy thoughts are bent,
Whereto the words are sent
That bid thy children pass the lineage down.

Ere yet that rainbowed dome thou seest complete,
Mankind, be sure, shall earth more nobly share;
No churl his measure shall unduly mete,
And where are set thy feet
Life shall be counted lordlier and more fair.

Science shall yield new spells for man to know
And bid thee consecrate to mortal weal
All that her henchmen in thy gates bestow,
Nor lofty ther, nor low,
Save to his race each minstrant is leal.

Thine be it still the undying antique speech,
The grove's high thought, the wing'd Hellenic lyre,
Unvexed of soul thy acolytes to teach,
So shall they also reach
Their lamps and light them at a quenchless fire;

And wield the trebly welded English tongue,
Their vantage by inheritance divine,
Invincible the laureled lists among
Wherein the bards have sung
Or sages deathless made the lettered line,

Till now, for that sure Pentecost to come,
The globe's four winds are winnowing apace
Fresh harvestings of speech, in one to sum
A world's curriculum
When east and west forgather face to face.

Thus first imbued, thy coming host the clews
To broad achievement shall descry the more;
What thou hast taught them shall in statecraft use
Greatly, nor can they choose
But follow where the omens blaze before!

Even as our Platonist's exultant soul
That westward course of empire visioned far,
Now round the sheen, to Asia and the pole,
Time charts upon our scroll
The empearled pathways of an orient star.

There the swart Malay's juster league begun
Takes from our hands the tables of the law;
The mild Hawaiian raises to the sun
The folds himself had won
Ere the Antilles their deliverance saw.

Time's drama speeds, albeit, alas, its chief
Protagonist, augmentor of the state,
Fell as the prompter turned that unread leaf,
And, oh, what tragic grief
Just when consummate towered the action great!

To strong, brave hands the rule, the large intent,
Have passed; nor tears alone that some far plan
Required the master's lifeblood interblent,
To point his monument
And leave once more the likeness of a man.

But we, Yale's living multitude rebrought
From farthest outposts of the pine and palm,
We know her battlements of iron wrought,
Her captains fearing naught,
Her voice of welcome rising like a psalm.

We know the still indissoluble chain
Wherewith the sons are to the mother bound;
Nor unto any shall she call in vain
Who in her heart have lain
And trod the memoried precinct of her ground.

God dower her endowering her brood
With knowledge, beauty, valor, from her breast,
Ingathering from the peopled town, the wood,
The island solitude,
The land's most loyal and its manfullest!

God keep her! Yea, that Soul her soul endue,
That Spirit of the interstellar void,
That mightier Presence than the fathers knew,
The source of light where through
Heaven's planets shine in joy and strength deployed.

That Power—even that which doth impart a share
And semblance of divinity to our kind—
Hold thee, dear mother, here and everywhere,
Thee and thy sons, in care
Through centuries yet still loftier use to find!

LEOPOLD'S REPARTEE.

The Retort of Belgium's King to Peasant Woman.

King Leopold of Belgium, who, it is said, contemplates paying a visit to this country, figured in an amusing incident the other day. He was driving near Brussels in his automobile, accompanied by a gentleman with whom he was conversing in English, which tongue the monarch speaks fluently. They stopped at the farmhouse of one of his subjects to get a drink of milk. King Leopold continued his conversation in English, and the farmer's wife, not recognizing him, remarked to her husband:

"I wonder what the long nosed Englishman will give us for that bowl of milk?"

"The long nosed Englishman will give you his portrait," said the king, addressing her in her native tongue as he handed her a five franc piece.

Then he drove off, leaving the astonished woman gazing alternately after him and at the effigy on the coin.

Rooster's Crow Identified Thief.

August Bockard and Charles Lawrence are neighbors in Dickson City, Pa. Lawrence possessed a remarkably fine game rooster. One night the bird disappeared, and Lawrence went over to Bockard's chicken coop and crowed. From the interior came answering crows which, Lawrence says, he recognized. Then he swore out a warrant for Bockard's arrest.

BULLER'S FATAL SPEECH

Address Which Brought Down Upon Him England's Wrath.

ADVISED LADYSMITH'S SURRENDER

The Suggestion, He Says, Was "Spatchcocked" Into a Dispatch to Sir G. White, Who Was In Command of the Beleaguered Garrison. Experience In Tugela Valley.

The speech in which Sir Redvers Buller replied to the animadversions was made at a luncheon given to celebrate the return of the Westminster rifle volunteers, attached to the King's Royal rifles. It made a sensation among the audience and was almost universally condemned in the press for its "amazing indiscretions," and especially inasmuch as it admitted a virtual authorization to Sir George White to surrender his force of 10,000 men shut up in Ladysmith.

These are Sir Redvers Buller's own words:

"I attacked Colenso on Dec. 15. I was unsuccessful. It was a very trying day. I was at work thirty-six hours and in the saddle fourteen. It was the hottest day of the whole year, and I had rank bad luck. I still believe and hope to show that if I had not had bad luck I had enough men to get in. But that is another story. I attacked Colenso and failed, and, having failed, I had to consider, not myself, but the people in front of me—the garrison of Ladysmith.

"I knew that horse sickness was almost certain to come very heavily and strongly in the Tugela valley. I knew that enteric fever was epidemic, and almost continuously becoming epidemic, in the Tugela valley at that time of the year, and knew, or thought I knew, that the Boers were putting dead horses in the water which the garrison of Ladysmith was obliged to drink. I thought I knew that I had official information in writing that the garrison could not be fed beyond the end of the year. I was wrong. I have found out since. At that time I thought that and believed it.

"The message I had to send to Sir George White was that I had made the attack and that I had failed and that I could not possibly make another attempt for a month, and then I was certain that I could do it only by slow fighting and not by rushing.

"That was the message I had to send, and I had to ask him certain questions. I wrote a telegram out and looked at it two or three times and said: 'It is a mean thing to send a telegram like that. He is a gallant fellow. He will sit still to the end.' I was in command; whatever responsibility there was there was mine, and I thought, 'Ought I not to give him some help, some assistance and some lead, and something which, if it came to the last absolute moment, would have enabled him to say, 'Well, after all, I have Sir Redvers Buller's—as my commander—opinion in favor of this.'

"Therefore I spatchcocked into the middle of the telegram a sentence in which I suggested that it would be necessary to abandon—to surrender—the garrison; what he should do when he surrendered, and how he should do it. I put it between one question he had to answer and followed it with another question. I did not like to suggest to a man I believed to be a brave man and a good soldier—I did not like to suggest that he should do this or that or the other, but I stuck that into the thing simply because if he ever had to give up it might be some sort of cover to a man whom I thought in much greater difficulty than I was myself. That was the telegram."

With regard to the actual words of the telegram which was heliographed to Ladysmith General Buller said he wanted to bring the man who said that he had counseled Sir George White to surrender down into the ring, and for that purpose he challenged him to bring forward the telegram. He knew where the telegram was. It was in the hands of the editor of a magazine who had made himself notorious some years ago by raking over the garbage of a story fifty years old and dishing it up hot. The telegram must have been stolen, because it was in cipher, addressed to Sir George White and perfectly private. He challenged the production of it and how it was got. He would then publish the telegram in full and let the public judge.

A NEW CHALLENGER.

Syndicate Preparing to Come After America's Cup.

The Daily Mail's Paris correspondent had a talk with R. V. Webster of Ceylon, a member of the Royal Geographical society, who was one of Sir Thomas Lipton's guests on the Erin during the cup races at New York, but is in Paris at present, says the London correspondent of the New York World.

"I learned that he (Webster) is interesting himself in the formation of a syndicate to issue a fresh challenge," the correspondent wires, "the syndicate to be restricted to British subscribers, and that the support of several prominent British sportsmen had been already assured. Should Lipton, however, meantime definitely decide to challenge again Webster would at once withdraw."

Liberty Bell Goes to Charleston.

The city councils of Philadelphia have voted to permit the Liberty bell to be taken to Charleston, S. C., for exhibition at the exposition there. As the Pennsylvania and Philadelphia buildings on the show grounds are not likely to be completed before the latter part of December the bell probably will not go until after the Christmas holidays.

ON A STILL HUNT

Croker Wishes to Avoid Attracting Attention to Tammany

New York, Oct. 26.—The press bureau of Tammany Hall has been supressed by Richard Croker. It has given out no statements for two days, and it is now said that the press agents would confine their work till election to making up posters and the like. Croker's purpose is to attract as little attention as possible to Tammany Hall during the remainder of the campaign and to let Shepard continue his effort to draw party lines.

There is no bookkeeping at the wigwam. Tammany has never had an account book, and all the contributions go to Croker as chairman of the finance committee. It is said that the contributions, voluntary and forced, this year are about twice the amount received in 1897. When Croker was questioned about the matter he smiled and said: "I guess we will have enough money for the legitimate expenses of the campaign. You can't get anything more out of me."

District Attorney Philbin created a sensation by his first speech of the campaign at the noonday meeting at Broadway and Leonard street. Said he: "I came here not to make a campaign speech, but in this fight for decency to give you a few facts. I tell you what I have seen in the district attorney's office. The impression that the police, as a body, are corrupt is not well founded. If a policeman doesn't do his duty it's because the politician or the district leader says: 'Do your duty and you can't support your family.' As a result gross immorality is supported by the police. You know the cadet system on the east side. Once I sent for a captain of the police. I asked him to drive the bad women out of the tenements, saying that if I was sure he would clean out the tenements I would go slow on the other houses. That captain did his duty. And where is he now? He's away up in Bronx. This is a fight not against crime, but against the fostering of it by men in public office. It used to be said that to convict a captain was impossible, but look at Bissert, look at Herlihy, and a dozen others. Does it look so now?"

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Enough Orders on Hand to Keep Industrial Establishments Busy

New York, Oct. 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: With mills, shops, factories and furnaces assured of full operation until the end of the year as a rule, and many contracts already running far into 1902, there is no occasion for anxiety regarding the industrial situation. Jobbers are still urgently asking prompt deliveries by manufacturers of staple lines, while opening transactions in fancy goods for the holidays are unusually early, showing that dealers anticipate a large trade. Prices of commodities rule firm and collections are satisfactory, even southern payments coming forward promptly now that the tardy cotton crop has begun to move freely.

Eastern makers of boots and shoes are still engaged on late orders for winter goods and contracts come in freely from the west for spring lines. A much larger capacity will be in operation next year. Prices are unchanged.

In woolen goods conditions are quiet on account of the warm weather, but mills are fully occupied and producers of knit goods have orders for some time. In cotton goods the situation is disturbed by the action of a large manufacturer who advanced wages 5 percent a short time ago and again this week announced a 5 percent rise to go into effect on Nov. 4.

More satisfactory prices are received by domestic wheat growers, last year's figures being surpassed, notwithstanding the largely increased yield just harvested.

Given "Agonized" Consideration

London, Oct. 26.—Walter Long, president of the local government board, during the course of a long speech at Liverpool yesterday, said that General Buller's dismissal was solely because his recent speech was subversive to military discipline. Agonized consideration had been extended to the case, and the cabinet unanimously supported Lord Roberts' action.

Bulgaria Will Quench Brigands

Sofia, Oct. 26.—It is semi-officially asserted that no indication has yet been found of Miss Stone's kidnappers having been in Bulgaria. The Bulgarian government is determined to annihilate the band, should it cross the frontier, and will deal with the utmost severity with any Bulgarians whose complicity in the kidnapping shall be proved.

Carnegie Won't Express Preference

London, Oct. 26.—Andrew Carnegie announces that he will preserve an impartial attitude in relation to the municipal campaign in New York city. Any other course, he says, would be highly improper, in view of his present and future relations with the municipal officials of New York in connection with his gifts to that city.

A Case of Robbery

Boston, Oct. 26.—Superintendent Leith of the local Pinkerton office says that he has come to the conclusion that the trunk of jewelry valued at $13,000, shipped from Providence to this city on Sept. 28, has been stolen, and not gone astray. Mr. Leith has no trace of the missing property.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac. Sunday, Oct. 27.
Sun rises—6:11; sets—4:45.
Full moon—10:06 a. m.
High water—10:30 a. m.; 11 p. m.

The weather continues fair and dry in all districts, thus making the eighth consecutive day of fair and dry weather. Generally fair weather is indicated for New England. The temperature will rise. Light northwesterly winds will continue along the coast.

I could not rise to my feet without fainting.

"I had suffered for three years or more at monthly periods," writes Miss Ella Sapp, of Jamestown, Guilford Co., N. C. "It seemed as though I would die with pains in my back and stomach. I could not rise to my feet at all without fainting; had given up all hope of ever being cured, when one of my friends insisted upon my trying Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. With but little faith I tried it, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt better, had better appetite and slept better. Now I have taken two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and am happy to say I am entirely cured, and all done in two months' time when all other medicines had failed to do any good at all."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets a pleasant and effective laxative for women.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

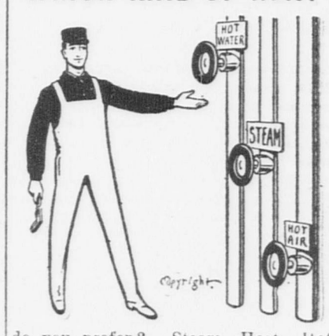

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

BRAINTREE.

Harry H. Marston left Thursday on an excursion to the Pan-American exposition.

Edward Branley was home from Bridgewater the first of the week to attend his sister's wedding.

A special meeting of the King's Daughters was held Friday at the home of Mrs. R. F. Burleigh.

The members of the Braintree club have made arrangements to hold a ladies night in their rooms on Holbrook avenue, Wednesday evening.

At the meeting of the Sons of Veterans, Tuesday evening, Charles Bailey and Lester Belcher were presented with medals, as veterans of the Spanish war.

Rev. J. S. Bell, formerly of South Braintree and now at Scituate has presented the Scituate Union Cemetery association with a large handsome Bible for their chapel.

Rev. Mr. Gregory of Burlington, Vt., who is visiting Charles L. McLelland and was taken sick last Tuesday night with laryngitis, is improving under the care of Dr. C. M. Marstin.

Mrs. I. Wendell Gammons, Mrs. L. S. Gammons, Mrs. S. B. Gammons, Miss Janice Gammons, and Mrs. H. A. Collett and J. Harry Collett of Wollaston, went to South Middleboro by trolley, last Monday.

The Philergians met at the home of Mrs. Eugene Dyer last Tuesday and were entertained by a lecture on "The Duties of the College Woman," by Mrs. S. C. George. The next meeting will be held at Miss Alice Sheppard's, Nov. 5.

Charles C. Mellen the Republican candidate for Representative from Braintree is worthy of the suffrage of the citizens.

Miss Helen M. Cole of Boston will be at Cochato hall Sunday evening Nov. 3. She is an expert in Bible reading and will give selections. See ad.

The winter time table on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. goes into effect tomorrow morning. Only a few changes.

Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post 87, G. A. R., will hold their twentieth annual fair in the Town hall Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday Nov. 19, 20, 21 and 22.

The schools will be closed Friday, Nov. 1, to enable the teachers to attend the annual convention of the Norfolk County Teachers' Association, to be held in Boston on that date.

An installation was held Thursday evening by the Amana Rebekah lodge No. 96 I. O. O. F. of South Braintree, in Odd Fellows hall. Four members were admitted: Mr. and Mrs. Clement V. Cottrell, Miss Margaret McGibbon, and Mrs. Orrin Jackson. Delegations were present from The George L. Gill Rebekah lodge of Quincy, Golden Star lodge, No. 65, of Randolph, and the special Deputy of the Grand Master, Mrs. Mabel G. Chamberlain of Whitman.

Rosedale is becoming noted for large fires. Hay will be scarce here with seventy tons gone up in smoke.

The second rehearsal of "Ruth" was held at Cochato hall, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. A. H. Newton of Boston, took charge of forty young ladies who will give the Tambourine Drill, and accomplished much during an hour's rehearsal. This beautiful feature of the performance will be given by sixty girls in Oriental costume and those wishing to have a part in it are requested to be at the hall at 4.30 on Monday the 28th, for the next rehearsal. Much interest was expressed at the chorus rehearsal at 8 o'clock and all signs point to a very successful and interesting performance of Broad's famous old Cantata.

Miss Mabell Dugan of New York city, formerly of Braintree, has joined the Bachelor & Belles Co. and made her debut at Gilmore's Theatre, Springfield, Mass., Monday last. She plays at Worcester next week, then comes to Keith's Theatre, Boston, for a week. Miss Dugan is well known in this locality, having been identified with the Jonas Perkins and high schools the past four years. She was noted as an exceptionally fine speaker and won a prize in the speaking contest held at Jonas Perkins hall three years ago. The Springfield papers speak highly of her. She is the granddaughter of Henry Dugan and niece of Officer Henry Dugan, Jr. Her many friends in Braintree wish her success.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

The principal new novelty in the change o program at Keith's for the week commencing Oct. 28, will be the act presented by the famous French "Memory Wonder" Jacques Inaudi, whom the New York press pronounces the most marvelous entertainer in his line who has been seen in America in a century. Inaudi solves four problems at once, mentally, and has the answers ready before his manager can chalk them on a blackboard. Here is an easy sum in subtraction:

From 427, 854, 260, 339, 927, 142, 310, 553
Subtract 257, 325, 180, 240, 237, 165, 100, 239

Answer 170, 529, 080, 099, 689, 977, 210, 314

Inaudi having been given this set of figures from the audience, repeated off the two sets, and gives the answer as quick as a flash. Other entertainers will be: Will Cressey and Blanche Dayne, in the new comedy sketch, "A Village Lawyer"; Jess Dandy, the Hebrew parody singer; Rita Mario, a juvenile violinist; Flood Brothers, acrobats, and the Andelusions, international singers. The spectacular features will be continued, and an entire new list of motion pictures shown in the biograph.

Park Theatre.

A short cut through the inviting field of rural life brings us to "Lover's Lane," which Clyde Fitch, the most fertile of modern dramatists, wrote, and which that alert and resourceful manager, William A. Brady, brings to the Park Theatre, Boston, Monday, Oct. 28. This play proved one of the few successes in New York last season, where it played for five months to capacity business, there being many occasions, both at the Manhattan and Republic theatres, where the crowds were so great as to displace the orchestra. There are many quaint and interesting characters in this play, which depicts life in a small New England town, with all its prejudices, social cliques and church jealousies. The hero is a young clergyman, who has given his whole life to the church. So deep is his devotion to his parish that his people call the road which runs from the parsonage to the little brick church "Lovers Lane." There are many odd characters, some of them new to the stage, such as the opera house manager, who posts his own bills; the bickering choir singers; the social purists, a mischevious waif of eleven who has been expelled from the orphanage; a quaint pair of eighty-year old lovers, the general store-keeper, together with the village dressmaker, the school mistress and others, who are fair game for Clyde Fitch's delicate satire. No other play of its kind has been put upon the stage with such careful attention to realistic effect. Among the scenes are two very beautiful ones depicting an apple orchard in the dull depression of autumn and also in the fragrant blossom of springtime.

Castle Square Theatre.

The Castle Square theatre management have good cause for pride in the success attending the production of Bronson Howard's great war play, "Shenandoah." So great a patronage resulted from the selection of this play, as one of the season's attractions, that it is to be given a second week with every promise of continued favor with Castle Square audiences. Few of the plays dealing with events of the civil war bring the real life of those days home to an audience so realistically as "Shenandoah," and the story it tells is of intense interest from the first scene to the last. The Castle Square management have given the play even a more elaborate stage setting than that which created such a sensation when "Shenandoah" was played at this theatre four years ago, and the guiding hand of Mr. J. R. Pitman is again plainly shown in the admirable handling of the minor details of the production, as well as in the splendidly effective groupings, tableaux and stage pictures. All the members of the regular stock company have acquitted themselves most creditably in "Shenandoah" and the large force of extra people are used skillfully in the larger scenes. Following "Shenandoah" on Monday, Nov. 4 th, comes a production of Dion Boucicault's "The Shaughraun." The distribution of boxes of chocolate bonbons at the Monday matinee will be continued until further notice.

Boston Museum.

"A rustic revelation" is what somebody calls Kidder's "Sky Farm" and the alliteration is apt. The Boston Museum has been packed to the doors since the merits of this remarkable play have become generally known and the advance sale of seats is enormous. It is a performance that appeals alike to gallery and orchestra for the "one touch of nature" that "makes the whole world kin" dominates this superb production. From the first scene in the clergyman's house, where the strains of "Greenland's Icy Mountains" rise sweetly over the beautiful Berkshire valley to the realistic representation of Darius Nixon's barn—with a barn dance that stirs the blood—pure love, dramatic incident, fine acting, and scenery that seems a part of nature itself, enthrall the auditor through four absorbing acts. It is difficult to pick out special bits of work in this play where all do so well. Mr. Holt as the kindly, noble clergyman, full of faith and trust, bearing his troubles calmly, and ruining himself and his family for a principle, dominates every scene of which he is a part. Miss Busley as the "tom boy," with the most wonderful laugh heard upon the stage in years, gives every line the sparkle of champagne. Katherine Florence, so long an attraction with Frohman's comedians, is a sweet and winning Marigold Towers, and both in the lighter and more serious parts of the play awakes an interest that never flags tills the final curtain. Summed up briefly "Sky Farm" is a success that all should see, for its fun, its pretty love scenes, its touches of nature, its magnificent scenery, its real baby, and its two and a half hours of tense, palpitating, everyday human interest. The final curtain falls at 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon and at 10.30 o'clock at night, giving out of town patrons ample opportunity to catch their trains.

FATHER'S FINAL WORDS

To Assassin Who Will Be Electrocuted Tomorrow

"HE ALONE IS RESPONSIBLE"

And Must Meet His Fate as a Consequence—Czolgosz Shows No Emotion at Interview With Brother—Body May Be Cremated

Cleveland, Oct. 28.—The Associated Press is made the medium of the last message from the father of Leon Czolgosz, the condemned assassin who will pay the penalty for his terrible crime in Auburn prison tomorrow. In an interview yesterday the elder Czolgosz was asked what he had to say finally to his unfortunate son.

PAUL CZOLGOSZ

The old man's eyes filled with tears as he replied deliberately: "Tell Leon that I hope he may rest in peace; that he will become reconciled to God and will meet his end bravely. Tell him that as much as I and all of our family regret his most unhappy plight, that we can do nothing to interfere, that he alone is responsible for his unfortunate position and that he must meet his punishment as a consequence."

Further conversation elicted the information that the purpose of the visit of Waldeck Czolgosz to Auburn is to arrange for the disposition of the body after the law's mandate has been fulfilled. Up to yesterday afternoon no communication had been received by the elder Czolgosz from Waldeck and this is taken to mean that the father's presence is not desired at the death scene.

The entire arrangement of the after part of the law's course are in Waldeck's hands and what steps he will take is a matter of uncertainty. The expense of conveying the body from Auburn to Cleveland is one of the considerations that causes hesitancy in the announcement of definite final arrangements. Paul Czolgosz, the father, stated that there was some fear of mutilation or other undesirable occurrence at some time or other if the body should be brought to Cleveland immediately after the electrocution. This fear has led to the consideration of cremating the body at Buffalo or some other city where a crematory is available.

Some anonymous communications to the Czolgosz family have mentioned the fact that the body might be valuable as a scientific object to medical people and would bring a good sum of money, but further than mere hints no definite offer has been made. It was stated that such an offer would be distasteful to the family of the assassin and would not be considered. Fear that the body might be stolen if buried in the usual manner is also a reason for cremation being favored.

As said above all postmortem arrangements are in the hands of Waldeck Czolgosz and whatever he does the family here will acquiesce in.

Shows No Repentance

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Leon F. Czolgosz had an hour's interview on Saturday with his brother, Waldeck. At its conclusion the latter said that the assassin did not show any emotion, did not inquire as to the members of the family and declared he did not again care to see a priest.

The interview between the brothers took place in the office of the prison. They conversed in English more than an hour. After the interview Waldeck said that his brother was never demonstrative, but appeared glad to see him. Leon said he did not care to see a priest again. The assassin expects to die tomorrow and will make no effort to appeal. Waldeck will visit his brother again today.

It has been planned to have Leon's body taken in charge by a local undertaker immediately after the autopsy tomorrow. If the financial part of the proposition can be satisfactorily arranged the remains will be removed at once to a Buffao crematory. After the body has been incinerated the ashes will be taken to Cevelend, the former home of the assassin.

Will Be No Relics

Auburn, Oct. 28.—The time that Leon F. Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, has to live is reckoned by hours now, but there has been no relaxation of the stringent rule under which the prisoner has been secluded since his confinement. Auburn prison is closed to any who seeks to see the assassin and so it will remain until the prisoner has paid the penalty which the law exacts. In fact the plan to deprive Czolgosz, living, of any notoriety, has been extended to deprive Czolgosz, dead, of notoriety.

Immediately after the execution the clothing of the murderer, with the vast accumulation of mail that came to the prison for him, will be burned and, if possible, the request of the parents of the dead man for his remains will be evaded. It is feared that the removal of his body to Cleveland would lead to scenes of an unfortunate nature and the prison officials are very anxious to avoid anything of the kind. The plan of burning the clothes and letters of the murderer will prevent he exhibition of relics by those who pander to the morbid.

The chair in which Czolgosz will sit to receive the deadly electrical shock was examined and tested yesterday by State Electrician Davis and is ready for the part that it is to play in the final scene of the great national tragedy. Davis carefully examined the wiring, switchboard and electrodes and satisfied himself that they were in good condition. He also inspected the dynamos in the prison shop where the current is generated, and at his direction the current was for a brief period sent pulsating into the death house, as it will go on Tuesday morning, carrying final punishment to the murderer.

Priest Will Not Tell Secrets

Buffalo, Oct. 28.—Father Fudzinski, pastor of the Corpus Christi Roman Catholic church, who visited the assassin Czolgosz in his cell at Auburn prison on Friday last, has returned to Buffalo. Questioned as to the probable future course that would be taken by the assassin in reference to a public confession prior to the execution he said: "That God alone knows. If I knew I would tell you. That is all that I can say. The secrets of the confessional must remain inviolate."

Made Orphans of Children He Loved

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Because he was denied the sight of his two little children, James Kennedy yesterday murdered his wife and killed himself. They were married 12 years ago, but quarreled recently and separated. Kennedy called on his wife yesterday and asked to see the children. Fearing that he meant to take them away from her, she told him they had gone to church. In a few minutes, however, when they heard their father's voice they came running from the bedroom where they had been hidden from their mother. This enraged Kennedy and, pulling out a revolver, he fired three shots at his wife, killing her. He then turned the revolver on himself and when found a few minutes later was dead.

Again With Republicans

Reno, Nev., Oct. 28.—United States Senator John P. Jones of Nevada announces that evolutions of political issues have placed him again in alignment with the Republican party. "I have suffered no change in any of the convictions I have entertained in the past," said the senator, "and my return to the Republican party does violence to none of those convictions."

Five Passengers Hurt

Salem, Mass., Oct. 28.—By the breaking of a brake chain on a car of the Boston and Northern railroad on Washington street hill last night a collision of two cars was caused, resulting in injuries to five persons. All the injured received medical aid at a nearby drug store and were later sent to their homes in carriages.

Interested Parties Are Reticent

Constantinople, Oct. 28.—There has been a voluminous exchange of dispatches in cipher between Spencer Eddy of the United States legation and Consul General Dickinson, who is now in Sofia, regarding the efforts to rescue Miss Stone. Nothing has been made public as to the progress of the negotiations.

Daddy of All Lobsters

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 28.—A giant crustacean of unknown species, but which from its appearance must be the father of all lobsters from the beginning of time, was found in a scoopful of sand and stone at the excavation at the big Wachusetts dam at Clinton. It is 31½ inches long.

Neck Broken In Football Game

Columbus, O., Oct. 28.—John Sigrist, center rush of the Ohio State university football team, had his neck broken in the game with Western Reserve. An operation will be performed, but there is little hope that it will avail. Sigrist's body is paralyzed from the shoulders down.

Boers Wore Khaki

London, Oct. 28.—The South American mail brings news that several Boers who were captured wearing khaki uniforms were court-martialled and shot. It seems also that Commandant Theron crossed the Cape Town lines, west of Touwse river station, on Sept. 23.

Manchurian Deal Consummated

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—It is officially announced here that Russia and China have concluded an agreement as to Manchuria.

TWENTY-FIVE KILLED

Insurgents Got Worst of a Brush In Panay

THE CONDITIONS IN CEBU

Said to Be of an Encouraging Nature—Energetic Measures Being Taken to Suppress Insurrection In Samar—A Fight at Sabang

Manila, Oct. 28.—The constabulary report a fight with insurgents near Passi, Island of Panay, in which 25 insurgents were killed and three captured, together with a quantity of arms and ammunition.

The news from General Hughes regarding affairs in the island of Cebu is encouraging. Lorega has surrendered with his entire force and one cannon and seven rifles, while General Hughes is negotiating for the surrender of Maxilot, who styles himself governor politico-militar. His surrender will mean the pacification of the province.

Lack of food and the harrassing effects of the aggressive tactics now pursued by the American forces are having their influence upon the natives. In many places where rice is doled out by the government only enough is given for one meal, so that it is hardly possible for any large quantity to find its way to the insurgents.

Dispatches from Catbalogan, Samar, say that stringent and energetic measures are being taken to suppress the insurrection in that island. General Smith has notified all the presidentes and head men of the pueblos that, in order to avoid trouble, they must surrender all arms and turn over the persons implicated in the Balangiga massacre before Nov. 6, threatening that otherwise the presidentes will be sent to the island of Guam, the village destroyed and the property confiscated.

Marines under Major Waller have been stationed at Banaugiga and Bassey, and 10 gunboats are vigilantly patrolling the Samar coast. Most of the towns in the southern part of the island have been destroyed.

Naval Cadet Loveman Noa, commanding the gunboat Marivales, who had gone ashore at Nipa-Nipa, South Samar, to prevent smuggling, was attacked by the insurgents. He lost his revolver and was shot and boloed.

Chattanooga, Oct. 28.—Naval Cadet Loveman Noa, in command of the gun-Mariveles, who was shot and boloed by insurgents in South Samar, was the son of Ismar Noa of this city, had been serving in Philippine waters about a year. He was 22 years old.

More Recruits Wanted

Washington, Oct. 28.—A cablegram has been received from General Chaffee asking that 600 recruits be sent at once to Manila to fill the vacancies in several regiments. General Chaffee reports that the effective strength of the army in Northern Luzon is 8000 less now than on Jan. 1.

No Longer a Priest

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Father Jeremiah J. Crowey, late pastor of St. Mary's church at Oregon, Ill., has been excommunicated by Archbishop Feehan of the Chicago diocese. The order of dismissal was the result of attacks made by Father Crowley upon fellow pastors of the Catholic faith, and charges of favoritism, fraud and cruelty which he made at the time Father Muldoon was consecrated as auxiliary bishop of the Chicago diocese.

Murderer Got Half a Dollar

Montreal, Oct. 28.—"I killed a boy last night," said Tobin Hansen, 35 years of age, when he walked into the central police station yesterday. "I killed him for money and I got only 50 cents. That is not enough, so I came to give myself up." Hansen described the locality in which the deed had been committed and the police found the body of Samuel Marotte, son of a spice and coffee merchant.

Eight Buildings Burned

Hampton, N. H., Oct. 28.—The most disastrous fire which ever visited Hampton broke out in the village yesterday in the dwelling of Postmaster Hicks and as there was no fire-fighting apparatus it soon spread. The only way to check it was by tearing down a building. In all eight buildings were consumed and the loss will reach $12,000.

The Old, Old Story

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 28.—Karl Robbins, 16 years old, and Allen Furber, 14, were gunning in Swampscott woods. Furber had a 22 calibre rifle. Forgetting that it was loaded, he pulled the trigger and the bullet struck Robbins, who was sitting on a log, lodging in his bowels. There is no hope for the boy's recovery.

Killed by Fall at 101

Newark, N. J., Oct. 28.—Caleb Baldwin, the oldest man in this city, died yesterday. Had he lived until Nov. 28 he would have been 102. Death was the result of a fall from a chair. Mr. Baldwin's first vote was cast for Andrew Jackson and he voted for McKinley and Roosevelt a year ago.

An Old Veteran's End

Gardiner, Me., Oct. 28.—Harvey H. Wiggin, who had been arrested for drunkenness, hanged himself in the police station yesterday. He was a member of the Soldiers' home at Togus. He was 63 years old.

THEY WANTED THE BEER

Portland Crowd Set Upon Clergyman Who Seized Wet Goods

Portland, Me., Oct. 28.—Rev. H. T. Skillings, one of Sheriff Pearson's liquor deputies, was roughly handled late Saturday evening by a crowd on Free street, near Center street. Deputy Skillings found half a barrel of beer in the rear of a place on Pleasant street and took possession of it. He was met by a sullen but not especially demonstrative crowd.

He was alone and had to take the beer off at once, and he began to roll it up the street. A crowd followed him and collected rapidly. When the deputy and his beer reached Free street he was met by a number of men. A soldier from one of the forts gave him a push and at the same time another man hit him under the ear and he went down.

That was the signal for the entire party to pounce on him, and he was roughly handled, kicked and knocked about. He came out of it well covered with bruises and one tooth knocked out.

The crowd seized the beer and made off with it. The deputy was able to recover it and went back to the "rum office" at the city building to attend to his wounds and to report to Sheriff Pearson.

Grieved Over Separation

Meriden, Conn., Oct. 28.—Miss Alice Ellis, a trained nurse, was found dead yesterday in the rear of the residence of the late Dwight P. Wilcox, where she was formerly employed as governess. She had enveloped her head in a black silk bag lying in a pan in which she had placed a quart of chloroform. She was also covered with a golf cape and a flannel bed blanket. Miss Ellis was 41 years old. The only reason that her friends can give for her act is that she was greatly attached to a 6-year-old son of Mr. Wilcox, whom she had taken care of from his birth up to last January, when he was placed with relatives in Westfield.

Abraham's Heavy Forgeries

Boston, Oct. 28.—Doctors attending Leo Abraham at the asylum diagnose his case as true paresis, and predict that he can live only a short time. There is not, they say, the slightest prospect of recovery. Simultaneous with the news comes the announcement that there are at least 250 forged indorsements on F. Abraham & Co.'s outstanding paper. For months Leo Abraham amused himself by signing the names of men all over Boston to Abraham & Co.'s notes, afterwards selling the paper. New notes with forged indorsements come in every day. The notes now aggregate about $200,000.

Police on the Watch

Boston, Oct. 28.—The South end was alive with police officers Saturday night and last night as a means of protection to people on the street and with the idea of catching the negro highwayman who has robbed a score or more of women. The officers were sent out in ordinary attire and their experiences were about as novel as those of people who were stopped and interrogated. Many arrests were made on suspicion and from among them the police think they have several negro ruffians and a few thieves.

Yale and Columbia at Odds

New Haven, Oct. 28.—Ugly stories are heard about the game between Columbia and Yale Saturday, the Yale students claiming that several of the men on the Columbia eleven were not bona fide students. The Yale football authorities will not make any statement to that effect, but admit that investigation has been started. The Yale coachers do not deny the report that Yale will refuse Columbia a date hereafter.

Family Fled In Nighties

New London, Conn, Oct. 28.—A large dwelling house owned and occupied by R. T. Palmer Jr., and family, was totally destroyed by fire early this morning, and the inmates of the building narrowly escaped burning to death. All were compelled to leave in their night clothes. It is believed that the fire was caused by an overheated furnace. The loss is between $10,000 and $15,000.

Plymouth's Man Hunt

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 28.—Absolutely nothing positive has been learned by the officers engaged in the search regarding the present whereabouts of Ventura Guilianello, the Italian wanted for suspected complicity in the murder of Mrs. Lizzie Ferriolli. The country, as far south as Barnstable and from White Island pond to Indian hill, has been carefully gone over.

A Youthful Suicide

Bristol, Conn., Oct. 28.—Grief over a scolding given him by his mother is supposed to have caused the suicide of Willie Bailey, aged 11, only child of Mrs. George Bailey, of Forestville. His body was found hanging from a beam in a shed connected with the house where he lived with his widowed mother.

Discouraged by Poor Health

Waltham, Mass., Oct. 28.—The body found in the woods near Hardy's pond was identified yesterday as that of George Wallace of Cambridge. Wallace was 18 years old and for some time he had been in ill health and had been taking treatment for nervous trouble. He attended a Boston business college.

When you have no appetite, do not relish your food and feel dull after eating you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Price, 25 cents. At all druggists.

Good Afternoon.

Although all parts of the city seem to be quite thoroughly aroused over the candidates for mayor at the coming municipal election, the license question seems to have been entirely forgotten. The question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquor is one of the important questions that comes before our citizens every year to decide. For many years Quincy has been arrayed on the side of "No License," and it must be evident to every one who has made a study of this question that the city is much better off, without the temptation which saloons offer to our young men and that the saloon should be as far off from Quincy as possible.

It has been said that the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. would give employment to many who would favor the granting of licenses and an increased vote from this section of our city has been prophesied. The registration for the State election, however, does not warrant any basis for hope that the No License majority will be materially reduced. Again, it is doubtful if the machinists who have come among us and enjoyed the comforts of a peaceful law-abiding community,— a progessive and well-governed city, — have any desire to wreck the city or the lives of young men by introducng the saloon.

As in the past, the advocates of No License must be astir. In other years, the Citizens' Temperance Committee has usually begun to make preparation for its annual campaign almost as early as the campaign for Mayor, but this year the committee seems strangely quiet. Quincy can ill afford after its long reign of no license to return to the days when there flourished in Quincy 42 licensed saloons and as many more that were not licensed. In those days no lady was free from insult who ventured through City Square after dark, drunken men reeling about the streets and bar room fights, were as frequent as in some of the wild western towns of which we read about. Anyone who lived in Quincy during those days would not wish to return again to them, yet they are sure to come unless the law abiding citizens keep up an incessant warfare against the saloon, and thus arouse voters to do their duty and vote against license and save our young men and our young women.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Still, we should remember that there are quite a number of people who have never been invited to take dinner at the White House.—Baltimore American.

☞ In spite of all the solemn editorials on the divorce question, the average person will doubtless settle the problem entirely on the ground of whether he or she happens to be happily wedded or not. The happy people who have played the lottery of love and have won think that divorce is one of the most horrifying features of American life. The unhappy ones think the only evil in the divorce laws is due to the fact that divorces cannot be obtained with the ease of merely dropping a nickel in the slot.—Brockton Enterprise.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

Senator Surprised.

Hon. and Mrs. Eugene H. Sprague reached the fifteenth anniversary of a happy married life on Sunday, Oct. 27. It was not their intention to celebrate, but friends from Somerville, Arlington and elsewhere came uninvited, and with them a rich cut glass cabinet, which they presented to the popular couple. It was an enjoyable occasion.

Pioneer in Four States.

The Atlantic friends of Mrs. E. H. Train of Helena, Montana, are saddened to learn of the death of Mrs. D. T. Goodell, Mrs. Train's mother. Mrs. Goodell endeared herself to the hearts of many of the Atlantic people during a visit to her daughter one winter while Mrs. Train and her family were Atlantic residents.

Mrs. Goodell was 75 years of age, and since the death of her husband in 1888 has ably managed his large estate.

She was born in Lisbon, N. Y., but was a pioneer in four states, California, Oregon, Idaho and Montana and her life was given to the advancement of the country through which she passed.

Political Potpourri.

According to all reports there was a political love feast in Ward Three Saturday night. Report further says that the feast was held in a large barn not a thousand miles from Independence avenue. None but the faithful were bidden to the feast, thus differing from the love feast held recently in Malnati's hall to which everybody was invited. Saturday night's meeting was in the interest of Charles M. Bryant, and plans were laid to capture the ward for him.

The Democratic Social party will hold caucuses under the caucus act on Thursday evening of next week to nominate candidates for the City Council and School Committee, and to elect delegates and ward committees. Each ward will have five delegates to the Mayoralty convention.

The Boston Journal and Boston Transcript, as well as the Herald, are out editorially against Watts H. Bowker, the Republican nominee for Norfolk County Commissioner.

Caddies Qualify.

The qualifying round for the Caddies Championship of the Merrymont golf club was held Saturday morning, the following boys qualifying: Willie Cox 47; Albert Hoxie 51; Frank Hoyt 53; Joe Massey 53; Clarence Loud 53; Harold Woodman 54; Harold Farrington 55; Ralf Thomas 55.

The pairings for the next Saturday are: Cox and Hoyt; Hoxie and Woodman; Loud and Massey; Farrington and Thomas.

In the afternoon in the semi-finals for the club championship, Mr. H. W. Porter defeated C. S. Irswell 6 up 5 to go. Harry M. Fairbanks defeated F. E. Wingate by default.

Next Saturday the finals for the club championship will be played off.

For the Council.

To the Voters of Ward One—

Gentlemen: After urgent solicitation on the part of my friends, I have consented to again enter into the field as a candidate for the Council for the incoming year.

I feel that at this time it is proper that I should state my position clearly as to what my object shall be if elected.

I shall endeavor at all times to obtain better railroad service, both on the steam and electric lines. I shall not hesitate to guard the interests of the people of the City as a whole, without prejudice, politically or otherwise. I shall defend the rights of the tax payers, and use every effort to secure the best results without an increase of taxation. Coming in as a candidate without pledges and without any pecuniary interests, except that of a taxpayer I shall be free to act in such a manner as shall meet the approval of the people of our beloved city.

Again thanking my many friends and those who honored me with their votes at the last municipal election, I am, as ever,

Sincerely,
Andrew A. Meyers.

GIRL ASSAULTED.

Police Have But Little to Work Upon to Detect Ruffian.

Bertha, the seven-year-old daughter of Fred Hill of South Central avenue, was feloniously assaulted Saturday afternoon in the woods between Newport avenue and Hancock street.

It was about 4 o'clock and the little girl was returning home, via Newport avenue, from Adams street. She had reached a point near her own home when a man came up to her and seized her. In spite of her screams and struggles he forced her into the bushes where he maltreated her. He then disappeared over the railroad track.

A few minutes later she was found by her sister and taken home. The child's clothing was torn, and she was covered with blood and nearly unconscious from fright. She could furnish but a meagre description of her assailant, other than by a comparison with someone she knew.

A sewer gang and the occupants of a gypsy camp both near by claimed not to have seen any person such as the girl described, and the police have but little to work upon. The police scoured the territory thereabouts, but were unable to obtain any trace of the fellow.

This morning it was reported that the little girl had recovered from her shock and was able to go out.

Hewitson Associates.

The Edward Hewitson Associates met for the first time this season, for their Saturday evening socials, at the residence of Mrs. H. Gannett of Warren avenue, Wollaston.

A short business meeting preceded the entertainment for the evening. For the benefit of new members and those who have not been present at former meetings, the by-laws were read, and a short history of the club's career was rehearsed.

It was decided to restrict the age of membership to seventeen but this does not apply to those already members.

The nature of the evening's entertainment was Irish. The club was fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Field of Boston, who gave humorous selections in Irish, German and English dialect. Mr. Fletcher Miller, a member of the club, gave a short sketch of ex-President McKinley's ancestors, tracing them in one line back to the early Irish families.

Mr. H. Y. Follett, as usual, delighted the audience with two Irish songs. A trio of boys, Messrs. Anderson, Barber and Thayer sang: "Wearing of the Green" and "The Shamrock."

One of the means of entertainment was the guessing of the members likenesses in childhood. The balance of the evening was devoted to a social, and puzzles and other games were introduced.

Before adjournment a vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Gannett for her kindness in lending her house. The boys also voted to send flowers and the sympathies of the club to Mr. Fred Mitchell, a noble stand-by in former entertainments.

Court Officer Burns Passes Away at Boston Hospital.

Court officer Michael J. Burns, who was injured by being thrown from a train in the South Terminal yard Saturday evening, September 7, died Saturday night, at the Boston City Hospital, where he has been since the accident.

On the day of the accident, Officer Burns had been to Foxboro with a prisoner and was returning home. He arrived at the Terminal just as the train was starting and did not get aboard until it had gained headway. It is supposed that when he boarded this train he was out of breath and stood upon the platform to get his breath. As the train crossed over, the lurch threw him off. He was found unconscious sometime later and removed to the City Hospital. He received a severe injury to his head and side and was unconscious for several days. He then seemed to improve, although at no time did he apppear in his right mind for but a few minutes at a time.

A week ago new complicatons set in and he grew rapidly worse, until he passed away Saturday night.

Officer Burns was of a genial disposition and was a general favorite with the officers and others who had business with the district court. He was one of those accommodating men who are always ready to put themselves out for the sake of others, and this more than anything else will cause him to be greatly missed. Besides being the Court officer he was janitor of the Adams building.

He was a member of Division 18, A. O. H. He was in his 48th year and leaves a widow, one son and three daughters.

Funeral services will be held from St. John's church Tuesday morning.

Silver Wedding.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKenzie celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage at their residence on Intervale street, where a large number of their friends assembled. During the evening Mr. A. M. Pirie put the happy couple through a short wedding ceremony and wished them every happiness and prosperity in the future. On behalf of those present he presented them with a handsome parlor lamp, as a token of their love and esteem. He also presented them with a beautiful silver water pitcher and silver drinking cup in commemoration of this happy event. Mr. A. D. McGregor also spoke of the loving friendship he has had in the past and of how the couple have made fast friends with all they have come in contact with, and trusted that the same would continue until they all meet again 25 years hence to celebrate their golden event.

At 10 o'clock an elaborate supper was served, during which the happy couple were toasted with "waughts" from the flowing bowl. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kenzie responded. The remainder of the evening was spent with song and story, and every guest took a share in doing something to amuse the others.

Mrs. Rebecca McLellan sang some Scotch ballads, which, to use a theatrical expression, "brought down the house." Mr. Wm. A. Kelly was a whole variety show in himself. The guest who did not do a turn—well—they were absent.

Dancing was indulged in and before any one thought of looking at the time it was away into the "wee sma' 'oors ayont the twal." The company broke up by singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "They're a jolly good couple."

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lillie, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Norrie, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. C. Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kirkland, Mr. and Mrs. L. Berman, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Pirie, Mr. and Mrs. K. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. E. Roberts, Mrs. R. McLennan, Mrs. M. Stronach, Mrs. B. Medlin, Mr. David Smith, Mr. Wm. A. Kelly and Mr. A. McDonald.

The Makado is the religious head of the Japanese as well as their ruler. His place is hereditary and it has been filled by members of his family for more than 2500 years. His is incomparably the most ancient lineage known. The present Mikado is the 1224 of the line.

Runaway.

There was quite a runaway on Spear street Sunday afternoon, but fortunately no one was injured and the carriage was not badly smashed. The team was that of Commissioner Knowlton which he had left in front of his home for a few minutes. A piece of newspaper, blown by the wind, frightened the horse which started back breaking his bridle. The horse then started down toward Canal street. As he turned the corner the carriage was overturned and the horse clearing himself came up through Chestnut street to City Square where Inspector McKay had no difficulty in catching him.

A Rush To File Republican Nominations.

It Is Bryant Against The Field.

Contests Probable in All Wards of The City.

Tonight at 7.30 o'clock is the time at which nominations for candidates to be voted for at the Republican Municipal caucuses, will be received by the secretaries of the several wards and already there is a hustle to be the first to file lists of delegates for mayoralty candidates.

In Ward One it was thought that Packard would be the first to appear at the door of Secretary Isaac but Bryant men stole a march on him, and at 10.30 Sunday morning a man with a Bryant list of delegates took up his position. He was followed later by a Packard man. It is quite well understood that neither Mr. Jameson or Mr. Jones will make any attempt to capture the ward, but will let Packard and Bryant fight it out among themselves.

In Ward Two, there will be two lists for mayoralty delegates. One of these lists is pledged to Bryant and the other lists made up so that each of the other candidates will have two delegates. This is also pledged to vote for anybody except Bryant and it is understood that they have agreed to this. Up to Sunday noon the Bryant list was not completed and his friends were gunning for names. They will probably succeed.

In Ward Three there is also a contest to be the first to file a list, and a man has camped out on Secretary Young's door step for nearly a week. He should be rewarded In this ward there will be but two lists for mayoralty delegates. One will favor Mr. Jones and the other Mr. Bryant. There will also be two lists for councilmen and two lists for ward committee and without doubt there will be as hot a fight all around in this ward as in any other.

In Ward Four the fight on mayoralty delegates will be between Mr. Packard and Mr. Bryant.

It is in Ward Five that the great fight will be fought. Here the contest will be between Mr. Jameson and Mr. Bryant. Friends of both candidates have been hard at work for days, and the indications are that it will be the largest attended caucus in the history of the ward. Personal canvass is being made, and every voter is urged to come to the caucus. Two hundred is a large number to attend a caucus in this ward, but it would not be surprising if when the ballots are counted the number was over four hundred.

In Ward Six, according to rumor, there will be two lists of mayoralty delegates. It said that both lists will be unpledged, although it is generally conceded that one of the lists will be for Bryant and the other list for anybody but Bryant.

Bad Smashup.

The horse of Senator Sprague ran away in City Square this morning and succeeded in smashing his buggy before he was stopped. The horse which was left in front of Wilson's store, started up Hancock street on his own account. When the sewer trench in front of the Ledger office was reached he started around the end but as he did so the rear wheels caught in the planking and were ripped off. The horse continued with the remainder of the carriage to the corner of Temple street where he was captured.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while with out relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

Adams Wins and the Crescents Lose.—Atlantics Play a Tie.

Adams Academy defeated Roxbury Latin school Saturday afternoon at Merrymount Park. The game throughout was close and exciting but full of disputes. One, unfortunately, ended in a hand to hand fight, Roxbury Latin giving the first provocation.

Not being able to stop Adams gains, Roxbury resorted to punching and charging. The Adams boys were forced to defend themselves. It was not till the officials interfered that the quarrel was peacefully ended. Roxbury Latin was much the heavier team.

The latter kicked off to Adams in the first half, who failed to gain on downs and were forced to punt. Roxbury then had little trouble in gaining. After five minutes' play Adams began to check their opponents gains. Adams got the ball on a fumble, and Thomas made a thirty-five yard run for a touchdown. Adams now got up nerve and at the end of the half was pressing Roxbury's line hard.

Between the halves another game wss going on and there was no little excitement for the next half hour.

In second half Adams goal was never in danger. Roxbury made repeated fumbles and could not stop the new interference of Adams guards back. The half was full of punting and short runs. With eight minutes to play, the ball was with Roxbury in their 3-yard line. They failed to gain through the tackles and lost the ball on a fumble which Elcock of Adams fell on, thus securing the game. The rest of the half the ball remained in the middle of the field, Roxbury trying hard to break up Adams light line. Time was called with the ball on Adams 40-yard line.

A Tie Game.

Atlantic A. A. played a tie game with Cathedral A. A. of Boston, Saturday, neither side being able to score. On account of the approach of darkness short halves were agreed upon. Scharnagel, Locke and Saunders excelled for Atlantic, while Flynn and Fitz of Cathedral stopped the end gains of Atlantic. Locke, in the second half made a sensational run, but of no avail, as time was called before the play was made.

West Quincy Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise was sprung on Mr. Alex. Michael at his home on Caledonia avenue on Friday, Oct. 25, when a large party of friends, numbering sixty, took the house by storm. After he came to his senses, Mr. R. C. Allen, on behalf of his friends, in a few words suitable to the occasion, presented him with a gold watch. A sumptuous supply of ice cream, coffee, etc., were sevred. Singing and dancing were kept up until the small hours o' morning.

Among the invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs Robert C. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. James McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Bissel, Mr. and Mrs. John Bissel, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stravaine, Mr. Mr. and Mrs. David Crammond, Mr. and Mrs. George Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. John Gamrie, Mr. and Mrs William Michael, Mr. and Mrs. William Beattie, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Russel, Mr. and Mrs. James Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig.

The first milestone on the journey toward bloodless surgery has been reached. Its name is adrenalin, that being the title of a chemical composition recently discovered by Dr. Jokichi Takamine, a well known and highly educated Japanese. Adrenalin is to medicine what liquid air is to science, the only difference being that the chemical is under complete control, with unlimited possibilities before it.

By the local application of adrenalin, in solution of one part to 5,000, operations may be performed on the nose, ear and eye without the spilling of a drop of blood. Such operations have also been performed with adrenalin in solution of one part to 10,000.

Thus has it been demonstrated that the discovery is the most powerful medicine known and at the same time, it might be said, the most expensive. Physicians buy it at $1 a grain, or $7,000 a pound.

The isolation of the blood pressure raising constituent of the suprarenal gland is of course the chief virtue of adrenalin, and its uses and developments along this particular line are unlimited. It has also been ascertained, however, that adrenalin is a most powerful cardiac stimulant, and it has been hinted by physicians that it may be possible to resuscitate persons who have apparently died of heart failure.

Diphtheria Germs Fifteen Years Old.

In a recent investigation which was made to discover in what manner diphtheria was contracted it developed that two children had made their way to an attic and had there opened an old trunk and played with toys that belonged to a child who had died of diphtheria fifteen years previously. There was no other way in which the disease could have been contracted.

Seasickness Exposition.

An exposition dealing with all the means for preventing seasickness has been held at Ostend. It comprised apparatus for diminishing the effects of the motion of a vessel, plans of special vessels; designed to avoid movements producing seasickness; apparatus for holding the viscera (abdomen) rigidly in place, plans for ventilation and renewal of the air of cabins, deodorizing agents, hygiene of seasickness, remedies, etc.

Effect of Light on Silkworms.

Some curious experiments with silkworms made recently in France may be used as the basis of a new sex theory even more remarkable than that of Dr. Schenk of Vienna. The experiments were made by M. Camille Flammarion, the celebrated French astronomer, and were described at a meeting of the Academie des Sciences by M. Bouquet de la Grye, who declared that tests made on a great number of silkworms showed that those bred under natural light produced an equal number of male and female worms, while those bred under a glass of a light violet color produced 77 per cent of males.

Device to Measure Wits.

An Iowa professor, Carl E. Seashore, comes to the center with a psycho mechanical device to measure brain power. Professor Seashore says: "I can tell what scholar is the brightest, what pupil is the earnest plodder, what one is quick but unreliable. In short, the psychergograph will test the power of the individual and compare the capacity of many persons to do certain kinds of work specified, to associate ideas, to develop mental working power with age and to perform any other mental acts and services."

Boon For Submarine Travel.

The new cleptoscope of Signors Rosso and Laurenti, two Italian naval engineers, is claimed to be the most successful solution thus far of the problem of giving vision to the crews of submarine vessels. It has a range of 60 degrees, showing objects on the water distinctly and without distortion, and the only part of the apparatus reaching above the surface is a practically invisible tube five inches in diameter.

Boiler Inspection In France.

The laws governing boiler inspections in France are exceedingly liberal, which does not imply that they are exceedingly safe to the public. Boilers must be inspected when made, when repaired and when changing owners; also every tenth year anyhow. "Voluntary inspection," whatever that may be, must be at "reasonable intervals."

Gunnar Anderson, a Scandinavian botanist, makes a specialty of the study of plant growth inside the arctic circle. The total number of flowering species so far identified is about 900, of which 435 are in Iceland, 286 in Greenland and the rest mostly in Spitzbergen.

The arctic summers, though short, are often hot and dry, and the lack of moisture keeps plant life dwarfed. Many of the species are the same as in larger forms in southern lands.

Parsnips Poisonous When Wild.

The common garden parsnip, Pastinaca sativa, when it runs wild becomes a skin poison, somewhat after the manner of Rhus toxicodendron. It is especially poisonous when the dew is on, but when dry is said to be entirely safe. Upon children's hands and feet this wild parsnip will set up quite a smart rash, but a wash of salt water is said to be a speedy cure.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Burglars broke into the postoffice at Woodsville, N. H., but they were frightened away and nothing was stolen.

Mrs. Thomas Danforth committed suicide at Madison, Me., by taking paris green. She was about 60 years old.

Walter Day of Chelsea, Me., died after being thrown from his wagon while driving.

While lighting the gas in her home at New Haven, Mrs. Mary Ambrose, aged 70, ignited her clothing and was fatally burned.

A spark from a wood fire in the kitchen stove set fire to the clothing of Florence Donnelly, 8 years old, at Boston and she was so terribly burned that she died an hour later.

Frank Phelps, aged 18, of Stafford Springs, Conn., was sitting on a log with his gun between his knees, when it was discharged, blowing the top of his head off.

An Interesting Decision

Charleston, Oct. 28.—The court of common pleas in Florence county has decided that a marriage confracted in this state between a white man and a negro woman in 1867 was invalid and that the children born of such marriage do not inherit an estate left to the lawful grandchildren of the testatrix. The real estate in dispute is said to be valuable and the loss will be heavy to the mulatto claimants.

Drawbar Gave Way

Clinton, Mass., Oct. 28.—A special freight train on the Boston and Maine railroad was wrecked near Lancaster yesterday. The dropping of a drawbar sent three flat cars across the highway at Dolphin's crossing and the track was torn up for a long distance. The loss to the railroad company will probably reach $5000.

Generous Newspaper Man

Newport, R. I., Oct. 28.—Every employe of the Newport Daily News received from the owner of the paper, T. T. Pitman, from the editorial department down to the carriers, an envelope containing crisp bills for profits for the past year. This is the beginning of a permanent profit-sharing plan.

Plenty of Black Bears

Bennington, Vt., Oct. 28.—The first half of the open season for hunting deer has passed, and as far as known not a deer has been killed in Bennington county. Black bears, however, have been plenty, five having been killed during the week.

Champion Smashes a Record

New York, Oct. 28.—At the Vailsburg, N. J., track yesterday Albert Champion, on a motor bicycle, made a mile in 1:12 2-5, breaking the world's record for this sort of a machine.

His Forty-Third Birthday

Washington, Oct. 28.—Yesterday was the 43d anniversary of the birth of President Roosevelt. There was no formal celebration and the day was spent very quietly.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

LEFT TO THE UNIONS

Strike Action Shifted by Textile Council

DECISION OF SPINNERS

May Be Against Going Out, but It Would Have No Effect If Other Four Unions Vote Otherwise—A Struggle Looked For

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 28.—A meeting of the Textile Council, at which all the unions in the city were represented, was held Saturday night. The letter of the manufacturers refusing an advance in wages was discussed at length.

The council decided that it would leave the matter of a strike entirely in the hands of the unions, which action is in line with its previous determination.

This determination has been forecasted several days. It was decided to hold general meetings of all the unions next Wednesday night, when action will be taken. A vote to strike is expected. If so it will begin the following Monday morning.

There is strong sentiment here against a strike because of the effect it wil have on all classes of business. The manufacturers, however, look forward to a strike, as do the labor leaders.

It is possible that the Spinners' union may not vote to strike, in view of the similar action taken by them before the postponement of the strike.

This, however, will have no bearing upon the action of the other unions, as it has been decided that in case four of the five unions vote to strike the vote shall become operative.

The manufacturers look at it as a contest between themselves and M. C. D. Borden and not between the owners of the mills and their employes.

Yet if a contest is brought about the matter will not be between Mr. Borden and the other manufacturers, but between the operatives and the mill owners of this city.

Struck For One Man

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The Mohawk Knitting mill at Cohoes is idle owing to a strike of the knitters and winders. The men demanded that a man who had been discharged for what they claim is a trivial offense to be taken back, causing a suspension of operations, throwing out of employment about 500 men and women. The men say they will not return to work unless the discharged employe is taken back and the company refuses to do so.

Desperate Race For Liberty

Nashville, Oct. 28.—A desperate man fought his way clear of two city detectives here yesterday and after a thrilling chase made his escape. In his race for liberty he utilized a two-horse wagon team, a horse and buggy and a riding horse, all forcibly taken, while two dead bloodhounds mark the first portion of his trail. Officers believe the man is one of the gang that held up the Great Northern express near Wagner, Mont., last June, his attempt to get change for a $20 bill of the series secured in that robbery attracting attention of the police to him.

King Afflicted With Cancer

London, Oct. 28.—Reynold's Weekly Newspaper is the first British paper to assert that King Edward is suffering from cancer of the throat. It declares that since the king's accession three operations have been performed. "Assistance was hastily summoned," says this journal, "as his majesty was breathing with difficulty and an immediate operation was performed. But it was regarded as only a temporary relief, the injured epitholium now having become a cancerous growth, and serious developments are expected."

At Least Twenty-One Killed

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—A large force of workmen was kept engaged yesterday in clearing away the debris at the scene of Friday's fatal fire. No bodies have been found since midnight Saturday, when the 21st victim of the fire was recovered from the ruins. The police and fire officials believe that some of the missing may still be in the ruins.

Mrs. Gebhard Gets Divorce

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 28.—Judge Jones has dissolved the marriage existing between Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gebhard, granting a divorce to the wife on her cross-bill of complaint. Both are given liberty to remarry and Mrs. Gebhard is awarded $1000 and costs, attorneys' fees, etc.

Alleged Embezzler Dead

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 28.—Charles H. Faulkner of New Britain, who has been in the county jail here awaiting trial on the charge of embezzling $16,000 tax money from the town of New Britain, was found dead in his cell this morning. Death was caused by heart disease.

Little One Burned to Death

Malden, Mass., Oct. 28.—Dera Dodge, aged 3, with a number of playmates had made a bonfire of leaves and the flames set fire to the little one's clothing. Her parents put out the fire with rugs and blankets, but she died in a short time.

FOR THE SECOND TIME

Caleb Powers Receives a Sentence of Imprisonment For Life

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 28.—Ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers has again been convicted of being an accessory before the fact to the murder of Governor William Goebel in Jaunary, 1900, and for the second time has been sentenced to imprisonment for life.

The second trial began Oct. 8, continued with three sessions daily, and the court adjourned Saturday night. The present term ended Saturday. Arguments were limited, so that the case went to the jury at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the verdict of guilty following soon.

Powers sat pale and motionless when the verdict was announced by the foreman, B. S. Calvert, his old schoolmate. Opposite Powers, on the other side of the court room, with the attorneys, sat Arthur Goebel, brother of the late governor, with his eyes fixed on the prisoner.

The attorneys of Powers shook his hand, expressing aloud their belief in his innocence.

Women crowded around Powers, embracing and kissing him, and tears were shed. The defense having filed a motion for a new trial, Judge Cantrill, at 4:30 p. m. heard arguments therefor.

Then a motion for a new trial was overruled and the case will be appealed. The sentence was read and judgment suspended, pending the decision of the higher tribunal. Powers was taken to Frankfort and committed to jail without bail.

ROBBERS AT HAVERHILL

Enter a House, Assault Owner, and Escape on Freight Train

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 28.—A daring attempt at robbery was made by three men at the house of John Donovan on Eighth avenue, when they entered the house by meas of false keys and lay in wait for the owner, sandbagging him and assaulting him upon his entrace. The would-be robbers obtained entrance to the house some time before midnight and at 12:25 Sunday morning Mr. Donovan, who does business as a fruit vender, returned home and was immediately set upon by the men and beaten severely. He shouted lustily for help and his cries attracted the attention of persons in the vicinity who broke into the house and frightened the intruders away. Two of the latter were badly bitten on the hands by Donovan as they were attempting to escape.

They made their exit from the house by jumping through a window, taking the whole sash with them. The police found that the men boarded a freight train which left at 1 o'clock for Lawrence.

The Lawrence authorities made a search of the train when it arrived there, but learned that the men had been seen to leave the train near the Lawrence bridge, and all trace of them has been lost. The men are known to the police, however, and their early capture is considered probable.

Mountaineers on the Run

Uniontown, Pa., Oct. 28.—The western slope of the Allegheny mountains, through Fayette county, are ablaze from the Yough river through into West Virginia, and mountaineers are fleeing from their doomed homes with their families. Careless hunters started a dozen fires during the past week and the brush is as dry as tinder. The fire has been spreading for a week and the glare at night can be seen for miles. The destruction has been enormous.

Charged With Theft of $6000

Halifax, Oct. 28.—Adam A. Harley, aged 35, former manager of the bank of British North America at Fredericton, N. B., was arrested last night on a train bound for Quebec. He is charged with stealing $6000 belonging to the bank.

PLANS GREAT MUSEUM.

Scheme to Erect One In New York Costing $20,000,000.

Henry A. Spaulding, a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and several other art societies, has projected plans for what may be the greatest museum in the world, says the New York correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch. It is to be called the United States Museum of Living History and Court of All Nations. Its estimated cost is approximately $20,000,000, and it will contain a permanent exhibition of everything good in contemporaneous art and manufactures in every country of the world. At first blush Mr. Spaulding's plans might appear more or less chimerical, but his standing in the community warrants the interest and respect which his announcement has received. Mr. Spaulding for twenty years was the foreign representative of Tiffany & Co., and during his visits at the European courts and palaces he formulated his plans. They were partly disclosed two years ago, when he suggested that the museum should be built on Riverside drive, but at that time the money was not forthcoming. Since then several millionaires of this city, according to Mr. Spaulding, have assured him that they will contribute several millions to the project.

The proposed site for the museum, however, has been changed to Pelham park, which is in the borough of the Bronx, on Long Island sound, just east of Hell Gate, and is in many respects ideal for the location of the museum. The museum, according to the plans, will be in the form of a circle 800 feet in diameter, including five circular galleries. These galleries are to be intersected diametrically on the ground floor by four wings at right angles to each other. The wings are to be known respectively as the Donor's Hall, the Hall of Literature, the Hall of Religion and the Hall of Gifts and are to be surmounted at their intersection by a central and open dome rising to a height of 404 feet and having at its base a diameter of 250 feet. George B. Post, the architect, estimates that it will take five years to construct the building.

HOW THE OREGON FOUGHT

Lieutenant's Graphic Story of Her Part In Santiago Battle.

One of the most graphic bits of description heard at the Schley inquiry was the story told by Lieutenant A. A. Ackerman, who was in command of the after 13 inch turret and the after 8 inch turrets of the Oregon on the day of the battle off Santiago. Describing the beginning of the action he said:

"We closed up the hatches and laid out fire hose and immediately turned the guns on the entrance to the harbor. As we passed between the Iowa and the Texas those ships seemed to be practically at anchor. We were going very fast then, and forced draft was covering our quarter deck an inch or more deep with cinders, many of them redhot. Water was running from every hydrant; we had to keep the decks from burning. At that time the fire of the enemy and of our ships was very heavy. The water was whipped up in all directions; shots flew overhead. I think it was the most exciting time of the whole engagement.

"Just at that time it was reported that the torpedo boats were coming out. I saw two of them come out of the entrance to the harbor and steam close along the shore. One would seem to run a little ahead of the other and the other would catch up, and one turned off a little as if she was going to attack the Gloucester. The Gloucester ran up very close to them. As I could not get my guns to bear on the heavy ships of the enemy I thought I would try a shot at the torpedo boats. I took my time about it, waited until those boats were lapping and estimated the range as 2,200 yards from the torpedo boats. I fired a 13 inch gun, and when the smoke cleared away I saw one of those boats blow up. I do not claim it was done by my shot. There were several others firing at that time. It is a wonder to me they were not blown up sooner."

M. HUTIN'S NOVEL SCHEME

Plan to Inspect Panama Canal Route From Airship.

To inspect the route of the proposed isthmian waterway from a balloon or flying machine, says the Washington correspondent of the New York World, is the plan which M. Maurice Hutin, president of the Panama Canal company, is urging before the isthmian canal commission.

Fresh from Paris and the atmosphere of flying machines, M. Hutin is himself convinced that this method is wholly practicable for a study of the topography of the isthmus of Panama and that such an inspection of the proposed canal route would be of inestimable value.

A panorama of photographs might be taken showing minutely every elevation and depression, every hill, slope, vale and water course and the topography of the entire route. Furthermore, those making the inspection would be removed from the dangers and discomforts of the burning heat, fever and malaria.

M. Hutin is said to have impressed several members of the commission with the feasibility of the plan and that a midair view of the situation is the most direct way of ascertaining how much work has been done or how much there is left to do. It is not thought likely, however, that the commission as a whole will take the suggestion seriously.

Couldn't Afford to Run.

"I am not a candidate for the senate," said Congressman Cannon of Illinois recently. "I have not fifty thousand dollars to throw away. It would cost that much to make the race, and I am certain I could not win."

LAW'S DEBT

Paid by Leon Czolgosz In the Electric Chair

Wanted No Prayers or Religion, Living or Dead

Request of Relatives to Witness Final Scene Was Rejected

Auburn, N. Y., Oc. 29—Leon F. Czolgosz has made reparation with his life to the law for the murder of President McKinley and he went to the electric chair to be killed unshriven and unrepentant.

Czolgosz was dressed in a very simple manner for the execution, a pair of black trousers, a loose gray shirt, and a pair of gray socks completing the outfit. He wore no undergarments and no shoes. The left leg of the trousers was slit at the bottom to permit the free adjustment of the electrode, and the shirt was open at the neck so the doctors could take the heart count with the stethoscope, if any palpitation occurred after the current had passed through the body.

CZOLGOSZ IN THE DEATH CHAIR.

He suffered a slight nervous attack late yesterday but remained sullen and stoical up to the time the prison closed. He refused to heed the words of the priests who came to urge spiritual preparation for death and declined either to re-embrace Roman Catholicism or renounce anarchy. He showed no strength of love for kin, nor did he turn to any of those higher considerations which ordinarily claim the thoughts of men occupying his position. He may have suffered untold torture, but outwardly he seemed sullen and indifferent.

The state is not to surrender possession of his body and by sundown it will have been secretly buried in ground controlled by the officials of the Auburn prison.

Waldeck Czolgosz, brother of the murderer, foreseeing endless difficulties and possibly angry demonstrations in an attempt to give the body ordinary burial, heeded the advice of Superintendent of Prisons Collins and Warden Mead, and formally relinquished all claim to it. He merely stipulated that at the close of the autopsy the body should be buried intact.

All chance of an unhappy sequel to the execution, either in displays of popular contempt or the exhibition of ghastly relics, is therefore finally estopped. The plan of burning his clothing and papers was carried out immediately after the execution.

Czolgosz held his last two interviews last night, the first with Superintendent Collins and the second with his brother and brother-in-law. Both of the interviews were brief and the interviewers did most of the talking until the question of religion was mentioned, when Czolgosz awoke from his seeming calm and violently denounced the church and the clergy and made his relatives promise that there should be no services for him living or dead.

Prior to the interviews, late in the evening, Czolgosz reluctantly received Fathers Fudzinski and Hickey. This was late in the afternoon and occurred after he had once before refused to meet them. When they reached the prison Superintendent Collins conveyed their request for an interview to the prisoner. Czolgosz sent back word that he did not care to see them, but the priests asked to be allowed to go to him despite his refusal.

Superintendent Collins consented and personally escorted them to the cell. The priests remained with Czolgosz for three quarters of an hour and earnestly pleaded with the prisoner to repent and pray for divine forgiveness. He rejected all their advances, however, and they regretfully withdrew. They told the prisoner they would hold themselves ready to answer a call from him at any hour of the night.

It was 7 o'clock when Superintendent Collins went into the death house and tried to get the prisoner to talk to him. Although he remained in the cell some time he was apparently not successful in getting anything material from him.

At 8 o'clock the brother and brother-in-law arrived and Superintendent Collins took them down to the condemned man's cell. There was no demonstration when they met. Czolgosz stepped to the front of his steel cage and said: "Hello."

The brother ventured the remark: "I wish you would tell us, Leon, who got you into this scrape?"

The assassin answered in a slow, hesitating manner: "No one; nobody had anything to do with it but me."

"That is not how you were brought up" said his brother, "and you ought to tell us everything now."

"I haven't got anything to tell" he answered in a surly manner.

"Do you want to see the priests again?" asked his brother. And the assassin answered with more vehemence than he had previously shown: "No, damn them, don't send them here again; I don't want them."

The brother-in-law interjected here, "That's right, Leon." The brother looked rather disturbed by the answer. Then stepping up close to the bars the condemned man said: "And don't you have any praying over me when I'm dead. I don't want it. I don't want any of their damned religion."

There was a painful pause of a few minutes and then the relatives resumed casual conversation with him, to which he replied in monosyllables until the brother-in-law suggested, much to Superintendent Collins' surprise, that he and the brother be permitted to witness the execution. Before Superintendent Collins could reply Leon Czolgosz said: "Yes, Mr. Superintendent, let them see me killed."

Superintendent Collins told the trio in emphatic terms that no such thing could be allowed and ordered them to say good-bye. Czolgosz walked to the back of his cell, sat down on the edge of his cot and did not answer the last farewell.

When the relatives had arrived at the warden's office they again renewed their request to see the execution, to which Mr. Collins replied: "Emphatically no. Czolgosz will be killed at 7 o'clock tomorrow and if you apply to the warden in the afternoon you may be able to see the body." The two men were then let out of the prison.

A few minutes after they had left Superintendent Collins received a telephone message from the chief of police of Cleveland announcing that the father of the convicted man had signed an agreement similar to the one signed by the brother here last evening that the prison authorities should have the disposal of the body.

The prison was absolutely quiet at 10 o'clock. A little crowd that had gathered about the main entrance at dusk quickly dispersed without any suggestion from police or guards. The superintendent and warden retired at 10 o'clock with the announcement that nothing would be given out and that no one would be permitted either to enter or leave the prison until this morning. Before the superintendent retired the death watch reported to him that Czolgosz was sleeping soundly.

BROKERS ARE MISSING

Many Clients Are Said to Mourn Their Departure

WARRANTS OUT FOR ARREST

For Alleged Use of Mails In a Scheme to Defraud, but Officers' Search Is Unrewarded—Said to Have Handled $1,000,000 In Manipulative Deals

Boston, Oct. 29.—What the United States marshal's office declares to be one of the biggest frauds they have ever had to deal with in this city has just been brought to their attention and yesterday warrants were issued at the request of the United States district attorney for the arrest of certain members of a firm of State street brokers on the charge of using the United States mails in a scheme to defraud. The names of the men involved and of the firm were not disclosed by the district attorney, as it is understood that the men could not be found.

A half dozen young women engaged as typewriters and as telephone operatives employed by the concern, upon being asked for information, seemed to be wholly without knowledge of the whereabouts of the men wanted.

These young women were escorted to the office of the United States marshal for examination, after which they were permitted to leave on giving assurance that they were ready to respond as witnesses whenever wanted.

The case is believed to be similar to the noted Dean case which stirred New York about a year ago. The conduct of discretionary pools and the handling of customers' money in blind combinations is what caused the postoffice authorities to act. It is said that the firm has handled $1,000,000 since Jan. 1, 1901.

The method of the firm, so it is said, was so very simple that even the inspectors were surprised. People all over the country, so it is alleged, were written to and told what excellent chances there was to invest and net large returns. Pools were formed and those desirous of getting rich quickly were cordially invited to send all they had. "Send $100, $200, $500, $1000, or even $2000; send us all you can and get rich fast with us," was the message sent, so it is said, and then the dupes began to be heard from. Money came pouring into the office from all directions and from all sorts of sources.

"Our manipulative deals" was the term used, and so the subscribers were not supposed to know what their money was to be invested for or when. So for this reason it did not cause any surprise if they did not hear from the company as to the manner in which their money had been invested for two or three weeks. It is said when a report was made to the manner of the investment, two or three weeks after the money had been sent out, it would be to the effect that the pool had been formed on some well known stock, and that as the quotations had gone down, the margin had been swept in, and that more money was necessary immediately in order to save the stock.

And then, on receipt of this information, the investors would send money, only to have that too swept in. It always happened, so it is said, that no report would be made about the stock purchased until it was found that the stock had gone down.

Finally some of the subscribers of the fund became suspicious, and reported the matter to the postoffice authorities, with the statement that the scheme seemed to be fraudulent, and as the mails had been used for the promotion of the plan, it was determined to work the case up against the promoters.

Specimen of German Bluster

Berlin, Oct. 29.—During an address at a meeting of the Fleet society in Hanover, Captain Von Weltheim of the navy is represented to have said: "Germany's interests in the five republics of Central America, in view of American competition, can only be maintained when we have a fleet strong enough to say to the Americans, 'hands off.'" This declaration was received with stormy applause.

Father Crowley Talks Back

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Rev. Jeremiah Crowley, the Roman Catholic priest excommunicated for his charges against auxiliary Bishop Muldoon, has given out a copy of a long letter addressed by him to Cardinal Martinelli. He reiterates his charges and refuses to retract them. He also asserts that he has been made to suffer for telling of what he declares are the misdeeds of others.

Combine on Frozen Delicacy

Indianapolis, Oct. 29.—A combination of all the ice cream manufacturing establishments here is being effected. It is understood that eastern capitalists are back of the movement and that the purchase price will exceed $300,000.

Execution Sidetracked

Washington, Oct. 29.—The war department has been informed that Phineas Foutz, a soldier convicted of murder in the Philippines and under sentence of death, has escaped. Foutz murdered a Filipino woman.

SENATOR HOAR EXPLAINS

Why He Will Not Deliver Eulogy on the Late President McKinley

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 29—Mayor O'Connell last night sent to the city council the letter of Senator Hoar, asking to be permitted to decline the invitation to eulogize President McKinley.

Senator Hoar's letter refers to the fact that he will be extremely busy the next few weeks, but if business was the only reason he should endeavor to overcome it. Continuing, he says: "But I ought in frankness to state another and even stronger reason. I think the eulogy on the president should be delivered by some person who was in full accord with him upon the principal political measure of his administration. I never questioned his absolute sincerity, his devotion to the public welfare, his love of liberty and his desire to do his duty as God gave him to see it. I was fully in accord with him on the great fiscal measures with which he was identified. But, as you know, I differed from him and his administration—and my opinion on that subject has been strengthened and not weakened in the lapse of time—in regard to his policy in dealing with the Philippine islands."

Boy Used Knife In a Dispute

Waltham, Mass., Oct. 29.—A dispute between two 8-year-old boys resulted yesterday in a serious stabbing affair and Henry F. Marcy is in a critical condition from a bad knife wound in his lung, inflicted, he said, by a boy named Sanderson. The two boys were playing in Marcy's yard. Suddenly Marcy was heard to utter a sharp cry and when picked up was found to be bleeding profusely from a wound in the breast. Neither boy was able to tell how the affair occurred except that there was some dispute.

Boulder Placed on Track

Torrington, Conn., Oct. 29.—An attempt was made last night to wreck a passenger train due here at 7:46. A huge boulder was placed on the track near the station. The train struck the boulder with such force that it was embedded in the front of the engine. There were about 50 passengers aboard the train, but none were seriously injured. The authorities can find no clue to the persons who attempted the deed.

Lucky to Escape So Easily

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 29.—Walter York and Frederick Edwards fell three stories in an elevator in the Spare Dry Goods company's building yesterday. On the elevator reaching the top of the shaft the cable parted. The car fell to the cellar, and so great was the shock when it struck the floor that York had both legs broken and Edwards received a compound fracture of the left leg.

Boy In Critical Condition

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 29.—Karl Robbins, the boy accidentally shot by his playmate, Elvan Thurber, is in a critical condition and the physicians hold out little hopes for his recovery. Young Thurber has been admitted to bail in $2500. The Swampscott police investigated the affair and are convinced that the shooting was accidental.

Workmen Got an Increase

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 29.—The Goodyear machine turn workmen's strike at the shoe factory of Albion Bartlett here was settled yesterday at a conference between Mr. Bartlett and Agent J. E. Donovan of the Hand Workmen's union, Haverhill. The men receive a substantial increase in wages. All returned to work at 1 p. m.

Said to Have Made Bad Coins

Boston, Oct. 29.—William Weiner and Israel Usher were arrested yesterday on a charge of making counterfeit copper coins. The secret service department has been searching for the plant conducted by the men for some time. Two arrests were made in New York recently which led to the arrest of Weiner and Usher.

Started For Norway, Died at St Louis

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 29.—Hans Hansen, a shoemaker of this city, left a week ago Saturday for a visit to Norway, his native country, to visit his aged mother. Word was received here yesterday of his suicide in St. Louis. He left here apparently in the best of spirits. He had money in the bank and left a substantial balance to his credit.

Judge Showed Leniency

Boston, Oct. 29.—Alonzo Whiteman, ex-mayor of Duluth and ex-state senator of Minnesota, who pleaded guilty a few days ago to one count of larceny, was placed on probation by Judge Bell yesterday. It is understood that restitution has been made to the persons from whom the defendant obtained money illegally.

A Boom For New Bedford

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 29.—Two new fine goods mills and an addition to one of the plants already established are contemplated in this city. The addition will be built at the Dartmouth mill, one of the newest and most successful of the cotton factories here.

Murder In Connecticut

South Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 29.—Benedict Denovryo, an Italian laborer, shot and instantly killed Jerry Barry at Wilson's Point last night after becoming involved in an argument. The Italian is hiding in the woods near the scene of the crime.

Killed on a Crossing

Milford, Mass., Oct. 29.—William Pinkerton, 32 years old, rode in front of a train on his bicycle at a crossing here yesterday and was instantly killed. It is supposed that he did not see the train.

Good Afternoon.

The Citizen's Temperance League has woke up. It seems it was conducting a still hunt, as other politicians do now-a-days. We expect more of this committee, however, and hope it will not continue to hide its light under a bushel.

The position of secretary of a ward committee is not to be coveted if such transactions as those of last night are to be repeated at every election. It is surprising that things should have come to that pass in the city of Quincy. One would hardly think that first place on a ballot was so important. It is almost an insult to the intelligence of voters, when people expect they will vote for the first list of delegates, regardless of their preference for candidate for Mayor.

Mr. Meyers' public declaration of his candidacy for the City Council was a letter admirably written and a good platform. It is to be regretted, however, that the gentleman did not wait until the present representatives from Ward One desired to retire. At present, Ward One is very ably represented, and the votes of these gentlemen are invariably on the right side. They should be re-elected as long as they are willing to serve the city in the Council.

From an acquaintance for many years with Representative Badger, and a familiarity with his record in the City, Council and Legislature, we believe that Mr. Faxon does him an unwarrantable injustice in his latest attack. Mr. Faxon may have quoted his record correctly, but where there are only three votes which meet with Mr. Faxon's disapproval, there are probably fifty, perhaps 100, which were important, which were cast on the right side. We regret that Representative Badger did not answer the questions recently propounded by Mr. Faxon, believing that if he had the clouds which have gathered would be dispelled.

Drift of Opinion.

☞One wonders sometimes whether the new fussiness about the body really tends as much to human happiness as the old ignorance or solid resignation. It certainly increases greatly the objects of fear, and every fear tends to impair the serenity which is the base of happiness. It also helps to keep alive the feeble, who are often in the way and do not improve the race, and it very decidedly interferes with that "even flow of promotion" which is almost as necessary to society at large as to the army or the civil service. There is, too, some diminution of courage, however slight, in facing risks, and a great increase in that habit of self pity which is apt, especially with the frail, to enfeeble character. Upon the whole, we fancy the result is beneficial, especially to those at the two ends of life. Children are not only happier but positively better for the new healthiness secured by science—an opinion which will be endorsed, we believe, by every manager of a good preparatory school—and to the old the benefit is indescribable. They will die as of yore, though later, but they are spared half the old aches and pains, so that "cheery old age" instead of being noticeable is the common and expected condition.—The Spectator.

HOT POLITICS.

Almost Free Fight for First Place.

City Clerk a Leader on One Side.

Partiality Shown to Messenger in Ward Three.

Monday night, at 7.30, was the first time at which nomination papers for the Republican municipal caucuses next Wednesday could be filed, and there was quite a hustle in most of the wards to see who should get the first place for mayoralty delegates.

The only ward in which there was any great excitement was in Ward One, and it looked at one time as though there would be a scrap, but cool heads prevailed and no blows were struck.

Sunday, before noon, Howard Hunt, who was said to hold the Bryant papers took his position at the door of Secretary Isaac on Linden place, and he had things to himself until Monday. During that day George Westland appeared, and it was said that Packard papers were in his inside pocket. Both men stood by the door but Hunt had the better of the position. Along about noon Harry Matthews appeared to spell Hunt and the two stopped a few minutes and engaged in conversation.

Westland made his appearance about 3.30 and through a ruse managed to get hold of the door knob. Matthews later got possession of the knob and he held it from one side and Westland the other.

Word was sent to City Clerk Cleaves, a Bryant man, and he immediately left his office at City Hall and hastened to the scene. About the same time Officer Morrissey and James Dunn came down to spell Westland. The City Clerk was unable to persuade Westland to give up his position and became considerably stirred up because he refused.

Later, Dunn took charge of the door knob and held on until 7.30 and he got the Packard list of delegates filed first.

It is reported that after Dunn came upon the scene he threatened to shoot Matthews, if he did not let go. Dunn when seen later in the evening, denied this, and said he did not have any revolver; he also said that he did not strike Matthews.

Early in the afternoon it became noised about what was taking place, and as the hour approached when papers would be received quite a number of well known politicians had business in the vicinity of Linden place, and every tree in that neighborhood sheltered a man. It was thought there might be more trouble, and it looked as though there would be but the City Clerk who was on the scene advised his henchmen that there should be no scrapping, and there was none.

Later when Hunt again came upon the scene, he made no attempt to force Dunn from the door, but allowed him to file his papers first. He then filed his own papers under protest, and the protest was noted on the envelope.

It is understood that the protest will be acted upon by the City Committee.

There were three papers filed, one probably for a candidate for the City Council.

MR. MATTHEW'S VERSION.

Harry Matthews, who relieved Howard Hunt, tells the following story of the occurrence at Mr. Isaac's house on Monday afternoon.

He says, I went there to relieve Hunt about five minutes past twelve. About 3.15 Westland appeared. I was then sitting in a chair, and as he approached I got up and took hold of the door knob to show him I was there first. We stood talking a few minutes, when in answer to a question by Westland we both walked to the end of the piazza.

When we came back he made a rush for the door knob and took hold of it. He held onto it until Mrs. Isaac came out, when he released his hold and I again obtained possession of the knob. The spindle of the knob was between my fingers. Westland then tried to put his fingers on the spindle, but there was not room enough for him to get his whole hand on, and he had two fingers on the spindle.

We stood this way until 4.15 when Dunn came down to relieve Westland who pulled his hand out and Dunn put his in.

Dunn then said to me, "Take your hand away," at the same time giving me a push.

I refused to do so. Dunn then said "If you do not, I will put a 44-calibre bullet through you."

I replied "you will, will you!"

Dunn the said 'Take your hand away if you do not, I will turn your face inside out." At the same time he gave me a push and my hand slipped out.

Mr. Cleaves and others then appeared and they advised me not to have any trouble and I made no further effort to take hold of the knob.

Dunn then threatened to put a bullet through anyone who tried to put his hand on the door. Hunt came down and relieved me at 5.30.

MR. WESTLAND'S VERSION.

George T. Westland gives this version of the happenings before the filing of nomination papers yesterday at Mr. Isaac's residence, Ward One.

I arrived at the serectary's home between 12 and 1 P. M., Monday, and found Mr. Matthews on a chair basking in the sun in the middle of the piazza. After engaging him in conversation for a while, Mr. Hunt whom Matthews had relieved for dinner was approaching and when he (Hunt) was turning the corner of Greenleaf street and Linden place, I stepped onto the piazza remarking to Matthews, "If you fellows don't want that door knob I'll take it." Matthews made no attempt whatever to get out of his chair which was several feet from the door.

Mr. Hunt stayed at this time about five minutes, and I was standing holding onto the knob while Matthews still sat in the chair.

About 3 P. M. Mr. Kittredge drove down in a buggy and Matthews left the premises and went out into the street to speak to Mr. Kittredge. I did not even at this time relinquish hold on the knob. Shortly after this, Mr. Dunn came that way collecting, and I asked him if he would relieve me for supper.

Shortly after, Mr. Dunn had gone, Mrs. Isaac came through the front door and came back again, and at each time Mr. Matthews made a spar for the knob but my hand was on the inside.

At about 4.45 Mr. Dunn came by agreement to relieve me for supper. He put his hand behind mine and as my hand was wedged between Dunn's on the inside and Matthews on the outside on pulling the wedge Matthew's hand gave way, and as far as any violence with 44 caliber revolvers or anything else is concerned I heard nothing or saw anything.

I returned to the scene at about 6 P. M., and from then until 7.30, the time for filing, everything was harmonious. As far as any disturbance is concerned Mrs. Isaac said she would never know anybody was there unless she saw them.

It is simply a case of Matthews being asleep and the wrong man in the wrong place. The enemy got on the inside by strategy, but unlike the incident out on the island of Samar the invaders were not Filipinos, and there was no blood spilled nor blows struck.

At South Quincy.

In Ward Three the list supposed to be the Bryant list was the first to be filed, but the Jones men raise the question as to whether there was not some underhanded work and if by the rules of the Republican City Committee that list was the first to be placed on the caucus ballot.

It seems that early Monday morning a man representing Mr. Jones appeared at Secretary Young's house. He tried Mr. Young's door and found it locked. A little later the door was unlocked from the inside, and when opened disclosed the Bryant man inside. According to Mr. Young, the Bryant man, who was Lafayette Gleason, appeared at his place at 11 o'clock Sunday night and he permitted him to wait inside. He also says that he informed Mr. Jones' henchmen that they could have their man come inside also. Mr. Jones and several of his close friends however deny this.

According to the story told Chairman Jameson Monday night by Mr. Young, the man did not appear until 11 o'clock Sunday night. Mr. Young however, intimated to a representative of the Ledger last week Thursday that there was a man on duty at his house at that time and had been there for some hours before.

When seen Monday night by a representative of the Ledger, Mr. Young refused to say how many papers had been filed, and the only answer to any question asked him was that he did not know. It is understood that the matter is to be brought up before the City Committee.

At West Quincy.

In Ward Four there was no excitement. But one list of Mayoralty candidates was filed and that was in the interest of Mr. Bryant. It was expected that Mr. Packard's friends would also file a list in this ward. However there is lots of time yet.

At Wollaston.

In Ward Five, the home of Mr. Jameson and Mr. Bryant, there was no excitement attending the filing of papers. Mr. Jameson's friends had a man on duty at Secretary DeNormandie's door Sunday afternoon, and he remained there all night. During the early hours of Monday morning two men appeared, but finding that some one was on duty they remarked that it was no use for them to stay, and they went away. Six sets of papers were filed. Two of these are supposed to have been Mayoralty delegates and the others for Councilmen.

BETTS AND FISHER

Their Downfall Not A Surprise Here.

Not As Much As Their Sudden Wealth.

Mr. Betts Once in the Employ of J. F. Merrill.

The Boston dispatch on the first page relative to the missing brokers, loses much of its local interest until it is known that Quincy men are at the head of the concern.

The story has reference to the brokerage firm of J. M. Fisher & Co., at 89 State street, Boston, and the members are said to be John M. Fisher and Frederick E. Betts, both of Quincy, and George Adams, residence unknown.

Mr. Betts' residence is on Washington street, opposite the present residence of John R. Graham. Great improvements have been made in the house and stable since they came into his possession, to the wonder of everyone. But a few years ago Betts was a grocery clerk in the employ of the Boston Branch grocery. He later entered a brokerage firm in Boston, and recently it became evident that he had struck it rich somehow. Stories of profitable speculation in stocks have been in circulation. Certainly, he had put on style, and had a fine stable of horses and carriages.

The office of the firm in Boston is commodious and rich in furnishings.

John M. Fisher is not generally known in Quincy although for the past two or three years he has resided here, his home being on Whitwell street. He recently purchased the Stevens place at Braintree and was having some alterations made, preparatory to moving in.

One on a Policeman.

Here is a good story that one of "Quincy's finest" tells of himself. A few days ago he sat in the police station eating his noon-day lunch when two girls very much excited appeared. They said that a woman dressed in black had entered the field near their home with a box under one arm. That she had dug a large hole and then placed the box in it and covered it up. They were so badly frightened that they did not dare approach. The officer hastily left his dinner, and arming himself with a shovel he visited the spot and set to work to unearth the buried box.

It was a warm day and the box was buried deep, and the officer perspired freely. At last he uncovered a shoe box and visions of a dastardly crime chased through the officer's brain. Finally the box was taken out and the cover removed, and there was brought to his vision a little black cat. Around its neck was a blue ribbon, to which had been tied a card bearing this inscription: "Good bye Lizzie."

The officer did not swear, although he undoubtedly felt like it. Hastily burying the box he returned to the police station only to find that the cockroaches had carried off his dinner.

Slight Fire.

The alarm from Box 152 Monday afternoon was for a fire in the house of George B. Loring of Gordon street, Norfolk Downs. The window curtains caught fire from some unknown cause. The fire was put out quickly. With the exception of the loss of curtains and a little scorching of the wood the damage was slight.

Braintree Voters.

In Braintree there are 1329 voters registered for the state election. There were some dropped but 116 names were added to the lists. The following table gives the net total in precincts:

WAS NOT SORRY

So Czolcosz Told the Officers.

Went to the Chair Without Fear.

In Four Minutes from First Shock Was Pronounced Dead.

Auburn, N. Y., 7.30 A. M.—It was at just 12 minutes and 30 seconds past 7 o'clock this morning that the assassin of President McKinley was electrocuted. A charge of 1700 volts was used.

Czolcosz went to the chair without any sign of fear and he told the officers on the way that he shot the President because he was an enemy of the good people and of the workingman. That he was not sorry for his crime.

He was hurried along to the chair and the current was quickly turned on when all was ready. In just four minutes he was pronounced dead.

The funeral of Court Officer Burns was held this morning from St. John's church, and was largely attended, among those present being a delegation from Division 18, A. O. H., and a number of the officers of the East Norfolk District. Requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Julian E. Johnstone.

Boston has an ordinance which reads in part as follows: "No clerk, employe, commissioner, member of any board or other officer of any department or branch of the city government, except those elected by popular vote, shall be an officer of any political caucus or a member of any political committee or convention."

CANDIDATE BOWKER.

His Connection With Court House Scandal.

Finding of Investigation Committee.

Republicans Should Work for His Defeat.

"We have just read again a document which five years ago was familiar to a man who took an interest in local public affairs," says the Boston Journal editorially. "It is the report of the special committee appointed by the Legislature of 1896 to investigate the acts of the Commissioners of Norfolk County with respect to the enlargement of the Court House at Dedham.

"The fresh reading of this report makes it seem impossible that Mr. Watts H. Bowker of Brookline should be elected a County Commissioner of Norfolk, and incredible that he should have been nominated for that office.

Mr. Bowker is the Republican candidate. He was nominated by the County Convention on the fifteenth ballot by exactly the number of votes required. We make no point of the closeness of the contest, for a candidate who gets just the number of votes needed on the fifteenth ballot is as much the party nominee as if he had received a majority of fifty or a hundred on the first ballot. Neither do we sympathize with the plea of citizens of his own town that the caucus at which he secured his delegates was thinly attended. If the Republicans of Brookline did not choose to go to their caucus they have no right to cry baby over the action that was there taken.

"Putting aside all minor arguments, we go back to the solid ground that a nomination that is not fit to be made by a convention is not fit for approval at the polls. The case is not in the least like that of a man who is defeated in a convention and then sets himself up as an independent candidate because he wants the place. It is purely a question of the fitness of this present nominee, without regard to his rivals before the convention all of whom have taken themselves out of the way.

"Five years ago the Journal regarded the Dedham Court House scandal as the worst that had appeared in the public business of this State up to that time and it is still without a rival. The bare facts were that, beginning in 1892 with a request to the Legislature for $75,000, followed in 1894 with a further request for $125,000, both of which were granted, the Commissioners had spent upon the work by the year 1896 nearly $400,000. The investigation was long and thorough, and the committee discovered and so reported almost every form of extravagance and deceit that could be imagined.

"The work was entirely in the hands of the three Commissioners. One of them did his best apparently to conduct himself as a public official should and thus placed himself in an attitude of antagonism toward his colleagues. Those colleagues were the Chairman of the board in the period in which the work was done and Mr. Watts H. Bowker the present Republican nominee for election as County Commissioner. Eight of the nine members of the Investigating Committee approved its report in all its findings including the opinion that there had been dishonesty as well as incompetency and extravagance on the part of at least one of the Commissioners. The ninth member concurred in everything, except that he found no proof of dishonesty in respect to the Commissioners. The relation of Mr. Bowker to the case is set out by the committee in this paragraph:

"'The present Chairman of the County Commissioners (1896) in their judgment, is the person mainly responsible for all that they find to condemn in the dealings which have been recited, and his associate, Mr. Bowker, must share the responsibility, since without his concurrence the laws could not have been violated and his negligence, if nothing else, made the extravagance and fraud possible.'

"Mr. Bowker was not a candidate for re-election when his former term expired, but he comes forward now, after the lapse of a few years, for election to the same office. It is an amazing proposition that he makes, a proposition which it is peculiarly the duty of of Norfolk County Republicans to reject at the polls.

"The alternative, of course is the election of the candidate nominated by the Democrats. Fortunately he is a man of character and business ability. Democrats will vote for him because he is their party nominee, but the interest of the Republicans of Norfolk County in the defeat of a Republican candidate, coming before them as Mr. Bowker comes, is infinitely greater and as far beyond all considerations of party or of personality."

EX-CHIEF WEBBER.

Quincy's New Resident Popular Among Boston Officials.

The Journal reports the complimentary dinner to Lewis P. Webber, the former chief of the Boston fire department, who will become a resident of Quincy, as follows:

Former Chief Lewis P. Webber of the Boston Fire Department, the veteran fire-fighter always cool and self-possessed in time of danger, even in the midst of combating some of the greatest conflagrations Boston has ever seen was badly rattled Monday evening. He was called upon for a speech at a dinner given in his honor at the Parker House, and although he responded, it was with considerable feeling and a hesitancy that is characteristic of many men of great deeds, but few words.

The dinner was tendered to former Chief Webber by Mayor Hart and the members of the Board of Aldermen and Common Council, and he was formally presented with the resolutions adopted by the City Council in recognition of his thirty-seven years of service in the Fire Department of the city. The resolutions were finely embossed and surrounded by an artistic border in water colors, containing a fine likeness of Chief Webber with a picture of the City Hall in the back-ground. The Chief was represented as being crowned with a laurel wreath by the city. In one corner of the border was a fire scene and in another corner was the representation of a fire engine on its way to a fire. The whole thing was about three feet square, was encircled by a handome gilt frame, and rested on an easel.

Chairman James H. Doyle of the Board of Aldermen presided, and there were about 30 present. Mayor Hart was first called upon. He made a brief congratulatory speech, and was then obliged to leave. Alderman O'Brien, the next speaker, said that Chief Webber had won the respect of all the people of Boston and of the City Government. The resolutions were then presented.

In responding, Chief Webber appeared deeply affected and could hardly proceed. He gave a history of his connection with the department, which was listened to with interest. He was pleased that his services had been appreciated in this way. He said he felt more than repaid for all the trouble, injuries and danger which he had encountered while Chief.

Brief addresses were made by former Fire Commisioner Robert G. Fitch, Alderman M. W. Norris, ex-Councilman, M. T. Callahan, Alderman Gerry, Councilman John J. Mullen, former Chairman of the Board of Aldermen Patrick Donovan and City Clerk E. J. Donovan. Among those present in addition to the speakers were Aldermen Stewart, Miller and Jordan and Assistant City Clerk John T. Priest.

EVERYTHING CLEAN.

That's the Way Candidate Packard Wants It.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It seems that Mr. Bryant's friends feel that they have been overreached or rather outwitted in the matter of filing delegates.

Now, as far as I can be of any service in this matter (and wish to be treated fairly and not have the caucuses packed against me), I am willing and desirous that Mr. Bryant's list shall precede mine on the ballot, if it can be done lawfully. Then let the voters decide.

I want everything, clean, square and honorable. The reports in the morning papers are extremely high colored and are one sided. Mr. Bryant and myself have no personal enmity.

Still Alarm.

The fire department was called out on a telephone alarm at 6.35 Monday night for a fire at the National Sailors Home. The fire started in a lot of old paint rags and created quite a little excitement. The damage, however, did not amount to over $5.

TODAY'S COURT.

John E. Coleman was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Daniel W. Crowley was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Michael Holden was arraigned for assault at Randolph. Case continued until Nov. 2.

James F. Taylor and Timothy J. Sullivan were arraigned for malicious injury to property at Quincy. Case continued until Nov. 1.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

EARLY AT WORK.

Citizens' Temperance League Expect Increased "No" Vote.

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

As president of the Citizens' Temperance League, I desire to thank you for the editorial in yesterday's issue of your paper.

To those who are in the work of keeping the saloon out of Quincy, it is very apparent that unless the people of Quincy awake from their indifference and apathy in this matter, we shall return to that condition of twenty years ago, to which you refer.

Some of us had even felt that our press had fallen asleep. We are glad you are awake.

Allow me to say Mr. Editor that while the Citizen's Temperance League or Committee may "seem to have entirely forgotten" as a matter of fact they began preparations as early as Sept. 19.

Also that notice of a third meeting to be held tomorrow evening at Bethany chapel has been sent to every person who paid the amount constituting him or her a member. We would be glad to welcome you, and through you all who are interested in aiding the work.

No-license meetings have already been arranged and speakers secured for Music hall for the evening of Dec. 1. Other arrangements are under advisement.

Be assured, Mr. Editor, that the "No-license advocates are astir," and will keep up the warfare against the saloon." We believe the evidence will be in the increased No vote given throughout our city on Dec. 3 next.

Respectfully yours,
C. T. Sherman.

BADGER'S RECORD.

Henry H. Faxon Out Against Ward Six Candidate.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

For years I have gladly given time and money in the effort to improve the moral and political conditions of this city and the state at large, and the results have been most gratifying.

For this reason I cannot remain silent in regard to one, who as a member of the last Legislature from Quincy, voted in a manner which does not represent the settled policy of our city, and especially when he is seeking a re-election.

The following is the record of Mr. Frank E. Badger, candidate for re-election as Representative.

He voted in favor of the Sunday Golf bill.

In favor of the bill which provided that a real estate owner could not object to the placing of a saloon near his property if one had existed at that point for two successive years.

Voted for the engrossment of the bill which permitted Hebrews to keep open shop on the Lord's Day.

On the bill allowing sales of liquor until midnight Mr. Badger was absent.

Will our voters who have the best interests of the Commonwealth at heart give their suffrages to one who has assisted in an attempt to break down the safeguards surrounding the observance of the Sabbath and the sale of intoxicating liquors?

Henry H. Faxon.

HELPED HERD THE CATTLE

How President Roosevelt Assisted Deacon Barber.

When the history of Rattlesnake mountain is written, says a Farmington (Conn.) correspondent, it will contain the name of Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, printed in "caps," as the printers say, for President Roosevelt lent himself to the "shooing" of cattle on that historic elevation, much to the relief of Deacon Henry Barber, who couldn't seem to keep his herd of Herefords together.

"Gee!" was all he could say at the tavern after learning for the first time that the stranger who came to his aid on Rattlesnake mountain was none other than the president of the United States.

President Roosevelt came here to visit his sister, Mrs. Cowles, wife of Commander Cowles, U. S. N. Along toward milking time the president, with his brother-in-law, his daughter and Secretary Cortelyou, started to climb Rattlesnake mountain.

The president had got the kink out of his sturdy legs and his lungs were working at full pressure when, far up the hillside, he espied a man as athletic as himself though perhaps some years further along, trying to bunch up some likely cows that wouldn't bunch a bit. It was Deacon Barber.

"What are you doing there?" asked the president, leaning over the fence.

"Tryin' to git these gol derned cattle out o' this field, by gum!" said the deacon, with very little graciousness in his tone.

"Well, I'll come over and help you," said the stranger.

In a twinkling the president had vaulted the gate and was in the field, crying, "Coo, boss!" just as if he had been a cowboy all his life. Somehow those prime cattle got the idea that it would be better to get together and avoid further trouble. Anyway, the stranger herded them and turned them over to Deacon Barber with a bow and a handshake.

"Wa-al," remarked the deacon, "I'll be gobbinged ef you hevn't done the trick! Much obleeged to you, friend. Ef you'll come up to the house, I'll give you a taste o' cider—the real stuff. You haven't time? All right. I'm powerful obleeged jes' the same."

"It's all right," remarked the strange man. "I haven't had so much fun in a long time."

Off up the road the president strode again to rejoin his little party. But when Deacon Barber drove down to the depot this morning and saw the cow chaser of yesterday being sent away to New Haven as the president of the United States he nearly fainted.

"Them Herefords," he remarked, "are wuth more now. They've been corralled by the president of the United States."

TEACHERS IN PHILIPPINES.

Many of Them Acting as Correspondents of Home Papers.

"I suppose we have stationed 800 local newspaper correspondents in the Philippines," remarked an army officer to the Washington correspondent of the New York Post as he digested a letter from a "Yankee schoolma'am" in the archipelago published in the Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

The publication at home of letters from the Philippine teachers is one of the effects of the educational movement which had apparently not been anticipated. A body of persons containing the elements of venturesomeness and philanthropy which the teachers represent are likely to be interesting chroniclers of Philippine affairs and in their several home neighborhoods will be readily accepted as authorities. Heretofore most first hand information has come from army and navy officers, and, although they are well equipped men, the peculiar interests of their profession could not but color their observations. War department officers assume that this Lewiston letter is but the beginning of a series and that from all parts of the United States they will be compelled to meet similar reports. Thus far the teachers have made the impression here of finding a good deal of fault. They have not liked the settlements to which they have been assigned in many instances, and in selecting food they have been compelled to choose between rice and fish at reasonable prices and such things as they were accustomed to eat at exorbitant figures. When one reflects that the schoolteacher is often the only person in a Philippine community calling for articles of diet familiar to us, the difficulties in the way of getting a suitable supply become manifest. The teachers perhaps lack the self sacrificing spirit of foreign missionaries and so are not prepared to tolerate in the name of duty all the conditions which seem to be incident to their service.

In Memory of Queen Victoria.

An immense and elaborately built obelisk in memory of Queen Victoria, says Truth of London, is to be placed next year in the grounds at Balmoral by the tenantry of the royal estates on Deeside. The obelisk, which will be over thirty feet high, is to be constructed of stone from a quarry in Balmoral forest. The site selected for the memorial, of which the king has signified his approval, is in the so called Monument park, between the bronze statue of the prince consort and the jubilee statue of Queen Victoria, which last was erected in 1887 by the tenantry.

A Very Considerate Pastor.

North Carolina pastors, says the Raleigh (N. C.) News, are noticeably considerate. The Rev. Jesse H. Page, while preaching at Morgantown a recent hot summer evening, dropped his voice almost to a whisper, saying: "I hope the brethren in the rear will excuse me if they do not hear. If I talk louder, I will awaken those in the front pews."

Accident to Big Gun

New York, Oct. 29.—The segmental wire tube 10-inch breech-loading rifle, over 37 feet in length and weighing 26 1-4 tons, built at a cost of $23,000, while being tested with smokeless powder charges, burst yesterday at the Sandy Hook proving grounds. The breech-block and about 8 inches of the cast seel trunnion jacket were blown back about 150 feet, where they struck a raised concrete foundation 50 feet thick on which was a battery of six mortars, weighing 20 tons each. The shattered piece of the big gun swept the concrete foundation away and the mortars were rolled about in all directions. Luckily all the persons interested in the tests were safely hidden in the bomb proofs. The big gun is not seriously damaged.

Made an Honorary Bishop

Washington, Oct. 29.—The Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, D. D., rector of the Catholic university, yesterday received the brief from Rome conferring upon him the honorary appointment of titular bishop of Samos, a famous port in the Ionian archipelago in the Grecian sea and under the jurisdiction of the archbishop of Rhodes. The consecration will take place at the Catholic university here on Nov. 24. The new dignity is interpreted as an expression of the pope's deep interest in the university. Dr. Conaty will continue as rector of the university.

Soldiers Wounded by Explosion

Leavenworth, Kas., Oct. 29.—By an explosion of a Colt's automatic firing gun at Fort Leavenworth yesterday, Captain Charles T. Menoher and five artillery men were wounded, three severely. The gun, a new one, was being tested and was allowed to become too hot and when a shell came into the breech after firing, the shell exploded, tearing out the breach, fragments of which struck and injured the men.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Stricken With Paralysis.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

PRECEPT'S MAIN POINTS

Not Yet Touched Upon by Court of Inquiry

RAYNER MAKES OBJECTION

To Lemly's Line of Inquiry Designed to Criticize Schley's Action—Searching Cross Examination of Admiral by Judge Advocate

Washington, Oct. 29.—The cross-examination of Admiral Schley began yesterday before the court of inquiry and hardly more than a third of the ground was covered when the court adjourned at 4 o'clock.

After Admiral Schley concludes two other witnesses will be called in his behalf, Admiral Barker and Captain Borden. The latter was an officer of the marine corps aboard the Brooklyn. The judge advocate then will call his witnesses in rebuttal, of whom there are understood to be more than 15, and it is probabe that Admiral Schley's counsel will call witnesses in surrebuttal.

Nothing sensational developed yesterday and the only outbursts in the court occurred when Mr. Rayner, Admiral Schley's counsel, objected to a line of inquiry of the judge advocate designed to criticize Admiral Schley's alleged failure to formulate a plan of battle, with the declaration that as Admiral Sampson was in command his junior had no right to plan an order of battle.

Admiral Schley concluded his direct examination, which continued only about 10 minutes after the court convened in the morning, with a statement about the effect of the fire of the respective fleets at Santiago, showing that 36 percent of the hits suffered by the enemy were scored by the Brooklyn's five-inch guns, while his ship received 70 percent of the hits from the Spanish ships.

Captain Lemly's cross-examination was very searching. Admiral Schley, however, appeared to be unruffled throughout the examination, frankly admitting on several occasions that he could not remember little details after the lapse of three years. One line of inquiry which the judge advocate tried to press, to show that Admiral Schley did not proceed "with despatch" from Key West to Cienfuegos, was an attempt to contrast the speed made between Charleston and Key West with the time between Key West and Cienfuegos. This attempt, however, was curtailed by a decision of the court, which confined the questions to the time subsequent to May 19, the day on which the flying squadron left Key West.

The judge advocate, in his cross-examination, dwelt upon the interview between Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley at Key West before the departure of the flying squadron, during which, the latter testified, Admiral Sampson instructed him not to expose his ships to shore batteries until the Spanish fleet had been destroyed; on the fact that Admiral Schley issued no written order of battle; on the question of coaling off Cienfuegos and the steps Admiral Schley took at that place to ascertain the presence of the Spanish fleet. He was cross-examining the witness upon matters connected with the cruise of the squadron from Cienfuegos to Santiago, when the court adjourned.

The retrograde movement, the firing upon the Colon and the battle of Santiago, which constitute the main features of the precept, were not touched upon yesterday.

In the forenoon Captain Lemly took up the question of the naval regulations, in each case asking witness if he had complied with the terms of the paragraph. The first paragraph was No. 267 and requires the commander-in-chief when preparing his fleet or squadron to meet the enemy to communicate general orders, instructions, private signals and such other information as will enable each so far as possible to understand his duty when in action and at all other times. "I think I complied with that," replied the witness.

The next article was as follows: "Article 269—He shall, if possible, before going into action, communicate to the juniors in command, his chief of staff and the captains, his secret orders, private signals and other information that will materially assist them if called upon to exercise command." "That I do not remember to have complied with," said the witness.

Captain Lemly then read article 271, which provides that the commander-in-chief shall, if possible, before going into action, supply every captain with a plan of battle, showing thereon the position each shall occupy. "Yes," said the witness, in reply to Captain Lemly's question, if he had complied with that article. "I do not understand that this is necessarily written. I think that that order is sufficiently carried out when a commander-in-chief decides to place his crews in the order of battle and inform each what he proposes to do."

"Do you think, admiral, that you can supply every captain with a plan of battle, and do that at an oral conference?" asked Captain Lemly. "I do not think that is absolutely necessary," replied the witness. "There are instances where battles have been fought without doing that. Any plan of battle that might be originated is subject to change. I have never known a battle that was ever fought on the plan originally chosen."

MEETING BORDEN'S OFFERS

Manufacturers Sell 25,000 Pieces of Cloth at Advanced Figures

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 29.—M. C. D. Borden's agents bought about 25,000 pieces of printing cloth yesterday at 3 1-8 cents, an advance of a sixteenth since Saturday. He is still bidding for goods, and manufacturers are meeting the demand as rapidly as they can. If the wage situation were cleared a little more they would be willing to sell him more November and December contracts, but as it is they are taking chances and meeting his offers in some degree.

In the event of a strike manufacturers have no fear that goods will go to an abnormally high figure. They think there are goods enough being produced outside to supply the demand, and they do not expect to see Mr. Borden do much toward buying southern or other goods than those he can pick up here. Unless goods go to at least 3½ cents manufacturers do not expect to change their attitude on the wage question before next Monday, the date set for Mr. Borden's latest advance to go into effect.

Will Settle Small Bill

Washington, Oct. 29.—As a quick way of adjusting the claims of a small number of American citizens who were deported from South Africa and the Transvaal as a military necessity, the British government has offered to pay the lump sum of $30,000 over to the state department, which will distribute the money among the claimants. This proposition will probably be accepted.

Claims of Over $60,000,000

Washington, Oct. 29.—The six months within which claims might be filed with the Spanish Claims commission have expired. By special dispensation of the rule others may still be admitted for another period of the same length. The claims already submitted number 495, and their amount reaches $60,329,000. Of these claims on account of the Maine disaster foot up $2,400,000.

To Leave State Department

Washington, Oct. 29.—While Thomas W. Gridler has not yet formally resigned his position as third assistant secretary of state, there is a perfect understanding between Secretary Hay and himself on the subject and Mr. Gridler will leave the state department when he has concluded his arrangements with the Louisiana Purchase exposition management.

A FALSE FACE.

When dyspepsia fastens on a man it changes his feelings and it changes his looks. He frowns now instead of smiling. His expression is harsh instead of kindly. He is wearing a false face—a face which does injustice to the real nobility of his nature.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition, and the record of the cure is written both in the face and the feelings of the person cured.

"Golden Medical Discovery" is not a stimulant or temporary tonic. It cures the diseases that are the cause of ill-health and builds up the body with sound flesh.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." The sole motive for substitution is to enable the dealer to make the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines.

"Last spring, early, I wrote you my feelings and condition," says Mr. A. J. Vanderwater, of 873 West Division Street, Chicago, Ill., "and you advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and then write how I felt. I am happy to say I am getting to feel fine. In all I have taken six bottles of the 'Discovery' and four or five vials of the little 'Pellets.' They have done me worlds of good. All my friends say: 'Vanderwater, how well you are looking.' The medicines have made the great change in me: from the slow mope of a man that could hardly crawl, tired and sick all the time, could do no work, to a man who can work, sleep, eat, and feel fine, and that tired feeling all gone away. I am very thankful that I wrote to Dr. Pierce. His 'Golden Medical Discovery' and his little liver 'Pellets' have almost made a new man of me. I feel young as I did at thirty years."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged bowels.

THE FORGIVEN LIAR.

He told a lie! He heard her sigh
And left the crowd awhile
And called her pretty, and she looked
Up through her tears to smile.

Her heart that had been sad before
Was glad again and light;
She laughed all day, and angels danced
Around her bed at night.

He told a lie; her face was plain;
He knew that it was so.
He lied and make her glad, and God
Forgave the lie, I know!
—S. E. Kiser in Chicago Record-Herald.

CHIQUITA

Ned Herries, or, as his card read, "Edward T. Herries, C. E.," stood in the doorway of the Rough Diamond and looked gloomily forth at the rain as it fell aslant the cactus growth and chaparal on the red soil of the mesa.

From the saloon within came the rattle of dice, the chink of glass, the rattle of coin and the murmur of deep, hoarse male voices. The Rough Diamond was a most lucrative and flourishing institution in the little railroad town of Picture Canyon, on the line of the Union Pacific.

It was one of those places which at that time sprang up in a night and are deserted in a day along the line of the great road. Indeed, they followed the track, and wherever track laying ended temporarily there a town was certain to spring up almost as if by magic.

Herries was attached to the engineer corps of the road and had been for some time stationed at Picture Canyon, a city of some 5,000 inhabitants, mostly males, and which was nearly a month old; so antique indeed that an election for mayor and common council was being agitated by the more enterprising members of the community.

Harvard bred, delicately nurtured, accustomed to all the refinements of life which wealth guided by correct taste may give in an old and settled community, the rude surroundings of his present life had at first disheartened Herries; but, being at bottom a man of good sense and pluck and possessing a splendid constitution, magnificent biceps, standing six feet and over in his boots, the man who had been Yale's especial terror at right tackle and who had filled the seat in the varsity eight would hardly flinch at hardships which other men bore without complaint, even if at times his soul grew weary of oaths and liquor, maddened men and brawls and bacon and muddy coffee and hardtack. Indeed, he grew at last to like the wild freedom of his life, as all men will do in time, and he was fast taking on the exterior of a genuine frontiersman when he—

When he met Chiquita!

Chiquita was a sprite. She was the true daughter of rocky canyon and desert mesa—a genuine child of the Sierras and a woman withal. Her reputed father was an evil eyed old Mexican named Ramon, ostensibly a herder of other men's sheep, really a gatherer of other men's coins. Chiquita kept house for him in a tumbled together shack on the outskirts of the town and here entertained her father's guests. She was brilliantly pretty, with the rich rose red flushing her olive cheeks, her white teeth flashing between ripe, dewy, crimson lips, with glorious brown eyes under heavy arching brows and shaded by such long, curling lashes as would make one's heart ache, especially the heart of a frontiersman, in whose life female beauty is a rich and rare event.

Many a dollar had Chiquita's eyes and lips brought to old Ramon's sheepskin pouch, and still he was athirst for more gold.

It was of this Herries was thinking, for he knew Chiquita, and it was this which, thinking of it, drove him out of the warm and cozy barroom (the only place where he could possibly stay, save in his cold and cheerless tent) and forced him to cool his heated brow in the cool, wet wind which blew from the mouth of Picture canyon.

He was roused by a voice, a deep, slow, plainsman's voice, addressing him:

"Pardner, you are a good one for a tenderfoot; leastways I've sorter tackled to you sence I seen the way you whupped that 'ere cowboy chump en belted him with his own gun. Some tenderfoots ain't got no sand, but you have, en I'll not see you double teamed on ef I kin help it, sho's I'm fum Texas, which I'm known as Black Waxy Jim."

"Why, what's the matter?" broke in Herries on Black Waxy's harangue as he turned and regarded closely the tall, athletic figure of the man beside him.

The Texan jerked his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of the barroom. "In thar," he said in a low tone, "I heern somethin—about—about you—en—en"—

"Chiquita?"

"That's it, pard. You've called the deal. It's jest about that 'ere little greaser gal, en you ain't the fust, nor you won't be the larst, I reckon, that's got his hide bored 'long of her."

"What's up, then?"

"Keep your eye skinned en don't go nigh old Ramon's shack. I've warned you. So long, pard."

And Black Waxy lounged away into the gathering gloom and mist.

"Hold on!" cried Herries, rushing after him. "Tell me at least who my enemy is."

Black Waxy turned and scanned the young engineer closely in the twilight.

"Pete—from Denver!" he jerked out and strode rapidly off.

Herries was a brave man, but his blood chilled at the mention of that name. It was the synonym of all that was most fierce, bloodthirsty and wicked even in that wicked and bloodthirsty little community.

"Denver Pete!" he mused. "So he is going to do me up because I'm trying to win that poor child from her horrible life and save her for something better. I fear me, Edward, you're in no end of a bad scrape.

"I'll not be bullied," he added and frowned and shut close his mouth and clinched his hands.

Herries stalked back to the brilliantly lighted barroom. Among those present was the gambler against whom Herries had been warned—a handsome, pale faced, tall, slender man, dressed with great neatness in black and without a single ornament visible—not even the belt, which nearly every man wore. He had a small, keen, hungry looking, gray eye, and as he looked at Herries he met the latter's gloomy glance, smiled and turned to his friends with the remark:

"The kid seems worried about something. I wonder if by any chance he has overheard us."

"Guess not; he jest come in a minute ago."

"Perhaps, perhaps," muttered Pete; "but we will soon know."

Events moved quickly in frontier towns. As Herries went out Pete arose from his seat.

His friends also sprang up, but he made a gesture of dissent.

"No, boys. Leave this to me. If I can't deal with one tenderfoot, I certainly won't call in aid."

"But he might get the drap on ye," persisted one.

Pete shrugged his shoulders and deigned no reply. He opened the door and was lost in the darkness of the night.

* * * * * * *

About two hours later the inmates of the Rough Diamond were startled by hearing shots, cries, oaths, the heavy thundering of a horse's hoofs on the rocky soil of the mesa and then a long, loud "Hurra-a-h!"

Then all was silent.

As one man they sprang to their feet and rushed for the door, but ere the foremost man among them could reach it it was burst violently open, and old Ramon rushed in, followed by Pete from Denver, who, swaying and staggering like a drunken man, called for brandy and then came to the floor with a crash that shook the windows.

A babel of voices prevented an explanation for a long time, and when Pete had somewhat revived he told them what had happened.

"Where's Chiquita?" some one asked.

A spasm of wrath convulsed the features of the dying man.

"Gone," he gasped; "gone with that cursed tenderfoot."

"How did it all happen, Pete?"

"He was there when I got there. Chiquita was all dressed and ready to go off with him—womanlike, curse her! He saw me coming. His horse was there. He waited for me. Oh, the fellow was game enough. I said nothing, but opened on him. The girl being there must have made me nervous, for I missed my man for the first time."

"And then?"

"Why, he pumped me full of lead before I could pull trigger. Hit me five times. Then he mounted and swung the girl up in front of him. Old Ramon came up and opened on him. I got up and followed suit. He got back at us once—his last cartridge—and caught Ramon, for I heard him groan. Then the tenderfoot yelled and rode off. Boys, give me a big drink. I'm done for."

And when they brought the drink a fast chilling corpse was all that was left of Pete from Denver to drink it.

And Chiquita?

Chiquita went to a convent in St. Louis, and left there four years later a cultured and magnificent beautiful woman.

She will be pleased to receive any of Mr. Herries' friends at her lovely home, and if you succeed in pleasing her she will tell you of that awful night at Picture Canyon when a tenderfoot showed how tenderfeet can fight when a sweetheart is at stake.

And old Ramon?

When they looked for him, he was gone. Nor was he or Edward Herries ever seen again in Picture Canyon.

Imagination In Life.

It seems probable that a little imagination is very much better as a possession than a great deal. A little is to the daily incidents and events of life what salt is to meat. The relish it bestows upon them is just as good as a pleasure. If you are in a sorry plight, you can see help coming by its aid, though, on the other hand, you are not tormented by grievous relapses of impatience and despair upon the delay of the arrival of such help, as you would surely be if you were as imaginative as a poet. And in like manner, when you are in the thick of prosperity, under its gentle, judicious suggesting you are able to look ahead, foresee the inevitable squalls which shall follow such a spell of fine weather and be prepared for them. In fact, a certain amount of imagination is like ballast to a ship, whereas too much acts like a storm upon the same ship, catching it with all sails set.—All the Year Round.

Persian Prayer Rugs.

About 200 years ago small embroidered rugs were largely made in Persia, chiefly at Ispahan. These were prayer rugs, and on each of them near one end was a small embroidered mark to show where the bit of sacred earth from Mecca was to be placed. In obedience to a law of the Koran, that the head must be bowed to the ground in prayer, this was touched by the forehead when the prostration was made, and so the letter of the law was carried out. The custom still prevails. The Persian women who weave the finest prayer rugs seldom weave any other kind of rug

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so much blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

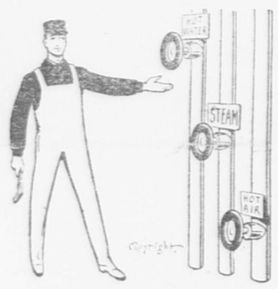

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

All sizes; all prices; one kind—the best.

BRAIN NOT RESPONSIBLE

For Czolgosz' Assassination of President Mckinley

WAS IN NORMAL CONDITION

According to Opinion Rendered by Doctors Who Performed Autopsy—Acid Used Instead of Quicklime to Quickly Destroy the Body

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The report prepared by the surgeons who held the autopsy on Czolgosz' body related entirely to the brain and was of a highly technical character. After scientifically describing to the minutest detail the brain of the dead murderer the report concluded as follows:

"No anomalies were found. The brain in general is well developed, sufficiently marked with fissures, and the lobes are in normal proportion."

The surgeons have not yet drawn a report on what the autopsy disclosed as to the other organs.

Naturally, almost the entire attention of the physicians assigned to hold the autopsy was directed towards discovering, if possible, whether the assassin was in any way mentally irresponsible. The autopsy was conducted by Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, Dr. E. A. Spitzka, and Prison Physician Gerin. The skull was found to be of normal thickness, and it was the unanimous agreement, after the microscopical examination, that the brain was normal or slightly above normal. This demonstrated to the satisfaction of the physicians that in no way was the assassin's mental condition, except as it might have been perverted, responsible for the crime.

The autopsy was completed shortly before noon. The body was placed in a pine coffin, and was taken to the prison cemetery. Extraordinary precautions were taken to quickly and completely destroy it. Doubt having been thrown upon the efficacy of quicklime, the agent mentioned in the statute, it was determined that, as the purpose of the law was the destruction of the body, it was not necessary to use quicklime. Accordingly acid was poured upon the body in the grave. As long as is deemed necessary guard will be kept over the unmarked grave.

Czolgosz went to the death chair as have the majority of condemned murderers in this state, without evidence of fear. Looking about steadily as he was being strapped in the chair, he said:

"I killed the president because he was an enemy of the good people—of the working people." His voice trembled slightly at first, but gained strength with each word and he spoke perfect English. "I am not sorry for my crime," he said loudly, and as the pressure of the straps bound his jaw he mumbled: "I am awfully sorry I could not see my father."

Within a minute from the assassin's entrance the straps had been drawn. The guards stepped back, the signal was given, and the 1700-volt current shot through the condemned assassin's body. Three shocks were administered, the third at suggestion of the physicians. The assassin had paid the penalty of his crime. Less than four minutes had elapsed. The body was removed to the operating table and Auburn prison returned to its routine.

Race Question Causes Strike

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—Fifty white men employed as core-makers at the National Malleable Casting company's plant at Haughville are on strike because their demand that the colored employes of the same department be discharged was refused by the company. The whole plant, which employs about 1200 men, may be obliged to close down. The trouble arose from the murder of a white man by a colored man in the vicinity last Saturday night.

Demand Greater Than Supply

Pittsburg, Oct. 30.—Higher prices for crude and refined petrolem may be expected, if the present situation continues. The figures for October will show the sale of nearly 500,000 barrels more than was pumped from the wells. In other words, development is not keeping pace with the demand. Drawing on the reserve supply will naturally put prices up.

Publisher Tousey Badly Hurt

New York, Oct. 30.—Sinclair Tousey of the publishing firm of that name in this city was probably fatally hurt in a driving accident at Yonkers last night. He was with Frederick Youngling, son of the brewer, and drove into a pile of sand in the street. The horse ran away and both men were thrown out. Youngling was very seriously hurt also.

Railroad Men to Organize

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—A movement is on foot to organize an order to be known as the Canadian Order of Railway Men independent of the international bodies which control the various orders in Canada.

RIGHTEOUS INDIGNATION

Expressed by the Citizens of Merrimack County, N. H.

Concord, N. H., Oct 30.—The legal punishment of crime and the advancement of the public welfare is the object of a body of citizens which was organized into a league yesterday at Boscawen.

The holding of this meeting and the action taken by it were the result of public indignation following the brutal murder in a public highway on Wednesday last of Mrs. Nancy J. Folsom of North Boscawen. The crime is supposed to have been committed by an inmate of the house of correction connected with the county almshouse at North Boscawen, and the people of that vicinity are earnest in demanding that measures be taken at once to prevent the recurrence of such a crime.

The meeting was followed by the organizing of Merrimack County Men's league, with an executive committee of 12, representing the different towns of the county. Vigorous speeches were made and resolutions were adopted demanding the confinement of all criminals in the county jails or some workhouse to be established.

Old Diplomat Dead

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 30.—Henry C. Hall, for 30 consecutive years consul to Cuba and minister to Central America, died at his home in Millbury yesterday, aged 81 years. He retired from the government service in 1892, on account of declining health. He served under eight presidents from Buchanan to Cleveland, a record believed to be unparalleled. He was so young when he left this country and was in the service so long that the first time he ever had a chance to exercise the right of franchise was when he cast his vote for Mr. McKinley for president. He was born in Northford, Conn. His wife survives him.

Statesman, Preacher and Writer

Brookline, Mass., Oct. 30.—Former Congressman Sidney Dean died at his home here last night, aged 83 years. Mr. Dean was born in Glastonbury, Conn., entered the ministry of the Methodist church in 1843 and continued in ministerial labors until 1852. Later he engaged in manufacturing and from 1865 until 1880 he was engaged in newspaper work. In 1880 Mr. Dean retired from the press and devoted his attention to literary pursuits.

Hours of Labor Reduced

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 30.—Beginning on Monday the 3000 or more operatives employed in the Nashua and Jackson Manufacturing companies' cotton mills here will go on a 50 hours a week basis, this change being due to lack of orders and a desire to reduce expenses. For a number of years the mills have been running 60 hours a week.

Sedley Under $2000 Bonds

New Haven, Oct. 30.—Henry Sedley, the freshman accused of causing the death of Edward Corrigan, a Yale student, was charged with manslaughter in the city court after the former charge of breach of peace had been dismissed. The hearing was postponed to Nov. 12 and he was held in bonds of $2000, which were furnished.

Smith Was Not Poisoned

Waterville, Me., Oct. 30—The Smith poisoning case has come to an abrupt end. Professor Auburt has reported that he fails to find any indications of poisoning of the contents of the stomach of Arthur Smith, who died suddenly in the town of China under what was then believed to be suspicious circumstances.

Lad Succumbed to Injuries

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 30.—Carl Robbins, the 16-year-old boy who was shot in Swampscott woods on Saturday by his companion, Alvin Thurber, died last night. The two boys were out shooting and Robbins received a charge of shot in the stomach. Thurber will be given a hearing in the local court on Nov. 12.

Robbed His Friend

Derby, Conn., Oct. 30.—The police of this town arrested last night Omer Eagnan, charged with stealing $220 from George Prond, a room-mate in Brunswick, Me., on Oct. 17. The prisoner admits the theft. Of the stolen money $210.50 and a new gold watch has been recovered.

Stabbed a Shopmate

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 30.—During an altercation at the Lakeside Shoe company's shop yesterday, Robert Kincaid stabbed Joseph Ploof in the side with a knife. Eleven stitches were required to close the wound. It is believed that Ploof will recover.

A Gift of $50,000

Topeka, Oct. 30.—Washburn college has received a gift of $50,000 from a Boston man who gave the money on condition that his name be absolutely withheld. He specifies that the money shall be used for building an astronomical observatory. The trustees of the college have accepted the gift and its condition.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Oct. 31.
Sun rises—6:16; sets—10:24.
Moon rises—8:34 p. m.
High water—1:30 a. m.; 2 p m.

Practically no rain has fallen in any part of the country during the past 24 hours. The temperature has risen considerably eastward to western New York. Continued fair weather, with rising temperature, is indicated for New England. The winds along the coast will continue light to fresh northeasterly, becoming variable.

WHY HE TURNED BACK

Schley Gives Reasons For Retrograde Movement

THOUGHT HE WAS JUSTIFIED

By Statement of Sigsbee, Opinion of Nunez, and Ambiguity of Navy Department's Telegram—Lemly Fires More Interrogations at the Admiral

Washington, Oct. 30.—The cross-examination of Admiral Schley was continued throughout the session of the court of inquiry yesterday. The progress made was exceedingly slow.

Practically the whole day was consumed in questioning the admiral about the cruise from Cienfuegos to Santiago and the motives and influences that governed him in turning back after his squadron had arrived in the vicinity of the latter port. This latter branch of the cross-examination had not been concluded when the court adjourned.

JUDGE ADVOCATE LEMLY.

The blockade at Santiago, the reconnaissance on May 31, and the battle of July 3, still remain to be covered. It is hardly probable that the judge advocate can conclude before adjournment today. After he finishes, quite a number of questions prepared by the members of the court will be submitted.

The judge advocate, in concluding the cross-examination, used a carefully prepared typewritten list of questions. They called for comparison of statements Admiral Schley has made either in his direct testimony, in his communication to the senate or in his dispatches to Admiral Sampson or the navy department; with the testimony of witnesses who have preceded him and the logs and signal books of the other vessels of the fleet.

The questions were not asked in chronological order, but jumped from one subject to another and from one stage of the campaign to another. Throughout the strain to which the witness naturally was subjected while under examination the admiral retained his customary composure. Only once or twice did he display impatience or weariness. At one point when asked a question he replied that he had been asked the same question before, at the same time telling what his reply had been then. On another occasion, when he was searchingly interrogated as to his distances from shore at Cienfuegos and as to whether the distances were a matter of record, he responded rather tartly: "Oh, no. I did not know they would ever become a matter of such great importance, or I should have plotted them and made a memorandum, as I should of many other things."

The main points to which the cross-examination was directed yesterday were the ability of the ships to coal off Cienfuegos and the reasons for what is known as the "retrograde movement.

The latter point was dwelt upon with much emphasis and detail and had not been disposed of fully when the court adjourned. The admiral gave three reasons for turning back; first, the statement of Captain Sigsbee, who commanded the scout ship St. Paul, that the enemy was not in Santiago; second, the opinion of Nunez, the pilot, that the entrance was too narrow and shallow for the Spanish ships to enter; and third, the ambiguity of the navy department's telegram.

In the course of the cross-examination the admiral said he regarded the department dispatch more a suggestion than an explicit order, a suggestion which he carried out after the sea had abated and the coal supply of the ships had been replenished.

Must Have Been Insane

St. Louis, Oct. 30.—Henry Schroeder, an employe of a stove company, yesterday shot and killed his stepdaughter, aged 7, made an unsuccessful attempt to shoot her brother, aged 11, and then killed himself with his pistol, after swallowing a dose of carbolic acid. It is supposed that a sudden attack of insanity caused him to commit the crime.

Hackett Still In Office

Washington, Oct. 30.—Assistant Secretary Hackett of the navy department has returned to the city and resumed his duties. It is expected that he will continue his present duty for several weeks yet, to await the convenience of Charles H. Darling of Vermont, who has been chosen his successor.

LAW IS INEXORABLE

Social Equality of Southern Whites and Negroes Can Never Exist

Raleigh, Oct. 30.—Governor Aycock opened the negro state fair yesterday with an address in which he urged the negroes to build up society among themselves, founded on culture, intelligence and virtue. He referred to President Roosevelt's dining Booker T. Washington and said to the negroes that they did not need recognition by the president, for it would avail nothing in the south. He said:

"The law which separates you from the white people in the state, socially, has been and always will be inexorable, and it need not concern you or me whether the law is violated elsewhere, it never will be violated in the south. Its violation would be to your destruction as well as to the injury of the whites." He pledged the best efforts of the whites to aid the negro, but told them that social equality was an idle dream.

In reply Dr. C. H. King, a negro minister of the Methodist church, said that the negroes did not want social equality and neither he nor his people wanted to sit down to the dinner table of the whites and that they were not in sympathy with any such idea.

No Change In Army Plan

Washington, Oct. 30.—A considerable part of the cabinet meeting yesterday was devoted to a consideration of the military situation in the Philippines. The conditions in the island of Samar had led the war department to consider the propriety of stopping, for the time being, the reductions which were going on in the Philippine army through the discharge of thousands of enlisted men whose terms are expiring. However, after hearing Secretary Root's report and discussing the situation thoroughly, the cabinet decided that there was no present occasion to suspend the reduction in the United States military forces in the Philippines.

Bourke Cockran Laid Up

New York, Oct. 30.—Bourke Cockran was severly injured yesterday by being thrown from his horse while riding about his place on Long Island. When found he was unconscious, suffering from bruises and a bad cut on the head. The physicians say he sustained a severe concussion of the brain, but they have found no fracture of the skull. No serious results are looked for.

Repeats Old Arguments

London, Oct. 30.—Joseph Chamberlain, speaking yesterday in Cupar, Scotland, defended himself from the accusation that he was responsible for the war by declaring that again and again Great Britain had been on the eve of a struggle with the Boers, not over the question of franchises, but on the issue whether Briton or Boer should be predominant in South Africa.

German Political Muddle

Berlin, Oct. 30.—Although Emperor William only left Berlin Sunday evening for a few days' hunting at Liebenberg, Chancellor Von Buelow followed yesterday for a personal conference with his majesty. Well informed political circles here, however, distinctly deny the existence of a cabinet crisis, or that there is the slightest indication of one.

Trust Pulled Up Stakes

Columbus, O., Oct. 30.—The last of former Attorney General Monnett's suits against trust companies, that against the Argand Refining company, was dismissed by the supreme court yesterday. The dismissal was on the ground that the company had moved from the state, hence the only thing to do was to withdraw the suit.

Elephants Took a Ramble

New Orleans, Oct. 30.—The Forepaugh & Sells circus collided with a freight train near Baton Rouge yesterday. Three men were seriously hurt. A number of elephants got away and after a chase were corralled. None of the other animals escaped, although four cars loaded with cages were wrecked.

One Way to Show Sympathy

Berlin, Oct. 30.—A delegation of Dutch longshoremen visited Hamburg for the purpose of getting the co-operation of the German longshoremen in boycotting English ships as a protest against the Boer war and the longshoremen of Hamburg have decided to co-operate, to a man, in the movement.

New Job For Cridler

Washington, Oct. 30.—Thomas W. Cridler, third assistant secretary of state, yesterday accepted the tender from the Louisiana Purchase exposition management of the post of European agent of the exposition. His connection with the state department will soon terminate.

More Than One May Suffer

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 30.—John McPhearson, a white man, manager of a plantation at Glen Flora, was killed yesterday by a negro named William Hicks. Several hundred men are hunting for Hicks. Six other negroes are in jail.

Thirteen Killed In Riot

Lumberton, Miss., Oct. 30.—Reports from Balltown, La., the scene of Sunday's rioting, say that peace and quiet have been restored. The number of dead reported is 13, three white and ten colored.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

Street Committee Hearings.

Good Afternoon.

Was not the action of the School Committeee at its meeting this week a little hasty, relative to a new school house at Atlantic. To introduce and pass at one brief meeting a vote which involves the expenditure of $40,000 to $50,000, would appear that way. It is undoubtedly a fact that Atlantic would like a new building; that the present schoolhouse is crowded, etc., but is there not another part of the city which needs a new building more?

We, refer to the Coddington school district. This building is the only schoolhouse in the city which is heated by stoves. It is built of wood and has no ventilation whatever, although there are sanitary closets in the cellar. A basement condemned years and years ago, is used from time to time as a regular school room.

The Coddington was built in 1855 and enlarged in 1876, and is of six rooms with an annex of three more rooms. The last report of the Superintendent of Schools puts the capacity or proper limit at 390, but at the same time reports the actual number of seats as 448.

Ward One has by the census of September this year 675 children between the ages of 5 and 15, while Ward Six has 565. Ward One has gained in four years 125, while Ward Six has gained 109. Ward Six has an eight-room schoolhouse built 18 years since the Coddington, which is heated by steam and has dry sanitary closets. Like the Coddington it is of wood and has no ventilating system. It is time that justice was done the school children of Quincy center.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It is just as well not to harbor the delusion that the really dangerous anarchist is the ignorant or the illiterate anarchist. He is not a desirable citizen, to be sure, but in any sane view of the case he is more truly an object of pity than an object of dread. The anarchist from whom the country has most to fear is the educated anarchist, who by the power his education gives him, is able to make a tool of his weaker brother. As matter of truth, one educated mischievous or wicked man is a thousand times more harmful than a dozen illiterates.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ A woman has gone over Niagara Falls in a barrel, and survives the plunge. She is a school teacher and came from Bay City, Michigan. The contrivance in which she made the passage of the falls was her own, and her inventive skill had provided against the ordinary rough usage she might expect in the tumble over the crest. It served her well, for she emerged from the barrel with only slight injuries, and is the first human being to make the leap and live. The idea of the perilous journey was her own, and as she escaped with unfractured bones, and no serious bruises the act may be considered a success. She had a manager, who will look after the financial features of the enterprise, and the dime museums will do the rest. One voyage is enough for Mrs. Taylor, however, and having shown that a womam can do what no man has ever done she will rest on her laurels and save such reward as she may be able to reap.—Lynn Item.

☞ Just now it is the open season in Maine for both deer and human beings. During the first nineteen days of October the record for deer was good—though we have not exact figures—but the record for men was five killed and three wounded, in most cases the victims being mistaken for either deer or bear. While the law of Maine imposes $1,000 fine or ten years' imprisonment as a penalty for such carelessness, but one arrest has been made in connection with the eight cases. Possibly if the law were rigorously enforced, and no offender let off on any excuse whatever, a lesson in carefulness that would make an impression would be taught. But as most of these so-called accidents occur when those responsible for them are in a condition of uncontrolled excitement, it may well be doubted if the law can have any certain preventive effect. Most of the victims of this year were residents of Maine, one or two of them being farmers peacefully at work on their farms. Maine, ought to find a way for the better protection of her citizens from the incursions of those who seek "sport."—New Bedford Standard.

QUINCY vs. DEDHAM.

A Close Game Won by the Local High School Eleven.

Quincy High defeated Dedham High at Merrymount Park, Tuesday afternoon in a close and exciting game, 16—11.

Not until the end, could the winning team be picked. The game was full of surprises and long runs by both teams. Dedham was only good on the offensive while High played strong, on offensive and defensive with the exception of a few fumbles. High was handicapped in having many new light players, but they showed up better than expected. The teams were very evenly matched in weight but Highs line proved a formidable backing.

The individual work of Jones, Miller and McGregor was exceedingly snappy, the former making two long runs one resulting in a touchdown.

Dedham's strong point was the end play.

High kicked to Dedham the first half who gradually gained up the field and in a few minutes succeeded in making a touchdown after a 40-yard run. Staples who made this long run had such good interference that Saunders who was back could not touch it. After another kick-off and a few downs Dedham lost the ball and soon High also scored, making it a tie.

Again Dedham surprised High by a long run and made another tally.

High school soon followed with a touchdown, Miller making a fine run. Neither kicked a goal.

The score stood eleven to eleven when the time was called. The rooters of the two schools seemed to vie with each other the rest of the game with their cheering. Owing to darkness the second half was shorter than the first.

High spurred up in this half, and after plugging the line hard, Jones made a long run; then a few more downs and High school won their winning points.

A free kick was attempted, but it was not kicked.

In the latter part of the half, Dedham was making good gains but gradually, were checked, and when within one yard of the goal High made a noble stand for two downs and forced them back. High gained about twenty yards on downs and then lost the ball.

Dedham now tried as a last resort some trick plays but failed, and High had the ball rushing through Dedham's line when time was called.

Ladies' Banquet.

The banquet given by ladies of the Universalist society occurred Tuesday evening in the church vestry. About 200 sat down to the well-loaded tables, and full justice was done to the excellent repast provided. Salads, cold meats, creamed potatoes, pickles, pies, cakes, puddings, fruit and coffee were served in abundance.

After the tables had been cleared, speech making was in order. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Ward, introduced the toast mistress of the evening, Miss Hattie Lincoln of Hingham. She in turn introduced the other speakers who were Miss Grace White, Miss Katherine L. Stevenson, Miss Gordon, and Mr. C. Neal Barney. Solos were also rendered by members of the church choir.

The speakers were listened to with interest and the music was thoroughly enjoyed, as the applause showed. It was a very successful banquet and the ladies feel repaid for the work that was put into it.

NEW BUILDING.

School Committee Will Ask for One at Atlantic.

The Quincy Point Plans Hanging Fire.

Changes in Teachers — Financial Report---And Other Business.

The regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening, the members present being: Miss Adams, Messrs. Churchill, Hallowell, Hunting, Pierce, Porter and Smith.

SCHOOL PLANS.

A communication was received from the Finance Committee of the City Council, asking if the School Committee would approve plans similar to the Cranch school with the addition of one room and an assembly hall for Quincy Point.

It was voted that the Chairman inform the committee that the School Committee would probably approve plans if so modified as to provide the additional rooms, and also adapted to the Washington street lot.

TEXT BOOKS.

The following text books were adopted: Modern Illustrated Bookkeeping and Montgomery's English History.

The text book committee recomended the following as text books: Remsen's Introductory to the Study of Chemistry: A General History of Europe by Thatcher & Schwill.

TEACHERS.

The following resignations were accepted: Algernon S. Dyer, sub-master at the High school; Miss Grace G. Howard, of the Adams school; and Miss Mary Dinnie master's assistant at the Cranch school.

The following teachers were elected: Mary A. Sayward, at the Cranch school; Annie L. Libby, at the Adams school; and Mary A. Weyman, to the Quincy annex.

Miss Carrie A. Crane was transferred from the sixth grade of the Cranch school to Master's assistant.

Miss Lillian K. Dearborn was elected supervisor of drawing. Miss Dearborn comes from Everett where she has been employed for several years.

Miss Annie W. Miller of the Adams school was granted a leave of absence for the balance of the term.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The chairman was authorized to appoint a committee to write the annual report.

It was voted to close the schools Friday that the teachers may attend the convention of the Norfolk County Teachers Association.

NEW BUILDING.

Dr. Peirce reported the pressing need of a new schoolbuilding at Atlantic.

In the discussion that followed it was brought out that the growth in school children in this ward had been rapid. There were now 460 pupils in this district and two annex rooms had to be provided, as the present building would only accommodate 350 It was also argued that the present building had no means of ventilation except by lowering the windows.

It was then voted that the chairman request the City Council to provide a ten room school building with assembly hall at Atlantic.

FINANCES.

The financial report was as follows:

	Appropriation.	Expended.	Balance.
Salaries,	$81,865.00	$64,337.60	$17,527.40
Fuel,	6,500.00	6,165.61	334.39

Committee Hearings.

THE Committee on Streets of the City Council will give a public hearing to all parties interested in the petitions for the laying out of a street from Franklin street to Quincy avenue, in accordance with the terms of the deed of gift of Faxon Park, and also on the petition for the widening of Howard street.

Said hearings are to be held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, on FRIDAY Evening, Nov. 1st, 1901, at 8 and 8.30 o'clock respectively.

Per order of the Committee,
C. A. SPEAR, Clerk.

CITY BREVITIES.

A Local Budget With the News in a Nut Shell.

Frosty mornings.

One more day of October.

John W. McAnarney has moved from Chestnut street to South street.

Nov. 1 will be unlucky Friday for many, as interest on taxes begins.

Mrs. Emma Lark, who was threatened with typhoid fever, is convalescent.

Nomination papers for the Republican caucuses will be opened tomorrow night.

Mrs. E. Westcott of Franklin was the guest of Mrs. Henry Van Emden last week.

Mark Myette has purchased the Austin Winslow house on Baxter street and has moved in.

The Atlantic A. A. will play the Cathedral A. A. of Boston on Franklin Field, Saturday afternoon, at 3.

The Ladies' Social union of the West Quincy Methodist church hold an entertainment and supper tonight.

The West Quincy cars are often overcrowded on many of the trips now, especially the 5 P. M. from Quincy.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council advertise public hearings for Friday evening on Faxon park treet and Howard street.

The Ladies Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian church will give a reception this evening in honor of the fifth anniversary of Rev. Mr. Dornan's pastorate.

The Quincy Teachers Association will open their entertainment season with a social at the High school tomorrow evening. Being Hallowe'en there will be games, guessing contests, etc.

F. J. Fuller of West Quincy, who has been in South America for the past year, and whose interesting letters from that place have been published in the Ledger, returned home Tuesday morning.

Upland road is being graded, sidewalks laid out on both sides, and it presents a busy scene these days. This creditable thoroughfare will soon shorten the way from the Centre to the West end, and give drivers one road free from electric cars.

Mrs. Mary Barry, one of the old residents of West Quincy, died at her home on Cresent street on Sunday of pneumonia, after a brief illness, at the advanced age of 86 years. Mrs. Barry has resided in West Quincy many years. She leaves two sons and five daughters.

Caucus Law Faulty.

In closing a half-column editorial on the filing of nomination papers in Ward One, Quincy, the Boston Advertiser, says:

"The legislature must take up this question at its very next session. We mean, of course, the question of amending the caucus law, or the ballot law, or both, in such a way as to remove the temptation to commit such scandalous disorders. Nothing else is of any use. Exhortation from sober minded people is thrown away on hot headed zealots. Crying "Shame!" is wasted breath. The only thing to do is to change the law so that nomination papers may be filed quietly, without any advantage or disadvantage accruing to any faction by reason of the order of time in which the papers are filed. No doubt the problem is perplexing. But it is not insoluble."

Literary Lecture.

Society was represented by an audience of ladies in the parlors of Mrs. Otho Hayward on Coddington street on Tuesday afternoon to enjoy the second in the course of literary lectures given by Miss Thompson, at a private subscription course.

The lecturer held her audience more than an hour by her enthusiastic and discriminating talk, varied by readings upon the novels of Charlotte Bronte.

Apart from the charm of these talks is the fact of directing people to these classics which at times are in danger of being pushed into back seats by the modern rush of inferior fiction.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

STILL MISSING.

Detectives Unable to Find Fisher and Betts.

Said to Have Gone to New York.

More About the Scheme of the Firm.

The Boston papers are filled with big scare headlines concerning J. M. Fisher & Co., and the Herald illustrates the residences of both Betts and Fisher, and publishes a photo of the latter in yachting attire. It is said that Quincy men are among those who will probably lose largely by the firm, one man as high as a $1,000.

The Herald story in part will be of interest: The proverbial gold brick scheme, as a modus operandi for obtaining money quickly, and the 520 per cent. allurement, have been made to look "like 30 cents," as the slang phrase goes, by the latest operations of a bold bucket shop firm, which raked in a harvest which is estimated at not less than $1,000,000, from confiding investors who wanted to get rich at a bound.

The firm in question, for whose members United States secret service officers and local inspectors are now looking, was known as J. M. Fisher & Co. This concern did a so-called stock brokerage business and had an elaborate suite of offices which occupied almost the entire fifth floor of the Fiske building at 89 State street.

The police were looking for members of the firm all day yesterday in the hope of having them explain a number of complaints which have been made by people from various parts of New England, concerning sums of money which they had placed in the hands of the concern for investment.

The boldness and simplicity of the scheme is what makes it all the more sensational, and it seems all the more strange that it was not brought to light many months ago. The very audacity of the scheme, however, is just what caught the unwary ones and led them to deliver over their money for investment, in the hope that they would realize immediate returns, and of such a nature that the risk seemed small in proportion to the tremendous profits that were held out so confidently by those who were to handle their money and swing the stock market at will through their clever formation of pools and co-operative stock manipulation.

The members of this firm are said to include J. M. Fisher, Fred E. Betts and George A. Adams, and they are the ones it is understood, with whom the authorities would like to have a conference. It was quite a force that started out on the war path early yesterday morning. The troupe included Marshal Darling, Deputy Marshal Waters, Postoffice Inspectors Evans, McMillin and Snow and Inspectors Harris, Wise and Houghton of Chief Watts' staff.

The alleged scheme of the firm is said by the authorities to have been a very simple one, so simple, indeed, that little difficulty was experienced in engaging the attention of would-be investors. Correspondence was had with people all over the country. The sums invested range from $100 to $2,000 and it is estimated that a business on a million dollar basis was established.

The firm claimed to have had dealings through the Consolidated Exchange of New York, but this statement was found to have no foundation in fact by Inspector McMilin, a postal inspector, who investigated the suspicions of investors that the firm was using the mails for fraudulent purposes.

It is claimed that the money that poured into the treasury of the concern was never invested, but that representations were made to the investors that their money had been used for the purpose of buying specific stocks, namely, Missouri Pacific and Union Pacific, and when these stocks had shown marked declines, the investors were immediately written to for more money to cover their margins, and in some cases they were asked to forward the money by telegraph, being assured always of the confidence of the firm to tide them over and recoup their apparent losses. In most cases the money was immediately sent, and simply added more to the loss account of the investor and increased the wealth of the concern.

The company gave references as to its financial standing to R. G. Dunn & Co., and the Bankers' and Manufacturers' Mercantile Agency of New York and Boston. Whether or not any of the customers of the company endeavored to inquire into the soundness and responsibility of the firm has not yet come to light.

The first intimation that came to the authorities of the game was when the attention of the post officials was brought to the matter by investors who had sent money and were beginning to get a bit anxious as to the safety of their cash, from which no returns had materialized. These people were located in various parts of New England, although it is believed that the company carried on extensive operations beyond the eastern states.

The company is not a member of the Boston Stock Exchange or the New York Stock Exchange. Postoffice Inspector McMillin's investigation thus far fails to show any evidence that the company negotiated on any stock exchange but that the investments received were held for several weeks until the market declined on some particular stock.

Then it was that the investors were notified that their money had been invested in these stocks and more money was required to cover their margins. It is claimed that in less than two years the company has formed 10 pools, and in pool No. 8, which was established in August, the investors have been informed that their money had been put into Missouri Pacific stock, and that the market had depreciated owing to the death of President McKinley.

None of the missing members of the concern had been located by the officials last night, but they are hot on their trail and are confident that they will soon be in touch with them.

Mrs. Fisher claimed to have been in ignorance of any trouble in her husband's business affairs. She said that he left home Monday morning for New York, and that she expected him back in a day or two. She knew of no reason for a longer stay.

Mrs. Betts told a similar story. She said that her husband left for New York Monday night and she looked for him to return by Wednesday. She was confident that her husband could explain any business transaction when he returned.

FOUNDER'S DAY.

The Annual Games by Pupils of Adams Academy.

The annual fall games of the Adams Academy Athletic association were held this morning (Founder's day) upon the grounds of the academy. The usual number of sports were held, and it was nearly 1.40 before the games were finished.

There was a large attendance of parents and friends of the pupils, as well as the young ladies from the Woodward Institute.

Basket ball was introduced for the first time this year, but the players showed that they were not thoroughly posted on the game, and some of the Woodward girls could have given them points.

The judges were T. C. Thacher, John O. Hall, Jr., T. L. Bramhall, J. D. Kent, Jr., and A. L. Bennett. Timekeeper, Thomas B. Davenport.

The result of the sports follows:

70-yards dash—First heat won by W. Thomas; time 8 1-5 seconds.

Second heat won by Moyle; time 9 seconds.

Third heat won by Reinhalter; time 9 4-5 seconds.

Fourth heat won by Gallagher; time 9 4-5 seconds.

Final heat won by Thomas; time 8 1-5 seconds.

Potato race won by Elwell.

220 yards dash—First heat won by C. Hoxie; time 30 1-5 seconds.

Second heat won by A. Hoxie; time 30 2-5 seconds.

Final heat won by C. Hoxie; time 36 1-5 seconds.

Running broad jump—won by Thomas; distance 17 feet 7 1-2 inches.

Putting shot—won by McIntosh; distance 27 feet 2 inches.

Quarter mile run, for challenge cup—won by Thomas; time 1 minute 17 4-5 seconds.

Basket ball game, two eight minutes halves. First half, neither side scored. In the second half, team No. 2 secured a goal just as the time was up; score 1 to 0.

70 yard hurdle race—First heat won by Thomas; time, 10 2-5 seconds.

Second heat won by Fenno; time, 12 seconds.

Final heat won by Thomas; time, 10 seconds

One mile run for challenge cup, won by C. Hoxie; time, 6 minutes, 34 seconds.

Three-legged race—First heat, won by LeClair and Elcock.

Second heat, won by Freeman and Bennett.

Third heat, won by Tirrell and Blake.

Final heat, won by Freeman and Bennett.

Hop, step and jump—won by W. Thomas; distance, 36 feet 2 inches.

Relay race, won by First class.

The last event was the tug of war. The first heat was between the First and second classs. In this the second class was an easy victor, pulling the rope fifteen or more feet.

The second heat was between the Third and Fourth classes, and was a repetition of the first heat as the Fourth class pulled about ten feet.

The final heat was between the Second and Fourth classes. At first it appeared as though the two classes were quite evenly matched, but it was for but a moment, for the Second class soon had control and were easy winners.

STANDS BY RECORD.

Representative Badger Thinks He Is Unjustly Assailed.

An interview with Representative Badger, who is a candidate for reelection, will convince most voters that Mr. Faxon's attack is unwarrantable. Mr. Bager always votes "No-license" and is a strong advocate of temperance, and temperance legislation. Perhaps the most important issue relative to temperance before the last Legislature was the so-called "semi-colon bill." Representative Badger was one of the two dissenters and made a stubborn fight against the bill, and it was defeated.

Relative to the abutters' bill, investigation by Mr. Badger showed that people bought property adjoining a saloon that they might demand hush money, and that property holders situated thus voted for license for their own profit. That the object of the law on the statute books was to give abutters a chance to object. Where a saloon has been located two years it should not be subject to blackmail annually thereafter.

Relative to allowing sales of liquor until midnight Representative Badger realized that there was no chance of passing the bill, and it was only in one of its earlier stages that he happened to be absent.

The Sunday golf bill, so called, made no reference to golf and that was not its chief aim.

Mr. Badger says he looked at the Hebrew bill from a religious standpoint. Where so much is permitted on Sundays, he questioned if the Hebrews who observe Saturday as their Sabbath should be compelled to close their places of business. He admits that it was quite a problem with him, and that even now he is not sure whether he voted right or not.

All in all the votes of Representative Badger were all right. He is a man of the people, and honest in his convictions, and he should be able another year to give even a better account of himself than in his first year.

BAD POLITICS.

Ward Three Case Rivals That of Ward One.

While the episode at the residence of the secretary of the Ward One Republican Committee appears to be more sensational, the methods employed in Ward Three seem to demand the most serious attention.

In Ward One everything was in the open, but in Ward Three there was apparently trickery if not collusion. James W. Young, the secretary, is not inclined to give the public the facts, but is anxious that the Ledger should contradict the report that Lafayette Gleason, his boarder, was in any way concerned in the filing of the papers.

It seems that when the door was unlocked Sunday morning by Mr. Gleason, Abel Nutting was at the door waiting alone to file papers favorable to Frederick L. Jones. It developed later that there was some one inside, who was allowed on Monday evening to file a Bryant list first.

Who that somebody was, Secretary Young will not tell. Why not?

Early last week Mr. Young let drop, carelessly, a remark that there was a man at his residence then waiting to file papers.

It was not the intention of the caucus act, or the laws of the Republican City Committee, that the secretaries of the Ward Committees should take lodgers for a week, a day, or even an hour or minute. The first paper to be received should be from the person who entered the front door first after 7.30 P. M. Let us have fair play.

EXPERIENCE BAD.

The Taxpayers Suffer from the Sort We Have Had.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The interest in the State campaign is completely overshadowed in this city by municipal politics, which are regarded of paramount importance by those who want snug berths where they may draw pay for services which they do not render.

There are several candidates for Mayor, one of whom, judging from his record, is seeking further political dictatorship for the purpose of administering the city's affairs from the standpoint of his own selfish interests, rather than to conserve the welfare of the burden bearing taxpayer. I refer to the President of the cheapest Council that ever disgraced a municipality, the members of which being devoid of business ability have blindly followed their leader in obstructing many reform measures advanced by Mayor Hall during his administration. For twenty years in which I have been laboring for economic and moral reforms I never knew a more reckless appropriation from the public treasury than the tems of $4,500 for the proposed School street police station, and $3,000 for the improvement of Break Neck hill.

Judge Bumpus, in a lengthy letter to the Ledger, advocates the election of Mr. Bryant to the mayoralty because of the latter's experience in municipal affairs. I claim that that is the best reason why Mr. Bryant should be compelled to retire from leadership in civic matters. The taxpayers have suffered too much from this sort of experience and every property holder in the city should take such a decided stand as will compass his defeat. If the voters do their duty in the coming caucuses and at the polls, the stamp of censure will be placed upon Mr. Bryant and those councilmen who voted to pass many reckless measures over Mayor Hall's vetoes. Henry H. Faxon.

Born in Braintree 96 Years Ago.

Miss Abigail Thayer, born in 1803, in the town of Braintree, celebrated her 96th birthday Tuesday at her home, "the Burnaps House," Common street, Boston, says the Post. Miss Thayer lived in Braintree for over 83 years, where she was well known, beloved and respected. She is descended from an old Revolutionary family, her father having been an officer in the army under Washington.

Notwithstanding her years, Miss Thayer is in good health and enjoys nothing better than relating stories of her childhood. She is a constant reader of the daily papers, and everything of a public nature is still of interest to her. President McKinley's last speech at Buffalo, sent her in pamphlet form, was carefully read, as the recent events at New Haven attending the 200th anniversary of Yale University.

She is a member of the Daughters of the Revolution, from which society she has received two valued treasures as a real daughter, one a beautiful breastpin, presented by the daughters of the Revolution, and the other a gold spoon, by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Miss Thayer retains all her faculties, and unless some unforeseen illness comes upon her, bids fair to pass the century mark.

French Canadian Club.

At a meeting of the French Canadian Independent Naturalization club Tuesday night the following officers were elected:

President,—C. D. Leclair.
Vice President,—N. Morissette.
Secretary,—P. A. Dale.
Treasurer,—N. Leclair.

This French club was organized last year for sole the purpose of getting French people naturalized. It is their intention from now on to get as many voters as they can of their own nationality. The club is composed of about 40 members and meets every Tuesday night at St. Jean Baptiste hall West Quincy.

HOLDS TRAVEL RECORD

The Long Journeys of Miss Celeste J. Miller.

CIRCLED THE GLOBE THREE TIMES

A Chicago Young Woman Tells Interesting Stories of How She Visited Many Out of the Way Places In Various Parts of the Earth—Some Novel Experiences.

After visiting every country in the world except Greenland and Iceland Miss Celeste J. Miller has returned to Chicago to prepare for her trip to the two countries to which she is yet a stranger. Miss Miller claims to have traveled more extensively than any other person in the world, and all her trips have been made alone. She has visited all the out of the way places and avoids the beaten paths of the ordinary tourist. The guidebooks do her no good, for she goes into places the authors of those interesting compositions never have visited, says the Chicago Post.

She has traveled in every kind of vessel, from a Chinese junk to the finest steamer, that floats. She rode a mule throughout Morocco, traveled the Holy Land on an Arabian horse and has spent days with caravans on the deserts alone and unprotected. The only accident that Miss Miller ever met with was a few days ago at the Buffalo exposition, when her hand was wrenched in a crowd.

The last trip taken by Miss Miller was in South America, and she has just returned to Chicago from that jaunt of 30,000 miles. Every republic from Guatemala to Tierra del Fuego was visited. Her tour started at Colon, in Colombia. From that point she crossed to the Pacific, down the west coast, around Cape Horn, up through the strait of Magellan to Caracas and then home. She stopped at all the principal ports and made trips into the interior when convenient. Having camped out in almost every country of the world, no trip has terrors for her, and if no transportation line is available she forms a party of native servants, and, with camp equipage on pack mules, she takes to the trail and reaches her objective point.

United States ministers and consuls are held in contempt by Miss Miller. She says G. H. Bridgeman, United States minister to Bolivia, was at Lima, Peru, when she was, but that he refused to take the overland trip in the stage to La Paz without an escort. Miss Miller did not care to wait two or three days for the native soldiers, so she proceeded with only a driver. She made the trip in safety and reached La Paz several days before the minister started.

"Our consuls and ministers," says Miss Miller, "seem to be men entirely unfitted for their positions. Dr. Bridgeman has lived in Bolivia for ten years, yet he cannot speak a half dozen words of Spanish and has an interpreter at his side constantly."

Miss Miller says that the most magnificent scenery and the most beautiful landscapes in the world are to be found in South America. She says in every port she found the Germans either in control of the business or a close second. In speaking of the republics she said:

"Chile is by far the most progressive. Young men are educated in the military schools of the country and then sent to Germany, where they finish their military education. The army is organized on the plan of the German army and is the best in South America. The finest looking native soldiers, however, are in Bolivia. Their equipment is bad, but in physique they are ahead of the Chileans. The cities of Chile are beautiful, but it is true of all South American people that they pay more attention to things artistic than we do here. In Santiago beautiful houses and private and public gardens are on every hand, making it a place of delight that cannot be described. One of the best things in South America is the coffee. The best coffee one can get in the United States tastes insipid to one who has tasted that made in Brazil."

China is familiar ground to Miss Miller, and she was in that country shortly before the foreign legations were besieged, and on that crisis she said the other day:

"The missionaries caused the trouble. My experience with missionaries is not limited to any one country. I have seen them everywhere and know that the cause for which they are sent abroad is lost. One missionary in China that I knew lived in a mansion. He and his wife drew salaries, and three or four of his childdren were on the pay roll of the society. They had a corps of servants and lived in a style that is seldom seen in this country. In India the missionaries that I know have summer and winter homes and move with the seasons to seek greater comfort. These are examples of all missionaries, and I am certain that they do comparatively no good and stir up trouble when they go into a country and attempt to change the habits and customs of centuries."

Miss Miller was born at Princeton, Ill. Her father was Henry F. Miller, one of the pioneers of Illinois and a friend of Abraham Lincoln. He was in Chicago once when the settlement was attacked by the Black Hawk Indians. Possessing an ample fortune, his daughter has spent the last twenty years in travel. She has made three trips around the world and intends to make the circuit twice again. She has never been into the interior of Siberia, but it is her intention to cross that country in the near future. She is now at the Chicago Beach hotel and may remain there for several weeks.

PENNY COUNTERFEITING

Has Raked In Many Dollars For the Weiner Gang

EFFORTS OF SECRET SERVICE

Rewarded After Years of Hunting For Those Responsible For Flood of Spurious Coins Pouring Into the Sub Treasuries

Washington, Oct. 30.—Almost at one swoop the secret service has captured William Weiner and a stepson who masquerades under the name of Israel Usher in Boston and the Lerner family of New York and Baltimore, principals in a counterfeit cent enterprise of large proportions, and one M. Lavine of Brooklyn, a watchmaker who, having bought some tool steel of a size suitable for such operations and living next door to where a part of the counterfeiter's plant was discovered, is held on suspicion.

The evidence in the possession of Chief Wilkie goes to show that Weiner, the head of the gang, must have cleared a profit of not far from 75 cents on every dollar's worth of pennies he put out, and the flood of this stuff which has been pouring into the subtreasuries for several years indicates that the whole speculation must have been a rich one, if not brought to a short stop.

The "penny case," as it is colloquially styled in the secret service circle, belongs to the "pesky" class—those in which the specific cause of offending is so small as to make the difficulty of rooting it out seem absurdly disproportionate, and the machinations of the offenders take so many turns as to keep the whole staff on the qui vive for months or years.

It will be recalled that a little Jewish girl named Fanny Lerner was arrested in New York a few months ago for selling rolls containing 100 one-cent coins, all of them counterfeit, to Chinese laundrymen, who, as they use a great deal of small change, were profitable customers. Where the girl got her supply no one could discover.

Chief Flynn of the New York office therefore set on foot a systematic search. He went first to all the manufacturers of sheet brass, bronze and copper, of whom there is a large group in Connecticut. From them he secured lists of dealers, and from the dealers in turn it was ascertained that ever since 1897 one William Weiner had been in the habit of buying sheet bronze of 16 gauge, the thickness used for the blanks of one-cent coins, in quantities of 100 or 150 pounds at a time. He would always send boys to order the goods, which were shipped to Providence and Boston and various addresses in New York.

A watch was set for Weiner in these cities, and he presently turned up in Boston in charge of a coin machine, which, however, lay in storage in a dwelling house, its parts not assembled. Some months later he opened a furniture store at 624 Cambridge street, Cambridge, removing his machine to the back of another store at 646 on the same street, and setting it up ready for work, but doing nothing with it at once, evidently waiting to accumulate some capital. One day the first store was mysteriously set afire, and its contents were burned.

A fortnight later, having collected his insurance, Weiner started his coinage machine running. The secret service watchers discovered that two Jews were in the habit of visiting his headquarters after dark and staying in the basement for awhile. They were tracked after leaving, and in a number of instances were found to have small rolls of cents to Chinese laundrymen.

Meanwhile the secret service located Fanny Lerner's elder sister and father in Baltimore, whither they had removed evidently to keep out of harm's way till Weiner got ready to set things actively in motion. Lerner presently became a peddlar of spectacles and went out in rural districts of Maryland, moving from place to place with such rapidity and following so erratic a course that, when the officers decided that it was time to take him into custody, it took them some time to catch up with him. He was brought to Washington Monday and kept in seclusion at secret service headquarters. He is apparently an ignorant German, not over bright—the sort of man whom shrewder rogues use as tools in crime.

It now appears that Weiner has already a criminal record of 20 years. He is a Russian by birth, and before he left his native country had a pretty large reward hanging over him. He lived for some time in Pittsburg, and was there identified with a gang of coiners. Later, removing to Philadelphia, he was arrested in 1892 as a member of the Garfinkel gang, who also ran a penny plant. He was convicted and served 3½ years in prison under the alias "John Lavine." He was an expert metal worker and coppersmith. His instructions to his "pushers" were to approach only Italian fruit sellers and Chinese laundrymen, as through these so many cents could be worked off by twos and threes in change without exciting suspicion.

Lerners and Levine Held

New York, Oct. 30.—Henry Lerner and his daughter Rosa were arraigned yesterday and held in $500 bail each for examination on a charge of having counterfeit pennies. M. Levine was arraigned at Brooklyn yesterday and held in $5000 bail for examination.

King Edward to Winter Abroad

Rome, Oct. 30.—Italian newspapers report that King Edward will pass the winter at San Romo.

"REASONABLE DOUBT"

Of Justice In Recent Conviction of Editor of The Freheit

New York, Oct. 30.—Justice Maclean, in the supreme court yesterday, granted a certificate of reasonable doubt in the case of Johann Most, editor of The Freiheit, an anarchist paper, in order to stay his sentence of 12 months' imprisonment for the publication of an article entitled "Murder vs Murder" which appeared on the day of President McKinley's assassination.

Justice Maclean says the only proof to support the judgment is that Most purloined an article, expressing certain sentiments, written by another, half a century ago, and published it as his own "in a paper professedly of some circulation, but which circulation is shown by the sale of but a single copy, that purchased by the police probably for the purpose of prosecution." He further says it may be doubted reasonable whether the judgment even with that support should stand, as plagiarism is not a criminal offense under the laws of the United States.

"It is not shown," said Justice Maclean, "that the defendant's expression of borrowed sentiments has worked injury to any individual by falsifying any fact, or to the public peace or health, or that his acts were attended with circumstances likely to disturb or endanger the public peace or health.

"This pilfered screed" says Judge Maclean, prates of humanity, immorality and morality, reason and conscience, but carries no suggestion of the obscene." These utterances, Justice Maclean says, do not come within the meaning of the section of the code under which Most was prosecuted.

Wild West Horses Killed

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 30.—One hundred and ten of the ring horses of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show were crushed to death in a railroad wreck near Lexington yesterday. Colonel Cody is heartbroken over the slaughter. He says his loss is $60,000. The accident was the result of head-on collision between a freight train and the second section of the show train, and was due to a misunderstanding of orders. Several train hands were injured, but no one was killed. Only two horses escaped alive.

Villamil's Remains Sent Home

Havana, Oct. 30.—The remains of Vice Admiral Villamil, who was killed at the battle of Santiago, were transferred yesterday to the steamer Montserrat, to be taken to Spain. Villamil was wounded on board the destroyer Pluton, was taken ashore by Spanish sailors and died. His body was left in a sitting position in a chair in a cave about four miles west of Santiago harbor, and it remained there about eight months before it was discovered.

New Move In Molineaux Case

New York, Oct. 30.—The World says that ex-Governor Black will appear before Judge McMahon in general sessions and ask that the indictment against Roland B. Molineux, charging him with murder, be dismissed. In case Judge McMahon should decline to dismiss the indictment then Mr. Black will ask that he be given permission to inspect the minutes of the grand jury which indicted Molineux.

Long a Leader of His People

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 30.—Rev. Robert W. Deschweinitz, the oldest officer of the Moravian church of North America, treasurer of all the church funds for more than half a century, prominent in college work and widely known as a distinguished botanist, died yesterday of Bright's disease, aged 83.

Got a Coat of Paint

Plymouth, Wis., Oct. 30.—Herman Dormeier, a shoemaker about 50 years of age, was given a coat of red paint by an angry crowd yesterday, because, it is said, of his expressed sympathy for President McKinley's assassin.

To Answer Embezzlement Charge

Halifax, Oct. 30.—Adam A. Harley, who is charged with embezzling $6000 from the bank of British North America, was taken back to Fredericton, N. last night. Harley has been kept in close confinement since his arrest. He made no statement whatever.

HOLE IN THE LUNGS

There are thousands of men and women, as well as ever, with holes in their lungs: consumption stopped.

Consumption stopped is consumption cured. What does it?

Some change in the way of life and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

With the emulsion, give some attention to circumstances: change from a dark damp close room to a sunny dry airy one; from city to country; from hard to an easy life; indoors to out.

A hole in the lungs once healed is no worse than a too-tight waist or waistcoat.

Take the emulsion, and give it a chance to heal the wound.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

WHITE HOUSE ITS NAME

Roosevelt's Designation of His Official Residence.

EXECUTIVE MANSION TOO FORMAL

Terms Which Have Been Applied to the Official Home of the Presidents In Previous Administrations—Some Interesting Data of the Nomenclature of the National Capital.

The reported purpose of the present occupants of the "executive mansion" to discard that name as its formal and official designation and to use "White House" instead, writes the Washington correspondent of the New York Post, does not represent so radical a change as might be supposed. While "executive mansion" is the name which the White House stationery has long borne and the name employed in the appropriation bills, there seems to have been no uniform practice in this regard dating back of Grant's administration. He and every president since have used that term, as did Lincoln. But Johnson, who came in between, employed at least three designations for the place from which his public papers came—executive chamber, executive mansion and executive office. On May 1, 1865, he transmitted a message to the senate and house bearing the heading, "Executive Chamber, Washington City." Three days later he wrote under the heading "Executive Mansion, Washington," in announcing the funeral of the late President Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., and ordering the various departments closed at noon. On Nov. 11 he used the term "executive office" in an official communication.

His use of "Washington city" was by no means peculiar. That was the designation of this municipality employed by the six cabinet officers who signed the formal announcement to the vice president of the death of Lincoln. President Jackson almost invariably referred to Washington in the same way, a southern trick of speech, perhaps most familiar in the case of "Baltimore city." Fillmore in some of his public papers wrote from the "executive chamber," but prior to the civil war period there seems to have been little use in official messages of any name for the habitation itself, most presidents contenting themselves with simply the name of the city and the date. Monroe, in a message in 1824, called his official home simply "the president's house." That shows the designation of his time on the part of congress and the president. Earlier in the same administration he sent a message to congress on the furniture of the "house appropriated for the president of the United States." He suggested, again, that it might be proper to "commit the care of the public buildings, particularly the president's house and the capitol, with the grounds belonging to them, including likewise the furniture of the latter, in a more special manner to a public agent."

How long the executive mansion has been popularly designated as the White House seems to be a matter of some dispute. It is built of freestone, and in order to cover up the disfigurements resulting from the British invasion of 1814 was painted white and has since been so maintained. The same name has often been applied to other places, notably General Grant's famous headquarters in Virginia during the war, as well as mercantile establishments in this and other cities.

For many years before the war there was a picnic ground on the Potomac, just below Fort Washington, at which the pavilion was known as the "White House." Many persons think the designation a little too colloquial for official purposes and formal documents. On the other hand, "Executive Mansion" is an uncomfortable mouthful and, besides, is employed in many of the states for the residence of the governor. The house in which Jefferson Davis lived in Richmond during the existence of the Confederate government was, naturally enough, known as "the White House of the Confederacy" and is still pointed out to visitors in that way. Of course, the southern people simply transplanted the name that went with the president's residence and would doubtless have done so had the Davis house been painted green or purple.

Didn't Want a Stepmother.

Joseph Weishiser, a wealthy farmer and widower of Tipton county, Ind., who celebrated his sixtieth birthday recently, started to elope with Miss Minnie Emery, the twenty-year-old daughter of a neighbor. Miss Pauline Weishiser, the farmer's daughter, suspected her father's intentions and set a watch upon him. Half an hour after he left with his intended bride Miss Pauline mounted her bicycle and started over a muddy road and in a drizzling rain after the elopers. She overtook them jogging along toward the county seat in a buggy. Jumping from her wheel, the girl grabbed the horse by the bridle and compelled her father to turn around and accompany her back home. Miss Emery was left at her father's door, and Mr. Weishiser went home with his daughter, who declares that he shall not marry.

Lower Rates For Women.

At the old fashioned inns and restaurants in Sweden it is customary to charge less for women than for men, on the theory that they do not eat so much. At some hotels in Sweden a man and wife are charged as one and a half persons if they occupy the same room. A husband and wife may travel as one and a half persons by railway and also by the post routes, furnishing their own carriage.

Sampson Objected to Original Report of Fight

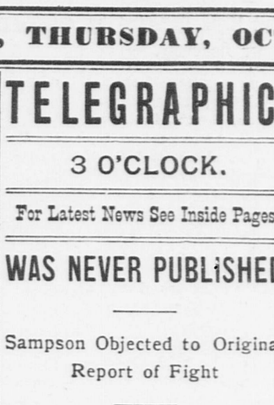

THE NEW YORK'S PRESENCE

Was Not Mentioned, So Schley Made Changes Because the "Victory Was Big Enough For All"—Lemly Concludes Cross Examination

Washington Oct. 31.—The long ordeal to which Admiral Schley has been subjected since Monday morning ended yesterday afternoon when his cross-examination was concluded and he was allowed to leave the witness stand.

When the judge advocate finished the cross-examination the court propounded to the admiral 34 questions, prepared by the members of the court. These questions touched many points of the campaign of the flying squadron, but mainly centered about the difficulties encountered in coaling and the reasons for the retrograde movement. Not one of them related to the battle of Santiago.

The judge advocate's cross-examination covered the retrograde movement, the reconnaissance of May 31, the loop of the Brooklyn, and the alleged colloquy with Lieutenant Hodgson about the Texas.

REAR ADMIRAL SCHLEY BEING CROSS EXAMINED.

One of the most interesting features of the day was the development of the fact that the report of the battle written by Admiral Schley July 6, 1898, was not the original report. The original report was never published, and in accordance with a previous decision, the court declined to allow it to go into the record.

Admiral Schley was allowed to explain, however, that Admiral Sampson declined to receive the first report because it did not mention the presence of the New York. "I felt that the victory at that time," said Admiral Schley in explaining the matter, "was big enough for all and I made this change out of generosity and because I knew that if the New York had been present she would have done as good work as any other vessel."

The admiral was asked what conversation he had had with Lieutenant Commander Hodgson on the Brooklyn just before the loop was made. He said he could not recall a single word of conversation with Mr. Hodgson beyond the latter's remark that the enemy were coming for them and his response to go for them, except some remark about the proximity of the Texas. He did not recall and he never had been able to recall any colloquy.

"Did you give out for publication Lieutenant Hodgson's categorical denial?" "I did."

"Did you give out the accompanying letter of explanation?" "I did not."

The witness stated that he would still say that he had desired to set Hodgson right as well as himself, but he had done nothing in that direction because the department ordered an investigation.

At the conclusion of the cross-examination there was placed in evidence the telegram sent by Admiral Schley to the department July 10, saying in substance that he did not desire to assume entire credit for the victory of July 3 and that the victory belonged to the fleet under the command of Admiral Sampson. In reply to a question from Captain Parker he said he had taken this dispatch to Admiral Sampson "who stated that he was very glad I had sent it and thought it was very generous."

"Who was generous?" "I, of course," responded the witness.

Captain Borden, of the marine corps, who was aboard the Brooklyn, will be the last witness called for Admiral Schley. After he testifies the judge advocate will place on the stand the witnesses in rebuttal, who, it is understood, number about 15. It is probable that Admiral Schley's counsel will call several witnesses in surrebuttal.

Schley's Original Report

Washington, Oct. 31.—It was learned last night that the original and unpublished report of Admiral Schley of the battle of Santiago to Admiral Sampson, referred to in the proceedings before the court of inquiry yesterday, was of a preliminary character and differed from that subsequently made, in that it omitted mention altogether of the cruiser New York and that it also requested the latter (Admiral Sampson) have the commanding officers or captains of the vessels engaged transmit to him (Schley) their detailed accounts of the action in order that he might write a full and complete official report of the battle.

The report is dated off Santiago, July 3, and is addressed to Commander-In-Chief Sampson of the North Atlantic station. The report describes the coming out of the Spanish fleet from the harbor of Santiago and calls attention to the fact that signals were made to the vessels of the American fleet which were obeyed by all the ships. It then proceeds to describe the fight and gives briefly the part played in it by each one of the ships, showing that the Brooklyn, the Oregon, the Texas and the Iowa remained in action until the Viscaya went ashore, and that the Colon surrendered to the Brooklyn and the Oregon.

Schley commends the bravery of all the American officers and crews engaged in the fight and recommends the commanding officers for gallant and meritorious conduct and for the superb handling of their ships.

Insurance Conspirator Set Free

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Frank H. Smiley, who turned state's evidence in the Defenbach insurance conspiracy case, was given his liberty yesterday. He relinquished all right to the $5000 insurance on Marie Defenbach's life. This ends the criminal proceedings in the case, as Dr. Unger is in the penitentiary and Wayland Brown was previously let off with a fine. The insurance money will probably go to the unfortunate girl's relatives.

Seventy-Five Families Burned Out

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Seventy-five families lost their homes and $250,000 worth of property was destroyed in a fire last night that started in a picture frame factory. Two blocks of dwellings were wiped out before the fire was subdued. The Paterson factory, which, with contents, was valued at $175,000, was destroyed. The bulk of the remainder of the loss was on residences.

Irish Nationalists Arrive

New York, Oct. 31.—Messrs. Redmond, McHugh and O'Donnell, nationalist members of the British parliament, who come to this country on a visit on behalf of the Irish cause, have arrived here When seen by a representative of the Associated Press, Mr. Redmond had nothing to say except that they had a pleasant trip and were feeling very well.

More Boers Captured

London, Oct. 31.—Lord Kitchener, in a dispatch from Pretoria, says Colonel Byng surprised a Boer commando Oct. 25 and captured 22 prisoners. Colonel Fortescue, the dispatch adds, had a day long running fight with Muller's Boer command, Oct. 27, northward of Balmoral. He killed four Boers, and captured 54 prisoners, 36 wagons and much stock.

Short of Wheat and Rye

Berlin, Oct. 31.—The Getridemarkt, an agricultural paper, from replies to 5000 enquiries, calculates that Germany will have to import during the current year 3,000,000 tons of wheat and 1,000,000 tons of rye.

Fortune For a Painting

London, Oct. 31.—Charles T. Yerkes has purchased Turner's celebrated painting "Rockets and Blue Lights," at the record price of $78,750.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by all druggists.

BOTH TIME AND FORCE

Increased by Bureau of Engraving and Printing

UNUSUAL TRADE ACTIVITY

Has Caused a Great Demand For Small Notes and Minor Coins—Mints Rushed For Calls For Pennies and Nickels—Unseasoned Paper In Use

Washington, Oct. 31.—That unusual activity prevails in the retail trade of the entire country is evidenced by a demand upon the treasury for notes of small denominations and fractional silver so great that the resources of the government are taxed to the utmost to keep up with it.

A part of the demand is traceable indirectly to the act of March 14, 1900, which remodelled the lesser paper currency by providing for the exclusive use of silver certificates for all denominations under $10. This made it impossible for the treasury to pay out again a large quantity of notes which it had on hand and required their replacement with silver certificates, to say nothing of the output necessitated by the daily inflow of more of the tabooed small notes for exchange.

The necessity for using small silver certificates with such extraordinary rapidity forced into circulation a great volume of paper money which was green and unseasoned, and therefore likely to wear out doubly fast, while its low denominations were an assurance of its use in hand-to-hand retail trade, the severest ordeal though which any kind of money can be put. All the conditions, therefore, forecast early mutilation, and hence a great acceleration in the rate at which further supplies would have been provided.

Some months ago the treasurer, finding that he had to issue the new sertificates as fast as they reached his reserve vault, obtained authority to accumulate a large advance stock so as to have a quantity seasoning while drawing what he required for current needs. The bureau of engraving and printing, which has been considerably enlarged in space and mechanical plant, had not only to increase its force of employes, but to work them more hours in the daytime and also a night shift besides.

Still the demand grew, more than keeping pace with the expansion of the bureau's plant and personnel. Then the stock of distinctive paper threatened to run out, and the factory at Dalton, Mass., was goaded to do more. The paper makers pleaded that they had reached their limit, but a few days ago, Mr. Huntington, chief of the loans and currency division of the treasury, made a trip to the factory, and succeeded in working out a scheme for increasing the average output of 150,000 sheets a day, hitherto the high water mark, to 190,000 sheets. In spite of this increase, and the period of comparative dulness which must be expected after the spring trade has passed its prime, it will take several months to accumulate any considerable supply of finished money for the treasurer's reserve vaults.

In the minor coinage a corresponding activity prevails. The mints cannot keep up at all with the popular demand for pennies and nickels. The bulk of their efforts are concentrated upon 50-cent and 25-cent pieces. At Philadelphia, where a stock of $74,000,000 worth of gold bullion has accumulated, all this has been laid aside to make way for the halves and quarters, of which the machines are turning out $1,300,000 or more each month. At San Francisco and New Orleans similar orders have gone forth, although later, and the closing days of the month will show an aggregate product of $600,000 or $700,000 in these two mints.

It is now regarded as extremely fortunate that congress raised the limit of $50,000,000 for outstanding fractional silver to $100,000,000 by the act of March 14, 1900; otherwise retail trade in these busy times would have been in a bad way. Even while the $50,000,000 limit lasted the mints were driven by sheer necessity to produce about $76,000,000, in disregard of the letter of the law, and there is now outstanding some $91,000,000, all of it new money, to say nothing of the recoined pieces.

Violated Labor Contract Law

Washington, Oct. 31.—The 13 German waiters who arrived in this country on the steamer Mongolian have been ordered by the treasury department to be deported. Upon landing in New York the waiters were arrested under the contract labor law. They took an appeal to the secretary of the treasury. He issued the order yesterday for their deportation as contract laborers.

Stage to Lose a Favorite

Baltimore Oct. 31.—May Irwin, the actress, who is playing here this week, announces her intention to retire from the stage at the close of the present season. Miss Irwin said that she had passed through an enormous amount of hard work and desired to enjoy a rest for the remainder of her life.

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at all drug stores. It is called Chamberlains' Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. At all druggists.

AN ALLEGED POISONER

Jane Toppan Will Be Called Upon to Answer to Serious Charge

Barnstable, Mass., Oct. 31.—Miss Jane Toppan, who was arrested at Amherst, N. H., on suspicion of being connected with the alleged murder of Mrs. Mary Gibbs of Catumet, was brought here yesterday afternoon. She arrived in charge of State Officer Whitney. She was taken to the local jail. The police refuse to give out any information in regard to the case.

Irving F. Gibbs, who is captain of the coasting schooner Golden Ball, was away on that vessel at the time of his wife's death. On learning of it, at a coast port, he immediately returned to Catumet, and although there had been up to that time no suspicion of foul play, Captain Gibbs placed the matter in the hands of District Attorney Holmes. The bodies of Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Holmes were exhumed and an autopsy was held. The stomachs were sent to Professor Wood of Harvard university to be examined, and as a result of that examination Miss Toppan was arrested on suspicion of having poisioned the four members of the Gibbs family.

The police assert that they have sufficient evidence to convict Miss Toppan, although they will not disclose any of it.

Killed Man With Bad Record

Boston, Oct. 31.—In the superior criminal court yesterday, Panfilo Sussi, for the killing of Antonio Pollili, was sentenced to state prison for a term of not less than four years and not more than six. Sussi and Pollili became involved in a quarrel on a stairway of a house about the ownership of 10 cents. Blows followed and Sussi was knocked over. While down the other man threatened to kill him. In fear of consequences Sussi killed Pollili with a pistol. It is said that Pollili killed a man in Italy, stabbed another in this country and was under bonds to keep the peace at the time he was killed.

Large Transatlantic Trade Expected

Portland, Me., Oct. 31.—This city is preparing for a large transatlantic business this winter. The indications all point to a very successful and prosperous business. It is definitely stated that the Hamburg-American, the Dominion and the Elder-Demster lines will run from here and will do a much larger freight business than has ever been done before. The Allan line formerly had elegant passenger steamers, but the fine passenger boats of the old line will be taken by large freighters. These vessels will begin service within the next month.

Robber Makes Confession

Bristol, R. I., Oct. 31.—Frank S. Beaudry of this city has confessed to making a number of breaks in this vicinity and to taking a large assortment of articles. Beaudry made his confession after he had been arraigned before Justice Bennett on two charges of breaking and entering. He pleaded guilty on both counts and was bound over in $2000.

Unknown Man Murdered

Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 31.—The medical examiner last night gave out a statement that leads to the belief that a man whose body was found on Plum island was murdered. He said that black and blue spots on the throat led to the belief that the man was strangled. The police are working on the theory of murder. The body has not yet been identified.

Oyster Growers Are Losers

Hartford, Oct. 31.—The oyster beds at Mumford cove, off the town of Groton, are reported to be substantially a failure this year. The oysters are stunted in growth, inferior in quality, and are not saleable. The failure of the yield is chiefly ascribed to last spring's heavy freshets.

Probable Case of Murder

Milo, Me., Oct. 31.—A message from Chesuncook lake reports that Thomas Geno was found lying dead in his yard in a pool of blood. While few particulars are known the circumstances as far as related suggest murder.

Three More Smallpox Cases

Boston, Oct. 31.—Three new patients comprise yesterday's addition to the smallpox colony at the detention hospital.

Relics of Bygone Days

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—David I. Bushnell, Jr., who is in charge of the archeological department of the Peabody institute of Boston, while on a visit to the site of the world's fair yesterday, discovered six Indian mounds on a high ridge of ground. "The mounds are in the precise conditions in which the Indians left them," says Mr. Bushnell. "The scientific opening of the constructions should result in very interesting developments."

Cargo of Salfpetre Returned

Berlin, Oct. 31.—The German steamer Herzog has arrived at Hamburg from South Africa, having on board a large cargo of saltpetre. The latter was ordered by a powder mill which has been making powder and dynamite for the Boers on Portuguese territory. The British officials forced the mill to send the saltpetre back to Hamburg.

Good News Concerning Miss Stone

Constantinople, Oct. 31.—The negotiations for the ransom of Miss Ellen M. Stone are progressing satisfactorily, it is understood; but, beyond this, those having them in charge maintain absolute secrecy, as they are convinced that publicity would be detrimental to Miss Stone's interests and safety.

For COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

GUSTAVE B. BATES.

Mr. Bates has always been in favor of union labor, and has assisted them in obtaining their just demands by voice, pen and purse. At the time the journeyman plumbers demanded eight hours in Quincy, Mr. Bates declared through the columns of Quincy Daily Ledger as follows:

July 1st, 1901.

"On and after this date all journeyman plumbers in our employ will work eight hours per day."

Drift of Opinion.

☞What will be the ulterior consequences of this rash and unprecedented act of the president to himself and to his party? For the second time he has done what no other president has done. At least, it is not on record that one of his predecessors while en route to a great public function or at any other time stopped to shoo cows from one pasture to another. It is useless for Mr. Roosevelt to assert that he jumped the deacon's fence and rounded up his cows as a private individual, and therefore it is no one's business. He was making "a progress through Connecticut by way of Farmington to New Haven as the president of the United States, and therefore every one but the deacon knew when he subdued the refractory cows that he was acting as president.—Chicago Tribune.

☞The words "Liberty and Happiness" were always being joined in the speeches and writings of the founders of our republic. The phrase represented the ideal toward which the world, by its most liberal and sympathetic leaders, earnestly and hopefully strove. "Liberty and Happiness" were supposed to have been established by the written constitutions of the United States and certain other countries and by the unwritten constitutions of others; and indeed there has been a genuine advance, we believe, and in human liberty and in human happiness. But this country is finding out, through painful experiences, that our "free government" does not make certain all forms of happiness; it does not insure our system from deadly attack in the person of its rulers; it does not make our whole senate pure; it does not, in itself, save all our states and municipal governments from corruption. When a people has obtained its freedom, it may be only beginning to learn the lesson of self-government. There are ill-regulated minds, even in a republic like ours, that interpret freedom as license, and would make free speech the handmaid to free murder.—The Century for November.

Musicale at Atlantic.

A large audience attended the musical at the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, Wednesday evening. The music was under the direction of Miss Ella Ames Horton, pianist and Miss Mary Hawes Moody, soprano, assisted by Mr. Robert Bruce, baritone of the Temple quartete; Miss Lillian Pierce, reader; Mr. Augustus Vogel, violinist and Mr. C. S. Johnson organist.

Whist Party.

At the Woman's Relief Corps whist party held at the home of Mrs. Alice Litchfield, Tuesday evening, Oct. 29, souvenirs were awarded to the following persons:

GREAT REVIVAL.

Capacity of All Shipyards Increased.

That at Quincy Rivals Them All.

To Have Largest Ship Rolls in Country.

The activity in the shipbuilding industry in the United States is one of the notable features of the revival of prosperity which began during the late President McKinley's first administration, says the Chicago Tribune in a comprehensive statement of three columns on the great revival in shipbuilding. Continuing, the industry has received its great impetus without a subsidy, and the demand for ships isn't fostered by the hope that Congress may, in the near future, vote a subsidy bill.

American capital is being invested in ships. The yards at Newport News, Bath, Camden, Quincy, Wilmington, Baltimore and other industrial centres are crowded with vessels in course of construction. These vessels range in size from the river tug to great ocean freight liners, from a pleasure yacht to a seven-masted steel schooner, from a torpedo boat to the heaviest battleship.

Practically every shipyard in the country has been enlarged in the last two years and nearly every one of them is preparing to still further increase its facilities.

At Newport News $14,000,000 is invested and 7,000 men are employed. At one time this year vessels with an aggregate tonage of 145,100 were under construction, to cost $28,350,000.

At Bath, Me., vessels to cost more than $7,850,000. Twenty-six merchant ships have already been launched this year and the yards are full.

Baltimore has just finished two Atlantic passenger liners to ply between London and New York, each being 650 feet long.

Camden, N. J., is building four freight steamers, each of 6,000 tons, and within a month keels will be laid for two steamers, each 620 feet long, each of 18,000 tons burden. Another yard at Camden has four ocean steamers 6,000 tons each, on the ways, and contracts for four more.

At New London the great freight steamers for the Pacific and Oriental trade are being built for James J. Hill of the Great Northern.

Wilmington, Del., has already completed eight steamers this year and nine more are on the ways.

From every point comes the assurance that the industry will be greater next year than this. With the exception of two points, where local strikes have interfered, all yards are working full time.

FORE RIVER WORKS.

The Quincy yard was written up as follows: Within sixteen months there has been established at Quincy, Mass., an up-to-date ship-yard. The Fore River Ship and Engine company is engaged in construction of the protected cruiser Des Moines, the torpedo boat destroyers Lawrence and MacDonough the first-class sea-going battleships New Jersey and Rhode Island, and the first seven-masted steel schooner ever built.

While this has been going on the yard has been built up to meet all of its requirements, and soon when construction of the two battleships is well under way about 3,000 men will be employed.

The Lawrence and MacDonough were launched in 1900. Their tonnage is 489 tons each, contract price $240,000 each.

The Des Moines, to be launched early in November, has a tonnage of 3,500; contract price $1,065,000. The large steel schooner that is to be launched next spring, has a tonnage of 10,000 and will cost $275,000. The capital invested by the company is $3,000,000. Although the yards are not worked to full capacity, the capacity will be doubled within a year.

The company has also contracted for the largest ship rolls for bending plates ever put up and has itself taken the subcontract for the massive forging for this machine, only possible because the yard has already set up one of the three largest steel hammers in this country. To complete the equipment there are now being erected oil frames and tanks which will temper pieces fifty feet long weighing twenty-five tons.

The yards will also have a powerful Gantry crane, which will travel along the sea wall of the receiving basin. Electricity is used exclusively for driving power at this shipyard.

UNABLE TO SCORE.

Mechanics Art High Defeated by Thayer Academy.

Thayer Academy won from Mechanics Art school Wednesday afternoon, on French's Common, South Braintree. The game was full of long runs on the part of Thayer. Remick and Clark excelled principally by long gains through the tackle and end. Moore of Mechanic broke up Thayer's interference several times. Thayer had it much their own way the first half but failed to score the second half.

In no part of the game was Thayer's goal in danger. They played a strong offensive game, while fumbling went to the discredit of Mechanics.

Thayer kicked off to Mechanics the first half, but on a fumble, Arnold fell on the ball. Thayer ploughed through Mechanics' line and presently made a touchdown. Remick kicked safely.

On the next kick-off Thayer, again rushed the ball down the field, first striking the line hard and then gaining by end plays. Soon another tally was scored after Remick had made a twenty-five yard run.

Knight interfered for the half backs in great style. Again Remick kicked safely. In five more minutes Remick made five points to Thayer's credit.

Thayer, again ploughed up Mechanics Art and it looked as if there would be another tally, but the goal from the field failed to work and the half ended with the ball on Mechanics thirty yard line.

Probably, Mechanics would have stopped the plays had they tackled lower than they did. Many times Thayer pushed through their line with several grabbing for the halfbacks, neck, face and shoulders.

In the second half, the losing side woke up and realized their danger and kept Thayer from scoring when within four yards of the goal. Both teams punted during this game and gained considerable. There were many misplays toward the latter part of the game owing to the approaching darkness. The half ended with the ball near Mechanics Art goal.

Anniversary of Pastorate.

In these days five years is longer than the average pastorate of Quincy clergymen. For this reason the ladies of the United Presbyterian church on Pleasant street decided that the fifth anniversary of Rev. W. W. Dornan should not go by unnoticed. Attendants of the church and friends were therefore invited to the church Wednesday evening and a reception was given from 7.30 to 10. Rev. Angus K. McClellan of Boston presided for the first two hours, and Rev. Dr. Todd for the balance of the evening. There were speeches by Dr. Todd and the pastor. Vocal numbers by the choir, Mr. Parsons, and the Quincy Male Quartette, and selections by the graphaphone. Ice cream and cake were served. A vote of thanks was extended before adjournment to the committee of ladies.

Hallowe'en.

Four weeks to Thanksgiving.

H. C. Weeden has returned from Alabama.

The public schools will be closed tomorrow.

George N. Nash of the Granite Clothing Co. is on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Nash have returned fom North Conway.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings met Wednesday evening.

Ex-Chief of Police Walter H. Ripley is home from Worcester for a few days.

Chief of Police Hayen, who has been laid up for a few days, is again on duty.

The frost for the past few mornings has caused the foliage to take on its fall tint.

The stove dealers are the people who are busy now, getting stoves in readiness for the winter.

There is no question but what Quincy will give Marshall P. Wright a rousing vote next Tuesday.

The Ledger building and McConnell's fruit store buildings are being connected with the public sewer.

At the whist tournament of the Granite City club Wednesday night prizes were captured by Harold B. Faxon and George W. Jones.

Work laying the pavers on Willard street has not been commenced, but Commissioner Knowlton promises to have the job done before winter sets in.

The Wollaston golf team defeated the Harvard first team on Wednesday by a score of 4 up. The Wollaston team was composed of Smith, Freeman, Bardett, Rollin, Farrington, and Pope.

The Electric Light and Power Co. is running wires from its new plant on Bracketts wharf to connect with its main wires so as to be able to start up its new plant near the first of November.

Because of the growth of business the Quincy Saving bank will hereafter be open continuously from 8.30 A. M., to 4 P. M., except on Saturdays, when the closing hours will be 12 M. The new hours will be appreciated.

The ladies of the Wollaston Unitarian church are making preparations for a Christmas sale. An all-day sewing meeting will be held in the vestry of their church next Wednesday. There will be basket lunch, but coffee will be provided.

David Harum House.

The Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard notes the progress of a Quincy boy who moved to that city four years ago, as follows:

E. F. Southworth, son-in-law of Dr. John Van Duyn, is negotiating for the purchase of the Edward N. Westcott property at No. 826 James street. Mr. Southworth said last night that the deal had not been closed, but that he expected it would be before the end of the week. In that case he will make some improvements and take possession of the property for a family residence.

The property is handsomely situated on James street hill and it is within the walls of the house that "David Harum" was written by Mr. Westcott.

Mr. Southworth is the son of Mr. Edward Southworth of 24 Greenleaf street, Quincy. He will take possession of his new property about Dec. 1.

Bicycle Accident.

Gemme Linglen, an Italian residing on Canal street, was riding rapidly down Coddington street on a bicycle Wednesday evening when he ran into a carriage coming in the opposite direction. Linglen was thrown off, and suffered a broken jaw and the loss of his teeth. He was attended by Dr. Jones and removed to the City Hospital.

Norfolk County Vote.

DIZER—In East Weymouth, Oct. 30, Mrs. Harriet D., wife of Mr. Jacob F. Dizer, aged 75 years and 11 months.

IN MANY CONCERNS

Betts And Fisher Run Several.

One the Cobb-Everett Company.

The Much-Sought Men Expected to Surrender.

The Herald has another interesting chapter today in the Betts-Fisher-Adams affair:

The stories which have been published relative to the remarkable operations of the State street stock "operators," for whom the officers are looking, have thus far related to J. M Fisher & Co. The name of the Cobb-Everett Investment Company has hardly been mentioned. Yet complaints have been made against the latter concern, with as much positiveness as against Fisher & Co. The investment company has offices at 85 State street, while J. M. Fisher & Co.'s offices are in the Fiske building, at 89.

Both these concerns are really operated by the same men. George A. Adams, who has been mentioned as a member of the firm of Fisher & Co. is the president of the Cobb-Everett Company, in which Betts is also interested. Their ways of conducting the business of the two concerns differed slightly, but it is alleged that the results were practically the same.

Betts appears to have been the great mogul of the various establishments. Another concern in which he figured was the Bankers' and Manufacturers' Mercantile Agency, with offices at 50 State street. All customers of either the investment company or the Fisher concern were invited to correspond with the mercantile agency in case they had any doubt as to the financial standing of either firm. There were many such inquiries, and the correspondent would be informed immediately that the firm of which he asked a rating was very strong. Then a lot of figures would be submitted substantiating the statement. A very clever ruse was also shown in this connection. It was stated that anyone could get a rating of the concern from R. G. Dun & Co. But anybody getting a rating from Dun regarding the firm would have had to pay for it, and this generally acted as a deterrent.

It is said that some of the customers, after dealing with Fisher & Co. wrote to the Cobb Everett Investment Company that they had not been satisfied with the Fisher concern, and said that they hoped that they would get better satisfaction with the investment company. Of course, such people did not know that they were one and the same concern, but the Cobb-Everett people welcomed them with great cordiality.

One of the noteworthy features in the case is the great number of people who throng the offices of J. M. Fisher & Co., the United States marshal's office and that the United States district attorney and others.

One man came down to the United States marshal's office yesterday wringing his hands and cursing his luck in the most strenuous manner.

"Just think of it," he wailed, "I put $150 into the hands of the Fisher concern at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon and they took it from me, although the police had been in there and cleaned the office out during the forenoon." Another peculiar case was that of a friend of Marshal Darling. All along this friend has been telling the marshal what a swell investment he had made and how rich he was going to be some day.

This friend frequented the Fisher office a great deal; he was there so much, in fact, that he had his friends call him up there by telephone. Col. Darling himself used to call him up at the office of the concern. When the crash came one of the first visitors to Col. Darling's office was this friend. "Why didn't you tell me," he asked, breathlessly. "You knew that I was interested in that concern."

"Oh, yes," replied the marshal. But I couldn't tip you off. We don't do business that way. But how much did you lose?" he asked. "A little over $12,000," groaned the friend in reply. Complaints of this sort kept pouring in all day long. Both Betts and Fisher were just fitting up their houses in the most expensive and elaborate manner. Money without limit was being expended and nothing was left undone on the ground of expense. Betts had about closed a contract for an $8,000 launch with "Mike Kiley," as it is said, and now Kiley is back on earth again with one beautiful dream in the air.

Political Potpourri.

The people of Wollaston Park section of Ward Five are desirous that it shall be known all over the ward that Mr. J. Polk of Beach street is their candidate for the Council, this year, it being understood that one of three, nominated, shall be from that section. Mr. Polk is not seeking the nomination, and has only allowed the use of his name at the request of a large number of voters.

The City Messenger is busy getting the booths in the several voting precincts ready for the election next Tuesday.

Sample ballots for next Tuesdays election have been posted.

The nomination papers of candidates to be voted for at the Republican caucuses to be held next Wednesday will be opened tonight.

Henry H. Faxon continues to take the same active interest in politics although his eyes trouble him so much that he is not able to do as much writing as in years past.

The voters of Atlantic are taking a keen interest in the candidacy of Frank E. Badger, one of their neighbors, who has been renominated for the Legislature. He is the only Representative that Ward Six has had since Quincy became a city, and Democrats as well as Republican resent the effort which was made to sidetrack him, and will give him a large vote. Whereas, on convention night, there were doubts whether he could be reelected, the prospect now is he will be the leading Representative candidate next Tuesday.

In 1895 Quincy gave Gov. Greenhalge a plurality of 791 over Williams the Democratic candidate, but at the same election gave Augustus B. Endicott, the Democratic candidate for sheriff, 1701 votes to 1118 for Abram C. Paul, who was nominated by the Republicans and had the endorsement of the People's Party. A prominent Republican says Watts H. Bowker will not receive 500 votes in Quincy for County Commissioner.

In the Achinsk district of Siberia, lying to the west of the Yenesei river and about 100 miles to the south of the Transsiberian railroad, says a writer in The Engineering Magazine, I went with a party of four other Americans to visit the mines of a large Siberian proprietor.

The wall rock of the vein appeared to be full of little crystals of iron sulphide, and on closer inspection particles of gold were visible. The finding of free gold in the rock away from the quartz of the vein was extraordinary, and it in some measure prepared us for the appearance of the quartz in the face of the drift. Here, by candle light on the face of quartz eight feet in width, appeared wirelike strings and masses of native gold extending in lines more or less parallel to the walls from top to bottom of the drift, which was about six feet high.

In no less than six openings on this vein, all following it from 50 to 200 feet into the mountain side, we were shown these marvelous exhibitions of free gold.

Iron Sands of Guadalupe.

At many places along the coast of Guadalupe are vast beds of iron sands. The quantity in sight and immediately available is estimated at some 200,000 tons. It is a very pure magnetic iron sand, free from impurities and yielding about 67 per cent of iron. This iron is said to give a superior quality to steel. Practically unlimited quantities of this sand are available, and vessels may be loaded speedily and safely.

To Preserve Iron From Rust.

Copper sulphide, in the opinion of Professor Hess, solves the problem of a permanent rust preventing coating for iron. The well cleaned iron is suspended for a few minutes in a copper sulphate solution, rinsed with water, then moved about a few minutes in a solution of sodium hyposulphite containing a very little hydrochloric acid. The blue black surface resulting, rinsed and dried, is adherent and durable.

A New Process In Copper.

The acquisition by Senator Clark of Montana of a newly discovered process by which bars, sheets and tubes can be manufactured from the crude material almost at the pit's mouth will mean a saving of something like $100 per ton on the finished material. The process is electrolytic and is closely analogous to the electrolytic refining method by which 200,000 tons of copper were refined in the United States last year.

A Nonexplosive Oil Can.

David H. Hardesty of Allegheny, Pa., has invented a nonexplosive oil can. It it well known that the explosion which takes place in an oil can is caused by the igniting of the gases which are formed in the can above the surface of the oil, the flame usually either entering the vent or the spout. In Hardesty's safety can the vent tube and discharge spout connect with the interior of the can at its lowest point; consequently the flames cannot reach the gases without passing through the oil, which is impossible. Then, again, the vent tube is located at the point farthest from where the flames would be, and, the passage being long and narrow, even when the can is nearly empty, it would be next to impossible for it to maintain itself long enough away from the air for it to reach the oil.

When Frenchmen Were Germans.

The name of France is derived from the Franci, or Franks, a people of Germany who seized that part of the country nearest the Rhine and settled there. Later on they subdued Paris and made that the royal seat of their increasing empire.

The origin of other geographical names is interesting and will serve to enlighten us when we read of, for instance, Hibernia for Ireland. Hibernia is said to be derived from a Phœnician word meaning "farthest habitation," there being no country known to them west of Erin.

Portugal obtained its name from Porto, the haven or port where the Gauls landed their stores. This is Oporto, called by the Portuguese O Porto (the port). The town was given as a dowry to Teresa when she married Henry de Lorraine, who styled himself Earl of Portugal because the place was known as the portus Gallorum (the port of the Gauls). The name was finally extended to the whole country.

Russia took its denomination from the Rossi, or Russi, a people of the south of Russia, who possessed themselves of the country in the declining days of the Greek empire. Being the predominant inhabitants, they imposed their name on all the rest.

A Street Parable.

A little girl stood at a window blowing soap bubbles. Beneath stood a little boy, and as she blew bubbles toward him he tried to catch them. They broke and disappeared on all sides, but the two laughed and kept up the game, she smiling down and he gazing upward eagerly.

"Behold, a parable!" said a man to a woman. "The eternal relation of the sexes! You blow beautiful bubbles down to us from your height, and we weary ourselves in trying vainly to catch them. Poor little boy!"

The pair played and laughed in the sunshine until the boy grew tired. He called out "Goodby!" gayly and ran away to play with other boys and girls in the street. The girl looked after him wistfully, a shadow on her face. She did not care to blow bubbles any more. She leaned out to watch him, and as she did so she tipped over the bowl of soapy water. She looked very lonely.

"Behold, a parable!" said the woman to the man. "He has tired of the game; not she. There is no other little boy to blow bubbles to, and if there were she has no pretty bubbles left to blow. Eternal relation of sexes! Poor little girl!"—New York Tribune.

Fire Among Savage Nations.

According to Pliny fire was a long time unknown to some of the ancient Egyptian tribes, and when a celebrated astronomer made them acquainted with that element and how to produce it they were wild with delight. The Persians, Phœnicians, Greeks and several other nations acknowledge that their ancestors were once without the comforts which fire bestows; the Chinese confess the same of their progenitors. Pompanion, Mola, Plutarch and other ancient writers speak of nations which, at the time when they wrote, knew not the use of fire or had just recently learned it.

The inhabitants of the Marian Islands, which were discovered in 1551, had no idea of fire or its uses. Their astonishment knew no bounds when they saw it applied to wood, most of them taking it to be some kind of an animal which the sailors had brought with them and which must be fed on wood.

All Charged but the Cork.

A good story is told of a digger who had ridden into a Western Australian town to consult a doctor. Having done so, he went to have the prescription made up.

"How much is this lot?" he asked the chemist.

"Well, let me see," was the reply. "There's seven and sixpence for the medicine and a shilling for the bottle." He hesitated, uncertain whether he had charged for everything.

"Oh, hurry up, boss," said the impatient miner; "put a price on the cork and let us know the worst."—London Tit-Bits.

His Gift.

The following incident is reported from one of the public schools in the poorer section of Boston:

"Say, teacher, here's a tuberose I brought you," said a smudge faced youngster the other day.

And, beaming her thanks, she asked him where he got it.

"Oh, say, dat was easy," he replied. "I got it off'n a dead lady."

Blankets.

To clean flannel blankets a good way is to put two tablespoonfuls of borax and a pint of soft soap into cold water sufficient to cover the blankets. When the borax and soap have dissolved, put in the blankets and let them stand over night. The next day rub them out, rinse in two waters and hang them to dry. Never wring them.

An Apt Definition.

"What is a Bohemian?" said the young man who wants to study human nature.

"A Bohemian," answered the cold blooded friend, "is a person who always needs two or three extra indorsements on his note when he wants to borrow money."—Washington Star.

No Superstition.

"Would you start on a journey on Friday?"

"No, indeed."

"Why are people so superstitious?"

"But this has nothing to do with superstition. I get paid on Saturday."

A small iron pot holding about a quart, which is still preserved, was cast at the Lynn foundry in 1645. It was the first iron article made from native ore in America.

WHITE HOUSE GARDENER.

Has Served Many Years, but Gets Only Modest Salary.

The head gardener of the White House, Henry Pfister, is now nearing the close of twenty-five years of efficient service in that position, writes a Washington correspondent. When he came to Washington, the force under him numbered five; it now numbers twelve, and the work has increased in a greater ratio than these figures indicate. There were then but two flower beds on the grounds, and those were moon shaped affairs on the southern lawn near where the Marine band plays on summer evenings. Mr. Pfister is a German, who was known in Ohio as a skilled horticulturist. Notable changes, he says, have come over standards of floral decoration since twenty-five years ago. In those days the lawn at the front of the White House was never mowed oftener than once a month, and it was not thought unusual to let the grass reach a reasonable height. Now it is kept closely cut all the time, a horse machine being used for that purpose. A similar account might be given of the floral devices for interior decorations, for Mr. Pfister has kept fully abreast of the times, and his work has been much admired.

It is rather remarkable that the chief gardener of the executive mansion, having this force of men under him and considerable financial responsibility, should receive only $1,500 a year, the same amount that he received at the start. This is out of all proportion to other salaries paid about the premises. The colored men who act as messengers at the White House receive $1,200. The reason that Mr. Pfister has never shared in the general rise of salaries is due to his modest way of attending to his own work without seeking the favor of those at the legislative end of the city who adjust the compensation of Uncle Sam's servants.

INVITED TO CORONATION.

Albert Fairfax Only American Receiving Royal Summons.

Albert Fairfax of the Union club, who holds a clerkship in the banking house of Brown Bros., says the society writer of the New York Journal, will enjoy the unique distinction of being the only American citizen to receive a royal summons to attend King Edward's coronation next summer. As twelfth Lord Fairfax and a peer of the Scottish realm he is called upon by the proclamation which the Duke of Norfolk has just published in the London Gazette by the order and in the name of Edward VII. to send his address between now and January to the earl marshal of the United Kingdom in order that the king's summons may be forwarded to him, not merely inviting, but commanding him to attend the ceremony of the coronation in Westminster abbey.

Should young Albert Fairfax, who, like many another nobleman making his home in this country, dispenses with the handle to his name, see fit to marry between now and next spring his bride will be entitled by British law to receive a royal summons to attend the coronation as a peeress of Scotland and will, like her husband, be forced to provide herself without delay with a silver gilt coronet and an ermine lined mantle or robe in accordance with the cut and pattern described in the royal proclamation above mentioned, as promulgated by the Duke of Norfolk.

Admission of Unusual Testimony.

Representative Wellep, a Kansas legislator, is probably the only man in the world who has been allowed by a court of inquiry to testify regarding what he said to himself, says The Green Bag. In 1895 a committee was appointed by the Kansas legislature to investigate the alleged bribery of certain members in connection with a defeated railroad bill. Mr. Wellep was the first witness called by the prosecution. In the course of his testimony he told of seeing Representative M. late one night coming down a hotel stairs. "I said to myself," continued Wellep—but a member of the defense had jumped to his feet. "Hold on!" he shouted. "You can't testify about what you said to yourself!" The prosecutor retorted hotly that there was no law to prohibit Mr. Wellep from so testifying. Both serious and ludicrous was the argument that ensued. A majority of the committee finally concurred in the chairman's decision that the witness had a right to tell what he said to himself. "I said to myself," seriously proceeded Wellep, "that M. had been up to Billy Carter's room to get his pay." The testimony was recorded and made a part of the official record of the Kansas house.

King Alfred's "Millinery."

Lord Rosebery, in a toast at the banquet of the Alfred millinary celebration, pleaded ignorance of his high subject, but maintained that there were others who, like himself, believed in the burned cakes and were ignorant of aught else about the west Saxon king. In proof of this he told the following anecdote, for the truth of which he staked his postprandial honor: A young girl is seen coming down the steps of a great London library, and is greeted by another: "Hello, Florry! What are you doing here?" Florry, in discontented accents: "Papa sent me here to find out about King Alfred." The other girl: "What about that old Johnnie?" Florry: "Papa asked us at tea last night what was all this fuss about Alfred and his millinery. Not one of us could tell him, and he sent me here to find out." The other promptly replied: "You stupid. Why, it's the drapery around his statue, of course." Lord Rosebery found in the anecdote a certain consolation for those of his hearers who, like himself, were not deeply versed in the literary works of King Alfred.

BECOMES CHIEF GUNNER

Roosevelt Pardons Morgan For Offense Committed Long Ago

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt has granted a full and unconditional pardon to Gunner Charles Morgan, U. S. N., who, some years ago, was found guilty by courtmartial of being absent from station and duty on the cruiser New York without leave, and sentenced to be reduced several numbers in his grade.

GUNNER CHARLES MORGAN.

Gunner Morgan rendered distinguished service in charge of the divers who examined the wreck of the Maine. With his numbers restored Morgan will now become a chief gunner.

Morgan is perhaps the best known warrant officer in the navy. His application to Admiral Sampson last spring for recommendation for examination for a commission drew out the admiral's opposition because of his opinion that the candidate could not answer the social requirements.

Hard to Get Away From Nome

Port Townsend, Wash., Oct. 31.—Steamers Queen and Valencia arrived yesterday from Nome. Each brought 800 passengers. On the Queen were 100 stowaways who succeeded in boarding the vessel by climbing up the anchor chain while the vessel was at anchor in the roadway at Nome. Passengers say that 500 men were left at Nome, all of whom are penniless, with no means of making a living during the winter, and a reign of terror is expected. During the entire voyage of the Queen petty thefts were of daily occurrence.

Lipton Going Into Farming

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 31.—Accredited agents of Sir Thomas Lipton are taking options on thousands of acres of farming lands in the southern part of the state. On these lands the Lipton company proposes to establish truck gardens to raise supplies for the Lipton shops in Great Britain. These are to shipped by a special line of steamers plying between Liverpool and Savannah.

Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost entirely cured—Geo. R. McDonald, Mon, Logan county, W. Va. Several other very remarkable cures of partial paralysis have been effected by the use of this liniment. It is most widely known, however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

Fall River Loomfixers Vote Against a Strike

SPINNERS ALSO OPPOSED

Weavers, Slashers and Carders In Favor of Struggle For Ten Percent Advance, but Ruling of Textile Council Prohibits a General Strike

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 31.—The mill operatives of this city last night decided not to strike for an increase of wages next Monday morning, the matter being decided b ya majority of four votes in the loomfixers' union.

Only 1702 of the 20,000 operatives of the city, exclusive of those employed in the iron works and Bourne mills and the mills of the New England Yarn company, attended the general mass meeting of the unions, called for the purpose of voting on the proposition to strike Monday morning for an increase of 10 percent in wages.

According to the ruling of the Textile Council, four of the five unions must vote in favor of a strike before one can be ordered. Last night the weavers, slashers and carders voted in favor, but the spinners voted against it by a majority of 48 votes and the loomfixers by a majority of only four. The spinners were expected to vote against striking, so the question was really decided by the four votes in the loomfixers' union.

The unions that voted to strike are not satisfied with the result, and the Textile Council has called a meeting for tonight, at which time those who voted to strike will have an opportunity to say whether or not they will withdraw from the Textile Council and undertake a strike without the spinners and loomfixers. The general feeling at labor headquarters is that there will be no strike.

Clergymen's Advice to Strikers

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 31.—Rev. William Knight of the Congregational church, Rev. Dr. Julian of the Baptist temple, Rev. C. Hughes and Rev. J. A. Prevost, the last two Catholic, have united in a statement advising operatives not to strike. After being assured that the operatives can have steady work during the winter at the present scale, these clergymen give it as their opinion that the operatives should remain at work.

Miss Gould Heads Women's Board

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—P. D. Scott of the federal commission of the St. Louis World's fair has received a telegram from Miss Helen Gould in which she accepts the appointment as member-at-large on the woman's board. Miss Gould was nominated for the position and was unanimously elected by a rising vote of the commission, thus becoming president of the board.

War Minister a Conspirator

New York, Oct. 31.—Cable advices from Colombia announce the discovery of a conspiracy against the government in which the minister of war, Gener l Ospina, is implicated. General Ospina has been deposed and is now imprisoned at Bogota. Colombians in this city say that the arrest of a man of his station could not have been affected on mere suspicion.

No Definite Proposition

Washington, Oct. 31.—The report of the isthmian canal commission is well under way. President Hutin of the Panama Canal company is still holding frequent conferences with the commission, but up to this time has not made a definite proposition for the sale of the Panama canal to this government.

Kick Against Koester

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 31.—South Carolina Republicans are indignant at the appointment of George R. Koester, editor of a newspaper supporting Senator McLaurin in this city, as collecter of internal revenue, and they will fight his confirmation in the senate.

Directors Court Investigation

London, Oct. 31.—Justice Wright has ordered the compulsory liquidation of the London and Globe Finance corporation. In view of the serious allegations of frand made from time to time, the directors declare that they court the fullest investigation.

Big Floating Dock's Progress

Washington, Oct. 31.—Rear Admiral Endicott has received a telegram stating that the big floating dry dock destined for the naval station at Algiers, La., has passed Key West. The dock still has about 500 miles to traverse.

CAUGHT ON A CROSSING

Chaffeur Fournier and Five Friends In a Serious Smashup

New York, Oct. 31.—As Henri Fournier, the French chaffeur, was crossing the tracks of the Long Island railroad yesterday near Westbury in an automobile in which five other men were seated, the machine came into collision with a locomotive and all six men were hurt and the machine demolished. The names of those in the party and the extent of their injuries are:

HENRI FOURNIER.

N. B. Fullerton, special agent of the passenger department of the Long Island road; badly cut about the head and face and a compound fracture of one leg. A. G. Batchelder of the New York Journal; broken leg and other injuries. J. H. Gerrie, New York Herald; broken shoulder and leg. Arthur Lewis, cuts on face and hand and ankle sprained. Henri Fournier, foot sprained. Henry Everall, bruises and cuts and leg sprained.

Mr. Fournier says that the party was on its way home to New York when the accident occurred, having been out all day in company with William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., in his machine, looking for a good road on which it was Fournier's intention to try the mile record this morning.

The locomotive, he said, struck the machine two or three inches behind the left front wheel, throwing it around so that the rear of the vehicle was brought against the lomocotive. The machine was completely demolished. It was not one of his racing machines, however.

There is no flagman at the crossing, which is hidden by buildings, but an automatic bell rings on the approach of a train. The members of the automobile party say this did not ring. The railroad people assert otherwise.

Fournier, who was handling the lever, and Everall, were thrown about 50 feet. Fullerton and Batchelder were hurled 150 feet across the platform, while Lewis and Gerrie were mixed up with the wreckage of the machine.

Fournier and his companions were taken in a special car to the Nassau hospital at Mineola, L. I. Later Fournier, Everall and Lewis were brought to their homes in this city. Fullerton, Batchelder and Gerrie are still at the hospital.

Won't Handle Rutland Freight

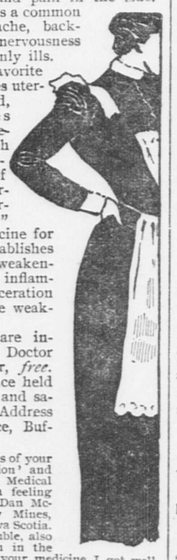

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Trouble which has been brewing for some time between the Grand Trunk and the Rutland Railway company has culminated in the former road announcing that in the future it will handle no freight which comes over the South Shore road, with which the Rutland railway is connected.

Racer Not on the Market

Queenstown, Oct. 31.—Sir Thomas Lipton, who arrived here yesterday from New York, says that the report that Shamrock II is for sale in New York is quite untrue, and that he intends racing her again in America next season. He reiterates his purpose to again challenge for the America's cup.

"I had headache and pain in the side."

If you will read the letter of Mrs. McKenzie, given below, you will find that she says—"I had uterine disease, also headache and pain in the side." Uterine disease is a common cause of headache, backache, sideache, nervousness and other womanly ills.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures uterine disease, and, therefore, cures the headache, sideache, etc., which result from a diseased condition of the womanly organism. "Favorite Prescription" is the best medicine for women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence held in strict privacy and sacred secrecy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I took two bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and two of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and am feeling well," writes Mrs. Dan McKenzie, of Lorway Mines, Cape Breton Co., Nova Scotia. "I had uterine trouble, also headache, and pain in the side. After taking your medicine I got well. You may publish this or use it in any way you think best, as I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, containing 1008 large pages, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Learning the Game.

When that great plainsman J. B. Hickok, better known as "Wild Bill," came east on what he called a "redhot trail to learn something," he stopped one Saturday night at a hotel in Portland, Me.

When he went to his room to seek rest, he found that the adjoining room was occupied by a company of fashionable and rich young sports of Portland who, it did not take him long to discover, were playing an interesting game of poker for high stakes. In vain did he try to sleep. He could not do so, and after an hour arose, dressed himself and knocked on the door.

Instantly all was silent; but he inquired politely that as they would not let him sleep would they let him come in and watch the game?

They did so and were impressed with the appearance of the man and asked if he would join them.

"I will if you will post me; but, you know, I'm a tenderfoot east," he replied.

They were willing to "post" him, and, playing awkwardly, making blunders and asking questions, but seemingly greatly interested, he continued to play until daylight, when he put his winnings, some $1,500, in his pocket.

"I thank you, gentlemen," he said, "and I'm rather glad you would not let me sleep. I'll be here until tomorrow, so keep me awake some more."

But the players did not appear again. —Detroit Free Press.

Borrowing Habits of Poets.

On Tennyson's habit of failing to recognize clearly his own borrowings from the classical poets, Mr. Lang observes that the poets have always had a kind of regal indifference to their own lighter productions. Mr. Lang says: "Scott did not care; no, not when he found that he had unwittingly taken a line from a poem by the valet of a friend. In the preface to a little collection of verses from the novels he frankly declares that he cannot pretend to be certain which are of his own composition and which are not.

"To take an example from the level at the foot of Parnassus, I once read, in an American paper, some lines attributed to Mr. Austin Dobson. 'Not bad for Dobson,' I said freely to a friend. But it was proved on me that the rhymes were my own! A bard who forgets his own verses may be pardoned for remembering those of other people and mistaking a half line of somebody else's for his own. I dare say that Tennyson did this occasionally, but he could hardly say that 'the sun sets' without being accused of unconscious borrowing."

Greek and Roman Stoves.

Warm as Greece and Rome and Egypt are, stoves were made there in the dim and misty vistas of the past. It was not just the pattern used at present, but was a metal basin in which charcoal was burned. It sat in the middle of the room, and as the resulting smoke was of the slightest no opening in the roof or elsewhere was necessary. The same implement, still called by its old Greek name of brazier, is now employed in many portions of continental Europe, where it is utilized for heating as well as cooking.

But the progressive Romans improved on that and made a hypocaust. It was the germ of the present furnace. It was made under the house in a little cellar prepared for it, and the heat was conducted to the rooms and baths through crevices left in the floor and lower portions of the wall. Later flues were provided, conducting heat to any portion of the house. In some of the old Roman villas in England the remains of these old time furnaces are still found.

Origin of the Clearing House.

In 1775 the bankers of London rented a house in Lombard street and fitted it with tables and desks for the use of their clerks as a place where bills, notes, drafts and other commercial paper might be exchanged without the trouble of personal visits of employees to all the metropolitan banks. Transfer tickets were used, and by means of this simple plan transactions involving many millions were settled without a penny changing hands. The Bank of England and every other important bank in London are members of the Clearing House association. The first clearing house in the United States was established by the associated banks of New York in 1853.

Her References.

Mrs. Hiram—And have you any references?

Applicant—No, mum; Oi tored 'em up!

Mrs. Hiram (in surprise)—Tore them up? How foolish!

Applicant—Yez wudn't think so, mum, if yez had seen 'em.—From "Recollections of Mrs. Minnie E. Leo."

An Indian Belief.

There is a belief prevalent in India that if a man be sleeping, no matter where, and a Shesh Nag come and sit beside him, with a hood spread over the sleeper's face, the latter is sure to be a son of fortune. Popular tradition assigns the same reason to the rise of Haida Ali of Mysore from a common soldier.

A Wee Drop.

Sandy—And will ye tak' a drap o' whisky afore ye gang hame, Tammas?

Tammas—Ah, weel, just a wee drapple.

Sandy—Then say when, laddie.

Tammas—Nay, mon; the glass will say when.—London King.

A Thoroughbred.

She—Is it true that when you proposed to me you didn't know whether I was worth a penny?

He—Absolutely. But I always was willing to take chances.—Detroit Free Press.
